PRESIDENT VETOES SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL

Criminal Complaint Filed Against Missing Promoter of Dixie Service Station

CLAIM FRAUD IN $100,000 STOCK SALE

Declare 100 to 150 Citizens of Orange-co. Are Losers

A criminal complaint against Ian Saxon Porter, missing promoter, was filed today at the office of the district attorney in connection with disclosures of asserted fraud in connection with the sale of approximately $100,000 in Dixie service station stock.

Complaints against Leslie Graham, Anaheim manager of the organization, and at least two members of Porter's family, may be filed, it was learned.

That leadership of funds, representing proceeds from the sale of stock to between 100 and 150 Orange-co. citizens, have disappeared, is the belief of authorities but the official investigation has so far failed to indicate just how great a sum is involved.

Meanwhile, one completed service station at Orange and others, half finished, located at Olive and Anaheim, have been left behind by the promoters as landmarks of what the authorities profess to view as a potentially gigantic fraud.

Investigations recently instituted by the state corporation department upon the filing of a complaint by Hamilton Lawrence, 613 E. Flower-st., Santa Ana, culminated yesterday in a decision to prosecute the promoters. The decision was reached following a conference between Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. C. N. Mozley and Russell Keach and Edwin R. Cassidy, investigators from the corporation department, who laid the results of their investigation before the Orange-co. officials. As a result, Lawrence, who is said to have invested $1000 in the Dixie station chain, was scheduled to swear to a criminal complaint this afternoon.

Other investors in the scheme were named as L. C. Miller, 118 W. Broadway, Anaheim, owner of the site on which one of the service stations was being erected; J. H. Ward, 151 N. Pine-st, Orange; W. C. Matthews, 195 N. Shaffer-st., Orange, and C. E. Wenrick, 4935 Fifth-ave., Los Angeles.

Keach and Cassidy made a raid upon Graham's apartments in Anaheim, at which time they secured a few papers and a list of names, which they believe to be investors but found nothing of apparent importance to the quest, it was said.

Graham has been absent from his apartments for a week and his present whereabouts are unknown, it was learned. Porter, described as the head of the organization, lived in Los Angeles. His son and daughter-in-law are said to have been involved in the enterprise, according to the district attorney's office.

Porter was operating under a permit from the state corporation commissioner authorizing the sales of $250,000 in stock, it was alleged. The plan provided for the issuance of convertible merchandising agreements with the stockholders, by which the latter were to be supplied with gas and oil from the service stations at a discount of ten per cent. It was asserted by stockholders that each one who subscribed to as much as $500 worth of stock was promised a service station job at stipulated salaries of $125 per month for employes, $150 a month for assistant managers, and $200 per month for managers. These agreements, authorities pointed out, were manifestly beyond reason.

Lawrence made his complaint when he failed to receive his certificate of stock, which the promoters, having, it is alleged, failed to live up to their permit, could not produce.

DENIES FRAUD PLAN

LOS ANGELES, May 15.—Mrs. August E. Rickenbacker, also known as Marie Tomblin, returned from San Francisco where she was arrested on complaint of a Pasadena Hotel, today steadfastly denied she intended to defraud the hotel company.

She declared her financial affairs and dealings had been misrepresented and that she had been placed in a false light before the wealthy and socially prominent folk who had been her friends.

She was held in the county jail here pending the arrival of officers from Pasadena.

Over 400 at Model House Yesterday

More than 400 guests yesterday admired the Model Home at 728 North Anaheim street and its furnishings.

From all over Orange County, from Hollywood, Long Beach, etc., the guests came.

The afternoon has been a particularly popular time, especially for visitors from a distance. Mrs. M. E. Canby, who is in charge, estimates the total number who have come so far at around 800.

Much of the credit for the arrangements, including house hold conveniences, is due to Mrs. Harry F. Dierker, wife of the designer and builder.

STORM KEEPS U. S. FLIERS AT ATTU

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 14—Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commanding the three American round-the-world fliers at Attu today reported a 70-mile gale, giving small chance of a hop-off to the Kuriles Islands off the coast of Japan, the next jump of the globe-circlers.

According to Smith, snow and rain is accompanying the gale, and the sea is heavy, forcing the coast guard cutter Haida, which is acting as supply craft, to sea.

The planes weathered the storm in good shape, according to Smith and were undamaged.

This afternoon the storm moderated and the Haida is returning.

Smith and his companions are living in shacks on the beach, and are all in good health and spirits.

CORDOVA, Alaska, May 15.—Providing weather conditions on the westward improve, the American round-the-world fliers hope to start their trans-Pacific jump from Chicagoff, Island, of Attu, today.

The start had been planned for yesterday but adverse conditions caused delay. The three planes at Attu under command of Lieut. Lowell Smith, will jump from Attu to the Island of Paramushiru in the Japanese Kuriles group, where American destroyers Pope and Ford and Japanese guide ships are awaiting their arrival.

According to radio message picked up here the Catherine D. Pacific American fisheries boat, will proceed direct to Bellingham from Squaw Harbor, in order to speed the arrival of Major Frederick L. Martin, who was picked up at Port Moller with Sergeant Alva Harvey after they had succeeded in reaching that point from the interior where their plane was wrecked.

RUTH GETS NINTH

NEW YORK, May 15.—Babe Ruth got his ninth home run of the season today in the game with St. Louis, with Wingard pitching.

Frisco Chinatown Refuses To Believe Dr. Sun Dead

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—Chinatown here was in a tumult today.

Refusing to believe that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, president of the South China Republic, is dead, hundreds of excited men, women and children thronged the narrow, crooked streets.

Blanched old men hastily left their pipes in alley hovels they had not deserted in years, to join the crowds in front of bulletin boards. Chinese gardeners in blue smocks, tea-house girls in gay kimonas and bobbed-haired womens workers from Chinatown's sweatshops elbowed their way with moderately clad bankers and merchants in the search for word of the leader across the Pacific.

Headquarters of the Chinese Nationalist Party, which financed Sun's attempts to regain control of China, San Francisco Chinese being his heaviest financial backers, were besieged.

Before a large portrait of Sun, Chan Yew Fook, general secretary of the nationalist party, stood and proclaimed to his people:

"He is not dead; he is not dead!"

"But if he dies we will mourn long. We will parade; there will be speeches and with memorial services we will do him honor."

So while they sacrificed at the report of Sun's death, the Chinese got ready to mourn. Hundreds of black cloth stripe were torn to hang around doorways.

An air of suspense clothed Chinatown. In many places business was stopped while shopkeepers discussed China's future and most concerned of all were the anxious eyed barbers. For if the president is dead, many of them will be forced out of business, as an ancient Chinese custom still followed in mourning the great is pledging not to shave or cut the hair for 100 days.

RECEIVE LOG OF MAJOR MARTIN

Nearly Froze to Death, Declares Unfortunate Flight Commander

Telling in the matter of fact style of a veteran army man a tale of adventure in the air and on land amid Arctic condition unparallelled in the history of aviation, International News Service today received the log of the disastrous flight of the plane Seattle of the American round-the-world flight kept by Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the flight.

The log was sent by a little cannery radio station at Port Moller thru several relays to the United States. His story follows:

(By Major Frederick L. Martin, Commander American Round-the-World Flight as related exclusively to George W. Chinn for International News service.)

PORT MOLLER, Alaska, May 14.—(Delayed)—After our arrival at Chignik the 25th (sic) of April, storms, high winds and snow prevented our departure for Unalaska until the morning of the 30th. Seas breaking over the plane's pontoons the night of the 27th left a deposit of 400 pounds of ice.

The morning of the thirtieth was calm and overcast. The radio reported favorable conditions toward Unalaska. We left at 11 a. m., ever so happy to join the other members of the flight.

After one hour of flying we struck a fog, and trapped in it at 12:30, crashed against a mountain. Both Sergeant Harvey and myself miraculously escaped injury. The ship was demolished except the motor. The striking of the pontoons of the plane against a gentle slope surfaced with snow and the sturdy construction of the fuselage.

In that twisted mass of wreckage lies all my hopes and ambitions and the greatest opportunity of any man in recent years, forever lost.

No information as to our position was obtainable on account of the inaccuracy of the hydrographic charts and the fog.

We packed our haversacks and after eating the lunch, provided by Mrs. Osmund at Chignik, we left at 2 p. m. to go directly south to the Pacific coast line. For blinded us completely and in the snow we could proceed only with difficulty. It was difficult to maintain our balance, and being unable to walk straight, changed our course every hundred feet—invariably in error.

We knew we were climbing constantly but not a steep grade. We realized the hopelessness of continuing on account of the danger of walking over a cliff. We followed our tracks back to the wrecked ship and made a fire of the broken parts of the ship. We put the metal cowling of the plane under the fire to prevent melting a hole in the glacier formation.

We dragged the kings of the plane together on the left side of the fuselage to break the wind.

HARDING HAD OWN PROBE INSTITUTED

WASHINGTON, May 15.—A new light was thrown on the methods and policies of the late President Warren G. Harding today when H. L. Scaife, a former department of justice agent, testified before the Wheeler-Brookhart committee that Mr. Harding personally financed a private investigation of liquor violations in 1922, in order to obtain means of compelling stricter enforcement.

The investigation was ordered by Harding, Scaife said, when the treasury department and the department of justice apparently were unable to enforce the law.

"Several hundred indictments were secured as a result of Mr. Harding's investigation" Scaife said.

Scaife's testimony, in some particulars, linked up with that of Gaston B. Means, an ex-agent, who startled the Daugherty investigating committee recently by asserting that he had been hired by the late president to conduct a "private investigation" and that he had "caught Secretary Mellon."

STILL AWAIT DECISION ON SHOW

Sentiment Quite General In Favor Holding Exposition

Sentiment in favor of holding the fourth annual California Valencia Orange Show was quite general at today's meeting of the Anaheim C. of C. directors, but no decision could be made because of the foot and mouth epidemic.

An offer of the Retail Grocers' Ass'n to combine th show with their food exposition was discussed, but no action taken. Chairman Herman Stern of the executive committee is inclined to oppose such a plan even temporarily, because one of the chief benefits of the orange show is the advertising which Anaheim receives from it.

There was considerable discussion over the plan to be followed in the 15-acre industrial tract. The Santa Fe and Union Pacific seek to cut their costs by approximately $20,000 by dividing the tract into larger pieces than the C. of C. planned. The tracks will run east and west.

The chamber proposes pieces 300 feet long along the spurs and 120 deep instead of the 250 by 100—a reverse arrangement — sought by the railways.

It is hoped to reach a compromise on the matter. The railways claim that only one car can be loaded at a time anyhow, so that extended frontage on the spurs is not so important as it appears.

Endeavors to arrange a meeting today of the 12 men appointed to canvass for subscribers to the Greater Los Angeles Ass'n Industrial drive were not successful. A meeting will be held shortly.

NATIVE SONS NEXT TO SAN BERNARDINO

SACRAMENTO, May 15—San Bernardino was today named as the next convention city of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West by delegates attending the annual meeting here. The vote was unanimous.

Santa Cruz was selected for the celebration of Admission Day.

CELEBRATING STRAW HAT WEEK LOCALLY

EXPECT 300 TO ATTEND EXCLUSION CONFERENCE JULY 1ST

The High School auditorium has been obtained for the annual convention of the Pacific coast conference of the German Baptist church it was announced last evening at the midweek prayer service of the local church by Rev. Max Leuschner, pastor.

Preparations are proceeding with the understanding that the big meeting will be carried out June 18-22 inclusive as scheduled and no attempt to cancel the gathering will be made unless the federal authorities interfere or advise otherwise. In that case the church publication society in Cleveland, O., will be communicated with and an announcement of postponement made or letters or telegrams will be sent by the pastor directly to the 30-odd churches of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

The church seminary at Rochester, N.Y., as well as the publication society will be represented among the delegates or speakers. The morning sessions will be given up to business discussions and reports, the afternoon to religious and theological papers and the evening to services with sermons.

Saturday afternoon, June 21, there will be a sight-seeing trip about the county.

It is feared the attendance, which had been put at 300-500 may be cut down by the foot and mouth epidemic.

HOUSE VOTES TO END EXCLUSION JULY 1ST

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Disregarding the demands of President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes, the house of representatives voted finally today to make the Japanese exclusion provided for in the new immigration bill effective on July 1, 1924.

The administration had insisted upon a year's delay to enable the state department to conclude a treaty with Japan for the regulation of immigration.

The vote was 308 to 58, more than enough to override a veto in the event the president refuses to accept the exclusion provision.

The house acted in adopting the conference report on the bill. The report now goes to the senate, where an effort will be made to rush it thru tomorrow.

Adoption of the July 1 date by the house was forecast when a motion by Rep. Sabath of Illinois, to recommit the conference report, was adopted 246 to 32.

Three courses are open to the president, it was said at the White House, and no definite decision has yet been reached on any of them. He can (1) sign the bill outright; (2) he can sign it with an accompanying statement "deploring" the affront to Japanese pride, which might soften the sting of exclusion; or (3) he can veto the bill and send it back to congress with an accompanying message to the effect he approved

Three Comets Coming This Year and Six More in 1925

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Three comets, those most mysterious of all heavenly wanderers—are due for a visit to the general vicinity of the earth and sun this year, the U. S. naval observatory said today.

Astronomers thruout the country are preparing for the arrival of the derelicts and expecting new discoveries of scientific interest.

The list of 1924 comets, prepared by the naval observatory, includes Encke and Tempel, I, in November, and Tuttle in December. In 1925, six comets are due in March, July, August and October.

The visitors were of the smaller variety of heavenly strangers on the last trips to the sun, but years of wandering in space may have vastly increased their volume—or brot about their dimunition.

Should one of the great comets known to astronomers, hurl itself into the earth, it is believed the seas would boil and tidal waves would dash against the mountains polar ice would melt and fires Africa.

INSISTS UPON REDUCTION OF TAXES

Republican and Democrat Leaders Claim Strength To Pass Measure

WASHINGTON, May 15—President Coolidge today vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill and sent it back to congress with one of the strongest and most pointed messages that ever came from the White House.

He denounced the bonus, not only from a practical financial standpoint, but also from the standpoint of morality as well.

"We must abandon our theory of patriotism, or abandon this bill," the president declared.

"We owe no bonus to the able-bodied veterans, their first duty was to their country.

"Patriotism cannot be bot or sold, and to attempt to pay money, for it offers it (patriotism) an indignity."

President Coolidge went a great deal farther than did his predecessor, the late president Harding in expressing his disapproval of the bonus, both in theory and as to practicability.

"The veterans themselves as a whole, do not want it," his message declared, "and there is no moral justification for it."

The savagery with which the president assailed the bonus aroused considerable resentment in the house where it was listened to with intense interest by three fourths of the membership and crowded galleries.

As soon as the veto message was read, Republican Leader Longworth tried to set a time for the vote to override the veto.

He suggested a vote on Monday, but the Democrats objected to a decision at once and a great tumult arose.

"Vote, vote!" the democrats cried crowding toward the speaker's rostrum.

Longworth then tried compromise by proposing next Monday. Rankin objected amid a veritable uproar from the floor. He paused around the speaker's rostrum, yelling "Vote! Vote Now."

Again Longworth sought compromise. He suggested Saturday and the cries increased. Then he made his proposition in the form of a motion and he was beaten by a standing vote of 212 to 193. He demanded a record vote on roll call on his motion, and during the interim Republican scouts were sent out to round up absentees to prevent what appeared to be an impending rebuke to the president by passage of the bill over his veto within an hour after it came from the White House.

By a close vote of 172 to 171 the house decided to vote on Saturday on the question of passing the bill over the president's veto.

Announcement that the president had vetoed the bonus bill was made at the White House at 2:30.

The disapproval of the president has been expected, and caused little surprise in either house, where preparations already have been made for an early attempt to pass it over his veto.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders predicted this afternoon that this would speedily be done, probably before the end of the week.

Reading of the president's message was begun in the house shortly before three o'clock.

"This bill offers a plain gratuity," the president's message declared, after pointing out that the war time insurance plan adopted in 1917 was at that time regarded as relieving the obligations of the government to the veterans.

"Patriotism cannot be bought or sold. An attempt to pay money for it offers it an indignity."

The president said the government had already spent more than two billion dollars in veterans' relief.

His opinion the bill was "not in harmony with sound governmental financial policy."

"Our first concern is for the nation as a whole," the president declared, pointing out that the bonus would benefit only two states of citizens.

The cost of the bonus is to

RECEIVE LOG OF FLIGHT LEADER

chinked the cracks with cakes of ice dug from a pit around the fire, had a tablespoon of liquid concentrated food and, wearing our few flying clothes retired in the baggage compartment of the fuselage.

It was awfully cold—we, two six-foot men crowded into a space intended for one. The fog continued until May 1. We remained with the ship and made ourselves more comfortable.

On May 1 we left at 5 a.m., following the compass due south, the fog continuing and the going as difficult as on the 30th.

We came to a full realization of the seriousness of our predicament. We finally struck down grade in a small creek after three hours hiking and crossed the creek. We climbed a mountain on the other side of the creek, we narrowly averted walking over a declivity.

We returned to the creek and decided to follow it to the northwest, as it must eventually lead to the sea, altho causing a longer hike but easier to travel and below the fog.

At 4 p.m. we passed thru a gorge in the mountain with a level marshy expanse ahead. Viability was possible for about 4 miles. We made camp in an alder thicket by the creek on brush laid on the snow. We gathered a bed of alders. We had little rest and no sleep as we were shivering with cold, being clad only in an ordinary uniform with unionalls over it. I had difficulty in drying my feet and was afraid to continue to the northwest on account of no feed and no information of inhabitants in the locality.

We left early on the morning of the third to return to the ship for the night and make efforts to reach the Pacific coast line on the south. We could not camp except at the ship on account of no fuel.

Our only food was three teaspoonfuls of liquid condensed food per meal. Sergeant Harvey was suffering terribly from snow blindness. I treated his eyes with boric acid from my first aid kit at the ship.

The fog lifted slightly at 7 a.m. on the morning of the fourth, and we departed from the wrecked ship never to return, determined to reach the coast.

We left for the top of the mountain southeast from where we saw the hopelessness of trying to go due south on account of a line of jagged mountain peaks. We saw a lake to the southwest and struck for it hoping to find someone. We were forced to camp in an alder thicket about three miles from the lake on account of exhaustion and daylight fading.

We saw many bear tracks in the snow. We struggled for hours in the brush and snow, getting a wood supply dry enough to burn. We shivered thruout the night, eternally vigilant to keep the fire going.

Fortunately each of us killed a ptarmigan, one for supper and the other for breakfast. We arrived at the lake about noon on the fifth day, but saw no signs of life.

We were now following a valley leading, over a swamp. It was rough going for myself as I was partly snow blind. We made camp at 3 p.m. in a small, dry canyon at the base of a mountain. There was no grass for bunks; but plenty of dry wood. We each slept about four hours during the night, our first real rest.

We were now following a wide valley near a stream entering the lake from the south. We had always believed we would survive because of Kay with us and Ann and Harvey because of his mother—so we struggled on all the harder.

I was still snow blind but wearing shades made it possible for me to see slightly. Sergeant Harvey was physically weak but determined, and displayed great strength of character and determination.

The valley ended in the mountains close in on the stream. The rocks became deeper—about four feet in depth, with the crust giving often now. We climbed the side of the mountain to obtain a view of the topography but were prevented from reaching the top by the steepness and a snow slide.

We returned to the valley and walked about three miles when we found a new stream flowing southward. Great hopes sprang up with this discovery.

We were nearing exhaustion. I could scarcely see. We decided to make camp, Sergeant Harvey, investigating a small canyon half a mile distant, for a prospective camp site, returned with the information that he saw a lake or bay three miles to the south.

We decided we would gather strength that night for our greatest ordeal. It was necessary for us to grasp alders for support. A light north breeze sprang up. We had seen bear tracks one foot in diameter all thru the valley and many caribou tracks in the swamp.

In the morning, after three tablespoonfuls of our rations we departed at 4 a. m. with renewed hope. We had to travel on the rocks at the edge of a stream to make any progress.

The valley broadened, Sergeant Harvey yelled: "Major! I see seagulls."

I replied: Thank God, that means salt water!

A few hours previous we had noticed the stump of a spruce cut by an axe. It was the first sign of living man and the greatest possible tonic for exhaustion. Then we saw the tracks of a man and a dog in the snow. We knew we were nearing human habitation. The we saw the ocean.

This was too much for us. The boat we could do, to celebrate was to sit on a tuft of grass and smoke cigarettes. Our cheeks were sunken, our eyes inflamed, our hands and faces were stained walnut color from smoke and contact with the snow. We had eight days of stubble beard.

When we had walked along the beach around a little point we saw a trapper's cabin and our joy was unrestrained. The walking was much easier and we quickly reached the cabin. It had very recently been deserted as we found batter for johnny cakes in a pitcher. I started around the room of the cabin in quest of food and saw a piece of hardtack and some dried peaches. I found flour and salted pickled salmon in a cellar.

I made four hotcakes for the first time in my life and how good they tasted!

We ate six two and slept in bedding for the first time. I made more hot cakes when we awoke and each of us ate four with syrup. Food never tasted so good before. I put the fish on to cook and slept till morning when we had creamed salmon and hotcakes for breakfast.

We were still very weak. It had been snowing since the night. How lucky it all this time there had been no rain, very light snow and practically no wind. Now we are safe. A divine providence has protected us.

We secured more sleep. It turned colder and snowed all day. On the morning of the ninth it was raining and the ceiling low. At 9 o'clock we started to take a short walk to determine our location which we believed to be Ivanhoff Bay.

While preparing lunch a brace of mallards alighted on the bay a hundred yard from the door. I killed both with the trapper's rifle. With real food in sight Harvey made a reconnaissance trip five miles up the beach in the afternoon while I prepared the ducks.

Sergeant Harvey returned with two snow white Alaskan hares and definite information that we were near Port Moller at last. We had duck steak for dinner—such wonderful eats!

After fried hare, hotcakes and gravy—a true southern breakfast —we placed the cabin in order and at 7:45 a. m. departed for Port Moller, 20 miles distant.

Our strength had returned but we tired out quickly. It was easy walking on the beach except in passing over cliffs and huge rocks which flocked the way. At two p. m. we lunched on roast duck, hare and hardtack—great motive power for weary travellers.

We sighted the cannery at 4 p. m., with smoke issuing from the stack.

It was the end of the trail. Reaching the beach south of the cannery we were met by Joko Orguffin, a small launch and taken across the beach to the cannery, where all hands turned out to meet us.

Superintendent Amundson, man of action, without delay ordered mountains of food prepared for us. How delicious and wonderful it was to have complete relaxation, plenty of food and warm, comfortable sleeping quarters again.

INSPECT HOUSING CONDITIONS HERE

Under supervision of the state commission of immigration and housing an inspection of the housing conditions of Santa Ana was under way today with the prospect that it might be extended to include other cities in Orange co.

As chief housing inspector, L. T. Knott of Los Angeles announced he would probably be in this county a week. His inspection, he said, would be thru the county health department with the co-operation of the Santa Ana police and fire departments.

It not called away before his investigation is completed, he intimated that he would make similar surveys in other Orange-co cities. His inspection, he said, would be directed to both old and new buildings, to ascertain compliance with the requirements of the state housing laws. Construction, sanitation, ventilation and safety equipment will be particularly looked for, he indicated.

Old buildings, erected before the enactment of housing legislation, must be made to conform with legislative requirements, Knott said, especially with regard to sanitation. Alterations to provide courts or skylights are sometimes ordered to meet the requirement that each room shall have direct ventilation.

RADIO LISTENERS LEAGUE MEETING

Steps will be taken to organize an Orange-co branch of a proposed Radio Listeners League of Calif. at a meeting to be held at 7:30 p m. Friday at the Bulletin office, it was announced today by Wm. Reed, who is advocating such an organization for the mutual benefit of radio fans. Anyone interested is welcome to the meeting.

—"I believe that such an organization will be of immense value to radio fans in the exchange of ideas, solutions for various personal difficulties and in the assistance given to policing the air and to those stations which are contributing so much to the pleasure and education of the public," says Reed.

THIRD BIG WELL AT LONG BEACH

The third big well of the Long Beach field for the week just closed was put on production by the Martinez Oil Co. The San Martinez like the Ramsey Bros. selected properties along the southeast slope of the Hill and have also had the satisfaction of seeing their holdings yield banner wells. The San Matrinez Oil Co.'s latest completion resulted in a 1500 barrel well on the Booth property. The San Matrinez found it necessary to go to 5050 feet to get the big producer, and found the efforts worth it.

Operators and those interested in the development of the Long Beach field will be interested in knowing that the Silverado Corporation made an insistent and worthy effort to extend the western boundary of the field and open up new production. The Silverado drilled its test well to 5955 feet and finding nothing of any encouragement has suspended operations.

The feature of the development work at Huntington Beach now centers in the efforts of the Standard Oil Company to extend the western boundary line of the field and open up new production. However to date the efforts have not met with any particular success as the test well on the Orange-Co. Title Co.'s property has passed the 5200 mark and to date has had no oil showings. On the Bolsa Gun Club property the Standard continues to bring in good wells, Bolsa 74 the latest completion coming in at 450 bbls. The abandonment of three wells by the Standard erased from the development program of Huntington Beach Huntington Ft. REALTY ACTIVE ABOUT CYPRESS

Mrs. Dora Fels reports the sale of 18 acres from G. H. Peters of Hansen station to the J. D. Millar realty Co. of Los Angeles for $23,-250. The land is across the road from the Peters home place. Mrs. Fels represented Millar and G. G. Priddy acted for Peters.

George Millar, a brother of the man heading the purchasing company, after a trip east, plans to subdivide the tract about Sept. 1.

By that time it is expected a boulevard will be paved from Lincoln-ave to Hansen and when Stanton disincorporates, as is now being considered, the paving, it is expected, will be continued to Westminster.

It is declared that 95 pct. of the frontage has been signed up for the first section of the proposed improvement.

Mrs. Fels also reports sale of 10 acres at Cypress from Alfred Hansen of Long Beach to H. R. Earp, Long Beach banker. The price is announced as $1250 per acre.

HARLAN FENGLER, RACER, INJURED

INDIANAPOLIS, May 15.—Harlan Fengler, 23, youthful Los Angeles race driver, was injured here today while tuning up for the International 500 mile sweepstakes May 30, when his car crashed thru the retaining wall on the north turn at the speedway.

Fengler was taken to a local hospital, where it was said his injuries would keep him out of the race. His car, a Wade Special, was badly damaged.

There would be fewer traffic accidents if motorists would watch their step on the gas. — Greenville (O.) Advocate.

A Little Talk on Thrift

By S. S. STRAUS
(President American Society for Thrift.)

To provide for your old age, or for your days of adversity, or to accumulate funds that may be made use of in constructive and helpful ways, no plan is superior to that of steady, systematic saving.

Suppose a young man begins saving at 25. At that time his income and circumstances in life make it possible for him to lay by $25 a month. He proceeds on this basis until he is 30 when, due to his increased earning ability, he begins saving $50 a month. At 35 he increases his savings to $100 a month. When he is 40, he finds himself able to save $150 a month, and at 45 he still further increases his monthly savings to $200.

By following this plan he will at the age of 50 have $54,946.61, providing his savings have been compounded semi-annually at 6 per cent.

This would not be a difficult plan to follow for thousands upon thousands of our citizens, who now are doing their life's work in getting ahead, and who at the age of 50 will have no more to fall back on than when they were 25.

If a man can save $50 a month during 25 years of his life at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually, he will have $61,975.

Five dollars a week for 15 year at 4 1-2 per cent compounded semi-annually will equal $5500. What better plan could be carried out for the education of one's children?

Even $1 deposited weekly for 10 years will amount to $635.32 at 4 per cent compound interest. Start at the age of 20 and save $33.14 per month with interest compounded at 4 per cent semi-annually, and at 45 one's accumulations will be $50,000.

The pathway to independence is thrift.

OLD MONTEBELLO FIELD REVIVED

Interest in the old Montebello field revives with the announcement that the Standard Oil Co. will make a second attempt to find production on the Howard-Smith property. Howard-Smith No. 1 was drilled to 5150 feet but on account of water trouble no successful production test could be made. Howard-Smith No. 2 has been located west of the original location and approaches the test well now being drilled by H. L. Whiston on the Bicknell lease.

The Standard Oil Co.'s Howard-Smith No. 2 will be watched with a lot of real interest as the success of the well will determine a western extension of the field and have a lot to do with future developments.

The Shell Co. of Calif., has set out to find out whether or not there is a deep sand capable of producing some oil in the center of the productive area of the field. The Shell Co.'s Montebello test well known as La Merced 9A is now drilling at 5560 feet and is getting down to a point where something definite will be decided soon.

Rideout Heights, Whittier, is now the scene of considerable activity and the number of new derricks that dot the old Whitley property and surrounding properties gives the impression of a real oil field. The Petroleum Midway is leading the development work with five wells drilling. Montejo and Johnson are next with a well drilling and a rig being rigged up for drilling. The McKeon Drilling company is redrilling and carrying one of the original Whitley wells down to the deep sand. Strong No. 2. The Standard Oil Company, the Pan-American Petroleum Company, the Mohawk Oil Company and the Taylor-California Royalties Company are drilling a well each.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

SHUNNED

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl of 18 and in my junior year at high school. I am considered a good dancer, nice dresser but not gaudy, nice dancer, nice-looking, but I lack the heaven sent gift of being popular.

My boyfriends tell other girls that they like my appearances and think I am nice and yet they never ask me to go to any of the high school dances or plays. My other girl friends all get bids and I never do and it has caused me many a heartache and cry.

I have taken my friends in our car to games. The last game my father refused to let me have the car. Before the game they all had ways to go with some one else and nobody had even thought of asking me.

I don't know as I would care to have a steady and yet I would like to be asked just once in a while.

Can you tell me what is wrong: Why am I forgotten? Why must I go by myself if I wish to go anywhere? Please help me. I am heartbroken over it.

THANK YOU.

In describing yourself you have mentioned qualities which certainly help to make a girl popular. Probably you are too gentle with yourself and overlook the weak points which handicap you. Perhaps you are not a good talker and lean on others in the matter of conversation. Unless a girl is interesting and good at leading young men into conversation, she is rarely popular. If you are a good mixer, as you say you are, you must be interesting, however, and therefore I am at a loss to understand wherein you fail. I would advise you to look about you for new friends. Your present associates only bring you unhappiness. I feel confident that there are girls you could find in the future who would be more appreciative and considerate of you. In the future when you try to analyze yourself, look for your weak points and try to correct them. You will not get anywhere unless you judge yourself impartially and realize that you have imperfections as well as virtues. At your age you need not become discouraged, because there is considerable time ahead of you in which to make men friends.

A LOVE PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Thompson; Will you please tell me what your advice is about cousins marrying?

GERTRUDE.

Only too often cousins marry with disastrous results. The family weaknesses are multiplied in the children. On the other hand there are cases where the children of such a union are normal. If you contemplate marrying a cousin consult a physician first and get his advice in your particular case. Such marriages are not legal in some states, I believe.

DIFFERENCE IN AGES

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 25 and have been going with a young man three and one-half years my junior. We care a great deal for each other. Do you think we will be happy always with so much difference in our ages? We are engaged. I don't think I could ever marry any one else. Every one thinks we are about the same age. SENSIBLE.

The difference in your ages is a little handicap since you are the older. If you are very congenial, however, that is not enough to make your marriage unhappy. Give your love the test of time, and if it endures, you have every reason to think that your marriage will be successful.

Perhaps it should be left to the kids as to whether the band of Santa Claus should be lavaded by the Shenandoah.—Talladega (Ala.) Daily Home.

FARM BLOC GETS IN ACTION AGAIN

WASHINGTON, May 15— Going into action after a long period of quiet, the senate farm bloc today directed an ever-growing filibuster against the army appropriation bill in an effort to enact legislation reducing freight rates upon certain agricultural products.

The bloc sought to attach the Gooding bill, prohibiting higher freight rates on a short haul than on a long haul over the same route as a "rider" to the army appropriation bill.

The movement, looked upon at first by administration leaders as a joke, became menacing when the agriculturists threatened to tie up the army bill indefinitely, unless legislation was enacted dashing freight rates.

The outcome of the fight was uncertain. Bloc leaders declared they would tie up the army bill until they won, the two thirds majority necessary to set aside the senate's rules and pass the "rider."

"This is emergency legislation," said Senator Gooding, Republican of Idaho, leader of the movement. "It is time for congress to remember the plight of farmers and the dire necessity of reducing freight rates. We will either legislate in favor of lower freight rates or we won't legislate at all."

A group of Democrats led by Senator Pittman of Nevada were supporting Gooding and Republican farm bloc members. The filibusterers, while boasting a majority needed to set aside the senate's spell failure to their efforts.

MA SUNDAY ALSO GIVEN TREATMENT

ROCHESTER, Minn., May 15.—Looking pale and worn, but apparently possessed of all his old time nerve and fire, Billy Sunday, famous evangelist and old time baseball player, arrived here early today on a special car from Memphis, Tenn., to be treated at the Mayo Hospital for a kidney ailment.

With Mr. Sunday was "Ma" Sunday who was injured in an auto accident some days ago and who will also be treated by the Mayo Brothers.

"Ma" Sunday was carried from the car on a hospital cot. She was suffering intense pain from the journey.

As he came out of his private car, Billy leaned on the arm of his personal physician, Dr. R. O. Saunders of Memphis, who accompanied him here. As he reached the platform he smiled at the crowd and grasped the hand of Dr. Mayo.

"Doctor," he said in a firm voice, "they've benched me for the first time in 36 years. I don't believe I'm thru with the game yet, however, and I'm up here to see if you can't help me get my old batting eye back."

SPOIL FUN FOR PRINCE OF WALES

LONDON, May 15.—Queen Mary's rigid insistence that the prince of Wales uphold the royal dignity apparently spoiled the evening for the prince at last night's state ball at Buckingham Palace, according to gossip today among some of the persons who attended.

During the early evening the Prince of Wales and his brother, the Duke of York, danced frequently and mingled freely with the guests that crowded the grand ball room.

King George and Queen Mary sat apart, not mingling with the guests. The queen was seen to speak to the king who, in turn, beckoned to the Prince of Wales. The prince bowed and stood before his father, fidgeting nervously.

King George spoke a few words, after which the prince bowed and withdrew to a position behind the royal dais. After that the prince did not dance any more. Later he was seen lurking on the edge of the throng, evidently displeased at the restrictions placed upon him.

The ball is described by those who attended it as a gorgeous display but lacking in royal dignity in regard to overcrowding. More than 2000 guests present included Frank B. Kellogg, U. S. ambassador and the whole embassy staff.

MAY DEFER FILING SUIT FOR $100,000

LOS ANGELES, May 15.—With attorneys for both sides in conference today, the proposed $100,000 suit against Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, by Miss Frances Marion Emmerson, for an alleged attack upon her, may never materialize, it was hinted today.

Benjamin Lewis, attorney for Miss Emmerson, known in private life as Mrs. May O'Brien, first announced he would file the suit. A later announcement from him said he would defer filing the papers at the request of Milton Cohen, attorney for Kearns, and also at the request of District Attorney Keyes, who is still investigating Miss Emmerson's charges.

GIVES VIEWS IN SAN DIEGO JAIL

SAN DIEGO, May 15—Allen R. Morford, 48, until last November mayor of St. Joseph, Mich., captured two days after a sensational noonday bank robbery in which he wielded an ammonia pistol with telling effect, had this advice for mayors, when interviewed today in the San Diego-co jail:

"Don't ever think of easy money. I was a successful mayor, an unsuccessful bandit.

"Don't permit lawlessness in your city. During my administration, St. Joseph, with a population of 10,000, averaged only two arrests per month on criminal charges during the winter months when transients and visitors were few.

"Don't throw cold water on community betterment. Our schools, paving, sewerage, parks, were of the best. I was always enthusiastic in my support of public improvements.

"Don't overlook social advancement. We had no slums; our poorest city district was pleasant and clean, ideal for the health and the raising of children, and for good living conditions for grown-ups.

"Don't countenance municipal graft. It has been 20 years since a city official of St. Joseph has been charged with grafting.

"Don't betray the faith and trust of your fellow citizens. My record as treasurer of our Elks lodge and as cashier of our leading bank, is now and always has been spotless."

Morford resigned his banking position and his office as mayor when kidney, bladder and other vital organs gave way. He spent two weeks in the Mayo brothers sanitarium at Rochester, Minn., last December, and was pronounced incurable.

Since then Morford has become the victim of acute tuberculosis and physicians declare he has not long to live.

PROTECT WILD FLOWERS OF CALIFORNIA

So great is the menace to the wild flower life of the United States, lovers of Nature and of Nature's floral beauties have been constrained to form the Wild Flower Preservation Society. This worthy organization is campaigning all the time to save the wild flower from ruthless extinction.

Here in California there has been much destructiveness of flower and plant life in the wilds. Some species have become almost extinct, in certain localities, because of the wholly inexcusable practice of plucking the flowers out by the roots. The California poppy and the yucca both suffer greatly from vandalistic treatment from persons who profess to be lovers of nature. Wild flowers and plants should be protected by law as rigorously as birds and wild animals are. In truth, all wild life in the state should be conserved scrupulously. These various forms of fauna and flora are among the chief glories of California. What sights and sounds, impressions and thrills surpass the melody of the birds in the wilds; the variegated blooms of flowers, from the tiny blooms at one's feet to the stately yucca with its rich, creamy gorgeousness; the green of trees and shrubs; and the liveliness of animals running carefree in the wilds? These things enrapture the soul of those who look and listen. Against despoiling, these entrancing features of nature should be preserved.

Cupid is an intellectual—judging by the number of college students he enenares.

Political parties are useful only as they are made to be servants, not masters, of the people.

Life is not what it should be unless it be lived according to well-defined standards of conduct and of aim.

The waves of democracy are washing every civilized land under the sun.

The nearer human beings live to the laws, lessons and principles of Nature, the happier they are, the healthier and wiser they are.

IT'S LIABLE TO BE A SHORT LIVED VICTORY AT THAT.

DINNER STORIES

A thriving baseball club is one of the features of a boy's organization connected with a prominent church. The team was challenged by a rival club last season. The pastor gave a special contribution of $5 to the captain, with the direction that the money should be used to buy bats, balls, gloves, or anything else that might help to win the game. On the day of the game, the pastor was somewhat surprised to observe nothing new in the club's paraphernalia. He called the captain to him.

"I don't see any new bats, or balls, or gloves," he said.

"We haven't anything like that," the captain admitted.

"But I gave you $5 to buy them," the pastor exclaimed.

"Well, you see," came the explanation, "you told us to spend it for bats, or balls, or gloves, or anything that we thought might help to win the game, so we gave it to the umpire."

A couple of clubmen were speaking of a fellow member when one remarked.

"I dislike to say it, but really Reginald is the most egotistical young man I have ever met."

"What leads you to say that?"

"Why, last week on the occasion of his birthday he sent a collect message congratulating his mother."

MISS EDITH PICTON-TUBERVILLE

Twenty years ago Edith Picton Tuberville left an ancestral home in Glamorgan, Wales, and the luxuries it afforded to labor among the poor of London's slums. She now ranks as one of England's foremost women, famous as a speaker on religious, social and political questions as well as for her settlement work. She is now in the U. S., principally to attend the women's peace conference in Washington and meetings of the international Y.W.C.A., of which she is a director.

She is the daughter of Col. Picton-Tuberville. The home at Glamorgan was given by the crown to Sir Paine Tuberville in 1901. While laboring with the poor families in the London congested districts Miss Tuberville attended a theological school. A few years later she went to Bombay and her work among the Indian women there attracted world wide attention.

Six years later she returned to England to devote most of her time to the religious and speaking platform. She is now the first woman in England to preach under the sanction of the Episcopal church.

THE MOULDS IN WHICH GOOD POETRY IS CAST

The materials of good poetry collected and produced by the powers of observation and description, sensibility, reflection, imagination, fancy and judgment, are cast, by means of various moulds, into divers forms.

The moulds were enumerated and the forms specified by William Wordsworth, in the following order:

"The Narrative,—including the historic poem, the tale, the romance, the mock-heroic, and if the spirit of Homer will tolerate such neighborhood, that dear production of our days (Wordsworth here refers to the period of the Romantic Movement in England —the early eighteen hundreds), the metrical novel. Of this class, the distinguishing mark is that the narrator however liberally his speaking agents be introduced, is himself the source from which everything primarily flows. Epic poets, in order that their mode of composition may accord with the elevation of their subject, represent themselves as singing from the inspiration of the Muse, but this is a fiction, in modern times, of slight value; the iliad or the Paradise Lost would gain little in estimation by being chanted. The other poets who belong to this class are commonly content to tell their tale;—so that of the whole it may be affirmed that they neither require nor reject the accompaniment of music.

"The Dramatic,—consisting of tragedy, historic, drama, comedy, and the masque, in which the poet does not appear at all in his own person, and where the whole action is carried on by speech and dialogue of the agents; music being introduced only incidentally and rarely. The opera may be placed here, inasmuch as it proceeds by dialogue; though depending, to the degree that it does upon music it has a strong claim to be ranked with the lyrical. The characteristic and impassioned Epistle, of which Ovid and Pope have given examples, considered as species of monodrama, may, without impropriety, be placed in this class.

"The Lyrical,—containing the hymn, the ode, the elegy, the song, and the ballad; in all which, for the production of their full effect an accompaniment of music is indispensible.

"The Idyllium,—descriptive chiefly either of the processes and appearances of external nature, as the "Seasons" of Thomson; or of characters, manners and sentiments as are Shenstone's "Schoolmistress" "The Cotter's Saturday Night" of Burns, "The Twa Dogs" of the same author; or of most of the pieces of Theocritus, the Allegro and Penseroso of Milton, Beattie's Minstrel, Goldsmith's Deserted Village, the epitaph, the inscription, the sonnet, most of the epistles of poets, writing in their own persons, and all loco-descriptive poetry, belonging to this class.

"The Didactic,—the principal object of which is the direct instruction: as the poem of Lucretius, the Georgics of Virgil, The Fleece of Dyer, Mason's English Garden, etc.

"And, lastly, satire like that of Horace and Juvenal; personal and occasional satire rarely comprehending of the general in the individual to be classed as poetry."

These will be given with full orchestral accompaniment and in addition to the vocal solos there will be orchestral numbers to complete the program.

Afternoon Party

Mrs. Carl Vanatta dispensed her well known hospitality yesterday to a congenial group of ladies from nearby towns, who passed an afternoon over fancy work and visiting. Generous use of roses, most at their best, dispensed their cheer in all the rooms.

Mrs. Vanatta served an elaborate luncheon about 4:30, which included sandwiches, salad, olives, strawberry short cake with whipped cream, cake and coffee.

The guest list included the Mesdames Doran, Waite, Hughes and Stanford, of Fullerton; Buckwalter, Santa Ana; Zeigler, Higgins, Fryesel and Hoag of Anaheim.

Shaw, vice president and Mrs. Herbert Hunt, treasurer.

The meeting is being held in Community hall. The club program was heard through the afternoon.

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Billy was still running towards the front when all of a sudden he pitched head foremost into a deep ditch filled with soldiers. They paid not the slightest attention to him, for they were too busy loading their rifles and firing over the top of the ditch. And as Billy stood there, he saw men drop and others take their places without a word being spoken. Every face was pale and set in hard lines as the bombs burst over them, shot rained down on them and the dust from the top of the trench poured down on them and blinded them, but they never stopped shooting for a second, but worked like machines, loading, firing, loading, firing, until Billy thought they would drop from fatigue.

"Gee, something stung my ear" thought Billy, and presently a little stream of warm blood ran down Billy's nose, leaving a red mark on his white hair.

"Well, I never! I've been shot and it did not hurt so very much after all. I've been hurt worse lots of times. Just the same I guess I'll get out of here. I think my curiosity has been satisfied for one day." And he started to run behind the men to find a way out of the trench. He ran and ran and ran, until he thought this trench must reach half way around the world, when he saw a black hole in the ground into which this trench seemed to run. He hurried on, and found himself in a narrow, dark passage, but he kept on, hoping to see daylight ahead of him soon. But he saw none, and what dismayed him most was that he kept coming to short flights of steps and they all lead down into the earth with tiers and tiers of narrow passages that ran both to the right and left of them. None of these steps led up.

"If some of these steps don't run up pretty soon, I am going to follow one of these passages that run to the right or left of this flight of steps," decided Billy.

This he did, and he found it brought him to a little room, only big enough for one man, and in many of them he saw a poor tired soldier sleeping with all the dust and grime of battle on him. Keeping on, he came to larger rooms, used as officer's quarters. Some were store-rooms, barber shops, kitchens and dining rooms.

"Well, I declare! I never thought I would find soldiers living underground. So without knowing where I was going, I have gotten into one of the guarded French strongholds! I bet I am in the underground parts of some big fortress. Just the same, I would like to get out, for I don't like living in the dark like a rat, though I do see they have lights to light some of the passages.

"Tomorrow Billy meets with an even more exciting adventure.

WORLD TRIP IS THEME OF TALK AT LUNCHEON

MRS. C. F. GRIM gave a delightful resume of her recent trip around the world, from which she returned last month before the luncheon today of business and professional women. Sailing from San Francisco, the first stop was at Hawaii and she told of the warm welcome and the regretful farewell. A side trip was taken to the Hilo volcano and stories of its wonders have not been the least bit exaggerated, according to Mrs. Grim.

The voyage from Hawaii to Japan was the least bit rocky, owing to the earthquake in Japan, last December. The speaker told of the beautiful scenery in Japan, the gorgeous flowers etc, and the wonderful Imperial palace. She said that in the devastated region of Japan the sight is appalling and the average American can not realize the damage over the region.

One of the most interesting countries she visited was Java, and to illustrate how the Javanese live and their means of livlihood was shown by postal cards. This was one of the most primitive cities she visited.

A display of beautiful linens, beads, trinkets etc., collected on her journey was intensely interesting. As she was pressed for time, she was able to give only a brief outline of her journey.

Announcement was made of the chicken dinner to be given at the tabernacle, Thursday, May 29. This is the regular meeting night and the annual election will follow the dinner. More definite plans will be made later. A delinquent list was read of the members who have failed to remit for the recent party. "Ro-Ki-Li" was sung during the offertory number for the club's mascot.

WILD RUSH AT ATHENS ON HILL

The oil fraternity of So. Calif. is interested, excited, and amazed at the wonderful oil well the Union Oil Co. has opened up at Athens on the Hill and the wonderful possibilities of another Santa Fe Springs looms. In the race to acquire leases, the wife speculates as to the outcome of the field, and the homes erected upon the Union Oil Co., the man who located the well must not be lost sight of. Three years ago one C. S. Thomas, former assistant geologist of the Union Oil Co., put the stake for the Potter Oil Co. four miles west on the Hill well. The Potter Oil Co. drilled 4520 feet and not finding what they were looking for, quit. The action of Mr. Potter was discouraging to Thomas, who worked out the structure of the now famous field who was firm in his conviction that the Potter had not made a sufficient deep test hole to test out the location as final.

The well lay idle for two years. The Potter Oil Co. kept its leases and holdings, and it was only a few months ago that the Potter entered into agreement with the Union Oil Co. of Calif. to take over the holdings and go ahead with the test. It appears that the Potter Oil Co. was sitting almost on top of the pay sand as the Union Oil Co. had only to drill 450 feet of hole and get a 1000-barrel well producing the highest gravity oil the Los Angeles basin has ever produced. At a depth of 4971 feet the Potter well is only a few feet in the oil sand and is making a most wonderful showing for a wildcat discovery well. It is believed the Potter well is the Meyer 3 well of the field and locates the sand that will make Athens on the Hill a second Santa Fe Springs.

Long Beach staged a comeback last week in the way of big wells. Three producers running from 1500 to 1800 barrels were completed and placed on production and more than 5000 barrels of new production was added to the field's output.

W. R. Ramsey, a former mid-Continent operator started the big production event at Long Beach with an 1800-barrel well on his Flower State property. The Flower State well was drilled 4800 feet and shows just some of the production possibilities of the southeast slope of the Hill. Ramsey selected this property soon after oil was discovered on Signal Hill and has had the satisfaction recently of seeing his holdings produce some of the biggest oil wells in the field.

The Pan-American Petroleum Co. drilled its Chainey No. 1 to 4850 feet and was rewarded with a 1600-barrel well. The Chainey well is a deep sand marvel of the northwest section of the field and reveals possibilities for development along the line of deep sand drilling. The Pan-American Petroleum Co. under the direction of J. C. Anderson has made an enviable record at Long Beach, having drilled and placed on production some of the deepest and best wells in the field.

MIDWAY BRINGS IN LARGE WELL

In addition to having the honor of discovering the field, the Chanslor Canfield Midway is getting its share of the big production of the Torrance field and continues to place on completion many of the field's largest and best well. During the past week C. C. M. O. completed a well at No. 53 that went over the 1100 barrel mark and is producing 40 gravity oil. The big well was completed at a depth of 3725 feet Torrance No. 43 completed at the 3600 foot level netted the Chanslor-Canfield's daily output over the 12,000 barrel mark and makes the discovery company the leading producer of the field.

Petroleum Securities Company Doheny's organization took second place among the producers of the Torrance field with a 975 barrel well at No. 32. The producer is making 25 gravity oil and ranks among the largest producers of high gravity oil in the field. Doheny has about five more wells to complete and it is understood that the completion of these wells will make his development work in the Torrance field.

The Sentinel Oil Company continues to get a share of the big production at Torrance and brings its 750 and 800 barrel wells with considerable regularity. The Sentinel's latest completion resulted in a 750 barrel well at No. 5 on the Joughin property and puts the holding up among the first rank of producing properties in the Torrance field.

The Standard and Shell companies put five wells on production during the past week at Torrance. The two completions of the Shell company were Kettler No. 8 and No. 8, 200 and 450 barrel wells respectively. The Standard brought in Interstate No. 5 a 240 barrel well, and Interstate No. 6 a 350 barrel well. The completions of the Shell and Standard were made in the neighborhood of 3800 feet and netted about twenty gravity oil.

(By E. J. Munger)

Never in the history of So. Calif. oil development has there been as many wildcat wells drilling as there are at the present time. Also there has never been as many wildcat wells drilling with so few prospects as there are at the present time. There is hardly an undeveloped area between the several proven fields of the Los Angeles Basin that has not a wildcat well drilling on it. A survey of the wildcat operations of So. Calif. shows Anaheim's test well passing the 5000 mark and not getting any showings, the Attebery Oil Co.s' well at Artesia battling with heaving and at 5233 and not showing any oil, the Bellflower test well passed the 4700 foot mark and not knocking the crown block off, the Maywood well of the Bandini Petroleum Co. abandoned at 5300 feet, the Bixby Hills well at Orange-co. Park trying to get production at 5100 feet, the Clearwater well of the Huntington Downey Syndicate passing the 4300 foot mark and looking for showings, the C. C. Stahl well at Downey hoping to get something that looks like production at 4135, the Hawthorne well of the Petroleum Midway nearing 5300 feet and not having anything, the La Mirada well of the Petroleum Products Syndicate getting ready for a production test at 5005 feet, the Carmenita well of the Petroleum Midway at 4300 and no showings of any particular importance and the Santa Fe Springs extension well of the Burbank Oil Co. close to 5000 feet and not showing anything of encouragement.

There is a treat in store for the patrons of the United Theater tonight, when Cy Haskins will make his appearance here in his new and novel Country Store. This store is different from any other country store act, and Cy has loads of laughter, loads of gifts and loads of fun and surprises for the kiddies and it is all free.

Cy Haskins' Country Store will be given in conjunction with the regular picture program, consisting of Jack Hoxie in his very latest production, "The man From Wyoming," taken from William McLeod Raine's story "Wyoming." Stan Laurel in a screaming comedy, "Frozen Hearts," rounds out an exceptional program.

WEST WINS FIGHT FOR RECLAMATION

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Western states won their fight with the budget bureau over reclamation projects today when Senators Borah of Idaho and McNary of Oregon, Republicans, at a White House conference obtained an agreement from President Coolidge to send the estimates for this reclamation work to congress.

The estimates will be laid before congress contingent upon further investigation as to the practicability of the various projects. Also it was learned with confidence that this investigation would prove the necessity of proceeding with the reclamation work.

The projects are located in Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Nebraska, Washington and Nevada.

FRIENDS COME TO MORFORD'S RESCUE

SAN DIEGO, May 15.—Home friends of Allen R. Morford, confessed "ammonia bandit" and former mayor of St. Joseph, Mich., have come to his rescue.

Word reached here today that a mass meeting of his former associates at St. Joseph was held and a defense fund raised.

The firm of Treadwell, Tompkins and Clark, San Diego attorneys, was today retained by the St. Joseph friends of Morford to defend him. It was expected that $10,000 bail will be required to obtain the mayor-bandit's release pending his trial.

HOUSE VOTES TO MAKE EXLUSION FROM JULY 1

all parts of the bill except the exclusion.

It was said on Mr. Coolidge's behalf that he is hopeful such a vote could be sustained. Opinion in congress, however, is that it cannot.

The immigration bill in its final form was to be laid before the house today for adoption. Then it goes to the senate and thence to the White House. Leaders said the bill would be on the president's desk by Saturday.

The vote in the senate was 63 to 9 as in the case of the house, which voted 308 to 58, far more than necessary to pass the measure over a presidential veto.

STOCKS SLOWLY ADVANCE TODAY

By H. J. DUZEND
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 15.—A slowly advancing tendency characterized trading on the stock exchange today. The improvement was by no means important, nor was it the result of any noteworthy change in outside conditions.

How long the present condition will last is a matter of conjecture. Its discontinuance greatly depends on the final outcome of such legislative measures as the tax, bonus and farm relief bills and the results of the political conventions.

Wall Street is particularly interested in the stand President Coolidge will take on tax legislation. Having sensed the futility of pressing yesterday's downward movement any further except in isolated cases, the professional element took to covering in the second hour, resulting in a gradually hardening trend all around.

Shipping shares were mostly benefitted by the change in sentiment.

Oil stocks reflected accumulation in anticipation of record breaking consumption with the advent of more seasonable weather. The increase in domestic crude oil production for the week ending May 10, was ignored.

Coppers were heavy in the early dealings in connection with the weakness in the yellow metal, Anaconda reaching a new low for 1924 at 30.

Steel shares ruled higher on reports of increasing firmness in pig iron.

Railroad shares were sustained by a carloading statement for the week ended May 3, showing loadings materially larger than those in the previous week.

Money conditions were easy, call loans renewing and ruling at 2½ per cent.

Foreign exchanges developed weakness, especially French francs due to cables telling of difficulties within the majority bloc of the left which makes doubtful the success of a radical-Socialist coalition in the new French chamber.

The character of the trading underwent little change in the last hour. A decline in the call money rate to three percent was of sustaining influence.

The market closed steady. The bond market was featured by fresh strength in U. S. government issues. Foreign government bonds were irregular.

Stock sales today 592,700 shares; bonds $16,750,00V.

GRAIN MARKET NARROW

CHICAGO, May 15.—Trading in grain moved within narrow limits today. Wheat was basically firm with corn and oats weak. At the finish wheat was ⅛ to ⅜ lower, corn ⅜ to 1c down and oats ⅛ to ⅜ off.

Corn's weakness was due to lack of buying support, the short interest having been eliminated and the market gave way under scattered selling, followed by stop loss sales.

May oats was firm early but eased off quickly on profit taking sales.

Provisions were dull but firm.

SUBMIT BRIEFS ON AUTO ATTACHMENT

Briefs submitted by lawyers will be the method by which the case of Miss Maude Heffner against former Sheriff C. E. Jackson, involving a claim for an attached auto amounting to nearly $20,000 will be decided.

Superior Judge Z. B. West, in whose court the trial was held, ordered briefs submitted, allowing 25 days for the plaintiff's brief, 25 days more for an answering brief, and an additional ten days for the plaintiff's rebuttal brief.

While Sheriff Jackson attached the car in 1921 in connection with a suit filed against L. J. Heffner, supposed owner, Heffner's sister, Miss Maude Heffner, filed affidavit of claiming ownership of the car and asking $7000 representing its valuation, and $20 per day for each day it was withheld from her.

ORLANDO MILLER STILL CHAMPION

(By Sorgum Sprout)

Orlando Miller is still the champion of Fullerton, Brea and all way points. He flopped big Herman Stroh twice while the oil driller was getting one fall. It was a great match. Miller looked to have taken in too much territory when he entered the ring with such a big, fat and after a few minutes wrestling Miller's chances looked worse.

Stroh is not only a giant in weight but is also a giant in strength. He reminds one of a big bear, his movements are slow until occasion requires than he shows flashes of speed dazzling for such a big man.

Miller did not wait to warm up he just went in to wrestle the big man off his feet. It was up and down and all around with first one on top then the other. During the first period Stroh broke Miller's holds with apparent ease while the Brea lad had great trouble in breaking some of the driller's holds.

After about 20 minutes of wrestling, Stroh tricked Miller in a rather unusual hold, a full Nelson applied with the feet. Miller tried for three minutes to break away from Stroh's powerful legs, but he was helpless save for his feet and they were in no position to help him. He finally had to concede the fall, the time being 33 minutes.

The second period was even better than the first. Miller went on the mat with determination written in every act. Stroh broke head locks, hammer locks, toe holds, anything and everything that Miller could hang on and was also able to hang on a variety of holds that all but had the little giant down. Miller changed on an army key after 30 minutes wrestling and the hold held for about a minute. Stroh was rolled into another of the arm pushing holds a minute late and it took him several minutes to break the second hold. He was so weakened that Miller was able to apply a vicious toe hold that punished the big man terribly. He succeeded in breaking it but in so doing his leg was injured so that he could not use it. Then Miller took advantage and soon had another hold on the same leg and the oil man had to give up the fight.

Stroh's friends worked frantically with the injured member during the intermission but Stroh could not bear his weight on the foot when he returned to the mat. Miller was able to apply a toe hold on the injured foot in two and a half minutes and one of the most hotly contested matches was over.

Stroh is the gamest wrestler that has yet shown his stuff at Fullerton. Not another man in a thousand would have come back after that second fall. He is just as clean and sportsmanlike as Hackenschmidt and he is the most powerful man that has ever wrestled in this section.

Miller deserves a world of credit for his showing against Stroh. Stroh is remarkably fast for such a large man and the little giant did not have much of an advantage along the lines of speed, but surely he was greatly out-classed in strength Stroh knows his stuff. How did Miller win? By pluck and endurance. A less courageous man would have given up but the little giant just kept pegging away and the break came and he won.

The winner was challenged by no less than four, so there looks to be some more entertaining evenings ahead. Ray Elmer of Kansas City was the first to toss his hat into the ring. Zimmer was once the light heavyweight champion of the world but is now in the 190 pound class. He looks to be every inch a wrestler. Pete Sour, one of the best wrestlers on the coast, then put in his bid. Next came Hackenschmidt with a plea to play off the draw. Last was Fred Mortenson, the Danish champion whom Miller threw some weeks ago. Fred has wrestled a lot and wants another chance at the fast coming Miller. Hackenschmit seems to have the call for the next match.

Last night's preliminaries were highly entertaining while they lasted. Manager Jaffray had to put on substitutes at three minutes. In the first bout a little lad by the name of Paul Gissender made a monkey of Frank Diesinger for three rounds. At the end of the third one befuddled all the wa and landed a lot of clean cut points but the way he went about his boxing was far from finished boxing shown at the club. Where the judges got the draw decision is beyond us as the big boy was not in the point getting at all. Pete Sour, another one befuddled all the wa and landed a lot of clean cut points but the way he went about his boxing was far from finished boxing shown at the club. Where the judges got the draw decision is beyond us as the big boy was not in the point getting at all. Pete in the point getting at all. Pete Sour, another local boxer here last night.

Trambitas carried the fight thruout the ten rounds and demonstrated he has the punch and skill of a comer.

"ALFALFA DOCTOR" FREE UPON BAIL

Rex Herrick William Albrexiondare, so-called, "alfalfa doctor," was today free under $2000 bail pending the taking of his case to the court of appeals after his conviction on a charge of practicing medicine without a license in the treatment of two girls at Orange.

Coincident with his release from the county jail late yesterday it was announced that the preliminary hearing on a similar charge in Pasadena had been postponed pending the outcome of his case here. A Los Angeles surety company arranged the bond. Albrexiondare had been sentenced by Superior Judge Z. B. West here to serve 180 days in jail and pay a fine of $600.

Albrexiondare was met at the jail door after his release by Mrs. Ruth Deardorff Shaw, his advisor during his trial, who accompanied him to Los Angeles.

CARPENTIER BEGINS ACTIVE WORKOUTS

MICHIGAN CITY, May 15.—Georges Carpentier, refreshed by a good night's rest after his transportation from Paris to the sand dunes of Lake Michigan within one week, arose today prepared to start his active workouts for the battle with Tom Gibbons.

Pekin cottage, at Sheridan Beach, houses the eformer idol of France and his party, including his manager Descamps, Francois Deschamps, Paul Fritsch and various and sundry individuals essential to a training camp.

Chicago is still eager for a glimpse of the French fighter, will be given a chance when Carpentier returns for a brief call next week.

Workouts, meantime, will start this afternoon at a social club near the cottage where Georges and his entourage are camped.

Tom Gibbons returned to his schedule today, his fourth day of training camp work, after a night as referee at the army-navy boxing tryouts aboard the U. S. S. Commodore.

BELIEVE DERBY MOST OPEN RACE

NEW YORK, May 15.—Eastern "wise money" having shot the trifling matter of $500,000 on St. James and Sarazen in the winter books, passed along the good word today to back the Sinclair entry in a laudable effort to retrieve early losses on the Kentucky Derby.

Mad Play and Bracadale will be coupled in the betting from the Sinclair stable at Churchill Downs on Saturday and eastern gamblers are pleased to believe that one or the other of them will win.

Large commissions have been placed in hand books here and others will be wired west on the day of the race, to be laid off at the prevailing odds. Bracadale is the colt they like and they are trusting to "Sinclair luck" to make the bunch stand up. Both eastern and western gamblers are laying all kinds of bets on the chances of the two colts, evidently inspired by the belief that the derby will prove one of the most open races of recent years.

Meantime the men behind the winter books which are operated on a "play or pay" basis, are satisfied. They got theirs when Sarazen and St. James, heavily played in the future books, withdrawn from the race last week and Wise Councillor, the hope of Kentucky, "went bad." There still seemed to be some hope today that Wise Counsellor might be rushed to Churchill Downs for the race, but it was a forlorn chance. The Ward colt is hardly up to running a typical mile and a quarter, even if his present form is more creditable than it was at Pimlico.

In any case, Black Gold has taken precedence over Wise Counsellor as the western hope in the derby, and got without reason. He won the Louisiana Derby last winter, beating Mad Play in the clinking time of 1:37 2-5 for the mile and two days ago turned 1:37 4-5 in spreadeagling his field in the derby trial stakes.

As a matter of fact the writer sees no good reason for the eastern support of Mad Play and Bracadale.

Drawing a line thru Black Gold to the ability of the Sinclair, it might be mentioned that Wild Aster, to which Black Gold gave five pounds and a beating in the derby trial, defeated Bracadale at Jamaica last week.

SINCLAIR'S ENTRY GAINING IN FAVOR

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—The sport in favor of Mad Play, pride of Harry Sinclair's Ranoca stable, and Bracadale, may result in the Sinclair entry becoming the derby favorite, judging by the condition of the books at opening today.

At that Mad Play must overcome considerable handicap to take the play away from the hope of the west, Mrs. R. M. Hoots's Black Gold, who now runs 4 to 1.

Mad Play is runner-up here at 5 to 2, but in the full books that have been unusually heavy and, as naturally follows, regrets will be in the same proportion. Wise Counsellor, St. James and Sarazen, who figured most of the early money, having been eliminated.

The pre-barrier judgment here is shown in the heavy bets of one well known turfman on Black Gold, Mad Play, Beau Butler and Altawood. He asserted that one of the four is sure to win the golden jubilee event.

COOLIDGE HOPES TO BEAT BONUS

definite, the president pointed out. He said the veterans' bonus estimated to cost it $2,200,785,542, over a period of 20 years, with the cost of the first year $155,000,000 with $6,500,000 additional for administration.

Treasury estimates the president declared, are considerably higher than this, experts there figuring the cost of the bill at $3,145,000,000.

The president insisted that the tax burden must be reduced and said that the nation at the present time had no economic ills that could not be attributed to high federal and other taxes.

As to insurance certificates provided for in the bonus bill, Mr. Coolidge expressed the opinion that in the year 1945 they would jeopardize the value of other government securities.

The president said passage of the bill would add $25 in taxes on each inhabitant of the country or $175 on each family as an average over the 20 year life of the bill.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The action of the senate in sustaining President Coolidge's veto of the Bursum pension bill encouraged the White House today to believe there is a possibility of the soldiers' bonus-insurance bill also being defeated this session.

Administration supporters, at any rate, regarded the victory over the Bursum bill as a "hopeful sign" and they were urging the president today to speed up action on the bonus bill, which has now been on his desk several days.

It is possible that the veto message on the bonus bill may go to the Capitol today, altho it probably will be deferred until tomorrow. The president has until Friday midnight to act on the measure. After that it would become a law without his signature under the statue period of 10 days.

It is regarded as certain that the vote on the bonus over the president expected veto will be a close one, probably hinging on a few votes either way.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 15.—John R. Quinn, national commander of the American Legion, made a brief statement of regret that the president vetoed the adjusted compensation measure, and expressed confidence it would be enacted over his veto here this year.

Declare New Keaton Feature Most Original Comedy Made

Advance notices of Buster Keaton's new Metro feature, "Sherlock Jr.," declared it to be the most original comedy ever made. This production at the California Theatre tomorrow, bears out the claims made for it—"Sherlock Jr." is truly "something new under the sun." Never has such a delightful combination of fantasy and fun been put together in any theatrical medium, stage or screen.

The picture keeps the audience in stitches from the opening scene to the final fadeout as Buster trudges and scampers across the screen with a face as long as an eight-day clock.

"Sherlock Jr." is a knockout. This Joseph M. Sherman production is written by Jean Harves, Joe Mitchell and Clyde Bruckman, Keaton's famous "gag" men, and the treatment is just as novel and refreshing as the idea itself.

How, as a small-town operator, Buster is accused of the theft of a watch by the villain, his disgrace, his dream of great things while showing a picture, and how he finally wins out, is told in a series of laugh-provoking scenes that whizz by in rapid succession. There is not a dull moment.

Keaton directed the picture himself and has introduced many clever situations. His transition from a movie operator to a movie actor is a delightful bit of movie fantasy.

Angered by the actions of the villain in the film, he walks down the aisle of the theatre, gets on the stage, and climbs right into the frame of the picture.

Of the three major features being shown at the screen at the California Theatre, Captain F. B. Kleinschmidt's "Adventures in the Far North" certainly stands out as unique. Part of the film is colored, and the artists have done a good job, bringing out beautiful tints of scenes in and near Alaska most pleasing to nature lovers. The animal life depicted, those fighting for food, so much like nations fighting over territory, and a mother polar bear swimming with her cub towing behind her, her struggles to release herself with animal when it is lassoed—paradoxically lends a human touch to this picture of wild life in the North.

There is still another feature on this magnificent program, namely "Money To Burns," the third of the Telephone Series of comedies.

California News Flashes and Arch B. Pritz in musical accompaniments conclude a very interesting program.

Tonight only—a wonder bill of vaudeville, featuring five big time acts and "Children of the Dust," Frank Borzago's masterpiece of emotion, on the screen.

PARDON REVOKED

CHICAGO, May 15.—Holding that President Coolidge had no authority to pardon a man in contempt of court, the U. S. district court today set aside the executive pardon recently granted Phillip S. Grossman and ordered him taken into custody.

Grossman, a saloonkeeper, was enjoined in federal court from operating the place. It was charged he bootlegged liquor and he was cited for contempt by former Judge Kenesaw M. Landis and sentenced to Leavenworth.

The sentence was upheld by the higher courts but Grossman evaded serving it while strenuous efforts were being made to induce former President Harding to pardon him. The rule that no petitions for pardons will be considered until the convicted person is actually serving his sentence prevented any action.

Before a senatorial investigation committee recently it was charged that the names of prominent persons signed to the petition were forged and that President Coolidge was deceived and did not know Grossman had never served a day in jail.

The decision handed down today was written by Judge James H. Wilkerson and holds that the executive cannot interfere in a civil contempt case. It is expected to be of far reaching importance as affecting countless other cases where sentences have been inflicted for contempt. The Grossman case has been under advisement for three months.

Grossman is reported to have spent more than $40,000 in his effort to keep out of jail.

Mark Twain pointed out that man is the only animal that blushes.
