

Young People Exchange Wedding Vows In Charming Garden Setting Afforded by Capilla de San Antonio

Lighted by candles and garlanded with white blossoms, the garden altar of Capilla de San Antonio was a beautiful setting for the wedding rites Saturday evening at which Miss Dorothy Darlene DeVore, daughter of Mrs. Carl Clodt of this city and Russell DeVore of Los Angeles, pledged her troth to S. Sgt. Wilbert Loesch of AAFWCTC, Santa Ana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Loesch of San Jose.

A hundred or more guests assembled for the 8 o'clock rites held in the secluded garden chapel preceded by a short musical program with Mrs. Clara Faust at the organ. The love songs, "Because" and "Indian Love Call" selected by the young couple, were sung by Vera Jean Hilbers, after which Mrs. Faust played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the bridal party moved to the altar. There the Rev. L. E. Eifert, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, was joined by S. Sgt. Loesch and his best man, Teh. Sgt. Lester Nelson, also of the West Coast Training Center.

Refreshments were served from a lace-spread table where a tiered wedding cake with its soldier bridegroom and his bride, was surrounded with flowers and candles. The newly-wedded pair cut the first slice of the cake, with Mrs. Otto Clodt and Mrs. Elton Sahr completing the process. It was served with iced fruit punch by the Misses Betty Clodt, Marian Clodt and Norma Troller.

The young couple plan to establish a home in Santa Ana while Sgt. Loesch completes his training. He had his schooling in Chicago, and his bride graduated from Manual Arts high school, Los Angeles. Many of her school-mates and other Los Angeles friends were here for the wedding. The senior Mr. and Mrs. Loesch and Mr. and Mrs. Murray Perry and their small daughter, have now returned to San Jose.

The flowery path to the altar was of rose petals scattered by two cunning flower girls, Karen Clodt, small cousin of the bride, and Susan Perry, niece of the bridegroom. They were dressed alike in pretty frocks of pink satin and lace. Carrying the wedding ring on its satin pillow, was the bride's small brother, Master Monte Dean Clodt, very manly in military uniform.

Mrs. Murray Perry, a sister of the bridegroom, came from the San Jose home to serve as matron of honor. Her long gown of pink tulle and white tulle, and her colonial bouquet of sweet peas. Miss Sydney DeVore of Los Angeles, cousin of the bride, and Miss Pauline Wells of Fullerton were bridesmaids, gowned alike in formal frocks of blue tulle and net, and carrying sweet peas.

S. Sgt. Loesch's ushers, like his best man, were from the Training Center and were Sgts. Excell Watts and LeRoy Corzoza.

Pioneer of County Called by Death

Orange county history, the study of which was one of the chief pursuits of Mary Adeline (Mrs. J. E.) Pleasants, this week recorded the death of Mrs. Pleasants, a pioneer resident of the county and a native daughter of California. Her death at the age of 84 occurred Monday morning at the J. T. Nicholson home in Orange.

Born in Petaluma on February 24, 1859, Mrs. Pleasants came to Orange county in her young womanhood, and taught school in Silverado Canyon, riding horse back to her teaching duties. Her marriage to J. E. Pleasants occurred in 1890, and the family home for many years was on a ranch in Silverado Canyon. Mr. Pleasants was one of the county's leading agriculturists until his death in 1934.

Mrs. Pleasants continued to live at the ranch home until a few years ago, and there she wrote her authoritative "History of Orange County" and many articles for the press and for Orange County Historical society in which she was especially active. She found time in her study of the county's bird and plant life, to act as ground observer in the Aircraft Warning Service, and won her 100-hour arm band some months ago.

Gardening Expert Is Popular Speaker At May Program Meeting Of Ebell Club Home and Garden Group

Appearing Monday afternoon before Ebell Home and Garden section in a talk on "Begonias and Fuchsias," Mrs. Robert Ross of Costa Mesa, with her wide and varied gardening experience, proved so authoritative a speaker that the program eventually developed into a general gardening symposium.

Mrs. Ross, introduced by Mrs. Charles T. Frantz, section leader, discussed begonias in detail as the opening feature of her talk, telling of the ease of growing seedlings with the fascinating possibilities of developing new varieties. Hints on the treatment for both fibrous and tuberous varieties were given, with suggestions of her own preferred soil mixture with proper plant feeding.

"The more you grow plants, the less you know about them," Mrs. Ross declared humorously, adding that discovery of new ideas and methods was part of the fascination of gardening.

Fuchsias, so easily grown yet so susceptible to all plant pests, were described with equal zest and knowledge of their needs. A soil mixture of loam, sand, leaf mold and steer manure was advocated, with a great deal of watering required. Plants, she declared, are like human beings, and react in favorable soil and light conditions to the point that "they may be happy in one location in your garden and respond with full blooming, and pine away and die in another location where they are not happy."

The innumerable questions showered upon the speaker as the afternoon drew to a close, brought forth much valuable information regarding all varieties of flowers, plants and vegetables.

During the final social interval Mrs. Cortez Hoskins substituted for Mrs. John H. Boege as hospitality chairman. She was assisted by Mrs. Louis Hoskins and Mrs. Robert Kennedy in serving the delectable little ribbon sandwiches and tea.

Attention was called to the canning demonstration to be conducted under Ebell auspices Wednesday in the clubhouse, with Mrs. Ralph Focht in charge. The demonstration will begin at 9 a.m. Next Monday, Bible section under leadership of Mrs. Fred Weisel, will present Mrs. Jesse B. Wolfe of Santa Ana, speaking on "As a Woman See Northern China." She will draw upon a vast fund of knowledge gained through many years' residence in China where her husband has long been engaged in educational-missionary work.

NUMBER 12 OF A SERIES

Warwork uses up a lot of energy and strength, and one of the best ways to regain it is to pack more energy foods and "manpower" into the mid-shift lunch box. Now more than ever, it should provide for a full third of your daily food and strength-building requirements.

Plan your lunch box in relation to other meals of the day to provide a proper nutritional balance of energy foods, body-building and protective foods. The menu should have foods rich in calories and a fair share of vitamins and minerals as well. Included should be the whole-grained cereals, "enriched" breads, vegetables, dried legumes; nut-meats, meat, eggs, milk products and fresh fruits.

For variety, try nut breads and oatmeal cookies baked in your gas oven at home.

The menus suggested below illustrate the kind of square meals needed to carry a worker through the last half of the shift.

- Suggested Lunch Box Menus (Keep lunch box in coolest place possible): Nippy Cheese on Oatmeal Bread, Peanut Butter and Orange Marmalade on White Bread, Carrot, Celery Strips, Homemade Cake Milk or Coffee, Cold Roast Beef Sandwich, Buttered Nut Bread, Vegetable Salad, Gingercake, Coffee or Iced Lemonade, Meat Loaf on Whole Wheat, Swiss Cheese on Rye, Whole Tomato, Fresh Fruit Pie, Milk or Coffee.
