Beach Man Dies In Canyon Crash

ORANGE (OCNS)—Smashing death at high speed came to a motorist at 8 a.m. today on the Santa Ana Canyon road just west of the Orange County line in an accident that Highway Patrolmen said looked "manic inspired."

The hurstling car may have been a new Chevrolet, although wreckage reduced to the size of a small desk made positive identification impossible.

Patrolmen said the car was driven by Othel Stanley Jones, 6821 Gossamer, Long Beach.

Daniel S. Johnston, Corona, told patrolmen he was driving on the canyon road toward Orange at about 55 miles an hour when he was struck from behind by another vehicle.

He said he did not know where the other car came from, and after he recovered control of his auto, the other vehicle appeared to be half a mile on down the road, gaining speed.

All of a sudden, Johnston told patrolmen, the speeding car veered to the left, plunged across two lanes and left the road, smashing into a large rock at the side of the highway.

Patrolmen said that from the tire tracks and Johnston's story, there appeared to be no attempt on the part of Justice to apply his brakes or regain control of his car.

Disneyland Now in Congressional Record

Disneyland now appears in the Congressional Record of the 84th Congress.

In an extension of remarks dated June 27, James B. Utt, Representative of the 28th District, announced the grand opening of Disneyland and reprinted a story which appeared in a newspaper June 23.

"Under leave to extend my remarks," Utt said, "I would like to announce the grand opening of the 160-acre $17,000,000 out-of-this-world project near Anaheim, Calif., in the congressional district which I am proud to represent. Known for industry, agriculture, and citrus ranches, the community has now made way for a magical wonderland—the fabulous Disneyland."

The announcement of Walt Disney's plans to build his wonderful wonderland aroused the local anticipation and sparked the enthusiasm of young and old alike. We are glad to know that Mr. Disney's dreams for a fantasyland have become a reality and would like to express our sincere gratitude to him for this additional contribution to the wholesome entertainment that he has already given to people of all ages all over the world," he said.

HEARING SET—The State Division of Highways said today that on July 12, it will conduct a public hearing in the Council Chambers in City Hall Santa Ana, at 10 a.m., to discuss establishment of a freeway routing for State Highway Routes 2 and 19 from near the intersection of La Veta Avenue with the Santa Ana Freeway in Santa Ana and extending north to the Orange County line in Brea Canyon. The freeway would also include an extension in a westerly direction from the intersection of Fullerton Road with Whittier Boulevard to a point easterly of the City of Brea. The proposed routing has been under discussion with officials of Orange County and the cities of Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim, Fullerton, Brea and La Habra. The hearing is to give local authorities, civic groups and individuals an opportunity to present any additional data and information which will assist the State Division of Highways in the determination of the most advantageous route prior to submission of the proposed freeway location to the California Highway Commission.

President Expresses Hope That Trust May Be Developed Between Nations

By DEAN W. DITTMER
WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower spoke today of peace and politics.

He voiced hope that trust could be developed among nations that would lead to more sincere good faith and eventually real peace. That trust is not present, the President said.

As for politics, Mr. Eisenhower told his news conference that he would not be as put in forced into running for a second term next year. He said that is a decision he will make himself.

The President was questioned at length about his estimate for the chances of peace as the Geneva Big Four conference approached. He also was quizzed about the controversial Dixons' atomic pact, and his political future.

To Geneva With Hope

The President said he will go to the Geneva conference with the hope of July 18 in a very hopeful attitude. But he stressed that his hope must have greater foot on which to nourish before it can become expectation.

He said the United States now is seeking to develop what he termed an interim trust among nations so that this step will lead to the mutual trust and faith that might culminate in peace and international disarmament.

Mr. Eisenhower described heavy military spending as perfectly stupid, particularly when it is the hope of so much of the world that these weapons would not be needed for warfare.

Dixons-Yates Issue

The President also dwelt on these other subjects:

Dixons-Yates: He would be willing to cancel the Dixons-Yates contract if the city of Memphis, Tenn., goes ahead with construction of its own power plant.

Military Reserves: He is hopeful that Congress will enact legislation that will allow the military to use the reserves for a longer period.

Prison Heads to Answer Demands of Prisoners

LATE BULLETIN
WALLA WALLA, Wash. —Convicts at Washington State Penitentiary ended their riot today and released nine prison employees they had held hostage for 26 hours.

By RUSS NIELSEN
WALLA WALLA, Wash. —Washington State Prison officials today were preparing an answer to demands from rioting convicts who held nine prison employees as hostages.

Earlier, the prison had announced only seven men held by the convicts, but an early morning check of personnel showed two more employees missing and reported seen in the custody of the rioters.

Spokesmen for 800 rebellious convicts said the hostages would be released at 3 p.m. PST today if prison officials showed "sincerity" in dealing with the convict demands.

The spokesman for the prisoners met with three reporters last night only hours after the riot, triggered by 35 maximum security convicts, swept through the prison.

Prison Business Manager William Connell said the riot began while officials were interviewing new inmates in the prison guide center.

Rioters broke into the room, overpowered officials and guards. B. W. Fain, recreation officer, was knocked unconscious when he resisted the rioters. He was revived and treated at the prison hospital. Several stitches were taken in his forehead.

Armed with knives and razor blades, the rioters took control of wing No. 1, a maximum security block and the kitchen and dining room. They moved into wings 4, 5 and 6 and refused to get control of wing 6 but were halted.

"This place above all things is a hate factory," said one of the rioters Tuesday night after Connell had issued a statement listing grievances.

The two-page statement was given to Dr. Thomas Harris, state institutions director. The main grievance centered on isolation in the "hole."

The rioters also scored the Classification and Parole Planning Department at the prison and demanded the ouster of its head.

"We think... the department must have a shakeup. When the Parole Department was staffed by one man, there were never more than 12 men overdue for parole at any one time. Now, when the department is headed by Mr. Charles Simon, with the aid of two assistants, there sometimes are as many as 25 men overdue."

Before issuing the statement, the convicts aired their grievances at meetings with prison authorities late Tuesday afternoon.

Harris said three men who

DON'T FORGET JOHN

Grandmother Runs Quiz Show Winnings to $32,000 By Answering Question Concerning Jesus' 12 Disciples

By H. D. QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK —If the folks at the naval supply depot at Mechanicsburg, Pa., don't mind too much, Mrs. Catherine Kreitzer doesn't think she'll come to work today.

She didn't get away from New York until half past midnight, and then there was the long train ride to Harrisburg, Pa., and she didn't get to her eight-acre farm near Camp Hill, Pa., until a very early hour.

It takes a bit out of a body, winning $32,000 on a television quiz show. And, after all, Mrs. Kreitzer is 54 and has six grown sons and nine grandchildren who has she slowed up some these last few years.

Last night she was tense as she prepared for the next-to-last question on the TV "66,000 Question" show. Her left eyebrow twitched, flicking upward, as she talked. And she came close to missing the $32,000 question about the Bible, although it was about Jesus' 12 disciples, a subject she knows well.

Mrs. Kreitzer must spend the next seven days worrying with her husband, Joseph, and her father, Joseph Bucher, 82, who lives nearby, whether she will risk her $32,000 to try for $64,000 next week. If she should try and lose, she'd get only a Cadillac convertible as consolation prize.

Answering questions about the Bible, she has won for three straight shows. Last night, the win was the question. A three-part

Peter did to earn a living and the work that Matthew did to earn a living.

"Then tell me the name of the father of James the Less."

Mrs. Kreitzer took the full seconds allowed her to ponder. Then she named eight, in this order: Andrew, Philip, Bartholomew, Matthew, Thaddeus, Thomas, Simon, and Judas Iscariot.

What she had done was leave out the disciple John, who was among the eight additional questions, and put in Matthew. March told her to name all the disciples.

That was easy, and the name of John fell into place. Then she breezed through the rest of the questions. Peter was a fisherman, Matthew a tax collector and James the Less was the son of Alphaeus.

Mrs. Kreitzer pressed her left hand above her heart, she said, and her brown eyes softened. But she said she didn't believe she'd go to work today.

Planners Turn Down Building Plea; Approve Plans for Home for Aged

A technicality in the wording of a variance application was the cause of the City Planning Commission's vote for denial yesterday afternoon on the request of Frank R. Krogman, 8071 Magnolia Ave.

Krogman petitioned planners for permission to build a commercial building at 1933 Anaheim-Olive Road and lease a portion of the building for a liquor store, a C-2, general commercial zone use in a C-1, neighborhood commercial zone.

Planners questioned the wisdom of establishing an off-sale liquor store near a miniature golf course in the area which caters to large groups of young people.

Stephen Gallagher, agent representing the applicant, told the planners that the matter before the board was the rezoning of the property. He stated that the final decision would be up to the state liquor board to determine if a liquor store should be located at that site and if it would be adverse to public morals and principals.

Deny Request
Commissioner Mel Gauer said he couldn't vote for the variance because he was voting for a liquor store which is against his principles in regards to his position with the city school system.

Planners agreed that if the application had asked for a C-2 use in a C-1 zone and not specifically for a liquor store they might have gone along. However, they voted to deny the variance in favor of the applicant filing for a reclassification.

J. J. Bargsten, 721 North Woods St., Fullerton, received a yes and no approval on his variance request. He seeks to establish a boarding house for aged ambulatory persons at 1240 West La Palma Ave., in an existing dwelling.

Cheer Petition
He had applied for the variance at the June 27 meeting, but the matter was held over pending an investigation of the signs.

ated any type of manufacturing as being detrimental to the future residential growth of the area and would open a wedge whereby others could come in.

Trevett, and his son, George Jr., stated that there would be no manufacturing at the store, only the assembly of small boats which would involve some sanding and grinding to smooth the joints of the pre-cut sections made elsewhere. They also pointed out that almost all sporting goods stores assemble small boats now in order to meet growing competition.

To Study Situation
The planners voted to withhold action pending a study of the situation and also to try and find out what plans the state has for the widening of Lincoln avenue. It was indicated at the hearing that the state intends to make it a six-lane divided highway and the city is interested in the possibility of frontage streets for businesses.

Thomas L. McLaughlin, 234 Florence Ave., requested that the planners hold his variance application until a later date because plans were not yet completed.

McLaughlin proposes a service station on the northwest corner of Piacenta and Morva avenues. However, the oil company which is to build the station hasn't completed its plans.

City Planners Okay Rezoning Request
A reclassification petition to rezone a strip of property at 10147-1028 South Los Angeles St., from R-A, residential-agriculture, to C-1, neighborhood commercial, and R-3, multiple family residential, was approved yesterday by the City Planning Commission.

Applicants Tidwell and Bernier, 1183 Harbor Blvd., Garden Grove, asked that the front 275 feet of the property be zoned C-1 and the balance to R-3 to permit the construction of commercial structures and apartment houses.

According to a company spokesman, modernistic apartments would be constructed on the 13 R-3 lots with an alley running along the north side between Los Angeles and South Philadelphia streets.

New Orleans-Type Hotel Designed For Disneyland

The charm and elegance of Southern hotels of the past century are revived in the Maxwell House Hotel, fascinating highlight of Walt Disney's newest creation — the fabulous Disneyland — the nation's newest amusement center. The Maxwell

House Hotel is located on "Main Street - USA," at the entrance to Disneyland. A two-story edifice with a handsome New Orleans-style wrought-iron balcony, the hotel occupies a 23-foot frontage and contains a traditional Southern courtyard where light refreshments and coffee will be served. Authentically styled for the period, the hotel was built by Disney's magicians to recreate the flavor of life in America at the turn of the century. "Main Street - USA" contains such typical examples of Americana as the Golden Horseshoe Cafe, all of which recapture the gay spirit of the times. Horse drawn street cars, gas lights, Flora-Dora girls and other long-forgotten gauds flourish in old-style elegance. Designed to fit this nostalgic atmosphere, the hotel quickly transports visitors back to the grace and beauty of a colorful period in American history. The thousands of daily sight-seers must pass down "Main Street" on their way to view the extraordinary exhibits of this fascinating 160-acre playground. At the foot of "Main Street," visitors to Disneyland move into a central plaza off which lead roads to the wonderlands of Adventureland, Frontierland, Fantasyland and Tomorrowland, amazingly realistic creations of Disney and his famed artists. For the weary and hungry traveler through these fascinating wonders are, in addition to the Maxwell House Hotel, 17 other restaurants whose designs range from a colorful Pirate Ship to a Super Automatic Eating place of the future.

Hospital Group Receives City's 'OK' to Build

The "Faithful Performance" bond required by the city before construction on a proposed hospital, pharmacy and medical building can begin, was received by Anaheim City Clerk, Dene Williams here, Friday. Location of the proposed project will be on the northwest corner of La Palma and West streets.

The bond for the $750,000 proposed medical site was set at $75,000 but until Friday that requirement had not been met.

At the City Council's regular meeting of May 24, on a motion by Councilman A. J. Schutte, the hospital (primarily sponsored by a Dr. Milton O. Zuker of South Gate) had its Special Use Permit voided for failure to present a valid Faithful Performance Bond.

May 31, the hospital group, on a motion to rescind his former one, Councilman Schutte moved to allow 30 days to produce a valid bond.

Difficultly encountered, the hospital group complained, was using monies badly needed in the construction itself; they were attempting to get bonding on the basis of their solvency, whereas bonding companies were demanding them to "buy" the necessary $75,000 bond.

At the May 31st meeting, Alexander Schullman, the group's attorney, said plans of the hospital are already nearly complete.

Here you get massive half-pillars on either side on which the front doors latch and the rear doors hinge. (That's why you see no center posts above the door line.)

Here, too, you get wholly new principles in body design and strength that give the extra safety of rock-firm solidity at the top, sides and bottom.

And here—bless those Buick engineers!—you get a lot more room in the rear compartment.

For the 4-Door Riviera gives you over 9 inches more hiproom and 5 inches more legroom — yet with no increase in wheelbase or over-all car length.

So we repeat—you certainly ought to come in and see this stunning new kind of hardtop.

Bethel Crusaders Share Park Picnic

Members and friends of the Bethel Crusaders class of the Bethel Baptist church gathered recently in the Anaheim City park for a family barbecue and volleyball game. Forty-eight adults and 27 children lined up to the food table for the delicious roast beef and interesting potluck dishes awaiting them. Newly elected President, Dale Chase, extended a welcome to everyone and introduced the many guests of the evening. Jeanette Koss, Westminster Man Wed at Highway Chapel

Miss Jeanette Koss, a native daughter of Anaheim, became Mrs. Gary Lee DeLay, when the Rev. Berthold Jackstet, pastor of the Bethel Baptist church, read the double ring ceremony at 4:30 Saturday afternoon at the Capilla de San Antonio. The bride, in white, was complimented with blush pink satin bows at the pew ends. The altar beautiful with baskets filled with Beauty Blush gladioli, and white stock, the afternoon sunlight reflecting the loveliness of the colors.

With her father, Harvey Koss, as her escort, Miss Koss wore an elegant gown by "Bridal Creations," designed with a Peter Pan collar, to the sheer yoke and touched with sequins and pearls. Rose point lace fashioned the snug bodice and long sleeves, with the full ballerina skirt of this lace worn over tulle and white satin. Seed pearls, rhinestones and sequins delicately trimmed the bridal veil. Tulle and white roses surrounded the white orchid of Miss Koss' bouquet.

Tucked into her ensemble was an heirloom handkerchief of lace which had belonged to her maternal great aunt. A shiny penny was placed in her shoe and "blue for happiness" was her garter. A single strand of pearls, the gift from her bridegroom, was her necklace.

Attractive in her melon-toned nylon net over matching taffeta gown, the skirt billowing from a fitted bodice created with a draped shoulder and V-neckline effect, Miss Eleanor Fuchs of Anaheim attended to maid of honor duties. The special detail of her ensemble was the cummerbund and head-dress of matching shade. Mitts and other accessories were also in the melon shade with her bouquet being Queen of Elizabeth roses.

Only One Attendant
Miss Nancy Lee Cook of Inglewood, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of nylon net over taffeta designed identical to Miss Fuchs' but in the pale aqua shade. Her other accessories were in matching shade and she carried Roseland Russell roses.

Petite in her melon-toned formal with matching head dress, Candie Lee, carried a white basket of filled with summer blossoms. She is a second cousin of the bride. Another second cousin, Gregory Lee of Santa Ana, was the ring bearer. He wore a junior suit in white linen.

Attending the bridegroom and ushering were Richard Ben of Westminster, the bestman, Ronald Rapp of Anaheim, head usher, and Dale Koss, brother of the bride.

"The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Charmeen Asher as the benediction song to the nuptials with Mrs. A. P. Faust as her accompanist. "Recess" was the pre-nuptial number.

The Capilla San Antonio tea garden was the attractive setting for the reception, with Miss Carl Bloman and Miss Carol Asburn as serving hostesses. Cousin of the bride, Miss Norma Lynn Cook from Inglewood, attended the guest book.

Pastel green crepe and lace dress, with pale pink accessories was the dress chosen by the bride's mother for the wedding reception. Mrs. DeLay, stepmother of the bridegroom, wore a pink voile dress with matching picture hat. Pink rose buds were in the corsages worn by the women, as they stood with their husbands in the receiving line at the reception. Mrs. Leonard

McLeod of Bellflower, mother of the bridegroom, was unable to attend.

Legend of Bride

The bride graduated from Central elementary school, where she was valedictorian of her class. After graduating from Anaheim high, she attended Fullerton Junior college, where again she scored in scholastic awards, receiving a pin as the highest grade average student in her class of 1954. She was a member of the honor society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, and the social sorority, Theta Nu Theta. She is presently employed at California Research, Standard Oil, La Habra headquarters.

Her bridegroom, a graduate of Bellflower schools, served four years in the Navy, majority of that time spent in the Philippines. He is employed at the Hancock Oil Refinery in Long Beach.

The young couple plan to be home from their honeymoon by July 18 and will make their home at 6012 Westminster Blvd., Westminster. For traveling the new Mrs. DeLay chose champagne linen suite with gold thread accent, her corsage the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Fullerton Forum Opens Thursday

Miles A. Salben of Anaheim will begin the Summer Forum program next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Fullerton High School Auditorium when he presents an illustrated travelogue on "Sunny Arizona."

Sponsored by the Adult Evening School, this year's series will feature five Orange County residents, each with a topic on which they have taken pictures. This series is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

Salben studied cinematography at the University of Southern California and has won him several prizes in competition.

About his subject Salben says, "Arizona is the baby state, being the last one admitted to the union. The economy of the state is based on travel, agriculture, and mining. Eight million visitors bring into the state $150,000,000 annually."

"Southern Arizona has a mild winter climate and northern Arizona, a cool, summer one. Climate is one of the best for people with respiratory trouble."

"The state has more national monuments than any other single state, 16; plus one national park, the Grand Canyon. Twenty-five percent of the state area is in Indian reservations and there are 14 tribes and 66,634 Indians."

Salben has been taking colored pictures for eight years, appearing at service club gatherings and before school organizations with his work.

Following Salben will be Leslie Sim of Fullerton, who will speak on the "Basin Ranges of California." He will appear July 14, succeeded by Jacob Mumm of Santa Ana, "Africa," and then by Mrs. Dorothy McKenna of Corona Del Mar. Mrs. McKenna will show pictures of "Guatemala and Mexico." Final summer presentation will be made by Lawrence A. Myers, Fullerton High School faculty member, who will show his pictures of Europe.

Knights of Pythias Moves to Anaheim

Knights of Pythias, of Buena Park, will move to Anaheim and first meeting, July 13, will be in the Odd Fellows Hall, 325 W. Center. The Royal Lodge is named in honor of General Jules O. Royer, once an active figure in the political and business life of southern California and more particularly Anaheim.

The Royal chapter of the Pythias lodge originally planned settling in Anaheim, but existing facilities made it necessary to open the local chapter in Buena Park, September 1933. Meetings of the Anaheim Knights of Pythias will take place on the second and fourth Wednesdays of the month.

Charles K. Eaton, Financial Secretary, said today that all former members are welcome and prospective members are encouraged to call him at KE 5-3813.

Knights of Pythias is the oldest chartered fraternal organization in the United States, receiving its national charter from Congress shortly after the assassination of Abraham Lincoln in 1865.

The lodge was organized in Washington, D.C. in 1864 by a group of government clerks, headed by Justice Washburne, a former Michigan school teacher, who wrote the ritual for the Knights.

The General Land Office was established in 1812 as a bureau in the treasury department and transferred in 1849 to the interior department. The office was abolished in 1946 when its functions were transferred to the new Bureau of Land Management.

After the conference had been run for about 30 minutes, a reporter stood up and, almost plaintively, asked Mr. Eisenhower whether it had happened to the plan for an air-conditioned press conference room.

Quite sympathetically the President said he had not realized that the site of his new conference, on the fourth floor of the old State Department building, was not air conditioned.

Clinic Combats Worries, Fears

By ALFRED LEECH
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—A young housewife cleared her throat with a trace of nervousness and told the group she was worried about "things I know I can't change, anyway."

A young man in a sports shirt arose and said he is troubled by anxiety over his forthcoming marriage.

"I'm not afraid," he said. "Just anxious."

Members of the group laughed, and so did he.

It was the weekly meeting of a group known as "Flight Against Fear," composed of mental patients. Some are under treatment while others have "graduated" and no longer require therapy.

But they've found a common bond in their fight against fears and frustrations, and they've learned to help each other.

The meeting was held at the Oak Park Neuro-Psychiatric Clinic, operated by Dr. Melvin Blauvelt. It was strictly informal. One pretty brunette wore slacks and most of the men wore short sleeved sports shirts.

Young Group
There were about 35 persons present, from various walks of life. Most were fairly young, in their late 20's or early 30's.

The topic for discussion was "worry." A woman in a blue-and-white striped blouse called on other members for their comments or experiences.

A blonde woman ventured that the best way to avoid worry is to "trust in God." A suburban housewife named Helen said she worries about "how people feel toward me."

A man named Jack said he tries to overcome worry "by meeting my problems head on."

One woman had been hospitalized recently with a "breakdown" and had returned to work only the day before. She was worried because she had forgotten some details of her job.

"But I've decided if I can't remember something, I'll just ask somebody," she said. "If I think it's strange, I just can't help it."

How to Accept People
The talk switched to what the group meant to individual members. One woman said she was learning to "accept people as they are."

"Maybe I won't always be walking a tight rope," she said of her own tansions.

A man in his late 40's said the group had taught him there were others with similar emotion problems, "and that makes me feel less lost and helps me stay on an even keel."

The meeting was adjourned and the members flocked to the corner soda fountain for refreshment and conversation.

Joyce, a pretty, red-haired office worker, said the group is "more or less a social affair, with picnics, square dancing and that sort of thing."

Summer Session Enrollment Sets New FJC Record

FULLERTON — Six hundred and ninety-seven students attended the first day of the 1955 Summer Sessions at Fullerton High School and Junior College. According to John N. Reid, principal of the summer sessions, this is the largest number ever to take advantage of the program. In 1953 total enrollment was 488. Last summer 654 were participating.

Of this year's total, 330 students were at school to begin junior college classes, with the remaining 363 enrolled for high school work. Classes began June 27 and will continue through Aug. 19.

Particularly popular courses on a junior college level from the standpoint of enrollment, are those in typing, accounting and English. Intermediate algebra also draws its share of students, with 19 participating. Fifty-five are in the physics class and laboratory and 15 in chemistry. Social studies accounts for 85 of the entire registration in the college section.

English classes, in the high school section, account for 114 of the total, while 58 students are enrolled for typing. Mathematics and science courses drew 61 pupils, with driver education and health education accounting for the remainder of the enrollment.

Thirty instructors are required for the session, with 15 teaching junior college work and 15 instructing high school classes.

In years gone by, whenever there was a change in the national administration from one party to another, there was also a tremendous turnover in Government jobs. The faithful of one party were ousted to make room for the faithful of the other. These were the spoils of victory. But when President Eisenhower took over, he found few jobs with which to reward the party faithful. Jobs were as scarce as uranium. This situation came about through two factors: (1) thousands of federal employees were "blanketed" into the civil service system during the Roosevelt regime, and (2) the economy-minded Eisenhower administration lopped off 200,000 jobs from the federal payroll. It is said that there were no more than 2,000 jobs of the really desirable type to be handed out. (Most desirable are those which pay as much as $7,000 a year but call for little professional skill.) There was a time when a senator from a large state would have had as many as 15,000 jobs to dispense through Presidential appointment (which the senator would largely dictate). This sort of thing may discourage party hacks—in both parties—that they'll go to work for a living. Cad, what a fate!

Eternal Vigilance

The world is full of people who think they can handle our lives for us better than we can. Some of them are only harmless, if annoying, busybodies. Others are dangerous.

Communism, of course, is the world's clear and present danger. But its very clarity, its obvious despotism, help stir free men to opposition. Communism's subtler sister, Socialism, is a seductive wench—one far more difficult to resist.

The threat of socialism is ever-present. It clouds the future of every profession, every business, every individual. It demands eternal vigilance—that inescapable price of liberty.

American medicine provides a classic example of a profession that was vigilant, and rallied to protect itself, and others, from the treat of socialization. Other groups give evidence of similar awareness. The power and light industry—a prime target today for the socializers—was warned only recently by one of its leaders that it must fight for its rights against an increasingly powerful foe.

Louis V. Sutton, president of the Carolina Power and Light Company of Roanoke, North Carolina, pointed out to the industry's annual convention in Los Angeles that one Government power lobby alone—the National Rural Electric Cooperative, "spent more money during the first three months this year in connection with its legislative interests than any other agency in the long list of registered lobbyists." Such activity requires an answer in kind.

No one today—individual, Nation, or a section of the Nation's economy can afford to forget the words of Daniel Webster:

"God grants liberty only to those who live it, and are always ready to guard and defend it."

Hint Edgar Bergen May Come Up With TV Program In Try to Take Curse Off Disneyland Dismay

By JACK GAYNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Off-channel: Edgar Bergen in a quick, snappy trip to town at midweek for conferences about his TV and radio plans for the coming season. Nothing final yet with his agency and CBS, but there is talk of something involving the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tales—a program to be put on film in the near future. European backgrounds would be done on a scale designed to try and take the curse off ABC's Disneyland. There's a bit of a conflict, though. How to arrange for Bergen to do the new radio series in the season in which he'll make his first big bid as a regular performer on TV, with or without the dummies.

A year ago there was more anticipatory talk about TV, largely because of the then-recent FCC go-ahead on color—than there is today. Yet nothing happened beyond CBS and NBC stepping up their compatible colorcast schedules which scarcely anyone has even seen in black and white. Now, when there is little public comment about color, we're on the threshold of a season that will see the new-wives-of-TV started on the way to their inevitable important place in the living room.

The price of color sets (still well above the desired $500 mark) and certain technical complications will continue to bar a wholesale changeover from black and white in the next 12 months, but the cost is gradually being whittled away, and the networks will at least double their showmanship pressure in color. Come Christmas, 1956 (corrected), Santa Claus probably will wish the rainbow had never been invented.

Your Birthday Forecast

By STELLA

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6—Born today, you need to guard against acting strictly on impulse. You are sympathetic and kindly toward all whom you consider deserving and might easily become interested in some important reform movement. You have the gift of the spoken word and will be able to speak persuasively on almost any subject in which you are wholeheartedly interested. You are not as inclined to push yourself forward as you might be. If you were to pay a little more attention to your own needs you would advance faster toward your goal. You are especially interested in the arts and sciences and will be happiest if you select something within this area as your life work. Although you enjoy the activity of the city, you would plan to spend at least part of your time in the country. You women are affectionate and devoted and make splendid homemakers. You will be happiest if you wed quite early in life and have a family of your own to care for. Don't try to live alone; you won't like it. If unwed, select some person whose tastes and cultural pleasures are similar. Among those born on this date are: John Paul Jones, U.S. Naval hero; John L. Beveridge, statesman; Daniel Colman Gilman and Anshel Green, educators. To find what the stars have in store for you tomorrow, read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Thursday, July 7
CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Think carefully before you act on any new idea. It may need some testing before you start it going.

Friday, July 8
LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—There are cross-currents in today's aspects, so take it easy! To follow your impulses may not be wise. You may be disappointed if you are too hasty. You may be rather discouraged about something important to your future. Be patient, and it will work out all right.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 22)—Put a guard on your temper—temper, may be—if you are to avoid real trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—You must be cautious when it comes to expanding business interests or there can be error.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—There can be trouble ahead if you are careless in handling your money. Be careful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20)—Self-control is needed today if you are to avoid a serious emotional crisis.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 20)—Don't take sides if there is an argument raging in your vicinity.

Taurus (Apr. 21-May 21)—You must pay no attention to gossip and rumor, for you have no idea how very wrong it might be.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—Fine for all your efforts during the morning hours but exercise caution after luncheon, especially during the evening.

Patti Page Says She Was Born Clara Ann Fowler Some 25 Years Ago in Claremore, Oklahoma

By ANN WARDELL SAUNDERS
Patti Page, who has been one of the most popular stars of the screen since she was born Clara Ann Fowler some 25 years ago in Claremore, Okla., which also produced such stars as Will Rogers and Bob Hope, is one of 11 Fowler children, eight girls and three boys, and she insists that her resonant voice is the result of having to compete vocally for the family recorder three times daily.

Patti's pa was a railroad section foreman and real-estate broker of his eight singing daughters when they lifted the ratters in a Tulsa church choir. But Patti's ambitions were higher than just church rathering, so she tried her talents on a radio station. The Pace Milk Company offered to sponsor her if she would assume the name of Patti Page.

Have you a "Corcio" in your house? Screen Gems television producers Herbert B. Leonard and Norman Blackburn would like to know, for after screen-testing some 300 youngsters between the ages of 8 and 11 to find a possible juvenile star for their series "Corcio Boy," a suitable "Corcio" yet to be found. "Noah Beery, Jr." will handle the top adult role for this series.

NBC certainly is aiming for bigger and better teleproductions, what with laying on the line $500,000 for the first run of a new film, "Richard III," and another $500,000 for a similar picture, "The Constant Husband."

Opera lovers will be delighted that Producer Samuel Chotzinoff of the NBC Opera Theatre has commissioned Louise Ross and Stanley Hollingsworth to compose two new American operas for the coming season. Foss promises "Trefkink" for the Oct. 20 show and Hollingsworth will do an adaptation of Balzac's yarn, "La Grande Breche," to be shown later.

Round out the season, W. H. Auden and Chester Kallman are working on a new English version of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" for mid-January showing. Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" is scheduled for Nov. 27 and "Amahl and the Night Visitors" grabs the spotlight for the Oct. 29 show.

All the NBC corporate productions I've seen to date have been great entertainment of the highest quality, which is what you hope to see, regardless of the show which you wish only to link it with "culture." How can one get culture, and a good one, without a little speaking of opera in a foreign language, of course.

"I predicted that color TV still would be a year away," says Lorraine Day, who will take on "Women in White" telenovelas. What's that? A radio soap opera

Textile Executive Shows Senators Product Samples

WASHINGTON—J. Spencer Love, president of the Textile Institute of America's biggest textile company, figured the best way to tell those Senators about his business was to show them some of his products.

So he hauled in under the crystal chandeliers of the Judiciary Committee, piece after piece of yard goods, auto upholstery, window curtains, socks and suitings and spread them on the green baize table. Before he'd finished showing these materials to the lawmakers he'd managed to turn their sanctum into a replica of a bargain basement after a hard scrimmage by the ladies.

The spokesman called Love because his Burlington Industries, Inc., of Greensboro, N.C. had absorbed 89 other textile concerns and the question was whether he was fastening a monopoly. He said he wasn't.

His firm came up from nowhere, he said, during the last depression with a line of rayon goods. Then it began to expand with a wide variety of other synthetics.

"And eventually we discovered that the true miracle fabrics were nature's own," he added. "We began buying up woolen mills and cotton factories to get in on the trade in animal miracles. Then his experts began combining wool and cotton with a wide variety of synthetics to find properties that clothing never had before. These mixtures, he said, will be the fabrics of the future. They will be improved, of course, as the chemists make new discoveries.

He said he doubted if the Senators, themselves, could tell exactly what their suits were made of. Or even their shirts.

This caused Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) to have numerous constituents in the sheep business, to go, harumph. He knew what materials had gone into his lightweight suit. It was wool, all wool, pure and unspiced by anything out of a test tube.

As I look upon the display of fabrics here, I notice how disproportionately well is represented," Sen. O'Mahoney said. "I shall have to report this back in Wyoming."

Love's message was that his half-size eyeglasses (built so he easily could look over the top of them), jumped to his feet, and produced a pair of his new synthetic suits. "Here's a sports coating (gray and blue) that's 70 percent wool and 30 percent synthetic," he urged. "Here's a 100 percent wool. And here (he held up a reddish fabric) is 96 percent wool and four percent dyel.

PACIFIERS PREVENT THUMB-SUCKING

We've come full circle again. Pacifiers for babies actually prevent the thumb-sucking habit. That's the latest word.

Thumb-sucking is nothing to get alarmed about unless children continue past the age of five. It's entirely normal until the age of two. The trouble is that once established, the habit may be hard to break.

It gives babies something to suckle pacifiers, children always have thumbs available. If they're used to sucking a pacifier, you can throw that away and break the habit of thumb-sucking. It isn't practical to separate thumb from child. So thumb-sucking may continue until the age when it can begin to hurt teeth, about age five years.

Dr. Louis F. Rittelmeyer Jr., of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine, has reported a study of 564 children to find out the value of pacifiers in preventing thumb-sucking. He found that all 49 children using pacifiers, only three or four percent, became thumb-suckers.

More important, all who used pacifiers stopped thumb-sucking by the time they were five. In fact, all but one had stopped by age two.

Thumb-sucking is nothing but a nuisance until age five. But it may be a hard habit to break once a baby starts it. In fact, of 60 children in this study who sucked their thumbs, 17 children were still sucking thumb at the ages of five, six, and even past seven years. That is no good.

After a child is two thumb-sucking may mean that the child is overly anxious or otherwise emotionally disturbed. However, a child doesn't begin to suck his thumb until he is two unless he sucked his thumb earlier. Then in the beauty of the pacifier it gives baby something to suckle pacifiers, children always have thumbs available. THE DAVID LAWRENCE DISPATCH

Claim Democrats Tying With State Socialism In Their Backing of Public Power Projects

WASHINGTON—What constitutes a good political issue—and which party is right in appraising the mood of the American people? This question has just been crystallized in the attack on the public power project of both parties toward the problem of government ownership of all electric power facilities.

It is the public power project, known as "nationalization of industry," has about run its course as the Conservative party's pet project in the election victory. But in the United States there are evidently leaders of the Democratic party who are not so sure they can strike "pay dirt" in the issue of public power. Senator Keene, Democrat, of Tennessee, has introduced a bill to raise power and Senator Knowland, California, Republican, is asserting that the American people would never approve government ownership of electric power as a national policy.

This is not a new controversy. It has been going on since Nebraska, Independent, and originally a Progressive Republican, who a few decades ago introduced the Federal Reserve bill. More recently, the Federal Reserve bill was introduced to improve navigation and effectuate a system of flood control on the Mississippi river. It was argued then that this was a legitimate Federal purpose and that the by-product—electric power—was incidental. The issue was taken to the Supreme Court of the United States which decided that the Federal government had the authority to construct such projects for flood control and improvements of navigation.

But as the years have gone by what was the incidental at the beginning of the generation of electric power has become primary now. The advocates of government ownership of electric power when faced with a year ago in the Tennessee river with a seasonal shortage of water for electric power purposes, have turned to the appropriation of government money to build steam plants to generate electricity. Thus in time the government ownership supporters have made no bones about their original deception and have come out boldly for Federal construction of electric power plants of all kinds.

Certainly the government can furnish electric power more cheaply than private companies if the latter are not relieved of taxes. The government can sell anything to the consumer more cheaply than private enterprise if it wishes to subsidize the projects. In the case of the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Federal government is collecting tax money from taxpayers in every part of the country and using it to benefit the Tennessee area.

It is not only the Tennessee area in the North have been forced to shut down because certain New England businesses have been forced to close their power plant near the TVA in the South. That will hardly make votes for the Democrats in New England if they constitute themselves the government ownership party.

But the issue goes deeper. Why stop with electric power? If the government can provide cheaper electric power for certain areas and hide the costs through nationally imposed taxes, why can't it do the same for the principle of government ownership to steel, to automobiles, to aluminum, to airplanes, to railroads, to farming and to food distribution?

In Russia they have collective farms but the farmers don't like the system. They do manage to cut out the profits for the middleman. If the object is merely to have the government own everything then, of course, labor unions become unnecessary, or at least they become subject to government control and regulation as well.

From a political viewpoint there may be a few votes on the side of government ownership of electric power in and around the Tennessee Valley and the Pacific Northwest but in the rest of the country the Republicans ought to welcome the issue with open arms. For the Democratic party wishes to use its "opposition to the Dixie States contract as a symbol of its entire opposition to government ownership and nationalization, the Republicans can look forward to a victory on the opposite side of the coin. America is basically interested in private rather than public ownership.

The Eisenhower administration has sought to straddle the issue by flatly limiting Federal participation in electric power projects but at the same time recognizing the right of municipalities to engage in electric power businesses. Since the city of Memphis, unopposedly decided last week to build a steam plant, the Dixie States private project designed to meet the power needs of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Atomic Energy commission may become unnecessary and that's why the whole project is being re-examined by the president and the bureau of the budget.

What needs to be re-examined also is how far the Democratic party wants to go in committing itself to government ownership as a principle in national policy. For the Republicans, which has consistently opposed anything approaching state socialism or Communism or Fascism, it is a serious question to oppose vigorously any encroachment by government into the area of private enterprise. The Democrats are not to be opened with ideas of state socialism—they are still the radical party in America—and a showdown election such as the one now healthy thing to bring about in the 1956 presidential and congressional campaign.

Sex and Horror on TV Ok'd by Noted Producer

HOLLYWOOD — Walt Disney has seen his greatest dream fulfilled when the plans have been made to show 90,000 persons during tour of Disneyland on the 50-minute invitation preview telecast from Disneyland on Sunday, July 17.

Disneyland preview marks the dedication ceremonies of the 160-acre "magic kingdom" at Anaheim, California. During the ceremonies, Disney will escort the some viewers on a tour of the ceremonies Art Linkletter, who is to arrive at Disneyland by helicopter and then together they will take the audience from the Town Square, along Main Street, to the Plaza. This is the central area from which visitors can see the entrances to four of the entertainment realms: Tomorrowland, Fantasyland, Adventureland and Frontierland.

During the program, Disney will be joined by an array of stars, including Irene Dunne, Tom Ewell and Jean Hagen. Several other named ceremonies will be featured in the show besides Linkletter.

NEWS TV NOTES — NBC-TV's "Medic" will resume operations (whoops, sorry for the pun) on Thursdays of each week to find new talent for the series. They're looking for fresh faces (please, no gags about plastic surgery) and talent for next season. "Medic" goes into production on July 11. Get on "People Are Funny" and see the world — or at least Europe. Irv Atkins, associate producer of the NBC stunt show, leaves Flickerland for a month in the "old world" to line up trips to England and the continent as prizes for next fall's contestants. Atkins will meet Jackson Stanley, the show's idea man, in London to set the deal for "People Are Funny" to bow on TV in England, when the island inaugurates commercial TV in September. From London Atkins goes to Paris, Rome, and Germany for more business, then to the Riviera and Capri for a bit of monkey biz. Meanwhile Ralph Edwards and staff are crossing the "big pond" to shoot a few "This Is Your Life" TV specials in England. Reason is for protection purposes along the copyright line. FINAL REPORT—Harold E. Stassen (right), retiring head of Foreign Operations Administration, presents his final report to President Eisenhower at the White House. He said the program has made notable progress, but added that "our task is far from complete." Activities of FOA are being turned over to the State and Defense Departments.

Sports World Shocked by Shocking Fishing Pole Invented by Germans

By JACK L. HEES

United Press Staff Correspondent

HAMBURG, Germany—Two inventors here have figured out a way to take all the fun out of fishing. It's an electronic fishing pole, about the most diabolic invention to come out of Germany since the V-1 rocket.

You stick your pole into the water and press a button. All fish within a 10-foot radius stop in their tracks and swing around like compass needles pointing at the tip of your pole. All you have to do then is reach in with a net or your bare hands and pick them out. Sportsmen already are shouting that there ought to be a law against it, and there probably will be.

But the inventors don't care. Herbert Preglow and Conrad Kreutzer said they didn't have any anglers in mind when they devised the "Salmo-Super," which is what they have christened their shocking brainchild.

"It's the same as if a hunter would go after deer with a machine gun," Preglow admitted. "Nevertheless, the Salmo-Super for the first time in history allows controlled fish-breeding and fish-farming."

Preglow and Kreutzer invented the electric pole in cooperation with the West German Federal Institute for Fishing Research at Hamburg.

Garden Grove Hospital Given Green Light

SANTA ANA (OCNS)—The way was clear today for the establishment of a 50-bed, $500,000 general hospital on an 11-acre parcel of land in Southeast Garden Grove. A conditional permit was granted to Metropolitan Investment Co. to erect the hospital on the east side of Berrydale Ave. about 625 feet north of 17th St. The County Board of Supervisors acted on the permit.

A five-foot concrete wall will be constructed on the south property line. Adequate parking was shown on a revised plot plan approved last week by the Planning Commission.

A hospital spokesman said enough property is available for expansion to 100 beds in the future.

Mormon Church Here Gets Conditional Permit

SANTA ANA (OCNS)—The County Board of Supervisors today approved a conditional permit which will permit the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints to build a $300,000 church east of the Anaheim city limits.

The church is scheduled for a 4½-acre piece of land on the south side of South St. 300 feet east of Placentia Ave. The development will include a huge recreation hall. Basketball will be a feature of the hall, a spokesman for the Mormon church said. Half of the building site was purchased by the Mother Church. The congregation paid the rest.

The Anaheim Planning Commission offered no objections to the proposed church. The area is in Anaheim annexation plans.
