VOL XXXII NO. 279

Move Will Prohibit Floating Islands In Search for Offshore Petroleum

SACRAMENTO — The state Lands Commission has voted to put up for oil drilling almost 3,000 acres of tidelands between Huntington Beach and Newport Beach in Orange county.

The commission decided Wednesday it would allow the land for lease under existing state law, which prohibits the use of floating islands, rather than under the state-owned tidelands law, which would permit floating islands in the tidelands, is awaiting action by Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

Representatives of several major oil companies urged the commission to delay action until AB-3402 becomes law. They claimed it would be much cheaper for the drillers to use floating platforms and would result in higher royalties to the state.

But the commission decided to go ahead under present law, although it announced it may reject all bids if it finds it would be more advantageous to the state to lease the land under AB-3402.

Under terms of the proposed lease, drilling may be from upland sites or from floating islands which must be located at least one mile from the shore.

The area in question lies between the two cities and most of it is directly offshore from Huntington Beach State Park. It is believed to contain one of the richest pools of oil in the state-owned tidelands.

Under the state-owned tidelands law, the state-owned tidelands must be located at least 16.25 percent but not to exceed 60 percent.

Compulsory Program for Veterans Hit by Son

By JOHN W. FINNEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Sen. Richard B. Russell sharply questioned today the "propriety or the equity" of the administration's plan to impose a compulsory reserve obligation on veterans.

Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, thus took issue with one of the main props of the administration's military reserve program.

The Georgia Democrat raised his challenge to the administration's plan on the committee opened hearings in an attempt to push some reserve plan through the Senate before congressional adjournment.

The committee scheduled only three days of hearings, with the goal of reporting out a reserve bill for Senate action in 10 days. Lead-off witnesses on the first day of hearings were representatives of educational, scientific, technical and labor groups.

The administration's plan is scheduled to present its case for the reserve plan Monday. Russell's opening statement was an indication that the administration's plan, already approved in modified form by the House, may be in for substantial overhauling in the Senate committee.

Under the administration's plan to strengthen the reserves, service men would have a compulsory reserve training obligation following active duty. Under the House-approved version, it would be a total of five years of active and reserve duty.

To build up a corps of reservists without previous active duty, the administration also proposed—and the House approved in modified form—that up to 250,000 youths annually be given six months military training followed by 7 years reserve duty.

Russell questioned "the propriety or the equity of imposing the major part of the reserve responsibility on the shoulders of our prior service men—the equity of forcing these men to participate in reserve training activities in addition to the basic liability for mobilization assignment and recall in time of war."

"If the situation facing the nation so grave that we must force this active burden on those men who have already served," Russell said, then "we must completely reorient our planning."

Russell said he would "insist that this obligation be imposed as a new requirement, and not as something casually adopted under the guise of 'pushing some teeth' into existing law, and implementing an alleged congressional intent that is more fantasy than fact."

The action covers approximately 12 acres and is described as lots 1845 of tentative tract map 2501 and lots 213 of tentative tract map 2577. The reason for the board's action on the properties now is they wish to buy the property on an acreage basis rather than a lot basis. The property can be bought on an acreage basis while tract maps are still tentative.

Trees on the property have already been pulled. A 30-room school could be built on the site, trustees opined.

Meanwhile, a trial originally slated July 9 in Huntington Beach Municipal Court for Slaughter and Johnson for violations of the Safety Code and failure to have proper compensation on an employee has been postponed to Aug. 15.

Both the trial of Johnson and Slaughter, and the State Contractors Board action aimed at the widow and three children of Dougherty were left uncovered by any insurance by the employers, Johnson and Slaughter. It was at this time that it was discovered Johnson and Slaughter did not have a contractors license, and that Dunham, a member of the local sewer board, had been permitting use of his sewer contractor's license for them to obtain permits from the County Building Department.

When the representatives introduced themselves, she happily exclaimed, "You're finally come. I've been shopping every Wednesday for years and I never expected to have my name drawn."

Guards Search Washington Prison For Hidden Arms

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UP)—Eight unarmed guards entered cell block 6 today to begin a block-by-block shakedown at right-wing Washington State Prison.

The eight were among 12 guards who volunteered for the job at the request of Warden Lawrence Delmore Jr. They were to "secure" each of the six cellblocks in the prison one at a time, reporting back to Delmore after each one was searched.

The plan called for herding the prisoners into the yard one block at a time. After all the inmates were in the yard, they were to be searched.

Hints Slayings
The inmate population was 1784 before the riot began Tuesday morning. Veteran guards, however, expressed doubt there would be that many alive when the final roll was taken today.

"There are too many stool-pigeons in this place," said one guard who declined to give his name. "I wouldn't be a bit surprised to find more than one corpse."

Before the eight volunteers entered the prison this morning there were no penitentiary employees in the walls. However, the prisoners behaved themselves. On the walls were 38 state patrolmen and prison guards armed with rifles.

State Guard on Wall
"My orders are for the state patrol to take care of the security of the walls," explained State Patrol Lt. Charles Hall. "It is up to the prison authorities to take care of the situation inside."

Only six of the 30 day shift guards volunteered to go into the prison. The other six were from other shifts. Delmore selected eight of the 12 and explained terms of the nine-point agreement which ended the 26-hour riot and resulted in the release of nine hostages.

The main reason we made them (the terms) so quickly was because time was running out and we weren't going to stand too long on formality," Delmore said. "Nevertheless, we didn't sell out."

Earlier, a spokesman for the guards said only a few of the knives and razors carried by rioting prisoners were turned in when they filed back to their cells.

Three Persons Hurt In Two Local Accidents
Three persons were injured in two separate auto accidents here yesterday, but none were seriously hurt. The first accident occurred at 3:03 p.m. when the two and one-half ton flat bed truck driven by Gilbert Huizenga was said by Gilbert Huizenga to have run a red light and smashed into the left side of a car driven by Mrs. Acton, 77, 8032 Myrtle Place, was going west on La La Palma, she stated, when the truck driven by Huizenga, 21, 17335 Norwalk Boulevard, crashed into the intersection smashing into the left side of her car. Mrs. Acton was taken to Johnston-Gendel Clinic, treated and released.

Second accident was at 11:35 p.m. on Manchester at the Southern Pacific tracks. Police reported that Mrs. Ruth Bergman, 45, 340 N. Contractor Faces Charge Of Illegal License Use

SANTA ANA (OCNS) — J. R. Dunham, Westminster contractor and member of the Midway City Sanitary Board, was the subject of a three-page bill of charges on illegal use of his contractor's license it was announced this morning by James H. Mitchell, field investigator for the California State Contractor License Board.

The charges of aiding and abetting an unlicensed contractor in avoiding license laws were filed late Wednesday in the Los Angeles office of the Registrar of Contractors, E. W. Ford.

A hearing will be announced at a later date at which the accused contractor will be given an opportunity to present his case, it was announced by the investigator.

The three-page accusation by the board charges direct violation of four sections of the Chapter 9 Division 3 of the Business and Professions code of the state.

Follows Probe
It recommends disciplinary action against the contractor which may result in stripping him of his license and six supplementary building classifications.

The charges have come as a result of nearly a three months investigation in this case, stated Mitchell.

Named in the group of specific cases in which Dunham was said to have conspired with Walter Slaughter and Clarence Johnson, unlicensed Westminster contractors, were six tricity home owners.

The home owners reported they did not know the work was being done as a result of an unlawful violation of licenses.

Blackmail Hinted in Slaying

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Detectives indicated today that blackmail and not unrequited love led to the slaying of a socialite divorcee by her former houseboy, John B. Crocker Jr., threatened to bare alleged intimate relations with the socialite, Mrs. Norma T. McCauley.

"I wonder what your husband and parents would think if they knew," one of the letters was quoted. Detectives said this letter was dated shortly before Crocker stabbed Mrs. McCauley to death in her fashionable Bel Air home.

Police said Crocker admitted the 33-year-old divorcee had given him $300 three weeks ago and had been general with lesser sums over a period of time.

They said Mrs. McCauley had given Crocker the money to go back to his home in Buckner, Me. to "get out of her life."

Fishing Vessel Reported Sinking With 21 Aboard

NEW YORK (UP)—A commercial tug picked up a distress message today saying a fishing vessel was afloat and sinking off the coast. Some 10 hours after the Coast Guard Cutter "Gentian" reported finding an oil slick and a single life preserver in the area.

Prior to the discovery evidence and strongly indicated that the distress message was a fantastic hoax. The find did not eliminate this possibility, the Coast Guard said, but the search by Navy and Coast Guard air and sea forces continued in increased intensity.

The Coast Guard has been able to identify the vessel which gave its name as "Blue Star."

The tale of terror at sea was relayed by a strange radio-phone conversation with the tug over more than an hour. It ended with a report that a foreign submarine had surfaced beside the foundering boat.

The "Blue Star" had reported earlier that 18 persons were aboard, clinging to wreckage to keep afloat because all the boat's life preservers had been destroyed by fire.

The cutter Gentian radioed that it had picked up life preserver it found showed "no burn marks."

The preserver was found about 30 miles east of Beach Haven, N.J., the southwest sector of the search pattern set up on the basis of the "Blue Star's" report.

Weather
Mostly clear today through Friday but local early morning fog and low clouds, near coast, slightly warmer today with high near 82.

Chessman Says Reprieve May Lead to Hearing

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—An elated Caryl Chessman took a cautious look at his latest reprieve from the gas chamber today and said it was a "decisive" step which could lead to "eventual vindication."

But the condemned convict-author, who has held off execution through a series of legal maneuvers for seven years, added, "I can't afford to speculate or get my hopes too high."

Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark granted Chessman a stay on Wednesday, so the full court can review the doomed writer's controversial case when it reconvenes in October. Chessman was to have been put to death July 15.

"This is a decisive step," he said in a prison interview. "I'm confident that if the Supreme Court takes a good close look at the case, rather than summarily dismissing it as it has in the past, they will grant the hearing I've been fighting for."

"And I'm equally confident that I could prove in a full hearing that I'm innocent of the crimes for which I was condemned," he added, which I was convicted in 1948 on 17 counts of kidnapping, robbery and rape of the so-called "red light bandit" of Los Angeles.

The 34-year-old convict, whose latest reprieve was the sixth time his scheduled execution has been called off, said Clark's action offered more encouragement for "eventual vindication" than any other development since he entered death row.

Chessman, who gained fame by writing the best-selling novel "Cell 2455 Death Row," has another book "Trial By Ordeal" coming out next Monday.

School Meetings Now Being Held Are Forerunners of National Confab

By BETTY PRYOR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many thousands of Americans are talking about their schools these days at meetings being held throughout the country.

By the time the meetings are over, perhaps as many as one million will have joined in the local, county, and state discussions.

These meetings are forerunners to the White House conference on education to be held here Nov. 28 to Dec. 1. Their purpose is to arouse citizens' interest in the problems facing their schools and to search for solutions to them.

Clint Pace, director of the White House conference, said "There never has been such a widespread interest in the schools."

This, he said, is reflected by the number of people attending the pre-conference meetings now going on. These meetings, he said, "give persons concerned about the state of the nation's schools a voice in proposals for doing something about it."

Pace, a former Dallas news reporter, was regional director at Dallas of the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools when he was picked last October to head the White House conference.

The schools have long been struggling with a steadily worsening problem—too few Struck a glancing blow at the base of the skull, Gilstrap was taken unconscious to Anaheim Hospital and later transferred to St. Joseph.

The body was taken to Coleman Mortuary, La Habra.

Chessman Granted New Stay of Execution

WASHINGTON (UP)—Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark Wed granted a stay of execution to convict-author Caryl Chessman, who was scheduled to die in San Quentin Prison's gas chamber on July 15.

Clark granted the stay to permit the Supreme Court to review Chessman's trial. Chessman wrote the best-seller "Cell 2455, Death Row" in a cell at San Quentin. His case gained national prominence after publication of the book in May, 1953.

Known as the "lover's lane bandit," Chessman drew two death sentences and two life imprisonment sentences after conviction on 17 charges in Los Angeles County Court. From his cell in death row for the past six years, Chessman has conducted most of his own legal work.

His current petition, one of many he has filed, was sent to Justice Clark in Dallas, Tex., for his consideration. Clark's decision was announced by a Supreme Court spokesman here.

Sun Gardens Freeway Hearing Hoped For

GARDEN GROVE (OCNS)—The Sun Gardens area two-month battle to keep a proposed freeway from cutting directly through their neighborhood began to bear fruit this week as tentative arrangements for a hearing before the State Highway Commission were made with the assistance of Edward Telford, district highway engineer, State Senator John Murry and Supervisor Willis Warner.

After a two-hour conference with a committee of Sun Gardens residents, Telford agreed to request a half-hour hearing for a committee spokesman when the commission meets in Los Angeles July 20.

Murry and Warner indicated they would write letters to the commission secretary today, urging the Sun Garden presentation be put on the July 20 calendar. Residents claim the state's proposed route along Central Ave. in Sun Gardens will "wash" almost 70 homes, as confounding their chosen route along Trunk Ave. which affects only 10 homes and a driveway theater.

Tentative Maps for 189 Lots Get Okayed

The City Planning Commission Tuesday approved four tentative tract maps for a total of 189 lots. Largest of the maps was submitted by Prudential Homes, 14371 Anaheim-Olive Road for their huge subdivision development at the southwest corner of East La Palma avenue and Sunkist street.

The maps, revised to meet certain city specifications, called for 116 and 42 lots respectively. The firm's third map, for 119 lots, was held-over until the extension of Center street to the east can be worked out. Ivan Wells and Sons, 2308 Houston St., got approval of their map for 18 lots on the south side of Orange avenue, 323 feet east of Brookhurst street. Approval of a map of 13 lots went to Tidwell and Berrier of Garden Grove for the development of an apartment house project at 1014-1028 South Los Angeles St.

Bank of America resources now total more than $9,240,000,000 World's Most Popular Bank

When we got through adding up the figures for our mid-year statement of condition, our total resources once more indicated that B of A is the world's most popular bank. Of even greater interest is the fact that more than 3,000,000 Californians now have savings accounts in Bank of America.

- ✓ SAFETY
- ✓ CONVENIENCE
- ✓ AVAILABILITY

These are the three big reasons why so many Californians save at Bank of America. Safety—our bank's great resources afford the ultimate in safety. Availability—there's no substitute for "money in the bank" where you can always get it when you want it. Convenience—almost anywhere in California, there's a branch of our bank nearby, always ready to serve you.

TIME FOR CAMP RELAXATION—Under spreading oak trees at Girl Scout Day camp, which allows the young Scouts to share in the widely planned summer camp programs, as well as the older ones, hundreds of Girl Scouts stretched out, hunched up their knees, or just rested as they drank their cold citrus juice and made ready for that ever-popular camp sing. This took place at the annual day camp and Orange County's well known Irvine Park with all sorts of activities planned for girls with many leaders directing. This is one of the camps that are annually set for Anaheim's Girl Scouts each aimed at wider knowledge of outdoor life as well as training of "getting along together." (Bulletin Photo)

MARCHING ALONG TOGETHER—Unit of the Girl Scout and Brownie day camp at Irvine gathered up their ditty bags and with their leaders started singing as they headed toward the day camp center at Irvine Park following individual operations. Every young girl of the unit entered into the spirit of the occasion. This is one of the many units that set up their headquarters at benches, near trees, barbecue stove or some other suitable spot, where they combined their imaginations in crafts, singing, action games and other activities in their work-study periods. IRVINE PARK OUTDOOR CAMP SITE

Young Girls Get Experience At Annual Scout Day Camp

Two hundred twenty five enthusiastic young girls, all of the younger group in Girl Scouting, shared an experience this past week at Irvine Park which they will not forget for many years.

Tramping about the hills near the camp, when their organized day camp program and details were completed they thoroughly enjoyed the great out of doors carrying up the camp theme "Nature's Half Acre." This follows through the national Girl Scout theme, "Americanism."

The girls broke into smaller units with leaders directing their daily work and recreation program with the entire camp coming together under the big spreading oaks at the park for luncheon and mid-morning and afternoon refreshment. They lounged about enjoying singing of their favorite songs with "never a dull moment," they claimed, "at day camp at Irvine." The camp highlight, a campfire program the closing night, was shared with parents and friends of the Scouts.

Program aides in charge of the day camp were: Kay Eldred, Charlene Allen, Janet Landes, Rosemary Dally, Jane Reinemann, Joan Stoffel, Marilyn Robinson, Dorothy Corley, Roberta McFarland, Betty Spielman, Carol Roland, Joan Helz, Marie Arias, Harlean May, Barbara Jo Fisher, Gretchen Schmitt, Kay Gillespie, Margaret Whitteck and Liane Langer.

Staff members under the director, Mrs. Sally Magill and assistant Miss Mary Lou Allee, included 25 adults.

The campers learned mainly the fun of working and playing together under an organized and supervised program which is operated nation-wide in Scouting, giving many young Americans opportunity of camping.

COOLING REFRESHMENT—The Girl Scout wagon rolled into the Girl Scout and Brownie day camp at Irvine bringing ice cold citrus juice in a big vat for the hundreds of young girls sharing this annual event. The lid off, the leaders had hardly time enough to do little stirring before the clamor of "me next" started. There was plenty for everyone with quietness "settling in" as these young Americans and leaders headed toward the center for the camp sing and "time out" from unit work period. (Bulletin Photo)

Life With Music

By RICHARD D. SAUNDERS
It is supposed to be illegal in the United States to perpetrate "cruel and unusual" punishment for any offense. But a recent story in a Los Angeles daily paper hints that such a practice occurs at the County institution for youthful delinquents in Norwalk.

The story states specifically that "the latest rhythm and blues" recordings are piped over an intercom system to all the buildings and rooms, to assault the ears of the hapless teenagers, whose confinement foragers, whose confinement forces the into listen, whether they want to or not.

Music can be used to heal and to soothe. It also can be used to irritate, annoy or agitate even to the point of violent reaction. It can be employed medicinally for either good or ill.

Most of the popular "rhythm and blues" music is designed to rattle the emotions and irritate the nerve centers into the spasmodic actions of dancing or jumping, particularly when no previous desire for such action existed.

It is had enough that young people listen to as much of this stuff as they do normally—at best it is trash, and at worst it is the effluvia of questionable resorts, with depressing or suggestive lyrics. To force it upon defenseless youngsters is a brutal outrage. Indeed, similar noise will have been a factor in inciting some of the youths to delinquent acts in the first place.

Traveller Says Age No Barrier

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK in — A girl's as young as she feels, a trim world traveller aged 81 said when she paused here en route to Iceland, Norway, Sweden and points south. Mrs. Beryl Hayes Day surveyed the Manhattan skyscrapers for the first time two days ago, her bright blue eyes sparkling behind her stylish, black-rimmed glasses she said. "This is wonderful," she said. "Every day holds something new in life. I've never been here before. Afraid to travel alone at my age? Why should I be? I'm not afraid of anything or anybody."

Mrs. Day has sailed aboard the S. S. Caronia on a 40-day cruise. She came here by train from her home in Eureka, Calif., where she owns the town's two newspapers. She made it perfectly clear within an hour after setting a firm foot on her first Manhattan sidewalk that her four-day stop-over was not a rest stop.

Goes Sight Seeing

She came here to go sightseeing. The lively, white-haired lady is the widow of Clarence L. Day, who worked as a newspaperman in Nebraska, Idaho and Southern California before buying the Eureka newspaper. Some years ago she took a freighter around the world and wrote a book called "The Seven Seas at Twenty and Seven."

Until she was 73, she had never been outside the United States. "Not enough money for it, honey," she confided cheerfully. At 73 she took a freighter down the East Coast of South America and wrote a book called "The Humboldt's Odyssey."

This time Mrs. Day will travel in luxury and leisure, but she is frankly skeptical about both.

land and live in the homes there.

Half Way News

One-half of the entire 92 persons will leave July 11, and fly by way of Washington D.C., and will spend one and one-half days there.

Nan Moore, YWCA, girls work secretary said "Personal relationships will be stressed a great deal. We are more interested in meeting of young groups than looking at ruins of the country."

Helping to finance the trip for eight Anaheim delegates, were the two Smorgasbord dinners held at the YMCA this year.

Open Great World Theater This Friday

The Great World Theater opens Thursday for a seven night production at the Chapman college in Orange. Dates are July 8, 9, 10, 15, 16, 17 and 22 with curtain time set for 8:30 p.m.

"The Great World Theater" is a 17th century classic written by Calderon de la Barca. During the hour and a half of the play, the story tells of a man acting out his role on stage before the eyes of God. Based on the theme of "All the world's a stage," the message of the masterpiece is timeless. The lines, though 300 years old, seem to be written for the world today.

Campus Staging
The play will be staged in the front of Chapman college in Orange with the administration building.

Bal D'Elegance Ovarions Salute Stokowski

Appointment of Leopold Stokowski as music director and conductor of The Pacific Coast Music Festival will be saluted at the Bal d'Elegance, July 8, at the Coral Casino of Santa Barbara's Biltmore hotel.

Invitations are out to select music-loving society leaders from coast to coast for the white tie and red carpet affair which will contribute to the success of America's newest symphony orchestra.

In addition to the four Stokowski concerts to be held on the weekends of Sept. 10-11 and Sept. 17-18, a full week of musical and artistic events is planned by the Pacific Coast Music Festival association.

Final arrangements have been completed for evenings of outstanding chamber music by the famous Paganini Quartet booked for two performances, and the Musart Quartet for another two. For the second year, the Roger Wagner Choral will present a concert.

MEMORANDUM

BULLETIN SPORTS EDITOR

The annual All-Star game at Milwaukee next Tuesday, the only time rival American and National leagues can blow off steam towards each other except in the World Series, has already begun to grind up dust.

The announcement of teams was merely a day old when both Manager Leo Durocher of the Nationals and Al Lopez of the Americans were on the pan by the fan.

They cried that Durocher passed up National league champ Richie Ashburn of the Phils and that he favored Sal Maglie of the Giants by not starting both.

Leo answered that the National league has an abundance of left-handed power hitters. It would put his team at a disadvantage to play Ashburn. He'll start left handers Ted Kluszewski, Eddie Mathews, Duke Snider and Don Mueller. Durocher said he talked the matter over with league President Warren Giles. "We felt that we had to have some right-handed power on the team to win," said Leo.

As for the Maglie issue, Durocher answered critics with "I went along entirely with the consensus of the other managers on the pitching staff. I did not pick the pitchers myself."

Cleveland's Lopez, the American league All-Star skipper, was bombarded for passing Yankees' First Baseman Bill Skowron while picking six of his Indians. "It was my choice to make," said Lopez. The Cleveland players Lopez picked were Pitches Ely, Tony Bonville, Infielders Bobby Avila and Al Rosen and Outfielders Larry Doby and Al Smith.

The trend of the past couple of seasons continues with National league power matched against American league pitching. The Nationals are loaded with a powerful reserve force of such as Stan Musial, Willie Mays and Gil Hodges on the bench. "You hold me, pal! The bench yet."

FLURRY OF ALBACORE SLACKENS FOR LOCALS
Anaheim fishermen reported slim pickings as far as albacore were concerned in the weekly charter trip of the boat "Andale," skippered by Phil Tozer out of Norm's Landing. However, none came home empty handed as the help fishing proved fairly plentiful.

Highlight of the most recent trip was an unusual catch. It was a Chinook salmon weighing 25 pounds and hauled in by Paul Lohr.

With barracuda, salmon grouper and calico bass hitting the bait, all fishermen had good catches to show for their combined good day's work. Those making the trip that day included Sam Landa, Lloyd Trapp, Tony Bouch, Bob Williams, Gramp Roquet, Mick Gregg, Vic Peltzer, Bill Hunstock, Bill Hicks, Lohr, Dr. James Cummins and Gail Varney.

Chit Chat . . . The Del Mar Turf club will distribute more than a million dollars in purses and stakes during its 46-day racing season opening July 27. . . Don't forget the Anaheim Israk Walton meeting tonight where Warren Broad will be installed new president.

LYNX WANTED TO SEE—AND THEY SAW
The Buena Park Lynx were anxious the other night to see the Phoenix Queens, a newly-admitted associate member of the Pacific Coast Women's Softball League. The Queens were a group of former pros and the Lynx wanted to see whether or not they still measured up. The question was quickly decided when the Queens shutout the Lynx, 3-0. "We saw, all right," said Marion Harvey. "They not only played like old pros, but had a good balance of youngsters to relieve the pressure." . . . Art Bielefeld of Anaheim, a pitcher for Stockton in the California League, has improved much and now has a 2-2 record. Last week, Art won one game and worked in two for a total of 14 innings. He gave up 19 hits, walked one and fanned 11. . . Joe Potts of Buena Park, a catcher for Elmira in the Eastern League, has been having trouble at the plate as indicated by his .109 average. It might be added that Joe isn't working regularly which doesn't help an average at all.

GRUNION MAY LAST THREE DAYS

(Special from OCHS)

Grunion made the first July appearance Wednesday night when the silversides swarmed on the many southland beaches to spawn.

The grunion are expected to hit the beaches three more nights, with the run winding up Sunday morning.

The grunion come ashore on sandy beaches only at night, and where it is fairly dark to spawn. The grunion spend their entire lives near the beaches and make their runs during the spawning season from March to August. The fish are in season only during the month of June, July and August and it is illegal to possess the fish at any other time.

The runs start after the turn of the tide and may last from one to three hours. The run will take place only when each succeeding tide is lower than the preceding night. The female comes ashore and deposits the eggs, with the entire process lasting only a half-minute and sometimes less.

The eggs remain alive and buried in the sand for two weeks to a month and are washed out to sea due to the action of the tide. The baby grunion develops and lives near the shore. The silversides will live from one to three years and grows to about five or six inches.

Tonight the fish are expected to hit the beach 11:15 and stay until 12:15. Friday the run will start at midnight and last until 1 a.m. Saturday morning the grunion will come ashore Sunday morning at 12:30 and remain for one hour.

The shore swelling grunion will start another four-day stand July 21. Newport Beach, Corona del Mar, Doheny Beach and Huntington Beach are the best spots to hunt grunion in Orange County.

Grunion hunters must have sport fishing licenses. They may be taken on the beach or in the surf by hand only. There is no limit.

Girl Scout Troop 13 and Boy Scout Troop 29 returned from a three-day campout in the mountains above Redlands. The girls set up camp at Barton Flats while the boys enjoyed their stay at a Boy Scout camp in the remote area of Seven Oaks. Both groups spent their time hiking and swimming. Some of the boys also enjoyed stream fishing, with fair luck.

The youngsters found the weather very mild and warm during the day, and the nights weren't too cold.

Girls participating in the event were Joy Lynn Smith, Kay Cotton, Bonnie Day, Beverly VanVleet, Marjorie Greene, Cherry Edwards, Linda Middleton and guest, Elizabeth Bigelow, of San Leandro. Adults accompanying the group were leaders, Jean Shaw and Nell Van Vleet with their daughters, Sherry and Jonell and Mrs. Wesley Mole and Betty.

A number of Yorba Linda 4-H youngsters have just returned from a week's stay at Camp Conrad, 4-H camp in the Barton Flats area. They enjoyed their stay in a variety of diversions: hiking, game sports, fishing, swimming, crafts, horseback riding and campfire programs. The youths found it a week packed with fun and meeting other 4-Hers from all over Orange County. Yorba Lindans attending included: Nancy James, Dianne Weed, Mary Tucker, Marilyn Mole, Patty Horton, Krissy Joe Casper, Tommy Casper, Peggy Horton, Herb Horton, David Casper and Herb Horton Sr. as a counselor.

Out-of-state house guests at the John Buckmann home during the past week were Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Buckmann and Carol, of Des Moines, Iowa. The two families spent the week taking in the sights of Southern California. During the week other visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell of Waterloo, stopped by for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Harris, with Ruth and Steven, spent Sunday at Hemet, picking up and getting apricots from the valley. Accompanying them were Mr. and Mrs. H. Fischer, of Brea. On Monday the Harris and the Fischers had an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration at the Fischers' home.

Mr. J. R. Gentry of Buena Vista avenue spent the holiday weekend at San Diego, visiting with friends, the W. A. Smithers.

Councilmen Defer Action On Well Drilling Permit

FULLERTON (OCNS)—Authorization for plans for specifications for drilling a 650-foot well estimated to cost the city $15,922.50 plus approximately $8,500 more for a pump motor failed to get a second from city councilmen Tuesday night.

The matter was referred to the water committee for study. A tentative agreement with Kimberly-Clark Corp., on whose property the well would be drilled, calls for a 60 by 140-foot parcel of land to be deeded to the city. The well would be paid for from city funds, and the water would be sold to the corporation.

It is believed the new 18-inch well would supply Kimberly-Clark's needed 1,500 gallons per minute. Ultimately, the paper processing company intends to use 3,000 gallons per minute. Plans have already been ordered drawn for a 50,000-gallon water tank to be built at Acacia avenue and Vista Del Mar Drive.

Expect to Let Contract For Storm Drain Project

SANTA ANA (OCNS)—Albert S. Pratt Jr., of Pasadena, today appeared to be the successful bidder on the construction of Buena Park Storm Drain Unit No. 1.

Pratt's offer of $44,457 was low among eight submitted to the County Board of Supervisors. Bids were referred to the flood control engineer for study and report.

The 4-of-a-mile drain will carry water from the Fullerton relief channel to the Southern Pacific Railroad right-of-way. The open concrete-type channel will cut across property of the Glidden Co. and Harvey Machine Co.

Cost of the job had been estimated at $44,400. The State Highway Division is expected to contribute $20,000 because of the drainage offered the Santa Ana freeway. The county also has applied for State Chapter 20 funds to help finance the drain.

Mammas, if you want to really have a grand vacation, the Big Sur National Park up near San Luis Obispo on the Monterey highway to San Francisco is the place to go, according to Mrs. Calvin Terry who has just returned from a delightful vacation with her husband and three children.

Not only is the Big Sur, with its running stream and beautiful setting, a very reasonable place to go, but it has all the accommodations of much more expensive places, plus a wonderful recreation program for children, she reported. There are two-hour supervised hikes both in the mornings and afternoons, a campfire and movies in the evening, plus swimming in a cemented pool fed by a fresh stream of water.

On their return from San Francisco by the inland route, the Terrys went 50 miles east to enter Yosemite through Merced and the beautiful Arch entrance. They reported that the scenery was lovely as they followed the river through the canyon and had no difficulties pulling the tear-drop trailer behind them or locating campsites.

The George Weinbergers recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Interesting items come from the Latin American citizens of the area this week. One such item concerns the organization of a Junior LULAC Council, sponsored by the Stanton LULAC Council under President Victor Zuniga. It will be remembered that LULAC stands for League of United Latin American Citizens, and is a service club type of organization which has as its purpose community betterment and cooperation with other service groups.

The Stanton Junior organization at present is composed of 40 girls and boys, ranging in ages from 13 to 17 years. Rudy Najera, who was the American Legion award at Western Junior high this June, is president. Richard Rosales was elected vice president, and the Misses Lupe Cabral, secretary, Rafaela Ambriz, treasurer, Kay Casserly, chaplain, and Angie Ybarra and Shirley Ambrosia, trustees.

Also, twin boys, Dale and David, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Galvan, former residents of Rose St. It is at the Rose St. home of Ralph's brother, Paul, that the monthly dinners are held by which money is being raised for a recreational hall for the Mexican-American Methodist church, of which both brothers are pillars.

The monthly dinners are served from 5 to 8 p.m. at a charge of $1.25, and are attended by between 200 to 250 people, both Anglo and Mexican-Americans. Rev. Darro Fort is the pastor of the church.

Santa Ana Population Estimated at 62,800

SANTA ANA (OCNS)—Santa Ana City Manager, Carl Thornton, told the Santa Ana City Council Tuesday night that by checking the city's water meters he was able to establish the city's population at 62,800, as of July 1. There are also meters enough for 1,091 additional residents who are expected to move in soon.

Thornton estimated that in the next several months 66,100 persons would reside in Santa Ana. He also stated that he expected nearly 68,000 by Jan. 1, 1956. Thornton has said previously that he estimates the population of Santa Ana to be at 65,000 in two years.

IN OPERATION—American National Foods, Inc., marketers of Blue Goose Brands fruits and vegetables, reported that construction of their new orange and lemon packing house in Placentia is now completed and the plant is in operation. The firm's Fullerton plant was one of the victims of a disastrous fire on Dec. 27, 1954. After making a survey of the damage, it was found impractical to rebuild on the old site.

An orange packing plant in Placentia was purchased and altered to convert it to a Blue Goose combination orange and lemon packing house. The new plant is equipped with the most modern packing machinery and labor-saving devices. Robert and Stanley Strain, managers of ANF's operation in Placentia, feel this is the newest and most modern orange and lemon packing house in the industry today.

A luncheon honoring Mrs. Henry Muesse's birthday was staged last week by her mother-in-law, Mrs. A. R. Muesse, at 8802 Cypress Ave.

It was held at one o'clock, and highlight of the affair was the opening of beautiful gifts received by the hostess. Mrs. Muesse was assisted by Mrs. Howard McClurg as hostess.

Enjoying the afternoon were Mmes. Charles Sanders, Phil McLaughlin, E. E. Goodman, Kenneth Davis, Bill Rogers, Merle Jennings, Joe Rochna, Charles Snyderman, Marn Snyderman, Hattie Bernard, K. E. Johnson, John Kennedy, William Flores and the honoree.

The summer Reading Club is under way at the Cypress Library, according to Mrs. R. O. King, librarian.

Children can get books and participate in the program Monday through Friday, from 1 to 5 p.m., she said, and added that the library will be open Monday evenings from 7 to 9.

Mrs. King listed some of the available books now being checked out. A popular biography is "Slingman Rhee, the Man Behind the Myth," by Robert Tarbell Oliver.

Of interest to Cub and Boy Scouts is the book on swimming, "The Merit Badge Series," in the juvenile department. Also the "Science of Swimming," by Sullivan.

Many parents have come to the library and asked for a competent book on common ailments, Mrs. King reported. She has "Modern Home Medical Advice," by Morris Fishbein, M.D., for this purpose.

"The Flag of Our United States," by A. J. Moss, tells how to display the flag. Everyone is urged to read it.

Forrest Lowrey suffered a twisted leg, cracked knee bone, and bruises on his head when he was knocked unconscious last week as he fell when getting into his car.

Lowrey was going to work when his crutch got caught in the door of his car and he lost his balance. When he fell, he was knocked out and was rushed to Buena Park Medical center for treatment.

He is recovering in his home at present.

Mrs. Fred Hutchings returned recently from a mid-western trip which took her into Canada where she visited her son, George.

Highlight of the journey was the convention she attended in Missouri, which was a handwriting analysis meeting. Mrs. Hutchings has studied that art for several years.

See Approval Soon Of New Social Security Bill

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democratic sources predicted today the House Ways & Means Committee soon will approve legislation that could add almost one million persons to the seven million now getting Social Security checks from the government.

To pay for the new benefits, they predicted, the bill will advance the date of future tax increases already scheduled for employers, employees, and self-employed persons covered by Social Security.

One Democratic source said the committee probably would agree to advance to January, 1937, a 25 per cent boost in Social Security taxes now scheduled for January, 1939.

The forecast came as the committee was called behind closed doors to resume work on the Democratic plan. Democratic leaders have announced they will seek to rush the bill through the House soon after it emerges from committee. But the Senate is not likely to act on it until next year.

The Democratic majority of the House committee, after reversing itself several times during the last two weeks, was reported to have agreed finally at a secret caucus late Tuesday on this three point program for liberalizing Social Security:

1. Lower the benefit age to 62 for women.
2. Lower the benefit age to 50 for permanently and totally disabled workers.
3. Allow physically and mentally incapacitated children of deceased workers to draw survivor benefits beyond the present cut-off age of 18.

The benefit age for men and women now is 65.

Under the new plan working women could retire and draw benefits at 62. The lower benefit age also would apply to widows of workers covered by Social Security and to wives of workers who have retired because they are 65 or over.

Government Supply of Surplus Food Represents Millions of Bushels

By GAYLORD GODWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Uncle Sam's supply of surplus food, and fiber represents millions of bushels and bales, and billions of pounds and dollars.

Final figures of weights and measures of Government stocks and the money they cost taxpayers in the 1935 fiscal year which ends today won't be known for several weeks. But the figures are a cinch to be higher than those now available.

The government as of April 30 had a total investment of about $7,300,000,000 in surplus products. A year ago the investment was $6,183,000,000. The huge amount represents outright ownership of food and fiber costing about $4,800,000,000. The remaining $2,500,000,000 was made up of outstanding loans to producers by the Commodity Credit Corp. The products involved include cotton, dairy products, grains and seeds, naval stores of resin and turpentine, tobacco, wool, and oils from cottonseed, linseed, and tung nuts. It not only costs the Government billions to buy up the surpluses in these products, it pays plenty to store them. Storage costs for all products amount to about one million dollars daily. The cost of wheat storage alone ranges upward from 150 million dollars annually.

The government inventory will receive a notable skyward kick on Aug. 1 when price support loans become due on more than 6,600,000 bales of cotton costing an estimated $1,135,000,000. CCC will take over the cotton.

The biggest item in the inventory now is wheat—854,000,000 bushels which cost $2,478,000,000 in tax money. Corn occupies the next largest niche—530,000,000 bushels worth $672,000,000. Cotton—exclusive of the carryover due Aug. 1—totals 1,674,000 bales worth $222,115,000.

The government-owned butter, cheese, dried milk, and whey products total 688,000,000 pounds, representing an investment of about $237,000,000.

Barley, beans, flaxseed, grain sorghums, oats, rice, rye, soybeans, hay seeds, clover seeds, peanuts, vegetable oils, tobacco, and wool make up the remainder of the inventory. The total, both weight and dollars, is considerable.

California -- Host to the World

California has just served with distinction as host to the United Nations delegates from all over the world. Now it is starting its preparations for the entertainment of another great international gathering, the 1960 Winter Olympic games, which will be held in Placer County's beautiful Squaw Valley.

Like the United Nations session and the 1956 Republican National Convention, the Olympic spectacle was won for California by a combination of foresight, determination, cooperation, and good, hard work — qualities that over the years have made California what it is. As Governor Goodwin J. Knight said of this newest honor for California, the State's success in obtaining the winter games over determined competition is "a monument to the wholehearted cooperation of the legislature, the management of Squaw Valley, and numerous civic organizations throughout the State."

It is a tribute also, of course, to this State's incomparable natural attractions.

Envoy Pearl Mesta may have been the "hostess with the mostess," but California certainly is the host with the most — for the most.

Vacations Should Vacate

We are impelled to register a vigorous dissent to a recent national magazine article which attempted to seduce its readers into taking purposeful vacations.

Yes, the man said "purposeful" — like making money or hunting a new job or looking over possible schools for Johnny.

Treason! Sabotage! Subversion! Vacations are for vacationing — for emptying the mind of impelling duties, letting muscles relax, just a-sitting and a-rocking in soul-satisfying, lazy communion with California's eternal grandeur.

Your vacation motto shall remain: Dolce far niente — "Sweet doing nothing." And far far into the niente.

THE DAVID LAWRENCE DISPATCH

Soviet Distress on Economic Front Said to Be Real Reason for Reds' Desire for 'Summit' Talks

WASHINGTON. — Slowly but surely the real reasons for the Soviet's desire for a conference at the summit and the motives for the superlative expressions by Khrushchev at the American Embassy in Moscow are beginning to emerge. They are to be found in a lengthy report to Congress just submitted by Harold Stassen as director of the Foreign Operations Administration. It tells the story of Soviet distress on the economic front.

Without strong industrial power, military armament today is difficult to produce. Hence, Soviet Russia knows she will lag behind in the armament race unless she can solve her difficulties in getting raw materials and machinery from the West.

Without a steady improvement in the standard of living, particularly in food distribution, Soviet Russia faces trouble internally and inside the satellite states.

Soviet Russia can turn for relief only to the Western countries. Moscow is willing to make political concessions in exchange for economic concessions.

What the Stassen report reveals is that the Soviet Bloc is being hurt by "transit controls" and "transit controls." The first of these was imposed by the West to prevent evasions of export controls by prohibiting sales of embargoed goods to the Soviet Bloc by residents of free world countries regardless of the source of the goods.

The second set of controls was designed to prevent the diversion to the Soviet Bloc of embargoed items from free world countries to one free world country to another. The Foreign Operations Administration says:

"With these cooperative measures, the free-world governments are now in a better position to combat illicit trade than they were six months previously."

Despite, therefore, some loosening up and broadening of the definitions of strategic items which was criticized last year in the net result, in the opinion of the Foreign Operations Administration, has been to put a crimp in Soviet efforts to get heavy goods and materials.

"As of this writing," says the report, "no spectacular expansion of East-West trade has taken place since August 1954."

Tom Ewell, Male Lead in 'The Seven Year Itch,' First Had Exposure to Movies Five Years Ago

By JACK GAVER

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP) — You know that movie version of "The Seven Year Itch" that's in circulation now? With Marilyn Monroe? Yes, indeed!

But Marilyn isn't the only one in the cast. For example, there's Tom Ewell, whose interpretation of "the summer bachelor" in the original stage version did almost as much as the author, George Axelrod, to make this a valuable property. And the movie critics certainly haven't ignored him in their reviews.

But since Tom isn't as well-known as, say, the photogenic as Marilyn, he needs a little explaining to make this place come out sensibly. He is not unknown to movie audiences — he first had considerable exposure about five years ago as one of the principals of "Up Front" and in the sequel movie employing the same G. M. C. character creation of caricatured Bill Mauldin.

As an actor, Ewell has no right to have such a lack of vanity as he has. "But as I did think that maybe, what with Marilyn and all, I'd get a little public attention after the movie came in," Ewell said. "You know, sort of secretly I'd think of Ewell walking down the street and being trailed by a mob of adoring girls."

Well, I got on the subway downtown to come up to Radio City. I sort of kept looking out of the corners of my eyes at the other people in the car, but nothing happened. Then I got up to get off at my station, and one fellow sidled up to me. This was going to be my moment, I thought. "Know what he said? 'You were in 'Up Front' weren't you?'"

"I would run into a fellow who stopped going to the movies five years ago!"

Happily, Hollywood is not in the habit of going to the movies five years ago. He is still a Ewell success.

Ewell is also the sort of chap who has relative trouble. He recently ended a springtime tour in "The Seven Year Itch" which took him, among other places, to Zerkow, Poland, not far from the family stamping grounds in Owensboro, Ky. Cousins, aunts, uncles and boyhood friends arrived.

"But Aunt Vene, who's 82, didn't show up," Ewell said. "Not because of her age, however. The family asked me if they weren't going, and she said: 'Pay money to see that boy! Why, I've seen him too many times for nothing.'"

Singer Wants English Lord For Commercials

By ALINE MOSBY

United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD — A pretty blonde singer came up today with an inspiration to improve American TV commercials—she wants to hire an English nobleman to do the pitch.

Victi Benet seriously announced she will audition English lords and lords for her new filmed musical TV show when she visits London on a singing tour next week.

"I can't stand some of the pressure methods used by American announcers on commercials," she said. "The so-called 'Hard sell' actually is an anti-sell that defeats its purpose."

Blue Bloods Only
"I want a true lord, a personable man who speaks well. He must come from a good family, be listed in Burke's Peerage and appear cultured. He'll act as master-of-ceremonies and do the commercials for my new show."

Victi revealed this plan to give tone to American TV as she packed her bags in her luxurious apartment. The producer of her program Jack Elliot of Benet Productions, paced after her to confirm he wants English noblemen to do this prestige for her show. "He admits he was impressed by the beard and monocle side in the American press."

"It's a different type of program, created for the discriminating, and we think he will add dignity," she said.

Worth $10,000 Week
The average American is impressed with a British accent and title and the savoir faire that goes with it.

"We're not going to make a fool out of our show," he added. "We also produce filmed commercials for various companies and if he will do those he can earn $10,000 a week."

Paris-born Victi, who began her career only two years ago here in nightclubs, will conduct the auditions for her titled announced during her engagement at the Savoy hotel in London.

"I told some nobility have opened their homes to tourists and one duchess is running a school on her terrace, so I don't think it will be hard to find someone interested in TV," the shapely singer said.

How an English nobleman might do as an American TV pitchman was demonstrated last week on Steve Allen's "Tonight" show on NBC-TV. Peter Lawford played the role in striped trousers and tails for a skit. He nicely called the audience dear friends and apologized for the intrusion. He apologized also for the sponsor. He wound up, in fact, suggesting that perhaps the product wasn't so good after all.

Persian Fights Ongoing Battle With Appliances

McLean, Va. — Sometimes it hardly pays to get up in the morning and if you doubt this, you can ask Lusia Luma, late of Lima, Peru. She's fighting a losing battle against modern appliances.

"You may remember that about four years ago my bride brought up from South America an old piano to function as our house organ. He was a wonder. At dinner he always served me first with the biggest and best piece of meat. The ladies, including Mrs. O., got what was left."

After all, said he with latin logic, I'd paid for it. Why should I get first choice? So we sent it to school every morning and he was quickly learned to speak English. After a couple of years he found himself in the throes of the draft. He beat that one, easily. He joined the Air Force.

Next thing he knew he was in Labrador, wading through 15 feet of something he called snow. Cold that. This worried him, and he was far to the south and she wrote that she wished she could take his place in our house. My bride got busy with the Air Force, the immigration service and the State Department and after a sufficient number of documents had been signed in triplicate, Lusia Luma arrived in McLean about a month ago. Life has not been the same since.

Hilda tried to explain to her at once the use of the widest range of kitchen, but this was too much for Lusia Luma, who'd been doing her own cooking over a charcoal stove. That evening we found her cowering in a corner.

All she'd tried to do, she said, was bake some bread. And there she stood blinking red lights and ringing bells at her. She said it obviously was about to explode. We soothed her as best we could and shut off the oven timer and the bread cooled. Lusia Luma was the catastrophe. In the icebox Lusia Luma said.

She'd made only one slight mistake, that is, when she was frozen solid in the freezer. Lusia Luma said that was the difference. Two big boxes both, Mrs. O., tried to tell her. Lusia Luma was told that the only one cold, but I don't think her Spanish was adequate. Lusia Luma was not convinced. The cottage cheese was frozen today.

Victi Benet is trying hard to cooperate, except where the electric dishwasher is concerned. The uses it, because we insist, but it won't let her. She has a door with a door on it cannot wash dishes. She puts in the dishes, but first she washes them in the sink with plenty of soap.

"That brings us to yesterday evening when Hilda was out some where, not playing bridge. Lusia Luma was worried what I wanted for dinner. I looked in the cool box and told her to pass a couple of hot dogs through some hot water, a salad, and make some potatoes out of some leftover mashed potatoes and fry them in butter. Half an hour later the hot dogs were fine, the salad was a work of art, and the house was full of smoke. Something terrible, said Lusia Luma with tears in her eyes, was wrong with the butter."

I asked her where she got it. She pulled from the refrigerator a half roll of processed cheese in a cellophane wrapper and said she'd sliced it from that. Butter didn't burn like that in Peru, she said. "That cheese looked like butter for a fact. Lusia Luma then found a package of butter and said it was cheese. Here my high school English collapsed and it was a good thing my bride got home earlier than she'd expected. She managed to comfort the broken-hearted Lusia Luma."

AN AMERICAN CONCEPT

One of the basic concepts which shaped the formation of our American government was that individual initiative, when free to seek its opportunities, would generate a great progressive force. And it has. The progress of our nation, when compared with other nations, proves the soundness of this concept. Yet there are many citizens who do not clearly understand the basic governmental concept which have given Americans the highest living standards in the world. This lack of understanding is not good for our country.

In China and other areas of Asia I spent 10 years examining the causes of their great poverty. Ninety per cent of the people were barely existing, each living on a month of what an American could buy for one dollar. Yet China has vast resources in soils and minerals and forests. What was the hold back in brief, here was the trouble: The people were afraid to venture because the idea of adequate and equitable laws, equally enforced. Let me illustrate.

Banditry Everywhere
A group of Chinese wanted to open a coal mine. They had a capital. Workers were plentiful. The coal deposit was unlimited. And the market was there. The only question was, "Would it be advisable?" One of the group said: "Well, you know the group of people down there. They have quite a few soldiers. If we got the coal mine producing, they'd come and take it away from us." Another of the group said, "Yes, and the Governor is in league with that group." They had to forget the idea of opening a coal mine. Their governmental structure provided no protection.

Another example: A town in the China interior installed an electric light plant. An evasive group in another town, burning peanut-oil candles, overpowered the authorities and took away the electric plant. They couldn't carry some of the heavy pieces on their shoulders, so when they put the plant together it wouldn't operate. They were consoled anyway; they still had no electric lights, but neither did the other town. Individual initiative throughout the population is not possible, for want of equitable laws, equally enforced.

I've had the opportunity twice to study conditions in England first hand. From 1955 to 1956 the Socialist-Labor Party operated the government. The government took over ownership of the major industries — the coal mines, the transportation systems, the utilities, the iron and steel industries, and so on.

In the days of far-ranging whaling ships and seal hunters from New England's old ports, a certain capital peak Pongolian beach became widely known as "New Haven Green." There, New Haven, Connecticut sealers dried their goods, and the whaling ships from China in lucrative trade with the United States.

My daughter Lois was born in China. When she was 11 we returned to America. Seeing New York for the first time she exclaimed: "I hope Heaven is as nice as this!" But she became Americanized quickly; she began to want everything she saw. Throughout high school and college it was more difficult if she went after that. And finally she wanted a convertible. I told her that in America she could have anything she wanted if she went after it hard enough. She went to work teaching school, determined to save and buy the convertible. She didn't keep a good budget; her chances looked very slim. But in America there is no reason ever to be discouraged. There is always another way. That summer, Lois married a convertible!

Superiority of Freedom
Now the important point: The individual citizen in China has a living standard about one-twentieth as high as ours; in England, about one-third as high as ours; and in America, about one-half as high as ours. The major reason for our superiority is our system of Constitutional government which gives the utmost liberty to the individual. Our private ownership economy which provides incentive to get ahead and a competitive atmosphere which brings out the very best capabilities in all, and the foundation of spiritual disciplines — being governed primarily by an inner force of moral laws.

forth. The government also took over control, ultimately, of employment and enterprise. No one could obtain work or change jobs, build a chicken house, or go to a business, without approval of a government bureau. Individual initiative was smothered.

Still another example is Russia. She has coal, iron, petroleum, everything we have—and twice the quantity. She has two times as much land per person as does America. But in Russia the government owns all the farms, the manufacturing plants and all the distribution centers; and the people work according to a central bureau print — with no opportunity whatever to generate individual initiative.

'What's Your Hurry, Men?' Asked After 100-Plus M.P.H. Boat Ride

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

SEATTLE — One of these days some man is going to travel 200 miles an hour in a boat and I'll serve him right.

As a card-carrying member of an exclusive male club called the 100-plus, limited to passengers who have whipped over the water at a speed of more than 100 miles an hour in the world's fastest boat, I have a question.

"What's your hurry, men?" The four-minute mile and the sound barrier were conquered, but men show no signs of slowing down. In this boat-minded area, for instance, women are content with pleasure cruising or a brisk sail.

The men want to go 200 miles an hour.

Stan Sayres, the man who owns Slo-Mo-Shun IV, a 28 foot hydro plane which holds the world's speed record of 178.4 miles an hour, invited television star Arlene Francis and this reporter to share the coveted privilege of riding at breakneck speed in Slo-Mo, as the three-time gold cup winner is called locally.

She believes in injecting a spirit of adventure into the NBC home show. I believe I should have my head examined.

Major Racing Danger

"What is the major danger of boat racing?" I asked Sayres timidly, while we stood on the dock of his Lake Washington home watching two helmeted crew members warm up Slo-Mo. It leaped away from the dock with a roar and disappeared rapidly from sight, a fan-shaped fountain of water shooting skyward from its tail fin.

"Becoming airborne," he said. "When you pass 100 miles an hour you begin to treat a boat with great caution. You get an air lift at high speeds."

"You go first," Miss Francis said politely as Slo-Mo approached the dock.

Everyone was a very helpful. Sayres zipped a life jacket over my white coveralls, a crew member stuffed cotton in my ears, and Elmer Linschmidt, Sayres' crew chief who was going to be in the driver's seat, chatted companionably.

"Don't bother talking when we get started," Linschmidt said, shouting as he fitted a heavy visored helmet over my head, snapped canvas flaps under my chin and slipped the goggles into place. "I can't hear you anyway. Great boat for a mother-in-law."

He showed me the hand grips—they don't use safety belts for some unsettling reason that has to do with accidents and swimming—started the engine and we roared away from the dock.

The waves enveloped a cement-like surface suddenly. I clung to the hand grips and eyed the speedometer. As we skidded around the first turn at 90 miles an hour, I decided I wanted to go home. The boat wasn't the only thing likely to become airborne, in my opinion. I didn't feel very earthbound myself.

We bounced past the shoreline at 125 miles an hour, slowed down to a quiet roar, and the boat slid docilely up to the dock. "It makes me want to take a covered wagon over the trail," Miss Francis said shakily after her ride, as we clutched our 100-plus membership cards and walked, very slowly, away from the dock.

HUNTING COMPANIONS—That pickup truck sailed through the air 33 feet when it followed the bounds in a fox hunt at Charlottesville, Va. The driver said he and the horse to his right hit the jump shown here at 45 mph, as they tore over rough terrain and across streams.
