Our Santa Barbara Letter.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., January 6th, 1874.

ED. CALIFORNIAN:—We are just in the midst of one of the most glorious seasons Santa Barbara has experienced for many years. Our rains began about December 1st, at which time about six inches of rain fell, and the farmers, jubilant at the prospect of a splendid season, at once set to work in good earnest, and all over this beautiful and fertile valley could be seen the busy farmer, preparing his ground for the ensuing crop. The result of this early fall of rain will be that hundreds and thousands of acres of land, which has Fitherto lain idle, will this year be sown in grain, and will produce an abundant harvest.

Again on New Year night the rain commenced coming down, and ere it ceased, another two inches were added to the first installment. Now the certainty of a crop, such as has never been seen in Santa Barbara county seems insured beyond a doubt.

Santa Barbara City is again crowded with Eastern men, who, upon the first approach of winter, hied themselves away to our Italy of the West, where they could disport themselves like the birds, and revel in the glory of this genial clime, away from the rigorous winters of their less favored homes. As a natural consequence, Santa Barbara is gay, in fact, she seems to have been little else for the last three years. She seems to possess a goaheadativeness unprecedented in the history of any other similar city on the Pacific coast. And why? Because she possesses all of those peculiar advantages with none of the disadvantages which other localities have; possessing a climate unequaled in the world, together with its peculiar situation, rendering it at once the natural home of the invalid. The cool bracing sea breeze seems to create a new life in one, and lull one into the belief that they have at last found a paradise on earth,

"Where no more stormy clouds arise."

T. B. J.

A number of the leading spirits among the Grangers are in Sacramento, for the purpose of pressing their views upon the attention of the Legislature.

As to irrigation, they will advocate placing the whole water power in the hands of the State; the perfection of plans of irrigation; and the State to be districted, and each district authorized to issue its bonds for such work as it needs.

Equal taxation of land will be demanded.

The abolition of duty upon burlaps will be asked.

The Legislature will be urged to regulate fares and freights in the interest of the people.

If San Francisco cannot be made a free port, the reduction of port charges will be pressed.

The Legislature will be asked to memorialize Congress against further grants of land to railroads.

Although the matter may not be made the subject of legislation, the Grangers propose making an attempt to effect a reduction in the rates of interest by the establishment of farmers' banks.

On Friday, January 16th, Bush introduced a bill in the Senate to promote irrigation in Los Angeles county. The bill provides for a Superintendent of Irrigation and a Board of Water Commissioners for the county; the Superintendent to remain in office two years, or till March 1st, 1876. When a majority of the people want an irrigation district established, they must apply to the Superintendent, who is thereafter to appoint a competent engineer to report on the practicability of irrigating such district. If the report be favorable, an election to be held to determine whether a tax for the purpose shall be levied. The bill was referred to the Committee on Irrigation.

Some person has put upon the market a preparation for coloring the gums a delicate pink. It is intended for ladies only, says the label—a bit of superfluous information, we think.

Grafting the Grape Vine.

A correspondent says he has some of the Los Angeles grape vines which he wishes to graft with other varieties, and asks us when and how the work should be done. To the first question we answer, the grape may be grafted at any time from January 1st to March 1st with success. However, the best time is when the sap will not flow, or, in other words, when the vine will not bleed. If the dormant season has passed and the sap has begun to flow, then it is better to wait till the leaves are pretty well set on the vine, or even till the blossoms are forming, as at this time the vine will not bleed to do any harm. To those who can, we would recommend that the work be done at once, or as soon as possible.

To the second question we would say, there are a number of ways to graft the vine, either of which has its advocates and claimed advantages.

The vine may be grafted on the old wood, either above or below the surface of the ground, but most of the vintagers insert the graft below the surface, and we would recommend this, as then the whole vine will produce the same variety of grape and present a uniform appearance. Dig the ground away from around the vine, say two or three inches below the surface, then with a smooth-cutting saw cut the vine off, inserting the saw at right angles with the vine. With a thick-backed but sharp knife split the stump in the center, and, having previously whittled the scion wedge-shaped, as the knife is withdrawn insert the scion in such a manner that the bark of the scion will come in contact with the bark on one side of the stump. It is well that the scion should have at least two buds, and the upper one should be placed just at the surface of the ground. This work having been carefully performed, the dirt that was first removed should be pulverized very finely and then replaced around the vine, packing it very compactly about the stump and inserted scion. Another mode is to prepare the vine by cutting it off the same as above, and then with a sharp smooth-cutting bit, bore a hole, say two inches deep in the end of the stump, and near one side, so that when the scion is driven in the hole, the bark of the scion and of the stump will come in contact. Prepare the scion by cutting the outside, or rough bark, off, so that the scion will closely fit the hole, and then drive the scion in. If desired, and for the purpose of making a certainty that one will grow, two or three holes may be bored and as many scions inserted in the same stump. Bring the pulverized soil around the stump as before, and the work is done.

Another mode of grafting is practiced by some, and it has the advantage of leaving the old vine in full growing condition until it is determined whether the scion will grow or not, and in case of failure, may be left to bear fruit as if not disturbed. This mode requires a chisel-shaped tool, tapering equally on each side to an edge, and say an inch wide. With this tool in the right hand, take hold of the vine with the left, and bend it gently from you. Just at the surface of the ground insert the tool and press it through the bark into the wood of the vine, say an inch or more. Having prepared the scion wedge-shaped, now withdraw the tool and insert the scion so that its bark will come in contact with the bark of the vine. Then let the vine assume its natural position and the scion will be pressed into the incision and held to its place. Draw the pulverized soil around the cut as before. When the scion has started to grow so as to be out of danger, with a sharp saw cut the old vine off diagonally just above the scion, and the work is done.

Scions for grafting in this State should be cut as early as the forepart of January and buried in the ground in a cool place, so as to keep them from sprouting and still fresh. Grafted vines frequently make a very good crop the second year. Those who have vines which they wish to graft, had better be attending to the work immediately.—Sac. Record.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1874.

AN ELIGIBLE LOCALITY.

Although there are a thousand and one minor details in sheep raising, which are susceptible of improvement, and to improve which is one of the causes actuating the wool-growers of the county in the formation of a co-operative association, still it is undoubted that a main feature in augmenting the commercial importance of the industry is the proper handling of the wool, after it is shorn. The number of sheep, at present pastured upon the grazing lands of Southern California, can not be materially increased. In fact, the number is already too large for the pasturage, unless a portion of the lands used are seeded with more prolific grasses, such as alfalfa. To insure profit, therefore, in the future our breeds must be improved by crossing with the heavy bodied Southdown and Cotswold. These breeds are more delicately constituted and require greater care and more attention than the quality of sheep heretofore raised. In order to incur without loss the additional outlay involved in the raising of improved sheep, it will be necessary to increase the amount of wool sheared, or else to obtain prices much advanced over current rates. It will be impossible with a smaller number of sheep to increase the quantity; it will be necessary in order to advance wool quotations, to throw upon the market an article of improved quality. To do this wool must be thoroughly cleansed from dirt, freed from seed and burrs, scoured and properly packed. This involves the necessity of the establishment of works for that purpose.

In the location of an establishment of this kind two essential requisites are to be looked after—wood and water. Not only the convenient access to water, but its availability as a driving power, must be taken into careful consideration. The establishment must be centrally located also, that is, it should be so placed that the expense of carrying the crude stuff to the works should not preponderate against one section to the detriment of another. If it is admitted that these things are necessary for the economical administration of the establishment, and for the pecuniary convenience of its patrons, it will be seen at once that Wilmington possesses in its favor not one single advantage. Los Angeles is equally out of the question, not only on account of being not centrally located, but because the entire water of the Los Angeles river has already been absorbed by other enterprises. Those points on the San Gabriel, where water powers could be created, are far removed from every sheep farm. There only remains, therefore, the waters of the Santa Ana river to be examined. Along the line of the Chapman ditch, which is being enlarged to treble its former capacity, are several locations, where a fall of between forty and fifty feet can be obtained. In the Santiago Cañon near by, and owned by a firm ranking among the largest sheep-owners in the State, is an unlimited supply of oak timber. The ranches of Irvine & Flint, on the southwest and those of Bixby and the Lyon Bros. on the southeast are equidistant, the range, including the Mission Viejo, Trabuco and El Niguel ranchos, and thoroughly stocked at the present time with sheep, are equidistant with the pasture lands lying to the northwest and around Los Angeles, whilst immediately around the location in question are forty thousand acres contained in the lands of the Land Company and the two Santa Ana ranchos, which are also stocked to their utmost capacity.

We would call the attention of the convention, which will assemble at Los Angeles on next Thursday, to this matter, not because we would draw towards our vicinity an industry which will unquestionably operate to the pecuniary benefit of outside parties as well as to the advantage of wool-growers, but in order that they make thorough investigation regarding the merits of the different sites, which will be offered as the most eligible localities. We suggest to them the Santa Ana river and its water powers, feeling confident that it needs no mouth-piece, with which to trumpet its manifold advantages over every other possible location in the county.

RABBIT-PROOF FENCES.

We were shown a statement a few days ago, giving the cost of material and construction of a rabbit-proof picket fence, enclosing a forty acre tract. The estimate was $400, making the cost of the land, additional to the purchase money, $10 per acre. To enclose a field of the size specified above, will require one mile of fencing. To enclose a field of four times this size, or one containing one hundred and sixty acres will require only two miles of fence, thus reducing the additional cost per acre to five dollars.

It is well known by all the farming community that the greatest enemies to their young trees and vines are the rabbits and hares, with which the plains, outside of town, abound. Many attempts have been made to destroy these nuisances, or else to prevent the ill effects of their visitations, but thus far without effect. In fact, it is generally conceded that the only possible method to prevent their ravages is the construction of fences around the young vineyards. This matter should receive the early attention of the Grangers, and some steps should be taken by them to insure the building of such fences. By co-operation of neighbors, the first cost can be materially reduced. By assistance from the Grange, the poorer ones can be enabled to thus co-operate.

SARGENT'S SWAMP LAND BILL.

Senator Sargent has introduced a bill in the U. S. Senate, which has for its design the avoidance of the numerous evils which have arisen from the donation of swamp and overflowed lands to the State by Congress. It appears that the definition of "swamp and overflowed" lands was so imperfect as to afford great facilities for fraud, and that this ambiguity of expression was used by speculators to acquire large tracts of valuable land that properly belonged to the public domain, to the personal detriment of pre-emptors, and in many cases of actual settlers. A concurrent resolution has been passed through the Assembly, and is now under consideration in the Senate condemnatory of the bill in question. The advocates of the resolution argue that if the Federal Government retracts the donation of their lands, still not listed to the State, the Central Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads will be further enriched. As one of the peculiarities of the present Legislature is that it is anti-railroad, this argument is paramount to every evil that may arise under the present system of State mismanagement. It is forgotten, or rather ignored by the anti-railroadists, that there are other monopolies, which in their capacity for future evil and in their past operation are a thousand-fold worse than that of the railroad. Notorious among these are the Land Rings which, through misconstruction of law and the criminal carelessness of State officials, have acquired possession of much valuable land for purposes of speculation, and have thus retarded the settlement and agricultural growth of the State. The bill in question is a wise one. It is fortunate for the people of the State that "concurrent resolutions" are consigned as a general thing, to their proper place—the waste basket.

AMENDE HONORABLE.

In our remarks of January 10th, regarding the amounts of freight, exported from the ports of Wilmington and Anaheim Landing, we did an injustice to Wilmington. In speaking of the exports from Anaheim Landing, we stated that it was our belief that the wool and grain shipments from that Landing exceeded those from Wilmington, and that its wine shipments were more than from all the Southern Californian ports. At that time we possessed no definite and official information regarding the subject, and find that we were mistaken in toto. Although the Anaheim Landing exports compare favorably with those of Wilmington, and although in one item—the amount of small grain—the figures closely approximate each other, still candor compels us to admit that in no one particular were we correct. We present below a table showing these exports, as taken from the reports of the Superintendent of the Los Angeles and San Pedro Railroad Company and the agent of the Anaheim Lighter Company.

	WILMINGTON	ANAHEIM LANDING.
Grain	9,578,404*	8,039,555.
Wool	3,626,380	1,189,500.
Wine	3,036,700	2,001,180.

*Including 1,000,000 pounds of corn meal and rye flour.

THE BILL REGULATING RAILWAY RATES.

The Committee on Roads and Canals of the House of Representatives, have presented to Congress the result of their labors, embodied in three separate bills. One of these bills authorizes the appointment of commissioners, who will regulate the rates of freight transportation over the different railroads of the country. This Board of Commissioners will consist of nine members, one from each judicial district of the country. In connection with the Board, there will be a bureau of railroad statistics. It will be the duty of the Board to fix the maximum rates of freight transportation.

It appears a bad policy to place in the hands of a small number of men, a trust which can not be made the subject of direct legislation. It may possibly unite temporarily the entire railroad interests of the country in the temptation of nine weak, erring mortals. Rivalry between opposing interests at all times better subserves the interests of commerce than does legislation, but more especially is this the case when the tendency of legislative enactments is to destroy opposition. However, we shall see what we shall see. The existence of the morality of the tongue and the immorality of the heart, which seemingly influence the action of a large majority of our public men, has become so general a matter of belief among the great mass of the people, that it is almost impossible for one to form an opinion, divested of prejudice.

A PECULIARITY OF CALIFORNIA LEGISLATION.

In one respect California Legislatures are remarkably alike. They invariably create a hobby, which they ride with the utmost persistence. The present one has gone "clean daft" upon the subject of "concurrent resolutions." It has constituted itself the confidential adviser of Congress, and spends a large portion of time, which could undoubtedly be employed to greater advantage in regulating home affairs, in requesting Congress not to do this thing, or to undo that. We have supposed heretofore, that our representatives at Washington attended knowingly to the interests of the State. It appears, however, that such is not the case, but that we send ignorant and uninformed men to Washington to act, under advisement from the wisdom, assembled at Sacramento. Is this course of continued and constant instruction a lingering remnant of the old "States Rights" leaven? Or is it only a California peculiarity?

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1874.

Kleinigkeiten.

—A banana tree on the grounds of Mr. Keller is in full bloom.

—Only one case of scarlatina in town, and that is very mild.

—The Anaheim Water Company will elect a zanjero to-day.

—Another lot of Eastern people arrived last week.

—The Arizona tourists have returned.

—The ladies of the Episcopal Church intend purchasing an organ.

—Louis Durr has been appointed administrator of the Strobel estate.

—Wednesday was the coldest day of the season. The thermometer fell to forty degrees.

—Fritz Fischer is back. We expect an early reorganization of the juvenile minstrels.

—The coaches of the Telegraph Stage Line leave Los Angeles daily at 7 o'clock A. M.

—Christian Henne, the proprietor of the New York Brewery, died in Los Angeles on Tuesday.

—We republish to-day the report of the Anaheim Lighter Company for 1873.

—There is a five-year old orange tree bearing fruit in an Anaheim vineyard.

—The wool shipments from Wilmington last year were 3,626,389 pounds.

—There was a surprise party at the 17 mile house on Tuesday evening.

—The installation of the officers of Fairview Grange will take place to-day at 2 o'clock P. M.

—Clark & Austin are agents for the Eclipse Wind Mill Company See their "ad" new to-day.

—Gallatin has been placed in telegraphic communication with Los Angeles by the railroad company.

—Messrs. Wilson and Wilmot of San Joaquin Township have entered into partnership in the farming business.

—The rain fall on last Saturday was one-half of one inch, making the total rain of Friday and Saturday one and one-half inches.

—A part of the railroad track and several small bridges near El Monte were washed away by the rain of Saturday.

—A sheep-herder, named Johnson, was drowned in the New San Gabriel river while attempting its passage on last Sunday.

—Stage communication between this place and San Diego was entirely cut off during the first part of the week.

—Anaheim ganders are exceedingly belligerent. Timid ladies walk the streets with fear and trembling.

—The members of the Turnverein don't know whether to take charge of the fire apparatus or not. They want to be coaxed a little.

—Among the passengers by the steamer Mohongo for San Francisco were Max Nebelung and Miss Anna Bremermann.

—H. W. Hellman, of the firm of Hellman, Haas & Co of Los Angeles paid a flying visit to Anaheim on Tuesday.

—San Juan Capistrano is an unit in favor of County Division. No wonder, when it is sixty miles from the county seat.

—The schooner Sarah arrived at Anaheim Landing on Tuesday, with a cargo of assorted lumber, consigned to Halberstadt & Co.

—A petition is being circulated, asking the Board of Supervisors to declare all section lines in the lands of the Land Company, county roads.

—Capt. Glassell and W. C. Pendleton, of Orange, have purchased from Dr. Hardin twelve hundred orange trees, three years old, which they purpose setting out this spring.

Any one with more muscle than sense will find a few hours recreation by calling at this office this morning. We have some heavy presses that require removal.

—Mrs. Metz has rented from Knapke and Schmidt a portion of her vineyard, leased to them, for the purpose of planting orange trees thereon. Consideration, $100, *

—The committee appointed by the wool-growers convention to prepare a constitution and by-laws, will meet in Los Angeles to-day. Our section is represented by Messrs Athearn and Lyon.

—The steamer Gipsy, engaged in carrying combustible freight, has been temporarily withdrawn from the coast trade. The regular line of steamers will carry only passengers and safe freight.

—Every business house should have some neatly printed letter-heads and business cards. The job department of the CALIFORNIAN makes a specialty of this kind of printing.

—A large number of squatters have settled on the supposed government land near Gospel Swamp. The "Devil's Elbow" is the delectable name which has been given to the district.

—It is reported upon the best authority that the Pacific Mail Seamship Company intend running a fast passenger steamer directly between Wilmington and San Francisco.

—The San Francisco Bulletin mentions in very complimentary terms the Senate irrigation bill, introduced by Senator Bush of this county. The author of the bill was Wm. R. Olden.

—The views of our hotels, photographed by Addis, have been handsomely framed, and will be placed on board the coast steamers, and in the various hotels in Southern California.

—A shepherd, in the employ of Ferguson & Pace, was attacked with paralysis in the early part of the week and was taken by M. R. Gaddy to the County Hospital. The cause of the attack was mineral poisoning, contracted whilst mining in Arizona.

—The Assembly Bill, authorizing the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county to locate and build a bridge across the Santa Ana river, has been referred by the Senate to their Committee on Roads and Highways.

—The average "Eastern visitor" parades the streets of Los Angeles with a face expressive of amazement and admiration as he gazes on the bunch of oranges adhering to their native branch, which he carries in his hand.

—We received per last steamer, some elegant styles of type and a lot of labor-saving machinery. We have materially reduced our rates for job printing, and our work will compare favorably with that of any establishment in San Francisco.

—The catalogue of Clark & Austin's circulating library, printed at the CALIFORNIAN office, is now ready for distribution among subscribers to the library. It is a pamphlet of sixteen pages, and contains advertisements of all of the prominent business houses in Anaheim.

—As will be seen by reference to the column of "new ads," the concert for the benefit of Signora Catalano will take place on next Saturday. This talented artiste will be assisted by Misses Hardin, Rimpan, and Luedke, her pupils. The entertainment, judging from the programme offered, promises to excel any former effort.

—Negotiations are in progress for the purchase of the Meese vineyard by an Eastern gentleman. It is the intention of the purchaser to build a large hotel, in order to accomodate Eastern tourists and invalids, wintering here. The grounds will be set out in semi-tropical trees and shrubbery.

—There was an application made to the Los Angeles Land Company a few days ago to purchase that portion of section 29, which encloses Bolsa Chica creek. The land in question is admirably situated for the construction of a wharf, but is not for sale. The coast surrounding Anaheim Landing appears to be attracting the attention of others, besides Michael Reese.

—We understand that Mr. Robinson, Trustee of the Los Angeles and San Bernardino Land Company, is expected in Los Angeles during the present month. On his arrival the decision of the Company regarding the construction of their canal will be made known. However, from present appearances, we will not long be dependent upon their good pleasure for irrigating facilities. Ditch-building will soon be compulsory.

AN INCIDENT OF THE RAIN.

An Arizona Tourist in trouble—What he had done—What he did do—How and with whom he did it—The Result.

One of the Arizona tourists, lately returned from Prescott, came to grief in attempting the passage of the Santa Ana river during the last rain. He had passed through the land of the Apache, and still wore his own hair; he had been snowed in among the mountain defiles, bordering on the Gila, and preserved in all their pristine beauty his ears and the tip of his nose; in a word he had braved all the dangers and perils, attendant upon a winter's journey through the hunting grounds of the red man, and had preserved, intact from harm, himself and his baggage. As a matter of course, he was not to be deterred by a little water. Consequently, with an adventurous spirit from Capistrano, who wished to go home, he started for San Diego county. Arriving where the banks of the Santa Ana formerly were before the river was filled with sand, he whipped his horses and they plunged boldly in the flood of seething water and sand, rushing swiftly by. After one or two plunges by the horses, the wagon commenced an active part in the exercise, plunged into a hole and upset. Thereupon our tourist, emulating the example of his horses and the wagon, and of Cæsar on the banks of the Tiber, commenced a series of plunges, and the man from Capistrano, like Cassius, followed. They got out after a while, the horses got out, and the wagon got out, but the baggage is gone.

DISSOLUTION. — By reference to column of "new ads" it will be seen that the copartnership heretofore existing between Thompson & Hindes has been dissolved by mutual consent. The saddlery business will hereafter be conducted by Mr. Thompson at the old stand of Obed Macy. A large and complete stock has been ordered by this gentleman, and is now on the way. By an earnest and strict attention to business, he hopes to deserve the patronage of the residents of town and its vicinity. Give him a call.

A NEW FEATURE.—We would call attention to a new feature in the CALIFORNIAN. In addition to a report of the San Francisco markets, we have introduced this week a report of our home market. We have perfected arrangements with Messrs. Heimann & George to furnish us weekly with a corrected list of prices for every article, interesting either to the consumer or producer, and will, hereafter, make this report one of the specialties of the CALIFORNIAN.

LETTERS AND PACKAGES. — The following letters remain at Wells, Fargo & Co., undelivered: F W Athearn, W M Bailey, Chas Harter, John Hanna, Hop Ching, Mrs Con Howe, N Y Hobard, F A Korn & Co, Charles Smith, Soon Kee, W Truist, D R M Thompson, M Molino, R Matthews, J Maldonaldo, Lordat, W T Glassell. The following is the list of packages remaining: J Maldonaldo, E R Nicoles, Frankel Bro, Clark & Austin, C Howe, R M Shaw, W & A Metcalf, Max Nebelung, R Eccles, R Carrillo, R Mc Fadden, L D'Artigues.

ADJOURNED MEETING. — On account of the rain, occurring on Friday before last, the meeting of Masters of Granges was adjourned until yesterday. We were unable at the time of going to press to learn particulars of their action, and are compelled, therefore, to defer a report of the proceedings until our issue of next week.

Southern Californian

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1874.

GRANGE GOSSIP.

Rhode Island will try and make room for a Grange or two.

Two hundred and fifteen Granges in Tennessee.

The Granger's chorus: Try-rural, Try-rural.

The Grangers of Ross county, O., are preparing for wholesale purchases of groceries, etc.

The Grangers of Grundy county, Mo., are preparing to build a mill to make flour for all the farmers in the county.

The original Iowa Granger is Andrew Failor, of Newton, Jasper county. He was the first man in Iowa to get a charter for a Grange, and did this as far back as 1868.

The Carlinville (Ill.) Democrat well says: "The worst enemies of the Grangers are the free-trade agents, who are endeavoring to use that organization in their warfare against the tariff."

Wildfire in dry prairie grass runs no faster than the organization of the farmers of the country into Granges of the Patrons of Husbandry. The President of the State Agricultural Society of Missouri, in session last week at St. Louis, reports that there are now in Missouri over 1,100 Granges, with a membership of 70,000, showing that fast as the Order has spread in other States, in this it has exceeded them all, considering the time the organization began.

Some of the Mississippi Granges, in order to induce white men to settle in that State, have promised to furnish every white family coming into their respective counties, with forty acres of land, rent free for five years. The Vicksburg Herald advocates selling instead of renting, the purchase money to be made payable in five annual installments, and is confident that the adoption of this plan by landholders would increase the population of Mississippi sixty thousand in six months. Others who owa large tracts propose to donate to actual white settlers every alternate forty, which is an excellent and judicious plan for encouraging permanent colonists.

In the United States, by the latest circular of the National Grange, the whole number of subordinate National Granges to date is 8,574, with a membership of 643,125. The former slave States are well represented in this, there being 2,946 Granges within their bounds. Only the States of Connecticut, Rhode Island, and Delaware are left without any organization at all, the two latter being engaged but little in agriculture, and Connecticut being half a century behind the age, except in her cities and large towns. South Carolina is the banner State in the South, no distinction of color being recognized in this army of industry, while Kansas is strongest in Granges according to population, and Iowa in percentage of membership.

The following are the main points of proposed legislation in Congress on behalf of the Grangers: First—The opening of the mouth of the Mississippi to large vessels in such a manner as to insure their entrance and egress at all stages of water, without difficulty. Second—Legislation to prevent the railways west of the Mississippi river from discriminating in their rates of freight against points on the river, and in favor of all railways at points beyond, thus making it impossible for farmers to avail themselves of cheap water transportation. Third—Legislation to prevent similar discrimination by roads running east and west against north and south roads, thus preventing farmers, when the Mississippi is frozen, from sending their grain southward on railways till the open river is reached. Fourth—Legislation for fixing rates for the transportation of live stock on railways from west to east.

The New York Herald correspondent at Washington furnishes the following pen and ink sketch of a Granger member of Congress: The Grange element finds a fitting representative, so far as his outward appearance would indicate, in the person of Wm. Crutchfield, of Alabama. He rather surprised the dapper Clarkson N. Potter, as he meandered past him in the lobby, on his way to the caucus. He wore his pantaloons in his boots, and a full suit of gray tweed, which looked very much as if it had done service in covering his nakedness while he was harvesting his crops. He has a good face—i. e., an honest one, rather beefy,—and will no doubt represent the agricultural interests of his State. Mr. Blaine has been urged to make him chairman of the Agricultural Committee. The unique appearance of Mr. Crutchfield upon presenting himself at the door did not find for him favor in the eyes of the doorkeeper, who stopped him at the threshold and refused to admit him until by satisfactory reference and proof of identity it was fully set forth that he belonged to the elect.

THE LOS ANGELES

Daily and Weekly Herald.

The HERALD is an unbought advocate of every interest pertaining to Southern California and Arizona, and a zealous worker in all things that shall tend to benefit the State. In a word, it is in close communion with the People. In its columns, from time to time, are found matters of interest to the California Farmer, Mechanic, Merchant, Laborer, and all classes of producers; and it will also contain reading matter suited to the Home Circle.

The HERALD will advocate State Rights and oppose Centralization; it will encourage White and oppose Coolie Immigration. It will favor Free Trade and oppose Protective Tariff; it will advocate a Greenback Currency for California, and oppose the present dwarfing and deadening policy which upholds the present ruinous rates of interest and shuts out Eastern capital. It will advocate the People and oppose Monopolies, no matter what guise they may assume.

The HERALD will oppose thieving and peculation. No man rightly owns a dollar until he earns it. Every dollar which is taken from the public treasury or private purse without a just return is robbery, and he who takes this money is a thief. Believing this, the HERALD will oppose salary steals, custom steals, land steals, railroad steals and every kind of Steals.

Each day, the fullest Foreign and Domestic Telegrams will be published. The aim will be to supply in this part of the State, the demand heretofore filled by San Francisco dailies. No trouble or expense will be spared to make the HERALD, in this respect, equal to any newspaper on the coast. It will also contain a full Review of the Local and Foreign Markets, and the Trades generally, honestly and carefully compiled.
