OBSERVANCE OF FLAG DAY HELD UNDER AUSPICES OF LOCAL ELKS

Thos. McFadden Makes Stirring Address at Gathering

A warning to the American people to be aware of "liberty assassins" was the key-note of the address given by Thomas L. McFadden that climaxed the Flag Day exercises given at the Anaheim Elks clubhouse Monday evening.

The term liberty assassins was used by McFadden in describing those groups of individuals who profess themselves to be patriots, but who in reality are seeking personal gain through altering of the constitution and the tearing down of the supreme court.

Celebration of Flag day is increased importance in Orange county today, the speaker said, in view of the unrest in the war industry. He sounded the warning that the first stain of the American flag may be placed by agitators who are working in the county now. The stain will not be so much the result of their efforts as the indifference of the American people if work of the agitators is not stopped.

"The United States is the only nation in the world to pay such a tribute to its flag as we are paying tonight," McFadden said.

Leo J. Friis, exalted ruler of the Anaheim Elks club, conducted the services in the clubhouse. Following a selection by the Anaheim Elks' drum and bugle corps, Friis introduced commanders and presidents of the various patriotic societies in the clubhouse.

Arthur M. Bradley presented a history of the American flag, depicting the various stages through which it passed before becoming the banner it is today. He was assisted at the piano by Miss Katherine Steward and by a group of National Guardsmen who presented the various flags.

Two Flag Day rituals of the Elks lodge were presented by officers of the lodge, while the glee club of the Anaheim lodge sang "The Song of Liberty."

The meeting adjourned with the singing of "America." Preceding the services at the Elks clubhouse patriotic organizations from throughout the county participated in a parade.

REPUBLICANS TO HOLD PARTY THURSDAY

A "Jollification Party" will be held by the Republicans of Orange county, under the joint auspices of the California Republican Assembly and Republican Central committee, according to an announcement issued today.

"The event will be in honor of the delegates to the Cleveland convention, who had a hand in nominating Alf Landon and Frank Knox to carry the banner of Republicanism, also in framing the platform that undoubtedly will materially aid in returning this country to safe and sane government," said Howard Irwin of the Central Committee.

Assemblyman Ted Craig, of Brea will be master of ceremonies for the event and Nels Edwards, R. Y. Williams, all of the candidates for office and, it is expected, Lt. Governor George Hatfield, will be on the program.

Many members of the party as well as wives and friends will be welcomed to the rally.

The evening will start with a dinner at 6:30 p. m. in the American Legion hall, Santa Ana on Thursday evening, June 25. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the California Republican Assembly or Central Committee.

Otto Puchert Is Speaker at Tues. Kiwanis Meeting

Chairman William P. Webb presented a local speaker on the luncheon program of the Kiwanis club when members gathered at the Elks club Tuesday noon. Otto Puchert, who has gained national renown for his educational work with various types of reptiles and snakes, was the featured speaker.

Puchert is a self-taught naturalist, and speaks from the standpoint of educational recreation. He has been mentioned in Ripley's "Believe-It-Or-Not" stories, and was one of the experts on snakes called to Chicago by the FBI to identify the snake that bit the fair. He was asked by Ripley if he would remove his clothing and cover his body with tarantulas, which he did, proving his immunity to poison of the insects. He gave the same demonstration with black widow spiders and with Texas rattlesnakes.

The speaker stated that the knowledge of poisonous reptiles and snakes is one of great importance. He also stated that the sting of a bee is at times fatal, according to the condition of the person. Some of the mildly poisonous insects are the scorpion, the centipede, tarantula and scorpion. The fatality of the bite of the black widow spider depends upon its ability to penetrate the third layer of skin of the person bitten.

Opposition to the proposed sales tax would cause the adoption of the single tax. Principle of non-property owners, he declared, who would not be affected by the new proposal.

Discussion of the strike situation in Orange county was given by W. Harold Lang, Louis Jacobson, Thomas L. McFadden and E. R. Kirckman.

Wallop Tells Lions of Trip to Honolulu

A travelogue and observance of Flag Day, featured last Friday's meeting of the Anaheim Lions club in the clubroom. Art Wilmsen, new president, presided for the first time.

William Wallop of Anaheim, was the principal speaker in his talk on his recent trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

Dr. C. O. Patterson gave a short talk on Flag Day as the feature of that observance.

The Anaheim club was represented at the county council meeting Monday evening at Costa Mesa where it was decided to accept an invitation to hold the August meeting of the council at the city park here, it was reported.

While the bite of a rattler may not always become fatal, it is the advice of Puchert to consider it so in the treatment. The fatality depends upon the amount of venom injected into the person, usually up to three drops not becoming fatal, but three drops or over the most common.

STRIKE CONDITIONS IN COUNTY SHOW LITTLE DISTURBANCE; TWO WOMEN SENTENCED JAIL MONDAY

Anaheim police officers made their first arrest and conviction in connection with the strike Monday morning of two women picketers on charges of disturbing the peace, Anaheim police officers said today.

Pickers were escorted to the city limits each morning this week by Anaheim officers, they said.

Officers answered a call on South Kroeger street early today where two Mexican women were reported to be attempting to detain pickers. Investigating officers reported the women asked the pickers not to go to work, but pickers made no physical effort to stop them.

Officers answered a call on South Kroeger street early today where two Mexican women were reported to be attempting to detain pickers. Investigating officers reported the women asked the pickers not to go to work, but pickers made no physical effort to stop them.

Conditions throughout the county are much improved, it was declared by Stuart Strathman, growers' representative. All pickings jobs were expected to be filled by the end of the week.

High school and junior college boys have been employed to a large extent to fill vacancies caused by the strikers, it was said. These boys will retain their positions throughout the picketing season if they desire, it was emphatically declared by J. A. Prizer, manager for the Placentia Orange Growers' association.

"Picketing houses are not hiring strike breakers," Prizer said, "but men who are helping out the citrus grower in an emergency. We will continue them in the jobs they now hold, but we are not hiring the American boys and men can pick oranges as well as their fathers did some 30 years ago and as well as any of the other pickers we have had in recent years."

Strathman's comment on the strike situation pointed to an early return to normal picketing activity. "There may be strikers here, but their jobs will be filled," he said. "Today a decided improvement is shown so far as the number of men at work is concerned. Not only are some of the strikers, under protection of peace officers, returning to their jobs, but several hundred junior college and high school boys and Riverside, San Bernardino and Los Angeles county residents are in the orchards here, too. All these sources are able to meet pro-rate shipments."

Only about 350 pickers were required today to bring the crews to maximum, it was said, although estimates were given as to the number of Mexicans out of work on strike.

Two Men Escape Injury as Truck Upsets in Street

Two men escaped injury late Wednesday night when the truck in which they were riding turned over at the intersection of Los Angeles and North streets, according to Anaheim police reports.

H. Arnold of Pala, Calif., riding with Bryan Williams of Santa Ysabel, received slight bruises, but was otherwise unharmed, it was reported.

The mishap occurred, Williams reported to police, when he abruptly turned from Los Angeles street into North street to avoid striking another truck operated by W. Johnson, Route 3, Box 193, Anaheim.

Class of '36 Closes Year With Exercises at Greek Theater Tues.

Four years of study and pleasure by the Class of 1936 of the Anaheim Union High school reached its climax Tuesday evening when Charles A. Pearson, member of the board of trustees, presented graduates with their diplomas. Clad in gray caps and gowns, the seniors presented a striking picture on the flower-banked stage of the Greek theater in the Anaheim city park.

Dr. Arthur G. Coons, himself a graduate of Anaheim high school, gave the commencement address, weaving his ideas around the motto of the senior class, "Builders."

The speaker compared education to the building of any structure, declaring that each must be built upon a strong foundation, possess an equally strong superstructure and be completed with artistic embellishments.

The process in building, Dr. Coons said, requires materials, minds, methods, machines and men. All the factors must be kept in balance. Man, the speaker declared, is the most important element in the process. "Man is both the means and the end," he said.

Other addresses of the evening were given by Helen Pifer as valedictorian and Mary Jean Cox as salutatorian.

Presentation of the class memorial was made by Kenneth Dougan, president of the class, and was accepted in behalf of the school by Robert O'Neill, president of the student body for 1937.

The class was presented for diplomas by Principal J. A. Clays. The high school band opened the exercises by playing three numbers, which was followed by the processional march. As the class reached its position on the stand they sang "America" and "Blue and Gold." Dr. Howard Dow gave the recessional march.

Sunday Crowds To Fill Park Tables

Three large groups and several smaller parties have reserved every table at the picnic grounds in the Anaheim city park for Sunday picnics, it was announced today by City Clerk Charles Griffith.

The three largest groups include the Zion School of the Zion Lutheran church of Anaheim, the Olinda Old Timers' picnic, and the "Alpaha" group of Orange. The first two expect about 250 persons, while 125 will be in the Orange group, it was announced.

Other musical selections were a piano duet by Dorothy Pratt and Helen Pifer, a number by the Senior Girls' chorus and a vocal duet by Katherine Collins and Helen Collins. Winifred Haggood, Mary Lou Pearson and Dorothy Pratt were accompanists for the recessional march.

The theme song of the veterans this time receives an all southern melody... it's "The Old Rocker Chair's Got Me"... and most of 'em believe Louie Hoskins adopted the song for them.

Roger Sherman was wondering the other day just how he was gonna get his name in the paper... well he didn't have to have a lady bite him on the arm to do it... but then maybe someone told him the old gag about a dog biting a man, etc.

Also, they say that Fay Barnett thinks most of his dancers when he does his high kickers... and he adds... he don't think much of fan dancers. Anyway he don't like 'em dancing.

Well, anyway I have lived to see the Anaheim police working.

Course I don't know much about what happened last week end cause I made a flying trip to San Francisco... brought the governor back (not Merriam)... I mean a real governor... Fred J. He likes Anaheim... but then he hasn't met all my "friends" as yet.

I'm kinda proud of Fred J... his last name's same as mine as his Dad passed it on to him and in turn it eventually became mine... but he's spent just 62 years of his life in newspaper work and matters affiliated... and he still is able to show some of us young guys the way to get some linotype slugs out of a machine but then it's been 46 years since he started and he should be able to figure a keyboard... however, I won't bore you with family secrets...

See where an elephant her his keeper up in San Francisco... and all this time Leo Sheridan tried to tell me that all the elephants were in Cleveland...

Well, well, well, and now Cholly has a problem that is bothering him no little bit... he is trying to determine what causes falling arches... Course I could suggest a number of things such as getting hit on the head by a 12 lb 2 foot falling and landing on his feet... course, there is one exception... so they tell me... when you fall... in love... you don't generally get on your feet... however, he has been practicing sliding down the slide pole in the new fire stable the city dads are thinking about building... an dthen too... maybe some certain young lady has been stepping on him a little... anyway Cholly has falling arches... he says.

Accident Sends Two to Hospital

Two persons were taken to the Orange County hospital for treatment and three others received bruises and abrasions as a result of an automobile accident Tuesday morning at the intersection of West street and Broadway, according to Anaheim police reports.

Involved in the mishap were cars driven by Mrs. Meta Helena Rigby, 4270 Creed avenue, Los Angeles, and Rumlado Esparza, Route 1, box 30-M, Garden Grove.

Esparza and his wife, Herminda, 57 years of age, were taken to the county hospital for treatment of scalp wounds, it was said. Their son, Richard, received bruises about the head.

Mrs. Rigby and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, 1255 S. Plymouth avenue, Los Angeles, a passenger in the Rigby car, were bruised and shaken up, but not seriously hurt.

County Councils Meet in Orange

A combined meeting of the Orange and Riverside county councils of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was held in Orange last week at which time Commander Roy Wolf of Corona, district commander of No. 10 was presented with a past commander's emblem.

It was reported that 19 citations had been issued by the Department of California and 24 were won by posts in the 10th district comprising Riverside and Orange counties.

Visiting Son

Fred J. Smith, of San Francisco, is spending a few days in Anaheim visiting with his son Fred W. Smith of the Gazette.

School Survey Asked by Board

A survey by state inspectors will be asked on all Anaheim elementary schools which were not surveyed prior to the unsuccessful school bond election, it was declared Tuesday at the meeting of the Board of Trustees.

No discussion was held on the housing problem, Superintendent M. A. Guter said.

The board also passed a resolution asking the county for Anaheim's share of the unappropriated county taxes, a fund which has been accumulating since distributed among all school districts in the county. Anaheim's share of the total of $40,000, which represents the delinquent taxes which have been paid since 1933, has not yet been determined, it was said.

Two teachers in the elementary system will not return next year, it was announced. They are Miss Helen Wilson, art teacher at Fremont, and Miss Elizabeth Renshaw.

A canvass of the bond issue was made. Affirmative votes totaled 359, while 94 negative votes cast. Earl E. Smith, the only candidate for trustee, was given 121 votes. Schools will reopen September 14, closing June 11, it was decided.

It is very evident that the coming struggle between the advocates of the doctrine of appropriation and those who favor the maintenance of the rights which the present laws give to riparian proprietors is to be vigorously fought, and that the party of appropriation will, to use a vulgarism, "get left" if they continue in the over-confident mood, which seems to be their present characteristic. They have arrayed against them some of the ablest men in the state who, either from principle or because their talents are purchased, will exhaust every means to defeat the proposed remedial legislation. The methods by which a minority can defeat the will of a majority are illustrated in almost every parliamentary assemblage, and it will be well to recall the fact that though the irrigationists had a majority in the last legislature, the bills introduced by them were not acted upon because of the filibustering tactics of the opposition.

It is evident that there is an unlimited amount of money back of this riparian fight. It is notorious that this money was used during the last session of the legislature, and that the bar is still on tap. In the San Francisco Bulletin of last Monday evening is a communication of about seven columns in length published in an advertisement, in which the late irrigation convention, and its members are attacked and the cause of riparianism lauded. This is only one of a number of such costly publications, and it is good evidence that the fight is to be contested with all the vigor and ingenuity which coin can impart. It is, therefore, the bounden duty of both parties to nominate men who have no wavering upon this question. The maxim, "He who is not for us is against us," applies particularly in this case. But there is another qualification which candidates should possess, as important as their convictions upon the question at issue. They should be honest to the core—not negatively honest, but the genuine old-fashioned integrity as distinguished from that honesty which is honest until it is tempted. The tempter will be very numerous in Sacramento during the next session of the legislature.

Following is the roll of the Anaheim Anti-Riparian Irrigation club. The membership ought to be doubled. The names of new members will be published from time to time: R. J. Northam, A. J. Mead, R. Melrose, F. A. Korn, John P. Zeyn, John Hunter, J. C. Gardiner, Theo. Rimpau, F. C. Rimpau, Plez James, R. H. Gilman, Jos. Helmsen, H. Knapke, F. H. Keith, H. C. Kellogg, H. L. Faly, H. C. Gade, J. B. Pierce, J. B. Tombs, A. T. Pendleton, Henry Burdoff, Theo. Staley, Ferdinand Backs, Wm. R. Harker, S. K. & S. Holman, B. F. Porter, E. A. White, Fred Hartung, W. J. Smith.

bonded by George Hagar for $10,000. It is said that the recent strike in the Puente Oil wells has attracted attention to our local oil fields and that abundant capital will soon be available to prospect the region thoroughly.

Work has begun on a brick building adjoining Kroeger's hall by Mr. Chas. Schindler. The building will be one story with a cellar, 30 x 40 feet and will add greatly to the appearance of the street. It will be occupied by Northam & Nebelung as a wholesale wine depot.

There was a romantic wedding on the high seas on Tuesday. The contracting parties being Newton Meyers of Santa Ana and Julia, the 16 year old daughter of Nathan Fletcher of Orange. The story is that Meyers met the young lady at the railroad bridge and proceeded to Wilmington in a buggy, when a sail-boat was chartered. When three miles off shore, the captain married the lovers in true nautical style. It is reported that the couple have fled Eastward to remain until the parental wrath cools.

John Westphal, formally of Anaheim but now of Pomona, was in town in the early part of the week visiting "Alti Kameraden."

Great expansion is looked for when the beet and walnut harvest begins, which will pour a stream of gold into the coffers of local banks. Added to this is money to come from tomato and berry crops, which will swell the total to probably the largest deposit account ever carried by them. The operation of the new sugar factory will also add materially to activity in financial affairs. This stream of gold will begin flowing into the banks some time next month.

On the whole local banks are not only enjoying a flood tide of prosperity, but are confidently looking forward to breaking all records before the year draws to a close.

The senior class play, "What Happened to Jones," given at the opera house last Thursday evening by the graduating class of the high school was a decided success. A large and appreciative audience witnessed the play. Commencement exercises were held in the high school auditorium Friday evening. Tully C. Knoles of U. S. C. was speaker of the evening.

Graduates were Syril Tipton, William Jones, Horace Howard, Wayne W. Goble, Miss Irene Mills, Mattie L. Robertson, Elsa Asher, Lucie Smith, Esther Hedstrom, Margaret Tedrick, Lillian Clabough.

The stage was beautifully decorated with choice flowers and ferns. Graduates of the Anaheim high school met on Friday evening and formed an alumni association. Temporary officers were elected as follows: Leonard Evans '05 president; Syril Tipton '11 vice president;

Robert McAlauy '10 secretary; Miss Irene Mills '11 treasurer. All graduates of the high school are urgently invited to be present at the next meeting, June 20th and have a hand in the permanent organization of this association.

Richard Melrose goes to Los Angeles tomorrow to be present at the graduation exercises of the State Normal school, of the board of trustees of which he is president. He will present diplomas to 287 graduates, the largest number ever graduating from a normal school in California. Of these six are young ladies of this city. The trustees of the normal school will probably sell the present building and site for which they have an offer of $600,000. The legislature passed an appropriation of $100,000 for purchase of a new site, and the trustees have already more than 30 offers for the sale of property to them for this purpose. The new normal school soon to be erected in Los Angeles will be one of the largest and best equipped educational buildings in the west. Six young ladies of this section will graduate at the Los Angeles normal school tomorrow. They are Miss Agnes Christensen, Miss F. Cameron, Miss Laura Newman, Miss Lilly Zeus, and Miss Lois Blake. Two of the graduates have already secured positions as teachers. Miss Christensen will teach at Garden Grove and Miss Blake at Olinda.

Cards are out announcing the marriage on June 14th at Santa Barbara of George L. Hedges, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hedges of Lincoln, Neb. They will make their home in Los Angeles where the groom is employed by an electrical appliance manufactory.

John Bush has a badly bruised hand as the result of his horse trying to run away the other morning and in attempting to stop the animal he got his right hand tangled with one of the wheels of the vehicle and sustained quite painful injuries to that member. Too much oats, John.

Louis Bushard has been on the sick list during the week, but was ported in improved physical condition. He will doubtless be able to resume his business activities in a day or two.

Joe Baum and Pete Syre spent Sunday at Bay City, and it is reported that there is not a fish of any size left in Anaheim Bay.

Walter Cadman has accepted a position as night operator in the Home Telephone company's office.

Judge Howard and family went to the Landing on Tuesday where Mrs. Howard and the children will spend the summer. The Judge will take trips to the beach several times a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Lawrence and little daughter, Millard, arrived Sunday from Bowie A. T. and will remain during the summer.

Eleanor Roseberry Bride of Jack Leigh Sunday Afternoon

In a wedding gown of white organdy with puff sleeves and a full skirt of floor length, Miss Eleanor Roseberry was a darling bride as she and Jack E. Leigh exchanged marriage vows at the First Church of Christ Sunday afternoon. Completing her ensemble Miss Roseberry wore a long veil with a lace cap joined with a wreath of orange blossoms at the neck line, and carried a shower bouquet of roses, gladioli and galleria. Little Miss Marion Robertson was her train bearer.

As Miss Roseberry was accompanied to the altar by her father she was attended by her younger sister, Miss Etta Roseberry, as maid of honor, wearing a peach color gown; Miss Pearl Pebley and Miss Pearl Pebley, both wearing Alice blue gowns; Miss Betty Richardson in a gown of apple green; and Miss Alice Becker, whose bridesmaid's gown was of yellow organdy. The bouquets were of varied colored snapdragons. Miss Anita Robertson was flower girl, carrying white rose petals. Her pretty brown curls were harmonized with a pretty little yellow organdy frock, while her sister, Marion, wore blue organdy to go with her blond curls.

Edwin Christiansen served the bridegroom as best man, and the ushers were Bob Otto, George Wats, Gerald Baker and Stanley Roseberry, brother of the bride.

As Mrs. Morris Schollenberger sang "Because" she was accompanied by Miss Evelyn Leib at the organ. Miss Leib played a short prelude following with the professional march. Rev. M. C. Schollenberger read the ceremony.

A large wedding bell swung from the center of an arch covered with pink roses and fern, while a white lattice fence with many baskets of flowers, ferns and palms gave the effect of a real garden setting in the church.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Roseberry and Mrs. and Mrs. R. Leigh assisted the bride and bridegroom in greeting the 200 guests as they assembled in the church social hall for the reception. Mrs. Roseberry had chosen a gown of pink tulle and Mrs. Leigh one of turquoise blue crepe for the occasion. As the bride cut her three-tiered wedding cake, punch was served to the guests.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Leigh are graduates of the Anaheim high school, with the class of 1935, and they will be at home to their friends at 325 South Claudina St. after their wedding trip. Mr. Leigh is employed with the Bener sheet metal company here.

Tax Measures Explained B. & P. W. by L. A. Attorney

The last regular dinner meeting of the Anaheim Business and Professional Women's club, held at the Marigold Cafe last Thursday evening, was well attended, many of the members inviting guests to enjoy the program of the evening and benefit from the very enlightening talk of the guest speaker, Miss Frances Emans of Los Angeles. Miss Emans who is very active in the National Business & Professional Women's club as well as in the Los Angeles club, and who spent a part of her early years in Europe, is a prominent attorney, connected with the Edison company.

Miss Emans was requested to speak on taxation, and gave some sincere logical advice on the subject, which, as she said, is most prominent in the minds of the public today. Stating that everyone should pay a share of the country's taxes, based on value and according to ability, she emphasized the fact that taxes should take out of the individual's pocket as little as possible and should go to the state, not into another's pocket, talking specifically on state taxes that are designed for revenue purposes.

Miss Emans explained the measure regarding the single-tax which carries the single-tax and according to ability, she emphasized the fact that taxes should take out of the individual's pocket as little as possible and should go to the state, not into another's pocket, talking specifically on state taxes that are designed for revenue purposes.

The musical program which immediately followed the dinner was an interesting one, being tried secured through the courtesy of Mrs. Buttrec. The Misses Evelyn Baumann, Jessie Marie Evans, and Margaret Hein, with Miss Fern Hein playing the piano accompanied the playing four selections each entirely different, and each one most thoroughly enjoyed by those present. Mrs. Myrtle Henry is program chairman for the club.

Under the direction of decoration chairman, Mrs. Eva Boyd, the tables were dainty and attractive in pink and white summer flowers. Frilled asters, gerberas and white daisies, combined with the dainty maidenhair fern were very pretty.

Routine business matters were taken up, the last meeting of June dispensed with. A social gathering will be held in July, the date to be announced later, in the form of a picnic at the City park.

Mrs. Mary Coons extended her thanks to Mrs. Boyd for her part in the presentation of the brooch at the pioneer picnic on June 4; the brooch being a token of appreciation from members of the post office staff who were guests of Mrs. Coons recently, and for her great assistance in the dedication of the new building.

Three new members were welcomed to the club, Miss Irene Case, Mrs. Mabey Ives and Mrs. Inez Sower. Other guests introduced were Miss Helen Hughes of the traffic department of the Santa Fe railroad, and a member of the B. & P. W. club in Los Angeles, Mrs. Edna Ziback, Mrs. Jack Bernhardt, Mrs. Case and Mrs. Fannie Pritchett.

3 HOURS BY AIR

"Probably," shrugged Jack. "I think he'll wait for daylight before coming back, though. That would help his aim. Our only chance is to get off in the morning before he shows up."

"And if he gets here first?" inquired Felice.

"I'd give my left ear for a gun," as the gum rally. Suddenly he looked at the girl appraisingly and smacked. "How's your nerve?"

"I think it'll get by." Her blue eyes met his brown ones steadily. "That's swell—because we're going to give it a workout. See it? He reached through the cockpit door and unhooked the extinguisher which hung on the cabin wall. "I got some of it stuff in my eyes once—wouldn't see or breathe for five minutes. And it squirts yards—ke a gun."

"He'll never give you the chance to use it," said Felice.

"Not me, maybe. But he won't be watching you. Now if the party gets rough you hide it under your coat and I'll maneuver him into position—then let him have it. Think you can do it?"

"I can try."

"O.K. Now suppose you catch yourself a little nap—nothing we can do until daylight. And you, Waldo, for the love of Mike get out from under foot for once."

Waldemar retaliated by kicking him on the shin.

The next morning found the wounded men much stronger. The sky also seemed to be in a much healthier condition.

"Any sign of Palmer?" whispered Exvarts as Jack felt his pulse. "None. Okay with you if we leave him here?" Then to Freddy, who had started to get up but found himself too weak to do so. "Don't crowd your luck, kid. Stay quiet. I can take off all right."

He entered the cockpit and switched on the starters. Instantly a pistol cracked outside and a bullet tore across the top corner of the cockpit. Felice, who was sitting beside him, barely escaped.

"Hey, you! Gordon," came Palmer's voice. "I'm coming aboard and you've got a gun but if you have forgotten it." He ducked under the wing and moved toward the door.

Jack grabbed Felice by the arm and rushed her into a seat at the front of the cabin. "Quick now!" he commanded. "Sit there!"

As she slipped into the first seat he reached behind him for the fire extinguisher. It was not in its rack. The pilot looked frantically down the cabin.

"Who's got that fire extinguisher?" he whispered hoarsely.

There was no answer from the passengers as the cabin door slowly opened and the muzzle of an automatic was thrust through the crack.

"You mean this?" Waldemar stuck his head out of the washroom and held up the fire extinguisher which he had purloined. Before Jack could grab it the cabin door flew open and Palmer leaped inside. The boy hastily shoved the extinguisher behind him.

"Hello, everybody," beamed the gunman. "Wintry, isn't it." He kept them covered with his two guns. "If any of you want trouble—start it and I'll finish it. As for you, Bollo." He glared at Waldemar, who was innocently returning to his seat. "I've got some plans for you. In the meantime, keep that trap of yours shut."

Palmer started walking forward toward Jack, waving the latter into the cockpit. He apparently had no fear of the covering passengers.

"Hello, beautiful," he grinned at Felice. Then, as she ignored him he added: "Don't get on your high horse sister. Plenty of swell dames have gone for me."

"Can you take off?" he demanded of Jack.

"I'm not sure." The latter was playing for time.

"Come in—can the funny stuff. It's hard and smooth and downhill. If you can't take off, maybe I can."

"You'll break your fool neck and everybody else's."

"Listen—if you think you've got me over a barrel because you're the only one that can fly this plane, you're crazy — I will if I have to."

"Where'd you learn?" Jack demanded after a second's hesitation.

"Mexico."

"I'm right—I'll fly you on one condition. These people go along."

"Okay—I'll be a sucker but get this—you'll fly and I'll ride the co-pilot's seat and if you try any funny business—I'll fly the rest of the way myself. Now start 'em up and let's get going."

As Jack started into the cockpit, Palmer's eyes suddenly lighted on the empty fire extinguisher rack. "Wait a minute!" he snarled. "Stand still! Who's got that extinguisher?"

"It's in the washroom, mister," piped up Waldemar innocently.

"So you were preparing to squirt me out like a bonfire," Palmer sneered at Jack. "If I didn't need you . . ." He whirled on the other passengers. "The rest of you get out of this plane and get out quickly."

"You'll be arrested for this!" cried Miss Harkins dramatically as she gathered her skirts about her.

"All right, sister, go call a cop—all a couple of cops."

"You can't," protested Stephani. "We'll all freeze to death."

"I'd as soon kill you as look at you," snarled the gunman.

"What about me?" inquired Waldemar. "You said . . ."

Palmer turned and stared at him indecisively as if he couldn't quite make up his mind what to do. Deliberately Waldemar raised his hand to his nose and wiggled the fingers slowly. Then, as his enemy tensed for a spring he fired his old standby, the water-pistol, from the hip.

The jet hit Palmer squarely in the face. The effect was astounding. He yelled, gasped and clawed at his eyes, then fired his guns wildly.

Jack got the idea at once. Waldemar charged his pistol with extinguisher fluid. He leaped forward and crashed into his foe. Palmer went down, one of the automatics flying from his hand. Felice dived for it but the gangster, recovering somewhat, plunged forward and was in the verge of grabbing it when Waldemar tripped him neatly.

"Grab that gun, quick!" shouted Jack.

Stephani complied, but instead of using it, tossed the weapon through the window and sat back to enjoy the fight.

By this time pandemonium reigned in the cabin. Palmer and Gordon were in a tight clinch and the other gun was gurgling the pilot's eye and trying to tear his other eye free.

"How do you like it, huh?" He gouged again and Jack groaned. Then the latter twisted loose and walloped his foe beside the jaw. The other gun crashed against the side of the cabin and fell to the floor while the two men engaged in a slugging contest. A mule-kick wallop to the chin knocked Palmer to the floor but as he fell his hand grasped the lost gun. He took quick aim just as Waldemar crept out from under a seat and let him have another jet from the water pistol. The stuff would have choked an elephant, but Palmer merely staggered back, dropping the gun once more.

And once more Stephani reached for the weapon. This time, however, Ann's high-heeled slipper pinioned his fingers to the jaw while she picked up the automatic and crept forward to inflict the deciding blow.

Palmer, again recovering from the fluid, was fighting like a madman. He had Jack jammed against the cockpit wall and was pounding him into a pulp. But his attention kept being diverted by Waldemar, who was dodging in and out, trying for another shot. The pilot managed to pinion his opponent's arms for a second. Yelling with delight Waldemar leaped in, jammed his pistol under Palmer's very nose and pulled the trigger.

The gangster couldn't take it this time. Choking, sobbing and gasping for breath, he clawed at his eyes while Jack deliberately measured him and swung a haymaker from the floor. His enemy's head snapped back and he went down for the count.

"Waldemar," wailed Miss Harkins. "I knew you'd hurt someone with . . ."

"He's moving," screamed the boy as his fallen foe stirred dazedly. "Somebody kick him quick."

"He's out, Waldo," Jack laughed shakily; "Thanks to you."

"Boy did we fix him 'n boy, did you sock him," chortled the child.

"This trip is more darn fun," groaned the pilot. "Tie him up, somebody." Then he turned to Felice. "Come on. We've got to hurry."

"Just a minute," interrupted Stephani, making his last bid. "I . . ."

"Listen, you. One more move and you'll be going places with him," Jack jerked an swollen hand toward Palmer, "for attempting to delay the U. S. mail, assaulting a carrier of the mail, attempted bribery of a post office employee, carrying firearms without a permit, and . . . is that enough?"

"Yes," answered Stephani, subsiding meekly.

"All right now," he continued to Felice when they were both in the cockpit. "My hands are both shot. You might as well learn to fly now as later. Do just what I tell you."

"But . . ."

"Shut up," he barked. Felice started to flare up at his tone, then grinned happily. She adored it.

An hour later they were soaring out of the mountains.

"Nice flying," chuckled Jack. "You're getting the hang of it fine."

"Thanks—I love it." She manipulated the stick gingerly.

"It's going to be wonderful . . . you having dinner with me tonight. And now." He reached painfully into his pocket and brought out Felice's ring. "Could I interest you in a large and handsome ring and a large and battered pilot—because I'd like to return both of them to their owners?"

"But I only own one of them," she answered, banking the ship like a veteran.

"That's what you think," he grinned as she steadied her hand on the wheel.

Col. Miller spoke briefly to the cadets during which he declared himself impressed with their showing which he declared was easily the best he has witnessed as an inspector at a number of military schools. ### New Food Center In Anaheim Oper

Under the management of W. I. Wiegand, who has owned and operated food markets in Orange county for the past several years, the new Anaheim Food Center at 344 and 348 West Center street is now in full operation and supplying Anaheim folk with high quality groceries, meats and vegetables.

The new store is independently owned by Wiegand who manages the grocery division. Bob Biffert has charge of the vegetable department and R. Scott, the meat department.

"Our intentions are to operate a strictly independent market to sell quality merchandise at the lowest possible prices, give prompt and efficient service and to spend whatever profit we may make among the other independent merchants in Anaheim," said Wiegand.

Gazette readers will find many money saving opportunities in the new market's advertisement to be found on another page of this issue.

Ernest Berghofer Returns From Europe

Ernest Berghofer of West Cerritos avenue, Anaheim, has just returned from a European trip in which he toured the central countries and spent the greater part of his time in Vienna and Budapest.

He reports that the German and Italian people are happy and well pleased with their rulers. There is no unemployment in Germany, Berghofer said. "Hitler is literally worshipped as their saviour, for he has lifted Germany back onto her feet again, and has almost completely wiped out the communistic element that had almost ruined the country and the personal liberty of her people."

In Vienna the Anaheim man visited the Imperial castle and its magnificent grounds.

Berghofer described Budapest as the most beautiful city in the world. Streets are wide and clean and lined with locust trees. The architecture of the buildings is outstanding, he said. Hungary is commemorating, this year, the 150th anniversary of the death of Franz Liszt.

All European countries, Berghofer said, regret the growth of communism in America. America, he reported, is regarded as a paradise by Europeans, a place of liberal advantages for advancement in education, arts and sciences.

Berghofer sailed on the Bremen and returned on the Europa.

considered fatal. A rattler can inject as much as 15 drops of venom at one time, according to the speaker. He also stated that instead of the 2 fangs one usually believes the snake to have, the rattlesnake has another 12 fangs in embryo stage to replace either of the two first fangs that may become injured.

The use of snake venom is becoming for more useful in medical science today, being used as a cure for epilepsy, rheumatism and other diseases, and he also said that rattlesnake meat, especially in the east, sells as high as $1.00 to $1.50 per pound, and may be purchased in the canned form in Los Angeles.

During his talk, Puckert had several different species of snakes and insects on display. Among them was a large fuzzy spider, known as the Santiago Canyon Red Bug, resembling a tarantula, which was found on the Webb ranch. Although very large, and most unpleasant looking, this spider is not of the poisonous variety.

During the business session of the club it was announced that the regular luncheon meeting of June 30th will be dispensed with and a special dinner party in Anaheim jark in the evening held instead.

A new baby Kiwanian, Marion Pickle who recently opened a grocery store near the high school, was introduced by L. C. Herron.

Electrolux THE GAS REFRIGERATOR

Refrigeration is no STOP and GO procedure with an ELECTROLUX

The chilling process is continuous. Just set the control for the degree you want. Electrolux maintains that temperature most evenly than any other refrigerator.

UPPER CHART... illustrates the wide temperature variation in the freezing compartment, required by motor-driven refrigerators.

ELECTROLUX Principle of Refrigeration

ICE FORMS HERE WHEN HEAT APPLIED HERE

The freezing action is uninterrupted; therein Electrolux is fundamentally superior to all other refrigerators.

There is no motor to start and stop—to make noise—to wear out. Slight heat keeps the chilling liquid in constant circulation.

That is why the first Electrolux installed in Southern California is now operating just as efficiently as when it was new.
