IKE WARNS RED THREAT TO WORLD SERIOUS

FRENCH PLANES HIT RED REBELS—Long columns of Communist troops (black arrows) flowed Southeastward below the Red River Delta in an apparent move to seal off the triangular battleground (dotted launching a grand offensive against the Delta area and Hanoi (dotted area). French pilots said the Communist forces were moving toward Thanh Hoa, in Northern Annam. The Red columns, including thousands of the troops that conquered Dien Bien Phu, were reported strung out for miles through the rugged mountain country south and southwest of the Delta. The French claimed their pilots, using American-supplied B-26s, Corsairs and Privateers, scored "100 per cent destruction" in combined air and ground attack on two Viet Minh bases for 1000 Communists just north of the vital Hanoi-Haiphong railway and highway.

President Slates Major Policy Speech Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will call for public support for his legislative program tonight in his first major policy speech in nearly two months.

The White House refused to give any details. But there was speculation that the chief executive might also discuss the explosive Indochina crisis and possible U.S. involvement.

Observers noted it is unusual for the President to make an important radio-television address on such short public notice—less than 48 hours. They also pointed out that it comes hard on the heels of Wednesday's meeting of the National Security Council.

Mr. Eisenhower will speak at a meeting of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee, a 1952 campaign organization, between 6 and 7 p.m. PDT. Most major networks planned some coverage.

The President is described as extremely anxious to get the bulk of his ambitious legislative program through Congress before it adjourns, possibly by July 31. He told his news conference last Wednesday that he would take every opportunity to discuss it with members of Congress and the public.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr. (Mass) are among the other guests scheduled to speak on tonight's program.

15 Colombians Die In Red-Inspired Riots in Bogota

BOGOTA, Colombia (UP) — Armed troops and police patrolled the city's streets from midnight past dawn today to enforce security measures imposed because of Communist-agitated disorders that claimed at least 15 lives.

Government spokesmen blamed Communists and other extremist elements for provoking the bloody clashes between students and troops during the past two days.

The dead included 12 students, two soldiers and one woman. More than 20 persons were wounded.

Among restrictions announced by the government Wednesday night were a 10 p.m. curfew and a ban on all public meetings. All restaurants, night clubs, bars and movie theaters were closed.

The first clash, in which one student was killed, occurred Tuesday during a student commemoration of a similar incident 25 years ago. Fourteen died in Wednesday's clash which came when hundreds of students staged a protest march toward the center of the city.

Three blocks from the presidential palace they found their way blocked by army troops. When the students ignored orders to halt, the troops opened fire.

Most Incumbents Face Runoffs in November Election

By JAMES C. ANDERSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Almost every incumbent state office holder, legislator and congressman from Gov. Goodwin J. Knight on down faced a November runoff today in the wake of an astonishing primary election.

Jubilant Democrats, out of power in California for 14 years, claimed results in Tuesday's primary election show that the traditionally Independent California voter finally has decided to ballot strictly along party lines.

Payoff in November

With Democrats outnumbering Republicans by more than 750,000 minority party leaders hoped the payoff election in November would find Democrats picking up strength in both Congress and the Legislature and seizing some traditional GOP state offices as well.

Late returns from the state's 22,524 precincts showed these results:

1. November contests between Republicans and Democrats for governor, lieutenant governor, U. S. senator, secretary of state, controller and treasurer. All those posts currently are filled by Republicans. The only primary election double winner was a Democrat, Atty. Gen. Edmund G Brown.

Races for Congress

2. Runoffs in the fall for 28 of the state's 30 seats in the House of Representatives. The only two primary election winners were Democrats John F. Shelley in the fifth district and Clair Engle in the second. The current congressional alignment is 19 Republicans and 11 Democrats.

3. Clashes on Nov. 9 in nine state Senate districts. The primary saw the defeat of oldtimer Jack B. Tenney, Republican senator from Los Angeles County, and unexpected opposition from Democrats to such well entrenched GOP senators as Arthur H. Breed of Alameda County, F. Presley Abshire in Sonoma and J. Howard Williams of Tulare County.

4. Runoffs in the next election in at least 56 Assembly districts of the contests settled in the primary, Republicans won 11, Democrats 11, with two races still undecided. Showing by Democrats was surprising in view of the fact that the present makeup of the lower house of the Legislature is 52,26 in favor of the GOP.

Other Surprises

Actually, the primary election, marked for the first time by the party label appearing on the ballot after each candidate's name, produced some shocks for Democrats and Republicans alike.

The list of surprises included Knight's failure to win the Democratic nomination from Richard

McCarthy Renews 'Blackmail' Charge In Connection With Loyalty Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy testified today that Army counselor John G. Adams warned him last January that the McCarthy subcommittee might we "wrecked" if it didn't cancel subpenas for members of the Army Loyalty Board.

He charged that Adams used a "combination of salesmanship and threats" in a "blackmail" attempt to get him to abandon efforts to call members of the board before the subcommittee for questioning.

McCarthy charged that the threats were made the night of Jan. 22, when Adams spent three hours visiting McCarthy's home.

He said Adams warned he would release a report charging that Roy M. Cohn, McCarthy's chief counsel, was using "improper influence" to get special treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, unpaid McCarthy subcommittee consultant until he was drafted last Nov. 3.

McCarthy called it Adams' boldest threat."

"He told me," said McCarthy, "that it (the Cohn)Schine report) might wreck the committee... that it would be better to cancel the call to the loyalty board members than wreck the committee."

The "blackmail" charge against Adams, which the Army counselor has previously denied under oath, was the high point of McCarthy's direct testimony at the 31st day of the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Special counsel Ray H. Jenkins, who began his friendly direct examination of McCarthy late yesterday, ended that phase just when the hearing recessed for lunch. McCarthy faced cross-examination by Jenkins in the afternoon session.

Water Wells in County Assessed

SANTA ANA, (OCNS) — The Orange County Water District board of directors yesterday afternoon levied a $2.50 per acre foot water assessment on the county's 4000 wells to replenish fast - fading water supply in the area.

The board estimated that it will take $693,000 to purchase replenishment water in the upcoming year. The levy is expected to provide the sum.

It is the first time such an action has been taken in the county. Anticipated extraction from county wells in 1954-55 is set at approximately 220,000 acre feet. That figure will include both native water and water brought in from the Colorado river. Tremendous increase in population and lack of rainfall have caused the county's water supply to sink to dangerous level. Overdraft of 71,000 acre feet for instance, was recorded during the past year.

Colorado River water will be piped into the county and be allowed to sink into underground acquifers, mixing with the native supply, it was explained. More than 80,000 acre feet of water is necessary to "Hold the line." Current county water levels range from 15.8 to about 40 feet below sea level.

Instigated by the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce at the request of Disneyland officials, Ernest Moeller, manager of the local chamber told the Councilmen that sufficient residents within the proposed annexation have expressed a desire to be included in the large annexation.

The area affected is roughly described as lying south of the property proposed for the Ball Road No. 2 annexation, extending west to Euclid avenue and east along Katella avenue to the freeway and north to Ball Road but excluding certain parcels of land therein.

The Councilmen approved the motion to refer the matter to the City Planning Commission for study, notification and details.

Says Won't Ask Yet to Join French

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower said today he has no plan now to ask Congress for authority to intervene in Incochina.

But he added at his weekly news conference that the United States is in a truly serious situation as far as the Communist world threat is concerned.

The President went on to say, however, that he thinks his military budget is now large enough.

Mr. Eisenhower was asked whether he thought it would be feasible to ask Congress, before it adjourns, to vote him standby authority to intervene in Incochina if he deems intervention necessary.

Would Ask Congress

He replied that he has no such plan at this moment. He said any such thing would have to come up at the crest of some crisis. He again gave reassurance that he would ask Congress for authority before committing U. S. force in Indochina.

On other subjects, Mr. Eisenhower told reporters:

1. He still supports all Republican candidates as a basic principle because he believes the President's party should have control of Congress if it is to be responsible. But he added that he hoped the reporter who asked the question would not be specific as to candidates because it might be embarrassing to the President.

2. He believes the United States should give its Allies more military atomic information.

Secret Information

3. He considers that reserve officers of the armed services, as well as those on active duty, commit a reprehensible act when they participate in the unauthorized distribution of secret and confidential information.

The name of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) was not mentioned either by the question or the answer about reserve officers. McCarthy is a reserve officer in the Marine Corps.

4. The President has not abandoned the Randall Commission's program calling for a three-year extension of the reciprocal trade agreements law with authority for the President to cut tariffs an additional 15 per cent. He said he is going along with a one-year extension only to give Congress more time to study controversial features of the Randall proposals. He denied emphatically that he has agreed to any provision that would bar him from making any further trade agreements during a one-year extension.

Increased City Expenses Told Retailers Group

Explanation of the various increases the city is incurring because of its tremendous expansion was explained to merchants today at the regular monthly meeting of the retail division of the Chamber by City Administrator Keith Murdoch.

All phases of municipal government are affected by the huge increase in population and all departments are being hard hit by additional expenses making it necessary for the city to find a way to obtain additional revenue, Murdoch added. He cited several means of raising more funds for the city.

Harold Smith, outgoing chairman of the retailers group, was presented with a plaque for outstanding service to the division.

Member George Stewart announced today's meeting was the last he would attend because of his appointment as district sales manager for the J. C. Penney Stores.

Residents Object to Rezoning of Property on South Los Angeles Street

Residents of MacArthur Manor and surrounding area appeared before the City Council last night to voice bitter objections to the reclassification petition of C. A. Zimmermann, 805 South Los Angeles St., who requested that his property, at the southwest corner of South street and South Los Angeles street, be rezoned from R-3, multiple family residential to C-1, neighborhood commercial zone.

After listening to lengthy arguments, the Council moved to postpone any decision until their next meeting. Protests filed centered around the objection to any business establishments that could locate on the land. Residents claimed that their property values would be lowered and objectional noises and fumes would be detrimental.

Council denied Homer H. Fuller's rezoning petition requesting that a portion of the property at southwest corner of Acacia street and Pinewood avenue be reclassified from R-A residential - agricultural, to C-1 for the purpose of establishing a neighborhood grocery store.

The Council did approve three of five reclassification petitions last night. Receiving their okay was the request by the City Planning Commission to rezone, from R-A to R-1, that property north of Eastwood Drive along the east side of North East street and along the south side of East La Palma avenue. That area lying westerly of North east street between East Wilhelmina and East North streets westerly to North Bush street, and the area bounded by the north side of East North street, the A.T.&S.F. 'Rube Goldberg' Type Contraption Fails Man in Attempted Suicide

LOS ANGELES (UP)—A man with a bizarre imagination seriously wounded himself in an apparent suicide attempt with a home-made "Rube Goldberg" type death contraption, police reported today.

Wounded in the chest by the weird and complicated rig last night was Ralph Shubert, 24-year-old unemployed father.

Police said Shubert had first spread gasoline about his house last night while his wife, Jeannette, and his three small children were away. He then turned on gas jets on the stove and ignited the gasoline.

At this point, he apparently sat down in a chair and subjected himself to his "death machine."

Detectives reconstructed the fantastic event as follows:

1. Shubert bolted a .38 caliber pistol to a board and screwed the board to a coffee table.

2. He tied one end of a 10-yard piece of gauze to the pistol trigger and the other end to a mixmaster in the kitchen to facilitate the firing of all the gun's bullets.

3. He tied two heavy window sashweights together and attached them to threads hanging from a spot on the wall above a chair at which the gun was pointed.

When the fire started, Shubert apparently turned on the mixer, raced to the chair and sat down either to be shot by the pistol or have the flames burn the threads and drop the weights upon his head.

But things didn't go as apparently planned, detectives said. The gauze broke after the first shot and the bullet struck Shubert in the shoulder and embedded itself in his chest.

He staggered outside the burning house and neighbors summoned police.

Voters Apparently Reject Proposal For Los Angeles Civic Auditorium

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Voters apparently rejected Proposition F on the county election ballot a proposal for construction of a civic auditorium-but its proponents still hoped today a final tally might give it the necessary two-thirds majority needed for passage.

With nearly all of the votes tabulated, the measure still lacked the majority and was losing ground.

A companion amendment, Proposition G, which provides for operational means for the auditorium, passed handily but was automatically doomed without approval of Proposition F.

The election also saw defeat of a proposition which would have increased salaries of city councilmen. Salaries will remain at $7200 a year instead of going to $11,250 as proposed.

A proposal to build a $1,900,000 juvenile hall passed.

In other returns, Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz was returned to his sixth term by defeating John C. Doran.

County Supervisors John Anson Ford and Herbert C. Legg defeated their opponents, city councilman Ernest Debs and Willis Bradley. Burton Chace was unopposed. County assessor John R. Quinn also got in unopposed.

Mrs. Mildred Younger won handily the Republican nomination for state senator over incumbent Jack Tenney and will oppose Democrat Richard Richards in the November runoff.

Fear British Navy Yacht Captured By Red Pirates

HONG KONG (UP)—A British Navy pleasure yacht with nine sailors aboard was four days over-due off the Red China coast today touching off fears it was captured or sunk by the Commists.

The Royal Navy said the 72-foot yacht Elinor sailed June 1 for Tole Harbor, nine miles north of Hong Kong, near Red China mainland, and was scheduled to return here last Sunday. It hall one officer and eight British seamen aboard.

Informed sources said an extensive air and sea search showed no trace of the yacht which had been give to the Navy for recreation of seamen and had berths for 12 persons.

The Navy announcement of the yacht's disappearance indicated the yacht was captured or sunk by the Communists, the sources said.

However, the Navy said "The Elinor has adequate water and provisions aboard and the delay in her return may well be due to a lack of wind and failure of her small auxiliary engine. No undue anxiety should yet be felt," the Navy said.

The disappearance recalled the capture 15 months ago by the Chinese Communists of two American newsmen and a merchant marine captain sailing from Hong Kong to Macau on a small yacht.

The three were Richard Applegate of the National Broadcasting Company, a former war correspondent for the United Press in Korea, Donald Dixon of the International News Service and Capt. Ben Krasher. They were jailed by the Reds.

The United States has opened negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland, with the Chinese Communists to obtain their release along with 29 other American civilians "law violations."

3-D TV a Reality In Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Three dimension television was a reality in Mexico City today.

TV station XHGC yesterday telecast the first program in a series it hailed as the world's first commercial 3-D transmission. The first program adding depth to the picture was 20 minutes long and was seen by an estimated 3,000 persons.

The new system was invented by an American, James Butterfield, 33, of Chicago, who uses the name "Jaime Del Campo" in Mexico.

Viewers used special glasses to translate the double image transmitted by HGC into an intelligible picture. They had to sit within three or four feet of the screen to get the effect of depth, but Butterfield said his company intended to produce adjustable glasses that would let watchers sit further back.

Newsmen and engineers who saw the first broadcast at HGC's studio said there was illusion of depth, but technicians had difficulty making the two images merge.

Butterfield, a onetim epolio victim, said his 3-D process used a special optical lens which is slipped over the lens of any ordinary TV camera.

"It's the first simple, easy to use system put into use," Butterfield said. "We're starting with a half hour program daily, but I feel certain that before long a good percentage of the television programs in this city will be 3-D."

Border Patrol Opens Major Drive Against Mexican 'Wetback' Laborers

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UP)—The Border Patrol strengthened its forces along the U. S.-Mexican border today in a major offensive against Mexican "wetback" laborers causing "the greatest peacetime invasion in this nation's history."

Harlon B. Carter, Border Patrol chief from Washington, said here the Border Patrol would begin immediately to triple its strength to halt the rapid and serious increase of wetbacks entering the United States illegally.

Meanwhile, Herman Landon, Los Angeles district director of the U. S. Immigration Service, aid the campaign against the Mexican braceros was ordered by Attorney General Herbert Brownell, who has expressed alarm over the situation.

In Washington, Brownell said wetbacks no longer were "a local problem in the southwest" but were creating concern nationally.

"Illegal immigrants are heading for industrial areas where they are seeking employment ..." brownell said. "They are displacing domestic workers, affecting working conditions, spreading disease and contributing to our crime rates."

The local chief Border Patrol inspector, Ed Parker, said the focal point of the wetback invasion is California's Imperial Valley and Arizona's Yuma Valley.

Another Border Patrol official who withheld his name termed the crossing of Mexican workers at the Mexican border "The greatest peacetime invasion in this nation's history."

Carter said only 150 patrolmen now are covering 190 miles of the border and northward to Los Angeles, Las Vegas, Nev., and the Grand Canyon in Arizona.

He said employers of wetbacks in this country obviously feel they can always get the foreign labor because of the difficulty of so few patrolmen guarding such a large area.

Wetbacks are hired by border area U.S. farmes and producemen for as low as 40 cents an hour, Carter added, as compared to the prevailing wages paid to American farm workers of 70 cents or better.

Most Incumbents Face Runoffs in November

P. Graves, a man who never before had tried for public office and who was virtually unknown to the general public although he was familiar to politicians in his role as chief of the League of California Cities.

Knight, one of the most active campaigners in politics, concentraded on winning the Democratic bid. But despite the endorsement of the AFL and an intensive campaign in the working class section of Los Angeles, Knight trailed in that vote-heavy metropolitan area by more than 30,000 and ran behind Graves statewide by nearly 100,000 votes.

Knight had no trouble, however, in winning his own party's nomination. And he stressed that he got more than twice as many votes as Graves as he predicted an ultimate victory in November.

Runoffs also were in prospect for three of the four $14,000 a year posts on the Board of Equalization. In the first district, veteran George Reilly, a Democrat, faced a November challenge from Republican Stuart McClure, a San Francisco newspaperman.

Republican James H. Quinn was unopposed in the second district but Paul Leake, the Democratic incumbent in the third, must face Republican Clint Duffey again in five months.

Residents Object to Rezoning Petition

sion of East La Palma avenue and North East street.

Also receiving approval was the reclassification request of Raymond E. Miller, 7861 Acacia St., for the rezoning of the northwest corner of Acacia street and East La Palma avenue, from R-A to R-1.

The third to receive the Council's nod was the petition of Mrs. Lucile L. Lewis of Los Angeles who asked that the triangular piece of property bounded by Gilbert street, West La Palma avenue and Manchester Blvd., be rezoned from R-A to M-1, light manufacturing zone. This is the property on which the Carnation Milk Co. intends to build their Anaheim plant.

HAL 'BOB' THOMAS . . . At Rendezvous

Local Musician Plays At Rendezvous, Balboa, Saturday

Balboa Rendezvous ballroom offers an excellent program of dancing and entertainment this Saturday night with three outstanding features for devotees of the dance. Anaheim's own Hal (Bob) Thomas, and his Californians will furnish the dance music and will be joined by the Pied Pipers and June Christy.

Hal, under contract to Trend Records has recently recorded four sides for that company and his summer. The Pied Pipers were first record is due for release this used to back up both sides.

"Sorghum switch" is a medium shuffle with a great big beat. It is a revival of an old melody with new lyrics written by Hal. "The Face is Familiar," is a new ballad with a beautiful melody and good set of lyrics. Hall does the vocal, it too is backed up Pied Pipers.

LOVELY LACE GOWN—Helen O'Connor wore lace and nylon net wedding dress when she said her vows with Don Lehmer of Anaheim. (Arsene photo)

Lehmer-O'Connor, Nuptials Read in Grove Church; Couple on Northern Honeymoon

Leisurely wedding their way up the coast on their honeymoon are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Eugene Lehmer with their future plan including their first home in Anaheim. Mrs. Lehmer is the former Helen Mary O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Connor of 121251 Stanford Ave., Garden Grove. Her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lehmer of 208 North Clementine St.

They were married in the Catholic church at Garden Grove by the Rev. Father Murphy last Saturday at one o'clock in the afternoon with the bride's father giving her in marriage. She was lovely in her gown of delicate lace the moulded bodice neckline outlined with the lace edge, the sleeves long and pointed with a tiny turned down collar to the sheer net yoke. The skirt was beautifully fashioned with a peplum detail to the top skirt, this designed with lace and to the full nylon net skirt worn with the lace a dainty panel detail over satin-taffeta. She had a pearled lace crescent head-piece to her short veil and an exquisite orchid centered her bouquet arrangement of stephanotis.

Only One Attendant

Elegant simplicity was the style influence of the maid gown worn by Miss Shirley Rondeau of Oxnard, only attendant to the bride. It was designed from yellow nylon net, with a very bouffant skirt. Her bouquet was of blue flowers and her head dress harmonized with her formal ensemble.

Little Miss Sandra Lehmer, niece girl. Her dress was in blue nylon of the bridegroom, was the flower net over matching taffeta and she carried a basket filled with yellow daisies and yellow daisies in her hair.

Attending to bestman duties was Roger Acton.

Altar of the church was impressive with arrangements of white blossoms with the altar candles burning throughout the nuptial rites. Nuptial music included "Ave Maria."

Have Chapel Reception

Reception honors followed the ceremony at the Capilla de San Antonio with the parents of the young couple receiving the hosts of guests with them. Mrs. O'Connor chose a turquoise-toned lace gown, her accessories in soft pink shade and her corsage fashioned from pink rose buds.

The bride'w table was centered with the tiered wedding cake, traditionally decorated, with lighted candles and flowers flanking the confection. In keeping with the bride's color theme for her wedding, frosty mint green punch was served. Friends of the young couple assisted in reception hostessing with Miss Barbara Bartlett attending to the guest book.

When Mrs. Lehmer said her farewells as the bridal couple left on their honeymoon, she was wearing a cream toned suit, her accessories in red and the orchid from her bridal bouquet pinned to the lapel of her jacket. She is a graduate of New Hampshire schools and is presently engaged as hygienist with Dr. L. Kenneth Heuler of this city.

Her bridegroom, well known in Anaheim where he graduated from both grade and high school received his degree at Pepperdine college, Los Angeles and later attended Cal-Tech at Pasadena. He has had service in the Navy and is now with GMAC, Long Beach office.

Fabulous Collection Now on Display

Thousands of sea shell specimens, which comprised the private collection of Fred R. Aldrich, were acquired by the Balboa Pavilion at Newport Beach and recently moved to the second floor of the pavilion building where they are now on public display.

The pavilion is located at 400 Main St. in the center of the Balboa Beach area. It is one of the familiar landmarks of the Newport Bay district. Here on the second floor of the Pavilion, over a million specimens of shells from all parts of the world can be seen.

Collectors of shells are known as "conchologsits". There are many hundreds of men, women and children throughout Southern California who zealously follow this hobby. While Aldrich's private collections were widely known, few were ever given the privilege of seeing them during his lifetime. Aldrich died last year. Now, for the first time, his fabulous collections are made available.

The Aldrich collections were dedicated last month. They are to be permanently known as the "Aldrich Museum."

BOB ZIMMER, Editor

SIDELINE SUPPOSITIONS

BY BOB ZIMMER

Anaheim High athletes finished third in the battle for the all-sports trophy of the Sunset League this school year.

Fullerton paced the loop with 72 1/2 points based on competition by all weight teams in all sports; points the Colonists tallied 52½, followed by Santa Ana, 48 1/2; Huntington Beach, 45½, and Orange, 22 5/6.

Anaheim made 11 of a possible 18 points in football, 16 of 24 in basketball, 2½ of 12 in cross country, 8 of 18 in swimming, 4 of 18 in track, 6 of 12 in baseball and 5 of a possible 12 in tennis.

LONG WINS C - NOTE

Dale Long of the Hollywood Stars became the first player this season to collect $100 from the Mutual Citrus Products of Anaheim for smacking a home run against the MCP's lemon ad above the right field fence at Gilmore Field. Long hit the required target which is 10 feet in diameter.

TO AND ABOUT HITTERS

He couldn't hit a bunch of bananas with a baja fiddle.

Is this a union of some kind? Does everybody strike?

He couldn't hit a pushball with a paddle.

He couldn't hit the ground with his hat.

TO AND ABOUT FIELDERS

You don't need a glove, you need a basket.

He plays his position on a dime. Hey, butterfingers, can't you find the handle?

He's a traffic cop. He waves the ball through.

TO AND ABOUT PITCHERS

Get the water good and hot (in the shower)

He's got nothing on the ball but the cover.

He couldn't hit the plate with radar.

That's no curve. It's a wrinkle. Let him hit ya! He couldn't dent a grape.

Get the sky hook — he's up in the air.

Shut the gate, Nanny is wandering.

TO AND ABOUT UMPIRES

Where's your seeing eye dog?

You're their tenth man, where's your uniform?

Where do they meet you for the payoff?

Where'd ya leave the tin cup and pencils?

SIDELINE SHORTS

Loren Herman of Anaheim has been awarded a golf letter at Cal Poly at San Luis Obispo . . . Several Anaheim athletes received spring sports letter awards at Orange Coast and Fullerton Junior College this week . . . The Pirate group included Pat Roberts, Gayle Herbel, John Steinborn, Ed Herrera, Dick Ramella and George Bishop in baseball. Dick Hanson in tennis, and Loren Kemper in track . . . The Hornets honored Richard Gonzales, Norman Sagara and Dave Tuayer in baseball; Floyd Baker in tennis, Bob Calvo and Ed Keeley in track and Al Clayes in swimming.

Tomorrow night's mile race between Wes Santee of Kansas and Joey Barthel of Luxemborg at the Coliseum promises to be one for the book . . . Barthel won the 1500-meter title in the 1952 Olympics defeating among others, Roger Bannister, world record holder of the mile, and John Landy . . . Santee came within .4 of a second of Bannister's world mark last week at Compton and with a little pressure, should be able to become the second man in history to run the mile under four minutes.

Bill Russell commissioner of the CIF, Southern Section, since 1950, will resign his present position to become assistant executive secretary of the State CIF as of July 1 . . . Applications are now being taken for a successor . . . Orange County schools may not be able to participate in the Pomona and San Diego baseball tournaments next year because of a proposal to hold the spring vacation at the end of the third quarter instead of Easter Week . . . That will probably mean two wild weeks at the beach.

Schmitt Runs In NCAA Meet

Rel Schmitt, former Anaheim High School track and basketball star, left by plane this morning for Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will compete for the Occidental College track squad in the NCAA track and field championships this weekend.

Following the NCAA meet, Schmitt will fly to St. Louis to compete for the Los Angeles Athletic Club in the AAU championships.

Schmitt, whose best clocking of 47.6 in the 440 ranks fifth in the nation, recently captured the Southern California Intercollegiate Conference title while setting a new conference record of 48.4s.

Schmitt has improved his time steadily since competing for Anaheim High. His high school coach, Sam Keith, has attributed this to his "sheer determination rather than natural ability."

Schmitt's chief rival at Ann Arbor will be Jim Lea of SC, whose time of 47s. is the best in the nation. Other outstanding quarter-mile aces include Jill Jones of Manhattan, 47.3s; Bob Rogers of Morgan, 47.4s., and Dick Colbroth of Columbia, 47.8s.

PCC Relaxes Rules on Frosh Sports

SPOKANE — Faculty representatives of the nine Pacific Coast Conference schools faced a crowded agenda today as they prepared to wind up their four-day spring meeting.

The directors relaxed some restrictions on freshmen games and acted on a record number of 35 cases of violation of conference rules by member schools yesterday.

In other action, Henry (Red) Sanders of UCLA was named president of the Coaches Association replacing Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf of the University of California.

The conference also set the opening of fall football practice for Sept .1 annually to confirm to NCAA rules. The PCC previously allowed practice to begin 18 days before the first game of the season. This year, the Sept. 1 date will cut twodays off the previous practice time.

The directors revised two rules affecting freshmen sports. One would allow three frosh football games per season instead of two and the other would allow 15 freshman basketball games a season instead of 10.

In disciplinary cases, conference spokesman H. P. (Dick) Everest of the University of Washington said the violations "ran the gamut from mild to very serious."

Records were closed on 22 of the 35 cases, three were referred back to the schools for disciplinary action, two wer ereported back with a reprimand, seven were reported back for clarification and one was reported to the commissioner's office for investigation.

No fines were levied and details of the violations were not released.

Stars Clinch Host Spot in PCL All-Star Battle

By PETER HAYES
United Press Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — It'll be the Hollywood Stars against the cream of the Coast League June 21 in the movie city.

The high-flying Twinks knocked over Los Angeles, 7-1, last night, thus assuring themselves of being in first place next Monday. That's the requisite for the host team in this year's renewal of the PCL all-star game. The win coupled with San Francisco's 6-1 loss to Oakland put the Stars 6½ games out in front with five games left to play before Monday.

Old Pro Red Munger, who hasn't lost since Portland beat him in the first week of the season ,walked one, struck out seven and gave up eight hits in gaining his eighth win for the Stars.

Wild Eighth

Hollywood's second run came in the sixth on a home run by Tom Saffell and that was enough of a margin for the former Cardinal pitcher. But the Stars pushed over five more in a wild eighth inning in which the crucial play was a muffed grounder by Bob Spicer. Spicer is a pitcher but Angel manager Bill Sweeney put him in at second base after Gene Mauch was thumbed out of the game.

Elsewhere in the PCL, Portland home runs were the big factor in the Beavers' 11-0 and 3-2 twin win over Seattle which dropped the Raineirs from third to a tie with San Diego for fourth; and tiny lefthander Artie Schallock mystified San Francisco batsmen with his left-handed curves to give the Oakland Oaks a 6-1 victory.

San Diego at Sacramento was rained out.

Portland pitcher Glenn Elliott held the Rainiers to three hits in the seven inning opener while his mates got him a six-run cushion in the second inning. Fletcher Robbe hit a home run with two aboard in the big second and Walt Judnich got one with the bases empty in the same inning. Granny Gladstone hit one out of the park in the next inning.

More Homers

Gladstone hit his second homer of the evening in the sixth inning of the nightcap to give pitcher Bill Boemler his third win against four losses. Clarence Maddern accounted for both Seattle runs in the third with his fifth homer of the season.

Schallock struck out 10 Seal batsmen to gain his sixth win against a single defeat. It was Oakland's second straight win over the Seals who until this week were the hottest team in the league.

Gene Hermanski got Oakland's first run in the second when he hammered one of Ken Holcombe's offerings into the right field bleachers at Seals Stadium. The Oaks added the clincher in the fifth when Russ Rose scored on Jim Marshall's sacrifice fly and pushed over four more for good measure in the seventh on five walks, a single by rose and a double by Marshall.

Lippy Leo Happy at Acquisition of Giels

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—New York Giants Manager Leo Durocher was all smiles today about his latest acquisition, pitcher Paul Biel, and immediately said he had the trait which "made all great Giant pitchers."

"He has a low fast ball," Durocher said. "You've got to have that in the Polo Grounds because of those short foul lines.

"They can belt you all over the field down the middle," Leo said, "but you've got to have a low ball pitcher to keep them from lifting them down the foul lines."

Giels, University of Minnesota two-time all-American halfback and baseball star, signed with the Giants Wednesday for a bonus "in excess of $50,000."

"We don't give out figures," said Giants President Horace Stoneham, in Milwaukee for the signing. "But you can say in excess of $50,000 conservatively."

Giel, the 21-year-old pitcher who gained more collegiate fame in football than baseball as the Big Ten's top halfback, had been sought by several professional grid teams but he said he made up his mind some time ago to play baseball.

"I decided on baseball a long time ago," he said, "although a couple of Canadian football teams made me such good offers I had to consider them. I have no regrets about leaving football; you can play both."

OSCAR FRALEY

NEW York (UP)—A fighter who thinks too much and one whose desire is "never to be known as a bum," go at it in Madison Square Garden Friday night in what should be a pretty fair scuffle.

The former is Joey Giardello, a young Philadelphian who blames his last defeat on being "mentally depressed." The latter is Bobby Jones, a clouting commuter born in Louisiana, raised in Texas and who fights out of California.

This is the fight you will recall for which Jones allegedly was offered a $15,000 bribe to demonstrate his high diving ability.

Giardello regarded the bribe offer as an insult to his own proficiency. In this he is upheld by the oddsmakers, who apparently do not believe that Jones could knock him out with a hatchet in each hand, for they have installed Joey as a 2 to 1 favorite.

Far From Certain

Still it is far from the sure thing which certain gentlemen without sporting instincts tried to make it. The 28-year-old Jones may not be the greatest puncher in the world, or even one of the greatest in his native Opelousas, Lou., but he is a tough man on whom to lower the curtains and he is a fine boxer.

Bobby's record is nothing to give middleweight champion Bobo Olson the jitters, for he has won only 37 of 64 bouts, losing 19 and earning eight draws. Only five of his victories have been by knockouts, which is considerably over par for the course. Yet he may be described as a late comer.

He had, at one time, difficulty getting bouts. Thus he had to fight heavier men. On one occasion he spotted Olson 12 pounds and contends even now he won the decision which went against him. He also gave away poundage in losses to Willie Troy and Johnny Bratton. But he started moving up when he beat Gil Turner and then, in a rematch, flattened the Philadelphian.

Wants Shot At Olson

Naturally he wants to get a shot at Olson's title. But it is rather startling to hear him say that above all "I don't want people to think I'm a clinching bum."

He is in danger of being a horizontal one come Friday night, however, because the bombing Giardello is very annoyed at himself, Jones and the world in general.

Joey was in line for a shot at Olson's crown this year after he won five in a row, including knockouts over Garth Panter, Walter Cartier and Willie Troy. When he didn't get a title bout, he insists, he became moody and "down in the dumps." That was why he lost in an upset to Pierre Langlois last month, he argues.

His record gives him a statistical edge over Jones. Joey has won 49 of 65 bouts, with 11 losses and five draws. He also has chalked up 17 knockouts.

Anounce Four-Year Art Degree Program, Sheets, Director

Under Millard Sheets, now director of the Los Angeles County Art Institute, an entirely new program of art education is contemplated. It is to prepare art students to take their places in this 20th Century.

Trained in oils and watercolor painting, Sheets has had a much broader career doing murals, architectural design, ceramic decoration for buildings, major commercial assignments such as calendars for American Airlines together with costuming and art direction for major motion pictures. This has been a step-by-step professional development. From this experience he is planning the new program to advance students toward similar careers.

This is planned in a four-year degree course, with two years of basic training shared by all students regardless of objectives. The time will be spread equally between four subjects: drawing for line, painting for color, sculpture for form, and design to bring all together. Mastery of these gives the student control of the language of art.

Half-time in the third year will be devoted to the student's major subject. The fourth year serves as a bridge between school and the professional world, in which the student working alone (but under carefully selected staff supervision) will execute a major project such as a mural, a piece of sculpture for an actual building, or perhaps the complete set of illustrations for a book. The five majors that will initiate this program this year will be painting, sculpture, ceramics, design and graphic arts.

Students will be carefully selected for their seriousness, their ability to design, and to express feeling and imagination.

Reporter Interviews County Men Participating in Current Maneuvers

By PAT MICHAELS

ABOARD THE USS BADOENG STRAIT WITH TASK FORCE 11, (OCNS)—Our new "Atomic Navy" is an up-to-date fighting force that many an old salt from World Wars One and Two would fail to recognize. The emphasis is on atomic war, and as a result our ships of the fleet are prepared to cope with this new weapon — Both in our hands and in the hands of a potential enemy.

The familiar massed convoys that plowed the seas during World War Two are obviously a thing of the past. An atom bomb dropped over one of these convoys could, without a doubt, wreak havoc with the entire force. However, if our Navy is to scatter out while in formation, they leave themselves vulnerable to submarine attack. Perhaps that's why one of the main points of emphasis in this giant Southern California manuever is anti-submarine warfare.

The men who handle the severe submarine threat are the pilots of "hunter-killer" squadrons. Such a group is Anti-Submarine Squadron 34, aboard the Badoeng Strait. Four pilots from this squadron are from Orange County. They are J. H. Carroll, V. B. White, H. D. Parode and D. E. Ehrum, all junior grade lieutenants who live in Seal Beach. One of their administrative officers is Lt. (jg) John Mallory of Seal Beach.

"It's our job to hunt and kill submarines," Lt. Mallory explained. "But we may never see them. We use electronics equipment that's been developed since the last war. After we find a target, we call on other forces to make the actual kill. Sometimes our electronics ships fly on missions with a fighter-bomber and the armed ship makes the kill. Either way, it takes care of the submarine problem."

However, even in this new "atomic Navy," there are small problems that can seem big. The principal one of these, any serviceman will tell you, is food. Our "atomic Navy" has taken care of that problem in a far different way than the pork and beans diets of earlier days.

New methods of freezing fresh foods and provisioning ships have been developed, and men like Chief Steward D. W. Allen of Fullerton, have the rather pleasant job of handing out the steak and chicken dinners that are almost daily fare for the men of Anti-Submarine Squadron 34. Whether that food stays down, and whether the hunter-killer take to the air, however, depends on still another factor, weather. Our Orange County servicemen are playing a part in that role, too . . . a role that is getting increasing emphasis in our "atomic Navy."

TAKING PART — Orange County men aboard the USS Badoeng Strait, who are participating in the largest peacetime amphibious maneuvers off the Coast of Southern California, include D. W. Freidler, 2234 Underhill Ave., Anaheim; E. B. Thornburg of Garden Grove; Clifford D. Young, 106 West Wilson St., Costa Mesa, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Young, 1367 Damon St., Anaheim; and J. W. Smith, of Garden Grove. They watched the fake atom bomb explode old Navy theories and bring new plans to the fore in our Atomic Navy. (Official U.S. Navy Photo)

Vets Urged to Enroll For Summer Sessions

For veterans of the Korean war, who were discharged on or prior to August 20, 1952, enrollment in summer session is the last chance to take advantage of the Korean G. I. bill.

This would also apply to those discharged just after that date, said Robert C. Rockwell, registrar and veterans counselor at Fullerton Junior College. This is true because all veterans must enter college within two years of their discharge date.

Korean veterans discharged on or before August 20, 1952 must be regularly enrolled and attending classes before that date this year, said Rockwell. Summer sessions offer the only opportunity. For some others, the two - year limit means they, too, must be in summer session or enroll for the first semester, 1954-55 in September.

Placentia Villa News

ARLENE STEINMEYER
KE 5-9508

Last Thursday afternoon a coffee party was given at the home of Mrs. Bill Pfuetzenreiter, 226 Curtis Way. The afternoon was spent playing charades and a musical quiz. Following this entertainment a very dainty and delicious lunch was served by the three hostesses, Irene Andrews, Marilyn Chase and Faye Pfuetzenreuter. Also present were Sally Griffin, Ruth Switzer, Peg Cosentino, Lynn Cloninger and Arlene Steinmeyer, all Placentia Villa residents.

Saturday picknickers at Irvine park were three of Placentia Villa families. They were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chase and Pamela; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Andrews and Penny; and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Griffin and Nancy.

While visiting in Santa Maria last weekend, Mrs. Lloyd Castleberry and Judy, who live at 207 Clark Terrace, attended a rodeo Saturday and the annual Portuguese barbecue and celebration on Sunday. They left to go to Santa Maria Thursday and returned to their Anaheim home Monday morning.

Joining us as Placentia Villa II dwellers are Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shira. Their new home is located at 2221 Anaheim-Olive Road. While not newcomers to Anaheim, they are new to our area, having lived in a home on North Zeyn street.

Kiwanis View Film On Trip to Honduras

Presented by program chairman Ray Link, the film depicted the fabulous country in Central America telling of its natural heritage, its people, their customs, habits, dances and the way they live and work. The agricultural and mineral wealth of the country was illustrated showing the vast and bountiful plantations where tobacco, bananas, hardwoods, sugar cane and flowers are grown.

The country's interesting history was told with scenes of great cities in the jungles, now abandoned, built by the Indians many centurles ago and their art, language, customs, gods and priests preserved in the intricate carvings adorning the long - vacant structures.

A Canine Horatio Alger

There are around 25 million dogs in this country. So states the latest canine census. Every one of them, the poetic-minded tell us, qualifies as man's best friend. He also qualifies as the most confirmed and unregenerate moocher mankind has ever encountered. Think of the millions of meals those pooches consume every day of their lives—every mouthful on the cuff. Fakers and phonies — all!

All of them, that is, save one. This one is a spaniel named Rivets. He lives in Rochester, New York. Know what? This dog has his own bank account, currently standing at $130, on which he draws for horse meat and dog biscuits! And he earns it, just as Horatio Alger's heroes — alert to every opportunity, independent, proud — earned their success. Rivets is employed as watch dog in a Rochester plant; and his fellow workers regard his services so highly they pay him off in profits from a soda pop vending machine.

Dogs can't read, but any loving owner will swear his dog "understands" every word he says. Then tell your dog about Rivets. Tell every lazy mongrel you see on the street about Rivets. Tell him Rivets has credit at the bank, is respected — is a dog of honor that Horatio would have been proud to own. Might do some good.

The University Spells It Out

A young faculty member of the University of California got his name briefly in the news by suggesting that a university should have a few Communists on its faculty. His reasoning: Students should have opportunity to learn the truth about Communism.

University President Robert Gordon Sproul took the stand that there shall be no compromise with Communism in the administration or faculty of the State University. His reasoning: "This is as ridiculous as it would be to argue that a university must have astrologers in its department of astronomy or African witch doctors in its medical school."

The central truth about Communism, as it exists and functions in today's world, is that it is a fanatical, uncompromising, to-the-death movement to destroy constitutional self-government as we know it and supplant it with police-state dictatorship. To expect that truth to be imparted to students by a Communist teacher is as ridiculous an assumption, as Dr. Sproul says, as to expect a true believer in healing by magical incantation to teach the medical truth that cancer is curable only by surgery, radium or X-ray.

School's Out!

The day school "lets" out is a happy time for all Americans — as-of-now for millions of kids released to vacation fun, and in lively memory for oldsters who recollect the exhilarating yelping of "Goodbye teacher, goodbye school" of long ago.

Never, perhaps, has there been a happier inauguration of vacation time than in the U.S.A. of 1954. It was a glum time, in depression years, for high school and college graduates, with school papers headlining: "WPA Here We Come." Now a prosperous America has need of trained recruits for jobs in hundreds of categories. It was a tense time, even for younger kids, when the Nation was grimly engaged in war.

But let worrisome times of the past be dead times! Let's all have fun this summer. And you kids — be as easy on mother as you can when you storm and take over the house!

SONGS OF A SONNETEER

By R. LOUIS SCOTT

"UNENDING YEARS . . . !"

Diana, I have sought you thru the years
In prejudice to all things men held right:
I have withstood the contumely and jeers
Of those who labored thru day's waning light
And hoarded bronzen coins to foot each bill
The dusk might bring! By noon-glow and star-bright,
I journeyed thru valleys and climbed each hill:
And ever, in depths or on mountain's crest—
I found your trace! Must you elude me still?

Had I not ventured out upon your quest,
I might have quaffed rare wines and shed few tears—
But you were calling: so life's worst and best
Were squandered while I traced out new frontiers—
Seeking your smile down thru unending years!

Site	36,500
15 room school— Southwest part of Anaheim	381,100
Site	36,500

WHERE DID THE BOARD OF EDUCATION GET THESE COST FIGURES?

ANS: For the past year the Board of Education has been in the process of building two schools and 16 classrooms and the prices for school construction given in the proposed building program have been taken from the low bids received during the building program now in progress.

The District's architectural firm of Marsh, Smith and Powell and the Board of Education believe that unless there is a sharp increase in building costs that the District will be able to build the proposed schools within the price figures given.

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Mario Moreno, better known to the film world as Cantinflas, is a much better comedian than Charlie Chaplin ever was, according to Mexico's leading producer.

Miguel Zacarias, who has made more successful pictures in Mexico than any other producer, says he has seen every picture made by the British and Mexican comedians, and he is convinced that Cantinflas is superior.

"For one thing, Chaplin could never have made as many bad pictures as Cantinflas and still been in favor with the film public," said Zacarias. "Cantinflas makes a bad picture, then he comes right back with a great picture. If Chaplin had made two really bad pictures in a row, he would have been out of a job!"

Zacarias said that "Limelight," Chaplin's latest film, is his best, but that Chaplin probably will not make any more pictures.

"The major difference between Chaplin and Cantinflas," he maintained, "is that Chaplin has made every one of his films a huge production, with months of time and effort involved. Cantinflas just goes ahead and makes a picture with no great preparaiotns—and all Latin-America will go to see it."

A Great Man

Cantinflas whose slipping trousers became his film trademark, always presents the appearance of a valuable, ingenuous ragamuffin who clowns from the start of his pictures to the end.

Chaplin himself once called Cantinflas the "world's greatest clown," and George Bernard Shaw maintained that he was the only comedian in the world who could possibly star in Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion."

"Chaplin has made people cry too much," said Zacarias. "Cantinflas makes people laugh. We in Mexico are always happy when he wins out in his pictures, because he makes us feel that we can defeat our troubles, too."

The great Mexican comedian has built a virtual film empire of his own over the years, and now produces his own movies. Columbia studios in Hollywood pay him 2,000,000 pesos (about $150,000) in advance to distribute each Cantinflas film world-wide. The comedian lives in a mansion with a swimming pool and lunches at the Jena restaurant, Mexico City's version of Romanoff's.

"Yes, Cantinflas has done well for himself," Zacarias agreed, "but he has brought us much happiness. To us, he is one of the greatest men alive."

Othman's Views on Washington Scenes

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

WASHINGTON —I do not, myself, intend to call Liberty 5-6700 and ask for Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens. He's a nice fellow and an interesting conversationlist, but he has a crew of three helpers who listen in on every word and write it down.

How they do this without making suspicious clicks on the line I have no idea, but I'm taking no chances of my own words rising up later in sworn testimony to haunt me.

Take these Senators on the Army McCarthy investigating committee. Six of them, (hearing no clicks) were amazed that their conversations with the Secretary were in print. The seventh Senator, Stuart Symington (D., Mo.), wasn't surprised. He used to work in the Pentagon and then he had a little man, himself, to record his own phone calls. This situation is not confined to the military. All over our town the ho' shots in the government have aides in the anteroom, jotting down their phone talks with all and also sundry. It's getting so a fellow can't have a private talk with a Federal official except on Barney Baruch's bench in Lafayette Park. Even then I'd be inclined to look behind the nearest bush for a recording machine.

So there was committee counsel Ray Jenkins reading into the record the conversations between the Senators and Secretary Stevens, as well as the talks between the latter and attorney Roy Cohn.

Jenkins is a man of rare sensibility and this must have been a comfort to the talkers. Whenever he came to a word that struck him as shocking to the ears of the TV audience, he changed it to something less heroic. In one phone call Secretary Stevens and Sen. McCarthy were making a date to bend an elbow at a local hotel. Once Stevens mentioned the word cocktail; again Sen. McCarthy said drink. Tch!

Counselor Jenkins bowdlerized these words to refreshments. The record would indicate that the Secretary and the Senator partook of lemonade; I claim by their own recorded testimony that they had whisky.

In one place during another talk with Secretary Stevens was uttered the word, hell. Jenkins changed that to devil.

Then in still another chat, Stevens thanked Cohn for something he called damn fine. The counselor rendered this as very fine.

Such gentlemanly conversations between the Secretary and Cohn, in particular, jolted Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) For weeks he'd been hearing testimony concerning profane blowups via telephone.

Particularly had Stevens charged Cohn with using cuss words, emphatically.

"Mr. Lucas," demanded Sen. Dirksen, "are you sensitive to profane language?"

Jack Lucas, the top recorder of phone calls for the Secretary, said he wasn't. He didn't blush easily.

"Then what do you do with language so explosive it almost melts the telephone?" the Senator insisted.

Lucas said he'd never heard talk as hot as that, but that all ordinary profanity he merely wrote down in his shorthand book. Extra-ordinary profanity he also jotted down, except when it went to extreme length.

"Well, I've listened attentively and I expected some strong language," Sen. Dirksen said. "Did you deliberately leave it out?"

"No, sir," said Lucas.

Let that be a warning: phone Stevens and Lucas will be listening in. I urge you, be careful of your language.

Your Birthday Forecast

By STELLA

THURSDAY, JUNE 10 — Born today, you are a searcher for truth and you are thoroughly unhappy unless you can explain everything that happens around you in basic terms. You have a positive personality and others confide in you easily. You would do well in any capacity where you have to deal with people. You are sensitive to others and highly sympathetic.

You are, also, rather temperamental and sometimes you get impatient with what you consider tha "stupidity of the world". Cultivate a little more tact in the criticism; learn to sugar-coat the pill of advice and it will be more acceptable. You probably have ability as a writer and are fond of reading. You have a good head for business ventures and will no doubt, make considerable money.

You might learn to be a little more spontaneous in showing your affections. Although you have a deep love nature, you are apt to be what is called "stand-offish". This is probably due to shyness.

Among those who were born on this date are: John Jacob Astor, III, financier; Sir Edward Arnold, author and poet; Dr. John Morgan, noted physician, and Caroline Hazard, educator.

To find what the stars have in store for tomorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21) -- If you are careful of minor matters, you will find that the important things almost take care of themselves.

CANCER (June 22-July 23) -- Contribute to some worthy cause. Give of your time, if not of your money. Give both, if you can do it.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23) -- Get an early start so that all important work can be finished at the office and you can enjoy the week end.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) -- Don't start your week end too soon! You have a job to do today. Get it done so your conscience will be clear!

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) -- There is probably a lot of work to be done now -- one of your busiest days of the week.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—This should be a fine day to get a lot of work finished. An early start will assure the best success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Get out and meet some new friends. Good for your morale. Attend a club meeting or social gathering.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20) -- Proceed cautiously but with determination and with your eyes on your objective, if you are to succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19) -- Better for you not to follow advice unless it comes from someone who is experienced. Ask an expert.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20) -- If you know you are right, ignore criticism no matter how annoying it may be at first.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 20) -- Be cooperative in some family project. Make plans for a happy week end with those you love.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 20) -- This is a time to be very careful if you are to avoid making a serious error in calculation.

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Johnnie Ray is before the cameras for his movie debut, but the famous swoon singer isn't crying or beating his fists on the floor.

Ray is making his entrance into movies as a serious dramatic actor, and he hopes the customers will do all the crying this time.

"I only sing one song, a spiritual, in the picture. It's a straight role," explained Johnnie. "I don't cry or kneel or anything like that.

Proud of Performance.

"But in one scene where I said good-bye to my mother and father, they told me there wasn't a dry eye on the set," he added proudly.

For his first picture 20th Century-Fox studio cast its new star in a musical, "There's No Business Like Show Business." Johnnie, Mitzi Gaynor and Donald O'Connor portray the children of vaudevillians Dan Dailey and Ethel Merman.

"Johnnie isn't worried that his fans will be disappointed to find his voice is second-fiddle to his acting.

Wanted to Act

"I've always wanted to do serious acting," he said. "These people at the studio know what they're doing and I do what they tell me to do. I have confidence in their decisions. My part isn't big and it isn't small, but I like it."

Actually Ray appeared in a short subject at Columbia studio three years ago.

"But I don't consider that my debut. I just sang a song," he said. Fox signed him a year ago with the idea of doing his life story, but shelved the plan.

Memorizes All Lines

Ray will not wear his hearing aid on the screen. But acting with groups of players didn't stymie the singer, who is virtually deaf.

"I just memorized everybody's lines," he said. "I rehearse once with the hearing aid, once without and we shoot it without. It a matter of timing. While the other actors speak I say their lines to myself. I thought it would be hard but it worked out fine."

"Ethel and Dan have been wonderful, making suggestions and giving me advice. I was nervous at first, but Dan told me to relax and be myself."

Dailey and Ray have become such pals, in fact, that one night when they went nightclubbing with actress Charlotte Austin, all three wore hearing aids.

As It Was Told To Me

By HARMAN NICHOLS

WASHINGTON (UP)—I'm about to hit the trail, like millions of other vacation bound motorists. So I called on the travel people.

One of them gave me some good advice: "Don't lug along any luggage your wife can't carry, particularly if you plan to stop at motels."

The American Automobile Association didn't say that in so many words, but it did echo the theme that folks ought to travel light.

A woman, if she is smart, will pack a tailored suit of tropic weave. She should stick to one or two basic colors with accessories to match and a change of blouses for contrast. That gives m'lady several outfits. Plus, of course, a slip or so and a girdle that can be washed and party stockings for dress-up and the usual things a gal carts around like an-around dresses.

Accent on Comfort

Mike Frome of the AAA told me that a man ought to fetch along only one good suit, a sports coat, a couple or three pairs of complimentary slacks and plenty of sports shirt, with the accent on comfort.

"If a man and his wife are traveling alone on vacation," he says, "they ought to be satisfied with two big bags, if possible, plus a little bag. The little one should contain things that are needed for rest stops like bobby pins, makeup, etc."

And when we pack the rear end of the car for a vacation, we ought to have some system about it.

Don't Block Vision

Mike does not advise hanging suits and dresses on the hooks over the windows to block the vision of the driver. Clean off the back rig or the back seat and lay the hampers down flat.

"Things will be just as fresh," Mike says, "as though you had stretched them up against the windows."

And everybody ought to carry a laundry bag for soiled clothing.

Mike also told me a thing or two about stacking bags in the trunk compartment.

Put 'em in flat, he says, and you'll find you have a lot more room. Not only that, it keeps your pressed clothes from settling and wrinkling.

ate illness is called on to heal the healers.

Tuberculosis had made such inroads on Father Michael Brethertons physical being by the time he reached the Alpine hospital that it was unsafe for him to move or even to speak at any length, but he soon felt obliged to place his spiritual serenity at the service of those around him.

Dr. John McTaggart, head of the sanatorium, and his estranged wife Elizabeth both needed the help of the Anglican missionary. Father Michael also was successful in a way in dealing with the problems of Caroline Draycott, the venomous little neurotic in the next room who caused so many of the others' troubles.

Dr. Konrad Rainer and Dr. Marie Celest Delarabrie had difficulties of their own, but they did not turn to Father Michael for help.

Miss Bottome combines the literary skill that distinguished her earlier novels, Private Worlds and The Mortal Storm, with a warm feeling of spiritual sympathy to make The Secret Stair a touching and engrossing story . . .

The U. S. eats, kisses, drinks, rolls on, sleeps on, is wrapped in and stays healthy on menhaden oil but as a 58-year-old Negro fisherman named Bix says, "It don't know it." In Gulf Stream North (Doubleday) Earl Conrad tells the story of the menhadeners, the hardy Negro fishermen who "plow the acres of the sea" for the fantastic hordes of the herring-like menhaden whose oil and meal serve more than 200 U. S. industries. The menhaden fishery doomed the whalers more than 50 years ago and is today a primary source of special oils. Conrad tells the tale of the fish and men with superb dramatic power and a poetry and rhythm that makes his work distinctive. His narrative is in the rhythmic dialect of southern Negroes, unmarred by the crudities of phonetic spelling.

Bix and his crew aboard an 85-year-old ship are having dismal luck. First there are no fish, then too many—so many that hundreds of thousands of them diving as a single mass can rip to shreds a $5,000 net, pull a man underwater or capsize a small cutter.

Bix and his fellow "sharecroppers of the sea" in their aged ship make a first-rate story . . .

We Chose to Stay, by Lali Horstmann (Houghton Mifflin): Lali Horstmann was the wife of a German diplomat who worked in the press section in Berlin but who gave up his position because he opposed Hitler.

Both of the Horstmanns were wealthy with an estate at Kerzendorf in what later was to become the Russian Occupied Zone.

It is the story of the couple who chose to stay when the Russian and allied armies were approaching Berlin in the closing days of the war and the suffering they underwent at the hands of the Red army.

Curiously, the account does not arouse the sympathy one would expect. There are stories of wholesale rape, looting, and arson; days and nights of terror. But the story of the Russian as conqueror is not a powerful one. It may be because the Horstmanns appear to feel the loss of a priceless Meissen vase, for instance, more deeply than they do the terrible degradation around them. The sense of tragedy is again missing when Horstmann is kidnaped and dies. This reader had the feeling he was regarding of events far away which left him unmoved . . .

The Tunnel of Love, by Peter DeVries (Little, Brown) is a wryly comic tale of the taming of a screwball—Augie Poole, a cartoonist who couldn't draw but who felt obligated nevertheless to observe the promiscuous conventions of the artistic vie de Boheme.

In recounting the details of the unlikely adoption that transformed Poole into a model breadwinner, DeVries contrives to make a good many amiable and some uproariously funny comments about the absurdities of life in Connecticut's "Subbourbon Heights." His dialogue is salted with plays on words so outrageous that the reader might feel himself entitled to punitive damages if they were not so amusing.

The book is gaily improbable enough to qualify as an early starter in the "light summer reading" stakes, but DeVries has realized his principal characters with sufficient depth perhaps to give many a reader the uncomfortable feeling that he is seeing himself in a 3-D mirror.

Joan Foster, Bride

SYNOPSIS

After a long and ardent courtship, Joan Foster told Todd Hunter she had a date for their wedding. It will not be easy to live graciously on Todd's salary, so Joan's mother asked her to share the manse in New Jersey, with his frail father, the minister, and his gentle though possessive mother. But this simple problem will mean living their lives together, and that is what they want most of all.

CHAPTER SEVEN

"AND SO," Joan said, "we're going to live over at the manse."

Betty nodded. "Mike and I started our married life that way, too. We had just one room at mother's, not even our own kitchen. Of course, it was home to me, so I didn't really mind. Still, I was glad when we could get an apartment the next year."

Betty had come out to spend the day with Joan and talk over plans for the wedding. It was nearly May now and the place had never been more beautiful. The wisteria was out in full bloom, its fragrance filling the air everywhere. The apple blossoms were pink on the trees and the azaleas in the garden alongside the porch were in thick bud. Joan wished she were having her wedding this month, but that would have rushed things a bit. Besides, it was better to wait until Todd finished the term at Columbia, for then they could have a honeymoon or nearly three weeks before he had to start in on the new work there.

The two girls were sitting on the screened verandah, where Betty's little girl was playing in a small area near them which they had fenced off with chairs and a blanket. She was a good child, demanding no attention but inevitably receiving it because of her engaging ways and looks. She had red hair, like Mike's, in ringlets all over her head, and great eyes that were simila, to Betty's in their size and in the curling sweep of their fringing lashes, but Betty's were grey while little Beth's were a deep dark brown. For the rest, she was plump and dimpled and happy, as most babies who are greatly loved and wisely cared for are apt to be. Joan could hardly keep her gaze from her as she cooed and gurgled in jargon all her own to the bunny and rag doll that Betty had brought along for her.

Joan went on.

"I'll take you over later and show you the rooms we're to have. But it Mrs. Hunter says to you, as she has to everyone else—I'm so glad we're going to have a daughter in our house. All my life I've wished for a daughter and it's wonderful to think we're going to have one'—I really think I'll scream."

"She probably will," Betty answered mildly, "because she probably is."

"I know. But those words somehow ring a portentous bell in my ears. Oh, well!" Joan shrugged her faint worry away. "Let's talk about a darling, anyway. Todd's father, I mean. A little on the frail side physically—his heart. But you'd never guess it because he never mentions it. Let's talk about the wedding, though. After all, that's what you came out for. So much to be settled, Betts! I never realized how much."

"Yes, there's plenty," Betty agreed.

"First—I can't begin to tell you how glad I am that you're going to be my matron of honor. Nobody else would do, you know. But I wish I knew whom to ask for the rest of my bridal party."

"What's the trouble?"

"Well, I thought of Sue and Elaine, naturally, because they were in our crowd at college. But Sue's baby is due to arrive in August so that's out. And Elaine hasn't—I don't know whether I can count on her or not. She expects her second infant the last of this month and she's written me that she's sure she'll be her old self again by June twentieth and can make it. She'll fly, she says, and leave both children home. I know she'll be here if she possibly can, but it does seem rather taking a chance."

"She'll get here. You know how she feels about you, Joan."

"Yes."

For a brief moment Joan's thoughts flashed back to those four college years when Elaine had been so much a part of her life. The time had been filled with storms and stresses as far as their relationship was concerned. Then, finally, during the Christmas holiday when they were both juniors, they had arrived at a mutual understanding which Joan had thought would last forever. Instead, to her dismay and chagrin and bitter pain, they had quarreled over Donald Barton the following summer. It had been all Joan's fault (she admitted it now freely), but at the time she had blamed Elaine. Not until their senior dance, a full year later, had the atmosphere really been cleared between them. Yet in spite of that, Elaine had always insisted that happiness had really been given her by Joan.

"It was knowing you and the friendship you gave me that made me into the kind of person Donald could love," she had said.

Joan continued. "Well, okay. Elaine for one. I could ask Johnny, I suppose. But she feels awkward in long dresses, Betty. You know she never would go to any dance or a thing that was formal at college. She always looked out. I really don't believe I've ever seen her in anything but a tailored suit or a gym outfit."

Betty nodded.

"So"—Joan drew a breath—"I sent an airmail to Pam. She was the gal I roomed with in Zurich—I wrote you all about her, Remember? She was the one who was married in Paris to Tom Blakeslee. That was in the spring, just before Todd was taken ill. Well, they stayed over another year so Tom could study at the Sorbonne, but they're due back June first and I wrote her that she just had to get here in time to be a bridesmaid at my wedding. I'm waiting for her answer now."

"Good. I'm crazy to meet her."

"You'll like her. She reminded me of Elaine a lot. They're both tall and dignified and sophisticated-looking." Joan paused. "I think I won't ask more than three, Betts. If Sue could be with us, I'd ask Mary Hall. She and her husband, Chuck, were the ones we went to Italy with, you know. But she's not sure she can come all the way from Kansas."

"Whatever you decide, Joan."

"Besides, I don't want a big formal wedding, and a lot of bridesmaids implies such an affair. a—well—a cozy kind of wedding. Practically the whole town is going to be invited, though, so I don't know as 'cozy' is the word." Joan laughed and threw out her hands in a little gesture of helplessness. "Honestly, the lists of people we have! There's Mother's list and my list and the Hunters' list and Todd's list. I'll just skip anyone Not in Mapleton, at least. The two families have always lived here, you see. And of course Todd's father is known and loved by people both in and out of his church." She looked at Betty suddenly. "You were smart to stage your wedding in the college chapel, weren't you?"

GROTON, Conn., (UP) — They never had it so good aboard the USS Bergall, a Navy submarine.

The Navy said today sailors aboard the sub based at the New London naval base are tapping their feet to jukebox tunes, sprawling on bunks with built-in reading lamps, and flicking their cigaret ashes in plaid-decorated ash trays.

It's all part of the "new Navy," and it is described officially as "an experiment in habitability."

The Bergall returned recently from the Portsmouth, NH., naval shipyard where it was outfitted with innovations for making life in an undersea craft more pleasant.

The sub's mess quarters convert into a recreation room with card tables and a jukebox. The latter plays two records for a nickel and the money goes toward buying new records.

In the sleeping quarters, aluminum partitions separate each bunk. Bedlamps provide reading light.

The Bergall's interior was redone in four shades of Green. Olive Green covers the sheets and lockers at the lower level, light green tile covers the deck in the living spaces, Grey-Green tile is used in engineering spaces and a Greenish tint called "Clipper Blue" decorates the upper portion of the bulkheads.

Lucky submariners aboard the Bergall also have a new sun-deck. The deck which previously was crowded when more than five men were topside has been extended three-quarters of the way around the conning tower so 20 sailors can take sun baths at the same time.

Huge Practical Joke Found Not Amusing

BARNSLEY, England (UP) — Harry Hull enjoys a joke as much as anyone, but he said today he wasn't amused Saturday when he came home and found:

1. Workmen piling 7000 bricks on his front lawn.

2. More workmen unloading four tons of potatoes and spreading them in neat rows alongside his garage.

3. Two trucks banking five tons of red shale against the side of his house.

4. A line of trucks waiting to unload three tons of coal, several tons of sand and gravel, a load of drainpipes, a large asbestos sheet and a consignment of used automobile tires.

5. A scrap metal dealer who said he had come to collect two tons of old railings there and a man waiting to collect two used cars.

Hull said the final straw was the appearance of an undertaker to "prepare the body for cremation."

The undertaker was so shocked to see the "body" trying to deal with the milling crowd of tradespeople, Hull said, he needed a shot of brandy to avoid collapsing.

All the contractors said "a man with a husky voice" gave them their orders. Police said they were searching for the man.

Durante Plans Two Monthly TV Shows Next Year

By JACK GAYER
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—"They got me in a predictament," James (Broadway) Durante admitted. "It's an ingamer!"

The great man was discussing the fact that he's going to do two half-hour television shows next season instead of the monthly one-hour show he has been identified with for the past four seasons.

"I don't know," he continued, "whether I'm expected to be twist as good or only half as good. Which way are they cutting me up?

"And how good is good? It certainly ain't that last show I did this season with all them circus effects. I felt like Barnum and Bailey without Ringling."

He's Not Mad

Jimmy isn't mad at anyone of course—he was just kidding.

"Seriously," he said, "I don't know whether it will be easier doing two 30-minute shows every other week, I think maybe. Then I think maybe not.

"But I do know this. With an hour show, it's the last 30 minutes that's the struggle. The first half hour goes by like lightning. Even if your material ain't so good once in a while, who gets tired of looking for a half hour? But that last 30 minutes, even when you got the best, is an uphill pull.

NBC's realignment of talent for next fall finds Durante and Donald O'Connor employed by the same sponsor. Durante kicks off the first show about mid-September on a Saturday night. O'Connors is on at the same time the following Saturday, then back to Durante the third week. Neither is on every fourth Saturday. Then the rotation starts again.

Don't think on one of those off-weeks once a month I'm supposed to put a show on fil-lum," the comedian said. "But they won't use none of them during the regular season. They'll be for use next summer after I'm off the air on vacation.

Likes Live Shows

"I like doing them live shows. I get a bang out of them. It's show business. You do a bad show, of course, nobody's happy, but when you've got a good one, it's a real bang to do it."

The "vacationing" Durante is up to his old tricks. He's working in the night club gain, back at the Copacabana which he has visited for years.

"But I only do three club dates a year," he said. "The Copa, the Chez Paree in Chicago and the Desert Inn in Vegas. This time I'm going up to Boston for a week at the Latin Quarter, but that's unusual.

"Why do I do it? Well, I've known all these fellers 30-40 years. They say, 'Jimmy, won't you come back just once more for a couple of weeks?' It's got me trapped — friendship, I mean. I'm getting to feel like Harry Lauder with all his farewell tours."

Museum Seeks to Buy Ship "Pacific Queen"

SAN FRANCISCO (UP — The San Francisco Maritime Museum has signed a two month option to buy the famed square rigged sailing ship Pacific Queen for $25,000.

However, museum officials said yesterday the sale would depend on the outcome of a marine survey to determine if the ship's hull is seaworthy enough to stay afloat for 19 more years.

The 60 year old vessel will be towed from its Sausalito dock late this month to the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation for the examination.

If the hull is sound, the museum plans to renovate the ship's worn-out rigging and shabby decks. Then she will be put on exhibition near Fisherman's Wharf.

The Pacific Queen was built in Glasgow, Scotland in 1886, and sailed for 12 years under the British flag as the Balclutha.

She was renamed the Star of Alaska in 1900 when purchased by the Alaska Packers. In 1933, her present owner, Mrs. Frank Kissinger and her late husband, bought the ship for $5000, using her for exhibit and rental to movie companies.

First International TV Hookup Termed Success

LONDON (UP) — Newspapers today hailed as a success the world's first international television hookup and predicted the worldwide telecasts might not be too far away.

The eight-nation "Eurovision" network was inaugurated yesterday, It linked Britain, Farnce, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, West Germany, Switzerland and Italy.

The first telecast was highlighted by an address by Pope Pius XII in Rome. The Pontiff spoke in five languages.

U. S. Employment of Civilians Shows Drop

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government employed 2,335,296 civilians in April—a net reduction of 41,841 from March, Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va) reported today.

Byrd, chairman of the Joint Committee on Non-Essential Federal Spending, said it was the 21st consecutive month in which civilian employment has declined.

1954 State Traffic Toll Set at 1102

SACRAMENTO (UP) —California's 1954 death toll on the highways reached 1102 through the Memorial Day holiday, Highway Patrol Commissioner B. R. Caldwell said today.

Caldwell listed speed and recklessness as the cause of 34.9 per cent of the traffic accidents and said he believed "too many drivers, it seems, will behave only when they fear they will be caught."

He said he would continue to use "visible traffic enforcement where the motorist can-continually expect to see a patrol car" to combat speeders and reckless drivers.

New Travel Aids Help U. S. Women

By ELIABETH TOOMEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — Everything possible is being done now to make American women not only the most traveled women in the world, but also the best travelers.

There are scientific suitcase packing plans and volumes on proper conduct in crossing borders or striking up conversations with strangers.

Step-by-step guide books encourage the timid and pay-as-you-go travel plans bolster the financially weak.

The stereotyped picture of a woman traveling alone, her suit cases bulging with more clothes than she needs and her brow creased with confusion over the proper tip to the porter, is fast becoming outdated.

"Women have a tendency to pack more than they need," one travel advisor said, "but they're getting much better about it. They've learned from experience and from reading repeated advice to 'travel light.'"

Travel Books Help

A typical travel wardrobe booklet, now available at several sources including major airlines and one major oil company, tells women what to put in their suitcases and in what order.

Thousands of women take trips abroad every summer, traveling in groups, with their husbands and alone. The newest travel books are aimed at these vacationers. Advice from experts seems inexhaustible, including where a lone woman can go unescorted and how to avoid bores while traveling.

Decide why you're making the trip in the first place, writes the author of one of the newest travel books, "At Home Abroad", by Alice-Leone Moats. If historic sights bore you, plan to go to a foreign seashore instead.

And if any women are planning to go to Europe with the idea of snaring a husband, Miss Moats predicts disappointment all around.

No Gifts

"Foreigners don't constitute good husband material," she writes. "The type who is definitely in in search of a husband and doesn't wish to get sidetracked from her quest shouldn't travel."

The author is against traveling with relatives and also disapproves the practice of setting aside a large sum for gifts for the neighbors.

"The odds are about five to one against any member of your family being the right person to take along on a trip," she writes (this excepts husbands.)

As for those doodads from foreign market places, Miss Moats calls it the "bearing practice" a holdover from clipper-ship days . . . when imports were still rarities." Anybody traveling on a careful budget has no business trying to buy presents for everybody, she concludes.

Seek Treasure In Egypt Sarcophagus

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Dr. Mustafa Amer, director of Egyptian antiquities, said today that the newly discovered sarcophagus of a Pharoah who ruled 50 centuries ago is the first sealed and unplundered tomb of an Old Kingdom ruler ever found.

This official announcement supported the earlier predictions of archeologist Zakaria Ghoneim that the tomb will yield highly important data and possibly great treasure.

Ghoneim believes the sacorphagus contains a solid gold coffin and the crown jewels of ancient Egypt.

The archeologist said last week that if the sarcophagus had not been violated it would throw amazing new light on life in Egypt 5000 years ago.

The Egyptian government has set up a special five man committee to supervise the delicate excavation of the newly found tomb at Sakkara and at the Cheops Pyramid at Giza where the "solar boats" of Cheops were discovered by another archeologist, Kamal El Mallakh.

Two Carriers Slated To be Demothballed

NORFOLK, Va., (UP) — The aircraft carriers Franklin and Bunker Hill will be demothballed to build up the combat-readied anti-submarine fleet, a Navy spokesman said here yesterday.

The carrier Bataan, veteran of World War Two and Korea, has been retired to the Pacific reserve force, the spokesman said.

Adm. Robert B. Carney, Chief of Naval Operations, said "Most" of the Navy's four battleships will join the mothball fleet "as an economy measure."

He did not mention any of the ships by name but indicated that three of the big craft would be placed in the reserve fleet.

It was reported earlier that the 45,000-ton battleship Missouri, scene of the signing of the Japanese surrender in 1945, would go into mothballs this fall at Bremerton, Wash., after return from the summer midshipman cruise.

Claim Red Menace in Latin America Serious

LOS ANGELES (UP) — The "Communist menace in Latin America is very serious" and "there is no question that Red leaders in Guatemala are taking orders from Soviet Russia," according to Rep Pat Hillings.

The California Republican, a member of the House committee on Communist aggression, voiced his warning Saturday upon his return here from an eight-day tour of Central America.

Hillings said the Guatemalan government is "very hostile" toward the United States and that President Jacobo Arbenz "may not be a Communist, but he'll do until one comes along."

The recent shipment of arms from Poland to Guatemala included 106 carloads of rifles, machine guns, ammunition and howitzer type weapons, the congressman said.

"There is a strong feeling in Central America these weapons will be used for purposes other than defense," Hillings stated.
