THE GARDEN OF EDEN.

Dr. J. Pfeninger, of South Bend, Indiana, recently purchased some land near Anaheim and has returned to the Hoosier State to arrange his affairs, preparatory to settling here. Writing from Anaheim under date of Nov. 30th, 1883, he sends to a South Bend paper a letter from which the following extracts are taken:

Here I am in what they call the Garden of Eden (look it up on the map), thirty miles south of Los Angeles, being well, feeling well, and growing fat. Old friend, it is hardly possible to be here, to look around, see roses, fuchias, etc., in full bloom, everything green, and then to think of the desolation and cold in the East. The days are warm and the nights are cool and breezy. I write this morning in my shirt sleeves and keep the window partly open at night. Flies are plentiful days and evenings, but mosquitoes I miss sadly. To-day I was all around the country and witnessed sights you cannot imagine. Think of oranges of '82 and '83 on the same tree, others being in bloom for fruit bearing in '84. Figs yet green, grapes yet plentiful, and what kind of grapes! People, the most liberal and accommodating. They all glory in their country; are healthy, happy and contented with their land. This country is between the foothills and the sea shore, twelve miles from the sea shore; the soil is partly sandy, and all land must be irrigated to produce. Land, unimproved, is worth from $45 to $100 per acre, according to quality and location. Land in vineyard is the most valuable. Grapes bear in three year. An acre in grapes three to four years old is worth here $300. I did see a most beautiful place of fifty-five acres, thirty-three acres in year-old grapes, ten in the highest state imaginable, ornamental groves, oranges, lemons, grapes, peaches, pears, apples, etc., with walks, etc., good house, wind-mill, etc., $17,000. Another thirty-six acres, fourteen acres in bearing grapes, oranges, apples and other trees, windmill, small cottage, 118 walnut trees (English). These trees yielded $150. Price for all, $6,500. Another twenty-four acres, two walnut and grapes, twelve acres, all bearing, $6,000. An acre of grapes yields from four and a half to eight and nine tons of grapes. Value of grapes when sold after cutting, from $16 to $22 a ton. When pressed the wine can be sold from the press at twenty cents per gallon, one year old thirty to thirty-five cents. A great deal is made in raisins and bring a good price; raisins, after sweating, out of the sweating box bring seven and a half cents per pound. This gives you an idea. Grapes are the surest crop. Oranges are $2 and $2.50 per box, but are not so profitable. Peaches do well. A place has been offered me of ten acres for $3,000, four acres in grapes, six in house grounds and trees. A person must see to comprehend the beauty of this country. I am delighted and am willing to make my home here. English walnuts do splendidly and bear after nine years and are the most profitable. The possession of a twenty-acre tract, with ten acres in grapes, secures a competency for life after four or five years. These short lines will inform you enough of my impressions, and you know I am no enthusiast.

The Wreck of the "Columbus."

The steamer "City of Columbus" left Boston at 3 P. M. on the 17th instant, carrying 80 passengers and a crew of 45. At 8:45 A.M. Friday, with the light bearing S. half E. the vessel struck on the outside of the Devil's Bridge buoy. The wind was blowing a gale west by north. The vessel immediately tilted and keeled over, the water breaking in and flooding the port side saloon. All the passengers, excepting a few women and children, came on deck, nearly all wearing life-preservers. All the boats were cleared away, but were immediately swamped. The majority of the passengers were washed overboard. Seven passengers left the vessel on the life-raft, and about forty more took to the rigging. At 10:30 A. M. the Gay Head lifeboat put off and took seven persons. Another lifeboat put off between 12 and 1 P. M., and the revenue cutter Dexter came along about 12:30 and went off. The two boats took twenty-one persons, one of whom was dead, and placed them aboard the Dexter. After the persons were taken from the vessel the Dexter proceeded to New Bedford. Three persons died after going aboard. The total number of those known to be saved is 23. The steamer had fifty-nine first-class and twenty-two steerage passengers, and a crew of forty-five. Of those fifty-five first-class and fifteen steerage passengers and fourteen officers and crew were lost.

The ledges on which the Columbus struck are considered by mariners as among the most dangerous on the coast. The ledges consist of a formation of rocks constituting double ledges, the outer strait of which is called "Devil's Back," both the ledges being called "Devil's Bridge." The ledges are abreast of Gay Head light, on the mainland, and extend a little to the southward of it. The outer ledge of Devil's Bridge is about eight miles from the mainland. On either side of the outer ledge is very deep water. The upper part of the ledge is formed like the gable of a house, so that a vessel striking it diagonally would naturally keel over onto her beam ends. The course of the vessels is around Gay Head, to pass by the outer ledge on the south side.

A Western paper says: "Sam Weldom was shot last night in the rotunda by Harry Parsons." About the worst place a man can be shot, next to the heart, is in the rotunda. It invariably proves fatal.

PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANTS.

Gen. C. Goethals in S. F. Chronicle.

Never at this date in the Presidential year has there been less apparent activity as to the Presidential nomination. Some say Blaine is afraid to take it for fear the Mulligan letters and his known devotion to the great railroad corporations would defeat him. I really believe his nomination would be hard to prevent if he should put forward his old energies. Arthur makes no sign. Those who meet him and talk with him are as far from any idea of his purposes as strangers are. He seems to be bent upon being an unobjectionable candidate and to trust to an availability current that is to set in, or to be helped a little at the start, when the right time comes. That, in my opinion, is the only effort he will make, if any. I cannot say I think it a very formidable one. The great public will neither be a delegate nor will it send any. The busy, bustling, ambitious, influential and skillful politicians who inhabit the earth instead of the clouds will get up the requisite steam for the election of delegates, and they will know what they want. If the two styles of politics I have referred to can be combined, and if under a placid exterior and a seeming indifference the President can have the indispensable industry of the "workers" enlisted in his behalf, it would make him formidable. I cannot learn that this is being done, and "yet," as "Hamlet's" mother said, "all there is I see." The "primary talent," to borrow a California political phrase of the olden time, does not easily adjust itself to the non-partisan civil-service-reform simper. The President has before him the greatest task he has yet had if he can satisfy both the duties and the boys. And after all the convention may make the nomination itself and give us a candidate nobody dreamed of. There is Logan—a stalwart of the stalwarts in 1880, though he half warmly supported Blaine in 1876. He will be strong with the soldier element and with the Republican wing of the Republican party generally. Lincoln is rather popular himself, besides bearing an honored name. But he and Logan are both from Illinois and the contest for delegates may cripple both of them. Some man may be taken, as was the case in 1876 and 1880, who had not been considered a candidate. The Northwest could furnish a Sabin, an Allison or—almost any Ohio man, while New England would let us have Edmunds, Hale, Hoar, Hawley or any other man.

How the Presidential battle is to be fought is to depend largely on the events that occur in Congress. Will the Republican party endeavor to go before the people on mere matters of administration, or will it appeal to the people on the humane side? Will it rely on the enthusiasm which can be created over hoisting the nice young men, fresh from Harvard and Yale, into Government clerkships over the heads of the smart boys who had to round off their education at the high school, or perhaps a grade still lower? Will the good will of railroad millionaires be regarded as an equivalent for the voters who will refuse to carry out the political programmes of railway magnates? Will the suppression of a million and a quarter of legal voters in the South, by which Democratic ascendancy is there maintained, be passed by with a simple sneer at a revival of "the cry of the bloody shirt," and Northern States be relied on exclusively for the necessary 202 electoral votes in the face of such criminal apathy? Will the toning minions of the North quietly ratify the murderous bargain made between Southern bulldozers and Northern dough-faced Republicans, to the effect that the negro shall be ignored? Both of these classes are equally the enemies of the common people and both equally despise and defy the rule of the majority. The Republican masses can crush their enemies in their own party as easily as one can crush an eggshell if they will but stir. If they will not stir then the work marked out for them at the convention may not suit and probably will not. Then would come the Bourbon restoration with all its train of evils.

The great material question of the tariff will be dodged by the National Democratic Convention. Morrison and Randall will strive for the mastery of the House, and Morrison and the revenue-only Democrats will either go to the wall on what they have so loudly clamored for, or they will slip over to Randall's platform without admitting it and pass a bill called a reform measure, but really adhering to the protection policy. If the reformers, as they call themselves, would bring forward a real Calhoun free-trade bill and the Republicans would abstain from voting, thereby allowing the former to defeat the Randall wing, the country would get some idea of what would happen under Democratic rule, swayed as of old by the South.

An Immense Dam.

A French engineer in Brazil has lately been selected to construct what will probably be, when completed, the largest dam in the world. The main dam will be 940 feet long by 58 feet high, and two smaller ones will close side depressions. This work will, it is calculated, back the water over 1,500 acres, and retain 14,000,000 cubic meters of water, sufficient to provide for all the cattle of the regions during three years, and for the irrigation of 5,000 acres of flat bottom land alongside the river bed below. The rivers of Ceara flow in the wet season alone.

John Lewis of Sabin, Minn., tied a calf to a post which supported a granary, under which he was at work. The calf pulled the post out, and the granary fell upon Lewis, crushing him to death.

PHILOSOPHY OF LOVE.

Chicago Tribune.

"Is this where they edit?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the horse reporter, as he looked up and saw a trimly-built young lady standing in the doorway. "This is the exact spot where right, environed on every side by intellect, deals telling blows against wrong and injustice, clad though they be in the garments of might and oppression. Armed with the lances of thought that glisten brightly in the sunshine of reason, the editor stands ever ready, a helmeted knight in the holy cause of justice, full panoplied, and with weapons in couchant points."

"That wasn't exactly what I wanted to find out about," said the young lady. "I am going to make a crazy quilt, and mamma said an editor could probably tell me all about it—" And a bewitching smile illuminated the features of the fair visitor.

"Our insane bedclothes editor," said the horse reporter, "is not here at present, and the rest of us naturally feel somewhat diffident about intruding upon the dominion of quilts which are suffering from temporary aberration of mind, and pillowshams concerning whose condition there is doubt.

"I hardly think you understand me, sir," continued the lady. "A crazy-quilt isn't really and truly crazy, you know—it's simply called so because, being made of different colors, it presents an outre appearance."

"Presents what?"

"An outre appearance — looks rather strange, you know."

"Oh, yes; sort of dizzy-looking, you mean."

"That probably expresses the idea, sir, although perhaps not in the most choice language. I should be very glad, though, if you could give me some information about this matter, because it is necessary that I should begin the work at once."

"Making this demented quilt for yourself?"

"No, sir—that is, not exactly," and a vivid blush suffused the lady's features. "But I want to have it done before the 1st of January, because we won't have any room for the frame in the other house."

"Which other house?"

"Why, the one I—that is, we—oh, I think you're awful," and more blushes ensued.

"The 1st of January is not generally considered the most auspicious season of the year for moving," said the horse reporter. "The blithe carol of the plumber, and the low, sad wail of the man who is trying to thaw out the water-pipes with a two-inch candle and a jug of hot water, with which he will eventually inundate himself, are about the only features of prominence connected with domestic life in Chicago at that season of the year. Why don't you wait until May—joyous, happy May—when the buds are bursting, and the robins, tuneful harbingers of the sweet June days so soon to come, are twittering on every bough?"

"That is just what I have said all along," replied the young lady, "but Charley declares that he will never live in the same house with mamma, and—now I shan't say another word," and more blushing ensued.

"Oh," said the horse reporter, "you're going to be married, are you?"

"Yes, sir. That is, Charley said——"

"I know what he said. He leaned you up confidentially against his suspender, and speaking in low, tremulous tones, asked you if you felt that you could leave parents, brothers, sisters, fish-balls on Sunday, and all that makes home at once the altar of our affections and the joy of our lives, and live forevermore with him. And you yanked him out of the realm of doubt so quick that it made his head swim. Isn't that it?"

"Why, yes sir—that is, I said—"

"Certainly. You said that when a girl, standing on the threshold of womanhood and watching with wistful eyes for the mists of futurity to lift, sees advancing the one man to whom she can give her heart, all her doubts and fears disappear as if by magic, and she knows only that a great happiness and holy content enshroud her being. Charley then kissed you warmly about an inch below your nose, and broke himself the next day buying an engagement ring. He calls at the house every night, now, and when he says to you, 'Myrtle, do you love me as much this evening as you did last Thursday afternoon?' you look at—"

"He doesn't call me Myrtle at all," interrupted the young lady. "My name is Edith."

"It's the same thing. A rose by any other name would have as many thorns. When he asks you if you love him as much as you did last Thursday, you climb up a little higher on his neck and want to know how he can ever doubt you. It's all right, though. Be a true and loving wife, and perhaps some day Charley will give you a quarter to spend without requiring an itemized account, sworn to before a notary, as to where such a vast sum has gone. Cherish his love as you would a tender plant that the rude blasts of winter would destroy. Make your whole life a constant endeavor to promote his welfare, but do not finish that quilt."

"Why not, sir?"

"Because," was the reply, "it would recall him to the happy past."

Did any scientific physician know the formular from which Ammen's Cough Syrup is prepared, he would not only recommend, but prescribe it to his patients troubled with a cough or cold, or any disease of the throat and lungs. Try it. It has no equal. For the benefit of those who would say, "Another humbug," a trial 15-cent size is prepared. Ask your druggist to get it for you. In bottles at 15 cents, 50 cts. and $1.

For a cough or cold there is no remedy equal to Ammen's Cough Syrup.

The Rural Masses In China.

A family, C. D., consisting of eight persons, owns an acre and a half of land. The land was bought by the grandfather of the present head and has never been subdivided since nor added to. He grows about seventy bushels of rice and thirty-five of wheat, and some vegetables and cotton besides worth altogether in money about $50. He has two nephews who work outside and bring home something to help, and in that way they get along, but they are very poor. He pays government land tax to the extent of $1.50 a year. He and all his neighbors wear native blue cloth, spun and woven in the family by the women from cotton grown by themselves. He never wore foreign cotton. The coat he had on (a well-worn affair) had been made two years previously, and it would last two years more. It served him at night as a coverlet as well as a coat by day.

Another family owned four acres odd, only part of which was suitable for rice culture. Their income was about 80 bushels of wheat and 150 of rice, about a fourth of which they could usually sell. They paid something over $3 a year as Government land tax. They also grew more cotton than they could use, and sold every year about $10 worth. They were better off than some of their neighbors, but never saved any money. They had fifteen mouths to feed. The foregoing cases are given because they represent fairly the average condition to be found in rural China. The greater number of cultivators probably belong to the class of tenants. Some say the proportion of tenants to peasant proprietors is as seven to three; others put it as three to two; but, whether tenant or proprietor, the condition of the cultivator is much the same—that is, it rarely rises above what is just enough for the bare necessaries of life. My own observations have been mostly confined to this and the adjoining provinces, and I exclude the cultivators of tea, silk and opium, who, growing a commodity more and more in demand and easily transportable, are in a far better position than the ordinary peasant; but, speaking for the greater part of China, I believe that I am not overstating the case in saying that for the working agricultural masses it is a daily hand-to-hand struggle with want. In a succession of good years they are very comfortable, and they have enough to eat and wear, and they have few other wants; but population is ever increasing up to the food limit, and when a bad year or two comes they die off by hundreds or thousands.

Little Things.

A good deal may depend upon the placing of a punctuation-mark, or the use of a single letter. The meaning of a whole sentence or paragraph may be so changed by such a small omission or addition as to place in dispute great interests.

We remember reading an account of a case where a description of land was made, which, by the omission of only a comma a dispute arose as to a certain boundary line, resulting in a lengthy and expensive litigation, and which was finally settled unsatisfactorily to all parties.

Another case illustrating the point and involving an estate of $1,000,000 is now in the supreme court, wherein Leonard Case, a bachelor, of Cleveland, Ohio, died several years ago, leaving the estate named. The law provides that an estate under certain contingencies shall pass to certain relatives in which reference is made to ancestors. It is claimed by some of the contestants, that the letter s was not in the original act, but was placed there by some careless compositor or proofreader, and therefore an entirely different meaning is put upon the law than was intended.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 19.—Some three months ago Mary Rose Matthews, a bright, winsome little girl of 10 years, was adopted from the Denver Cathedral Orphan's Home by Mike Caddigan and wife, living on a ranch ten miles from Ouray, a small mining town in the southern part of this State. Last Saturday little Rose suddenly died and was buried by the Caddigans in a distant part of the ranch. The little girl had been cruelly treated from the first, the neighbors said, and her mysterious death and hurried burial aroused suspicion and the coroner of Ouray was notified. He repaired to the ranch, found the grave, and exhumed the body, when unmistakable evidence of her cruel death was revealed. The body was covered with wounds. One leg was broken, the skull crushed and the limbs frozen. She had no doubt been driven into the storm to die. Caddigan and wife were arrested and jailed. Yesterday they were tried and found guilty of murder. About 1 o'clock this morning a band of masked men went to the hotel where the Caddigans were temporarily held in custody, overpowered the Sheriff's guard and took the prisoners away. They both pleaded loudly for mercy, but as their ears had ever been deaf to the pleading of Rose for mercy, so the vigilantes closed theirs to the cries of the prisoners. They were taken outside of the town limits, where the woman was hanged to the ridge pole of a vacant cabin, while the husband was strung to the limb of a tree on the opposite side of the road. The work done the vigilantes retired quietly. The bodies were cut down and buried by the coroner to-day. John Carroll, Caddigan's brother-in-law, was arrested with the others, but for want of evidence he was allowed to go. This is the first instance of a woman being lynched in Colorado.

What the New Stamps Cost.

Washington Letter.

"What do you suppose the new stamps cost the Government?" I was asked the other day by Assistant Postmaster-General Hazen. "You don't know, but I'll tell you—just 9 1-3 cents per 1,000. They cost the contractors more than that. The plates, paper, printing, perforating and putting the mucilage on is worth something; then they must be packed and done up in high priced envelopes. Half the postoffices do not call for more than 100 stamps at a time, but they have to go through the same routine as in filling an order for millions for New York. It costs more than they get." "Where is the profit in the contract?" I naturally asked. "Right here," was the response. "All the countries on this continent south of us have their postage stamps made in this country. They prefer the concern which supplies our Government. This is the American Bank Note Company of New York. But they have to pay from five to ten times the price we pay, and they find no fault. There's where the profit comes in from making our stamps. It is the only way to secure these other good contracts." People have wondered often why the Government with its great bureau of printing and engraving here in Washington, is always underbid by outside parties in the stamp and postal contracts. Perhaps they will see more clearly after reading this paragraph.

Walnuts from Europe.

New York Sun.

"Naples walnuts," a fruit importer said, "are what you see sold about town as English walnuts. They are imported in bales and boxes, and arrive in largest quantity just before Christmas. There are few, if any, walnuts sent from England to this country. The chief sources of supply are Italy and France."

"Do the nuts differ much in quality?"

"Yes. The finest nut of all is the French walnut known as noyer a bijou. It is a very large nut, and its shells are often used to make little jewel cases. The two parts of the shell are hinged together and are ornamented to suit. I have seen them large enough to hold a handkerchief. The poorest French walnut comes from Bordeaux. The Naples walnuts are generally good."

"What are imported walnuts selling for?"

"Wholesale they are worth fifteen cents a pound. That is about the average price. There are 200 pounds of nuts in a bale. The importers sell to the jobbers, the jobbers to the wholesalers, the wholesalers to the retailers, and the retailers to the consumers. Therefore the retail price is very high. Each person through whose hands the nuts go has to make some profit. All the importers try to get their goods over before Christmas because they are better and fresher at that season, and there is also greater sale for them."

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Beecher's long-promised lecture on the "Circuit of the Continent" was delivered last night at the Brooklyn Academy to a moderate audience. He repeated his glowing panegyric on the Northern Pacific road and territory, and thought California seriously handicapped by its milder climate. "Her farms and wheat fields will, however, continue increasing as soon as the absurd legislation on the Chinese is abolished. [Applause.] They cannot help themselves out there. They are going to have Chinese laborers. I talked with vineyardists and orchardists, and under their breath, for they are under a kind of political despotism on the subject, they said: 'It is a great mistake. We wish we had Chinamen back again. We cannot afford Irish labor.' They thought that in less than five years the laws would be abolished that excluded Chinese labor. If I were young," continued Beecher, "I'd settle in Washington Territory; it is going to be the Italy of America."

Setting Out Orange Trees.

When ready for planting, the trees should be placed in position; and holes hollowed out for the tap and lower lateral roots to spread out on the surface. Moist earth should be pressed carefully and firmly about the roots with the hand, giving them as nearly as possible their former position, especially the rootlets and fibers. Cover with more earth than it is intended to remain, taking care not to pile it up around the collar. This extra earth serves to keep the roots moist until new rootlets are formed. When the tree commences growing it can be drawn back from the roots. The entire mound thus formed should be covered with a mulching of straw, grass or litter, and the work is finished. This mulch should not be disturbed until the tree begins to grow, but if weeds or grass grow through it should be removed.—Manville's Orange Culture.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 19.—The father of Bertha E. Clear, who was secretly married a few days since to J. B. Garrison, "the living skeleton," filed a bill in equity to-day, praying that the marriage be declared null and void, as his daughter is a lunatic and incompetent to enter into a contract.

No Marks.

Mr. T. M. Casad, editor of the Corydon, Iowa, Times, writes that his little girl burned her foot severely on a stove. One application of St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-reliever, cured it completely, leaving no marks. By two applications of St. Jacobs Oil he cured himself of a torturing pain in the side.

WEEKLY GAZETTE.

SATURDAY.....JAN. 26, 1884

SUBSCRIPTION, per year, $2.

A new business in Florida is the insurance of orange groves. Several companies, American and British, are prepared to guarantee against frost and fire.

Gen. Sherman, in reply to a toast at the banquet given in New York last week by the Associated Pioneers of the Territorial Days of California, said: "I think the most charming place to live in, to dream in, is right in Los Angeles, in the State of California."

The colossal ignorance of Eastern editors regarding matters and things in California is so often manifested in their comments that it is quite refreshing to find at least one influential paper which understands the situation here thoroughly. In witness whereof we append the following able paragraph:

Hogs sent to the market from California have to be trapped in the woods in about the same manner as bears. On most of the ranches, it is said, the swine are as wild as deer through the woods, and if cornered they will place themselves on the defensive and fight like tigers.

We have become accustomed to look upon France as a thrifty and prosperous country, but the following cablegram of recent date puts it in another aspect:

"France is seriously disturbed. The destitution of a quarter of a million of people is acknowledged, and there seems to be some chance of a passage of a grant of 3,000,000 francs to release the tools of mechanics from the pawnshops—the earliest advance toward socialism yet made, and a useless one, too, because work, and not tools, is what is wanted."

A few weeks ago, the Secretary of the Treasury refused to grant a license as master of steamboats to a woman, on the ground that she was a woman. It does not appear that he inquired into her qualifications, but the simple fact that she was a "female man" condemned her. The facts of the case are that the woman, Mrs. Mary Miller, of Louisiana, is the wife of a steamboat captain who has been bedridden for some years, and during this time she has performed every duty devolving upon the master of a steamboat. It is pleasant to know that when these facts are brought prominently before the Secretary of the Treasury he gallantly and justly rescinded his former decision and ordered a license issued.

The General Superintendent of the Spring Valley Water Works, which supplies San Francisco with that fluid, publishes the following suggestive notice:

"Two dry seasons have so diminished the quantity of water in our Storage Reservoirs that we are compelled to ask consumers to use every precaution to prevent waste.

We shall do everything in our power to keep the city supplied with water, and spare no expense to accomplish it; but unless waste is stopped, it may be necessary, before the expiration of the season, to limit the supply of water to each consumer.

As your property is endangered by a lack of pressure in the mains for the Fire Department, we trust that all consumers will assist us in this emergency."

What a pity it is that reservoirs and ditches are not what Dickens's Wemmick would call "portable property!" If the apparently insurmountable difficulty of taking up and transporting a hole in the ground could be got over, we know where some second-hand reservoirs and ditches could be got cheap. Read the following:

Nevada, January 21st.—The large number of ditch-tenders and others employed by the North Bloomfield, Eureka Lake and Milton Hydraulic Mining Companies to look after their ditches and reservoirs have been discharged, and the property will be left to the mercy of snowslides and other casualties which may occur this winter. The total length of canals owned by these three companies is nearly 400 miles, in the construction of which $1,824,000 was expended. Unless the recent decision of Judge Sawyer is either set aside or modified, so as to allow the miners to work, these ditches and the large dams from which they conduct water will be deprived of value, and will go to ruin in a year or so. In the event of anything favorable occurring for the miners by spring the ditches and dams will be put in repair again.

Cincinnati, Jan. 22.—William D. Ringo of Newport, Ky., died to-day, in his 72d year. He was an eccentric old bachelor, who inherited $300,000 and increased it, by judicious investments, to $500,000. Within the last four or five years he has adopted six orphan children, and nearly all his fortune is willed to them. Their ages range from 3 to 9 years. They are taken care of by a woman who has kept house for their singular godfather for thirty years. A recluse the greater part of his life, Ringo collected a library of considerable value and was well read. In his younger years he was accustomed to dine with several well-known actors every time they played in Cincinnati. For some years back he has been addicted to drink. In this habit, as in all others, he was very systematic. He never drank at but one bar, and only after nightfall. He usually remained in the saloon for about two hours. At the end of the month the barkeeper made out his bill, which he always paid with a check. For several years he has kept two men under monthly pay, whose business it was to see that he conducted himself properly when under the influence of liquor and to take him home.

Mrs. Ludlow, who started from Los Angeles for Tombstone on foot on a wager of $3000, arrived at Benson, A. T., on Sunday, being 28 days on the road and having three days to spare to make the balance of 28 miles.

New York, January 21.—The Mail and Express says, regarding the report that California dealers had organized a corner in oranges, owing to a short crop in Florida: The California orange cuts but a small figure in the market here, and there is no danger that the Pacific coast will be called upon for supply. "There never was such a crop in Florida as this year," said C. R. Miller, an extensive Reade street receiver of Florida fruits. "Between 6,000,000 and 10,000,000 trees are bearing this year and the number is increasing constantly. Only a short time ago the Florida crop was inadequate to the demand in this market alone, while now oranges are shipped direct from there to all points North and West. Advices received to-day state that this year there was a cold snap extending to the center of the State, but that no material injury to trees was caused. The report that the Florida crop of oranges is short may have grown from the fact that frost killed various other kinds of young plants in that State." The report from California of a corner in oranges is looked upon by the receivers here as without necessary foundation to make it interesting.

Mobile, Jan. 21.—The reports of the killing of the orange trees by frost are not confirmed by the statements of owners. Some of the orange orchards were touched with frost, but no orchard-owner can be found in this county who will say his trees are killed.

Crop Prospects.

Ione, Amador County, January 21st.—Considerable grain has yet to be sown on bottom lands, but the uplands were seeded quite early, and under the influence of light rains, warm weather and fogs, grass and the early-sown grain look exceedingly well, but notwithstanding the present favorable prospects, the farmers are uneasy as to the final outcome of their crops. Only 7 inches of rain has fallen to date, and the water is low in the streams.

Woodland, Yolo County.—The crop outlook for Yolo is at present a very gloomy one, for the reason that we have only had to this date 2.95 inches of rain. Still, there is a good deal of grain in the ground. The summer-fallowed part of it generally looks well, and with a few inches of rain, well distributed, will make good grain. There has been also considerable winter sowing done, but generally the ground has been too dry for plowing. Some of this has not yet sprouted, while in some fields, where the ground is more moist, it is up and looks well. Altogether, probably two-thirds of the usual area has been sown to wheat. Business is almost at a standstill.

Marysville.—The rainfall of the present season to date is only 4.08 inches. This is much less than the average. Up to the same date last season over 9 inches had fallen, yet so far this season the crops in Yuba and Sutter counties, though backward, are regarded as safe, and probably the drought has not yet done any damage. Rain within a few weeks will bring the crops out all right. Under the system of summer-fallowing now generally followed, there is never a failure of crops in Yuba and Sutter counties.

Lincoln, Placer County.—About the average acreage of grain has been sown in this vicinity. Much of it is poorly put in, owing to the ground being too dry for deep plowing or cultivating. The grain has not come up good, and altogether the crop prospect for the coming year is not good. Immediate and continued rain is much needed to insure a fair crop.

Chico, Butte County.—The early-sown grain in this section is looking fine, although rain would make it better. Rain is the only thing that is needed to make good crops. The rainfall of this season to date is 5.30 inches, against 5.99 at the same date last year. On the 24th of January, 1883, there was a fall of .52 of an inch, and on the 28th another of .15 of an inch, making .67 of an inch for January, 1883. Should we receive that amount before the end of the month, and the usual spring showers, a good crop is assured in this section.

Lakeport, Lake County.—The rainfall for the season, to date, has been about 3.50 inches. While not so much as desirable, it is still enough to insure good crops, if we have any rain by February 10th to the 15th. The average for 1884 will be slightly in excess of that of last year.

Placerville, El Dorado County.—Reports from different parts of the county show that the grain crop prospects are good, while the acreage sown throughout the county up to this date is not quite as much as last year. The total amount of rainfall at this place to date is 10.69 inches. The rainfall for last season to same date was 13.95 inches.

Colusa, Jan. 22.—There are no crops to report upon. There is nothing green between Arbuckle and Willows. Above Willows the grain has sprouted, and on Stony creek is not suffering very badly; but the ground is not wet, and without an extraordinary rainfall we will have no crops, except on the low land—probably some near the mouth of Stony creek.

Shasta.—The crop prospects of Shasta county look exceedingly well, so far.

San Jose, Santa Clara Co.—The crop outlook here is not very encouraging. There has not been rain sufficient to moisten the ground to allow for plowing since the winter opened. The total rainfall to date is 2.33 inches, against 3.53 for the same period last year. The fruit-growers are becoming despondent, for if there should be a dry season the crop will be very light, if not a failure.

Salinas, Monterey Co.—At the present outlook the crop prospect is not very favorable. The total rainfall to date is 2.65 inches, against 5.32 inches up to the end of January last year.

Redwood City, San Mateo Co.—The continued dry spell has not done any material injury as yet. In this valley nearly all the plowing has been completed, and sowing will soon commence. After that work is finished there will be prayers for an abundance of rain, as three winters have passed without a sufficiency of waterfall to thoroughly saturate the ground. The rainfall this season has so far been but 3.13 inches.

Hollister, San Benito Co.—Up to date, 2.28 inches of rain has fallen. This is about one-third less than usual, but what we have required has come at most opportune times. Grain is not suffering in the least, and feed, although not abundant, is sufficient to sustain stock for some weeks yet.

Santa Cruz.—The crop prospects are about an average. Farmers are still plowing, and planting is going on, though it is rather dry. The amount of acreage sown will be about the same as last year. Total rainfall to date, 4.23 inches.

Santa Barbara.—Four and thirty-one hundredths inches of rain has fallen. A larger amount of grain has been sown than ever before. No grain is as yet actually suffering for moisture, but it must come soon, in order to avert loss. Some localities are still too dry to plow.

Red Bluff, Tehama Co.—The crop outlook for this county in general is not bad, provided we have rain within two weeks. The southern portion of the county is more in need of rain than the northern, but the farmers do not apprehend any great danger at present. We have had more than six inches of rain to date.

San Luis Obispo.—The rainfall for this county to date is 3.78 inches, very nearly the same as last year for the same time. The farmers generally express greater confidence in the season than ever before. Rain is greatly needed—the dairy interests all along the coast suffering for it. The fruit interests are also somewhat affected through the same cause, all over the country.

Vienna, January 21.—Hugo Schenck, recently arrested for murdering four women and who confessed that he had planned five murders for the last week, expecting through them to obtain 30,000 florins, with which he intended to escape to America, is an American citizen. It is asserted that in 1865 he ran off to America, where he spent several years. Schenck has so far confessed only to the murder of a servant girl, but he and his brother, and an accomplice named Schlosarck, have murdered at least twenty persons. He excuses himself by saying that he narcotized his victims and that they died without pain. Schenck lives in a most cynical manner. He plays chess in his cell and writes poetry of a sentimental tone. There were frightful scenes at the police office. The relations of the murdered girls came to identify the things found with Schenck. Many recognized Schenck, who had promised to marry their missing relatives. Schenck has a wife in Bohemia. She expressed herself to an interviewer in the most tender terms concerning him. She said: "If Schenck wants me, I will go immediately to Vienna to give him consolation. I have spent with him many happy hours that will never be forgotten." Frau Schenck is a governess in a wealthy family.

In addition to his previous confession of having murdered four girls and having planned five more murders for last week, Schenck confesses that he intended to murder all the family of the Baroness Malenatti, together with the maid. It seems Schenck induced the maid to steal pearls valued at £2000, which the Emperor of Austria had presented to Dr. Malenatti for attending to the Duke of Reichstadt, son of the Emperor Napoleon I., in his last illness. The maid had prepared everything for the reception of Schenck and his accomplice on the night when the former was arrested.

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—It is stated this evening that the State authorities have concluded to accept the proposition of the Central Pacific Railroad Company to pay the amount of taxes due for the years 1880, 1881 and 1882, as assessed by the State Board of Equalization. The Chronicle, referring to this compromise, in the form of a special dispatch, will point out that the compromise is in accord with its suggestions on this subject, and that under it the attempt to collect penalties will be abandoned. The railroad company pays attorneys fees and the counties which have compromised must stand by the terms of their agreement, while those counties which refused to make any reductions on the State Board's rate will receive the full amount of the assessment. The railroad will pay the amount due at once. This will enable the State Treasury to meet all demands until the next session of the Legislature.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The National Committee of the Prohibition Home Protection party issued to-day a call for a national convention of that party at Pittsburg, May 21st next, to nominate a President, Vice President, etc., the object being to secure absolute prohibition by the Government. Representation will be on the basis of one delegate for each 250 and fraction over 100 votes cast by members of the party in the 13 States where the party was represented at the last election and the same proportionate representation in States where the party is not formally organized. Women are included in the organization.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—Fred Douglass, the well known colored leader, was married to Miss Helen M. Pitts, a white woman, formerly of Avon, N. Y. The wedding, which took place at the house of Dr. Grimke, of the Presbyterian church, was private, only two witnesses being present. The first wife of Douglass, who was colored, died about a year ago. The woman he married to-day is about 35 years of age, and was employed as a copyist in his office, while he was Marshal of the District. Douglass, himself, is about 73 years of age, and has daughters as old as his present wife.

Portland, Or., Jan. 18.—The Grand Jury made the following surprising recommendation: "It having been found impossible to suppress, we recommend licensing houses of ill-fame, as they, being necessary evils, we believe that being licensed and under the supervision of health officers or of a board of physicians, it would be the means of closing the worst places and putting the remainder under medical restraint and examination."

Somebody in New York, conscience-stricken, sent $3 to the Secretary of the Treasury on Monday without his name.

Nine powder mills exploded last Friday evening at Scranton, Pa., killing one man and destroying a vast amount of valuable property.

The First National Bank of Leadville has collapsed. The President was an inveterate gambler. He has fled.

The American Exchange at Antioch was destroyed by fire on Monday morning. John Griffin and Thomas Hines were burned to death.

Jacob Schaeffer, of New York, started for Las Vegas to visit his brother, but on learning of his death became insane, leaped from the train near Springer station, Colorado, and was frozen to death.

San Bernardino Index, January 17: "A rumor reaches us to-day that the California Southern Railroad has sold out to the Southern Pacific, and that the track from Temecula to Riverside will be torn up and a new track laid from Temecula to Santa Ana, there to connect with the Southern Pacific. Like all the other rumors of a sale, we pronounce this one undoubtedly false."

Wheeler, the strangler of his sister-in-law, was hanged in San Francisco on Wednesday. Mrs Stratton, a divorced woman, of good appearance and address, has been a frequent visitor of Wheeler since his confinement, and on Tuesday night, when she learned that all hope of a reprieve was at an end, proposed to marry the strangler, to which he consented. She immediately went to the Sheriff and announced her intention, but he, to her disgust, informed her that he would not allow the ceremony to be performed.

WEEKLY GAZETTE

SATURDAY.....JAN. 26, 1884

Kleinigkeiten.

—The name of Hermosa postoffice has been changed to "South Pasadena."

—Insure against fire in the first-class companies for which Richard Melrose is agent. Policies written and delivered at once.

—Drain the reservoir. That's what is going to be done forthwith. And yet the men who are going to do it are not especially profane.

—At New River one day last week Mrs. Newton was attacked by a bull and sustained very serious injuries.

—The Farmers' Ditch Company of Orangethorpe have levied an assessment of $2 per share.

—The San Diego ostriches are concealed from view in a closely boarded corral, and visitors are admitted only upon payment of fifty cents.

—The semi-annual statement of the Bank of Anaheim, published to-day shows a very decided increase of business during the past six months. Mr. James reports that business is steadily improving.

—When nobody wanted to buy land, everybody wanted to sell. A change has come o'er the spirit of their dream.

—Prof. Hinton gives his farewell party this evening. He has secured the new Bryson Hall in Los Angeles, next to the Nadeau Block, and will begin giving dancing lessons therein next week.

—Ex-Lieutenant-Governor Mansfield estimates the population of Los Angeles city at 30,000. We are free to admit that it will be some time before Anaheim "ketches up" with its sister city in the matter of population.

—As every other county paper has an editorial prevaricator, we also have engaged one. The following is his first contribution: "The rainfall at Anaheim this season amounts to 7 inches. It is feared the crops will lodge." Isn't he a daisy?

—The big vastness of Anaheim's reservoir may be imagined by considering that it covers nearly fifty acres of ground and the dam will be twenty feet in height.

—A Chinaman employed by Mr. C. E. Leonard was found dead in his bed on Tuesday morning. Justice Gannon held an inquest and the jury rendered a verdict that he died from natural causes, but that his death was hastened by excessive drinking.

—Mr. Hixson, the well-known fruit commission merchant of San Francisco, was in town on Wednesday. He confirms the testimony heretofore given that matters agricultural and horticultural are in far better condition in this county than in any of the counties north of here.

—In less than one year from to-day Anaheim will have the best water system in the State of California.

—At Los Angeles on Friday of last week Francon Jvano and Mariana Villa were killed by a falling gravel bank, and Lenion Barthe had his leg broken at the same time. The three were laborers engaged in removing soil, and their careless method of excavating caused a cave with the fatal result reported.

—Mr. Nicolas Kieter, a native of Belgium, who was injured by burns a few weeks ago, died on Tuesday, at the French Hospital. During his illness Mr. Edward Roth was very kind and useful to the deceased, who remembered him in his will, giving him his property, valued at about $5,000.—Herald.

—The scarecrow of lawsuits cannot now be used against this section. We are at peace with all the world, and have fraternized among ourselves.

—An orange 15 inches in circumference is likely to attract attention under any circumstances, but when it is the product of a tree planted two years ago it becomes especially noticeable. Such an orange from such a tree was plucked on Mr. Fromhein's place some days ago. He has another young tree on his place from which 500 oranges have been picked this season, and there are several hundred yet hanging to the limbs, all of large size.

—Messrs. W. A. and B. A. Smith, the father and brother respectively of S. B. Smith of this place and A. G. Smith of Tustin, arrived here on Thursday from Connecticut. They will remain here for some time, and if we may judge from their expressions of astonishment at the climatic difference between Connecticut and California, it is more than probable that they will forsake the land of steady habits and become identified with this growing country.

—If land within the irrigation district of the Anaheim Union Water Company was worth $75 per acre two weeks ago, it is worth $150 an acre to-day.

Dr. Bailey of Santa Ana was over here again this week on professional duty. The reputation he has gained of late years is certainly great and well may he feel proud of his large and successful practice. It is generally admitted that Dr. Bailey is one of the ablest surgeons and physicians of Southern California.

Prof. Hinton gives his farewell party tonight. Lottery dance.

—The entertainment for the benefit of St. Michael's church on Thursday evening was more successful than its managers anticipated. The hall was quite well filled, the supper (a very excellent one) was well patronized, and the exchequer of the church is greatly swelled as the result of the entertainment.

The following tableaux were presented: Elaine; Night and Morning; Burning of St. Agnes; The Magic Mirror; Taking the Veil; Crowning of the Fairy Queen; The Night Before the Execution of Mary Queen of Scots; The Execution; Fatima entering the Forbidden Chamber. These tableaux were, without exception, exceedingly beautiful, and in the arrangement excellent taste was displayed. Mr. Nourse, a professional elocutionist temporarily sojourning in town, contributed not a little to the enjoyment of the audience by reading several amusing pieces. Mrs. Jarley's Waxworks, with which the entertainment concluded, was quite amusing.

The lady managers desire us to express their thanks to all the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted them, and desire to specially mention the musicians, whose artistic playing was one of the main features of the entertainment.

—It is not long since wiseacres turned up their nose when stock in the Anaheim Water Company was mentioned. Today these same people are breaking their necks in trying to get hold of some.

—In an argument to prove that it is quite possible that the county may yet be blessed with an abundance of rain, J. W. Potts of Los Angeles says:

To show that our chances for rain are good, even if there is but little rain to the first of February, I have carefully examined a statement of the monthly rainfall in Sacramento (which is about the same as here) published in the Rural Press of January 12th, 1884, for thirty-four years, and find that thirteen years out of the thirty-four it rained more after the first of February than it did before than time, viz:

1850-	1851	before 1st of Feb.	6.60	after	4.950
1853	1854	" " "	5.295	"	14.700
1854	1855	" " "	5.460	"	14.490
1856	1857	" " "	4.617	"	5.628
1858	1859	" " "	10.605	"	11.172
1862	1863	" " "	4.420	"	7.150
1868	1869	" " "	8.176	"	8.474
1869	1870	" " "	6.303	"	7.209
1870	1871	" " "	2.959	"	4.830
1877	1878	" " "	12.712	"	13.737
1878	1879	" " "	5.335	"	10.957
1879	1880	" " "	7.203	"	19.478
1881	1882	" " "	7.663	"	8.617

So it will be seen that it rained nearly an average of four inches for each of the thirteen years referred to after the first of February more than it did before that time. On this basis, supposing we have no more rain this month (January), our chances are good for eight inches after that time, but four inches more than we have had would carry us through handsomely.

—Anaheim has the biggest and best natural reservoir in Southern California. It will store 403,363,291 gallons of water. Other, smaller reservoirs to be utilized as occasion requires will increase this amount fifty per cent.

—The Anaheim correspondent of the Times says: "Already the good effects of the settlement of our water troubles are being felt by our people. During the past week a larger number of strangers have been seen on our streets than for a long time past, and our business houses have felt the change in affairs. Of course it will take a few weeks before the new consolidated company is in legal working order and the old companies dissolved, but the consolidation is practically accomplished, and with a unanimity of action heretofore unthought of. Land has already risen from ten dollars up an acre, and it will keep on rising until it will eventually reach the fancy figures of the better advertised localities."

—Supervisors Levi and Moesser, accompanied by Road Overseer Paty, inspected the road from Barruel Point to Anaheim on Thursday with a view to improving that thoroughfare. The road is in an execrable condition and as it is one which is extensively traveled there ought to be some way devised to make it better than it is. There ought, also, to be a bridge across the river, but the building of one now is out of the question, as the law will not permit the Supervisors to use money for that purpose.

—This is the most prolific country in the world. Given plenty of water, and the earth yields with a prodigality surpassing belief. Anaheim has the best water right in the State.

—Mr. E. A. Saxton has made a very effective design for a seal for the new water company. A reservoir encompassed on three sides by hills over which the rising sun is sending its rays; a ditch of water flowing from the reservoir down upon the valley orchards and vineyards; around the seal the words—"Anaheim Union Water Company, Los Angeles county, Cal. Incorporated January, 1884."

—Vine growers can procure three interesting appendices to the report of the Chief Executive Viticultural Officer by writing to J. H. Wheeler, the Secretary of the Commission at San Francisco and enclosing six cents in stamps. The titles of the appendices are, "The Chaintre System of Pruning and Conducting the Vine," "Practical Manual of Pruning, as practiced near Bordeaux," "Different Methods of Grafting the Vine."

—Attention is directed to the nursery advertisement of Mr. W. E. Sibley, published to-day. He is a reliable gentleman, and one of the most progressive nurserymen in the county.

—Fishing in the big Anaheim reservoir is strictly prohibited. Only the Directors have that privilege—and the Secretary.

—The contract for carrying the mail between Artesia and Norwalk has been awarded to John Gillespie for an annual compensation of $176.

THINGS ARE MOVING.

The New Water Company Formally Incorporated.

The gentlemen elected as a Board of Directors of the Anaheim Union Water Company met informally on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Dreyfus was called to the Chair, and Mr. Melrose acted as Secretary. The following articles of incorporation were read by Mr. Lyall:

Articles of Incorporation of the Anaheim Union Water Company.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that we the undersigned have this day associated ourselves together for the purpose of incorporating under the laws of the State of California a corporation to be known by the corporate name of "The Anaheim Union Water Company."

And we hereby certify that the objects for which this corporation is formed are:

The supplying of water for hydraulic, irrigating and domestic use to the owners of or occupants of 12,000 acres of land situated in Los Angeles county and contained within the following described limits:

The eastern boundary shall be the east line of the Shanklin tract, the northern boundary shall be the Cajon ditch and the north branch of said ditch extending westward along the base of the hills until it intersects the east section line of Section 32, T. 3 S., R. 10 W., San Bernardino Base and Meridian, at the N. E. corner of said section; thence south on section line one-half mile to ¼ Sec. corner; thence west on ¼ Sec. line one and one half miles to center of Sec. 31; thence south on ¼ Sec. line to intersection with S. P. R. R.; thence in a southeasterly direction along the line of said Railroad to the intersection with ¼ Sec. line running north and south near center of Sec. 8, T. 4 S., R. 10 W., S. B. M.; thence south on ¼ Sec. lines to the south line of Sec. 20 at ¼ Sec. corner; thence east on section lines two miles to ¼ Sec. corner on south line of Sec. 22; thence north on ¼ Sec line one mile to ¼ Sec. corner on north line of Sec. 22; thence east on section lines to the N. E. corner of Sec. 23; thence north on section lines to the Anaheim ditch at Packard's place; thence in an easterly direction along south line of said ditch to the intersection with the southwest boundary of the Krasmer tract; thence in a northwesterly direction along the boundary of said tract to the intersection with Township line at Crowther's N. E. corner; thence in an easterly direction along the north bank of old river bed to where it meets Shanklin's boundary line. A map of the above described boundaries is attached hereto.

The keeping up and maintaining of the two irrigating ditches known as the Cajon ditch and the New Anaheim ditch and the construction of a reservoir on the tract of land heretofore conveyed by one D. Kraemer, deceased, to the Anaheim Water Company aforesaid. The developing of water, the acquiring of water and water rights by purchase, appropriation or otherwise, the acquiring of and construction of reservoirs, ditches, aqueducts, flumes and any and all other property and works necessary to the carrying on of the business of furnishing water for the purposes and within the limits aforesaid, and for the sale and distribution of water to the stockholders of the said corporation within the limits of the 12,000 acres aforesaid.

That its principal place of business shall be in the Town of Anaheim, County of Los Angeles.

That the time of its existence shall be 50 years from and after the date of its incorporation.

That the number of its directors shall be seven, and that the names of those who shall be directors and are appointed to manage its affairs for the first year are:

E. A. Saxton	Anaheim, Cal.
B. Dreyfus	do do
F. H. Keith	do do
L. Schoru	Anaheim Township, do
A. McDermont	do do
W. M. McFadden	do do
W. Fromhein	do do

That the capital stock of this corporation shall be one million two hundred thousand dollars ($1,200,000) divided into 12,000 shares of $100.00 each.

That the amount of stock actually subscribed is thirty-five thousand dollars, and the same has been subscribed by the following persons:

NAMES.	NO. OF SHARES.	AMOUNT.
E. A. Saxton	8	$ 800
B. Dreyfus	2	200
F. H. Keith	15	1,500
L. Schoru	155	15,500
A. McDermont	50	5,000
W. M. McFadden	60	6,000
W. Fromhein	50	5,000
	350	$35,000

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 23d day of January, A. D., 1884.

The above articles having been examined and approved by A. Glassell Esq. a motion was made and carried unanimously that they be adopted. They were then signed and acknowledged by the gentlemen named therein, and the papers were ordered filed with the County Clerk and the Secretary of State, as required by law.

A form of certificate and seal for the new company was adopted, and the Secretary was instructed to procure a seal and all necessary books and blanks.

An advertisement was ordered published, giving notice that each stockholder of the Anaheim Company and the North Anaheim Canal Company would be called upon by some member of the Board and be required to give a description of the land upon which they wished to locate their stock. It will greatly facilitate matters if the stockholders will prepare a memoranda describing exactly the land they wish to irrigate, and have it ready for delivery when called upon. Each stockholder is interested in having the new company organized as speedily as possible, and it is in their power to expedite matters in the way suggested.

The meeting then adjourned until Monday, February 4th, 1884, at 2 o'clock P. M. at which time it is expected that the certificates, conveyances and all necessary papers will be ready for signing and delivery; but should any delay occur, due notice of postponement will be given by notice in the GAZETTE of February 24. It is proposed that the directors of all four companies—the Anaheim, North Anaheim, Cajon and Anaheim Union—meet on the day mentioned, and all the formalities of transfer will be accomplished then and there.

It may be stated that all the legal preliminaries and proceedings are being conducted under the instruction and direction of the attorneys, Glassell, Smith & Patton, and Theo. Lyall.

The Directors went en masse on Wednesday and viewed the reservoir. Not one of the party had ever fully appreciated this glorious work of nature until the close inspection of Wednesday, and very decided expressions of satisfaction were indulged in. The determination was expressed to proceed with all possible diligence to the construction of the dam and the utilization of the reservoir.

Incorrect, But True.

Los Angeles Express.

Our fellow-citizens of Anaheim and Santa Ana are to be congratulated on the sterling good sense which they have displayed in coming to an understanding in the matter of water. That the shareholders of the Anaheim Water Company were, practically, unanimous in their desire for consolidation is a very pleasing feature of the very important action they have taken. In the Santa Ana river there is, and, if it be properly stored and husbanded, always will be, a sufficiency of water for the needs of both communities; and it is surely better to agree upon a common scheme for its distribution than to throw money away in litigation, a proceeding which may be likened to that of the two cats which regheated a monkey to divide between them a certain piece of cheese which belonged to them in common—in his efforts to be strictly impartial, by nibbling first from one of the pieces into which he divided it and then from the other, in order to make them of equal size, the monkey finally devoured the cheese of contention. The Anaheim GAZETTE of Saturday last gives a glowing description of the public rejoicing which ensued upon the announcement of the vote, a torch light procession, followed by a public meeting addressed by eloquent speakers, fitly ended the happy day. A unique feature of the occasion was that the Anaheim band played by telephone to people in Santa Ana. Downey and elsewhere along the line of telephonic communication. It is said that the new company will construct at once a double reservoir, the most extensive ever attempted south of San Francisco and an elaborate net-work of distributing ditches.

The Express and other city papers have not fully "caught on" to the true inwardness of the recent water settlement. The consolidation was between the two companies on the Anaheim side of the river, and the Santa Ana company did not figure in the matter at all. As civil wars have always been the most productive of bitter feeling, so the strife between factions of one community has dwarfed our dispute with the Santa Ana company, and has done more to retard the development and growth of this section than any other cause. Having fraternized and come together upon a basis satisfactory to everybody, there is a genuine cause for rejoicing, and at no time in our history have our people been more hopeful for the future.

Some months ago, the Anaheim Water Company proposed to the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company that if they would consent to an equal division of the water in the river after allowing the Yorba irrigators whatever water they were entitled to, the Anaheim company would dismiss the suits pending against the S. A. V. I. Co. It is intimated that an answer will be given to this proposition in a few days. It is to be hoped that the offer will be accepted, so that the rights of each side of the river be definitely defined without further litigation.

Pension Claimants.

During the recent raid on the pension thieves at Washington, says Drake's Magazine, some startling grounds for the issue of pensions were developed. Men who had lost a leg in a contest with a reaping machine were found in receipt of good fat sums once a month. But perhaps the most remarkable claim of the lot was that of one gentleman, who, on being investigated, asserted that he drew a pension for what he had actually lost in the war.

"But what did you lose?" demanded the examiner. "You seem to have all your members and faculties."

"Well," replied the claimant, driven to the wall, "I lost my head at Shiloh and left for home."

Another should have been placed on the list for the rest of his life at the highest amount allowed by law.

"What is your claim?" asked the examiner. "What did you lose?"

"I lost $350 at poker the night before the battle of Fair Oaks."

THE ATTENTION OF HOUSEKEEPERS AND the public in general is called to the following facts:

The value of Baking Powder is determined by the amount of gas it contains and the freedom of the article from any injurious ingredients. The GIANT BAKING POWDER is absolutely pure, and contains about one-quarter more gas than any brand of Baking Powder in use on this Coast. Three cans of GIANT BAKING POWDER are equal to four cans of any other brand. Study economy and use none other. Your grocer will furnish you with a sample can free. Try it.

FACTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 13, 1883.

BOTHIN MANUFACTURING CO.,

GENTLEMEN: The sample of GIANT BAKING POWDER you handed me, also samples of the following brands of Baking Powders purchased by me in open market, I have tested for total quantity of available gas, with results as follows:

NEW ENGLAND,	110 cubic inches.
PIONEER,	107 cubic inches.

SAN FRANCISCO Sept. 24, 1883.

H. E. BOTHIN, President Bothin Manufacturing Co.

DEAR SIR: After a careful and complete chemical analysis of a can of GIANT BAKING POWDER, purchased by us in open market, we find that it does not contain alum, acid phosphate, terra alba, or any injurious substances, but is a pure, healthful Cream Tartar Baking Powder, and as such can recommend it to consumers. Jealousy.

"What happier or more joyous state had been
Than that of tender heart in amorous mood?
What life more beatific and serene
Than to be bound by love's sweet servitude?
Were man not goaded by that sting so keen
Of black suspicion—by that fear pursued—
And martyred by that dark and deadly passion
Of jealousy, whose rage takes every fashion.

While every other bitter interblent
And h honey of this a sweetest sweet,
Is but additional perfection lent
To love, its joy to heighten and complete,
More dainty tastes the liquid element
From th rst prolonged, and after thirsting meat.
Nor can the joys of peace be duly rated
Save first the ills of war are known and hated.

Though eyes behold not what the heart would see,
And ever craves—e'en this may be made light
The longer the slow hours absence be,
The greater joy when time doth unite.
To service without wage we may agree
It hope survive, however faint and slight.
For service true is in the end rewarded,
Though long it seem to pass quite unregarded

The angers, the repulses, and in short
All pains and torments love has to endure,
Do by their recollection but exhort
To fuller sense of joy that we secure.
But this infernal plague if distort
And poison the sick mind with ills part cure,
Makes even mirth and gladness when they follow,
Seem to the lover favorless and hollow.'

Queer Happenings.

In a pair of boots sent to a bootblack in a Louisville hotel, to polish, he found three $20 greenbacks.

The top of a dead tree standing by the wayside at Sandy Ridge, N. C., fell upon a woman riding by, and killed her.

James Robinson of Allen county, Ind., slipped and fell while feeding a drove of hogs. The hogs attacked and killed him.

After a physician had tried in vain to dislodge two false teeth which a Pottsville woman insisted had lodged in her throat, she found the teeth in a drawer, where she had put them.

The squealing of a rat which Thomas L. Reed of Womelsdorf, Pa., was taking from a trap in his barn brought a small army of rats to his assistance. Reed's dog routed the rats in a fierce battle.

A hawk chased a partridge from Skene Mountain, near Whitehall, N. Y., into the village and through the glass in the window of a drug store. Both birds fell bruised and bleeding in the centre of the room.

"John," said a dying girl to John Arnold of Winesburg, Ohio, "I will take our engagement ring with me to the grave, for you will follow me very soon." He died within three days thereafter of a stroke of paralysis.

As W. C. Morrow of Cleveland, O., was smoking a cigar he lifted his six-year old daughter upon his lap. In the act the lighted cigar was accidentally thrust into one of her eyes, destroying the sight.

A man in Belleville, Nev., remembered just where he had lost his purse, containing $380, but upon returning to the spot found that forty loads of earth had been dumped over it. It took him a day and a half to recover the purse.

Mono Lake, in Colorado, was recently swept from end to the other by a tornado, which lashed the water and piled lathery foam upon the shore twenty feet high. In the mass of foam were thousands of dead ducks that had been dashed against the rocks.

In the Isle of Wight a spider was observed dragging two or three leaves to the water. It fastened them together with a web, then launched the raft, and sailed away. It darted off after insects upon the water, and returned to the raft to devour them.

Cl d S and [illegible] were playing ball in Aertford, N. C., standing twenty f et apart. Saunders threw the ball, and the other struck at it with a cypress pole four feet long. The pole broke in the center and one end struck Saunders in the eye, penetrated the brain, and killed him.

When grasshoppers gave out, a turkey hen, belonging to A. C. Hicks of Poughkeepsie, fed her thirty young ones with acorns. These having become scarce, the old turkey was seen the other day up in an oak shaking down the acorns that remained clinging to the twigs.

Capt. F. P. Martin of Leon and Capt N. C. Randleman of Carlisle, Wis., were 16 years old when they enlisted in the Mexican war. Both are now gray-haired, but when they met on Friday last, for the first time since the Mexican war, they instantly recognized each other.

Fifty witnesses armed with guns were present at the marriage of Miss Alice Cooper, an orphan of Platte City, Mo. William Montgomery, the groom, had attempted to desert the girl, and the neighbors gave him the option of choosing a lot for himself in a neighboring cemetery or marrying her.

A young couple of Lafayette, Ala., procured a marriage license, engaged a preacher, invited guests, and dressed for the ceremony, but just before the hour for their marriage arrived they concluded that they were not yet ready to marry, and the nuptial papers were returned endorsed "Not executed."

At a picture auction in a New England town the auctioneer exclaimed: "I now offer you a Rubens, a perfect gem of genius, perhaps the finest painting that ever came from that master hand." There was no bid. The auctioneer passed the picture, and, taking up another, said: "Very well, gentlemen, I now offer you a Benbrandt by the same artist."

THE SULTANA GRAPE.

This vine, called superficiously the "seedless" Sultana, is becoming generally popular; but we have not yet seen where it is destined to produce the best results for drying. For two years Mr. Blowers has been selling his Sultanas to the wine makers, as I understand, because they could not be dried, or because they did not ripen early enough.

I believe, myself, that the greater part of the Sultanas in the State will be made up into wine. What that product is destined to prove for us, is difficult to predict. Only one sample from Napa county of sufficient age has been seen to test its quality there; an indifferent sample has been seen from Yolo county. These samples indicate great preservative qualities and usefulness for blends with some acidulous and aromatic wines of lighter character. Wherever it attains sufficient maturity, which does not seem to be the case in the Yolo and Napa samples, it might succeed well as a type of so-called sherries. This result would no doubt be attained in Fresno, San Bernardino and similar districts, where grapes attain great saccharine percentages at an early season.

The seedless raisin made from this grape is valuable in confectionery. It can never have as wide a use as the Muscatel for drying purposes. It bears so abundantly that it is enticing to planters. It should be remembered, however, that its record for extraordinary fruitfulness is based on its yield in very fertile lands, where it is common to boast of tonnage per acre, and where, at the same time, it goes to the winery instead of to the raisin trays. These stories of extraordinary yields must always be received cum grano salis. When the vines are ten years old, and in places where drying in the sun is practicable, we shall hear less talk of quantity and more disposition to try to claim quality.

The Sultana, undoubtedly a very valuable variety, should be valued, however, only where some profitable and certain result can be obtained by its use. Where it can be ripened well for sun-drying, it is no doubt of great value; where it can be ripened sufficiently it will make, I believe, a certain kind of sherry; but sherries, unless very fine, will never have a very large market. Where fermentation of white wine is difficult, it may be used to advantage in vats of other varieties of white wine grapes ripening at the same time, or may be worked together with delicate wines after first fermentation. Its superior value, if any, as a light white wine unblended, remains to be proved.

It requires long pruning. It appears to have its native home in Persia, and to be cultivated also in Turkey and Greece. In France it is recorded as a failure in fruiting by Count Odart. Considering its native home and its Grecian success, I shall confidently expect it to succeed best in this State in such climates as that of the coast valleys of San Diego, and parts of Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. Persia appears to be celebrated for seedless varieties of grapes, large and small. This disposition toward seedless fruit, I believe to be local rather than to reside in the variety. I have, I believe, reason to say that the coast valley of San Diego, and perhaps those of Lower California, will prove the true homes on the Pacific for seedless fruit. It is there that I expect we shall succeed, if anywhere, with the Corinths. It is there that a seedless lemon has already been originated, and that grafted Sicily lemons show a tendency to become seedless. It is there also that the Muscatel shows less development of seeds, and, by continued propagation, they may become like the famous Huasca raisins of Chili. Count Odart describes many varieties of seedless grapes in Persia which make the celebrated Schiras vine. Strange to say, the Pacific Coast promises to prove an epitome of all creation.—C. A. Wetmore.

Brakesmen.

The principal duties of a brakesman are to smoke cigarettes, sit with the newsboy in the smoking-car and read the Police News. He is also required to rush out on the platform at intervals to put a man off his seat on a thing that looks like the horizontal fly-wheel of a copying press; and screw the thing around with an earnestness that makes it a matter of wonder that he doesn't dislocate the baggage car, or twist the train off the track. There are other duties that devolve on a brakesman. He must be able to hurl the name of every station he comes to through the length of the car, so that the passengers can't catch it, and at night he is required to run through the cars every twenty minutes and wake up sleeping passengers by knocking their hats off with his lantern. Good brakesmen, who are not killed when coupling cars, become conductors in course of time, have their names engraved on their lantern, and wear large seal rings.—Texas Siftings.

Air Your Houses.

Too many houses are built up the back in America. There are no through draughts. Front and back open, and a current set a-going—that's fresh air. Air stagnates, and curtains drawn, blinds down, carpets on floors, doors closed and one bit of a window just opened; goodness! where's the life to come from to breathe in so many cubic inches even of oxygen? Now, then, in the morning open the street-door for an hour and set something airing, some current into those stagnant air layers, that stuff each other up, and can neither move up nor down, nor in nor out. Ladies are faint, children droop, babies die—and all for the want of a little fresh air just passing through the house. Look to it, and open your house door the first thing in the morning, and if you can set a current going, do it.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—The Examiner says the orange crop of this State has been "cornered" by a combination composed of Eugene Germain of Los Angeles, L. G. Sresovich and Isadore Jacobs of this city. The combination have already secured nine-tenths of the entire crop. According to official reports the crop will be fully forty per cent. short of what was expected, so that between the short crop and the corner, oranges are likely to be higher in price than ever before. The short crop in Florida will be taken advantage of to advance prices.

RATHER TOO LONG.

After Twenty Years on the Wrong Side of Life a Virginian Turns the Tables.

"How long did you say?"

"Twenty years, I said. Up to the time I mentioned I had suffered from diseased liver for twenty years," said Mr. S. T. Hancock, of Richmond, Va., half sadly, as though thinking of that dilapidated section of his life. "At times I almost wished it had pleased Providence to omit the liver from the human anatomy.

"That enough—twenty years of that sort of thing," responded a listener. "What was the upshot of it?"

"The upshot was that some time ago I went down to Scott's drug store in this city, and bought one of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS, applied it and was relieved in a few hours, and am now as sound as though my liver were made of India rubber."

Benson's Hunlike the old fashioned kind of plasters—act promptly. Look for the word CAPCINE, which is cut in the genuine. Price 25 cents. Seabury & Johnson, Chemists, New York.
