us, indeed, of the same kind, calamity nearly two thousand years ago. Sensible people will, of course, laugh at an idea of connection between the appearance in the heavens of a phenomenon of this kind and the murder of a great ruler. But it is one of those coincidences worth nothing, as showing an extraordinary relation between the different periods of the world's history. It would be an interesting subject for psychologists to study the extent to which the imitative faculty of the human mind is able to be affected by abnormal influences. Numerous examples might be given of men impelled by an undecided power to imitate the acts of

There may be some connection between the attempt in Washington to assassinate the president and that historical event twenty centuries ago. Much of the superstitious reasoning of all ages may be disposed of by one such theory. But the question has still a scientific side, and the half-eremetic visions of evil that greeted the sudden discovery of the comet now visible in the northern sky have received a very unexpected and terrible realization. Whether or not there be anything in the popular dread of these rare visitors, it remains recorded in the history of the United States that the same warning that in all ages has foretold national disaster of a huge or less serious

THE TOPIC OF THE HOUR.

From among the great mass of telegrams which have come over the wires during the week we have culled all the essential particulars regarding the dastardly attempt upon the life of President Garfield. There are many people who, having read all the essential facts necessary to a full understanding of the atrocious crime, have neither the courage nor desire to read all the irrelevant, immaterial details with which the columns of the daily papers are now filled. The patriotic people of this great Nation regard the President very much as do the Indians; and if they do not, like the red men, habitually designate him as the Great Father, they at least regard him somewhat in the light of their personal friend—a friend dear enough to give them no pleasure in reading superfluous details about the act which brought him nearly to death's door, and entailed upon him great physical and mental suffering. Believing thus, we print only the essential facts upon the first page of today's paper.

At the present writing, there is every reason to believe that the President will recover from his wounds. Possessed of a naturally robust physique, having lived a temperate and calm life, being full of courage and fortitude and being cared for by the most eminent physicians in the country, he has every chance in his favor; and wounds under which an ordinary man would have succumbed will be triumphed over.

Aside from the consolation which the prospect of his ultimate recovery gives to the people, there is another aspect of the affair which is hardly less gratifying to those who have of late feared that any great number of the people of the United States were inimical to our form of Government, and whose blind, unreasoning partisanship would lead them to applaud even murder, if by that infamous means an obstacle to their political ascendancy would be removed. Against the utterances of a few isolated individuals, whose depraved moral nature or debased political passions impelled them to applaud the murderous act of the assassin Guiteau, we place the voice of the whole South, which through the medium of the authorities and by mass meetings held in all the principal cities, have sent words of love and sympathy to their President, and denounced with an indignation and fervor which could not be simulated, the attempt upon his life. From Virginia, Missouri, the Carolinas, Arkansas, Tennessee, Georgia—from every Southern State has come words which vouch for the manliness and patriotism of the people.

And it could scarcely be otherwise. Which among the nineteen Presidents who have presided over the destinies of this Nation since it first shook off the shackles of thralldom, have comforted themselves with more dignity, more wisdom, than President Garfield? During the campaign which ended in his election he met the storm of vituperative, malignant slander with which his character was assailed, not stoically and with indifference, but with a dignity and proud consciousness of his rectitude that gained for him the admiration of thousands. And no act of his since the 4th day of last March has at all dimmed his reputation as a statesman and a gentleman, while the support he has given to the members of his Cabinet who have undertaken the formidable task of ferreting out the gigantic robberies which have for years been going on in the different Government departments, attests his desire to punish the guilty and carry on the Government machine with something like the old-time honesty and purity.

In nearly all the cities where preparations had been made to celebrate Independence Day, the order of exercises was toned down out of sympathy for the President. The parades were generally dispensed with, and the people contented themselves with listening to the literary exercises, the orators in every instance alluding to the topic of the hour. It has been suggested, however, that when the President recovers there should be a National celebration as a sort of postponed Fourth of July, to give an expression of popular rejoicing.

The Secretary of State has issued the following:

WASHINGTON, July 4—11 P. M.—To the Press: On behalf of the President and Mrs. Garfield, I desire to make public acknowledgment of the very numerous messages of condolence and affection which have been received since Saturday morning. From almost every State in the Union, from the South as bountifully as from the North, and from countries beyond the seas, have come messages of anxious inquiry and tender words of sympathy, in such numbers that it has been found impossible to answer them in detail. I therefore ask the newspapers to express for the President and Mrs. Garfield the deep gratitude which they feel for the devotion of their fellow-countrymen and friends abroad in this hour of affliction.

JAMES G. BLAINE,
Secretary of State.

MAYOR KALLOCH of San Francisco has dropped politics in favor of preaching. His congregation asked him to do so, and in his "prelude" on last Sunday evening he told why he consented to comply with their request. He said that his administration had "been signaled by honesty, capacity, economy and a just regard to the welfare of all classes." The best evidence that he was not seeking political life was the fact of his withdrawal at a time when there was "every possibility of being successful." His "faithful friends, the workingmen," would have nominated him beyond question, and unquestionably the Democrats would have confirmed that choice, and the people would have ratified it; though, at the same time, there was nothing truer than the old adage that it was hard to tell who was Governor until after the election. He did not withdraw from any fear of being beaten. He declined because there was nothing but politics in the pending election. It was "nothing but a scramble for spoils." There was "no moral issue before the people."

The Chinese question was quiet; and would remain so until Congress gave relief. The assault on monopolies—long slumbering, but inevitable—was deferred until State and Congressional candidates were in the field. His position on the water question, as he explained a year ago, and would take occasion to do again, was of such a conservative character as to remove him from the position of a partisan on either side. There was nothing left for him to run for but the place and the pay. He would not pay to do it. He felt that to allow himself to enter into such a campaign would, in the language of his deacons, give support to a charge that he preferred the business of a politician to that of a preacher and pastor. He preferred preaching. His hands were clean. The imputations on his integrity were villainous falsehoods. It was not true that he went East to dodge the water question. He had been charged with receiving money for his position on that question. The charge was as false as infamous. He had made nothing out of his office. He had many things to say to the Workingmen—not Ward Presidents, Clubs or Conventions, but the rank and file, to whom he owed favors, and on whom he felt at liberty to call whenever there were issues at stake affecting their welfare. He should embrace an early opportunity to say what he wanted. He should advise with their friends directly at the proper time, and should not hesitate to give them his idea of what was best for their cause in the coming campaign. He was one of them. There would be no politics in the Temple in the future.

Wanted to Shoot Blaine.

WASHINGTON, July 5th.—A man was arrested this morning on Pennsylvania avenue who said he had come to Washington to kill Blaine. He was armed with a revolver. His actions were those of a crazy man. When taken to the police station he was unable to give his name.

A later dispatch says: The man who threatened to shoot Blaine is Dull McNamara, 40 years of age and perfectly insane. He said some time ago a set of mediums formed a plot to shoot Grant, and he was selected to do the shooting; but they abandoned it, as Grant promised to stand by them in a scheme which they had formed. Elliott pronounced him insane and harmless. He was sent to the asylum. He had no pistol.

SAN DIEGO, July 3.—W. H. Broad, of the firm of Broad and Barker, contractors on the California Southern Railroad, was drowned this afternoon while bathing in the bay. Mr. Broad and a friend were swimming together, seemingly enjoying themselves heartily. Broad appeared to be an expert swimmer, and his friend came back and was drowning, when some of the bystanders asked, "Where is your friend?" He replied: "Oh, he came in before I did." It appeared, however, that he had not come back, and after searching in the vicinity for about two hours, it became evident that he must have gone down. The tide was setting at the time. Search was continued for the body. Mr. Broad came here from Berkeley, where he had been engaged in building the irrigating ditches.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, July 5.—A laborer on the railroad was killed by a locomotive for having that Garfield would die.

SILKWORMS.

To all who love to wear silk; to all the girls old and young; mothers, wives, fathers, brothers, sons; to all that admire the silken gloss of a satin necktie, the shimmer of a beautiful silk ribbon, or the rich lusters of a broadened dress, I call your attention to the vast possibilities of increasing our exchequer and employing our inefficient help profitably by engaging in the cultivation of the Mulberry tree, and raising raw silk. Once let it become an established fact and we can support large manufactures and save all the money that now goes to foreign countries for our shining luxuries. The California Silk Culture Association is doing a good work in trying to introduce the home culture of silk. Let us second their efforts and prepare for the great industry. Let us follow the example of France, where "it is in fact a part of the education of young ladies. Schools, convents and academies receive small quantities of silkworm eggs, and instruct their pupils in all the details of the production of raw silk." It is a refreshing change from the classroom. All appropriate work is honorable. Let us encourage the youth of this State to elevate their condition by engaging in so profitable an employment. Raw silk reeled from the cocoons commands from $4 to $8 per pound, according to quality. It is estimated by actual personal operations under favorable circumstances that 2 acres of Mulberry trees will feed worms enough to yield $1,176 worth of silk; deduct expenses total $160 would leave a profit of $1,016—all accomplished in less than two months time. In the first place you can procure the eggs of silkworms or seed, as they call it, then send to Mrs. T. H. Hittell, Corresponding Sec., 808 Turk St., S. F., for her very valuable "Instruction" and by following the directions you will be able to be successful. I have tested it in a very small way, and have great pleasure in telling them and watching their development. It is said if a mother has a helpless child she will care for and think more of that child than all the rest of the world; and we feed and care for them from day to day we learn to look upon a crawling worm as precious, not for what it appears, but for the profit and beauty that it can give us. Some will say: "Oh, it's been tried and proved a failure." So has wheat crops, chickens, ranches, orange orchards, and even, in the production of wine hundreds and thousands of dollars were wasted in the business before it became a success. The proof is abundant that California can produce the finest silk. This in fact has already been done on a small scale. The superiority of the climate and soil of the State for the production of the Mulberry and the development of the silkworm are attested by many witnesses and proved by actual results. Success can be achieved and I believe it will be soon by everyone that owns a home set out a few thrifty cuttings about 24 inches long, laying them almost horizontally in the soil, so that the end designed to root shall not be more than six inches under ground. In our dry climate they will be more sure to grow should you obtain the Morris Alba, Morley Elata, Roseleaf Mulberry, that gives one pound of cocoons for 15 lbs of leaves, and the finest silk; Morley Elata are all good varieties. By stirring the soil and keeping out weeds, you can have them 10 feet high in one year. The period of feeding only lasts from 32 to 34 days. I can give you an idea of home silk culture by quoting from Mrs. Rhine in her description of Turkey: "Mulberry trees are chiefly cultivated by farmers, who do not raise the worms. During the feeding season the leaves are daily collected, transported and sold. At the proper time almost every family clears out all the rooms in the house, except the one in which they live. They hatch the worms, purchasing the leaves for feeding them, and produce that most wonderful fabric, the silk of Europe. Every country town in California may yet raise silk in that way, or better still all raise their own leaves and step about with basket on arm to gather them by the side of street or path and by so doing add to the blood of the cheek, the elasticity of the step, the vigor of life, and enrich ourselves and the United States of America. Ladies, let us think on this subject, and prepare our homes to receive this wonderful article of export and prosperity and help to make us truly patriots."

MRS. KATE PARKER.

SHREWSBURY CANYON.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—As your paper is generally read by the citizens in the mountains and canyons of this region, I thought I would venture to inflict upon your readers a short communication embracing what I have seen and heard since I have been rusticating with my family in this wild, beautiful and picturesque region.

Mr. A. Guy Smith and family from your town are encamped about one mile below, at the junction of this canyon with the Santiago, in a neat, airy, whitewashed cottage of their own, and doubtless enjoying the quiet of their mountain home and the relaxation from business and care which this isolation affords them. Save we, there are no others herabouts from the plains as yet. In these sylvan retreats naught but quiet reigns, and the stillness of nature is unbroken except by the murmur of the mountain brook and the song of birds mingled with the chirrup of the squirrels and the rustling of the leaves as they gambol over them.

Since my sojourn here I have been at pains to derive what information I could from the bee men in reference to the prospect for honey crop. There will be none extracted this season owing to the extreme dry weather, although all agree in saying that enough honey will be made to carry their bees safely through until another year. This is discouraging to those who rely upon this industry for support, and compels them to turn their attention to other means.

Further up this canyon, where three years ago the mine's pick was heard, a clearing through the stillness, all now is quiet, and naught remains to mark the site of their claims save here and there an excavation in the hillside, or an old kettle and rude table and benches indicating their camping places. Such is mining and the fate of the average prospector.

I suppose yesterday's glorious 4th was celebrated by the citizens of the plain, and to show you that the patriotism of the average American is about the same as that of the may chance to be. I must tell you what I saw and heard during this national anniversary. Word came to me that over at the new mining village of Carbonado (Santa Clara coal mine) they were to have a regular celebration and picnic. So I thought, as it was not far away, I would indulge my patriotism as a looker-on and report. We arrived at Carbonado Canyon, (the place selected) at about 10 o'clock, and found congregated from the mines and canyons in the vicinity about 75 persons, male and female, all arrayed in holiday attire and prepared for a good time. The singing of the "Declaration" and the speaker's stand arranged under the shade of some large and venerable oak trees in front of the house and close to an excellent spring of pure water. I soon discovered by the countenance of the audience that a regular programme had been matured, and all things were in order.

Mr. Purcell acting as President, the exercises opened by singing "America" as a quartette. After the singing of the "Declaration" was read; then the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by a chorus of voices, after which Mr. Brainerd Smith, of "Mustang Bee Ranch," was introduced as the orator of the day. This gentleman, I was informed, was a reporter for the Brooklyn Eagle in the days that tried the souls of Mr. Beecher and the Plymouth churchites. The oration was a creditable effort, well adapted to the occasion, and it was delivered in a manner at once pleasing and entertaining. After the oration, the "Red, White and Blue" was sung as a solo with chorus. The singing throughout was good and gave interest to the occasion. After the exercises were closed the President invited all to the table to partake of a free lunch. All accepted the invitation, all were pleased, all were jolly, and the day was a success. The table was set with Mr. E. A. Conklin and other ladies did I fail to mention especially that table. It was loaded with an abundance and arranged with neatness and taste. The cooking had been done with skill and was excellent. The cake and pastries were excellent, the lemonade was rich and refreshing, and, in short, I must say that it would have been difficult for the best-consumers in the city of the plain to have excelled the table entertainment there spread. After dinner the parties separated into groups, talked, sang and played, as seemed best and proper to each. One young lady gathered together the children and amused them with kindergarten games and songs, which I am of the opinion our revolutionary fathers, could they take cognizance of the occasion, would have been well pleased with. The way to make good and patriotic citizens is to properly educate and care for the children. Altogether the day passed off pleasantly and with credit to all parties.

After all persons had left the grounds, a most tragical affair, however, occurred at the house of Mr. McCulven on the ranch, which those unacquainted with the circumstances might regard as a sequel of the day's proceedings, but which had really no connection with it. It appears that a Mr. Carroll and a Mr. Harris, who were miners, had lingered until after all had left the ground to talk over a matter connected with their labor, when suddenly and quite unexpectedly with murderous intent, but which fortunately were not fatal. McCulven's wounds, although serious, are not considered dangerous. Carroll is under arrest, and will be executed before Judge Humphreys sits at Santa Ana to-day.

NOTES FROM THE LANDING.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—We see items from correspondents in all neighboring towns, and we think that we, though unpretentious, are deserving of being represented in your always welcome paper; so we venture to send you a few notes from here.

We were quite "en fete" on the "Fourth." The stars and stripes were hoisted at day-break, and floated gallantly in the breeze. Teams and wagons, gaily decorated, containing bodies of fair women and noble men, continued to pour in from the adjacent towns until late in the day. The Westminister Good Templars dispensed refreshments which contained no headache to the thirsty crowd, whilst the Ocean View and Bavaria saloons supplied the antidote for those whose weak stomachs had a tendency to cramp. Merry luncheon parties were dotted here and there about the warehouse, whilst mine hosts Hall & Edwards, with that Prince of chefs de cuisine, Mr. Cobb, had a sumptuous repast set out in their dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Walker were also busy, and extended their usual hearty welcome to all comers. The shades of eve falling, we were left to enjoy the usual "dinner far niente," and with the satisfaction of saying, that amongst such a large gathering, no one was seen that looked "Hie! I'm as good as dead" as any man! The only gloom that overshadowed this festive day was the uncertainty we were in regarding the President.

The Rev. J. Emery, wife and family left here on Tuesday, after a two weeks visit. The arrivals here this week are as follows: Mrs. Deyton and family, Mr. Fordon and family, Mrs. Melrose and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lynell, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Preston and family, Mrs. Youn and family, Mr. and Mrs. Miles, Mr. and Miss Zeyn, Miss Ella Mitchell, N. M. Meade and family, Mr. Rowe and family, and many more are expected.

We pity those who are unavoidably detained in the hot and dusty towns at this season; and did those who are able to take a "peace" know how delightful the moonlight walks on beach and pier are, we think they would at once swell our ranks. In all our enjoyment there is but one thing wanting, viz: the band on the pier! But perhaps our gallant and genial "Fort Admiral," George Hull, will supply the deficiency in time.

Hoping we have not too far transgressed on your valuable space, we must bring this to a close, advising your readers to come down here, and enjoy a dip in the realm of

FATHER NATURE.

GARDEN GROVE ITEMS.

As the pen of Alijah seems to have run dry, it might not be amiss for some other person to keep you posted in regard to our small burg.

Two members of the "Bachelor Club" have been greatly relieved by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Hough from Mendota, Ill., who have come to spend a year with their son, and perhaps to make their home here.

Last week Mrs. Bancroft and daughter, from Napa, spent several days with Mr. Converse Howe, who is a nephew of Mrs. Bancroft.

Mrs. Stephens, from Oakland, a relative of Mr. Witham, is visiting here for some weeks. She declines our climate is far ahead of that of Oakland. Only think of it.

The "glorious Fourth" was celebrated by the people of this place, by a picnic in Witham's grove, which by the way has grown from seed, planted by Mr. Webster some four years ago. Mr. W. and his good wife had spared no trouble to make everything pleasant, and all, from oldest to youngest, had a grand good time. Readings, recitations and singing, with Miss Witham at the organ, were enjoyed by all. A reading by Mrs. Chaffee, "Patent Marx Jones" was well received, and the singing by Luella and Edith Harmon and Edie Thompson, and very small girls, elicited much applause.

Recitations by Little Apple Ware and Eddie Young, Eddie and Connie Howe were good, also, two solos by Miss Witham. Mr. Hitchcock held forth in a reading entitled, "The Old Birchbark Swift ch that hung on the Wall," which seemed to strike a responsive chord in the hearts of the gentlemen present. After a dinner, which caused those who partook to wish as one little boy did that the 4th might last all the time, visiting and swinging were the order; some of the gentlemen ran "sack races" and "three legged races" which caused much merriment. As the sun sank low, three roving cheers were given for Mr. and Mrs. Witham and the Fourth of July, and people dispersed, everyone declaring they were glad they did not have to ride miles through the heat and dust to their homes. And so the 4th of '81 is a thing of the past.

Headers are still busy, and soon the threshers will begin their work. BURN.

WESTMINSTER ITEMS.

We believe we have got the boss potato. The "Early Rose," 19 1/2 inches x 9 1/2 inches in circumference, weighing 2 1/2 lbs. It was raised by Charles Truitt. Bring on your potatoes.

The Fourth brought many of our absentees back to their old haunts, as we notice Miss Birtie Lefler, the Misses McCoy, Messrs. Bently, Casabomb and Bothwick are here.

Mr. Jas. McFadden has gone to San Francisco on a visit. Will he return alone?

Mr. J. F. Marquis lost a valuable horse last week through being stung to death by bees. Mr. Marquis has, we hear, accepted a position in the Grange Store, Los Angeles.

Mr. A. Wayman and family have returned from the Centennial Ranch. His threshers will commence work next week.

The sprit and late apple crops will be good ones, but other fruits will not be up to the average.

Mr. T. Edwards is here for 10 days from Los Angeles.

The pile of empty packing cases outside of Mr. Steinart's store is a true indication that he keeps up with the times, in laying in new and fashionable goods, for upon entering one sees his large store crowded from floor to ceiling. We doubt if there is any store in a country town carrying so large a stock.

NOTICE OF ASSESSMENT.

Cajon Irrigation Company.

Location of Principal place of Business, Anaheim, Los Angeles County, California.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT A MEETING of the Directors held on the 25th day of June, 1881, an assessment of ten dollars ($10) per share was levied upon the stock of the company, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary. Any stock upon which the assessment shall remain unpaid on the 30th day of August, 1881, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction, and unless payment is made before, will be sold on the 10th day of September, 1881, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with the costs of advertising and sale.

Governor Perkins has appointed L. W. Hellman, the Los Angeles banker, Regent of the California University, vice D. O. Mills, who has removed to New York.

The Photograph Gallery, now closed, will reopen on August 1st. Mr. Pellegrin, the photographer, guarantees to give satisfaction.

It is said that there will be a pigeon shooting match at Anaheim Landing on next Sunday, in which some of the best sportsmen in the county will participate.

The Board of Supervisors are now sitting as a Board of Equalization. On Tuesday they created the new school district of Silverado.

Walter S. Moore of Los Angeles has been appointed Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for this District in place of Mr. F. B. Fanning.

The Old German School will continue under the management of Mr. Voigt. Book-keeping by single and double entry has been added to the course of studies.

As a memento of his visit to the Hot Springs, Mr. P. Pellegrin brought back with him the skin of a rattlesnake which he killed. It was five feet in length and had ten rattles.

The promising young stallion, Longfellow, owned by Capt. A. S. Ferguson, broke his leg last week and had to be shot. The horse was of great value, and promised to exhibit wonderful speed on the race course.

At the meeting of Orpheus Lodge No. 237, I. O. F. held on Thursday evening, the following officers were installed: H. A. Benge, N. G.; D. Strodtman, V. G.; R. Menzel, R. S. and P. S.; C. Wille, Treasurer.

On and after next Monday, a stage will leave from in front of the Postoffice every morning at 8 o'clock for Anaheim Landing, returning every afternoon. Besides carrying passengers, the driver will execute any commissions entrusted to him.

Mr. J. De Barth Shorb has sold the "Oak Knoll" property of the estate of the late B. D. Wilson for $32,000, to a railroad man in San Francisco, a Mr. Smith. This is a fine property of 200 acres with 1,300 grape vines and 20,000 vines, commanding a beautiful view of the valley of San Gabriel.

The delinquent assessment roll of Anaheim School District will be forwarded to the District Attorney on Wednesday next. That official charges each delinquent $10 the moment the roll is placed in his hands, and at once brings suit to recover his costs together with the amount of the tax.

The Board of School Trustees for Anaheim district met on Tuesday and organized by electing Theo. Rimpun President and W. M. Bailey Clerk. Action in the matter of filling the vacancy in the Principalship of the school was postponed until a future meeting. The rumor that the appointment had been made had no foundation.

Mr. J. M. Guinn, who for ten years has been Principal of the Anaheim Public Schools, leaves here in two or three weeks to enter upon his duties as Superintendent of the Public Schools of Los Angeles city, he having been elected to that position on last Saturday by the City Board of Education. The office is an honorable and responsible one, and carries with it a salary largely in excess of what Mr. Guinn has been receiving here. While sorry to lose a useful and valuable member of the community like Mr. Guinn, his friends congratulate him upon his promotion to such a responsible position.

The heated term is upon us, and all who can are feeling to mountain or seashore for relief, recreation and rest. By far the most pleasant and accessible resort for dwellers in this vicinity is Anaheim Landing, twelve miles distant from Anaheim. It has for many years been a favorite summer stopping place for a few people, and it is yearly getting to be more popular. Messrs. Hull & Edwards have responded to the demand for hotel accommodations, and have fitted up a number of rooms and cottages, which they rent on reasonable terms, with or without board. Read their advertisement for further particulars.

PERSONAL.—Mr. C. Moosman has gone to the San Juan Springs to recuperate. Mrs. Bessie Lawrence returned from San Francisco last week. Mr. Theo. Reiser returned from San Francisco last week. Mr. Leonard Parker and some of the members of his family are at Laguna beach. As a reminder of the good times they are having they sent us a large fish on Thursday by Mr. F. J. J. Schmidt, who, with his wife, have also been enjoying the ocean breeze. Mrs. John Hanna returned on Wednesday from her visit to the northern part of the State. Mr. Fred Laugenberger has been driven down from his eyrie in the mountains by the heat, which he finds more oppressive there than here. Messrs. Werder & Ruman went to the Hot Springs on Wednesday. There are about one hundred and fifty campers there. Mr. W. R. Olden is recovering from the severe sickness with which he has been prostrated.

In the Banner of Holiness, published at Bloomington, Ill., we find the following two communications:

The Holiness tent meeting at Anaheim, Cal., closed on Sunday, June 26th. We had a full salvation meeting. I would sum up the present results after this manner: backsliders reclaimed; a goodly number of penitents regenerated; mostly Spanish; several souls sacrificed wholly; the saints of God quickened; the people at large heard the plain unvarnished gospel of entire deliverance from the power and being of sin. Bros. Frank and Henry Ashcraft, Butler, Allen, (of Oregon), Melton, Dias, (Spanish), and myself, were the ministers. There were good helpers, both sisters and brethren. Glory to God. Yours, saved, R. A. WASHBURN.

Westminster, Cal., June 7.
We closed, on last evening, the meeting at this place that began May 27th. From 13 to 25 professions. This meeting has been a grand victory. We found one woman and her two little daughters all that professed holiness in Anaheim. Even the best of the population—Catholics, Episcopalians and a few Presbyterians—none of all found to have salvation. Most of the rest were German infidels, who are wine makers and consumers. But God worked mightily on all classes. About fifteen Catholics professed to get saved. Hallelujah.

Anaheim, Cal.
This Ashcraft may have holiness and salvation in abundance, but he doesn't appear to have much good sense or any great regard for the truth. There are numerous professing Christians in Anaheim—good and sincere men and women of too much intelligence to go and listen to the drivel of such preachers as Ashcraft. These people did not encourage the self-styled evangelists by attending their meetings, and therefore the malignant fellow seeks to convey the impression that only three persons could be found here who had what he calls "salvation." And yet there are in Anaheim three churches—Episcopal, Presbyterian and Catholic—the first named being the finest church building in the State, outside of the large cities. Let not Christian people be deterred from coming here for fear of not finding co-workers. There are many such; but, thank the Lord, they have nothing in common with the itinerant tent preachers with which this place has recently been infested.

The Board of Town Trustees met in regular session on Wednesday.
Ordinance No. XXV—an ordinance to encourage the planting of trees on the outer edge of said sidewalks—was adopted.
The deed conveying a lot in Vineyard D 3 to the town as a site for a drinking fountain was presented to the Board, and a committee consisting of Messrs. Miles, Cowan and Fish was appointed to draft a letter conveying the thanks of the Board and the citizens generally to Mrs. Sophie Koll and Messrs. Hammel & Decker for their generous donation.

Mr. Cowan was requested to obtain all necessary information in regard to a fountain and watering trough.
The petition of N. H. Mitchell and R. J. Northam for an extension of the water main was referred to the Committee on Public Improvements with power to act.
Permission was granted to certain citizens on August Street to remove willows which impeded travel.

It was ordered that the Board of Equalization convene on the 19th, 20th and 21st instant, for the purpose of equalizing the assessment roll.
—Dr. Lyle, a dentist of Santa Ana, was drowned at Laguna beach on last Sunday. There is a mass of conflicting rumors in regard to his death, and the belief that the act was suicidal is held by many. An eye witness of the affair says that about breakfast time on the day mentioned an alarm was raised that a man was drowning. Mr. Blasdale, of Orange, rushed into the surf and seized the drowning man, being assisted by Ernest Parker, of Anaheim, who reached the spot almost simultaneously. Together they carried the unconscious man to the shore, and for two hours all the known methods of resuscitation were resorted to, but without avail. He was in the water scarcely five minutes, and when taken out he was frothing at the mouth. These facts, and others which common charity dictates should be suppressed, gave a color of probability to the suicidal theory, but it is thought that a fit might have seized him as a result of bathing immediately after eating breakfast. The deceased was a prominent member of the community and was a member of the I. O. O. F. He was buried on Monday afternoon.

On Sunday morning, George S. Spalding, Past Master of a Masonic Lodge at Point Arena, committed suicide in the Masonic Temple, San Francisco, by taking strychnine.

Nicholas Hochgertel, proprietor of the Long Branch Hotel, San Francisco, stabbed and killed his cook, Herman Becker, on Sunday night. He claims to have committed the deed in self defense.

A runaway team was stopped on the 4th near Salem, Oregon. It had William Ryan hanging to the tongue in such a manner that his head continually struck the wheels. When the horses were stopped, his skull was broken in two places, and death is almost certain.

R. B. Blowers informs us that the grasshopper pest still continues, but by unremitting efforts he has succeeded in keeping them out of his vineyard. He keeps one or two men on horseback with a sort of a grasshopper mill, by means of which the voracious insect is trapped. They seem to originate in the alfalfa fields adjoining the vineyard. Mr. Blowers expects to be able to destroy several bushels of these insects per day by the use of two of these fans. —Woodland Democrat.

A. J. F. Dias, formerly a well known merchant of San Francisco, now ice manufacturer in Tombstone, was shot Monday evening at 9:30, while sitting in his office, by a man named Carlton, also from San Francisco. The trouble grew out of Carlton's wife deserting him and now stopping with Dias at the office of the ice company in Tombstone. Mrs. Carlton and another lady were sitting with Dias in his office when Carlton, under the influence of liquor, stepped in the door without a word of warning and shot Dias through the back, the bullet running downward. His colon is supposed to be cut and death is inevitable.

A deed from Jotham Bixby, E. N. McDonald and Thomas B. Hayes to C. F. A Big Load of Wood.

The Rev. Dr. Wellington was the old Templeton minister from early in the golden century, and Col. Leonard was one of his parishioners. It was the custom to supplement the minister's moderate salary with presents from the products of the farm, and especially with wood. Now Col. Leonard, one day in January, drew out to the mill to get some of his lumber. It was a good ox-load—two cords or so. As he was going across the common with his brother, Col. Ephraim, caught sight of him from the store, and was surprised at such a great load of wood. "Hello!" he called. "Why don't you take your minister a load of wood while you're about it?"

"Now, look here," says Col. Leonard, "I've been sawing out lumber down the mill, and there's any quantity of it. I'll give the minister as big a load as you can take."

Col. Ephraim was a man for fun. He investigated the townspeople to take hold with him and accept his brother's challenge. First, they made the sled. Long trees were cut for the runners. These were made thirty-foot long and set eight feet apart. The body of the sled projected two feet over the runner on each side. Thus the sled would hold twelve regular cords at one layer. There were two tongues, one in front of each runner.

On the appointed day the men and the oxen from all over town came to the meeting place. The sled was taken to the saw-mill and backed up against the great pile. On went the sleds with a will. Col. Leonard stood by laughing, cheering, urging them along. When they had got on as much as they thought would do, they hitched up the team. One hundred and sixty oxen, four abreast, found it easy enough to pull. They had to go around through Baldwinville, because there was not room for the sled on the bridge for the sled to turn in. When they had got onto the level ground above Baldwinville, they stopped and unhitched. Then with their every-day sleds they went back to the mill to bring more sleds. They kept up till there were no more sleds. Forty cords lay piled up on that sled. And the evening and the morning were the first day.

The next morning came the rest of the journey. "Up in town" the school children were let out to see the great sight go by. One of them, to whose home it was going, said it looked as big as a house. It lay unloading for quite a while out by the parsonage, and people came from near and far to see it. Col. Melrose, Dr. Wellington in slabs for years to come.

When the great sled was taken to pieces, some of the timbers were used in building Mr. Winch's barn, and may be seen there in the framework until this day.—Boston Advertiser.

St. Patrick's Prayer.

The following is a part of a hymn still extant in the Irish language which is attributed to St. Patrick, and bears his name. It is said to have been used by him as a prayer when about to attempt the conversion of the Irish monarch Laoghaire:

I bind to myself today,
The power of God to guide me,
The might of God to uphold me,
The wisdom of God to teach me,
The eyes of God to watch over me,
The ear of God to hear me,
The word of God to give me speech,
The hand of God to protect me,
The way of God to lead me to see,
The shield of God to shelter me,
The host of God to defend me,
Against the snares of devils,
Against the temptations of vice,
Against every man who would injure me,
Whether far or near,
With few or with many.

Population of the West.

At the beginning of the century the population of the great West, which is now about 20,000,000, was a little more than 50,000. The following interesting table shows the growth of that population:

Year.	Population.	Per cent. increase.
1790.....	51,000	—
1800.....	200,000	296
1810.....	1,410,473	605
1820.....	3,561,542	125
1830.....	5,297,413	47
1840.....	7,175,922	36
1850.....	13,121,410	87

That table is a very interesting one. It is one of the most remarkable features in this remarkable age.

The danger passed, both are alike required,
God is forgotten, and the doctor slighted.

Turkish Women.

The Turkish woman is marriageable at the age of 9 years, and by Turkish law, at that age, if married, she is competent to manage her property and dispose of one-third of her fortune. The law allows her to abandon her husband's house for just cause, and will protect her in so doing. She can not be compelled to labor for the support of her husband. On the contrary, he is compelled to support her, and it is a penal offense to insult or ill-treat her. On an accusation of infidelity her oath is accepted as equal proof with his, and collateral proof must be obtained. Should he not furnish her with funds she is authorized to borrow in his name, and even to sell his property. After marriage she has the absolute control of her own property, which he can not touch.

Chicago's Watch-Boxes.

Chicago is almost of all cities in the Union in one respect, and that is in the employment of what are called "watch-boxes." They have been in use but a very short time, yet they have so demonstrated their utility that people now wonder how they ever got along without them. They are made of wood, are either square or hexagonal in shape, are about three feet in diameter and seven feet high, and are provided with a telephone locked in a box through a slot in which runs a telegraph alarm lever. Each box is provided with a door that is kept securely locked. The square boxes are usually fastened to a telegraph-pole, while the hexagonal or newer form take the place of a lamp-post at the corner of a street, the lamp being placed on its apex. Every member of the police and fire departments is furnished with keys to the doors of the watch-boxes, and also with keys to open the boxes containing the telephones. Any responsible citizen who desires can procure a key to the doors of the watch-boxes upon making application at the police headquarters. Each key is lettered and numbered, and a register of the names and residences of the parties to whom they are furnished is kept. The boxes are arranged in a regular system, each drawn by two good horses. They are stationed at convenient intervals throughout the city. Each wagon is manned by a driver and two policemen.

We will suppose a citizen is passing along the street at night, when he encounters a gang of drunken ruffians who assault him. There is no policeman within call to assist him, so the gang, after pushing and jostling him about, go on their way. The citizen goes to the next corner, takes out his key and opens the door of the watch-box and pulls down the lever of the telegraph alarm. Each watch-box has its number and location recorded, the same as are fire-alarm boxes. In less than three minutes, and often in a minute, the wagon is at his side with two policemen to assist him. The citizen meanwhile has his key remaining in the box, for while it throws the lock-bolt back the same motion securely fastens it in the box, and he cannot take it out until it is released by a special key, which is only carried by police and firemen. If the citizen is badly injured the wagon takes him to his home or the hospital, while the police go in search of the ruffians who have molested him. This is only one of the numerous ways in which the box can be made useful. It is also used by the police to have drunkards or obstreperous prisoners taken to the station-houses without causing the patrolmen to leave their beats, etc. They not only assist in the capture of criminals, but by making their capture more easy and certain than formerly, they prevent many of them from committing depredations. In case of riot or time of great panic a peculiar alarm is sounded on the engine-house bells, when every policeman in the city goes to the nearest watch box on his beat and receives instantaneous relief. These watch boxes only cost $100 set up ready for use.

A Literary Curiosity.

It has not been thought necessary to give the backward as well as the forward reading of the following sentences, save in those in which the words really prove a reason for printing the two versions. In going through the sentences backward, the requisite changes in the punctuation must be understood by the reader:

Dear Harry: Devotedly yours remain I. Have you forgotten £20 check? Reply immediately, please, and to yours, Grace D. King.
Darling Grace: Yours to hand, please immediately reply. Check £20, forgotten, you have. I remain yours devotedly, Harry dear.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE TO A DISPERSED.
Play with work blend, keep warm feet. Avoid drive trouble, slowly eat. Be wary of cold, and early rise; Be wary of cold, and early rise.

Exercise take, exercise beware;
Rise early, and breathe pure air;
Eat slowly; eat slowly; eat slowly;
Feet warm keep, hand work with play.
Feet they grow by side,
Pausing, fearing, doubting never;
Laughing, singing, on their gliding feet,
Hope and youth companions ever.

Rules for Skaters.

Never get out of anybody's lead.
If anyone is in your road don't go round him—go straight through him.
When you find yourself falling bring some one else down with you, and be sure to keep on top.
Don't burden yourself with any extra wraps; shivering is pleasant occasionally.

If you happen to own skates don't lend them to little brother, little sister, or any one else.
If you get uncomfortably warm, hand your skates or skates to a friend who comes along. They'll keep it with pleasure.

Always carry temperance tracts about you; then if you want to leave your girl for a few moments to get a hot lemonade, tell her you see a fellow in the distance who you want to give a tract to; believe you. If you give her a peppermint lozenge when you come back, she'll believe you more.

Skaters would do well to remember that love on skates always runs smooth. A fellow that owns a good pair of skates, a commanding voice and a jaunty cap can have pick and choice of girls.

If your straps and buckles get out of order, never at them; bottled anger is bad for the soul.

If a green skater asks your assistance, don't give it; people might take you for a greeny.

If a pretty girl comes along and catches at your foot, pick her up tenderly and offer her a hot lemonade.

If your sister takes a tumble, make out you don't see her; it's terribly stupid work to play the agreeable to an old poke like her.

If you fall, don't be in a hurry getting up; you can take a rest, and it doesn't hurt to double up over you, it will only make sport for the crowd.

Don't learn to skate by the old-fashioned method; try spread-eagle at once.—Albany Sunday Times.

"THE HUSKING."

BY A. C. WHITTIER.

It was the pleasant harvest time,
When solar heat is slowly ebbing,
And gentle breeze beneath their hand,
Through which the mountain mist glides stream,
And wide flows freely in to shake
The red glumes of the roasted corn,
And the brown husks of the shelled corn,
From their low seed to their seed.
