ISSUES OF THE GAZETTE.
[From REMARKS, Boston, N. A., 1, 1869.]
The Island of the South, they say,
Are peaceful and happy by night and day,
Far away to the southern west.
They need not the sun in that land of delight,
They need not the pale star;
The sun is bright by day and night,
When the souls of the blessed are.
They fill not the ground, they plough not the wave,
They labor not—never! oh, never!
Not a tear do they shed, not a sigh do they heave—
They are happy forever and ever.
Soft is the breeze, like the evening one
When the sun has gone to his rest,
And the sky is pure and the clouds there are none,
In the islands of the West.

A FEMALE SOLDIER.—An East Prussian paper gives some particulars of the female soldier whose passage through Berlin was recently noticed. Her name is Bertha Weiss. She was born at Schenbourg, and educated at a respectable establishment at Ragnitz. She soon, however, evinced a singular preference for military attire, and acted as civilian servant to a captain of the 69th Regiment at Treves, with whose family she had occasion to make long journeys to the south. Her good conduct induced her master to provide for her further education, so that she was competent to pass the ensign's examination. Shortly before the war, provided with a recommendation from the captain, and without being subjected to a strict surgical examination, she entered his regiment, took part in the battle of Spicheren. Transferred to the Crown Prince's regiment, she succeeded in the battle of Gravelotte, first alone and afterwards supported by two of our men, in recovering the flag of the 16th Infantry regiment, which had been seized by the French. She received in this exploit four bullet wounds, one of which in the knee disabled her from walking. She received from Prince Frederick Charles for her bravery the second class of the Iron Cross, as well as an autograph certificate conferred in the most flattering terms. She is therein styled Bernard von Weiss, and is granted a furlough. The lady is 24 years of age, and has prepossessing features.

"Coal Oil Johnny"
THE USE AND POWER OF A PETROLEUM PRINCE.

A correspondent of the Commercial, writing from Oil City, Penn., gives the following interesting account of the career and present whereabouts of Steele, known throughout the country a few years since as "Coal Oil Johnny":

Some four miles from the city, directly on the line of the Oil Creek and Alleghany River Railway, lies a tract once celebrated as the "Widow McClintock Farm." There is now nothing to distinguish it particularly from other sections in the immediate vicinity, all being played out alike, but these are the barren acres formerly brought into prominence by J. W. Steele. Here, for some years, ignorant of the boundless wealth beneath their feet, the McClintocks, in common with the other natives of that little more than half civilized region, plodded along day after day, their sole care being the prospects of the buckwheat and bean crops, as the failure of either was almost certain to breed famine. No children came to cheer the solitude and eat the flap-jacks of the worthy matron, probably a wise dispensation of providence, as the products of the farm were not extensive enough to fill many mouths with any degree of certainty. At last, however, as old age came creeping in their direction, thoughts regarding the disposal of their valuable property began to trouble them, and the conclusion was at last reached to adopt some healthy boy and make him sole heir.

But a short distance from McClintock's lived a man by the name of Steele and as the barrenness of the land had not extended to his wife, he found himself the father of a numerous progeny, and was often sorely puzzled about plans for keeping the wolf from the door. To him due application was made, and with out hesitation he gave them the pick of the flock, remarking that he had ten or twelve more to dispose of in the same terms. So the most promising one, "Johnny" was selected, and thereafter, he was trained up in the way he ought always to have gone.

In the fullness of time came the discovery of Petroleum, and the accompanying army of seekers after the greasy fluid. One irruption after another swept across the McClintock farm, literally tramping out the expected harvest, and at the age of three-score-and-two the old man saw starvation staring him in the face. Besides this he was continually pestered by offers for the purchase of the old homestead, until finally his ancient body succumbed and he was gathered to his fathers. For a long time the old lady refused to have any thing to do with the outside barbarians, but at last, in sheer despair, she leased a portion of the farm, every part of which afterward proved wonderfully productive. Being forever ruined for agricultural purposes, the venerable widow now employed some household assistant, and spent her days in cording up bonds and greenbacks in her cellar, though she was afterwards induced to purchase a safe, as being more secure. In this pleasant pastime she might have passed the remaining period of her useful life had she not attempted to make the fire burn one morning by pouring on it a bucketful of crude oil. In an incredibly short space of time she was in a country where petroleum is supposed to be unknown; and from that date began the career of her heir, very soon known far and wide as "Coal Oil Johnny."

After the mortal remains of the old lady had cooled and been properly interred, Steele, who, up to this time had been busily engaged in hauling oil, took $750,000 from the safe, and with three or four fellow teamsters, started out on a cruise into that outside world of which they had heard strange rumors. These companions were soon seized by a number of parasites, who clung to the young man as long as he had a penny left. Prominent among these was one Seth Slocum, who installed himself as "financial agent," and afterwards inseparable, the two then plunged into the wild sea of speculation. Spending the greater portion of their time in Philadelphia and New York, one may hear there yet the stories of their extravagance and wild orgies. Doubles many of these tales are exaggerated, but enough is known to mark Slocum down as the most consummate fool of the present generation. The chief aim of the latter's life appeared to be to literally throw away his fortune as rapidly as possible, and he succeeded so well that he squandered nearly two million dollars in less than a year. His method of doing this was very peculiar, and perhaps original. Gifts of $5,000 and $10,000 were matters of every day occurrence, while to vary the monotony he would sail out into the street, purchase the finest baroness, and span he could find, take a short ride, and give the turnout to the driver.

Another favorite freak was to lease the hotels where he might be stopping and allow none of the guests to pay bills during his administration, while his losses at faro were heavy and continuous. John Marriessy's bank having won $30,000 in one night. But what perhaps, gave him as much notoriety as anything else, was the organization of a troupe of negro minstrels—Skiff & Gaylord's—we believe, the sole condition being that portraits of himself as "financial agent" should adorn the posters and programmes. He gave each member of the company a diamond ring and pin, a gold watch and chain, together with a complete wardrobe, and they started on their way rejoicing. He purchased an interest in a large hotel at Meadville for $45,000, and getting a little hard up one day, sold it back for $10,000, while other property in and around the same place was bought and sold in about the same proportion. But through the medium of these and other devices, success crowned his efforts, and the bottom of the old safe was reached at last. The McClintock farm was sold to satisfy a little hotel bill of $32,000, incurred at the Girard House, Philadelphia, while enough other mortgages were placed on record to cover the old place a foot deep.

Steele, "Coal Oil Johnny" no more, now disappeared for a season from the scene of his triumphs, but some time afterward came to the surface in the position of doorkeeper for the minstrel troupe of which he was the founder. We next hear of him as endeavoring to keep a seven-by-nine tavern in Franklin; but he was not so successful as in his previous efforts to play Boniface. In the present instance he was willing to take pay from his patrons. At last, however, "Johnny" has found his level again, and he may now be seen daily in the neighborhood of his old home guiding a pair of ancient horses attached to a dilapidated wagon. Sitting perched above his half dozen barrels of oil he is a picture of greasy contentment. He obtains for hauling fifty cents per barrel, cash, and looks as though he had nothing more to look for. Must not the man be happy who can so gracefully adapt himself to circumstances? To some who read this sketch, to learn that Slocum, who was responsible more than all others for Steele's course, died in jail at Erie, a year or two since, where he had been for some months incarcerated, being unable to obtain $100 bail.

California Wine.

The following letter of Messrs Kohler & Frohling, San Francisco, to their New York agents, Messrs. Bennett, Prosch & Co., 26 and 28 Vesey St., will be read with interest:

"In accordance with our former notice, we send you herewith the promised report of the wine crop, but must mention beforehand, that it is impossible to furnish details, and therefore only can report in a general way, to the best of our knowledge, after having consulted several of the most important vintners, and gathered as much information as possible from different sections of our Golden State.

"We can with safety state, that the wine crop of 1870, in the State of California, will amount to about 8,000,000 gallons of wine, and about 150,000 gallons of brandy, of which about one third was produced in the southern counties, and the remainder in the central and northern portions of the state. The product of this year is an excellent one in every respect; it is considerably lighter and a trifle sweeter than that of '69, has a fine bouquet, clears rapidly, and will in a short time be saleable.

"We can confidently assert that this year's crop is larger and better than ever, and considering the present state of the market, is in every respect satisfactory.

"In Anaheim, for instance, the average yield per vine was 30 pounds, whereas a yield of from 12 to 15 pounds has always been considered satisfactory.

"We saw several vines at this place which bore from 70 to 80 pounds of grapes, of which every berry was complete, ripe and sweet.

"At Los Angeles, the yield was larger than usual, although not as excessively large as at Anaheim. Sonoma and Napa have also had a very abundant crop, and it may therefore be expected, that in the course of 12 or 18 months the Atlantic state will be flooded with our excellent wines of 1870. In spite of the above extraordinary results, the tendency of prices seems to be an upward instead of a downward one, as there has been lately a great demand for wines from the western states. Old wines are becoming very scarce, and by the time that the wines of 1870 are ready for shipment, the old stock will probably be exhausted."

Yours truly,
KOHLER & FROHLING.

Do you never think how much work a little child does in a day? How, from sunrise to sunset, the dear little feet patter round—to us—so aimlessly. Climbing up here, kneeling down there, running to another place, but never still. Twisting and doubling, as if testing every bone and muscle for their future uses. It is very curious to watch it. One who does so may well understand the deep breathing of the rosy little sleeper, as, with one arm tossed over its curly head, it prepares for the next day's gymnastics. A busy creature is a little child.

A Texas man celebrated an unusually violent drunk, last week, by chasing his wife up an apple tree, throwing his children out of the windows, and drowning himself in the well.

Nurse—"I can not allow butter and jam, too, on your bread, Master Alfred. It is very extravagant." Master Alfred—"It can't be extravagant, Mary, if the same piece of bread does for both."

A SENSITIVE YOUNG LADY.—A young lady, sensitive about the treatment of animals, a few days since, saw a calf roughly seized by the extremities to be lifted into a wagon, whereupon she, blazing with excitement, exclaimed: "Look! see that wretch! He has got that calf by the ears and tail! I wish I had him the same way; I'd let him know how good his was!"

A German clothing dealer in Belfast, Maine, recently sold a man a pair of boots. A few days afterwards the man returned with them, and said that he went out, into the baryard to work, where 'twas a little wet, and the soles came off. "Miss Got, miss friends, you didn't ought to talk round in dem. Deyish cavalry boots, made to ride mit!"

SCIENTIFIC ORIGINALS.

[Under this head, we propose to publish, each week, the philosophic reasonings of one of our citizens, whose name and plume will be "Beta."]

Dreams.

I ate a small quantity of switzer cheese upon retiring, last night, and was afterwards exceedingly troubled with strange and fanciful dreams. Hence the cause of dreams has agitated my thoughts all the morning. My first reasonings attributed bad dreams altogether to cheese; but, upon reflection, I trace the various affections of the mind in sleep to several causes, among which are the following:

The circulation of the blood, and indigestion, particularly of cheese, create unhappy sensations.

The senses of hearing, feeling and smelling, are not entirely dormant, as are taste and sight. Therefore sound, touch and aroma, may affect the mind.

The mind, during the day, is accustomed to be occupied with a variety of subjects, and wanders from one to another almost without volition. So it may be in dreams, from very force of habit, the wandering process continues.

The thoughts occupying the mind during the day—whether they be anticipations of the future, remembrances of the past, or with the important present—were liable to occur again to the mind in our dreams.

The atmosphere, if sultry and hot, makes the dreams fearful; but if mild, particularly after a fine shower, slumber is sweet, and the most happy dreams troop through the brain, and both mind and body, upon waking, realize the delights of a refreshing sleep.

The Planet Venus.

It is argued by many, that because the planet Venus is so near the Sun, it must necessarily be uninhabitable. But I conclude differently, for these reasons: The orbit of the Earth is a circle further from the Sun, than that of Venus, and while the temperate and torrid zones upon the Earth are inhabitable, the poles from their unfavorable positions to the Sun, are not so. Now, if this Earth was moved nearer the Sun, say placed in the very orbit of Venus, its poles would thaw out, and the climate at them become temperate, genial and inhabitable. Then would our tropics from their excessive heat become as great a barrier to man's occupation as the frozen poles now are. It is therefore, probable that Venus at its poles is inhabitable and teeming with animal and vegetable life; while at its equator, the heat is so intense as to form a perpetual barrier between the two communities, and one that is as great and unapproachable as are the frozen poles of this earth.

It appears that in all the planets, there is but a portion only allotted to animal existence, while the remainder is a blank and dreary desert. Beta.

ANAHEIM GAZETTE. SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1871. MEETING OF FARMERS.

Organization of a Protective Committee—Hearings Against Don Abel Stearns, and His Stock Range, Respondents—One Hundred and Thirty Farmers Pledged to Stand by Each Other, and Protect Their Crops at All Hazards.

On Wednesday last, a large number of the farmers of Anaheim Township collected at the Planters' Hotel, in this city, to arrange some plan of united action against the stock-range curse, with which they have been so long afflicted.

The meeting was organized by the calling of Mr. J. B. Stone to preside, and Mr. M. W. Kerns, Secretary. A committee on resolutions was appointed, after which the meeting adjourned until Thursday evening, at the office of Justice Davis.

On Thursday evening, about one hundred and fifty outside men—nearly all of whom have grain growing, with out fences, and within sight of Stearns' untied and unwatched wild horses—gathered at the place designated, and with a determination that admits of but one interpretation, passed and signed the following preamble and resolutions:

WHEREAS, We, the citizens of Anaheim precinct (or township), have bought our lands in good faith from the Los Angeles and San Bernardino Land Company, under contracts from said Company requiring all residents upon said lands to keep up their stock, and not allow the same to run at large; and WHEREAS, We regard the act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to Protect Agriculture and Prevent the Trespass of Animals upon Private Property," approved March 20th, 1869, and the amendment thereto, approved March 20th, 1870, of vital importance to the citizens of this precinct (or township); and

WHEREAS, Abel Stearns, one of the members of said Land Company, has utterly disregarded the obligations and duties imposed upon him as a member of said Land Company, by allowing his horses to run over our farms and destroy our crops, thereby robbing us of the fruits of our labor, therefore be it

Resolved, That if the above mentioned trespass law cannot be sustained and made applicable to this section of the country, for which it was intended, we must and will protect ourselves.

Resolved, That Don Abel Stearns and all others be and they are hereby notified to remove all horses from this vicinity, within ten days from the date hereof, or a committee of one hundred able-bodied men will be appointed to dispose of the same. To this end we pledge our lives, our property and our sacred honor.

Resolved, that the foregoing resolutions meet the approbation and has the approval of all the citizens of Anaheim Township.

Adopted unanimously, and signed by 180 citizens.

Anaheim, January 12, 1871.

THE RAIN.—We have had a rain during the week, which commenced on Tuesday and continued all day. The clouds appeared to pass over in streaks, and many of the heavier ones kept to the right or left of Anaheim. Mr. W. R. Olden, three miles outside the city, measured one-fourth of an inch of rain.

BUSY WEEK.—Trade has been unusually active, in our city during the past week. The streets have been filled with the wagons of farmers, many of them coming from Los Nietos and that vicinity, to purchase here. We hope that our merchants will sell at such rates, as will continue to induce trade in this direction.

THE NEW STORE.—The new general merchandise store of M. Calisher, Esq., on the corner of Center and Los Angeles streets (the principal corner in town), was, during the week, filled in with goods and completely occupied. The building has been compactly and quickly built by Mr. Eckels, one of the best mechanics in the city; and the neat and attractive interior fixtures and arrangements of the store, are likewise due to his skill and thorough workmanship. Mr. Calisher is already beginning to feel the invigorating effect of the increased trade, resulting from his new location; and as all his purchasers are treated with due respect and attention, and furnished with goods at low cash prices; so it is the wish of all that his new enterprise be rewarded with the utmost measure of success.

U. S. EXCHANGE.—Our readers who live at a distance, and have occasion to visit Anaheim, and who would like a good square meal at a fair price, will find that what will satisfy the top, bottom and sides of a hungry man's chest, at the U. S. Exchange. The place has been fitted up with a view to meet the wants of the people, and every attention and courtesy will be paid to those who call.

Session of Jan. 9, 1870.

At the meeting of the Council on the day of the above date, there were present John Fisher, President; and councilmen Zays, Chapman and Krosner. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Reports were received from Mayor, Marshal, Finance Committee and City Treasurer. The latter showed a balance on hand of $184.

Bill of Knox & Bumble for surveying Walnut street, was allowed and ordered paid.

Bill of O. B. Peck & Co., for building jail, net amount $355, was received and referred to the Finance Committee.

The Judiciary committee were granted fourteen days in which to report dog and horse ordinances.

The Mayor and City Clerk were authorized to procure a suitable desk, in which to place books and papers of the Council, and Mayor's Court.

On motion, an ordinance was passed fixing the hour of meeting at 3 o'clock, p. m., and that the Council meet only on the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

On motion, the meeting adjourned.

WAYLAIN.—As Mr. Bigger was driving from Anaheim to Los Angeles, lately, he was overtaken near Los Nietos by three men, one on foot and the others mounted. The footman insistently insisted on riding with him; and when Mr. Bigger attempted to drive faster, in order to avoid him, the two mounted caught the bridle reins of his horse and pulled him back.

The footman then drew his revolver, at the mere sight of which the whole troop of rascals took to flight. It is well for our citizens to carry, when on the lonely road to Los Angeles, such "patent persuaders" as will insure the safety of their lives.

GRAND BANQUET.—On Tuesday last Messrs Hubbard & Hunter, of the U. S. Exchange, opened their new House by a sumptuous public dinner; and one which was availed of by at least a hundred of our best citizens. The well arranged table fairly groaned under the weight of the well-seasoned turkey, game, and poultry, prepared in the highest style of the cuisine art. Nobody went away hungry from that feast, even to the last batch (that was us) at the third table.

LOS NIETOS VIGILANTES.—The following notice has been issued by the sterling citizens of Los Nietos; and they mean it, "and more to":

NOTICE is hereby given to all parties owning stock running loose on the Santa Gertrudes Rancho, that, inasmuch as we have found the law insufficient to prevent trespassing, we the V. C. of Los Nietos, shall take effectual means to rid ourselves of the Mustang nuisance. By order of Executive Committee. SECRETARY NO. 1

UPPER SANTA ANA DITCH.—The survey of the Santa Ana Ditch, commenced about one mile above the Peralta House and running to the Santiago Creek, is now completed, the distance being about ten miles. The construction of the ditch, under the supervision of Mr. Bailly, is progressing rapidly. The idea entertained by C. B. Chapman, Esq., of running a tunnel through the hills, and thus saving a distance of about one mile, has been abandoned, owing to the expense, and the survey has been made to run over the low hills near the Burriel House. From the commencement of the survey, to a point about seven miles below, the ditch has a fall of nineteen inches to the mile. The width on the bottom being eight feet. From there on to the Santiago Creek, the fall is increased to 39 inches, and the width on the bottom decreased six feet, the depth being in both cases, two feet below the water line of ditch when full. Thus, on the upper part of the ditch, the sectional area is sixteen square feet; so that, taking the velocity at one foot per second, the flow of water would be 260 gallons per second, or 936,000 gallons per hour.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1871.
A Night on a Roof—A Practical Joke Revealed.

A MAN named Hotchkiss, over in San Bernardino, the other night thought he would have some fun scaring his wife, by dropping a loose brick down the chimney into the fire-place in her room. So he crept softly out of bed, and with nothing on but his shirt, sneaked up stairs and got out on the roof. Mr. Hotchkiss dropped nineteen bricks down the chimney, each one with a vigorous slam; but his wife never screamed a solitary note.

So then Mr. Hotchkiss gave it up and thought he would go down stairs; but he found that Mrs. Hotchkiss had her head out of the trap-door watching him all the time, and when he had finished she had shut the trap and fastened it on the inside. It may be as well to state that Mr. Hotchkiss spent the rest of the night sitting on the sharp peak of the roof with his trailing garments of the night fluttering in the evening breeze, singing "I'm lonely to-night." Mrs. Hotchkiss intimated to her confidential friends that she thought she had him.

At one of our neighbors' houses was a very bright little girl. It chanced once that they had as a guest a minister, an esteemed friend. Little Anna watched him closely, and finally sat down beside him, and began to draw on her slate. "What are you drawing Anna?" asked the clergyman. "I'm makin' your picture," answered the child. So the gentleman sat very still, and she worked away for a while, then she stopped, compared her work with the original, and shook her little head. "I don't like it much," she said. "Tain't a great deal like you. I drew I'll put a tail to it, and call it a dog." Fancy his feelings! What a likeness it must have been.

Fortune has advanced no one so high, as not to threaten him with the same treatment with which she had permitted him to treat others.

He thinks very wrong who regards only himself, and makes self-interest the ground of his conduct; he will end as he began: he professes to serve his friend even in bonds, but as soon as he hears the clinking of the chain, deserts him. After friendship is contracted, all trust is due.

The best ale for nutrition has the least alcohol. Lager is only half the strength of ale. The English consumption of ale is one barrel per annum for all ages of the whole population; in Bavaria, 132 litres per annum per caput. Weiss beer is as innocuous as water. King Louis, of Bavaria, takes four litres of lager at a sitting. Cider, moderately used, promotes longevity. The adulterating of wines and spirits is immense. Port is scarcely procurable for gold, but New York annually sells twice the whole product and London twice that amount.

"Tommy, my son, what are you doing there with you feet dangling in the water?" "Trying to catch cold, ma, so that I may have some more of those cough lozengers you gave me yesterday."

TO PHYSICIANS.
Dr. F. H. HELMBOLD,
August 12th, 1869.

Allow me to call your attention to my Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu. The compound parts are Buchu, Long Leaf, Canada Juniper Berries.

Made of Preparation—Buchu in vapor, Juniper Berries by distillation, to form a fine gl. Canada extracted by Maceration with spirit obtained from Juniper Berries; very little sugar is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu as prepared by Druggists is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits the fragrance; the action of a Buchu decoction is (the active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous deposit. Mine is the color of the ingredients; the most delicate quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as many in Pharmacy, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exist. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hope that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation. With a feeling of profound confidence, I am, very respectfully,
H. T. HELMBOLD,
Chemist and Druggist of 19 years' Experience.

(From the largest Manufacturing Chemist in the World.)
November 4, 1864.

I am acquainted with Mr. H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favorably impressed with his character and enterprise.

WILLIAM WRIGHTMAN,
Firm of Powers and Wrightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S
FLUID EXTRACT
Buchu

For weakness arising from indigestion. The exhausted powers of nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found indigestion, retention of mucus, weakness, nervousness, or morbid feelings of the system, in fact, universal weakness, prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyment of society.

Once affected with organic weakness, requires the aid of medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or insanity ensues.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract of BUCHU
In affections peculiar to females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in chlorosis, or retention of menses, or suppression of customary evacuations, ulcerated or scirrhus state of the Uterus, and all complaints incidental to the sex, or the death or change of life.

Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu
AND Improved Rose Wash
will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Coprae and Mercury, in all these diseases.

USE
Helmbold's Fluid Extract Buchu
In all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odor, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of bark or iron.

Those suffering from broken down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once. The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a diuretic. Helmbold's Extract Buchu is the great diuretic.

Sold by Druggists everywhere. Price 50¢ per bottle, or six bottles for $2.50. Delivered to any address. Describe the symptoms in all communications.
