OIL WORKERS TO VOTE SOON ON QUESTION OF CALLING OFF BIG STRIKE

BAKERSFIELD, Cal. Nov. 1.—Striking oil workers will vote tomorrow and Thursday on the question of calling off the Kern county oil strike, which has tied up one of the richest oil fields in the west for two months.

The district council of oil workers, in a session which began last night and lasted into the morning hours today, issued a recommendation to the strikers that they return to work.

It is upon this recommendation that the vote will be polled.

The district council is composed of one representative from each local union now striking.

"We took our action following a request from Secretary of Labor Davis that the strike be called off," asserted Walter J. Yarrow, union advisor, today.

"We have always heeded the slightest request of the government from the very start. We will do so now."

MAN CHARGED WITH CAUSING CAR WRECK IS HELD TO ANSWER

George W. Krauss of Fullerton was at liberty today under $500 bail following his preliminary examination yesterday afternoon before Justice J. B. Cox on a felony charge for which he was held to answer to the superior court. Krauss is charged with failing to stop and give aid after the machine which he was driving is alleged to have crowded a car driven by Postmaster K. D. Harger of Riverside off the boulevard. The Harger car, which was a Ford sedan, was forced over a four and a half foot embankment into a ditch.

Several of the occupants of the car were severely injured and others suffered from minor injuries and the shock. With Harger in the car at the time of the accident were his wife, two other women and a girl.

The accident occurred on the Laguna road about three miles toward the beach from Irvine. Krauss is alleged to have endeavored to pass the Harger car and was forced to cut in on account of an approaching stage. In cutting in the Krauss car is said to have hit the running board of the Harger car and then to have struck the hub of the left front wheel causing the Ford to plunge over the embankment.

Krauss denied that he knew that he had hit another car at the time, stating that the first he knew of the accident was when he was served with the warrant for his arrest.

Krauss was arrested on two charges. One a felony charge accusing him of failing to stop and give aid; the other a misdemeanor complaint charring him with cutting in.

Neither Harger nor any occupant of the wrecked car, according to their stories, saw the automobile that struck them and they said that they heard no warning signal. G. E. Farnsworth of Santa Ana, who was following some distance behind, saw the car cut out around the Harger automobile and push it from the road. Farnsworth was one of the first to reach the wrecked car and assisted in taking the occupants out.

J. C. King, who also arrived on the scene of the accident shortly after it occurred, rushed on ahead to secure the number of the car which was thought to be responsible for the wreck.

Other witnesses who took the stand in the preliminary examination were Mrs. Ora J. Harger, wife of the occupants of the wrecked car, and Mrs. Maria Harger, wife of the driver of the car.

KIWANIS CLUB FAVORS PROPOSED BRANCH OF U. P. RAILROAD

The regular meeting of the Kiwanis club held at the high school today was largely attended. Henry Adams presided.

A considerable amount of business was transacted as well as initiating several new movements of importance.

A resolution was passed congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Vinson Ferris upon the arrival of a fine baby girl to bless the Ferris home.

A letter was received from the Kiwanis clubs of Iowa asking the cooperation of the Anaheim Kiwanis club in creating a market for Iowa corn products. The club endorsed the request and Dr. J. A. Geissinger, William Wallop and H. S. Conklin were appointed a committee to formulate some plan to make the request of the Iowans effective.

It was decided that the Kiwanis baseball club would meet the Rotary baseball club next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the high school grounds. This will be a game for blood, since it is to play off a tie game.

Dr. Geissinger requested that all Kiwanians assist the churches in entertaining the guests of the Sunday school convention which will be held here next week.

The matter of extending the Union Pacific railroad from Whittier to Santa Ana through Anaheim was taken up and a committee consisting of Chas. Frankroad, Judge J. S. Howard and D. Jessurun was appointed to go before the board of supervisors and present the case of all the growers of this section who seriously need this railroad service.

Sunlight will penetrate clear water to a depth of 1500 feet.

CLERK DRAWS NAMES FOR NEW GRAND JURY

In accordance with the order of the Superior Court the names for the county grand jury have been drawn by the clerk and certified by the sheriff, who will summon them to appear in Superior Court, department 1, November 4, at 11 a. m. Twenty-five names were drawn and from these nineteen will be selected to act on the grand jury.

Delhi Merchant Fined $50 for Beating Wife

H. H. Brantigan, who has been in trouble recently in connection with the operation of a soft drink stand at Delhi, was in court again today charged with beating his wife.

Mrs. Brantigan was forced to go to the hospital for treatment following the beating at the hands of her husband, officers said.

Brantigan was fined $50 by Judge Cox, who asked him if he thought that the beating was worth that much to him. Brantigan seemed worried as to where he could raise the money for the fine.

GOV. YBARRA ADMITS MEXICALI EXECUTION

CALEXICO, Cal., Nov. 1.—At least one of the four soldiers reported executed at the Mexicali garrison within the past few days wasshot on direct orrers of Governor Ybarra of the northern district of lower California, Ybarra admitted to the United Press today.

"This man was a spy," Ybarra said. "He had enlisted a week previous and had been busy spreading dissention in the ranks. A loyal soldier informed on him. He wasshot at daybreak Thursday."

It was learned authoritatively that the soldier executed was an agent of Calixto Cantu.

Operations by Cantu propagandists in the ranks of federal troops have strengthened the belief that theCantu faction is fostering a revolutionary state of Bapa, California alone.

EIGHTY - FIVE ORPHANS HELPED BY COUNTY DURING MONTH

Warrants amounting to $2,328.57 were approved by the county board of supervisors for the expenditures of Walter Gregg, county aid commissioner.

During the last month, 287 indigents and 85 orphans were helped by the county.

Although there has been no appreciable increase in the number served during the last month over several months before, the unemployment situation is apt to cause a greater drain on the county funds during the next few months, Gregg stated.

BEARING WALNUT TREES ON LOTS IN NEW SUB-DIVISION

Elliott and Anderson are in the market with a fine new subdivision of Anaheim, embracing sixty lots, two blocks south of the Anaheim high school on South Citron street. The size of lots range from 50 by 100 to 65 by 310 to 16-foot alley.

Each lot will have several full bearing walnut trees. This includes sidewalks, curbs, streets graded and oiled, city water, sewer, gas and electricity on the tract. This tract will soon be sold and built up, building, in fact, will commence in a few days.

FIVE BOUTS SCHEDULED FOR WEDNESDAY AT DELHI ARENA

The reopening of the boxing arena at Delhi and the presentation of a first-class card of bouts will take place Wednesday night. The fights have been taken over by Tommy Quinlan, formerly of Globe and Miami, Arizona. Qunnlan has had a number of years' experience in the boxing game.

Five bouts will be put on. Chet Neff and Billy Capelli will meet in the main go and Kid Loule and Young Garcia settle their argument of two weeks ago in a return match for the semi-windup. In the preliminaries, K. O. Swall will meet Sam Casper, Young Burton will meet Kid Yodng and Young Herrara will meet Battling Rose. The fights will start at 8:15.

MORE ROOMS NEEDED FOR GUESTS AT CONVENTION

Anaheim has given an invitation to the State Sunday School association to hold its thirty-second annual convention in Anaheim November 8, 9 and 10. The churches, the schools, the trustees, the Chamber of Commerce are back of the invitation and expect to entertain 1500 vistors each of these days.

Every home must help to entertain these guests on the Harvard plan lodging and breakfast.

If you can furnish a room for these three nights, phone H. S. Jayne, 172W.

CITY'S LARGEST BUILDING PERMIT ISSUED FOR NEW KRAEMER BLOCK

The largest building permit ever granted in Anaheim was today taken out by Contractors Bever and Wilson. This is for the new Kraemer building which it is estimated will cost $154,000. This permit was issued under Anaheim's new building ordinance which became operative today. By securing the permit under the new ordinance rather than under the old Bever and Wilson have been put to an added expense but in so doing have proclaimed their support of an ordinance which will unquestionably prove of great benefit to Anaheim.

The new building ordinance sets a higher standard in construction and will result in the erection of better and safer buildings. In view of the growth Anaheim is now making such an ordinance is most timely.

On tre first floor and at the front of the new Kraemer building will be located eight stores and shops with a large storeroom in the rear. On the second floor will be twenty offices in the front and twelve two-room apartments in the rear. The building will carry a third story for a part of the way back. A basement running practically the full depth of the building will provide storage or locker space for the offices upstairs and a heating plant will be located here. A special feature of the building will be an elevator enclosed in a complete concrete shaft. From a large vestibule on the first floor finished in marble and terra cotta will issue the stairway. The front of the building will be finished in marble and terra cotta in a background of color. The architect is M. Eugene Durfee of Anaheim.

Another building, the permit for which was issued under the new ordinance, is the Beebe building being erected by Contractor U. S. Afack on the corner of Philadelphia and Center street. The estimated cost of this is $4,700.

A review of the total of building permits issued over a period of the past five years indicates the remarkable growth that has taken place in Anaheim. Following are the totals for each year beginning with 1916. 1916, $129,800; 1917, $89,500, 1918, $92,000; 1919 $456,500; 1920, $879,800; this year to date, $1,087,764. It is estimated by city officials that the 1921 total will amount to a million and a half.

YOUTH KILLED WHEN TRUCK HITS BICYCLE

Martin Shoemaker, 16 years old, was almost instantly killed in Orange late yesterday afternoon when the bicycle which he was riding was struck by a truck. The youth was thrown to the ground and one wheel of the truck passed over his body. G. W. Struck driver of the truck, carried the boy to his home where he died half an hour later.

Martin and a companion, William Brottmiller, were riding their bicycles and were crossing the driveway leading to the Struck home when the truck turned into the driveway. The truck struck Brottmiller's bicycle also, the boy escaped with minor injuries.

DEW DROP BOWLERS BEAT VULCANIZERS

In the City League bowling tournament last night the James Vulcanizers, rolling a total of 11 pins more than the Dew Drop team, lost two out of the three games. The Tridle and Tridle team won three straight from the Five Point Service Station team.

Permit me to advise my dear Benjamin that leap year is awaited by the timid girls only.

Miss Paquette Wants $10,000 as Heartbalm

Charging that in May, 1921, W. C. Lewman asked her to marry him and that she gave him her promise and has remained unmarried since that time, Bertha Paquette today filed suit for breach of promise, asking $10,000 as heart balm.

The marriage, according to the complaint filed by Miss Paquette, was to have taken place within a reasonable time. This time has passed, according to the plaintiff, who states that Lewman has declared that he will not marry her.

Miss Paquette claims that she is ready and willing to marry the defendant at any time and has been at all times. Head and Rutan are attorneys for the plaintiff.

RAILROADS STOP ALL CHARITY RATES FOR CITY AND COUNTY

Charity rates on railroads will hereafter be refused city, county and state governments, according to a letter received today by County Aid Commissioner Walter Gregg.

This action comes, according to the letter, as a result of the high taxes. The railroads, which in the past have been carrying destitute and indigent persons for practically nothing at the request of city, county and state governments, will not continue this practice.

This does not apply to such charity organizations as the Salvation Army, Ebell Club, Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion or other bodies dealing with charities.

COTTON MEN HOPEFUL AS NATIONAL MEET OPENS TODAY

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Production costs will be the subject of open discussion in the first session of the annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers which will open here tomorrow in connection with the International Textile Exposition.

A general relief over the prospect of tariff protection was noticed among the cotton men here to attend. It was pointed out that since the war, the big struggle eliminated European countries as competitors in the cotton trade, but now the manufacturers of the country welcome protection as a result of indications of renewed competition from abroad.

It was stated today that the cotton manufacturers of New England do not contemplate any immediate wage reductions, although it was admitted that the question of wages and labor costs were being studied.

Cotton trade developments in central Europe are being closely watched. It was learned, because of the possibility of Germany becoming a dangerous competitor in the textile industry.

Indications are that the export trade is growing on the basis of an annual export of 675,000,000 yards of cotton goods.

Speaking of possible German competition, it was pointed out that German mill workers are said the equivalent of $4 a week, while American operatives receive nearly six times that wage.

Tomorrow's meeting will be given over almost entirely to the discussion of production costs in which the various representatives compared figures.

On Thursday morning, Frank W. Reynolds, chairman of the committee on Industrial Research of the national association, will preside at a meeting in which research and the progress made in conenction with cotton manufacture will be described.

Cordell Hull Named Democratic Chairman

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 1.—Cordell Hull, Tennessee, was picked by democrats today to succeed George White, deposed chairman of the democratic national committee.

Breckenridge Long, St. Louis, was the first choice of the Cox and McAdoo factions, but his appointment was made impossible when Edward Coltrs, St. Louis, refused to resign as democratic committee man from Missouri.

THIEF GETS CASH FROM HIDING PLACE IN AUTOMOBILE

Because a thief discovered money hidden in the shell of a clock on the dashboard of an automobile parked in front of the Standard Oil filling station in Garden Grove last night, H. Coupelt is out $106.61 today.

Coppelt, who lives in Capistrano, parked his car for a short while near the Standard Oil gas station at Garden Grove. When he drove away he did not discover the loss until he reached San Juan Capistrano when he reported to Constable Clark.

Clark telephoned to the sheriff's office in Santa Ana, giving the report and explaining the loss. Coppelt had $105 in currency and a negotiable check for $1.61 in the private bank in his car. The check was made out to himself and was drawn on a Garden Grove bank.

MURDER FANS THRONG COURTROOM AS BURCH TRIAL BEGINS IN L. A.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—"Murder fans" thronged the corridors of the court house and the streets surrounding today, hours before the court room doors were opened for the trial of Arthur C. Burch.

All attendance records for criminal cases seemed certain to be shattered.

Extra police were on duty since dawn. Trouble in handing the rapidly growing crowds was anticipated. A fight for seats the moment the big doors swung open was imminent.

Most of the crowd which surged the sidewalks, streets and building corridors were women, a number of whom had babies in their arms.

Lawyers Are Busy

The prosecution and defense camps seethed with activity here today, a few hours before the first of two trials growing out of the sensational "midnight murder" of John Belton Kennedy, wealthy young broker, was to start.

Arthur C. Burch, minister's son and Northwestern University graduate, the first of two defendants to go on trial for the Kennedy murder, was in animated conversation with his defense attorneys.

Burch Is Defiant

He gesticulated with clenched fists and talked rapidly with ever change ing expressions on his perspiring face. The air of defiance and assurance which he has held throughout three months in the county jail was augmented as the moment of his trial drew near with intense nervous activity.

His "fighting blood" was up, he said.

Mrs. Obenchain Talks

Madalynne Obenchain, who will face a jury on a charge of complicity in the same mysterious affair as soon as Burch's fate is decided, issued a statement today expressing her confidence in the minister.

"I know of no circumstance which would prove Arthur Burch guilty," she said. "If I did, I would certainly relate them to the jury. Arthur Burch is guilty, he should hang. I believe he is innocent.'

MONSTER PARADE WILL START CELEBRATION AT SANTA ANA

With fifteen cups, seven bands and numerous civic and commercial organizations planning floats and exhibitions for the occasion, the Armistice Day celebration planned by the Santa Ana post of the American Legion is assuming huge proportions.

County wide interest is assured and plans in process of formulation by every post in the county to make the affair a huge success and one fitting for the observance of Armistice Day promise a complete program.

Parade to Feature Day

The big parade, which will be a feature of the day, will start promptly at 11 o'clock, according to the tentative schedule lined up by the executive committee and announced today by Maurice Enderle. The parade will start at the corner of Fifth and French streets, travel east to Lacy, south on Lacy to Fourth, west on Fourth to Ross and south on Ross to Birch Park, where it will disband.

Music for the parade will be furnished by seven bands already secured for the occasion and others may be secured before November 11, Enderle announced. The parade will be the whole feature of the morning and will be ended in time to observe the two minute period starting at 12 o'clock noon when absolute quiet is to reign and everyone is to give due homage to the boys who died over seas.

Wounded Soldiers Guests

One feature of especial interest planned for the day by the Santa Ana post is the bringing of a number of disabled veterans from Sawtelle and Norwalk to witness the parade and take part in the celebration. The Legion boys are planning this at their own expense as one way to show their respect for those who suffered for their country.

Besides the floats and marching plans of civic and commercial bodies for the parade, the Standard and California alumni associations are planning to march in the parade.

Governor to Talk

Governor Stephens will be the big feature of the afternoon. In Birch park at 3:30, following a football game at the high school, the program of singing and addresses will start. Attorney Clyde Bishop will give an address and a local singer will sing a patriotic solo.

Following this part of the program Governor Stephens will speak. The governor is expected to arrive from San Diego some time in the afternoon and plans are made to give him a big reception.

In the evening a grand ball will be held in the Armory hall.

DEPUTY SHERIFF HUNTS CLUES IN PLACENTIA ROBBERY ATTEMPT

In an effort to locate the persons responsible for the attempted burglary in the Kramer building at Placentia, Deputy Sheriff Herman A. Zabel went to that city early today to make an effort to secure fingerprints of the would-be burglar.

The report of the attempted entrance to the building was reported to Sheriff C. E. Jackson late yesterday afternoon by Dr. G. L. Kay.

COP HUNTING MURDERER FINDS MEXICAN, GUN AND BAD LIQUOR

Investigating a report that a murder had been committed in a new camp near La Habra, Constable Van Curen discovered a Mexican with a loaded revolver, a fourteen inch knife, bayonet and a bottle of liquor. No foundation for the murder report was discovered, however, and the constable was of the opinion that the person making the report must have become excited at the array of artillery in possession of the Mexican.

The Mexican was arrested on two counts and was to appear before Justice of the Peace Hart at La Habra today to answer to the charges of carrying concealed weapons and transporting intoxicating liquor.

May Organize Radio Club Here Tonigt

Much interest in the meeting tonight of radio enthusiasts has already been evidenced. The meeting which has been called for 7 o'clock by A. Becillard will be held at the Anaheim ignition depot on South Los Angeles street. Some interesting talks will be given and plans for organization discussed. Later a concert presented through the wireless telephone will be given.

We are getting back to normalcy. Today a fellow can rent a nice little three room flat for seventy dollars a month, and right next to a neighbor with all conveniences.

ANAHEIM MERCHANTS SHOWING BIG STOCKS AT VERY LOW PRICES

A visit to the many first-class stores of Anaheim will convince the most particular shopper that Anaheim merchants never before displayed such a wonderfully complete line of high class goods and priced so reasonable as they are right now.

No city within a radius of 100 miles of Anaheim is offering better stocks at such low prices. An investigation will prove not only interesting but will be a great lesson in how economically one may shop in Anaheim. Shop in Anaheim all the time!

Ceylon and Graphite

In proportion to its size, Ceylon produces a greater quantity of graphite and of purer quality than any other part of the world.

MEYER AND KETCHELL FEATURE MAIN GO FRIDAY NIGHT

By Billy Darnley

Just about the classiest, all-around card of the season has been arranged by the Anaheim Athletic Club for next Friday at Sparks' fistic farm with those two good boys, Johnny Meyer and Young Stanley Ketchell, featuring in the main go, and Big Jack Iman and Bill Burns, a rough and tough mixer from the oil fields over Olinda way, tangling up in the semi-windup. Meyer is quite a favorite with local fight bugs and every time he has appeared on the local card he has never failed to put up a scrap. His bouts here with Kid Mexico, who held him to a draw after four hard fought rounds, and his decisive defeat of Bert Tribby will long be remembered by local fans.

The Fighting Fireman from Glendale will have a tough opponent in Ketchell, who, while appearing on the local card but once, won a home for himself when he fought four hard rouds in a local ring when he went through the paces with Kid Mexico.

Meyer and Ketchell should put up a scrap that should be worth going miles to see, for both boys are fast and willing boxers with a real punch.

In the semi-windup Big Jack Iman is getting another chance to show that his quick K. O. by Steve Dalton recently was all a big mistake. Jack is drawing a tough egg in Bill Burns, who hails from the oil fields around Olinda, and is said to be right there with the heal goods as a fighter of the first water. If he is all that is said of him, Big Jack will evidently have his hands full. Iman is leaving no stones unturned to be in the best possible conditon when he tangles with Burns for Iman is anxious for another crack at Dalton and it has been promised him if he gets by Burns. Jack is a big tough, strong fellow and packs a good healthy wallop.

The preliminaries look to be about the best that has ever been lined up by the local club and some lively action is assured when that clever darky, Young Burton, the Sam Langford of Anaheim, and Clarance Robidoux, younger brother of the famous Ad, tangle. This shall be about the star bout of the evening. Another go that should run it a close second will be the fracas between Joe Chaney of Whittier and Joe Cappelle of aSn Pedro.

Chaney, it appears, has developed a real punch and he will prove a dangerous customer for any of them from now on. Cappelle is a brother of the famous Billy Chappelle, who is known up and down the coast as a classy fighter. He is fighting Chet Neff in the main event tomorrow night at the ampheniz of the Delhi Athletic club. Joe is a clever two-fisted youngster and packs a good kick in either mitt.

The curtain raiser will bring together Paul Darden, the Huntington Beach 122-pounder, who made such short work of Battling Abie last week, and Young Frankie of Placentia.

FIFTY-FIFTY OIL AND LAND COMPANY TO OPERATE HERE

The Fifty-fifty Oil and Land Syndicate of Long Beach which is operating in the famous Signal Hill oil district near Long Beach has opened a branch office at 120 North Los Angeles street, Anaheim. The local office will be in charge of L. C. Horner and R. A. Bixbyy.

"The Fifty-Fifty plan is not an oil stock plan. This should not be confused with the proposed oil developments thich are being attempted on one and two city lots. The Fifty-Fifty Oil and Land Syndicate has five acres, sufficient for three and possibly more wells," said Mr. Horner in an interview today.

"These fice acres are sold in unit shares at $50 each. The syndicate will pay all the expenseof drilling. The lands owners get 50 per cent of all the oil production and still hold their ownership in the land. The Westeren Savinks Bank of Long Beach will act as trustee and receive all money on oil sold and will make the distribution of profits direct to theunit holders.

"In other words, the unit hollers will buy the land and receivea warranty deed for it. The syndicate will drill and pay all expenses for getting oil production. The profits from all wells brought in will be divided on a fifty-fifty per cent basis."

THE MASTER'S KISS

Because of every piteous prayer
Wrung from thy soul in bleak despair;
For every blush of shame that dyes
Thy cheek, and for thy downcast eyes;
For every sin and blot and stain,
For all the tears that flow again
In hidden sorrow, grief or shame;
For that thy seared flesh leaped to flame
When sin laid on thee, white and hot
A brand like God's accusing blot
Upon the brow of Cain;—for this,
The primal serpent's angry hiss,
I love thee and I pity thee,
Because I knew Gethsemane.

And as I kiss thee—kiss the blot
Where lay that white brand, white and hot,
And as I feel thy tears like rain
And as i read thy soul, in pain
That writhes and curses aloud, I bless
That night when I was comfortless;
When hope from all the hours was fled
When joy lay by me, stark and dead,
When men knew only hate and cried
That I be scourged and crucified.

How could I love and pity thee
Had I not known Gethsemane?

The waste of war will appear doubly horrible if it turns out to be a wasted war.

Romance, Tragedy and Deathless Love to Figure in Trial of Arthur Burch

CAST OF CHARACTERS IN KENNEDY-OBENCHAIN ROMANCE

Madalynne Obenchain, once the "most beautiful girl in Northwestern University," charged with murder.

J. Belton Kennedy, painted by some as "the villain," who was murdered.

Arthur C. Burch, Madalynne's platonic friend, college graduate, who posed as Madalynne's protector.

Ralph Obenchain, "the Man in a Million," Madalynne's divorced husband, who now comes forward to defend her in a court of law.

Wm. Kennedy, father of the murdered man, who swears he will have vengeance for the death of his son if it takes his fortune and the remainder of his life.

The Rev. A. C. Burch, minister, and father of Arthur Burch, who places his trust in the Almighty to see that justice is done his son.

Lawyers, detectives, police, servants.

Scene 1—Midnight in the Rose Garden of J. Belton Kennedy's Beverly Glen Cottage, where Kennedy was killed.

Scene 2—A prison cell where Madalynne meets Ralph, the man she spurned.

Scene 3—A courtroom, where Ralph comes forward to save Madalynne from prison.

...s. Madalynne Obenchain, who will go before court, accused with Arthur Burch in the murder of Belton Kennedy.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 1.—Romance which might have stepped from a "best seller" began unfolding in the superior court there today, when Arthur C. Burch, first of two defendants indicted in connection with the mysterious murder of John Belton Kennedy, was placed on trial.

Immediately following the Burch case, beautiful Madalynne Obenchain will face a jury to answer for alleged complicity in the same murder.

Before the trial ends the gamut of college romance which ripened into love and bore fruit in marriage, discord of later life, an "eternal triangle" divorce, murder and reconciliation will have been run.

Mystery to delight a Conan Doyle—buried pennies, the flash of a match at midnight and the boom of a gun; men hurrying through a rosegarden; the picture of a pretty woman bending over the form of her dying sweetheart, while none but the moon looked on—will all play a part.

Characters from thebilities and from the "Main streets"—detectives, chauffeurs, house maids, pawn brokers and gunsmiths—all will be in the cast of characters.

And towering above them will be the figure of Ralph Obenchain, the lover of college days, the forsaken husband of later life, who now comes forth as the defender of the woman who cast him aside, when she is charged with the murder of the man for whom she gave him up.

In the hands of "Steady Ralph" Obenchain, whose name is blazoned in headlines here as "The Man in a Million"" and who has become a popular hero in Los Angeles, will largely be held the fate of the beautiful Madalynne and her "platonic friend" Arthur Burch.

The story of the death of J. Belton Kennedy, broker and clubman, has been told by but one person, Madalynne Obenchain. She had once been known as the "prettiest girl at Northwestern University." Ralph Obenchain had been her college sweetheart. And when college days were over, Ralph became a prosperous lawyer of Chicago and Madalynne became his wife.

Then entered J. Belton Kennedy. Madalynne met him in Chicago. Some said he wooed her. At any event, Madalynne's love for Ralph faded and there was a divorce which upset the town of Evanston, Ill., where Madalynne and Ralph both had lived. Madalynne came to Los Angeles. Kennedy was in business.

One afternoon in June found Madalynne and Kennedy visiting the beaches near Los Angeles, dancing and dining. At midnight they came to the bungalow of Kennedy in Beverley Glen, exclusive and quiet suburb. They walked, arm in arm, up the stone walk to the door.

Then Madalynne thought of something. A year before she had buried a penny—a lucky penny, she called it—beneath a stone at the foot of the steps.

"Was it still there; she wondered. She stepped down, leaned over and dibbed a match to see.

Two shots rang out. J. Belton Kennedyy cried: "Madalynne," and his body came tumbling down the steps, life fast fading. Dark figures hurried off thrcugh the garden and dissolved in the darkness—the murderers.

"Belton; oh, Belton, answer me!" cried Madalynne.

But Belton did not answer.

Five hours later Madalynne was arrested; twenty-four hours more and Arthur C. Burch, son of a minister, friend of Madalynne's in college days, also was behind the bars; in a week they had been indicted, charged with murder.

Police reasoned like this—that Burch had come to Los Angeles determined to force Kennedy to marry Madalynne or give her up forever; that he had met Kennedy and tried to reason with him; that reason failing, he had awaited the coming of Madalynne in the rose garden of Kennedy's cottage and had shot him down as Madalynne held a match for light.

Madalynne was arraigned. The day of her arraignment she did two things—protested her innocence and sent a telegram to Ralph Obenchain, the lawyer-husband, whom she had divorced.

"I need you now. Please come," said the telegram.

"I'm coming to you Madalynne," was the answer and in twelve hours Ralph was speeding westward to save from prison the woman who spurned him.

Within a week after he arrived he was acclaimed by Los Angeles as the "Man in a Million." People flocked to see him when he appeared in court. His name was on every tongue.

And today he stood beside Madalynne in court, now shouting in some wordy wrangle with the prescutors, and next soothing the girl he says he always will love, with a whispered word of reassurance.

There are few people who will not say their guess is that "Steady Ralph" will win back for Madalynne her freedom.

And for himself, his Madalynne.

Now people feel glad they bought Victory bonds,—but sorry they sold them.

No doubt "Jack and Jill" intended to get water, but from what happened people are just a little suspicious.

And another time that money is hard to find is when it comes your turn to pay the fare.

College Tuition Fees Must Not Be Increased

Dangers to Democracy in Suggested Step Which Would Limit Higher Education to Wealthy Families

By DR. HENRY N. MAC CRACKEN
President of Vassar College

Dr. H. N. MacCRACKEN

THE endowed college is a development in civilization and for civilization. Just as we have come to recognize the importance of elementary and high school education for rich and poor alike, we have determined that the opportunities of colleges and universities must be available to as many young men and women as possible who are interested in taking advantage of them. We have consequently proceeded upon the principle of making tuition fees high enough to cover only a part of the cost of educating the man and woman.

From time to time the suggestion is made that the college should seek its entire maintenance from its tuition fees; that education should be bought and paid for just as is any other commodity; and that the parents who cannot pay this full amount must forego all idea of giving the opportunity to their children as they would forego giving them more expensive clothing or automobiles.

This theory is obviously based upon the thought that such an education benefits the individual who has it—and not the public. This is the serious fallacy of the whole idea.

The college man and woman gives to the world the advantage of all that is obtained within the college walls. The child is the public school draws benefit from the college training of those who teach him. It is so in every field of life. The college serves all with whom its graduates come in contact. As a public utility it ranks highest in the land.

We pay taxes to support the public schools. We pay taxes to support state and municipal institutions of all kinds. We pay taxes to send newspapers throughout the country at less than the cost of carrying them because we, as a people, believe in the necessity of education, of distributing information, in order to make our democratic system a success. We do not pay taxes to support these colleges of which I speak, Vassar, Yale and the others; but we DO depend for support upon those interested in the work being done by them—for the sake of their universal service. It is the only way in which we can prevent an exclusiveness of wealth among our college students.

Real Home Comforts in This Newest Hotel For Women, Says Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The new Grace Dodge Hotel in Washington, the latest project of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., which has named the hotel after its founder, the late Grace Hoadley Dodge.

Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Chairman of the Grace Dodge Hotel Committee.

Even electric irons and ironing boards will be provided at the Grace Dodge Hotel in Washington for the young woman travelling in a suit case.

IN a hotel are we doomed to hanker in vain after home comforts?

Yes, says the average hotel visitor.

"No," says Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who points proudly to the new Grace Dodge Hotel in Washington, D. C., the model hotel exclusively for women, which is under her management. Designed to meet the requirements of the woman tourist as well as the professional and business women whose political duties now take them frequently to the capital, the hotel, which is the first of its kind ever opened in Washington, is a pioneer step towards catering to women exclusively.

Under Mrs. Rockefeller's personal direction as chairman of the hotel committee, the sponsors of the hotel have not been content to provide merely model hotel furnishings and equipment for the handsome fireproof structure of 400 rooms at North Capitol and E Streets, directly opposite the Union station. No effort nor expense has been spared to make the guests feel at home. Suites especially equipped for mothers travelling with young children are one innovation. Instead of the time-honored custom of upholstering a baby with pillows, in a Morris-chair these suites have cunning cribs and heating facilities for baby's bottle. For the young woman travelling in a suitcase, formerly restricted to stealthy makeshifts such as the use of electric light bulb as a current and a bureau drawer for an ironing board, there are complete outfitted personal valeting rooms with pressing privileges. There are shampoo booths with electric driers for the use of guests, without charge.

"Every effort has been made to make the hotel comfortable and pleasant and yet moderate in price," says Mrs. Rockefeller. "The Grace Dodge Hotel is designed to care for business and professional women and tourists. All the rooms are outside rooms with telephones and hot and cold water."

Transient rates on the European plan are from two to four dollars a day. Many women prominent politically in Washington have endorsed the need for the hotel and its splendid facilities.

Men guests will be admitted to restaurant, lounge and other public rooms on the main floor.

The hotel is the latest project of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association which has named the hotel after its founder, the late Grace Hoadley Dodge.

RAILROADS HAVE CUT FREIGHT RATES WHILE OPERATING COSTS REMAINED HIGH, SAYS U.P. MAN

"While no general reduction in freight rates is possible until operating costs are lowered the carriers have announced many rate reductions, and are readjusting thousands of individual rates to eliminate inequalities. Grain, foodstuffs, lumber, low grade commodities, vegetables, livestock and manufactured articles of many kinds are among the items on which the freight cost has been cut."

The above comment was made yesterday by G. W. Luce, freight traffic manager for the Southern Pacific company, relative to the general discussion of freight rates and railroad labor wages.

"I would like to call the attention of western shippers, producers and consumers to a few of the important reductions that have been announced by the Southern Pacific company and other carriers within the last few months. These reductions include cuts in rates on root and green top vegetables and melons from California and Oregon points to Chicago averageing 12 per cent. 20 per cent reduction in live stock rates; reduction of 10 to 25 per cent on east bound rates on dried fruit, dried peas and beans and canned goods, reductions ranging as high as 25 per cent on furniture from Eastern points to Pacific Coast points and many reduced westbound rates on manufactured commodities. Helpful reductions have been ade in east and westbound rates on hundreds of commodities, both domestic rates and export and import rates.

"These striking figures graphically presented were obtained from the United States Labor Review, Interstate Commerce Commission statistics and Bradstreets. These figures showed that at the beginning of Federal Control of the railroad in 1918, freight rates were slightly less than in 1900. Increase in rates was granted in June 1918, and again the latter part of August, 1920, the two rates increasing freight rates 59 per cent above those in 1900. In the meantime wages had advanced to a level of 240 per cent above those of 1900 and wholesale prices having also risen during the war period to a point 240 per cent above those of 1900 were still 205 per cent above those of 1900 at the time the 1920 freight rate was granted. The suit was that when finally the 1920 increase in freight rates was granted the further increased expenses due to incrased payroll, cost of materials and new working conditions incident to federal control more than wiped out the amount of that increase.

"From 1916 to 1920 the railroad wage bill was increased 152 per cent, that is from $1,470,000,000 to $3,700,000,000 while the increase in hours of service received was only 8 per cent. The railroads total operating expenses increased 142 per cent during the period while their earnings were incerased not quite 72 per cent, the result was that the net operating income of the railroads applicable to interest or any other corporate purpose in 1920 was 94 per cent less than in 1916.

"The 12 per cent cut in wages ordered by the United tSates Railroad Labor Board and effective July 1 cannot justify a general reduction in freight rates. This wage cut is to be compared with the 22 per cent increase in the last wage advance effective May 1, 1922; it is only 18 per cent of $2,236,000,000 increase in wages made during the war period.

"With all the savings that the railroads can hope to make as a result of wage reductions already granted and other economies, it is only with the greatest difficulty that they can hope to earn enough to meet their fixed charges for 1921.

"The railroads have not contended that no reductions in freight rates should be made. Many discriminations and inequalities have resulted from the horizontal increases made in recent years and railroads are seeking to eliminate them and already have wiped out many thousands.

"Through tariffs filed by the Central Freight Association Agency, territory rates have been reduced on about 662 commodities covering approximately 4,500 origin points and 10,000 destinations.

"There has been a constant tendency towards readjustment and reduction of rates ever since the general rate advance of August, 1920, was authorized, on some railroads the reductions in rates have amounted to more than the reductions in wages so far made and on many other railroads the reductions in wages allowed no net return on operations but merely provided against the further accumulation of a deficit."

DOCTORS IN DANGER WHEN USING X-RAY

The danger in using X-rays is emphasized by the report of a committee that was appointed in England after the death of the famous radiologist, Dr. Ironside Bruce, to investigate the subject and to surgest measures for safeguarding the doctors who use them.

From this report it appears that the X-rays may produce injuries to the skin or may cause derangements of the blood and of internal organs. It is not the patient taking the treatment who has to fear, for he is exposed for anly a few moments, but the physician who is giving it constantly and is exposed often.

The committee argues that not more than seven hours a week be used in X-ray work, that operators spend as much time as possible out of doors and take a holiday off a month, or two holidays of two weeks each and every year. Nurses in X-ray and radium departments should not be called on for any other hospital service. Rooms where X-rays are used must be well ventilated.

Commenting on the report, the Journal of the American Medical association says:

"The impression to be gained from a careful reading of the report is that the dangers attending the employment of X-rays have in no wise been exaggerated." It is understood that the committee intends to add to the value of its work by endeavoring to find out a method of arriving at an accurate dosage of X-rays. This is an exceedingly difficult problem, as the rays themselves are capable of wide lengths with respect to their wave lenths and the susceptibility of the body tissues varies also. The solution of this problem is urgent, as accurate knowledge of dosage is essential to the complete safety of the workers. It is hoped therefore, that success will attend the efforts of the investigators."

The Sacrament of Confirmation will be celebrated at the St. Boniface church, next Sunday, to ninety-five candidates. The Rt. Rev. J. J. Cantwell, D. D. bishop of Monterey, Los Angeles, will officiate. Solemn high mass will be held at 10 o'clock.

On the evening of the same day at 7:30 o'clock Rev. Father's Seymour and Breeman of the Redemption Order will open a week's mission.

YOUNG—HYLTON NUPTIALS SUNDAY

Miss Margarette Grieve Young of Placentia and Sylvester Edmond Hylton of Anaheim were united in marriage Sunday afternoon, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lee Young, in Placentia, in the presence of thirty-five relatives and immediate friends.

Rev. W. M. Perry, pastor of the Fullerton Baptist church, officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The happy couple were attended by the bride's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Young.

The home was beautifully decorated in fall colors and flowers.

Immediately after the ceremony an elaborate wedding dinner was served.

After a honeymoon trip the newlyweds will be at home, 308 East Cypress avenue, Anaheim.

The bride is popular with a large circle of friends in Placentia and northern Orange county. The bridegroom is an oil driller and has hosts of friends.

PIANO PUPILS ENJOY HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Mrs. Pat Bryant honored her piano pupils Saturday night with a delightful Hallowe'en party. The early part of the evening was given to the ghost walk, enjoying the different sights arranged in the home. The floor lamp had been made into a huge ghostly skeleton which made the shivers run down the guests backs as they touched it. Other features of ghostly nature were arranged for the fun of the evening. Ghost stories were told by the hostess while all the lights were out. Miss Vaughn Bryant delighted her girl friends with solos and Miss LaVerna Dugas gave several solo dance for the pleasure of the party.

After the program Mrs. Bryant told the little guests to go on a popcorn ball search and see which could find the largest amount. Following the hunt, each guest enjoyed a bob for apples in a huge tub of water. This did not entirely complete the fun. The next of the games was the eating of doughnuts tied to a string and extended from the ceiling. After all the fun Mr. and Mrs. Bryant and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Ritchie, who assisted the hostess, took the children to their homes. The guests were Marjorie Clark, Esther Leuschner, Edith Alexander, Constance Randall, Arleen and Frances QQuarton, Elinore Duckert, Agnes Rasmussen, Vaughn Bryant, Bernice Ingram, Sarah and Mary Crone, La Verna Dugas, Nellie Quarton, Florence Smith, Rose Seifkken, Ann Galvin, Dorothy Newman, Louise Dean, Frances Merrill, Margaret and Alice Cornwell, Edwin White Iona Seale, Louise Grueneway, Augusta Stewart, Claudine Carrisosa, Clementine Brimmer, Catherine Ladd, Robert Quarton, James Holland, Vincente Huarte, Meldon Randall, Theodore Quarton, Lewis Jamee, Eric Boechert, L. Bushard.

MISS SANDERSFIELD GIVES BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Florence Sandersfield entertained with a Hallowe'en party last night celebrating her tenth birthday anniversary. The home was decorated in black cats, witches and many other Hallowe'en suggestions which were in keeping with the ghosts evening.

At a late hour the hostess assisted by her mother served a dainty luncheon. The table was centered with a birthday cake with the ten candles lighted. The guests were Emila Strudoff, Frieda and Alma Yorde, Laura Schroeder, Olga Klaus, Olga Heitshuen, Elsie, Stella and Esther Kramrath, Margaret Dutton, Alice Twinem, Phillip Silbernagle, Arnold Sanderfield.

HAROLD MILLER HONORED WITH DINNER

Mrs. I. A. Miller entertained with a delightful informal birthday dinner last night, honoring her son Harold. The decorations were in Hallowe'en cats and pumpkins and promptly at 6:30 the little guests were seated around the dimly lighted table. The centerpiece was a birthday cake with the light candles on it. The guests were Ruth and Victor Schmelzer, Joseph Curran and the honor guest, Harold Miller.

PHILATHEA CLASS HAVE HALLOWE'EN AFFAIR

The Philathea Class of the White Temple were entertained with a delicious 7 o'clock dinner in the social hall last night. The table had been arranged by the committee with small pumpkins for favors, large jack o' lanterns as centerpieces and the festoones of black and orange paper. There were thirty-five seated at the table. Following the dinner games and ghost stories were enjoyed. The room was lighted with the pumpkin lanterns giving a pretty effect with the corn shocks and festoons used for decorations. Mrs. Edmiston in charge of the evening affairs appointed one of the girls to conclude the meeting with a ghostly ghost stories, after which they adjourned to their homes.

MISS SHINN HOSTESS TO EVENING PARTY

Miss Vivian Shinn of East Center street entained in honor of a coterie of her friends last night with a delightful Hallowe'en party. The time was spent with games and Hallowe'en frolic. In the late evening the hostess served dainty refreshments. Decorations used were in the Hallowe'en effect.

JOINT BIRTHDAYS CELEBRATED WITH PARTY

The birthdays of Roland Miller and his aunt, Mrs. Helen Houghton of Long Beach were celebrated jointly last night at the home of the latter with a Hallowe'en masquerade party. Costumes of all kinds were used which caused much merriment in the deciding of who's who.

Games and music were enjoyed during the evening with a midnight luncheon being served. Two birthday cakes were cut, one with eight candles and the other for Mrs. Houghton. The guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Miller and son Harold, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Laishaw, Mr. and Mrs. George Doolittle, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Houghton, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Jones and son Verlin, Mr. and Mrs. Smith and son Benjamin.

MR. AND MRS. ERICKSON HOSTS MONDAY NIGHT

Among the many parties last night in celebration of the ghost time was that of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Erickson. The home was beautifully decorated with everything of the fall time and in keeping with the Hallowe'en time. Tally cards and favors were also in tune with the festival day. Each guest was masked until a certain hour which caused much merriment. In the games Mrs. George Hamler and Mr. E. E. Brus scored high and Mrs. Brus and Mr. William Houts received the low scores. Late in the evening refreshments were served. The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. William Houts, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Martinet, Mr. and Mrs. George Hamler, Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Kroeger, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tausch, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Brus, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Baker.

BAZAAR NETS GOOD SUM

The bazaar held Friday and Saturday by the Fidelis class of the Methodist Sunday school was a decided success. Many articles were not sold which will be disposed of at Christmas time and through charity work. The net sum for the two days amounted to $153, which will be used in the work of the missions and the local church. This class is doing big things which is a benefit to the community. They are planning for special Christmas work.

ELKS' LADIES AND HUSBANDS GUESTS

Mr. nad Mrs. Joe Stroup were hosts last night to the Elks' ladies and their husbands with a Hallowe'en card party. The amusing feature of the evening was while the guests were enjoying the evening at cards the ghosts of the witch time were enjoying their home made pumpkin pies. They also borrowed one of the automobiles for a short time and to cap the climax the lights in the home went out and the dim candle lights were used. It being Hallowe'en time the hosts were able to laugh at the missing pies and the owner of the auto guessed that the machine would be returned.

In the games Mrs. La Mont and Mrs. Lake scored high and Mr. Lake and Mr. La Mont took the low score. Decorations used in the home were in keeping with the season.

At a late hour refreshments were served. The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. William Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Victor La Mont, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. James, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Bonnat, Mr. and Mrs. Berkenstock, Mr. and Mrs. T. McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cline, and Mr. and Mrs. Blattner.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ANSWERS CHARGES AGAINST DEAD GIRL

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—"If the defendant is going totry the character of the dead girl, then the prosecution can try the character of the living man," was the answer of District Attorney Mathew Brady to Chicago dispatches telling of the charges concerning Virginia Rappe's past life, made by witnesses there.

The witnsses were giving depositions for the defense of Roscoe Arbuckle, accused of manslaughter in connection with Miss Rappe's death.

Brady declared that the postmortem examination of Miss Rappe showed that "she never had been a mother" and that it "destroyed" the evidence reported from Chicago.

Good Purebred Bulls Improve Herds Quickly

With purebred bulls a breeder achieves more in the improvement of his herd in two generations than he can in five with grade bulls, says the United States department of agriculture. Department workers have thoroughly studied the subject of building up herds to better milk, butter, and beef production. Better sires may be obtained either by individual purchase or by becoming a member of a bull association. Literature on the latter method can be obtained by writing to the department, and will furnish useful reading during the winter. Full information can also be obtained by consulting your county agent or state agriculture college.

KELLOGG MAKES PLEA FOR CHEAPER PRINT PAPER IN U. S.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 1.—"American publishers will suffer in the long run from the present condition in the paper import situation, for American mills can not make paper to meet present European prices, and Europe cannot supply America's permanent needs."

This was the way in which the importation of foreign paper was discussed by R. S. Kellogg, secretary of the News Print Service bureau, composed of Canadian and American manufacturers, at the convention of the Salesmen's Association of the Paper Industry, today.

"It costs less to ship a ton of newsprint paper from Scandinavia to New York City than to ship a ton of the same paper from Niagara Falls to New York City," Kellogg said. "America's paper industry, therefore, faces serious competition from foreign lands, not alone because of the fact that foreign paper is made by cheap labor, under depreciated exchange conditions, but because of the cost of shipments as well. America, though it has the best, fastest and most modern paper mills in the world, cannot successfully compete with the prices of European paper made and shipped under these conditions. The normal result would be wide swings in prices, which are always disadvantageous to producer and purchaser alike, in any commodity where price extremes are found.

"It is better," continued Kellogg, for the American user of newsprint to have a dependable source of supply at home, at a price which affords a reasonable profit to the manufacturer and thus encourage greater production, than to have a temporary supply from abroad, at prices fixed by ruinous unfair competition, which will vanish when world conditions again aproach normal."

Other Vocal and Instrumental Numbers on the New Records

LUCY ISABELLE MARSH has three new Victor Records just issued. "Spring's Awakening" is a well-known waltz song, one of the finest of its class, with brilliant echoed notes, scales and roulades, taken with consummate skill. "The Nightingale" is Alabieff's famous song, which has been sung by every great coloratura soprano for almost the last hundred years. The third number is "Pale Moon," an American-Indian love song, delicate, sad, strange and lovely. The voice-quality of the record is pure, sweet and exquisitely clear. On the reverse of this latter record, Olive Kline and Paul Oliver present "Where the Lazy Mississippi Flows" which is among the finest of recent waltz-song records.

Tears and laughter are mingled in the two posthumous records by Cal Stewart which the Victor has just issued. Uncle Josh buys a "Victor-Victrola" and the first side of the record recites its adventures at Punkin Centre. The other side deals with the Opera at Punkin Centre. Both are the clean, honest American humor for which Cal Stewart was noted.

Two old-time favorites, "College Days" and "Auld Lang Syne," are on a new Victor double-faced Record by the Peerless Quartet, and Charles Hart and Elliott Shaw present on another double-faced record a pair of popular songs, "Honolulu Honey" and "Sweet Hawaiian Girl of Mine." Another song in popular style, "Who'll Dry Your Tears When You Cry?," is sung by William Robyn, and the Sterling Quartet presents "In the Heart of Dear Old Italy."

Billy Murray and the American Quartet share a double-faced record with Billy Murray and Monroe Silver. The first combination leads off with "Melon Time in Dixieland," a song to make your mouth water as well as your feet to tingle. The other offering is "Irish Home Sweet Home," a highly original humorous record. The Victor Concert Orchestra winds up the month's entertainment with the rendition of two beautiful numbers—"In a Monastery Garden," one of those popular selections which deserves to stand beside the great musical classics, and Tschalkowsky's "Romance," one of the most flexibly melodious of the great Russian master's compositions.

Such is the program of music which the Victor in its new October list spreads before the music-loving public, and it will be enjoyed in the thousands of homes throughout the land where the Victrola is looked to for musical entertainment. The dealers who handle Victor products do not limit the demonstration of these records to their regular customers, but are always glad to play any records for any one—every one has the opportunity to enjoy a fine concert of worth-while music.

Six Different Orchestras Play New Dance Music

BESIDES three orchestras which have been making Victor dance records, there are introduced in the October list three new organizations. Eubie Blake and His Shuffle Along Orchestra furnish the newest dance sensation in their records of "Baltimore Buzz," a fox trot, and "Bandana Days" One Step. The orchestra is an organization of colored artists from the big show "Shuffling Along," one of the successes of the New York season.

The two other new Victor organizations are the Shilking Orchestra which plays a fox trot, "Bring Back My Blushing Rose," and E. Coleman and His Orchestra give another fox trot entitled "Stolen Kisses."

Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra present two new fox trots, "In a Boat" and "Sweetheart," in which they introduce barbaric and modernist effects. These records are emphatically out of the usual run of things.

The Hackel-Berge Orchestra also offers a fox trot, "Baby in Love," which is finely rhythmic, clear and flexible, and will "dance well." This same organization plays a waltz, "The Last Waltz," in a beautiful steady tempo and finished style.

The All Star Trio and Their Orchestra have discovered a lovely fox trot in "Jo"—a tune that will win its way straight into the hearts of dancers. On the reverse of this record is another fox trot, "Mimi," and it doesn't require words to tell you that some one is invoking Mimi with the first few bars—even though Billy Murray is called in during the composition to sing a vocal refrain.

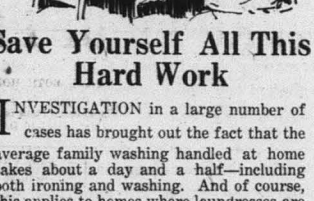
CHOOSING FLOORS AND WALLS FOR POULTRY HOUSES

Wooden floors usually are made of matched flooring, and generally are daubled in cold climates to make them tight and warm, in which case the lower layer of boards should be laid diagonally to give strength. Floors of one thickness give good satisfaction in most sections of this country, and in growing houses. Three-quarter inch mesh wire may be used under wooden or dirt floors to keep out rats.

The walls of most poultry houses in the north are built of sheathing and covered with specially prepared paper, siding, clapboards, or shingles. Sheathing paper generaly is used on walls and roofs which are to be covered with shingles. A wall made of siding placed directly on the studding makes a satisfactory henhouse in the south. Another method of making a cheap, tight wall used extensively in colony-house construction, is to use boards 10 to 12 inches in width placed vertically with the cracks with battens 2 to 3 inches wide.

Paint adds greatly to the appearance and service of all buildings. One may buy ready-mixed paints, or get the pigments and oil and mix them. All surfaces should be clean and dry before they are painted. Use a priming coat of equal parts of paint and linseed oil and then cover with one or more coats of paint, and brush it thoroughly into the surface. Whitewash is the cheapest of all paints, and may be used inside or out. It can be made by slacking about 10 pounds of quicklime with 2 gallons of water, covering the pail with cloth or burlap, and allowing it to slake for one hour. Water is then added to bring the whitewash to the propert consistency.

The best way for the town or city man to get his poultry stock is to buy it in the fall. Try to get pullets rather than older hens, and select well matured pullets so they will begin to lay before cold weather sets in.



Save Yourself All This Hard Work

INVESTIGATION in a large number of cases has brought out the fact that the average family washing handled at home takes about a day and a half—including both ironing and washing. And of course, this applies to homes where laundresses are employed as well as to homes that are without them, for laundresses must have supervision.

If you could gain relief from all this at a moderate cost and have more time for pleasanter duties, wouldn't it interest you?

Our family laundry service offers you that opportunity. We take all of your family bundle, wash everything in pure, soft water and rich lathery suds and nicely iron all the flat work. Pieces that need it, we starch. We leave for you only the ironing of the lighter pieces.

We assume practically all of the really heavy work—work that at home takes about ten hours of the hardest kind of labor—and give you ten hours more a week for children and to make the home pleasanter.

None of the drudgery; none of the exposure to bad weather; none of the troublesome hunting for and bickering with laundresses—yet the cost is less than that of a wash woman.

Once you've given this service a trial we know you will appreciate it.

Right Care of Implements Saves Much Time and Money

A farm implement that is laid by in bad condition at the end of the season is pretty likely to be found in the same shape, probably worse, in the spring. Unfortunately there's no magic that heals broken parts over winter, repairing the wear and tear of one season, and brings forth a bright, sound tool ready for instant work next year.

Delays in Making Repairs Are Costly

Thoughtlessness in the handling, care, and repair of farm implements results annually in the loss to farmers of thousands of dollars and much time at a season when time is most valuable. The proper time for overhauling farm implements is during their period of inactivity and before the spring rush, when farm work is pressing and delays are costly. It put off until the implement is needed, delay incident to getting repair parts, press of other work, and the hazy recollection of the past season's difficulties with the tool or machine may hinder greatly.

At the end of the season's work with any machine it is a plan worth while to make out a schedule of needed repairs and adjustments for that particular machine and file it in a convenient place, so that when an opportunity arises the work can be taken up and done quickly and thoroughly. The machine itself represents capital invested. It should be housed properly and not left in a fence corner or other out of the way place for wooden parts to rot and metal parts to rust, which, even for short periods, may cause more deterioration than the season's use.

Probably no implement used on the farm receives a greater amount of abuse or as little attention to its proper care, operation and repair as the plow. It is the basic farm implement, and should not be allowed to remain in out-of-the-way places subject to the hardships of the weather, but should be housed properly when not in use. When laid by, it should be stored in a dry place away from contact with the ground and the bright parts coated with grease to prevent rusting. Once the moldboard, share, and the landside have become pitted with rust an efficient job of plowing can not be done until the corroded parts again have acquired a polish.

Many farmers who would not neglect an expensive harvesting machine are careless in the care of harrows and other implements of this type. These also represent capital invested, and a large return is possible if they are properly cared for and housed at the end of the season. If stored under a shed the teeth should be supported by blocks or boards so that they will not become embedded in the ground. All accumulations of earth and trash should be removed. Especially is this true of wooden frame harrows. The earthy accumulations retain moisture and hasten decay of the wood. If these parts have dried out sufficiently they may be cleaned and painted, which will prevent season checking and splitting. As the harrow works in wet earth close to the ground, once checking has started the deterioration is rapid, especially at those points where metal and wood come into contact. Aside from prolonging its usefulness and adding to its appearance, a well cared for implement which retains some of the appearance of newness commands more respect and is subject to less abuse from the operator than one that has been neglected.

At the close of the season, or when not in use, if stored under a shed, the disk harrow should be run upon boards so the disks may not become embedded in the ground. The implement should be cleansed carefully of all accumulated soil, and the disks greased with a heavy grease to prevent rust. The protective covering of paint should be renewed at the proper time. This is especially true of the wooden parts.

Keep Binder Canvases Dry

In storing the binder remove the canvases, wrap up carefully, and store in a dry place away from mice and rats, or hang them over around stick with ends free and even. Thus mice and rats can find no place for nests. Apply a good leather dressing, harness oil, or tallow to leather straps to prevent them from becoming dry and hard and cracking. The knife bar and wooden pitman should be removed and stored in a dry place. The knife bars should be cleansed and greased. The pitman should be stored on a shelf or flat place so that it will not spring or warp. Grease the ledger plates, knotter, twine holder, needle point, twine eye, and all bright parts of the machine and binding mechanism in general.

The chains also may be removed, cleaned (preferably in a bath of coal oil), wiped dry, and oiled. They should be labeled, tied in a bundle, and hung in a dry place. If the tongue is not removed, it should be supported by blocking at the end. All connections so that it will not become bowed. The bearings throughout the machine should be oiled with a heavy oil which will not run out readily.

Full information on the subject is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 946, 947, and 1036, a series entitled "Care and Repair of Farm Implements," issued by the United States department of agriculture.

BUENA PARK NOTES

The Woman's club entertained with a Hallowe'en box social Friday evening at the community hall. Hallowe'en games were played and the youn gfolks had lots of fun bobbing for apples and other stunts. The ghost was also present and a ghost song was given by Miss Wanita Simpson.

Dr. Beatrice McMullen of Fullerton gave a very interesting talk to the mothers of the P. T. A. at the school hall Friday afternoon. There were not as many present as was expected, but the ones in attendance were well repaid by the instructive talk.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Ritter and children spent the week-end at Palm Springs.

Temperance Applies Not Only to Liquor

The word "temperance" has been used for a long time to denote abstinence from alcoholic Beverages. But now that that meaning has been set aside, the world is coming to look upon the word in its broader sense.

Mothers, for instance, who ardently write and valiantly preach temperance, daily, teach intemperance to their children by allowing them to make playthings of their stomachs. They are allowing these children to grow up with an exaggerated idea of appetite and desire.

A mother will allow her child to have what some of his little playmates may possess. If little Mary comes in to tell her mother that Betty has an new doll and she must have one just like it too, that mother breeds the germ of intemperance when she gratifies the wish. In later life, Mary will want what her neighbors have, and not being able to possess those same things or duplicates thereof, she will become unhappy thru the intemperate desire.

There are scores of women preaching temperance every day who ought to go more deeply into the analysis of the world. The only evil in the world is not the appetite for alcoholic drink or tobacco; the world is full of things that we cannot have, things that would not be good for us if behad them.

To recognize that fact and to be able to rise above it means true temperance. And the mother who has it in her power to develop this form of self-control which will later lead to self respect and temperance when her children are grown men and women, will be rendering the world a service it needs more than ever before.

LONG BEACH ASSURED REIGN OF PROSPERITY THROUGH OIL BOOMS

The discovery of oil on Signal Hill near Long Beach about four months ago and the proven wells that have since come in concentrated the attention of oil men not only throughout the United States but throughout the entire world, and what may be expected at any time now is a wonderful reign of prosperity for Long Beach, through the dynamic operations of a great number of independent companies, who are following the Standard Oil Company, the biggest company in the United States, and the Shell Oil Company, the biggest company of England, who are now successfully drilling in the Signal Hill field.

Long Beach business men with their usual enterprise are making ready to occupy the rich tribute of Dame Nature, fully confident that when the new oil industry is in full swing there will be a marvelous expansion of all kinds of business by reason of the thousands which will be added to the present population.

Wichita Falls, Texas, experienced a similar boom in the spring of 1919 and in the year following the discovery of oil the Wichita Oil Reporter quotes some stastics which are truly amazing except to the big business men of the country.

Here it is:

"With the banks showing an increase in deposits from $9,678,269.04, at the close of 1918, to $37,622,342.12, or nearly four times the previous year's figures, and with resources of the local banks jumping from $12,885,065.44 to $43,175,843.05, the banking institutions of Wichita Falls have, thanks to the startling oil development of 1919, just closed the most wonderful year in the history of local banking, a year which has raised this city from near the foot of the list of near great banking centers to fourth place among the financial centers of Texas.

Growth is Startling

"To appreciate the full extent of this startling growth it must be considered that either of the two larger banks now surpass the combined totals in each of the above items for last year, and a third is at least within striking distance of the mark.

"Increases in either items which denote the strength and prosperity of banking institutions are equally as striking as the figures already given —clearings have jumped from a trifle over $50,000,000 to more than $200,000,000 for the first 40 weeks of the present year, and the capital, surplus and profits of the local banks have increased from $1,570,617.18 to $3,635,665.65.

Three New Banks

"In addition to the above increases, two have been added to the number of banking institutions here, one opening its door for business early in the year and the other in the latter part, while organization of a third is practically complete and ready to begin operations early in the coming year.

"Oil, as mentioned before, is the principal reason for this remarkable growth. In fact, to fully appreciate just what oil has meant to Wichita Falls banking houses it is necessary to contrast present figures with the figures for the close of 1917, before the beginning of the development in the Burkburnett town site, and that which followed, all of which has the eclipsed oil production and development during all the ten eyars in which Wichita county has been a producing area.

What Oil Has Done

"Deposits in local banks at the end of 1917 totalled $6,332,513 as against $37,622,342.12, and clearings jumped from $31,631,070 to over $200,000,000 for a fraction of the year, around 600 per cent for each item.

Why Wichita Falls Profited

"Wichita Falls and Wichita Falls banks, of course, have profited more from the oil developments of the country than have residents and institutions of other nearby places. That fact has not, however, followed simply from its more advantageous location, but is to be credited principally to the business acumen and foresight, as wel as faith in the Wichita county fields displayed by the men who are directing heads of local banks.

"Had not the banks of Wichita Falls been fully alive to their opportunities, and provided the backing which has enabled all of the Wichita Falls independent operators to carry on their operations, not only they, but Wichita Falls as well ,would not have derived nearly as great a benefit from the wonder pools at it door and the profit would have gone back to operators and their backers from a distance."

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, eczema, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It never fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN ASKS DIVORCE FROM MAN IN HOSPITAL

An echo of both a criminal and a civil action here against Gottlieb Meger, rancher of Anaheim, against whom his granddaughter, Elsie Semrau, brought serious charges, was heard today when it became known that the man's wife, Mrs. Marie A. Meger, had filed suit for divorce against him in the Los Angeles courts.

The wife's suit is based on the same charges that caused Meger's arrest about eight months ago. In addition, the wife recites that a child was born to the Semrau girl, and that Meger is the father.

The Megers were married June 9, 1919, and separated ten days later when the wife learned of the asserted relations between the husband and granddaughter.

Meger as a result of the criminal charges was sentenced to a year in the county jail. Due to impaired health he was removed to the county hospital, where it was stated today that it would be some weeks before he would be able to leave that institution.

A civil action instituted by Miss Semrau for $30,000 damages from Meger was settled out of court here three months ago.

Best Manner of Loading Barreled Apples in Car

A good system of loading barreled apples provides even distribution of the strain on the barrels, which must also be stacked tightly enough to avoid shifting and breaking. The barrels should be arranged in such a manner that adequate ventilation will be afforded. The Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates of the United States department of agriculture finds that the most poular and satisfactory method of loading is that known as the alternating straight load.

This load is started by placing two rows of three barrels each, end to end, across the car, which leaves a space of about half the length of a barrel at the end of the rows. The second layer is then started by placing a row of three barrels on top of the first two rows, but starting from opposite side of the car, and covering the open space between the end of the bottom rows and the side of the car.

The remainder of the car is loaded in the same way, alternate layers being started from opposite sides of the car. This forms channels along the walls lengthwise of the car which serve as flues for the circulation of air. When cars are shipped under refrigeration a load stacked in this manner will cool down quickly, or if a ventilated car is used, there is a free circulation of air through the car. An additional advantage is derived from this method because the bilge of one barrel does not rest directly upon the bilge of another, but in the hollow space over the ends of four barrels below it.

ALL PRECAUTIONS OBSERVED.

Conquering Outlaw Horse Wins Rich Bride for Son of U.S. Millionaire Packer

If Louis F. Swift, Jr., eldest son of the millionaire Chicago packer, had been a little more expert horseman he might have led the talented daughter of Millionaire Mark Morton to the marriage altar. As a result of his shortcomings in the horsebreaking line he sees his younger brother, "Billy" Swift, carry off Helen Morton, and Louis must content himself with whatever consolation he is able to find in the fact that it is "all in the family."

The romance had its beginning when Helen Morton, on a trip to the far west, bought a horse which had a reputation as an "outlaw." Fascinated by the animal's beauty—splendid coal black thoroughbred—she was still more fascinated by the stories she heard on every hand of the animal's intraciability and how no rider had ever been able to master it.

She attempted to match her skill against the ugly temper of the fiery steed, at the risk of her life. After a half hour's furious struggling she succeeded in mounting to the saddle, but the next instant the maddened beast unseated her and flung her with terrific force over its head.

No bones were broken, but she was so badly shaken up and bruised that she was confined to her bed several days. As soon as she was able to be about she returned to Chicago, taking Firefly with her. The untamed steed nearly killed one of the grooms before they got it loaded into its special car and it signalized the end of its long journey by planting a hoof in a stable boy's face, knocking him senseless. But at last, to the intense relief of everybody who had a hand in the matter, it was finally ensconed in the stables of the Morton estate at Wheaton, Ill.

Miss Morton there let it be known that she would pay a big cash reward to the man who succeeded in riding Firefly, but without success. When possibilities had been exhausted there, Miss Morton turned her attention to the amateurs—to society friends of hers who were noted for their horsemanship.

One of these was young Louis Swift. As he and Miss Morton stood in the Morton stables one day, admiring from a safe distance the good points of Firefly, she is said to have remarked, admiringly:

"I believe I'd marry the man who could ride Firefly."

"You really mean that?" was Louis Swift's answer.

And when she replied that she did, he asked her to summon her grooms and order the horse saddled.

After risking life and limb for a good half hour six husky stablemen succeeded in getting a bridle on Firefly's head and a saddle on his back. Another fifteen minutes of arduous effort saw Louis Swift mounted to the saddle. The exhausted grooms released their hold on the bridle and away dashed Firefly with the young millionaire clinging precariously on his back. But Firefly brought his mad dash to a sudden halt and swerved his powerful body with such a vicious jerk that Louis Swift was unseated and hurled headlong to the ground.

To the Morton home next day came his younger brother, Billy. To him Helen repeated the remark that had inspired Louis' ill-fated venture the day before. To her great surprise the young man showed himself quite as eager to try for this unusual reward as his brother had been.

Although Billy Swift had never been considered Louis' equal as a horseman, he succeeded, to everybody's intense astonishment, where his brother had failed. For nearly an hour he clung to Firefly, racing the animal furiously up and down the bridle paths of the Morton estate until its rage was thoroughly spent.

When Billy Swift finally dismounted it was of his own volition and not the result of any capricious whim on Firefly's part. He lost no time in insisting that Helen Morton make good her extraordinary promise. She did and their marriage followed quickly.

The wedding ceremony was a very historical affair, for everybody except young Louis Swift—

Store Potatoes When Dry But Never in Deep Piles

The object of storing any product is to preserve its quality during as long a period as may be necessary or possible in order to permit its disposal at the most advantageous time. Investigations by the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States department of agriculture, show that the temperature best suited to the proper preservation of potatoes is one ranging from 32 to 45 degrees. In regions where the powdery dry rot occurs a temperature of 33 to 36 degrees holds the disease in check better than a higher one.

It is found best not to store potatoes in large piles when they are moist or covered with moist earth, as they quickly develop sufficient heat to injure the vitality of the tubers. If through unfavorable weather conditions it becomes necessary to store potatoes when they are wet and idrty, they should be spread out in a thin layer until they have become dry, after which they may be piled up. It is not desirable to store potatoes to a greater depth than 6 feet.

Potatoes intended for table use should always be stored in a darkened cellar or storage house. Exposure to light quickly injures the quality of the potato for food purposes.

BEEF CATTLE BENEFIT FARM; TURN DRY ROUGHAGE TO PROFIT

The use of beef cattle in connection with general farming throughout the corn belt, says the United States department of agriculture, offers the following advantages:

It is possible to make greater use of dry roughage produced on the farm, as beef cattle consume larger quantities of these feeds than any other class of live stock.

Beef cattle can be used profitably on rough land unsuitable for crop production; also on low, wet land unsuitable for either crops or for other classes of stock.

Beef cattle use the total production of grain and roughage on the average farm, without the purchase of other feeds, more efficiently than any other class of live stock.

Beef cattle on the farm favor a well balanced distribution of labor throughout the year. They require very little attention during the summer and fall, when crops need attention, and during the winter and early spring, when there is little field work to be done, farmers can utilize their time to advantage by caring for the breeding herd, wintering the stockers and feeders, or fattening some steers.

RATHER ROUGH.

"Tommy," asked the teacher, "what is a rudiment?"

"Well, I dunno," said the future pugilist, "but it looks like Willie Brown's map did when I had got through with it."

JAPAN TO CONTINUE ISLAND OCCUPATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Japan has informed the United States that she is not ready to withdraw her military occupation of the northern half of Sakhalina Island off Siberia, the United Press was told in authoritative quarters today.

NEW SUBDIVISION BY Elliott-Anderson and Allen

Here we are again with a new subdivision of 60 large lots, two blocks south of the Anaheim Union High School, on South Citron street. Size of lots range from 50x110 to 65x119 to 16 foot alley. Each lot will have several full bearing walnut trees. This includes sidewalks, curbs, streets oiled and graded. City water, sewer and gas and electricity on tract. In restricted district.

Price of lots are in reach of all for the low price of $800 to $1100. You will note these prices are way below any in the city. We will sell these lots on very easy terms, or will build you a home and furnish the lot on reasonable terms.

About a year ago we put on the market a tract known as the Elliott Anderson subdivision. These lots are gone but two at prices way above those we are now offering these for. If you want a lot cheaper than you can ever buy again in the thriving and fast growing city of Anaheim, see us before they are all gone and while you can have your choice. Two houses are to be built in a few days.

Opportunity

WHAT IS IT?

In this case, opportunity is the chance to buy A Good Used Car—at a price equal to those of 1914.

Many 1920 Models at less than half the New Sales Price.

We are not merely marking down the price of a few old "wrecks". Our entire stock of late model Tourings and Roadsters is to be thrown on the market—at prices which will command immediate sales.

We do not intend to take a single one of our Used Cars when we move to our new building. Our prices will show how we intend to accomplish it.

We are not showing prices on the few leaders shown below—for prices alone mean nothing. But come and see the value in each car. Then you will appreciate what we are offering.

LAY THE FOUNDATION NOW

Our readers will agree with us that, the extension of the city limits is the burning question of the hour. There is nothing quite so vital to the future growth of our city, as the extension of our boundaries in such a manner, so as to permit of the planning and laying of the foundation for the greater city of tomorrow.

Atttention is here called to a concrete exemple of what a piecemeal annexation does for the city and also, what it does for the outside. A short time ago, property holders situated north of North St., between Los Angeles and Lemon streets to a point, where these latter streets join, petitioned to come into the city limits. These property holders found it to their advantage to come into the city, whereas the adjoining property holders were at that time not ready to join. The annexation followed and a subdivision was at once started and approved. Houses were built, sidewalks laid and streets opened. Now come the property holders of the adjacent territory and also seek admission. The city fathers, perceiving the trend of the times and having visions of a larger and a more beautiful city; a city of beautiful homes, wide streets and cool promenades, graced on either side with stately palms and evergreen shade trees, have decided upon wider parking space for new subdivisions. This has aroused opposition in the territory seeking admission. It is contended that wide parking in the new district adjoining that portion of the city, which has just been annexed, is out of harmony with same and impractical.

It must be clear to everyone, who has studied the question of city extension, that this proposition must be solved upon a basis which is fair and just to all concerned and which enables us to lay the foundation for the building of a greater city now. To constantly take in small subdivisions and trying to harmonize them with the balance of the city, will be an annoying and endless job and impossible of solution. Our streets will be zig zagging and coming to a sudden termination here and there, giving the city the appearance of a crazy quilt and permitting nowhere of the development of a really fine subdivision. If the limits are extended now to the proportions that Anaheim is entitled to and will need in the very near future, then the city government can lay its plans for the proper extension of its water and fire mains. It can prepare in advance for the future needs of our city, which it cannot do, if a little dab comes in now at this corner and another section desires admission some other day. Those on the outside must recognize the fact, that they can only stall the matter off for a short time, but eventually must come in. Why not consider the matter now and help lay the foundation for the future, for a larger, grander, more beautiful city. Let's do it now. All together.

EXCLUDING THE CHILDREN

A naval officer, seeking quarters for his family at the harbor had to confess that he was the father of one child. He admitted that he was fond of the little one. His wife had manifested a similar affection. They could not see their way clear to placing the girl in an institution or giving here away, and they both shrank from the idea of tossing her into the dock.

This was sufficient to slam the hospitable door in the face of the officer. He was indignant about it. Perhaps a naval officer has a right to be a father, but his right to provide the children with the shelter of a roof, even during the rainy season, is an idea that has not permeated the landlady or landlord consciousness. This officer made a few remarks deemed pertinent.

"The bringing of the fleet to this coast," he said, "was a political move. We are supposed to be here to protect California from Japan. I am getting to be of the notion that if the Japanese want California they ought to be assured that they are welcome to it. The navy personnel is getting pretty sore. Here we are, brought from the other coast, and we can't get places in which to stay, and are snubbed and made uncomfortable by the fact that some of us have children with us."

Of course he spoke in anger, and did not quite mean all he said. However, treatment that arouses the emotion of anger, does not commend itself. The presence of the fleet is a great commercial asset, gives a pleasing feeling of security; and socially, is highly prized. The officers have a right to expect courtesy, although there be a youngster or two in the family.

LYON REALTY COMPANY COMPLETES PLANS OF ELK PARK

The J. T. Lyon Realty Company has just announced the consummation of plans for one of the most beautiful subdivisions of Anaheim. It is called Elk Park Extension and consists of twenty acres of good land splendidly situated at North and Olive streets. It adjoins the Elk Park tract on the east and is set to walnut and orange trees.

It will be highly modern in every respect—all the latest comforts and conveniences will be there. The restrictions assure nothing that will be undesirable as an ideal home site. The officers of the Lyon Realty Company say that the interest already awakened assures the rapid disposition of this splendid subdivision.

Tino started his war too late. The only way to get on the front page now is to figure in a divorce case.

PETER RABBIT TRIES TO DO THE RIGHT THING

PETER RABBIT learned a long time ago that when he had done a mean or unkind thing he never could feel right in his own mind until he had admitted the wrong and said he was sorry. It was hard to do this sometimes, but afterward he always felt so much better that he often wondered why everybody didn't do the same way. You see, Peter is alone a great deal, particularly when he is at home in the dear Old Briar Patch, and when he is alone somehow that little small voice down inside that seems always trying to have him do right will keep talking in spite of all he can do if he has been getting into mischief.

Ever since he had spied on Chatterer the Red Squirrel to find out where Chatterer's new house was that small voice had given Peter no rest at all. It quite spoiled Peter's appetite, and when Peter cannot eat you may know that he doesn't feel right at all. He felt a little better after he had made up his mind to go the very next morning and tell Chatterer how mean he had been, but he is such a happy-go-lucky little fellow that I am afraid he would have forgotten all about it if that little small voice down inside hadn't reminded him the very first thing the next morning of what he was to do.

"The sooner it's over the better," thought Peter as he ate a hasty breakfast. Then he started as fast as he could go, lipperty, lipperty, lip, for the stonewall on the edge of the Old Orchard, where Chatterer had found a new home. As he drew near he heard voices. Peter stopped to listen. While it isn't at all polite or nice to listen to what other people are saying when they don't know that you are around, it is very, very necessary for the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows to know who is about, so whenever they hear voices they always stop to listen and make sure who the voices belong to. So Peter stopped and listened for just a minute. That was all he needed to make sure of the voices.

They were the voices of Chatterer and Tommy Tit the Chickadee. Peter smiled and hurried on. There was nothing to be feared from either, and he wanted to get his unpleasant errand finished. As he drew nearer he heard Chatterer laughing fit to kill himself.

"Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho!" shouted Chatterer.

"He, he dee, dee, dee!" laughed Tommy Tit.

"Must be a great joke; guess I'll hurry and find out what it is so I can laugh, too," thought Peter, but just that very minute he heard something that made him stop short. It was his own name.

"And doesn't Peter know now?" asked Tommy Tit between chuckles.

"No," replied Chatterer, wiping tears of laughter from his eyes, "he hasn't any more idea where my new house is than the man in the moon. He thinks he knows, but bless your heart he hasn't any more idea than you have where it is."

"But I have more than an idea—I know where it is," replied Tommy Tit.

Chatterer stopped laughing. "What's that?" he cried sharply.

"I said that I know," replied Tommy Tit, and laughed harder than ever. "Dee, dee, dee! You can't fool me, Chatterer! I'm not Peter Rabbit and you can't fool me! Dee, dee, dee, Chickadee!"

"How do you know?" demanded Chatterer.

"Must be a great joke; guess I'll hurry and find out what it is, so I can laugh, too," thought Peter.

"Because I peeped in and saw you in bed before you were awake this morning," replied Tommy Tit. "Of course I wouldn't have peeped in if I had known that you had decided to make your home there, and now that I do know I won't be so impolite again."

Chatterer edged a little nearer to Tommy. "Say," he begged, "promise me that you won't give my secret away. Be a good fellow and promise not to tell any one where my new house is."

"Of course I'll promise," replied Tommy promptly. "I never meddle in other people's affairs." With that and a farewell "dee, dee" Tommy flew over to the middle of the Old Orchard.

Peter Rabbit sat right where he was. He had come up there to try to do the right thing, and now he didn't know just what to do.

Hod Griggs come in the grocery store and set
Down clost to the smoked herrin' box and et
About a dozen herrin' in a row
Till I see Treadwell Pew git up and go
And put the herrin' way up on a shelf;
And Hod stopped eatin' and excused himself.
And says: "Charge me a pound o' herrin', Treac,
I guess it's all o' that or more," he said—
"I 'low they're goin' up, perhaps, right now."
And Tread says, sort o' dry like: "I allow
They're higher than they was, Hod, so they be,
But they been goin' down," says Tread, says he.

And Emery Botts come in the store and he
Had some old feller with him, and I see
He looked a lot like Botts; and Emery said
To me and Jed and Ezry Beggs and Tread:
"Boys, meet my best old friend." And Tread, says he:
"Some kin perhaps?" And Botts says: "Yep, he be
A kind o' distant kin, I guess you'd say,
My mother was his wife—'bout that away."
And never cracked a smile, just like a judge,
He was so sober. I give Jed a nudge,
And Tread Pew set and set and scratched his head:
"What kind o' durn relation's that?" he said.
