Dismissed Laguna Teacher Files Notice of Appeal

SANTA ANA—Mrs. Matilda Lewis, dismissed as principal and then discharged as teacher at Laguna Beach elementary school system, today has filed formal notice of appeal to the Fourth District Appellate Court.

She thus followed up on an informal notice that her case would be taken to the higher courts for decision after Superior Judge Raymond H. Thompson upheld the right of the school board to fire her for allegedly distributing a pro-Communism pamphlet.

basis of her demotion from principal to status of teacher was her refusal to tell a House Committee on Un-American Activities about her life between 1935 and 1940, when she was a teacher in Los Angeles schools.

She was released as a teacher for allegedly handling out a pamphlet titled "Time to Resist," which the school board held extolled the Russian intervention in North Korea and lambasted the United Nations force as "invaders" and "murderers."

Mrs. Lewis denied that she had distributed the pamphlet and the school board, after a hearing held she was untruthful and was guilty of unprofessional conduct.

Judge Thompson had overruled a demeror she filed when she did not make any further answer, electing to take the issue directly to a higher court.

Placentia Photographer Famous for Outstanding Action-Full Pictures

By RAY BROADS
PLACENTIA (OCNS) — If you read magazines, trade journals, or newspapers you have probably seen pictures taken of Raymond L. Pound of Placentia, who has been taking pictures at the risk of his life since his early school days.

One would not expect such a colorful story to come out of a profession like photography, usually considered so tame, but the art has taken Pound through every thing from ship bombings at sea to airplane crashes and the crushing hoofs of bucking bulls in a rodeo.

Soon after his graduation from college, the native Californian took the native California took the ship lines but currently has de- edged to stay in the states. He is affiliated with the Motion line and takes pictures of VIPs as they embark for or sea.

Local high school girls here know Pound very well and all for the chance to go along to the docks to aid in the picture taking. He takes three or four girls along on each trip to help find the picture subjects. He gets a teletype message from the steamship company telling him which passengers to take, but the job of finding them is a big one. It is where the students come in, and the dash aboard ship hunting notables is their job.

Besides the ship job, Pound travels around the country in a house trailer taking pictures of rodeos and bucking animals. The job is even more dangerous than flying or riding ships through sickness. The photographer has to get into the arena with the crazed animals and shoot directly at the slaying hoofs.

Among his pictures reproduced in magazines is a picture of a Brahman bull and rider that has been shown around the world. It first appeared in Life Magazine, then in Look, then in German publications, and others abroad.

The camera was used in an advertisement for a movie and a picture company used the photo to show the perfection of its equipment.

He has scored at least 25 times with cover photos for national publications.

PATTERN FOR LIVING—Chosen as the theme of the 1954 mother and daughter banquet sponsored by the Fellowship of the First Presbyterian Church, the leaders viewed with satisfaction the large attendance sharing the program last Monday night. Ninety-Three Year Old Mother Feted at Banquet

Big Time was enjoyed at a mother and daughter banquet, entitled "1954 Pattern for Living," held at the First Presbyterian church Monday night with the social room of the church humming with activity. The evening was packed with interest with the focus centered on mothers.

Mothers singled out were Mrs. Grace Chapman, 93 years old, the oldest mother present; Mrs. Paul McClester, the youngest mother; Mrs. Arthur Couse was the mother with the most daughters; Mrs. J. M. Casey, the great grandmother attending with her family of "women" down to the great grandchild; Mrs. Martin and Mrs. E. Wheaton, the two grandmothers with three grand daughters; Mrs. Wayne Howe and daughter, Marsha, the mother and daughter who looked the most alike.

Another highlight was the play, directed and written by Mrs. R. T. Parsons. It centered on a religious theme, presenting the thought of Sunday every day of the week.

Each day was portrayed in some Christian adventure or participation, such as attending choir rehearsal for Sunday services, a good deed, teaching a church school class.

Give More on Program

The play ended on a benediction "Prayer Perfect." The trio also sang other numbers during the program.

Taking part in the original production were Mrs. Lynn Still, Mrs. C. O. Lewis, Mrs. Betty Archer, Mrs. Howe and daughter, Marsha; Mrs. Gaylord Brown, Mrs. J. C. Young and Mrs. Kenneth Hendler.

Different was the quartet, four, grandmother, Mrs. Dolores Campbell; daughter, Mrs. Charmon Akis; grand daughter, Shelia Akis and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lynn Carlson. They were heard in several Top feature on the program was the narrated film, entitled "Big Creek" and presented by Bob Smith and Paul Hurlbly through the courtesy of the Southern California Edison company. The film showed the steps in building the huge dam, to the completion and operation of the plant located in the upper San Joaquin valley. The water is used three times in generation process and then released for irrigation in the lower valley area.

Electric Lamp Display

Jerry Smith of Montebello displayed electric lamps of all types dating back to the first practical incandescent lamp 75 years ago.

They were sold at one time for half of what it cost to manufacture, said Smith. He was a winner at the recent Pan-Pacific Hobby show.

Fourteen members of the Marywood High school O.E.S. club were heard in "Mother MacCre", "Patriotic Song" and "That Wonderful Mother of Mine." Virginia Stubby, pianist, played "Malaguena."

Cantando Club Sings Last Concert May 18 At Santa Ana

The Cantando club last concert for this year will be Tuesday evening, May 18, in the Santa Ana High School auditorium under the direction of Harleed McCormac. Miss Jean McCormac will be accompanist for the group. It is a unique record that the organization has continued for 28 years, even through war time, with the assistance of men from the services, according to Vice Rees, president of the club.

Two of the charter members are still singing in the club. They are Percy Pryor of Garden Grove, and Orlo Householder of Tustin. Several new members, including high school and college students, have joined the group and help to "carry on," making approximately a 50-man chorus, said Rees.

At a recent election, the following were chosen for officers for the ensuing year: Vice Rees of Orange, president; Carben Dubby, Orange, vice president; Phil Gerard, Santa Ana, secretary-treasurer; Harold Ross of Santa Ana, director and Dr. John S. Brown, Orange, director.

Among numbers on the program will be "Freedom" by Mary Jane Richardson and Marcel G. Frank; "Lost in the Stars" by Kurt Wall; "The Creation" by Willy Richter; "What Shall We Do With a Drunken Sailor" traditional sea chantey.

Rees says that a new feature will be introduced in the singing of the final number, the Fred Whring arrangement of "Hallelujah Hymn of the Republic." McCormac will bring his Alhambra High School Boys Glee club and with the Santa Ana High School Boys Glee club will augment the Cantando club and make a mass chorus that will bring out the grandeur of this majestic old hymn so that those who hear it will long remember it.

St. Michael's Ready For Birthday Night

"Dance Festival" is the theme that has been coined for St. Michael's Episcopal church 81st birthday and fun night at the parish hall Friday.

All organizations in the church are participating in the planned program, some of the numbers in comedy theme, others of more stately nature.

Senior choir group will do "The seven veils" dance with the Men's club members, to be seen in the Hula Hula. Young People's Fellowship will stage their interpretation of the Mexican Shuffle while members of the Susan La Fauscherie have chosen Charleston for their number. Hula Hula dance will also feature the Auxiliary's presentation.

The evening has been planned with refreshments and fun for everyone attending. Following the program old time and new time dancing to recorded music will be enjoyed with the birthday cake, furnished by St. Agnes Guild, to be officially cut and served during the party hours.

Coast's Belshe Caps JC Career With Three California Swim Championships

Orange Coast College freshman Buddy Belshe last week climaxed a perfect junior college swimming career by winning three state championships and the meet highpoint trophy in the California JC Championships Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at Fresno State College.

Limited by jersey regulations to three individual events, Belshe won the 1500 meter, 220 yard and quarter-mile freestyle races at Fresno. The week previous the ex-Huntington Beach High All-American had won the Southern California crown in the same three events and before that three Eastern Conference gold medals. In all three meets Belshe tied Fullerton JC's Jim Stevenson for the Helms Athletic Foundation highpoint awards.

Belshe opened the three-day meet in the FBC pool Thursday evening with a first in the 65-lap 1500 meter freestyle, winning in a pool record of 20 min. 9 sec., the best JC time in the nation for the event.

Friday evening the OCC aquarist walked away with the 220 in 2:17.4 after smashing the existing Fresno pool record with a 2:17 flat in the prelims. His third victory came Saturday night as he covered the 17 laps of the 440 in 4:36 for another pool record and national best time.

The two man Coast Squad of Belshe and Chuck Atkinson finished sixth in the team standings out of a field of fifteen. Atkinson picked up a fourth place medal in the 220, a fifth spot in the 800 and a sixth in the 440. Fullerton's defending champs rolled up 56 markers to Los Angeles City College's 69-1-2 and Compton's 60-1-3.

Team scoring: Fullerton 86; Los Angeles CC 69-1-2; Station 33; Santa Monica 30; Orange Coast 27; Mt. San Antonio 14; Sacramento 12; Vallejo 5; El Camino 3; Santa Rosa 2; Bakersfield 1; Los Angeles Valley, Taft and Monterey Peninsula did not score.

Pirates Still Top Conference Despite Loss to Fullerton JC

Orange Coast College's first place Pirates today had absorbed a 10-6 defeat from Fullerton JC without losing in the Eastern JC Conference baseball race.

The situation may be a temporary one, however. Chaffey's second place Panthers also lost Friday to Mt. San Antonio, 10-3 but they filed a protest with the conference athletic commissioner after Mt. SAC coach John Arambide stormed onto the field to dispute an umpire's decision allegedly without first calling time out. Riverside, with a 3-2 win over San Bernardino, still holds third place.

Anaheim Tonnists Trap City Council

At least once in their careers, Anaheim City Councilmen found themselves on a spot.

Members of the Anaheim Tennis Club by three comely female members and two youthful male members were present at Tuesday night's session in city hall to request city construction of a "back-board" on which to practice their game.

The position in which Councilmen found themselves came about when the teen-agers presented a check for $50 as part payment of the proposed back-board which was estimated to cost several hundred dollars.

Explanation to the trustees was made by Recreation Director Don Derr who pointed out that a board constructed of redwood would provide the 150 club members with facilities to practice their game by bouncing the ball against the wall.

Sensing their entrapment, the Council members referred plans for the back-board to the administrative officer for study and future action.

BOB WICKS, Editor

Drop the Other Shoe

Yesterday afternoon I stepped into the Bulletin building clutching a handful of glossy eight by ten prints of something I thought rather interesting. To test my judgement, I stepped up to the counter and tossed the pictures under the attractive nose of our new switch-board operator, Nancy Martin.

"Well," I said, "won't she countered cleverly. The people downstairs are a very clever lot."

"The pictures, the pictures," I said indicating the glossy with a forefinger.

She looked down at them, a frown clouding her brow. "Midget Racers," she decided.

"Look again."

"Six old 'midgets' driving them," she suggested uncertainly.

"Kids," I said, "eight and nine year old kids driving quarter midgets."

"Quarter midgets?"

"Real racing cars scaled down to one quarter the size of midget racers," I spread out the prints to give her a better look.

"Oh, kid, that age can't drive cars," she said.

"From age four," I repeated, "four to twelve," I said.

"You're kidding. Where?"

"Now I know you're kidding," she said with an "I'm-wise-to-you" smirk. She went back to the switch-board to plug in an instant call and I came upstairs to editorial to write this column.

I had just finished a bit of lunch with Doug Caruthers, one of the persons responsible for bringing quarter midgets to Anaheim.

He explained to me that the new sport originated recently in Hemet and featured boys and girls racing on a one-twentieth of a mile track following a regular midget type program. Anaheim is the second city to take it up.

All hazards have been removed from the sport by stringent rules and such equipment as crash helmets, goggles, foam-rubber padding, tubular steel car bodies, a hanked macadam apron around the edge of the flat clay track and so on.

The cars are not toys. They're the real thing with two and one-half hp. air-cooled, one cylinder engines with regular foot pedal gas feed and racing type pressure pumps. And some of these kids handle the cars better than the old man manages the family bolt collection.

But winning the race isn't the most important thing about the new sport. Safety is the key factor. So carefully are things supervised that injuries just don't happen.

"My boy, Jimmy's been driving since he was four," Doug had told me about his nine-year-old. "He's had his arm broken, skin scraped, been cut—but not driving the quarter midgets. All these things happened while riding a bicycle or scooter. He's never even scratched the car—not have any of the other boys been banged up because he's true of my other son."

Another feature of the sport is family participation. Fathers and mothers do most of the construction work. The cars usually cost from $100 and $350 which puts quarter midget racing in a general class where everybody can participate.

Still another point is that the sport gives kids driving and mechanical experience at an early age. That will pay off in later life.

Caruthers told me that Anaheim's track officially opens next Sunday with 20 cars set to go. Many entries will be from Hemet and others will be local.

The track will receive its red-clay surface within a day or so and an entire field will be cleared for parking. Spectators can watch from their cars or from the edge of the track where chairs will be set up.

The location is the Viking Trailer Plant at Ball Road and Manchester in Anaheim. There is no charge for admission. Trophies will be awarded winners in the various events. The first race gets underway at 2:30 p.m. with the next two and one-half hours devoted to real serious pin-striated competition.

- It's worth going down just to see the fathers sitting on top of the trophies. The word is that the small fry do a much better job than don't milk as many laughs from the crowd.
- When I remember back to my soap-box racing days—careening down the steep hills I could find at forty miles an hour completely unopposed—I realize how much a program of this type is needed.
- And when I go down stairs, I think I'll just stare at Nancy Martin and wait for her to read this in print. Maybe she'll believe it after all.

Orval's Hit Hard And Pitch Sharp

The Orval's Softball team outfielder, Hart Van Dyke, closed out two home runs and crossed the plate a third time to team with the no-hitter, no-run hurling of Hank Goodhart in downing Cal Research.

These two performances were the most spectacular in four games played in the City Softball circuit.

SPORTS PARADE

OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK—Two veterans who came back were proving to the New York Yankees today that the club policy was wrong when it was decided to "break up the Yankees."

That has been the cry of the American League for years now. It seemed as if the Yankees were going to do it themselves when they peddled off Vic Raschi and Johnny Sain announced his retirement and Allie Reynolds talked of quitting to go into the oil business. The Yanks can be glad that Reynolds changed his mind and that they changed Sain's mind for him.

For as of the moment the Yankee movement has been very close to a failure and it is the old guard which won five straight pennants—the likes of Ed Lopat, Yogi Berra, Reynolds and Sain—that has been keeping the Yankees alive.

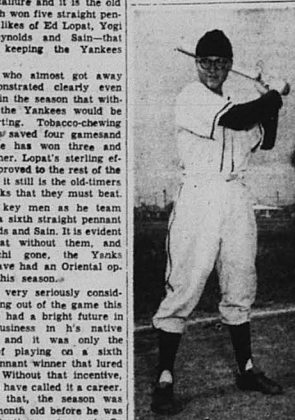

The two who almost got away have demonstrated clearly even this early in the season that without them the Yankees would be really hurting. Tobacco-chewing Johnny has saved four games and Allie has won three and saved another. Lopat's sterling efforts have proved to the rest of the league that it still is the old-timers of the Yanks that they must beat.

But the key men as he team shoots for a sixth straight pennant are Reynolds and Sain. It is evident already that without them, and with Raschi gone, the Yanks wouldn't have had an Oriental opportunity this season.

Reynolds very seriously considered stepping out of the game this season. He had a bright future in the oil business in his native Oklahoma and it was only the prospect of playing on a sixth straight pennant winner that lured him back. Without that incentive, Allie would have called it a career.

Even at that, the season was almost a month old before he was given a starting assignment. On opening day he was called from the bullpen and gave up the 10th inning homer which lost to Washington. It was more than two weeks later before he was given the call to rescue Jim McDonald and went six innings before the Yanks won it for him.

A week later, Allie got his first start, beating Baltimore and Bob Turley. He gave them one hit over seven innings before straining his left leg. Then, after losing the first game of the just completed series with Cleveland, the Yanks needed another "scooper." So they called on the Chief and he won, with help from Sain in the ninth. That was Sain's fourth successful rescue of the season.

GOOD REASON—One of the reasons why the A.L.H.S. baseballers have climbed out of the cellar into the fourth slot in league standings is Don Leish, steady pitcher and hitter for Coach John Wallin. Anaheim takes on third place Orange at La Palma tomorrow afternoon in hopes of advancing up the ladder. There are four more league games.

Dead Marine's Promise to Eight-Year-Old Son Kept by Comrades in El Toro Attack Squadron

By PAT MICHAELS

EL TORO MARINE AIR STATION, (OCNS)—This is the story of an eight-year-old boy and a father's promise.

The father was Major Roy P. Irwin of Santa Ana, a flying leatherneck who was operations officer for the famed "Deathtrappers" Marine Attack Squadron 323. A few months ago, the group left for overseas operations in the Hawaii area. But before they left, Major Irwin made a "goodbye promise" to his son, "Roy," he said, as Mrs. Bailey Irwin recalls, "when I get back, I'm going to take you on a tour of the squadron. We'll have a party and you'll have a chance to meet all the men I fly with... and you'll get to climb inside a 'Pantherjet' and feel the controls yourself."

"Oo" young Roy reportedly said. "The kids at school would sure like to see a Pantherjet. Could I bring them, too?"

Sure. When I get back in the youth's eyes—not like there were in his mother's—that day as he waved goodbye to his father. But he was looking forward to another day. His young chest was filled with pride and promise. "Boy," he said, "I can hardly wait until Dad comes back."

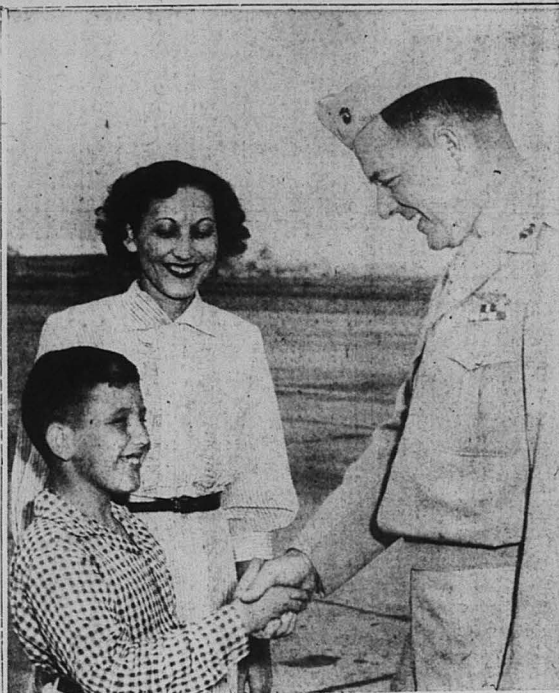

Major Irwin didn't come back. In January, while on a flight for a missing squadron member, Major Irwin's plane plunged to its grave in Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii.

It was the commanding officer of the squadron, Lt. Col. Robert G. Owens, JRM, who remembered the promise. When the "Deathtrappers" roared back into their home base at El Toro a few weeks ago, the husky colonel and his men vowed to keep their dead comrade's pledge to his son.

The promise was kept Tuesday. The long row of Pantherjets lined up in stiff formation along El Toro's runway. The rugged leathernecks who fly the flaming machines stood at stately attention in front of their craft, their uniforms sharply pressed and their ships gleaming in the bright California sun. Down the inspection line came the eight-year-old boy and his mother—followed by his school teacher, Miss Mary Ann, and the 35 members of his third grade class at Glenn Martin grammar school. As the boy passed, each of the grim Marines offered a smart military salute to the son of the man who had been their friend.

After the inspection, there was a party complete with cake, ice cream, soft drinks and a toast to a fellow leatherneck. And then came the big moment... the time when the little Roy was allowed to lead each of his classmates through the cockpit of the mighty fighting planes. They donned jet helmets and they fiddled with the controls—and each of the third-graders were, for the moment, fighting leathernecks, just like the big Marines that surrounded them.

There were tears in the eyes of Mrs. Irwin as she thanked the members of the squadron for their party. Her voice was husky as she stammered "I think Roy's father would have been awfully proud." If Mrs. Irwin had known that there were also tears in the eyes of the husky Marines who had kept the promise.

PROMISE COMES TRUE—Eight-year-old Roy Irwin thanks Lt. Col. Robert G. Owens, the commanding officer of Marine Attack Squadron 323 for making the promise of his dead father come true. He and his mother were guests of honor in a special open house at El Toro Marine station when the squadron returned from overseas Tuesday. The boys' father, Maj. Roy O. Irwin, promised him a tour of the squadron before leaving with the unit for overseas duty. Maj. Irwin was killed before the organization returned and the men of the group put on a lavish party for the youth and 35 of his classmates. (Official U.S. Marine Corps photo)

McCarthy Firm Names County Manager

Concurrently with the opening of its new Anaheim office at 1455 West Lincoln Ave., The McCarthy Company, realtors "Since 1922", operators of a chain of 13 realty branch offices in Southern California announced the appointment of Howard W. Beasley as Branch Manager of the firm's first Orange County office.

Beasley, formerly of the McCarthy firm's Lakewood office, was born in Savage, Montana and came to California in 1919. He is a member of the Carpenters Union A.F. of L. and prior to entering the Real Estate business in 1948, Beasley was employed as a commercial fisherman. His hobbies are hunting and fishing.

The McCarthy office will specialize in the handling of G.I. realties in Anaheim, Fullerton, Garden Grove and Santa Ana, under their policy of making cash purchases of houses direct from their owners and then refinancing the houses with McCarthy funds so it can be resold at a low down payment.

"My firm has given me authority to purchase 20 houses during the month of May," stated Beasley, "and my first order of business will be to purchase homes direct from owners so we will have a large selection of realties to offer."

Two Costa Mesa Principals Plan To Resign Posts

NEWPORT BEACH, (OCNS)—Harrison Sanborn and Ted Neff, principals in a Costa Mesa School District turmoil over their memberships in the Fellowship of Reconciliation and the American Civil Liberties Union, plan to resign from both groups "in the interest of school district harmony."

A statement detailing their reasons for resignation after facing heat of a school board investigation that resulted in decision to retain them in their important elementary school posts, was under preparation this morning. Sanborn told an OCNS newsmen early today.

Sanborn, business manager for the district schools, came under fire when he was charged to the school board that he belonged to an organization which had been cited by a State Senate investigating committee as being a Communist "front" group. Sanborn admitted his membership in the FRC and the ACLU to the board.

At this point, Ted Neff, principal of Everett Hays Intermediate school, came forward to identify himself as a member of both organizations also.

The five-man school board, after a series of closed meetings, voted 4 to 1 to retain the men, stating they did so because neither organization was on the U. S. Attorney General's list of subversive groups. County Counsel's advice was obtained by the board before its action on the issue.

Subsequently, what was probably the largest attended meeting in Mesa school district history, was held by the board last Wednesday night in Harper school. More than 200 persons then heard Chisholm

Brown, board president, explained the board's action. About 30 persons popped questions at the board and to Sanborn who stood on a statement he had crafted Sanborn's belief in the investigation. The statement testified to the board during its announced objectives of the ACLU.

Stanton Youngsters Report En Masse For Little League Baseball Tryouts

STANTON—It was a big day in the lives of Little League hopefuls, Tuesday when official team tryouts began.

Dividing into age groups the eight and nine-year-olds turned out en masse Tuesday evening, with 10, 11 and 12 year olds making their bids tonight.

Under the watchful eyes of Commissioner Arthur Niehaus and team managers W. E. Mohler, Jr., Hal Eastwood, R. S. Underwood, and A. Adams, the would-be baseballers are vying for coveted positions and uniforms, each hoping to be among the "chosen few."

"Each boy has an equal opportunity to win a place on a team's roster," Niehaus explained. "They are selected solely on their ability to play baseball. There are no barriers of race, religion or color in deciding a boy's eligibility for a team. There is no segregation by areas or any other basis which would form boys into cliques. In so ruling, National Little League officials feel that the boys will have an entirely new incentive with the team and the league in which they are playing. This means that the boys are not composed of the students of a given school or the members of a certain church or any other organization," Niehaus said.

In the interest of fairness to the "little fellows" it has been ruled "at no time shall a team have on its roster more than five players whose League Age is 12." The roster totals 15 players, five of these must be 10 years or younger, Niehaus said.

Age limits for the national organization are eight to 12 years with Aug. 1 the date determining "league age." Stanton 10 through 12 year-olds will attend their first practice session this evening at 6 o'clock where they will be given identification numbers to be used during the entire tryout series. The 1963 season showed 2,825 leagues organized comprising 11,837 teams with approximately 178,000 boys 12 years of age and under on the roster of the regular "first" teams. In addition to this, well over 80,000 boys found places on "farm teams." It was explained that Stanton League is the only such organization in the Anaheim trade area.

Yuca Valley Readies For Annual Festival

YUCA VALLEY — The Yuca Valley Chamber of Commerce will hold its fourth Annual Grubstake Days Celebration on Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16. Yuca Valley, a high desert community, is located in the center of the Mojave Basin where it abounds in scenic beauty, especially during the month of May when desert shrubs and cacti are in full bloom. Grubstake Days, as the name suggests, recalls the early era when the prospector with his burro trudged through the desert wastes to the mountains rich with ore. The Grubstake Days Committee, headed by Floyd Peters, general chairman, have put together a forthcoming program filled with exciting events for the two-day celebration.

A huge western parade starting at 10 a.m. Saturday, complete with floats, wagons, stags, mounted entries, Indians, novelty entries and bands will open the celebration. Marine equipment and personnel from the nearby 29 Palms Marine Base will also participate. The gymkhana will get under way at 1 p.m. with riders from all over Southern California participating. Grubstake Days Queen, Sandi Peters, and her court of princesses will reign over the two days festivities and will greet you at the dance on Saturday night. The program will continue on Sunday morning with a breakfast ride. Breakfast will be served at 7 a.m. to riders and non-riders in the world famous Desert Christ Park. Church services on a Soap Box Derby for the youngsters will be run on Apache Trail 9 a.m. Brahms Bull Riding Contest is scheduled for 1 p.m. with Cholla Roping Contest and Broom Polo Game to follow.

Original trophies designed by famous artist, Kirk Martin, and created by master craftsman, Roy Jewett, will be presented to winners of Parade, Gymkhana, and Soap Box Derby events. Ribbon awards will also be presented. The Grand Sweepstakes Award will go to the contestant compiling the most points during the two days. For an exciting and thrill packed weekend plan to be in Yuca Valley on May 15 and 16.

If It's News You'll See It In The Bulletin

WE, AND HUNDREDS MORE friends of our Assemblyman, Leroy E. Lyon Jr., pledge our untiring efforts to keep this outstanding Legislator on the job for the good of the 75th Assembly District—and the county.

NO MAN CAN CLAIM a more brilliant record of achievement as has been Assemblyman Lyon's in his first term; none can claim a more solid program of able representation for the people of his County and District.

SO YOU MAY KNOW something of what he has achieved: he authored and pushed to passage a bill to convert shameful "Tin Can Beach" to Bolsa Chica State Park—to be accomplished when tide-lands, old funds are released; he teamed with State Senator John A. Murry Jr. in passage of major legislation designed to solve our pressing water problems; he is chairman of a subcommittee of the Social Welfare Committee, considering code revisions; he is chairman of a Judiciary subcommittee to study operation and effects of recently-passed laws tightening controls over the sinister traffic in narcotics; and he is conducting hearings, as chairman of a subcommittee on School Home Planning, to find ways and means of effecting economies and give the most school buildings for the fewest dollars.

HIS CAPABLE, HONEST AND UNTIRING SERVICE, his extraordinary sense of fair play, his outstanding ability to get things done, his fulfillment of his pledges, commends him. We think you will agree—that ONE GOOD TERM DESERVES ANOTHER!

"Indivisible, Under God"

It is a most natural consequence to U. S. Senator Homer Ferguson's proposal to incorporate the words "under God" into the Pledge of Allegiance that approval of his Senate resolution has been almost universal in the press and in expressions by civic organizations and individuals.

That proposal marks no departure whatever from traditional American belief and faith — though some people may have a confused notion that our country, because of its constitutional separation of church and state, is officially divorced from religion. This is not so. The Bill of Rights provision that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion" simply means that no creed — Presbyterian, Catholic, Baptist, Episcopalian nor any other — shall be recognized and favored as a national creed. That is the essence of the religious freedom all Americans enjoy.

But as for faith in Divine guidance, the Declaration of Independence defines as "self evident" the truth that all men are "endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights" — a specific avowal of reliance upon God. Every American who possesses a dollar bill has in his hands a representation of the Great Seal of the United States. On that Seal is a symbol of the Eternal Eye of God, and above it the motto Annuit Cœptis, meaning "He Has Favored Our Undertaking." Our very coinage bears the pledge "In God We Trust."

Members of some religious sects have felt that the Pledge of Allegiance, as it now stands, violates their belief that allegiance should be sworn only to the Almighty. The "under God" inclusion may permit them to make the pledge in good conscience.

There remain the atheists. But they are few and don't materially count. And even the atheists, it would seem, have reason for unreserved allegiance to the flag of a country that grants them — under God — the freedom to disbelieve!

Don't Look at Me!

It seems almost a certainty that before so very long it's going to cost 4 cents to mail a letter, with other postal rates upped in proportion. Signs and portents around the Nation's capital indicate this — chief of them being advance attempts to find a "goat" to blame for necessitating the rate boost if and when it comes.

One prime target is the railroads. The Iron Horse, it has been said loud and often, is subsidized by the Federal government for carrying mail. Last week, in fact, the steely equine snorted an indignant denial that he can be blamed in any degree.

The Government did subsidize the early railroads, in encouraging them to push lines into undeveloped territory ahead of settlement, by land grants to a value of 125 million dollars. In return for the grants, however, the roads agreed to carry government traffic at reduced rates. By the time the agreement was terminated, in 1946, the reduced traffic cost was the equivalent of a monetary profit to the U. S. of 1 1/2 billion dollars — or 10 times the value of the lands which the railroads received.

As it is now, according to railroad accountants, they are carrying mail at rates below the cost of the service. And the cost ascertainment reports of the Post Office Department reveal that the rails receive less than one-eighth of a cent for transporting the average 3-cent letter a distance of nearly 500 miles.

"Don't look at me," the Iron Horse snorts. "I've paid for everything Uncle Sam never gave me — and through the nose!"

He seems to have a case.

"MAGIC HILL TOPS . . ."

Once there were ways which Youth alone might know
And curving shore lines here we traced the tide:
Once there were magic hill tops where the glow
Of setting suns our love-trysts glorified:
There too, were game trails, faintly marked and dim—
And hidden nooks where woodland folk could hide:
The storm's soon-passing; huge trees, wide of limb;
Swift streams where trout were quick to take the bait
And silent pools where we could wade or swim!

Now childhood's haunts have changed to real-estate—
(Men search each title for some hidden flaw)—
We hurry back to seek our own—too late:
The woods, the streams, the blackthorn and the haw
Have disappeared into the city's maw!

It must be very flattering to the Democratic Party to have the Communist Party, U.S.A., proffer an invitation to join them, especially as the Communist Party points out, they have so much in common. In the Communist's newest booklet, "The American Way," it is pointedly brought out that the past regime of Roosevelt was aiming at the very objectives of the Communist Party . . . "What is needed is a new Administration which starts to build again where the New Deal left off."

Those who claim that Communism and Socialism are two separate forms of governmental operation do not know their Communism. The Communists know that to have a true socialistic state is to embrace their form of life. Quoting from page 20, VII Communists Aims and Perspectives . . . "The Communist Party, basing itself on the scientific principles of Marxism-Leninism, believes in socialism as the ultimate solution for the problems of our nation. Modern industrial production under capitalism is a vast social process, but it is operated for private enrichment and not for the public good. It is this contradiction that socialism would resolve. Socialism alone would utilize to the fullest the immense scientific and technical know-how of the American people, including atomic energy . . ."

This columnist has been scored previously for pointing out the similarity between the two, and those who have pointed out the inroads that socialism has made in the text and teachings in our schools have been scoffed at, but the Communists have placed the similarity in print.

You either have a Socialistic-Communist nation or you have a Republic, there is no in between.

Those who are working for socialism are working for Communism, those who are attempting to swing back the pendulum to the right, clear out the socialistic tendencies in our government and civic life are working for a Republic.

Your Birthday Forecast

THURSDAY, MAY 13—Born today, you have special talents which you should develop early in life. In fact, you are not inclined to believe in yourself enough. You are determined and want to be a grand success, yet you are not as pushing as you should be. You are really a rather serious person, yet external appearances do not always give this impression.

You are a gregarious, social soul and have a very strong love nature. You like to be among friends and will sometimes put off a real duty for pleasure. This is a mistake, you will have to wait in your early years, if you are to reach the heights to which your talents should entitle you.

Othman's Views on Washington Scenes

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

WASHINGTON — Most startling news at the McCarthy-Army hearings, I guess, were the barefoot lady and the four beards (also shoeless), who'd been waiting since dawn to get in.

The lady wore a long yellow robe, which came almost to her feet. So did one of the gentlemen. The other three were clad in pale gray of similar cut. The lady had a veil over her head. The four gentlemen with the long whiskers were their hair in twin braids of schoolboy type.

So, as I say, they waited and they waited with their feet on the senatorial marble (I reached down and felt it and it was cold) and when finally they got into the Senate Caucus Room the statesmen still were arguing, interminably, about how to speed up the proceedings.

The shoeless ones, who identified themselves as members of a religious cult at Ventura, Calif., found a chance to get in, but for a reason not so much as they had hoped. They were not the witnesses called to testify, but rather the witnesses called to testify that the witnesses called to testify were not the witnesses called to testify.

Some other things happened, too, but not many, and the senators adjourned for lunch, when they met again — secretly — to decide what to do about the witnesses. What they didn't get anywhere. And what of the barefoot ones? They sat in their chairs until the last messenger and the last member of the jam-packed audience had left. Then they waited. Their idea simply was that it didn't pay to do any walking.

Well, sir, the secretary had the names, all right, but they were listed in the midst of a report maybe 500 pages long and he began to read it. He said if he could climb out of the witness chair someday soon, he'd take a gander and furnish the members of the jam-packed audience had left. Then they waited. Their idea simply was that it didn't pay to do any walking.

As It Was Told To Me

By HARMAN NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP) — If you are confused by the switch from slow to fast time, listen to what I heard from an old-timer who said it all used to be called "God's time."

The Association of American Railroads has a most interesting bundle of anecdotes about the confusion that existed before 1883 when "standard time" went into effect.

Before the time the law went into effect there were nearly 100 different time zones, based on the passage of the sun. In Chicago, people were always missing trains or getting aboard too early.

One of the most amusing anecdotes is about a man who was waiting for a train in New York. He was standing at the end of the municipal pier in Chicago and had a pal waiting at the Northwestern Station on West Madison St. By the clock you were 10 seconds apart.

From one end of the Brooklyn Bridge in New York to the other was five seconds different. In Washington, before the clocks were synchronized, there were seven seconds difference between the Capitol and the Lincoln Memorial.

"It was," according to Corlies, "when it was noon in Pittsburgh it was 12:31 in the sun in Chicago; 12:17 in Louisville; 12:07 in Indianapolis; 11:50 in St. Paul; 11:48 in St. Paul; and 11:27 in Omaha."

Daylight time is somewhat of a problem now. Corlies says, "but even with the switching from town to town, it doesn't give us the headache it used to."

Objects of interest are televised. "She feels the program is useful because it gives many children benefit of a nursery school who otherwise couldn't go." She thinks parents also should watch the program last year, but today she's passed up Arthur Godfrey in popularity.

Frances Horwich was a department head at Roosevelt College in Chicago when NBC asked her to star on the first program, "The Big Show." The program was a success, and she was the star of the show.

"I knew I was reading, and I could tell what they were saying," she smiled today. "Some of the remarks were pretty rough."

"But today the crew members come to me with questions on how to bring up the children. And once when I had live chickens on the show, many of the crew had never seen chickens and they were fascinated."

The Laughing Looners, a comedy troupe, has been awarded a scholarship in Dr. Horwich's name. Mrs. Prince, as she's called, receives "at least 50" requests a week to speak before parent-teacher groups or at schools. This was the first time Hollywood for two days to dedicate a new nursery school.

Her "class" is figured at 65 million requests. She's received 140,000 fan letters and last Christmas counted 7,000 cards. Some TV stars collect lavish gifts from admirers, but Horwich gets such meager gifts as a bottle of perfume and a little boy's front tooth.

On Dr. Horwich's program she shows the unseen pupils how to finger paint, with pumpkins, listen to music. Animals, dolls from various countries and other

The David Lawrence Dispatch

By DAVID LAWRENCE

GENEVA, May 13—Maybe before many weeks have elapsed, President Eisenhower will be standing in the presence of both Houses of Congress with a request for a joint resolution authorizing the United States to take military action in the Pacific and could require immediate action then without the opportunity to consult Congress. Such an unprecedented move has been under consideration in Washington as a precautionary measure, but the Senate that could shape a decision by the President to go before Congress fortunately have not occurred as yet. But they could conceivably happen as a consequence of a fearful turn in Communist policy, which now is suddenly stepping up military aid from Red China to the Communists in Indo-China.

Flushed with their success at Dien Bien Phu, the Communists are beginning to act in a more aggressive way if they want to prolong the sessions indefinitely while their military effort in Indo-China is accelerated.

The Paris government has been reluctant to let the matter go to the United Nations, not only because it would furnish a precedent for the Communists to go to the United Nations after all, and the Tunisian and Moroccan issues but because of the certainty that the question would merely drag on without a decision.

Circumstances have arisen, however, which might make it desirable for the question to go to the United Nations after all, and Mr. Eisenhower might find it desirable to ask for a joint resolution to take the matter to the United Nations at the same time. For, if the Communists' aggression in Indo-China is to be halted, it apparently will not be at the conference table.

The Soviet delegation shows no signs of moderating the demands of its satellite in Indo-China and the danger is that, coupled with the recently exhibited weakness and disension of the Allies, further military moves will be overnight made to alter the whole situation.

Regrettably, military force is the only language the Communists have shown any sign of understanding. America has no desire to move alone in these troubled times, but until the Congress of the United States has taken action, nations will wonder if any such authority will ever be forthcoming.

So, as a means of bringing about a strong and united defense of Indo-China and in order to strengthen America's hand in negotiations with its allies by making the world's opinion already given really meaningful, President Eisenhower may find he has no other course but to lay all the facts before the two Houses and ask for a necessary authority to act in cooperation, of course, with our allies.

The crisis seems nearer than most people think.

Four Mozart Sonatas

FOUR of Mozart's violin-piano sonatas are presented as played by two musicians unknown in this country, and the principal recitalist is a young man named Mass "in 53 parts" and the hymn to St. Rupertus by Oratio Benolvi which helped concentrate Salberg's choir in 1948. It's big and impressive, grand-dad, and it's a huge choir and four vocal quartets each singing solo and supported by full symphony and by organ.
