SUGAR CULTURE.

S. F. Bulletin, March 31st.

Few people realize the immense importance of the sugar interests of the world. The United States has since 1848 paid out more money for foreign-grown sugar than all the gold and silver which has been mined out in the same period within the limits of our territory. A Commissioner of Agriculture, lecturing in 1880, said that from 1849 to 1877, both years included, the vast sum of $1,742,000,000 had been taken from the earth in the form of gold and silver. But during the same period the yet larger sum of $1,820,000,000 has been sent to foreign countries for sugar. If the United States could produce the vast amount of sugar required to stop this enormous drain on our resources, and keep this precious metal here, the aid to every industry and the enhancement of al property values would be immediate and healthful. If the cultivation of sugar-producing plants can be promoted and established over broad areas of country, it will be more than equivalent to the discovery of a new California placer region.

In a general way it may be asserted that the prospects of naturalizing sugar culture on the Pacific Coast, are more than promising; that success can be predicted whenever proper business judgment and energy are displayed. It is also certain that no rivalry need be shown between different enterprises, the field being so large and the demand so steadily increasing. The Colorado River bottoms, with their inexhaustible and constantly renewed fertility, and warm and irrigated lands in many parts of the Southern counties of this State, can be used for the true sugar cane of Cuba, Louisiana and the Hawaiian Islands. The fertile and beautiful corn lands of Russian River and northward of Kern Valley, of Los Angeles, of Santa Clara and of the Upper Sacramento, can well be applied in part to the production of Sorghum and Imphee. Where there is no alkali, where capital in sufficient degree can be interested, and where cheap fuel and other advantages are found, the growth and manufacture of beet sugar, and the fatting of cattle on the refuse, will form a profitable business. There seems no reason to doubt the availability of some of the Puget Sound lands to this purpose. All these enterprizes may find abundant room for work and a market for their products.

What has already been accomplished in this State and elsewhere in the way of developing the sorgho interests, is greater than most people know. Henry Sherwood, Superintendent of the Ravenna Paper Pulp mill in Los Angeles county, has lately published an important pamphlet, which summarizes the work here and elsewhere in a capable way. The cane growers held a convention in St. Louis lately, and grew quite enthusiastic over the subject of Northern cane sugar. Several of the agricultural journals devote much space to articles on Sorghum culture. It is being adopted even in Louisiana to some extent, when the season is bad for tropical cane. Rain and frost decrease the sugar yield of Sorghum. The percentage of saccharine contents varies from 12 to 16 per cent. in different localities and seasons. The cost of producing a crop ranges from $1 50 to $3 00 per ton. As regards the product of syrup, which any farmer can make, it is bought largely for mixing with other syrups. The merchantable sugar, which requires some experience and proper machinery to make, sells as a good second-grade article, and the quality is improving every year.

The question of varieties is extremely important, the amount of sugar varying much and some kinds being adapted to certain localities where others would hardly succeed. There is a hybrid cane (Sorghum) raised in France, which on suitable soil and under good treatment will, it is said, mature two crops for sugar in a season, and also produce a forage crop from the same roots in winter and spring. Los Angeles farmers propose to give this variety a trial, and will report progress. But other varieties are better known and more thoroughly tested. All the "Northern sugar canes" may be classified under two divisions—the Chinese and the Africans. The former is Sorgbum or Sorgho; the latter is Imphee. The first was long the favorite with planters, and the Amber variety is one of the best and largest. The California State Agricultural Board are now distributing seed of the Early Amber. It pleases the farmers because it matures so soon (in four and a-half months from sowing), and it will ripen wherever flint corn succeeds. It is rich in sugar; the syrup is of a beautiful clear color; it thrives in all parts of the State, and throughout much of Oregon and in parts of Washington Territory. It is the favorite in Illinois and Minnesota. The Imphee varieties are numerous, and some of them promise to be better over the most part of California than the Chinese varieties are. The State Board of Agriculture is also distributing seeds of the Neeazana, grown at Port Natal, and one of the best for syrup, but not for sugar. The Liberian has some peculiar advantages. It is never affected by rust, blight, mildew, nor other diseases. The Early Orange is another fine Imphee.

But it must be said that one of the great difficulties in the whole matter of cane growing, both with the Sorghum and the Imphee, is to keep the seed pure. It cannot be done without much caution. Mixed, or badly hybridized kinds show a lessened yield of sugar at once. A hybrid of value is extremely difficult to "fix" with any certainty; in other words, it is liable to sport, vary, mix with other sorts and degenerate in every particular. So, for this reason, the horticulturist who wishes to succeed must have the best of seed to begin with, and should exercise proper care to keep it pure. The seed will cross with broom corn, Doura, Hungarian grass, Millet, and the resultant product is worthless for sugar. None of these plants should be grown close to a Sorghum or Imphee field.

As regards culture the soil needs the preparation best for corn land; deep plowing, cross-plowing and thorough pulverization are essential; sandy loam is best; black land does but poorly; too much irrigation decreases the yield of sugar; the presence of potash or alkaline salts, spoils the quality of the crop.

TO KEEP THE GIRLS WARM.

A seal skin sacque costs fifty per cent more than it did five years ago. Seal skins have not been worn more than fifteen or eighteen years. Fashion and the discovery of new methods of preparing and dyeing, or first the latter and second the former, have brought them into use. The seal fur, as seen here, is the inner coat. When on the back of the seal this fine fur is hid by coarse hairs, which are removed by a process of paring down the under side of the skin. The color of the fur as known to wearers is artificial. If the Government had not taken measures to protect the seal the wearers of seal sacques would be few in a short time. The Shetland seals were once numerous, but have been exterminated. The Newfoundland seal is in the market, but is inferior to the seal of Alaska. The islands of the Behring Sea are the only ones in the world where seal catching has great commercial importance.

From 1751 to 1870 the scientific world knew nothing in regard to the history of the seal. The Smithsonian Institution did not possess a perfect skin and skeleton of the seal, although thousands of men and millions of dollars have been employed in capturing, dressing and selling fur seal skins for the last 100 years. The vast breeding grounds bordering on the Antarctic have been entirely depopulated. Between the years 1797 and 1821, 1,222,374 seal skins were taken in the Pribyloy Islands; between 1821 and 1842, 458,502 skins, and from 1842 to 1861, 372,000 skins. In the year 1868 the number of skins taken was 242,000. In 1870 only 9,965 were captured. During the last ten years the catch has been a little less than 100,000 per year. The whole number taken between 1876 and 1880 was 3,561,051 skins, and is worthless. The natives are paid 40 cents a skin for their labor.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Captain Isaac Bassett, who has assisted in opening the doors of the Senate for the last fifty years, and is a spared monument of party vengeance for a whole half century, has just had a gold snuff-box presented him by his Senatorial friends. He was in the Senate when Clay, Calhoun and Webster were at the height of their power and fame; knew all the later antagonists of the war and anti-slavery period—Douglass, Davis, Benjamin, Sumner, Seward, Wade and the rest, and stands a chance, perhaps, of seeing a new generation of statesmen. In accepting the snuff-box, he made an interesting little speech, sketching the history of Senatorial snuff-taking as it had passed under his own observation. When Van Buren was Vice President he gave Bassett fifty cents a week to keep his gold snuff-box on the table full. Henry Clay was very found of a pinch of snuff, and if in the middle of a speech, he could not see a page to bring him one, he would stop, descend to the Vice-President's desk and help himself. When Millard Fillmore was Vice President he objected to having a snuff-box on the table of the Vice President, because, in his opinion, it interfered with the business of the Senate. Senators would come up and stop to converse with each other, and disturb him so much he could not hear what was going on in the Senate. Ever since that period there has been placed on each side of the Senate a small snuff-box fastened to the wall.

Six Cents a Piece for Wasps.

Wasps are such an obstacle in the way of English fruit growers that one of them, Mr. William Taylor, thinks it worth while to pay three pence each for queens. And last season he bought and destroyed no less than 1,192. About 230 nests have been annihilated within a mile of his premises, and still there is enough left for seed. He declares that the price named is not too high, "since it takes considerable skill to catch them," and because of their enormous fecundity, of which he says, in the Cottage Gardener: "Understand that every wasp seen before the middle of June is a queen, and liable to have a nest of 10,000 at least. I lately estimated the number of cells in a rather large nest, and made out 9,000 of them. A great many of the young had flown, and fresh eggs were laid in their places, and I have reason to believe that there is often more than one succession of young insects from the same cells, therefore 10,000 is a comparatively small family."

When a man turns up his eyes piously toward the skies, and declares that he is ready to die at any time, you may conclude, with tolerable accuracy, that he owes for several weeks' board, and that his credit is bad at his washerwoman's.

"If the good die young," asks The Modern Argo, "how do you account for baldheaded editors?" We presume they must also have dyed young.

REMINISCENCES of GENERAL WASHINGTON.

"You say," I remarked to the old negro who drove the hack, "that you were General Washington's body servant?"

"Dat's so! Dat's jes so, mossa. I done waited on Washington sence he was so high—no bigger 'n a small chile."

"You know the story, then, about the cherry tree and the hatchet?"

"Know it? Why, I was dar on de spot. I seen Mossa Gawge climb de tree after de cherries, and I seen him fling de hatchet at de boys who was a stonin' him. I done chase dem boys off de place meself."

"Do you remember his appearance as a man? What he looked like?"

"Yes, indeedy. He was a kinder short, chunky man; sorter fat and hearty-lookin'. He had chin whiskers and mustache and spectacles. Mos' generally he wore a high hat; but I'se seed him in a fur cap wid ear-warmers!"

"You were not with him, of course, when he crossed the Delaware—when he went across the Delaware River?"

"Wid him? Yes, sir; I was right dar. I was not more'n two feet off'n him as he druv across de bridge in his buggy; dat's a fac'. I walked 'longside de off hind wheel of dat buggy all de way."

"You saw him then when he fought the British at Trenton?"

"Sho's you're born I did! I held Mossa Gawge's coat an' hat while he fought de British at dat werry place. Mossa Gawge c'linched him and den dey rassled and rassled, and at first he frew Mossa Gawge, and den Mossa Gawge flung him, and set on him and done hammered him till he cried 'nuff! Mossa Gawge won dat fight. I seed him wid me own eyes! An' I come home wid him in de kyars!"

"You weren't with him though when he shot the apple off the boy's head?"

"Who wa'n't wid him? I wa'n't? I was de only pusson dar 'ceptin' one white man. I loaded Mossa Gawge's revolver and han'ed it to him, and picked up de apple an' et it soon as he'd knocked it off. Nobody can't tell dish yer ole niggah nuffin 'bout dat circumstance."

"You knew all of the General's relations, too, I suppose? Martin Luther and Peter the Hermit and the rest?"

"Knowed um all. Many and many's de time I done waited on de table when Mossa Gawge had um to dinner. I remember dem two gemmen jes' 's well's if I'd a seen um yesterday. Yes, sah; an' druv 'em out often."

"I've frequently seen pictures of Washington in which he is represented sitting upon a white horse. Did he really ride a white horse, or don't you recall the color of his horse?"

"Why, bress your soul; 'call de color ob de hoss—'call de color ob it? Do you see dish yer nigh hoss dat I'm a drivin' now, right yer? Well, dat's the werry hoss Mossa Gawge used to ride. He lef' it to me in his will!"

Just then we reached the station, and I dismounted from the hack and paid Washington's body-servant for his services. No doubt a longer conversation with him would have revealed other new and startling facts relating to the Father of His Country.—Max Adeler in Our Continent.

A CHINESE NEGRO.

A reporter of the News, who chanced to be at the Union Depot recently when the train from Cheyenne arrived, had opportunity for observing a specimen of humanity, very rare, which was nothing less than a Chinese negro—black and woolly-haired, but dressed in the garb of the Chinese lower classes, wearing the skirt-like coat, baggy trowsers and box shoes of the inhabitants of the Celestial kingdom. The man, for such in sex the person was, at once attracted considerable attention from those standing about the depot. He was with a party of half a dozen new arrivals from the Orient, and was jabbering away with the others in what seemed to be pure Chinese chatter. He was found to be entirely unable to talk English, but said in Spanish that he understood something of that language. The majority of the bystanders considered this portion of his talk as merely a continuation of his Chinese talk, but one man in the crowd heard the remark and understood it. As his knowledge of the Spanish was but little better than that of the Afrieo-Mongolian, but little could be made of the narrative.

Enough was, however, understood to know that the man was about forty years of age, and that he had been born in Spain. When ten years of age he went to sea as the servant of an officer on a privateer. In those days the Chinese waters were not pleasant quarters for outside craft, and pirates even took great risk in invading the Chinese seas. This particular vessel ventured in, however, and boldly entered the Strait of Formosa. The result was that she got into unknown waters, and, a storm coming up, she was wrecked. The people living along the shores promptly took possession of all valuables, and of the sailors themselves, who were not liberated for some eighteen months. The officer of the vessel continued to make a servant of his colored boy after his captivity. The Chinese observed that he was a slave and a very intelligent one, and consequently when the sailors were liberated they refused to permit the colored boy to go. Hence, he continued in China, the slave of one of the leading men of the town where he landed. There he remained for some twenty-seven years, serving his master, as he could not get away. He gradually became habituated to Chinese life, learned the Chinese language, and, per force, adopted Chinese customs and costumes, and was not anxious to make a change.

A year ago he came to San Francisco with his master. He had been in America but three months when he made the discovery that there were no slaves here, and he determined no longer to serve another. For the past nine months he has been a free man, but has continued to live with the Chinese, because he understands and is used to their mode of life. He came to Colorado with a party of them and goes with them to work in the mines near Como. The fellow appears to be a man of natural intelligence. He is as black as coal and thoroughly African in appearance. His Spanish name is Montoya and his Chinese cognomen Ong Fung Yu.—Denver News.

UNIVERSITY of CALIFORNIA.

The following announcement, issued as a supplement to Bulletin No. 6, is of special interest to teachers in preparatory schools, and to candidates for admission to the University of California:

Any candidate for admission to the University may, at his option, pass the entire examination at one time as heretofore, or he may pass a preliminary examination on a part of the requirements and be examined on the remaining subjects the following year; but neither the preliminary nor the concluding examination may be divided between the June and the August examinations.

Candidates will not be admitted to the preliminary examination without certificates from their teachers that they are prepared. These certificates should be sent to Recorder Wm. Carey Jones, Berkeley, at least two weeks before the examination. A fee of five dollars will be charged to applicants at Los Angeles and Marysville.

No certificate of proficiency will be given upon the preliminary examination unless the candidate passes upon at least six of the eight prescribed subjects.

Candidates for the classical course may take the first eight subjects named below; for the literary course the subjects numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9; for the course of letters and science, and the courses in science, the subjects numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11.

Subjects—1. Tom Brown's School Days at Rugby and Charles and Mary Lamb's Tales from Shakspeare; 2. Arithmetic; 3. Geometry; 4. Geography; 5. U. S. History; 6. either Greek or Roman History; 7. Cæsar (four books), four orations of Cicero, and Latin Grammar; 8. White's First Lessons in Greek, fifty-one exercises, and one book of the Anabasis, or equivalents; 9. either Elementary Physics, Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, Mineralogy or Free-hand Drawing; 10. History of England; 11. Algebra to quadratics.

These preliminary examinations may be taken at Los Angeles and Marysville next June, as well as at Berkeley.

THE EDITOR AND HIS WORK.

Think for a moment what it is which is demanded of him who stands in such a post of duty! Like the pilot, his hands always on the helm, he watches the atmospheric current of opinion and feeling and the tide of events as they all affect the public good. An unresting fidelity holds him constant to the most exacting form of professional duty, with little respite for health and none for pleasure. It is for him to guard against the schemers who seek to gain the public ear, to protect the ignorant and the innocent, to lift journalism from the function of a mere gatherer of news, which tends to make the world a vast whispering gallery in which the monstrous and distorted echoes of countless matters which had best sleep in oblivion reverberate to that of a wise and just organ of public opinion, giving clearness and balance to the general mind, on the one hand, and on the other, speaking the general mind of the weightiest part of the community with a force and character that make it heard and heeded in the councils of the nation. To do such a work at all demands rare gifts of intellect and culture, of courage and tact. To do it worthily demands how much of truth and of wisdom, bravery to fight a wrong, insight to see the path of practicable duty, gentleness in dealing with opponents, magnanimity in judging motives, the absolute elimination of personal and selfish considerations; above all, a self-abnegation—a merging of self in the truth and duty which is the very spirit of the disciple of Him who is truth itself, who hath said: "He that loseth his life for my sake shall find it." It is his to see men of less gifts, less training, less experience, less capacity for public service, rise to eminence, by his help, while he remains unseen, a power rather than a person, pouring his life into the channels of public service and losing it utterly, to find it again, doubtless, as the Master promised, in the knowledge which must surely come some day, somewhere, that the world is the better thereby.—From the Rev. Henry W. Foote's remarks at the funeral of Editor Goddard of the Boston Advertiser.

Some men are like watches, and need to be wound up once a day. They also need an occasional cleaning, and when they break their main spring they are apt to stop payment. Several banks have recently broken their main springs.

ANOTHER FAITH CURE IN ANSWER TO PRAYER.

Philadelphia Times

With a fervency that at times moved his hearers to tears, S. F. Delavan, an old resident of West Philadelphia, preached yesterday afternoon and again last evening in the Little Christian Hall, at Forty-first and Market streets, on the power of prayer and faith in God, as illustrated in his own case. Mr. Delavan resides at No. 542 Silliman street, where for seven years he lay abed in an agony of pain and utterly helpless. The announcement was made public on Saturday, by Rev. J. Ringrose, that "a man who had been paralyzed for seven years, but who was healed in a moment as a result of faith in God," would relate his experience at the service, and to listen to the details of this marvelous case the residents of Philadelphia filled the hall on both occasions. There were present many members of an American Mechanics' Lodge and Manchester Council, of which organization Mr. Delavan was a member, who had watched at his bedside during his long prostration, and were there to bear mute witness to his marvelous relation. The story, as told a reporter by the miraculously cured man, was an interesting one. He said that eight years ago this coming June his first severe stroke of paralysis came upon him. "The doctors, some of them eminent, of whom I had five," Mr. Delavan went on to say, "began to interest themselves in my case. Finally one after another of them dropped off, telling my friends that I must die. I had no use of my body, with the exception of my arms. Opiates had no effect, because I had become accustomed to them. The agonies I suffered during these seven long years no tongue can express. Every moment I expected to drop into eternity. Four weeks ago, between the hours of 12 and 1 at night, I heard the voice of God as distinct as I hear my own: 'Why not trust God to heal?' Then again I heard the voice ask: 'Can you not trust God to heal?' For the third time the same voice asked: 'Will you not trust God to heal?' I prayed and answered, 'Yes.' From that moment I was convinced that I had the power of Christ in me. That night my pain ceased. I could lift my left limb to ease my spine. The next morning I got down on my knees for the first time in eight years. I have been walking about as you see me today ever since." Mr. Delavan is a man apparently 50 years of age. He does not look as if he had undergone anything more serious than commonplace illness. For an hour he stood up and talked very earnestly to the audience in the hall. At times, in picturing his sufferings and telling of his recovery by divine means, he was eloquent. He sought to draw a great moral lesson from his case. He said that before and during his sickness he had never been aught but a nominal Christian until divine aid came to him. He had done a great deal of good for God and considerable that was bad for the devil. He claimed that he now had the power of Christ in him, and that if he died that moment he would go to heaven.

Owed Him One.

Quite an interesting wedding, says the Little Rock Gazette, was celebrated at the Atlantic Hotel recently. Some time ago Thomas Luster, necessarily a very bright young man, fell desperately in love with Miss Margaret Rice. Miss Rice was the divorced wife of a man named Henry Robertson, but that made no difference with the ardent lover. The charms of the young woman had made the hair stand sentimentally on the head of Mr. Luster, the brilliant, As Poe insisted, he "loved with a love that was more than a love." How such a love can be bestowed is something that a newspaper man hasn't time to investigate, but as he hasn't time to question such emotional desperation, he must simply allow Mr. Poe, who is dead and therefore can not defend himself, to remain master of the heart-moving situation. The ceremony was performed by Justice Pears. The bridegroom was nervous. Robertson, the former husband, had followed the couple. The bridegroom had many reasons to believe that Robertson, as the divorced husband of the bride, meditated revenge. The bridegroom trembled. The bride shook. A doctor who was present thought that he had a chill. After the ceremony the divorced husband approached the bridegroom and said:

"I have followed you because I owe you one."

The bridegroom shook.

"Yes, sir; I owe you one, and I propose to pay it right here."

The bridegroom shook violently.

"Whenever I owe anything I pay it."

The bridegroom shook more violently.

"Yes, sir; I always pay it. I owe you the drinks; what'll you take?"

The bridegroom was greatly relieved, and took whisky.

The following extract from a Danish paper is curious, if not strictly in accordance with fact: "The famous New York caterer, Delmonico, recently found himself in an awkward dilemma. His chief revenue is from meals served out of the house. The throngs in the street interfered with their delivery. Waiters sent out on foot were sure to be run against, and the dishes they carried to be upset. If seat in wagons the frequent street blockades arrested their progress, and the food grew cold before it reached its destination. Delmonico found a way out of the dilemma. He put the dinners in a hearse and formed a funeral procession, before which all other traffic gave way. The meals were then served triumphantly to his hungry patrons."

POLITICAL EFFECT OF THE VETO

From the utter depths of their surprise, indignation and resentment at the President's veto of the Chinese restriction bill, the Republican press of this coast (and the Democratic press as a matter of course) assume that the result of the veto will be the triumph of the Democratic party and the defeat of the Republican party at the next elections on the Pacific Coast. Although not at this time prepared to question the correctness of this prognostication, we very emphatically predict that so much of the prediction as relates to the city of San Francisco will not be verified.

No one who remains a week or two at the metropolis, and seeks, without prejudice, to learn the political sentiments of the voters, will fail to see that the Workingmen's organization in that city is a party numerically strong and politically agressive. It is not dead, as we of the interior have been led to believe. It is not even sleeping. It is an active, powerful party, led by shrewd men who, to say the least, are credited with as much honesty as the leaders of the two other parties. Whatever Republican voters have been alienated by the action of the President, must affiliate either with the Democratic or the Workingmen's parties. That the latter will receive the largest accession to its ranks (in San Francisco) we have no reason to doubt.

That party in the city is composed of two elements, of which the sand lotters are one part and the Kalloch wing (by far the largest) is the other part. Kalloch is the acknowledged leader of the party and his mandates are undisputed. Taking advantage of the present propitious moment, he is forwarding the interests of the Workingmen's party with all the energy and tact which he possesses. He has infused new life into the ward clubs, has promulgated a platform liberal enough to suit the ideas of everybody except those who favor the presence of Chinese, and he has inaugurated a series of weekly meetings (which it is proposed to continue until after the election) which is attended by as staid, respectable and orderly an audience as one would wish to see. No smoking is allowed; neither callow orators nor coarse ranters are permitted on the platform; the addresses are delivered by men of ability and respectability and reason instead of prejudice is appealed to. The reorganized party has on its lists the names of over 3000 voters, and among them can be found those of the most respected and honored citizens of the city.

On the evening of the day when the wires brought the news that the Chinese bill had been vetoed, Kalloch delivered an address at Metropolitan Temple, to an audience that crowded it "from pit to dome." Kearney and others of that ilk held a meeting in front of the Mint, directly opposite the Temple, and their wild roars were plainly heard in the sanctum, causing the political parson to denounce them in no measured terms. He said that such meetings, conducted by such people, were injurious to the cause they pretended to advocate, and that he prayed that something or other would forever stop the jaws of those "fools" (that was the word he used) who talked of insurrection, riot and bloodshed. Speaking of the political effect of the veto, he said that while it was undeniably true that the rank and file of the Democratic party had been sounder on the Chinese question than the Republican party, it was emphatically not true on this coast, and that the attempt to make political capital out of the veto was the rankest kind of demagogism. Had Rosecrans a better record on this question than Horace Davis? In what respect was Senator Miller behind Senator Farley in passing the bill? Did not Frank Page work as hard for it as Berry? In fact, the Republican party on this Coast had as good a record on the Chinese question as had the Democratic party, and for Republicans to leave their party and affiliate with the Democrats was, in his opinion, a most lame and impotent conclusion. There was only one place where they could consistently go—into the Workingmens' organization.

The remedy for the Chinese evil he believed to be in local legislation. He did not believe that any relief would have followed the passage of the Congressional bill. If the authorities of San Francisco would enforce the laws in regard to public nuisances, there would be few Chinamen left in the city. Compel the Mongolians to live as white men do, and there would be little cause of complaint. If a white man violated any of the laws of the Board of Health, he was immediately arrested, fined or imprisoned, but thousands of Chinamen are living in open and notorious violation of these laws with perfect impunity.

Such is an outline of his address, and that it met with the approval of the audience could not be doubted. Kalloch is master of the situation in San Francisco to-day, and unless something intervenes to becloud his influence, the next set of municipal officers will be those who represent his views.

PUBLIC attention is being directed in Paris to the fact that one of the chief means of disguising falsified wine is by the use of coloring matters; and it is stated that although chemistry is powerless to discover the presence of these drugs, there nevertheless exists a simple means of detecting them which cannot just now be too widely known. Some of the wine must be heated, and when it boils a piece of white flannel should be well dipped in it and allowed to dry. If the flannel when washed still retains a red or reddish tinge, it is stated to be proof positive that the color of the wine has been artificially obtained.

Ten persons have been attacked with trichina at Bridesburg, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Lutz and four children are very low. The members of two other families to whom the diseased ham was given are also very low, and it is feared all will die.

WESTMINSTER ITEMS.

In answer to your inquiry of last week, would say that at usual time of mailing correspondence, your correspondent was out on the plains about three or four miles from any place, surrounded by howling coyotes, and dreaming of home.

Died of lung fever in Iowa, March 15th, Samuel Cochran, formerly of this place.

Our schools closed on the 7th. Interesting closing exercises were listened to by a crowded house of parents and friends.

Miss Jessie McCoy and Miss Maggie Craig spent last week's vacation at home, but returned to school at Los Angeles Monday.

Mr. Geo. Lewis, Fred. Frye and George Morris were up from Wilmington last week.

On the eve of March 31, the Good Templars of this place held an anniversary meeting of the founding of the lodge in Westminster. Large delegations were present from Orange and Santa Ana lodges. After an interesting programme, mostly musical, furnished by the different lodges present, all went fishing for oysters which they ate with crackers, cake, and other refreshments provided. The moon was bright that night and so were the G. T.'s. Result, a very pleasant time.

On Saturday last we noticed at the beach upward of fifty Westminsterites, besides several loads from Garden Grove. Several parties were seen busy digging in the sand, and Sunday there was clam soup.

There will be a meeting of the Westminster Cemetery Association at the store of T. C. Hall this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Jos. Caldwell has finished a well for Mr. Brown, two inch flow, and is now boring one for Mathew Rogers on the old Stewart place.

We hear that Henry Chase has returned from a visit to the East much improved in health.

Mr. Craig and family have moved to Orange where they will reside.

Mr. Lawrence who bought the place formerly occupied by Mr. Craig is moving his house into the place from which Mr. Craig moved his.

If anybody wants to know how carp do here let them ask Mr. Jas. Peters. A year ago Mr. Peters placed 50 or 60 carp, none of them over eight inches long, in a large open ditch supplied with water from his well. The same fish are now from a foot to 16 inches in length, and large in proportion. A result with which he is very much pleased.

GARDEN GROVE ITEMS.

The Anaheim ditch is completed as far as the lower end of Mr. Tenney's place and on last Saturday the water was running in it. This gives great satisfaction to the whole community, and next season it will be of great benefit for winter irrigation.

Those who have artesian wells and windmills are building tanks. Many are intending to conduct the water into their houses by pipes. The tanks will be used to store water for irrigation; by this means the owners will always have their own water under their control.

Mr. S. L. King, who has been suffering for several months with a severe attack of bronchitis, started for the Mohave Desert on Wednesday to recuperate. He is interested in a valuable copper mine out there. His son Joseph has been out there for two or three months working with others to develop the mine. They have sunk a shaft about forty feet and the prospect is very good. The ledge is about eight feet wide and assays very high in copper and silver.

The question which is agitating the district now is, Shall we have a new school house? The trustees decided to enlarge the present building, but the majority of the voters concluded at a meeting, held last Friday evening, that it would be better to sell the old building and vote a tax of $2000 or $2500 to build a new school house which would answer all purposes for years to come. There is an adjourned meeting to be held on Thursday evening, April 13th, to discuss the matter and see if the tax can be voted. To raise the money by giving bonds it is necessary to have a two-thirds vote.

The crops look very well, but for the late planting more rain is needed and warmer weather. A large area will be planted to corn. NEMO.

AN amusing incident (amusing to the spectators, not to the victims of the "joke") occurred recently at Dover.

A bull was, with several others, being driven out of a main street into a lane, when it turned into a chemist's shop, which is situated at the corner. The animal walked straight through the shop, took a survey of the contents, and then passing the end of the counter, approached a large looking-glass which is fixed to a door leading from the shop to the rear of the premises. To the great relief of the proprietor, however, the animal brought up suddenly at this point, and stood admiring himself in the glass for a few minutes, then caressing his duplicate by licking the glass, he backed quietly into the shop, took a sniff at some of the articles lying on the counter, and turned round and walked out into the street again, to the amusement of a large crowd of people who had assembled outside. Curiously enough, no loss in the way of breakages was sustained, the animal passing into and out of the shop and knocking down only one bottle, which did not break. Twenty years ago the chemist was favored by a similar visit.

THE Rev. Dr. Scarrett of St. Louis has formulated a proposition for bringing together the Methodist churches of the North and the South. The separation took place in 1844, on the slavery question. The plan contemplates the division of the country into three general jurisdictions—one west of the Mississippi and two east of it—each with a General Conference of its own, and the separate power to amend its discipline. Action is expected by the Conference of the Methodist Church South, which meets in Nashville next month.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

Edwin F. Barton has been nominated for Superintendent of the Mint at San Francisco by the President.

Hon. W. B. C. Brown, a prominent Democratic politician, died in Sacramento on Thursday.

John Nugers was cut to pieces and instantly killed by falling against a circular saw in Chase's mill, Boulder Creek, fifteen miles from Santa Cruz.

"By a sharp trick," it is reported, "Detective Jack Duncan, of Dallas, Texas, has captured the noted outlaw, Jesse Roscoe, of Tombstone, A. T."

At Susanville, on Friday last, four children, one of Tom Ling's, one of Mrs. Sherman's, and two of Mrs. Carrie Barton's, were poisoned by eating wild parsnips. Mrs. Sherman's boy died the same night, and the others are not out of danger yet.

Three Chinamen, who were engaged in mining a remote placer near Camas Creek, W. T., recently, were found murdered, and their cabin burned. It is supposed the Chinamen were murdered for their gold dust, the cabin robbed and then set on fire. Some of the articles belonging to the murdered men were found in the possession of a young person in the neighborhood, and he has been arrested.

The Presbytery of Los Angeles is in session in San Diego. It comprises ministers and delegates from the Presbyterian churches of Southern California. The following are present: Rev. J. W. Ellis, Los Angeles, retiring moderator; Rev. Robert Strong, Westminster, stated clerk; Revs. John Marquis, Westminster; T. E. Taylor, Nordhoff; P. D. Young, Orange; F. D. Seward, Ventura; F. H. Robinson, Anaheim; and Elders Josiah McCoy, Westminster; E. B. Hall, Santa Barbara, and L. C. Gunn, San Diego.

Simon Raten, an employe in the Sacramento car shops, went on a spree Monday, and meeting on the street a man with whom he had formerly quarreled, he drew a pistol and fired at him, wounding an innocent bystander in the hand. He then ran, and fired another shot at a man who tried to stop him, the ball entering the left side and inflicting a wound which subsequently proved fatal. Raten was lodged in jail, and public excitement ran so high that he had to be strongly guarded to prevent him being lynched. The name of the murdered man is James Lansing.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—Rev. L. Hamilton, aged 60 years, pastor of the Independent Church at Oakland, died suddenly this forenoon while preaching. During the discourse he paused, and sinking slowing in the pulpit died in a few moments. He leaves a wife and two children. His death is supposed to have been from heart disease. About eight years ago he withdrew from the Presbyterian Church and established what is known as the "Independent Church." He was well known on this coast.

A BEAR STORY.

Mr. Henry C. Roberts came to town Thursday from the placer mines of the San Gabriel canyon, and reports prosperity and success in the canyon in mining and trout fishing, but the most important item of interest is a business in bear meat, of which there is plenty in camp.

The story as told by Mr. Roberts is, that Mr. W. G. Potter with a trusty Remington rifle went out to get some venison, and shot a fine deer. In his attempt to reach the spot where the deer lay he walked into a camp of six bears, two of whom rose to greet him with open arms. There was no time for foolishness and no time for retreat, and Mr. Potter promptly opened fire with unerring aim, till four out of the six bears were killed, when the other two considered Mr. Potter a dangerous man and left his company for a more congenial place in the mountain forest.

The meat was jerked and is now the daily diet in the mining camp and pronounced first rate by all the boys. Mr. Potter is the hero of the day, the Los Angeles Nimrod and Hercules combined, and Henry says if anybody doubts the story he can show the four handsome bear skins as evidence that will not break down on cross-examination. TERRIBLE TORNADOES.

Whole Towns Destroyed. Many Persons Killed, and Stock Lost.

CHICAGO, April 7.—A special from Clyde station, Mich., reports a terrible hurricane near Highland station, on the Flint and Pere Marquette road, south of Holly, early last night. The extent of the damage is unknown, as the telegraph line was blown down, and the railroad agent walked to Clyde to send what he knew. The dwelling of a man named Crandall was blown down, and Crandall and one child killed and a daughter severely injured. A guest, Mrs. Taylor of Pontiac, was also killed and several persons injured. The hurricane covered an area of less than half a mile wide, but leveled everything within its path.

There are reports also of high and destructive winds and heavy rains in the vicinity of Keokuk and along the Wabash and Rock Island roads in Iowa, at Keosauqua and Hameston, Ia., and Kahoko and Ashland, Mo. At those places the damage was very severe, but full particulars are wanting, because telegraphic communication is shut off.

The Journal's special says: A terrific tornado passed through the township of Kalamazoo, Eaton county, last night, and did immense damage to houses and barns, killing a large amount of live stock. Several lives are reported lost and many injured. The place is remote from travel and telegraph.

Later particulars say that in Oakland county Lafayette Crandall's house was blown down. His sisters and little boy and Mrs. Henry Tyler were killed, and his little girl's arm was so badly crushed as to require amputation. Miss Ward was also injured. The debris looks like an explosion. Everything was ground to atoms. One horse was blown out of a barn and found in a distant field covered with mud. An idiot sister of Horace Sherman of Kalama was killed and another sister's leg was broken. His wife's jaw was dislocated and the whole family carried fifty rods and thrown into a swamp and badly bruised.

A Topeka (Kan.), special says: A cyclone started south of the Arkansas, near Raymond, Rice county, last night, and moved in a northerly direction. It prostrated the telegraph poles where it crossed the Santa Fe Railroad track. John Wilson's house was blown down and Mrs. Wilson killed and Mrs. Parker fatally injured. Several other large houses were demolished. Proceeding north, the storm struck the new town of Chase and demolished twenty-two of the twenty-six buildings in the place. It threw the cars from the tracks and did other damage. Mr. Reed, the hotel-keeper, was killed. His wife was fatally hurt. Another woman and child were killed. The cloud, as it approached Chase, was funnel-shaped, whirling and twisting with fearful velocity. All the inhabitants of Chase were more or less hurt. Reed's hotel was blown down. The Methodist church, dedicated on Sunday, was twisted a quarter round and badly wrecked. Several houses were overturned. Several parties were killed, but their names are not given. The people are living in box cars and many are destitute.

About the same time a small cyclone, with a veritable waterspout, passed through the eastern part of the county, but did little damage, except the drowning out of stock. At E. B. Lawrence's farm the water was sucked out of the well.

MCPHERSON, Kan., April 9.—The storm of Friday night blew down a stone house in Delmer township, in this county, in which Wesley Bryant and family resided. Mrs. Bryant and two children were buried in the ruins, and were dead when taken out.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Later particulars of the cyclone which passed over portions of Michigan and Kansas, indicate a great destruction of property. A great number of houses were blown down or unroofed, bridges destroyed, railroad tracks torn up and telegraph lines prostrated At East Saginaw, Rev. Isaac Fuller was killed. Much damage was done near Des Moines and several persons injured. At Fort Riley, Kansas, most of the buildings were unroofed. The damage will reach $500,000.

TOPEKA, April 10th.—The Commonwealth has just received particulars of the destruction caused by a cyclone at Stafford last Thursday night. Stafford is a village which contains seventy-five or eighty houses and is the county seat of Stafford county. It is about two hundred miles south-west of Topeka and off the line of any railroad. All but two houses were blown down. Mr. Crook was killed and several persons were more or less injured.

A county election had just closed and the wind scattered the ballots over the prairie before they were counted.

LA CROSSE (WIS.), April 9th.—The boiler of the steamer Bellamac exploded with terrible loss of life near Brownville, a few miles below this city, yesterday morning. The Bellamac was on her way up at the time of the disaster, and only about ten miles below the city. Everything was running smoothly, and the head engineer and necessary night watch had changed watches and retired for the night. The accident occurred about 1:30 A. M., and the explosion completely wrecked the upper works of the steamer, causing loss of life and fearful injury to many of the officers and crew. The crew consisted of seventeen men, including the officers. Of this number five are missing, one dead, three are probably fatally injured, and the remainder are more or less hurt.

The Bellamac was comparatively a new boat, this being her third year of service, and she has been considered perfectly safe. She is owned by McDonald Bros., of this city, and valued at $8,000. The cause cannot be learned. The second engineer says the boiler had plenty of water at the time, and carried 135 pounds of steam.

Secretary Preston, of the California Immigration Association, has received letters signifying the intention of twenty-five families now in Leadville, Col., to come to California. He was also informed that the Hansburg line of German steamers will take immigrants from Hamburg to San Francisco, via Aspinwall, for $81.50, and provide.

AT a recent ball in Glanbert Hall, Louisville, Ky., there were present seventy-five men and only three women; but the absence of the fair sex did not interfere with the interest of the occasion. About one-half of the men were from Smoketown and the rest from Germantown, both parties having gone there avowedly for a fight, which was begun without delay. The owner of the hall entered with a gun to force a peace, but was quickly disarmed and thrown out through a window. Then the door was locked and fighting resumed. Several of the musicians, in order to save their instruments, (presumably), dropped from the windows ten feet to the ground, but the others were compelled to play lively airs until the battle was over.

THE GREAT STORM

Of January 12th, 1882, which injured or destroyed scores of Windmills in Los Angeles County proved conclusively that the

CALIFORNIA WINDMILL

Is the only one that can stand, uninjured, a heavy gale. Although some of nearly every other manufacture was destroyed, so far as known every one of the California Mills put up by the undersigned escaped injury. These Mills are so strongly made and so perfectly self-regulating that, when properly put up, it is almost impossible for a storm to injure them. It is also superior to other Mills in having an ADJUSTABLE STROKE, (4 different lengths) in the ease and noiselessness of its work, in the beauty of its design and finish and in the marvelously low price at which it is sold. I will furnish these Mills, with Pumps and Tanks, and set them up in complete running order at the lowest possible rates. For further particulars call upon or address

SATURDAY.....APRIL 15, 1882

Kleinigkeiten.

—A postoffice has been established at Blythe, San Diego county, with Walter Brooks as Postmaster.

—The Supreme Court will convene in Los Angeles on Tuesday, and will remain in session about two weeks.

—All our merchants have signed a paper agreeing to keep their places of business closed on Sundays, from and after the 23d instant.

—The Board of Trustees of Anaheim School district will sit as a Board of Equalization on next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

—The Centinela and Sausal Redondo ranchos in this county have been sold by Sir Robert Burnett to Mr. D. Freeman for $140,000—a fraction over $5 60 per acre.

—An election will be held in Silverado school district on Saturday, May 6th, to vote on the question of a tax of $700 to build a new school house and furnish the same.

—Rev. R. Staehli on Saturday found a fine meerschaum cigar holder. The owner can obtain it by calling at this office, giving description, and paying for this notice.

—Mrs. Clelands, who was severely burned by the explosion of a can of coal oil while lighting a fire at Florence, on Friday of last week, died on Saturday night from the effects of her injuries.

—The rainfall for the early part of the week amounted to twenty two hundredths of an inch, and added to the total makes the season's rainfall so far 6 84. Mr. Saxton gives the fall for the week as ½ of an inch and for the season 7¾.

—A strong effort is to be made in Santa Ana to enforce the Sunday law. J. Layman has been arrested for its violation and will have a trial in a day or two. He will be defended by Theo. Lyniff Esq.

—Leland Stanford has received 5,000 cuttings of the Smyrna fig, and will distribute them to the farmers throughout the State. As there will be a demand for them, applications should be sent in at once.

—Mr. B. McLaughlin, proprietor of the axle cutting machine, who was to have been here last week, was delayed at Downey until Monday. He will remain here until next Saturday, and can be found at N. H. Mitchell's livery stable.

—The jury in the case of T. B. Hulse, charged with the murder of F. Reuter, failed to agree upon a verdict and were discharged. They stood six for conviction and six for acquittal. The time for the second trial has not yet been fixed.

—Death has again entered the household of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edwards, this time taking from them their son, John Thomas. He died on Tuesday at the parental residence in Los Angeles, and was buried on Thursday in the family burial plot at Santa Ana.

—A reference to the appropriate column will reveal the fact that there are several happy new fathers in this vicinity. Among the arrivals is Mr. Brewster Alvah Smith, who weighs 8½ pounds and can do everything but talk and walk. His happy parents are to be congratulated.

—The dead body of an unknown man was found on the railroad track near Mojave Station on Friday morning of last week. The man had evidently been run over by a train, as the body was cut into several pieces, and it is supposed he had been stealing a ride on the trucks of a car, when he was thrown off and fell under the wheels.

—At the annual meeting for the election of officers of the Anaheim Water Company, held on last Saturday, the following were elected Directors to serve for the ensuing year: B. Dreyfus, F. A. Korn, J. P. Zeyn, F. Hartung, Erwin Barr. The new board will meet to-day and organize by electing officers. The amendments to the by-laws which were presented at a previous meeting were adopted.

—At a meeting of citizens held at Kroeger's Hall on Monday evening the following ticket of town officers was nominated: For Trustees—J. P. Zeyn, Capt. A. S. Ferguson, Wm. Konig, F. A. Korn, P. Davis; for Assessor, H. C. Gale; for Clerk, A. W. Steinhart; for Treasurer, L. F. Lewis (by acclamation); for Marshal, L. Wartenberg; for Justice of the Peace, T. L. Gannon (by acclamation). Mr. Zeyn desires us to say that he declines the nomination. Capt. Ferguson and Mr. Korn also request us to announce that they decline the nomination.

—There is no doubt that the extension of the Southern Pacific railroad from Santa Ana towards San Diego will soon be an accomplished fact. A San Luis Rey correspondent of the San Diego Union says: "Cave Couts has withdrawn from the management of the Guajome ranch, and goes to assist Colonel Scott in running the railroad line from Santa Ana to this point." Many other things are happening which shows that the Southern Pacific people have determined to carry their track forward to the Bay city with the least possible delay.

A GLORIOUS VICTORY.

The Celebrated Water Case Decided in Favor of Anaheim.

As our readers are aware, the case of the Anaheim Water Company against the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company (the successors of the Semi-Tropic Water Company) has been decided by Judge McNealey of San Diego in favor of the plaintiffs. The decision is no halting one, but is sweeping and complete, giving to Anaheim all that it claimed. There has never been a case tried in any court in this State where greater interests were involved, and it was an expensive and bitterly-contested legal war. The decision, if we understand it correctly, is in keeping with other decisions rendered in water cases in other counties during the past year or two, and upholds the doctrine of prior appropriation. In this instance, the Court maintains that a community which for a period of twenty years has exercised a continued and uninterrupted right to a given quantity of water, and in the enjoyment of that right had established hundreds of homes and created a flourishing, prosperous community, can not have their water right taken away unceremoniously by any of the specious and fragile pleas put forward by the defendants. If there is a community or corporation in the State that has established a title to the water of a river, that community is Anaheim and that corporation is the Anaheim Water Company; and we are glad and proud to be able to say that their position has been sustained by such an able jurist and lawyer as Judge McNealey.

There are two or three months in the year when there is not a sufficiency of water in the river for the needs of the irrigable land on both sides of the river. The volume of water decreed to Anaheim by the Court is amply sufficient for all our needs. We have now no fear on that score; our chief anxiety is now for our neighbors over on the other side. How are they going to struggle along with the small quantity of water that will be left to them after Anaheim takes what it is entitled to? We will tell them. There is one way, and only one, by which they can secure enough water. D-A-M. In that simple but expressive word lies the solution of the water question with them. Stop damming the decision and dam the river, and you will get so much water that you will not know what to do with it. Drop law and put your money where it will do some good.

At our request, Mr. Scott has furnished the following explanation:

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Pursuant to your request for something definite as to the status of the suits pending between the Anaheim Water Company et al and the Santa Ana Irrigation Company et al, I take pleasure in herewith being able to furnish you with the full text of the judgment as rendered and recorded in the suit of The Anaheim Water Company et al vs. The Semi-Tropic Water Company et al, instituted in June, 1877. In this judgment, which fully explains itself, the people of Anaheim have gained a glorious victory, and whatever may be the result of a further prosecution of this action in a higher Court, the ultimatum of the controversy will be a full vindication of the principles enunciated in this decree. As yet, findings and judgment in the case of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company vs. Anaheim Water Company and Cajon Company, have not been filed. Hence we are at some loss to know precisely the force and weight of the decision. This much is fully outlined by the learned Judge, that the findings and judgment in this case are to be entirely subordinate to, and not in conflict with, the judgment first herein referred to. The judgment in this case will, so far as we are now able to understand it, in no way affect the interests of the Anaheim people in obtaining from the river at any point thereon, up to Cajon crossing, our ditch full of water, if it takes the whole thereof. I promise you the judgment in this case so soon as filed, that our people may fully understand their rights in the premises. The injunction referred to in the judgment will be served on defendants at once. Very truly, &c.,

R. W. SCOTT,
Counsel for Plaintiffs.

The Decision.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CALIFORNIA.

The Anaheim Water Company et al.
The Semi-Tropic Water Co. et al.

This cause came on regularly for trial, the parties appearing by their respective counsel. A trial by jury having been duly and expressly waived by the counsel for the respective parties the cause was tried before the Court sitting without a jury, whereupon witnesses were sworn and examined and documentary evidence was introduced on the part and behalf of the plaintiffs and of the defendants, and the evidence being closed, the cause was submitted to the Court for consideration and decision; and after due deliberation thereon the Court delivers its findings and decision in writing, which is filed and orders that judgment be entered in accordance therewith.

Wherefore, by reason of the law and findings aforesaid, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the plaintiffs herein, to-wit: the Anaheim Water Company, a corporation, Robert W. Scott, A. Bittner, John Fischer, F. A. Korn, B. Dreyfus, D. Strodthoff, H. Kroeger, H. Werder, John P. Zeyn, Fred. Hartung, Julia Schneider, S. A. Sheffield, Richard Heimann, D. J. Sotenson, Mitta Bremermann, Philip Hammes, E. F. Cahill, John Niepp, Theo. Reiser, Margaret Metz, William Konig, Theo. Rimpau, A. Langenberger, William Koll, Fred. Langenberger, A. H. Cullen, Henry Boege, John Meredith, Peter Eschelbach, Wm. Scholl, Mrs. Kuelp, R. Luedke, H. Boldt, Charles Lorenz and H. Barkle, have a good, perfect and lawful right and title as against the defendants herein, to-wit: The Semi-Tropic Water Company, a corporation, to divert from the Santa Ana river and to appropriate, use and consume of the waters of said stream enough thereof to keep the said Anaheim Water Company's water ditch flowing full at all times and seasons of the year to its utmost capacity of six feet wide at the bottom, eight feet wide at the top and two feet deep, for and during all time to come. And it is ordered, adjudged and decreed, that plaintiffs' right and title to said water right and privilege be and the same hereby is forever quieted accordingly.

And it is further ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the said plaintiffs are entitled to an injunction forever prohibiting and restraining the said defendants, the Semi-Tropic Water Company, their and each of their attorneys, agents, servants and employes from in any way or manner interfering with plaintiffs' said right and title to divert from the said Santa Ana river and to appropriate, use and consume of the waters of said stream enough thereof to keep the said Anaheim Water Company's water ditch flowing full at all times and seasons of the year, to its utmost capacity of six feet wide at the bottom, eight feet wide at the top and two feet deep, and it is ordered that a writ of injunction do issue out of and under the seal of this court accordingly.

And it is further ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the plaintiffs do have and recover of, and from the defendants their costs and disbursements of this action taxed at [$1,286 95] and that execution issue therefor.

Judgment rendered this 7th day of April 1882. W. T. McNEALEY, Judge.

I hereby certify the foregoing to be a full, true and correct copy of the original decree in the case of Anaheim Water Co. et al vs. Semi-Tropic Water Co. No. 4014 in my office, and that I have carefully compared the same with the original.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the Superior Court, this 12th day of April, 1882.

A. W. POTTS, County Clerk.
By A. RIMPAU, Deputy.

Deserved Promotion.

Among the important changes in business circles here, which have occurred lately, is the resignation of Mr. B. F. Seibert as Cashier of the Bank of Anaheim and his sale of his interest in the bank to Mr. Mabury of Los Angeles. We have already noted that at a meeting of the Board of Directors Mr. George B. Shaffer was elected Secretary, but omitted to mention that a meeting of the stockholders will be called soon to elect a Cashier, which responsible position will without doubt be conferred upon Mr. Shaffer. His long connection with the bank, and thorough business training, coupled with the fact that he stands high in popular esteem, make him especially fitted to manage the bank and forward its interests. We know of no one more deserving of the good fortune which has overtaken him, and predict for him a successful career.

—That was rather an unfortunate allusion we made last week to the quietness and inactivity in the vicinity of our Justice's Courts. From Saturday morning, business has been brisk in that quarter. P. J. Kelley, a French sheep-herder, was brought up before Justice Gannon on a charge of drunkenness, and fined the costs of the action, on his promising to leave town and get to work. However, he afterwards changed his mind, and indulged in a sprightly spree. He was again brought up before the Justice, the charge being drunkenness and malicious mischief, fined $30, and in default of payment was sent up for 30 days. During a dispute on Saturday between Ah Ku and Ah Goon in a Chinese house near Los Angeles street, the former threw a heavy iron weight at the latter, striking him on the top of the head, inflicting an ugly wound from which the blood flowed freely. The parties were promptly arrested and brought up before the Justice on Tuesday, when Ah Goon preferred a charge of assault with a deadly weapon against Ah Ku. The latter was fined $100, and not being able to pay the sum, was sent up to the county jail for 100 days. Jose Aguilar pleaded guilty before Justice Bailey on Tuesday to a charge of disturbing the peace, and was fined $25.

—The Easter services at S. Michael's Church, were, as usual, largely attended, nearly every seat being occupied. Seldom has the church been more elaborately decorated than it was that day. The musical portion of the service was well rendered, and evinced careful preparation on the part of the choir.

Among the notices given by the pastor was one of especial interest, not only to the members of the church, but to the whole community—viz. that the church is to be the recipient of a bell; something that has been long desired, but almost impossible to obtain. We understand that it is given by the father of the late Charles B. Balch, as a memorial to his son, and as such it will be especially valued.

The special offertory for the day was for the painting fund, and amounted to nearly twenty-five dollars. We are informed that the pastor has since received from the Rev. Wm. H. Stoy, of San Rafael, a check for twenty dollars, which sum was found in the Easter offerings at his church, marked "For Anaheim." This timely assistance enables the trustees to have the painting begun immediately and they expect to let the contract this week.

—The crops throughout the county are looking splendid, and there have been few years of greater promise than this. Unless a succession of hot, blasting winds visit us, the crops will be very large. The period of frost has passed, too, and there is no danger to be apprehended by fruit growers from that source. Verily, the times are propitious.

—The State Board of Education has granted life diplomas to S. H. Butterfield, C. B. Jones, Helen E. Holland, Martha M. Hewes, Delight Swift, Lee Virginia, P. S. Zumwalt; and educational diplomas to Charles W. Moores, Ida Squires and Emily V. Wright, all of Los Angeles county.

—At the meeting of Anaheim Lodge, A. O. U. W., this evening, their representative to the Grand Lodge will make a report of the doings of that body.

—The San Diego News is no more, and the business and good will of the paper has been sold to the Sun Publishing Company. J. M. Julian, the editor, in his last issue, announces as the reasons for his suspension: "The pressure of hard times, and consequent difficulty of sustaining an afternoon paper in a city having two morning dailies, coupled with want of a little rest after a six years' continuous service on the News, in which we have had to do the editing, local reporting, clerking and filling the place of foreman of the office for most of the time," and that he finds the drain, mental and physical, too much for one at the age of sixty-four.

—Last week as a meat merchant from Wilmington was coming up the channel a baby seal about two feet long followed the boat and set up a piteous cry for help. The little fellow had got lost from his mother and was lonesome and hungry. The boat was stopped and the little fellow climbed in and nestled down under the legs of the gentleman, who brought him to Wilmington and fed him with milk, of which he is very fond. He is perfectly tame and is the pet of the town.—Commercial.

Wm Fromhein and Emma C, his wife, to Henry Knapke—20 acres in SE part of SE¼ Sec 35, T 3 S, R 10 W; $700.

—The San Diego Union reports that a very curious fish was caught at the wharf there Saturday. It is apparently a young craw-fish, but it has at the tail what seem like two peacock's feathers, purple in the center, with a bright scarlet fringe-like border. There are also wing-like projections from the back of the head. What is it?

—Nicholas Couch, who killed Smith Crabtree at El Monte some time ago, was tried in Judge Sepulveda's Court on Tuesday and the jury rendered a verdict of manslaughter. He will be sentenced on Monday.

—The Santa Monica Hotel has been leased by J. W. Scott for one year, and it will be ready for the reception of guests by May 1st.

—The bill making Wilmington a Port of Entry has passed the United States Senate.

—General Sherman arrived in Los Angeles on Thursday, and will remain a few days.

SPORT IN GERMANY.

In Germany the hunting, or, more correctly speaking, the shooting of large game, is almost exclusively the sport of Kings and Princes, a recreation only shared with those august personages by the elect of society, invited by their sovereigns from time to time in virtue of their illustrious birth or exalted official rank—or, haply, as a mark of special royal favor and distinction—to assist at the gigantic battues organized every autumn and winter on one or other of the vast family domains owned by the hereditary rulers of the Fatherland.

German notions of sport differ from those generally entertained and carried out in these islands; but the Germans are good and assiduous sportsmen for all that. As a rule they hunt big game, not on horseback, but on foot. To ride after a fox or a hare across country is a recreation absolutely unknown in Germany, except by hearsay. Doubtless many Germans have read in books of travel or in newspapers about foxhounds and harriers; but, unless they happen to have traveled in Great Britain or Upper Hungary during the hunting season, they have most assuredly never set eyes upon living dogs belonging to either of the above-mentioned categories. Owing to the minute subdivision of landed properties among small farmers throughout four-fifths of the Empire, and to the peasant's unconquerable jealousy of his proprietary rights, the German nobleman or gentleman cannot hunt the fox after the English manner if he would. But he experiences no desire whatsoever to practice that particular variety of sport, which, indeed, he regards as a senseless and ridiculous waste of power and time, attended by risks altogether incommensurate to the object aimed at or the pleasure enjoyed. The fox, from this point of view, is a noxious and destructive beast, to be shot as vermin "wherever found." To organize and keep up an extensive establishment of hounds and horses for the purpose of hunting such an ignoble quadruped as the "red rogue," dear to every English sportsman's heart, would never suggest itself to the mind of a thoroughgoing Teuton; nor does there, to the best of our belief, exist a single pack of fox-hounds within the territorial limits of Germany. Foxes, however, of great size, strength and comeliness abound in the Fatherland, and contribute their quota of victims to powder and shot at every battue on a large scale, being driven past the shooting-stands, at convenient range, in company with deer, bears, and their formidable families, hares, not infrequently wolves, and other wild four-footed denizens of the forest.

All Reynard's cunning avails him naught when his favorite haunts are encompassed round about on every side, and swept clean, so to speak, of their living contents by the beaters of the Treibjagd, the method of collecting and driving game most prevalent in Germany. The converging Treiber, with dreadful clamor, urge him remorselessly onward, as well as his sylvan fellows, furred and bristled, to some broad glade or clearing commanded by the guns of the sportsmen at a range of from forty to a hundred yards. Across this fateful space sooner or later he is compelled to scamper at top speed for dear life; and it is seldom that he escapes scot-free the concentrated fire of three or four pairs of barrels aimed at him by such unerring marksmen as the Princes and nobles, clad in green and gray, who occupy the choice stands at a royal battue. It is the custom at these parties to use a rifle for firing at deer or wild boar; but keepers are in attendance upon each illustrious sportsman with loaded smooth-bores ready to hand for such minor contingencies as foxes or hares. A hundred deer, fallow and red, twice as many swine, and five or six hundred head of smaller game is no uncommon bag for such a day's shooting as that which the German Emperor to-day offers to his royal kinsmen of Saxony—kingly sport, invariably wound up by a splendid repast at the nearest shooting lodge, and a torchlight review of the game killed by the Imperial Amphitryon and his august guests.—[London Telegraph.

SALT FOR WHEAT FIELDS.

Salt is used as a fertilizer, and usually with beneficial effect on crops. It is known, however, that a too liberal application of it will destroy vegetation. It is applied sometimes on the growing crop in spring, but usually on the field and worked into the soil previous to seeding. A much larger quantity may be used when worked into the soil than when applied directly to the crop; 300 or 400 pounds per acre may be sown broadcast on the crop, though one barrel of 280 pounds is about the usual quantity used, and three or four times that quantity may be worked into the soil with safety. Used in this way it is beneficial in destroying insects and worms in the soil, as well as to promote growth and early maturity of the crop. It is not claimed that salt is a direct fertilizer, for sodium is not found to be an element of plant food to any great extent in the cereal crops, but a mechanical effect is somehow produced which is beneficial to vegetation to a limited extent. Last season one of my neighbors used over four tons of salt on thirty acres of wheat land, worked into the soil before seeding, for which he thinks the crop was much improved; the yield was over thirty bushels per acre of superior quality of wheat. The straw of grain when treated with salt is usually brighter and cleaner of rust or fungi than elsewhere, which would seem to show a more healthy condition of the plant.—[E. P. Root.

School children do not always catch the words directly with their untrained eyes. In one of the city schools, recently, the sentence, "There she sat speechless with terror," came to a bright little fellow who astonished the school by rapidly reading, "There she sat speckled with terror." A case of measles at sight.

Facts that We Know.

A Suffocating Cough.

In a letter from Mrs. Charlotte Lisle of Chicago, a lady well known as a contributor to the Western press, she ascribes the cure of a dangerous cough, accompanied by bleeding at the lungs, to HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. "My cough," she says, "threatened to suffocate me * * * but the HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR has removed every trace of it." The letter was to a lady friend in this city, who has placed it at the disposal of C. N. CRITTENTON, 115 Fulton street, N. Y.
