This Husky Anaheim Athlete Takes to Water Like a Duck

MASTER MARVIN ASHFORD

The husky, healthy, good natured boy shown in the picture above is some swimmer as may be taken from the fact that he is there in his bathing suit! Well, he is a swimmer and a good one, too. He takes to the water like a duck and keeps his parents busy taking him to the beach where he has the time of his life. He is a real boy from every viewpoint and his playmates love him as everybody does who comes in contact with his prepossessing personality.

This mighty swimmer and sport is master Marvin Ashford, the pride of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard B. Ashford of Anaheim, who expect great things of him when he grows up. In the meantime Marvin is doing much better than the average in the matter of "growing up" as he is not only several laps ahead of the ordinary child, of his age, but he is gifted with a keen, brilliant mind and blessed with a wonderfully built body that shows the rare pink of excellent health.

CABINET APPROVES NEW INSTRUCTIONS TO FRENCHMEN

PARIS, Dec. 27.—The French cabinet today approved new instructions for the French arms delegation which are believed to embody a slight modification of the submarine stand.

The orders, however, do not alter the position taken by France that she must be adequately protected with undersea craft and the concessions provided are slight, a reliable authority told the United Press.

This action followed recommendation of the senate naval committee that the French submarine fleet be increased contrary to the plan of Secretary Hughes.

Naval advisers of the government have maintained France's actual submarine necessities must be represented by a ninety thousand tonnage, it was learned. These experts point out that if France has ninety submarines, thirty of them will be in drydock for repairs all the time.

This will leave twenty for the protection of the Atlantic coast, twenty for the Mediterranean and only twenty others to guard the coast lines of all the far flung colonies.

The home is flooded with messages of condolence and the presence of relatives and friends who, recovering from their first shock, hastened to the bereft home to offer their sympathy and assistance. The responsive heart of the whole community in fact, acquainted with the fine personality of the deceased, goes out to the sorrowing husband and father of this little flock.

Both of W. B. Paden's Hurricanes will be entered in the 24-mile grind for speed craft. The newer Hurricane II is strictly a speed boat and has run in hard luck all season. In event of rough water the older Hurricane will have the advantage as it is an excellent boat in heavy weather.

The race will be run in two heats of twenty-four miles each. The speed craft will get away on the first heat at 10 a. m. and repeat at 11 o'clock. The boat making the best elapsed time in the two heats will receive the cup.

Five of the fastest boats in Southern California will line up at the start of this race. They are the Fellows IV, Miss Los Angeles II, Mystery and Hurricane I and II. Bill Goodrum Pinched for Pushing Strange Craft On City Streets

Christmas Eve the rushing throngs of shoppers stopped and stood in amazement on Center street as a strange craft sailed up the street propelled by a very happy, proud and broadly smiling human dynamo!

The strange craft was labeled "Goodrum Special—1922 Model," and the motive power was "Bill" Goodrum. No one in all that busy crowd could quite "get" the "idea" of the contraption and the Anaheim world would still be vainly trying to solve the sudden appearance of the mysterious machine if "Bill" Goodrum hadn't been "pinched" right in the heart of the business district for driving without lights, as well as exceeding the speed limit. He was arrested by Officers Moody and Peck and when arraigned before Municipal Judge Howard, his case was set for January 17.

And here is how Bill got into all the mix-up:

An angel brought a beautiful Christmas gift to the Goodrum home on Tuesday, December the 13th, in the form of a little cupid—a fine little girl who bears the pretty-poetic name of Joan.

The staff of the Anaheim Auto Company were almost as proud of the big event in the Goodrum home as Bill himself. So, in order to fittingly express their pride as well as the sentiments of the festive Christmas season, they purchased a beautiful carriage for Joan. Then they put auto headlights, tail lights, a spare tire, gas tank and all the "fixins" of a high class car on Joan's carriage and labeled it "Goodrum Special Model; License Number 1." The conspirators then took seats in all the cars in the garage and waited for Bill to show up. When he did he was stunned by finding the strange craft in the middle of the floor directly in the pathway to his office. Bill stopped, took off his hat scratched his head and muttered something under his breath.

And then — fifty Clazon horns shrieked, yelled, groaned and raised a perfect bedlam. When Bill recovered he had been presented with the gift by all the employes of the Anaheim Auto Company in a neat speech of appreciation by Bob Vincent, who stipulated, however, that Bill must wheel the baby carriage home—right up Los Angeles—thence up West Center, where he was "pinched," as the boys had taken the lamps out of the headlights on the "Goodrum 1922 Special Make."

Victim of Auto Accident Here Leaves Hospital

John Zwettlin, who was struck in the back by an auto while walking on the boulevard, was taken to the county hospital on Christmas day. He was released from the hospital yesterday morning when his injuries were found to be of a minor character and no bones broken. A report of the accident was made to the office of Sheriff C. E. Jackson.

Roscoe B. Young and William J. Sebastian were received as new members.

A most commendable as well as a most important step was taken when a committee was designated to promote the idea of "Conservation of water and river protection" and the committee appointed was an exceptionally good one and the public may now rest assured that this important project will receive the serious mindet attention that its importance deserves. The members of the committee are F. W. Ahlborn, chairman; A. B. McCord, George Ross, David Jessurum, E. Durfee, Charles Eyzabroad, William Sieman, J. A. Clayes and Frank Gibbs.

THREE HUNDRED PHONES DISCONNECTED BY FLOOD WATERS

"Three hundred and fifty phones in the city are out of order," H. C. Sampson, chief of the Anaheim Telephone Exchange, said today. Mr. Sampson states the trouble is due to an underground cable on South Los Angeles street and that it was necessary to build a dam to keep the water out before the cable could be repaired. A force of men arrived from Los Angeles at daybreak this morning. It is quite an undertaking to repair the cable but the company promises to lose no time in restoring normal service.

MORE STOCKINGS AND MONEY RECEIVED BY HERALD

The Herald wishes to acknowledge the following Christmas gifts made to "the little children of the poor," which reached the Herald office too late to be included in the list of good-hearted persons mentioned in Saturday's edition:

Charles Carrol of Anaheim sent his check for $10.

Charles Snyder of Route 5, Anaheam, made a cash donation.

Orris Hardacre, Jr., of Anaheim, also left some money to buy things for the "kiddies."

Harriet Austin, Mrs. I. O. Curtis and Mrs. J. S. Austin and Irving Young gave a bunch of stockings.

In addition to this there was a number of well-filled stockings received after the Elks had notified the Herald that every home in the whole district had been "doubly" covered. The overflow was sent to St. Catherine's orphanage.

ANAHEIM STORES SET NEW RECORD FOR HOLIDAY TRADE

Anaheim merchants are well pleased with the holiday business this season. Christmas shopping began early and continued until the stores closed Saturday night. The thousands of shoppers in Anaheim stores and the crowds of people surging through the streets indicated that Anaheim is decidedly one of the bright spots in the prosperity map of the county.

Not only did the Anaheim merchants enjoy a great Christmas trade, but many of them showed their appreciation of the services of their employes during the last year by gifts and substantial remembrances. The employes and proprietors and their employes showed radiant this morning, indicating that all had truly enjoyed a merry Christmas.

Kurt Epstein, advertising manager of Falkensteins, said: "We had the greatest Christmas trade in the history of the store."

O. H. Renner, manager of the S. Q. R. Store, said: "Our business could not have been better. The rainy weather did not prevent people coming from all parts of Anaheim's trading zone to this city to do their Christmas shopping."

Joe Kustiner, owner of the Kustiner Clothing Store, said that both Friday and Saturday established new sales records for his store. Depite preparations for the holiday rush, such as employing additional sales people and displaying stock for convenience of shoppers, many prospective customers could not be reached.

Expression of satisfaction were heard from many sources when business men were asked today about their holiday trade.

FOUR NASH CARS SOLD BY MAY COMPANY FOR XMAS GIFTS

The May Motor Company of Anaheim sold four Nash cars which were presented as Christmas gifts. The Nash car is rapidly becoming recognized as a splendid all-around car—a car that suits the whole family collectively as well as the individual members of the family. Mr. Arthur A. May says that the business for the coming year will probably establish a new sales record for the Nash cars. "Last year," he said, "our business was splendid, and there is every indication that our volume of sales will be greatly increased this year. We expect business to begin to hit the high spots after the holiday season is formally closed."

RANCHERS SEEK SAFETY AS RIVER SWEEPS THROUGH GAP IN LEVEE

Mexicans Are Driven To Sugar Factory as Homes In District Are Flooded Late Last Night.

Hundreds of lives of men, women and children in Anaheim and the vicinity were in danger last night and early this morning when flood waters from the Santa Ana River swept through a 200-foot gap in the embankment above the Olive bridge and threatened to wreck the homes of ranchers in the flood area and Mexican settlements near the Anaheim Sugar factory. Farmers and their families deserted their homes and came to this city for the night while Mexican families sought protection in the sugar factory.

Although no damage has been reported within the city limits today, flood waters continue to rush down several of the city streets. This morning South and North streets, South Los Angeles and North Los Angeles streets, Sunkist and Placentia avenues were raging rivers. Much of the lower ground between Anaheim and the river is inundated.

Flood Gates Opened

The sluice gates of Little Bear Lake have been opened, letting out four feet of water, in order to relieve the pressure against the gates and to help retard the stream from breaking through, according to word received at the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. There is no foundation for the rumor that the dam has broken, says the message.

At 11:30 this morning the Santa Ana river was reported to be down eight inches from the flood tide mark at 1 o'clock this morning. The gap which caused the Anaheim flood, has widened but the bulk of the storm waters are passing through the channel on the Olive side, where many men worked all night before getting the situation well in hand.

Reports from the Santa Fe office at San Bernardino at 11:30 indicated that the steady rains were falling in the mountains but it is hoped that the streams can carry this off and that the water will not reach a higher mark in any part of the city or the district immediately north than that of this morning.

Red Cross Would Help

J. H. Whitaker offered the services of the Red Cross to the Chamber of Commerce this morning and all parties knowing of families in need of immediate relief are requested to apply to Mr. Whitaker's office, telephone 539, or the Chamber of Commerce 665, and the case will be reported to Mr. Whitaker.

The general manager's office of the Santa Fe of San Bernardino offered the use of any number of men to stem the torrent but no requisitions had been made up to noon today.

Mr. Choat of the local police brought the first word to the Mexican quarters at 8 o'clock last night of the approaching waters, having made a trip up Santa Ana canyon earlier in the evening.

May Call Volunteers

Mayor Stark and City Manager Steward called at the chamber at noon and offered all possible assistance in the way of teams, men and tools with the idea of starting in early tomorrow morning and closing such gaps as may prove dangerous. It is possible that some volunteer help will be needed tomorrow and if such persons as are willing to volunteer are requested to notify the Chamber of Commerce as early as possible.

Canyon Road Closed

The road through the Santa Ana canyon is closed, according to information received at the Anaheim office of the Automobile Club of Southern California. This is due to the great rainfall on the head waters of the river during the past twenty-four hours. Effort is being made to arrange detours where the roads and bridges have been washed out, and it is thought that the route will be open by tomorrow.

Steward Discusses Flood

The Santa Ana river is spreading one-third of its flood waters across the country. The river has cut through a gap 200 feet wide at the head half way between the Olive boulevard bridge and the Olive-Richfield Santa Fe bridge. "The water will continue to flow through this gap until the river dries up unless steps are taken to repair the river banks," City Manager O. E. Steward said this morning after he had returned from a tour of inspection. According to Mr. Steward the gap can be temporarily closed with 2,000 sacks of sand but in order to make the improvement permanent and hold the water absolutely secure, a double row of piling should be driven along the west bank of the river from the Olive boulevard bridge up stream for a mile and a half.

Speaking of the flood situation today, Mr. Steward said "There has not been half as much water as we had in

These tracts are set to growing orange trees and the possibilities of improvement and beautification are truly inspiring to HOME-LOVERS, who long to live in a rose-rambled bungalow nestling among the gorgeous, flowers, stately palms, emerald green lawns and shrubbery, who rise to greet the glorious dawn and thrill before the matchless sunsets; whose hearts are attuned to the sweet singing of the birds; whose souls seek the incomparable beauty of California blue skies; whose vision gathers the grand contentment of the mountains, now crowned with a diadem of snow—lofty peaks standing in regal majesty in the distance—reigning over Anaheim and the rich Valencia Orange Empire. ANAHEIM H. S. STUDENT WINS REAL ESTATE ESSAY PRIZE

Merle Simon of the Anaheim union high school won first prize in the California Real Estate magazine essay contest and will receive an award of $15, according to an announcement received by The Herald today. The subject of the essay is "Why California Real Estate Investment is Best." This honor was won in competition with high schools from all over the state, including many in the larger cities.

The prize essay will be published in the January edition of the magazine of the California Real Estate Association and in many newspapers of the state. A letter has been received by the superintendent of the Anaheim high school thanking the students for the interest shown in the contest.

Second prize in the contest was won by William E. Gould, Pacific Grover high school. Third prize went to Ruth Kyle of Turlock union high school.

First Prize Essay

The essay written by Merle Simon follows.

"California real estate is steadily increasing in value, due to her increasing population. Homes and business buildings here are in great demand.

"California, with her mountains, beaches, good roads, with her beautiful scenery, and wonderful climate, each year attracts thousands of tourists, many of whom stay, increasing the population to such an extent that more and more homes are in demand here. The demand for business buildings naturally increases with the population, making both residence and business property a good and safe investment.

"California has many kinds of climate and soil. By growing different fruits, vegetables, nuts and grains whichever may be the best adapted to the climate and soil of a certain section of the state, and with an abundance of water for irrigating purposes, California soil pays big returns on money invested.

"Real estate is always the best investment. Money invested in business is not always safe. Many business enterprises often prove to be failures with a total loss of the money invested. But real estate is the best investment."

Second Prize Essay

The subject of William E. Gould's essay is "California, the Golden State." This Pacific Grove high school student will receive a cash prize of $10. The essay follows:

"Mr. Settler, California welcomes you! California, the golden state, the garden spot of the continent. Our resources need your developing, our enterprises need your capital.

"Here on the sunny Pacific slope lie 155,652 square miles of the finest land in the world. Any plant that is useful to man finds an ideal home in California. Its land produces everything from tropical fruits to hardy plants of the coldest regions. The fertile lands of its valleys are the richest in the world.

"The climate is sublime. There is variety enough to suit every taste. California is the healthiest place on the globe. In this land of sunshine the land is kept producing the year around. Surely nature has lavished this region with the very best of her gifts.

"According to the last census there were only three and a half million people in this state. The need of our state is for more permanent residents. With a population of only twenty-two persons per square mile, it can be easily seen that there is plenty of room for a great many more people. California real estate offers the best opportunity for prosperity that can be given to any ambitious man. Such an investment pays best."

Third Prize Essay

Ruth Kyle won third prize with an essay on "Why Real Estate in California Is a Good Investment." Her essay follows:

"California, the land of sunshine and golden opportunities, where health and happiness reign supreme! Where else would one find a spot more like paradise?

"Is real estate in California a good investment? Where could it be better? What other state furnishes such fertile soil, such an enormous water supply and a climate that makes possible the growth of two abundant crops every year? This variety of soil and climate enables California to produce any crop that can be raised anywhere in the United States. We have excellent highways, railways and harbors that make it possible for us to ship our commodities all over the world.

"California is noted for its wonderful scenery and beautiful state and national parks. Yosemite National Park, our largest and most scenic park, had more visitors this year than any other park in the United States. This, together with the fact that many people make their summer and winter homes here, causes our state to be widely known and settled by tourists and eastern people. Some idea of the proportion of the people who come to California to remain and the proportion who come here only for a visit can be gathered from this interesting information. Out of seventy-five people who were in a coach coming to California, thirty were coming on a visit and the remaining forty-five were coming to make their homes here.

The people of the East realize that real estate in California is the best investment and they are moving west to 'Our Little Empire' that Arthur Brisbane says will some day contain fifty millions of people."

DUCKWORTH PREDICTS RECORD BUILDING IN 1922

Elk Park Extension is still going strong despite the inclemency of the weather, which usually discourages inspection of home-sites.

W. E. Duckworth of the J. T. Lyon Realty Company today said, "The interest developed in Elk Park Extension augurs rapid settlement of this beautiful subdivision. Every indication points to a greatly increased business in all lines of Anaheim property. Our sources of information tell us that building operations during 1922 will vastly exceed any previous year in the history of Anaheim. Eastern people are turning their eyes toward Southern California and Anaheim has been marked as a particularly desirable place to live and get the best out of life. We not only have a most ideal location, but the climate is wonderful. Although we are in an interurban town still you can reach the seashore in twenty-five minutes and the glorious snow-capped mountains in twenty minutes.

Anaheim is a very prosperous town, possessing the genius of thrift, courageous initiative and splendid enterprise. The future not only gives us a cheerful prospect for industrial development but impresses upon our mind the outstanding truth that Anaheim cannot escape being one of the most beautiful residential cities in America."

The Same Incalculable Sum Is the Gain of "Foresight!"

What Frank Strong Has Done You Can Do, Too, If You Will

Frank Strong of Los Angeles has just retired on a vast fortune made in real estate investments. He wisely bought land when prices were low and waited with serene faith in the future of Los Angeles—the Marvel City of the world. His faith was justified in the amazing development of the city. The day arrived when every tick of fortune's clock sent the values of his holdings skyward.

Here are some of the things Frank Strong has done:

Sold Seventh street frontage for $50 a foot, since sold for $1,500 a foot.

Bought Central avenue corner for $15,000, now rented for $21,000 a year.

Paid $1,000 an acre for Venice acreage. One 50-foot lot recently sold for $25,000.

Paid $2,000 an acre for tract at Sixth and Rampart. Has refused offer of $55,000 for corner lot.

What is true of Los Angeles is also true in proportion of Anaheim. What Frank Strong has done, YOU can do, too!

But YOU must act at once—today—right now—if you are to gather all the profits in value increases. Do not be deceived by the subtle FRAUD of TOMORROW—that day never comes to countless men and women. Put your money to work for yourself. There are so many opportunities for investment in Anaheim real estate, that you could select almost any one of them BLINDFOLDED and you could not possibly escape the gratification of harvesting big profits in the natural, inevitable increase in value according to the rapid development of the splendid growing, prosperous city.

Whether you are seeking a desirable HOME-SITE or a profitable INVESTMENT you may search through Southern California, or anywhere else, and you will be unable to find a community possessing more attractive residence features than you will find in Anaheim; or a prospect which offers more assurance of big returns on realty investments.

Everybody who has studied the local situation knows that the destiny of Anaheim is inspiring. The wise ones—the foresighted—are busy buying everything they can possibly handle. These are the ones who will cash in on the big winners! Why not be wise then? It's up to you!

Everybody possesses "HINDSIGHT!" How often have you listened to disappointed men and women tell of the "chances" they missed? How they had been offered good land "for a song," How they "passed the chance up." How they could have retired as Frank Strong has just retired with a vast fortune—IF they had only "acted on the impulse" and bought the land THEN and waited until the day when the land had turned to gold! Of course these "HINDSIGHTED" persons lacked initiative, courage and the genius to prosper. They were unthrifty!

But you have no aspirations to follow their example have you? So KNOWING what has come to pass and what will inevitably come to pass again, why not obey that impulse and buy that land TODAY!

PROPERTY IN ANAHEIM BEST INVESTMENT DECLARES ROSS

"There is no surer way of making money than by investing in Anaheim property," said George Ross of the Orange County Realty Company today. He further said that Anaheim's steady development means a far greater increase in property values than is generally realized.

The Valencia Square tract, which is being handled by Ross Brothers, is one of the best restricted of any of the choice residential district in Anaheim and they believe offers lots that are priced lower than any others of equal value in the city. They have found a great demand for residence lots that can be purchased at fair prices and believe that fio better indication of the legitimate growth of a city can be had than a desire on the part of its citizens to own their own homes.

Youth and Sweetheart End Lives With Poison

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 27.—Thomas Brands, 18, and Matilda Hist, his 17-year-old sweetheart, died of strychnine poisoning early today.

They didn't have money enough to marry in life, so they decided to wed through death, the boy explained to police just before his last convulsion seized him.

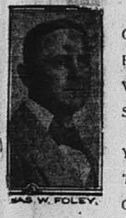

CLAIRMONT CONTINUES TO PRAISE ANAHEIM LAND VALUES

The condition of the weather has nothing to do with the activities of Harold Clairmont. Rain or shine he can be found preaching the text of "Buy something in Anaheim." Mr. Clairmont says that he has a large listing of properties that includes orange groves, residence properties, business properties and vacant lots. The recent rains, he claims, are making it apparent on every grove that a piece of California is indeed a piece of gold. He says that there is no better place for the safe and profitable investment of money than in property in and around Anaheim.

300 FULLERTON HOMES BUILT THIS YEAR; MORE NEEDED

More than 300 houses have been built in Fullerton this year and that number of houses has barely absorbed a fraction of those needing homes. The city council has under consideration a plan to loan to the board of trade a sufficient sum of money to erect thirty or more tent houses. This plan proposes the erection of a number of two-room structures partly of wood and partly of canvas, to take care of present conditions.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

WIDEAWAKE AND SLEEPYHEAD

Oh, you little Wideawake,
Sitting here upon my knee,
Hearing stories, nibbling cake,
What will Mother say to me
When she hears the clock strike nine?
You remember what she said?
Such a scolding, yours and mine,
For you ought to be in bed.

You remember what she said
Little auditor of mine:
'Half-past eight is time for bed!'
Look! And now the clock strikes nine!
Oh, the scolding we will get
Just the minute that she comes
If she finds us reveling yet
With the fairies and the gnomes.

Oh, you little Wideawake
With your starry eyes that shine
And your voice that begs for cake,
And the clock that 's striking nine!
We must leave the elves and gnomes,
You must hurry off to bed,
And before your mother comes
I must hide my guilty head.

We can't hide the crime we've done,
Nor the secret we can keep,
For tomorrow will the sun
Find you fast, so fast asleep!
I can hear your mother say:
"Who kept Wideawake from bed—
With the gnomes and elves at play?
Made her little Sleepyhead?"

And she'll find the scattered crumbs,
And she'll find the fairy book,
Yes, and when the morning comes
She will know my guilty look.
When she calls and says: "Now there!
Look at little Lie-abed!"
Tell me, Little Mischief, where
Will I hide my guilty head?

LIVES IMPERILED AS FLOOD WATERS REACH THIS CITY

1916 and no serious damage has been done except to excite the people and to deter future growth and improvements, in this respect Anaheim has already lost more than it would have cost to have strengthened all of the river bank where there is any possible danger of the waters reaching the city."

Rain Record Broken

The precipitation since Saturday night in Anaheim was 2.34 inches, bringing the total for the storm period up to 7.18 inches, and the total for the season up to 8.61 inches as compared with 3.02 inches up to this date last season.

City Streets Flooded

Some of the streets of Anaheim presented scenes like those of Venice this morning. On South Los Angeles street a number of youngsters were seen towing a boat along the sidewalk, the street was flooded from the city limits on the south to the Southern Pacific railway tracks and there was from eighteen inches to two feet of water on North Los Angeles street. Most of the water where the river cut through flowed down North and South streets and spread out over the flat country. No damage was done to Orange groves with the exception of where the river cut through from the main channel the grove at this point was washed considerable.

ALICE BRADY FEATURES WONDERFUL BILL AT CALIFORNIA

People nowadays love to see good motion pictures. They love to be entertained. It is a regular part of their curriculum. Therefore, the theaters are striving to cater more and more to the wants of the masses, until today, theater magnates are racing each other to see who can put on the most elaborate shows.

Anaheim people are also anxious to see the best of silversheet entertainment, and with this idea in view, Managers Ingram and Swope have arranged for a program beginning today that is a regular "knockout."

The feature of this bill is beautiful Alice Brady in "Dawn of the East." It is a wonderful picture, says the critics, and those who have been fortunate enough to witness it elsewhere. The cast is par-excellence, and the other added effects are splendid.

On the same program several added attractions of more than ordinary interest are presented including Charle Desser, the noted boy virtuoso. This lad is making a tremendous name for himself, and will soon be a reigning favorite on the biggest circuits, it was freely predicted. The entire ensemble is superb, and everyone should see this program.

MIGHTY CENTRE TEAM TROUNCES ARIZONA 38-0 IN RAIN

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 27.—San Diego experienced a football "hangover" today.

Pelting rain and a 38 to 0 score failed to dampen the ardor of gridiron fans who saw the game and plucky Arizona University eleven downed by the mighty Centre machine at the stadium yesterday afternoon.

It is generally agreed that the score belies the relative strength of the two teams. Arizona, outweighed badly on the line and behind it, was unable to cope with the beef and brawn of Coach Moran's proteges in the sea of mud in which the game was played. They made a sterling fight, showed several flashes of high grade offense and fought to the last amid the cheers of the big crowd which was largely for the westerners.

There has probably never been a game played in the west with such a one sided score, with such an assortment of thrills from whistle to whistle. They were not all provided by Centre, either. Playing against Roberts, all-American end, Captain Wofford, of the Wildcats, exhibited a terrific game on the defense and offense as well. Outweighed 60 pounds he broke through time after time to down the runner behind. Slonaker, at quarterback for Arizona was another star through his forward passing, punting and fiedl generalship. Clymer, Arizona, at center, broke up play after play from one end of the line to the other.

For Centre the great Bo McMillan was easily the star. He proved a veritable whirlwind, twisting, dodging and squirming his way down the field for gain after gain. His passing with a wet ball was a marvel. Centre exhibited team work and interference of the highest calibre, practically every man on the team proving a star.

While rain fell during the entire game, the crowd remained to the end, cheering the mud bespattered players and voting San Diego's annual east-west game a real football contest, in spite of the score.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 27.—Five convicts recently found guilty of rioting in the yard of Auburn prison failed in an attempt to escape on Christmas night through their efforts to carry away one of their number, who had broken his leg in flight.

This became known today when prison officials announced one criminal had been slain and the others recaptured. None succeeded in scaling the outer wall.

Police of Omaha Rout Strikers With Bayonets

OMAHA, Dec. 27.—Open defiance of police was manifested here last night by large crowds of packing plant strikers. Two men were arrested after they had assaulted a policeman attempting to disarm them. When officers arrested a man near the Armour plant and were waiting for a patrol wagon, a crowd gathered and against threatened to free the prisoners, police said.

The officers, in one instance, early last night swept a crowd before them with a bayonet tipped riot guns, clearing a street for blocks.

'Coyote' Name of Fast Motor Transit Stage

Naming of overland transportation mediums, begun in the old horse stage days and later popularized by steam railways, has now extended to include "motor trains." The Motor Transit Company has announced that in the future the motor stage "limited" recently introduced for through service via the inland route to San Francisco, would be known as the "Coyote."

The "Coyote" schedule provides for an actual running time of only sixteen hours and thirty-five minutes, an additional hour being consumed in stops for meals. The stages leave the Union Stage Depot at Los Angeles every morning at 6:30 o'clock and arrive in San Francisco five minutes after midnight.

BUICK PRICES DROP GOODRUM ANNOUNCES

The new prices will be effective January 1 and will apply on all models. Goodrum says that if there is any car that has been giving more for the money than the Buick he has not heard of it and hails this latest price drop as the beginning of an epoch in exceptional value giving. He says that the Buick at the new price should provide the oportunity of selecting any model, four or six, that will mean one of the best investments possible in motor cars.

"The Florence Nightingale of Blair Mountain"

TYPICAL LOGAN COUNTY W. VA. MINING TOWN

By HANNAH MITCHELL

IT would be easy enough to make a melodramatic start and give her some such extravagant title as "The Angel of the Hills" or "The Mother of the Mines" or "The Florence Nightingale of Blair Mountain." But if you did and Molly Dingess Drake found it out she might laugh and she might make some sharp remark, but most certainly she would not be pleased.

How she escaped the "war correspondents" who were rushed to the front to cover West Virginia's recent mine war is more than I can say, for the story is still told of how Molly, like "Sheridan twenty miles away," when the armed miners were marching on Logan, made all haste not toward safety, as she might very wisely have done, but back to where the bullets were flying.

Her narrowest escape from the feature pages of newspapers was several years ago—two, in fact—when, a woman of some two score years, she was graduated from high school with her sixteen-year-old daughter. That graduation and the attendant high school diploma were in no sense honorary affairs given out of respect for Molly Dingess Drake. They had been earned by this very determined, ambitious woman of the hills after four years of enrolled along with her daughter and for which she had attended classes faithfully with classmates half her age.

On pay day Mrs. Drake is a welfare worker for one of the coal companies operating in the Logan field. Having finished her high school course, she did not go on to college with her daughter. And, as she puts it, one of the coal producers "knew she wouldn't sit at home and knit and crochet." So he offered her the job of visiting nurse among the employees of his company. In this job Mollie mothers a large family. It is composed of men and women much older than she and of the children of these older children. True to the mother-type anywhere, she makes their individual troubles, their health, their happiness, a very personal matter.

There was the young Spaniard who lay in the hospital after a severe accident. No friends or relatives rallied to his bedside, and the doctors and nurses could not understand him when he moaned out a word or two in his native tongue. Mollie Drake scoured the hills for an interpreter and found one. She also dug up a cousin of the unfortunate boy. Moreover she made the lives of nurses and doctors miserable until the lad was out of danger, sometimes calling at the hospital was getting on. Was not this foreign born lad one of her children?

It was not the Mollie Dingess Drake, ready to face danger along with other brave women of Logan county when armed miners were marching upon their homes, that interested me most, as you may have guessed already. The World War is too recent proof that American women are not afraid to risk their lives for a cause. It is Mollie when peace broods over her native hills that make her a woman among women.

Mrs. Drake is a mountain woman herself. She knows the desires, the needs and the hopes of the women and children who live in her hills; in a double sense she is working among her own people.

No serious-minded killjoy is Mrs. Drake, but a large motherly woman

It is a common statement among traveling salesmen that they live in a Pullman; Mollie Drake might say she lives in a day coach. Her headquarters are in Logan, and much of her time is spent in riding to and from the little mining towns along the branch lines out of Logan.

Her trips are taken to visit the homes of miners, and no place is too remote for her to visit. Her energy in tramping about and the speed with which she walks over the hills is enough to make a younger woman gasp for breath and all but beg for quarter. That from one who knows.

We started out of Logan one morning on the 10 o'clock train.

Before the train started we were part of the social gathering which greets the all-too-few passenger trains that come into Logan. Mollie Dingess knew everybody.

Arrived at the mining center, our first visit was to the schoolhouse, a substantial two-story building, in front of which were all the latest playground devices for amusing the modern child. The teachers were young and efficient in their schoolroom manners. In Logan county the schools have the advantage of extra good teachers because after the school board has voted what it can afford for salaries the coal company

It was then I learned of Mrs. Drake's unusual high school career.

"You know I have a high school education," she remarked as we left the school and strode (at least Mrs. Drake strode) along the dirt road.

"As a girl I went to school till I was thirteen. In the teens I took up nursing and later was married. But I always wanted more education. Sometimes it is the persons who are denied education appreciate it most. Well, when my daughter was ready for high school I decided that I would get my high school education too—not by following her studies at home (I knew that wouldn't do), but by enrolling in high school with her.

"Some of my friends thought it was an absurd idea. They said I could enroll in colleges for special courses or take correspondence courses. But the idea of my going to school right along with my daughter and the other young people seemed queer to them. I supose it was unusual. But what I wanted was a regular education. So I enrolled and went through the four years of high school and was graduated in the same class with my daughter."

"And how did your daughter feel about it?"

"Oh, she had her young friends behind the glasses. "It may be that she studied harder than she would have." I had no doubt of that.

"She is in college now," continued Mrs. Drake. "When her grades aren't as high as I think they ought to be she sends them to her father, but a man can't keep such things secret, and I always find out. She knows I haven't much patience with students who don't keep up their grades.

"My daughter is going to be a physician. She didn't make up her mind until after she entered college. I was rather anxious to know what she would choose. After she started studying biology she was so interested that she decided to go on and study medicine."

It occurred to me that Mollie Drake was a feminist. I wondered if she had ever been a suffrage worker.

"No," she answered. "I've always been a Democrat, though. My husband says I am what is called 'a mean Democrat.'"

She paused and then laughed. "I made one rule when I was married. You see, Mr. Drake is a Republican. Well, I told him that if I married him he must keep just one rule. I knew our marriage would be a success if he did. And of course I promised to keep it too. The rule was that we should never talk politics. We never have and we've been very happy.

"Of course I voted at the last election, and much good it did so far as the Presidency was concerned. But someway I didn't care so much for the voting. I'm old-fashioned in many ways. I was brought up a strict way and I don't like to hear about folks playing cards on Sunday. I suppose it isn't wicked, but I can't get over my bringing-up. And I never take a needle in my hand on a Sunday, only when I just have to mend something, that I don't feel kind of guilty."

Our conversation had been interspersed with visits to various miners' homes, mostly where there were babies. Mrs. Drake's philosophy had been punctuated by advice on babies and friendly comment upon the little interests of the women we visited. If we weren't inspecting a baby we were talking with some elderly woman over a fence about her latest "misery."

As we climbed into the train I was tired, but Mrs. Drake seemed as energetic as when the day began.

"I like the work," she said, "but I want to study more. Last summer I took a course in New York, and I'd like to go back there for a season at the Henry Street Settlement. I want to study languages, too. There are so many things I want to do."

Some day I have not a doubt she will do these things she wants to do. In the meantime I think of her

An old lady attended a lecture on physiology. At the close of his address the lecturer invited questions from his audience.

The old lady rose.

"I should be very much obliged," she said, "if the lecturer would tell me whether the part of the brain that he called the 'cerebellum' is inside the head or outside."

You better let me write you a policy for $5,000."

"I guess not."

"Life is very uncertain. You knew Brown, didn't you? I wrote a $5,000 policy for him only six weeks before he was killed in an explosion."

"Well, that argument cuts no figure with me. Brown always was a good deal luckier than I am."

News Notes of the Oil Fields

WHITTIER

The Bandini Petroleum is making the most persistent effort ever made by any oil company to shut off water. Drilled to 4050 feet the Bandini well has shown sufficiently good to warrant a well with the water shut off. At 3662 the well was recemented again last week.

Drilling at 3945 the Southern California Oil Company's Sanderson No. 1 is showing brown sticky shale and considerable gas. The outlook for a well is improving.

Drilling stopped on Whitley No. 6 at 3495 feet. A sand running from 3350 to bottom will be tested out for production. Whitley No. 5 is redrilling, the intention being to deepen the well from 2550 on.

Drilling at 4900 feet the Standard Oil Company's Garden Grove well is not showing any evidences worth mentioning of becoming a commercial producer. There seems to be plenty of brown shale, but it carries no oil.

Drilling on the La Habra Midway continues to make good progress. The hole is now 1965 feet deep and shows hard brown shale with streaks of gravel.

SANTA FE SPRINGS

The production limit of the Union's Bell well continues to remain an unknown quantity. Late last week the flow nipple was moved up another eighth, making it now three-quarters. The production jumped to 4000 and the gas pressure to 625. Drilling on Bell No. 3 is now at 1500 feet. Bell Nos. 2 and 6 are rigging up and No. 6 is building the rig. Flood No. 1 shows 1000 feet. Alexander No. 1 shows 1200 and Sanchez No. 1 is drilling at 2200. The rig is up for Harwell No. 1 and rigging up work at Howard No. 1 is about completed.

The Amalgamated is making fast time on Butterworth No. 2. The hole is now close to 2000 feet deep. 15 1-2 was set at 665. Drilling on the Delugge shows 1200 feet and 15 1-2 set at 809.

The Central Oil Company completed these rigging up work on its tank farm well and is ready to start drilling.

The Pullerton Oil Company spudded in at Bermuda No. 1 late last week, set 500 feet of 15 1-2 and is now drilling at 1000 feet.

The General Petroleum is getting underway with five wells at once at Santa Fe Springs. Springs No. 1 is moving in and rigging up the rotary. Santa Fe No. 1 is rigging up. No. 2 has the lumber on the ground. No. 3 is rigging up and No. 4 is putting the rig lumber on the ground.

Drilling on the Nevada-Ventura No. 1 is now at 2060 feet. The formation continues to run in sticky shale, no showings yet.

Drilling on the Petroleum Midway's Bell Community No. 1 started in last week. 570 feet of 15 1-2 was set and drilling resumed.

The showings reported last week on the Scientific's well were of little importance. Drilling at 1850 and 1875 the blue shale carried some colors and gas enough to form bubbles. Drilling is now at 1930, the sticky shale continuing.

At Golay No. 1 the Shell Company has installed a 27 1-2 shafe drive rotary, the largest and heaviest type rotary ever built. Golay No. 1 spudded in last Saturday and is now drilling at 600 feet. The big rotary is the product of the Union Tool Company and its work will be watched with interest.

Machris Brothers cleaned out the deep Wishire well ande are now making a series of water tests to determine if possible the points of entrance. The well will be cemented up to the 6inch and further tests made.

At Brownrigg-Kellar No. 1 the Standard has 3200 feet of hole and will set a water string soon. Drilling on the eight wells is running at top speed as the depths will show. L. A. T. & S. No. 1 is 2500, Hippler is 1630, Pacific Clay pipe is2700, Sanchez is 2200 and Wolfskill 2200.

MONTEBELLO

Drilling at 3000 feet the Arcadia Oil Company's wildcat is showing some oil, the best showing the well has made. Drilling continues under more favorable circumstances now.

The Columbia Oil Producing Company started drilling on Adobe No. 5. Adobe No. 4 is at 3165. Scott-Arnold is drilling at 3200 feet.

The Comache Oil Company's Manly No. 1 is drilling now at 2975 in oil sand and looks very good.

The Keeler Oil Company's No. 2 completed a couple of weeks ago at 3865 has settled to 275 a barrel well and produces 24 gravity oil cutting 30 per cent.

The Pan-American recovered from a bad fishing job and is now drilling at 3410. The Potter also recovered from the same kind of a job at No. 2 and is now drilling at 3965.

The Petroleum Midway's Prugh No. 9, completed recently at 3552, is making around 400 barrels. Germain No. 11 is getting underway again and is drilling on rather redrilling at 3625. The bottom of the hole is 3713. Baldwin No. 11 is milling on iron at 3940 and 7-A is drilling at 3200.

For a big well making as much gas and water as the Eggleston the production is holding up remarkably. Late production figures puts the net oil at 900 and the gas production at twelve million feet. The St. Helen has Monterey No. 4 drilling by 8 1-4 at 2650. Monterey No. 7 drilling in sandy shale at 2675. P. & B. No. 1 is reaming and cleaning out at 3745, the bottom of the hole being at 3660.

Drilling on the Howard-Smith the Standard shows 2800 feet of hole. The digging thus far has been in hard formation and a little slow. Baldwin No. 59 shows 3200 and No. 60 is rigging up the rotary.

At 3300 the Western Pacific is drilling in the oil sand. The sand carries some oil and the outlook for a well is quite encouraging now.

The Union Oil Company has five wells drilling on the La Merced. No. 9 in the oil sand at 3065, is going ahead with the rotary. No. 17 shows 2620 and redrilling at 2520. No. 21 is drilling in hard sand at 3100. No. 21 is at 3065 and cemented at 2978, and No. 23 is drilling at 245 in brown sandy shale. Nos. 10 and 13, recent completions are pumping 75 barrels each.

PUENTE HILLS

The Puente Oil Syndicate, the latest concern to be attracted by the Puente Hills development, has a rig up and will start drilling soon.

The Bardeen Oil Company continues the fight against the water. The next move now underway is to shoot off the 6 inch, put it back and recement.

The International Petroleum Company has been idle now for about six months and resmues operations. The International's well was drilled to 740 feet. The work is waiting on ten inch pipe.

The Chino Corona United is trying to get two strings, the 6and 8 inch casings, out in order to deepen the well. The strings are coming together and making some trouble.

Mahala No. 3 spudded in with cable tools last week and now shows 500 feet of 17-inch hole. No. 1, the producer, makes about 35 daily. The Mahala is not discouraged over the outing. The fact that oil was found on the property has given the Mahala all the boost it needs. No. 2 is expected to be a big producer.

The Pomona Oil Company's wild cat test well is now drilling at 2400 in brown, sandy shale, the formation carrying some gas and oil colors.

Little progress seems to have been made on the Pasadena-Puente. The last report on the well has it cleaning out at 1340.

Mechancial trouble in the St. Helen's Petroleum Garnier at 2280 makes it expedient to move the rig and start a new hole. About 400 feet of worn out casing has been pulled out of the hole. The showings at 2200, where the water string was intended to be set, were very good and the outlook for a well was encouraging to say the least. The St. Helens will go ahead with a new well and develop the property.

NEWPORT

Drilling on the Laguna Oil Association's test well is now at 2300 feet in sand. The six inch is being carried for a suitable place to make another attempt to shut off water.

The H. T. & K. Syndicate found that it did not have a water job at 2446 and recemented the 8inch. The bottom of the hole is 2150.

Drilling on the Nu Santa Oil Company's No. 1 is close to 2700 feet. The prevailing formation for the past 100 feet has been blue shale.

Development on the Wuchener-Gray several properties to date is as follows: No. 1 is drilling at 3050 in brown shale. The ten inch was set at W. A. G. Petroleum and is ready to drill out and test water. W. G. R. Petroleum Company No. 1 is at 900 feet in clay and shale.

The Interstate Oil Company at Mesa No. 1 is perforating the 3inch from 3000 to 3385 and will make a water test. No oil is expected in this well. The idea is to find out if it is possible to shut off the water. This well has been cemented and recemented a number of times.

At 3400 feet the Long Beach Consolidated struck what looks like an oil bearing sand. The well is being bailed down and the sand will be tried out for possible production. The showing at 3400 is the best that the Long Beach Consolidated has had and it has caused some little excitement.

HAWTHORNE

Little if any progress marked the work at Hawthorne during the past week. The Kitselman Company, the only concern left in the field, has work underway on two wells. No. 2 (Bohon) down 1365 feet is redrilling at 975. Hicks (No. 3) the deep well, continues standing recemented. Plug, D61 Rey No. 1 is making new hole in hard sand at 1835. Lausinger No. 2, the well that Kitselman figured on making a commercial gas well out of, shows considerable water and is now standing idle.

REDONDO

Investigation into the condition of the Chansler-Canfield test well at Redondo reveals the fact that the ten inch has gone bad at 2100, and probably has collapsed. It will be necessary now to pull the 8 inch and cement again below the ten. The work of mudding off, pulling the pipe, putting it back in, and recementing, will delay the drilling of new hole three or four weeks. At 3100 feet last week this well made all the showings necessary for an oil well to make and there is every reason to believe that the Chansler-Canfield will open up a new and big field for Southern California at Redondo. Dominguez No. 1 is now drilling at 2300 in blue shale.

The Union Oil Company got a nice showing of oil in Francis No. 1 at 2200 feet, pulled back to 3175 and set the 8 1-4. The Union's Sommers well at Gardena continues to stand idle at 4553.

The San Pedro Point Fermin Oil Company continues to make good progress drilling on its ocean front well. Drilling is now at 750 in the blue shale. A quantity o fsulphur water struck at 675 feet is being tested out for radio activity. A radio water well would be more valuable than an oil well.

A fishing job has held up the Los Angeles Harbor Development Company's well at 780 feet for several days. So far the formation of this well and the Point Fermin well are checking out pretty closely.

LOS ANGELES

Drilling on Beatty's Eagle Rock wild cat is now at 2685. At this depth the drill is in the sand and Beatty claims that the well is now showing more encouragement than ever before.

Drilling on the Eddystone Oil Company's Burkhart No. 1 is now drilling at 4265 and the formation shows a nice brown shale. This brown shale has been encountered for some time and is Malle with [illegible]

A nation-wide scheme for the sale of articles made by sick and wounded soldiers through their own stores has been proposed to the American Legion Auxiliary by Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Boston, Mass., wife of the commander of the twenty-sixth division, A. E. F. The plan will be discussed at a meeting of Auxiliary executives in Indianapolis January 18, 19 and 20.

In the plan, the handiwork of the disabled would be sold in principal towns and cities in stores established and operated along lines of women's exchanges. Women dependents of the disabled also would there dispose of their home products. The plan would make the disabled self-supporting and not pauperized by charity, its backers declare.

American Education Week will be observed annually, with programs similar to those of December 4-10, according to the Americanism commission of the American Legion. The commission, with the National Educational Association, directed the initial movement.

Roused over the report of relatives that a soldier's body had been so jammed into a cheap casket that it was with difficulty removed for proper burial, the American Legion of New Jersey is making a thorough investigation of such practices.

A hero yesterday—broke and jobless today—Sergeant Carl Naef, who made a sensational but unsuccessful attempt to capture Grover Berzdoll, draft evader, in Germany, has been taken in charge by the American Legion of New York. His only assets upon returning from Germany consisted of a police dog.

A resolution unanimously endorsing Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, has been adopted by the Des Moines, Iowa, Trades and Labor Assembly. "He has always been fair to the purposes that organized labor stands for, and we convey our hearty congratulations to the Legion for securing him as commander," the resolution reads.

More than 3,000 veterans of the World War now suffering from tuberculosis are without proper care or hospitalization in the state of New York, according to William F. Deegan, commander of the New York department of the American Legion, who has just completed a survey through Legion posts of the state.

The first American Legion building financed exclusively through the sale of municipal bonds is that now under construction at South Pasadena, Calif. The building, which is to be of the bungalow type, will stand in American Legion park, a public park of South Pasadena.

There is not one jobless ex-service man in Louisville, the American Legion Employment Bureau of that state having found work for every veteran seeking employment.

Maple Leaf Post of the American Legion at Seattle, Wash., composed of "British Tommies," has officially adopted Hanford MacNider, national commander of the Legion, into the circle of "one fine chaps." Mr. MacNider recently visited the post headquarters and shook hands with 300 members.

United States army tanks of the type that waddled over the Hindenburg line and ex-soldiers who fought on the line have combined in Duluth, Minn., to furnish Christmas trees for children of the city. The American Legion is supplying jobless ex-service men to do the cutting. Tanks and trucks haul them to a central location where the Legion is selling them, the proceeds going toward a merry Christmas for the unemployed and their dependents.

Employment projects ranging from land reclamation schemes to the working of a gold mine in Missouri have been submitted to the American Legion's national unemployment council, Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati, Ohio, has been appointed chairman of the council, which will meet early in January at the Legion's national headquarters, Indianapolis, to draft remedial measures for the winter.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 24.—"Let us make this Christmas day a starting point in our personal service to those broken and sick of our comrades for whom the war will never end," Hanford MacNider, national commander, says in his Christmas message to the membership of the American Legion and through it, to the people.

In compliance with instructions sent the organization's 11,000 posts by national headquarters here several weeks ago, the holiday is being generally observed, reports from the states indicate.

"Jobs would be the most acceptable presents you could give to our unemployed," Mr. MacNider continues, and each Legion man is pledged to surrender his holiday liberty and pleasure to find at least temporary work for an unemployed ex-soldier.

The Legion Auxiliary, born at Kansas City in November of the mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of the service men, this year is assisting the young veterans by carrying the attentions of home family Christmas into the hospitals and unhappy homes.

Visits will be made to the homes of sick and wounded men and their families. Special committees will take care of men still in hospitals. Entertainment and presents will be provided.

In connection with these visits, the Legion men and women will obtain information on cases of neglect and follow up with claims to government bureaus. Location of every possible unfortunate ex-service man has been effected through post meetings, the Red Cross, medical organizations and city and county officials. In some instances, house to house canvassing has been done by the members.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 24.—Who was the last American soldier killed in action?

The American Legion, endeavoring to learn the identity of the last to fall, is receiving many claims at its national headquarters here. The French government will erect a monument to the last man killed.

The case of a sergeant of the 79th Division who tried to capture the last German machine gun of the war has been offered to Legion headquarters by Major Albert T. Rich of the regular army.

It was north of Verdun on the morning of November 11, 1918, that the incident cited by Major Rich occurred. A first sergeant of an infantry company, aspiring to take the last Boche gun, left his lines at 10:55 o'clock, just five minutes before the war ended.

The sergeant was killed perhaps a minute before the armistice, immediately in front of the gun he was trying to capture. At 11 o'clock sharp the German officer in charge of the gun directed four of his men to pick up the dough boy and carry him to the American lines.

Col. William H. Curry was in command of the regiment to which the sergeant belonged, Major Rich reported, and General W. J. Nicholson commanded the division. Col. Curry is now stationed with the 14th Infantry in the Canal Zone and Gen. Nicholson is in Washington. The identity of the sergeant and the company to which he belonged were not learned by Major Rich.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, then Back hurts and Bladder bothers you.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait in for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is musy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

"BIRD OF PARADISE" OPENS THIS WEEK AT MASON OPERA HOUSE

For a season to go by without the Mason Opera House offering its athletic Richard Walton Tully's perennial favorite, "The Bird of Paradise," would be like failing to celebrate some national civic event. The Bird of Paradise" with its fascinating appeal returns to the Mason Opera House as the Christmas week attraction, commencing Monday matinee, December 26.

The Tully drama has earned its place with such wonderful stage successes as "Ben Hur," "In Old Kentucky" and "Way Down East," which are synonms for all that is appealing and entertaining in the theater.

This mystic play of the South Pacific preserves in dramatic form the vanishing customs, beliefs and legends of a race. Against a background of unique beauty is lived a powerful story of two men and two women. The story is vested with singular charm, depth and truth in mode of living of the many native characters. The exotic settings, the native dancing and the religious ceremonies introduced, add an element of picturesqueness.

To those who toil, who know the grimness of rigorous cold, the stunning brilliance of life, that nature, and soil, and social complications offer in the lands of civilization, the picture of the mid-Pacific islands with its tropical sunshine, its color and warmth will always attract.

One of the compelling charms of the play is the ever present weirdly eerie music that steals out of the silence and forces its appeal to deeper emotionalism, giving peace to troubled souls and a sweeter breath to the island love.

Interest in the engagement this years centers in Ann Reader, the new Kitty "Gray" who plays the role of Luana, the island princess. A very capable company of new players surround Miss Reader, which includes Herbert Charles, Frederick Forrester, Ellen Mather, Jess Watson, Frank L. Cooley, James K. Appelbee, Reba Carlon, Douglas Congrove and the Hunting Hawaiians, whose native songs and dances enhance the exotic atmosphere of the performance.

CAR OWNERS PLACE CONFIDENCE IN OLD FIRMS, SAYS DEALER

During the war, many factories and businesses were organized that were given a foothold by the lack of supplies for our military and our inflated industrial needs. These companies are sure to feel the changing conditions severely and doubtless endeavor to sustain their position on the basis of a price competition. But this means price without regard to quality.

"Many motorists especially," says Mr. Bevillard of the Anaheim Ignition Depot, who handles Willard batteries here, "find themselves in a quandry now as to the proper course to pursue when buying automobile equipment. They are tempted by the "cheap" argument but still have confidence in the old established factories who have developed reputations for quality products. This is the case with Willard batteries, prices of which have always been kept at the very best possible level consistent with a quality articles that has a reputation to maintain."

"The price reduction announced for December 20 is due," says Mr. Bevillard, "solely to the lowered costs of materials and operating expenses of the Willard factory, where every possible feature for economical production and elimination of waste is utilized. No one could be expected to produce better products than the older companies like the Willard Company are doing."

American Chief For Reichsbank Proposed

PARIS, Dec. 27.—An American superintendent for the Reichsbank was one of the propositions discused by Premiers Briand and Lloyd George at their conference in London early in the week, according to the Temps. With the idea of giving the institution an autonomous regime, the paper adds, Germany would be given at the same time a fixed date to put necessary fiscal reforms into effect.

'Pussyfoot' Back in U. S. To Train for New Drive

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—William H. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, who has been touring England, Europe and India in an effort to make the world a drier place to live in, came back to America Friday on the Adriatic from Paris. "Pussyfoot" is going home to Iowa for a much needed rest. Then, he says, he is going to New Zealand, which, he hears, is very wet. Describing his tour of India, he said: "I was greeted like a prince everywhere I went."

Morse Will Allow U. S. Jury Access to Books

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Charles W. Morse, New York shipbuilder under fire for his wartime activities, Friday agreed to turn over the books of all his shipping concerns for examination by the federal grand jury probing his operations. Morse also agreed to waive immunity rights, which he had previously demanded. This action was taken when Morse's attorneys asked the District of Columbia court for permission to withdraw a petition filed yesterday in which the shipbuilder asked an injunction against use of his books in the investigation.

Arbuckle Trial May Be Delayed Until Jan. 16

MILLING ASSOCIATION SENDS OUT USEFUL CALENDAR

A recent publication contains the following sentence: "The farmer must receive a reward commensurate with his efforts and responsibility." No one will deny the truth of this statement. The problem is to find out just what reward the farmer or producer is receiving for his work. The United States department of agriculture has for years been endeavoring to help the producer keep such records as will show what it costs him to produce. Various state agricultural colleges are uniting with the department of agriculture in this work. This is especially true in our own state. This is a most worthy undertaking and should receive the hearty support and co-operation of all producers.

The Poultrymen's Co-Operative Milling Association of 1516 Industrial street, Los Angeles, is distributing to poultry raisers a very attractive and useful calendar which has been designed to remedy a defect in so many of the poultrymen's bookkeeping systems. It provides a simple daily record which gives enough information to enable the producer to keep track of his business and enable him to prepare reports showing whether his business is profitable or otherwise. Each monthly record is on a separate sheet and at the close of the month is filed away for safe keeping by a very ingenious device so that at the end of the year the whole yearly record is safely preserved. For being so simple, this whole plan is the most complete of its kind we have ever seen and should be very useful and helpful to the poultrymen.

As long as the present supply lasts your local feed dealer who handles P. C. A. products will furnish these record calendars without charge to those owning a flock of hens.

Smuggling Of Diamonds Into U. S. Is Increasing

OASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The smuggling of diamonds and other precious stones into the United States by passengers on incoming liners and also across the border is being carried on extensively, R. G. Monroe, a diamond importer of New York City, testified Friday before the senate finance Committee at hearings on the permanent tariff bill. He urged that Congress reduce the duty on diamonds so as to lessen the incentive for evasion of the law.

HERALD EDITORIALS

DEVOTION TO REPORTERS

The loyalty of its staff is the great strength of a newspaper. The devotion of reporters to their calling in general, and to the journal for which they work, is known wherever papers are printed. It is accepted as a matter of course.

The correspondent who goes to the battlefront, or as near as the military will permit, or who explores a far land, or interviews the great folk of the world, is only the reporter operating in an enlarged field.

When in the war with Spain the first expedition was sent to Cuba, the first person to step from the boat that headed the landing force was a newspaper man.

When Dewey sailed into Manila bay, standing on the bridge with him were not officers of high rank, but a newspaper man. And quick as word could be flashed across the ocean the world knew not only that Manila had fallen, but was reading a detailed account, vivid, picturesque and true.

Reporters do not stop for danger. They defy any hardship the conquering of which means a story for the paper they represent. In the triumph over difficulties, and the satisfaction of knowing they have won a victory, usually they think they have reward enough.

AFTER THE STORM

Just as the rain was falling an editorial was printed bidding it welcome, praising its benignity and usefulness. Returns had not all come in at that time.

The rain did measureless good. The hills beginning to gleam with a coat of verdure attest that. But it was rude in its methods. It battered exposed points ferociously. It struck the mountains in a burst of water that gathered impetus as it sped for lower levels. It flooded a considerable area, washed out bridges, turned cabins upside down and deposited rubbish over a wide area. It chased people out into the wind and wet, perhaps up a tree. It interfered with traffic and communcation. It spoiled prospective Christmas shopping tours. It changed the material world for the once into a dreary, dripping, splashing ball of mud. Greased the pavements until pedestrians and automobiles alike yielded to the impulse to skid. So much for the debit side.

But the sun was certain to shine again, touching an earth refreshed. Broad acres were awakened to response to the husbandman. Sustenance for fruit and flower and grain had sunk deep into the soil.

When the books are balanced the storm will be found to have richly paid for itself. It was more boisterous than the average mortal would have deemed necessary.

There is an old saying "We can't have everything to please us."

PERJURY AND JUSTICE

The average criminal trial is a scandal. It is made so by the free use of perjury. Perjury really is a detestable crime. For the most part it goes unheeded and unpunished. That it shall be an element in every criminal trial is accepted as a matter of course.

No reflection is to be made as to a criminal trial now in progress. The typical trial, from which a guilty man, known to be guilty, is permitted to walk forth crowned with a spurious halo, is the one in mind; no single trial but the essence of trials without number.

A criminal trial is likely to have nothing to do with the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. These are considerations that do not enter into the mind of the defense. The object is to defeat justice, not to uphold the law, and not to assure a fair trial. Indeed, in many instances, a fair trial would be fatal. It is the last thing to be desired.

Consider the advantage a conscieneless lawyer has in the fact that the complete story of the prosecution is before him. Following the methods of his kind, he has merely to procure the essential "witnesses" drill them in the false testimony they are to purvey, and then there is nothing for the jury to do but to guess what witness is telling the truth, and what witness is a liar. This may not always be a simple task.

Nobody would deny that there are lawyers in plenty who would scorn these tricks. Nobody accustomed to observe, could deny that there are lawyers in abundance who win cases, and win a certain reputation, wholly by resort to exactly this style of trickery.

Germany has bought a lot of English ships to be junked and made into the implements and appurtenances of peace. This seems to knock the theory that Germany has no money besides the bales of printed stuff that lacks purchasing power.

Between Ourselves

By Della M. Stewart

We're coming very close to the time of fresh beginnings. For some reason the first of the year seems to most of us a time when we can take stock of ourselves and our lives, check up the debit and credit and begin over. It's a time for research, for remembrance, for honesty.

For without the last research and remembrance are useless. Impressions on heart or mind count for very little if we do not take them into real life, transmute them into definite action. Putting aside the claim of truth does not eliminate it. Sooner or later it will come to the front again, to convict or condemn if evil. It is unescapable.

Just suppose that in this new year that is so near at hand all our business men should face the exact truth concerning their relations to employees and the whole economic situation. Just suppose that every employee should determine that through its months there should be absolute acceptance to the business for which they work. Just suppose that we all should make up our minds that truth, not sophistries, should rule our conduct, that we shall really be, instead of merely seeming to be.

How different this year would be from this one nearing its end! How the policies of our statesmen would change! How the family relationships of some of us would alter! How differently we would talk, reason, argue! How much of peace on earth, good-will to men might actually be brought about!

But it's utterly foolish and Utopian to even suggest such a procedure. Possibly. But just think about it for a minute.

With a halfchill scornful smile he watched Percy Carringle, the munition millionaire's son, timidly pass through the portals of the club. It amused him to see the unbecomingly with which this nouveau riche looked around him. His father, for more years that he could remember, had frequented the club, and he had to follow in his father's footsteps!

He stood hesitating; should he go to the Vanderbilt's or to the Rits first? Suddenly he remembered. He had to go to the Vanderbilt's; he didn't have enough milk in his wagon for the Rits.

Religious factions in American Legion posts have been severely condemned by Hanford MacNider, Iowa, national commander of the organization. Speaking at Portland, Ore., Mr. MacNider declared that religion "is between a man and his God," and that the person who would bring religious differences into Legion activities "is not worthy of membership." "This country was founded because of religious intolerance and the Legion head said. "The Protestant, Catholic or Jew who endeavors to force religious issues should be effectively squelched."

WHAT FARMER BROWN'S BOY DID TO GRANNY

POOR old Granny Fox! She had thought that she had been in tight places before, but never, never had she been in such a tight place as this. There stood Farmer Brown's boy looking along the barrel of his dreadful gun straight at her, and only such a very, very little distance away! It wasn't one of the least bit of use to run. That dreadful gun would go "Bang!" and that would be the end of Granny Fox, and she knew it. For a few seconds she stood staring at Farmer Brown's boy, too frightened to move or even think. Then she began to wonder why that dreadful gun didn't go off. She was sure that it would at the first step she took. And yet she didn't dare stand there.

How could Farmer Brown's boy do such a dreadful thing? Somehow his freckled face didn't look so cruel. It was even beginning to grin. That must be because he had caught her napping and knew that she couldn't get away from him this time as she had so many times before. "Oh!" sobbed Granny under her breath. And right then, at that very minute, Farmer Brown's boy did something. Yes, sir, he did something to Old Granny Fox. What do you think it was? No, he didn't shoot her. He didn't fire his dreadful gun. What do you think he did do? Why, he tossed a handful of snow at Granny Fox and shouted "Boo!" That's what he did, and all he did except to laugh as Granny gave a great leap and then made those black legs of her fly as never before.

"Go it, Granny! Go it!" he shouted.

Every instant she expected to hear that dreadful gun as she had heard it many times before when it was fired at some one else, and it seemed as if her heart would burst with fright as she ran. But the gun didn't bang, and after a little, when she felt quite sure that she was safe, she turned to look over her shoulder. Farmer Brown's boy was standing right where she had last seen him and was laughing harder than ever. Yes, sir, he was laughing, and, though Granny Fox didn't think so, his laugh was good to hear, for it was good-natured and merry and all that an honest laugh should be.

"Go it, Granny! Go it!" he shouted. "And the next time you are tempted to steal my chickens just remember that I caught you napping and let you off when I might have shot you as easily as could be. Just remember that, Granny Fox, and leave my chickens alone."

Now, it happened that Tommy Tit the Chickadee had seen all that happened, and he fairly bubbled over with joy. "Dee, dee, dee, chickadee!" he cried as he said it. "Farmer Brown's boy is'nt bad at all. He'd be friends with every one if every one would let him!" he cried.

"Maybe, maybe," grumbled Sammy Jay, who also had seen all that had happened, "but he's altogether too smart for me to trust. Oh, my! Oh, my! What news this will be to tell! Old Granny Fox will never hear the end of it. If ever she boasts again of how smart she is all we will have to do is to remind her of the time when Farmer Brown's boy caught her napping. Ho, ho, ho! I must hurry home and find my cousin, Blacky the Crow, and tell him." And, still chuckling, he hurried away.

As for Old Granny Fox, she feared Farmer Brown's boy more than ever—not because of what he had done to her, but because of what he had not done. You see, nothing would have made her believe that he would like to be her friend. She thought he had let her get away just to show her that he was smarter than she and could get her when he pleased, and instead of thankfulness in her heart hate and fear filled it. You know—

People who themselves do ill
For others seldom have good-will.

REDDY FOX HEARS ABOUT GRANNY FOX

SAMMY JAY hurried through the Green Forest chuckling as he flew. Sammy was brimming over with the news he had to tell, how old Granny Fox had been caught napping by Farmer Brown's boy. Sammy wouldn't have believed it if any one had told him, but he had seen it himself, and it tickled him almost to pieces to think that Granny Fox, whom everybody thought so sly and clever and smart, had been caught actually asleep by the one whom she was most afraid of, but at whom she always had turned up her nose. Presently Sammy spied Reddy Fox trotting the Lone Little Path. Reddy was forever boasting of how smart Granny Fox was. He had boasted of it so much that everybody was sick of hearing him. Sammy chuckled harder than ever when he saw Reddy. He hid in a thick hemlock tree and as Reddy passed Sammy shouted:

If I'd such a stupid old granny
As some folks who think they are smart
I never would boast of my granny,
But would live by myself quite apart.

Reddy looked up angrily. He couldn't see Sammy Jay, but he knew Sammy's voice. Of course it was foolish, very foolish of him to be angry, and still more foolish of him to show his anger. If he had stopped a minute to think he would have known that Sammy was saying such a mean, provoking thing just to make him angry, and that the angrier he grew the better pleased Sammy Jay would be. But like a great many people he let his temper get the better of his common sense.

"Who says Granny Fox is stupid?" he snarled.

"I do," replied Sammy promptly. "I say she is stupid."

"She's smarter than anybody else in the Green Forest or on the Green Meadows. She's smarter than anybody else in the whole world!" boasted Reddy, and he really meant it. You see, he had quite forgotten how Old Man Coyote had several times proved himself smarter than Granny Fox.

"She isn't smart enough to fool Farmer Brown's boy," said Sammy.

"What's that? Has anything happened to Granny Fox?" Reddy forgot his anger in a sudden great fear.

"Who says Granny Fox is stupid?" he snarled.

Could she have been shot by Farmer Brown's boy?

"Nothing much, only Farmer Brown's boy caught her napping," replied Sammy, and chuckled so that Reddy heard him.

"I don't believe it!" snapped Reddy. I don't believe it! Nobody ever caught Granny napping and nobody ever will."

"I don't care whether you believe it or not; it's so, for I saw him," retorted Sammy.

"You—you—you——"

"Go ask Tommy Tit the Chickadee if it isn't true. He saw him, too," interrupted Sammy.

"Dee, dee, dee chickadee! It's so, and Farmer Brown's boy let her run away without shooting at her," said a new voice. It was Tommy Tit himself.

Reddy didn't know what to thing or what to say. He just couldn't believe it, and yet he had never known Tommy Tit to tell an untruth. Then Tommy Tit and Sammy Jay told him all about what they had seen and Reddy had to believe it in spite of himself. He started off to hunt up Granny and ask her about it. Then a sudden thought popped into his head and he changed his mind.

"I won't say a thing about it until some time when Granny scolds me for being careless and then I'll see what she has to say. I guess she won't scold so much after this." Reddy grinned, which wasn't a bit nice of him. Instead of being sorry that Granny Fox had had such a fright he was already planning how he would get even when she scolded him for his own carelessness.

Next Story—Reddy Fox is impudent.

OBSERVATIONS

—By—
CHARLES KUCHEL

—It would indeed be a difficult matter to find a more inviting field for the legitimate investment of money than right here in Anaheim. Some of the more enthusiastic admirers of this city's resources will buttonhole you and say that one may choose either point of the compass and go as far as you like in Southern California, and fail to find a section with more ideal environment than Anaheim.

The city itself, offering splendid opportunities for the homeseeker, is made doubly attractive by having thriving suburbs that are tributary to its continual upbuilding. This insures stability, and while the business men here are all of the progressive class, the phenomenal growth of commercial enterprises dfring the past few years will, in the near future, be eclipsed by such tremendous strides that, in truth, will surprise the most conservative observers. This will come about in great part by the myriads of eastern investors who come to Southern California in ever increasing numbers.

The census bureau's reports are good criterions to back up these assertions, and while data from this course assure us that this famed southland has made wonderful gains in population during the past decade, the most obtuse plebian must admit that in time to come these figures of gain will be increased many fold. Anaheim is branching out as never before and the very air is permeated with optimism, which augurs well for the confidence people have for the city's future.

Real estate perhaps is the best asset a man can possess at this time and those who have savings to invest need have no fear of taking any risks by putting their money into property investment here, where the scenic beauty of the landscape is so admirably enhanced by the prolific Valencia orange groves. This city has come to stay and to grow—but mainly to grow.

—A proud young father was wheeling a baby carriage upstreet the other afternoon, in which was seated a fine looking son and heir, the very image of its daddy. Rolling his own.

—During the past week when the heavy downpour of rain sent a large volume of water on its wasteful way to the ocean, again demonstrates the fact that steps should be taken to impound these flood waters. Wise men of today are giving water conservation serious thought. There is an ample field within this county for observation relative to saving this lifegiving fluid. The mill will never grind with the water that has passed.

—Shrewd men with an eye for the future feel confident that Palm street within five years, perhaps less, will be the main artery of traffic entering this city. Being on a direct line with the state highway to the north, this thoroughfare offers inviting advantages as a busy boulevard. Now you hear men say it will be widened to eighty feet and paved in order to help the city solve the congestion problem. Once the street is connected up with the King's Highway, at the bend in the road, just north of town, it will draw ninety per cent of the incoming traffic. This, in turn, will cause property to the southwest, within this city, to further enhance in value, owing to the resultant divergence of this traffic eastward and southward into the heart of the city. Where people congregate most there is business and business means the almighty dollar, and that is what nowadays people are after. Of course, the whole city is going along in high, but this latest street achievement in civic betterment is attracting the eye of those who are alert. Happy New Year Greeting.

—The other night at a council meeting when bids were being received for paving a street, a young man, who was after the job, filed his proposal, but he was seven minutes late in handing so. Another bidder noticed this and, rising to address the board of councilmen, said he was no stickler, but thought the young man's bid should not be considered. Of course, according to inexorable law, the bid that was seven minutes late was cast aside. That was an unpardonable thing to do by the slow bidder—to be seven minutes late! To some it looks like greed upon the part of the other bidder to object to receiving this tardy bid. But that was law, and it was so ordained. And then, the bid of the man, who had observed the slight irregularity in the late bidder not getting under the wire in time, was also rejected, because it was too high, another man having under bid him. And so the world moves.

The man who thinks that he is always right does more harm than the one who is willing to admit that he is sometimes in the wrong.
