Announced Figure

Official population of Fullerton is 10,442. The figure, representing a decrease of several hundred from the count of 10 years ago, was confirmed last week by a letter from the bureau of cehsus at Washington, D. C. The letter, was signed by John G. Aldrich and was in reply to a missive sent that department last week by the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce, The commerce body in its letter, asked that confirmation be given to the newly announced total of that steps be taken to ward, some sort of recheck.

In his letter, Aldrich referred to figures furnished last September by District Enumerator Lon V. Sleglar of Riverside, Sieglar's total, anounced at the time, was 11,004. To that figure was later added approximately 400 names submitted in a recheck of the city by the local agencies. This number, Aldrick pointed out added to a total of 10,004, would give the, present corrected figure of 10,442. Sieglar's figure, Aldrich stated, was exactly 1000 names too many.

On the basis of the latest figures, Fullerton becomes the third city in the full of the commerce of the corrected figure of 10,442. Sieglar's figure, Aldrich stated, was exactly 1000 names too many.

Chrysler Motors Drop Close Game

Three-hit pitching by Hansmann proved too much for Anaheira Chrysler Motors last Sunday and they bowed to the Los Angeles Iron Workers, 3 to 2. Doug Wheel-er turned in a good hurling exhibition himself, but gave up single runs in the eighth and ninth innings to lose the decision.

Bob Lemmon got two of Anaheim three hits, with Jack Graham accounting for the other. Graham's blow was recorded as a home run when a throw from the outfield went wild at third base.

Anaheim took the lead with a run in the fourth, but lost it when the visitors tallied in the fifth. The Iron Workers picked up another score in the eighth, but the Chryslers knotted the count again on Graham's run. The payoff tally came in the final round.

Due to two crowd scenes, one of which is an entertainment packed "haydown" party, the cast is unusually large for a school production and will utilize some 35 or more students.

The stage sets constitute one of the highlights of the show since the script calls for five different scenes, a front room in a farm house, a country girl's bedroom, a smoke house, a party scene on a front porch, and a hayfield.

The sets, each built on casters for quick changes of scenery, were designed by Ted Rutherfold and constructed by the stagecraft department under the supervision of Earl S. Dysinger, stage manager.

Direction of the performance lies in the experienced hands of Mrs. Esther C. Litchheld? Others on the production staff include Earl Dysinger, production manager, Ralph Holmes, director of music, and Fiorence. Randall, director of dance.
