Like many other rumors about the railroad company, the one regarding the deferring of pay-day turns out to be without foundation. The employees are being paid as usual.

REV. F. DEWITT TALMAGE of the Brooklyn Tabernacle on last Sunday announced that his church would be closed for the summer in order "To give my congregation a rest," as he naively puts it.

CHOLERA has got a firm footing in parts of France, and it is more than probable it will spread to other countries, despite all quarantine measures. It is comforting to know that a cure for the disease has been found in the inhalation of pure oxygen.

The telegraph reports a conference in New York of representatives of all the Democratic Presidential candidates, except Cleveland, at which Ben Butler was selected to head the Presidential ticket. If this is true, what a sweet morsel for the Democracy. It would be a joyful sound indeed to hear New Orleans Democrats shouting for Spoons Butler.

To witness a slogging match in New York city lately 1000 people paid two dollars each. Mr. Sullivan, the great exponent of the manly art, was incapacitated from participating on account of his heavily state of intoxication. The disgust of the audience might have been nerved had its moral taste been less depraved. The contenance given such exhibitions and the publicity made of the words and doings of such characters as this Sullivan is simply disgusting.

There is a law in Ohio which ought to prevail in every State. We allude to the one under which a civil suit for damages can be brought against any saloon-keeper who sells liquor to a drunkard. In a suit of this kind, brought in Cincinnati, a verdict for $5000 was given against the defendant. Whatever diversity of views may justly be held on the question of prohibitory legislation, there can be but one view taken of the action of any man who will supply a drunkard with liquor.

EVEN cow hair has its commercial uses. The dealers who purchase this curious commodity from the tanners first "blow" the hair by a peculiar process, which separates the long hairs from the short ones. The long hairs are then woven into a fabric with other material which, upon completion, becomes the genuine "all wool" blankets. The shorter hairs are worked into felting. The average price of cow hair is four cents a pound, but white cow hair is worth eleven cents a pound.

The Democratic National Convention will convene in Chicago next week to nominate a Presidential candidate for the great unwashed. Of the benefits arising therefrom the greatest will accrue to the Chicago saloon keepers. Doubtless there will be the usual Democratic hurrah and an unusual tumult caused by the bewildering position in which the party is placed by the declaration of Tilden. Or as Nashy expresses it: "If the great statesman Tilden had accepted the nomination we should have had some consolation. We would have tapped his hair, and we should have lived well down the campaign, even if we hadn't won at the end; but now that the old imbecile has declined, the chances are that we shall nominate some man who won't get money to pay for votes, and who will be the incorruptible Democracy to them? To have a candidate without money envelops us in gloom indeed." The want of a barl may so expedite the action of the unscrupulous as to enable the GAZETTE to announce in its next issue the name of the unfortunate victim selected by the convention.

THE phrase "English bull-dog obstinacy" has an illustration in the idiotic conduct of the captain of a British steamer who honored San Francisco with the presence of himself and his craft. He refused to produce any manifest upon his arrival and was fined $200. In revenge he anchored his ship in the stream directly in the way of the ferries, and having had $500 worth of fun in seeing the other craft dodge him he proceeded to San Francisco, refusing the services of a pilot. The law provides that if masters of vessels refuse the service of a pilot the fees must be paid anyhow, but with a British contempt for the laws of this blasted country the captain not only refused to employ a pilot, but declined also to pay the fee. His vessel was libeled in consequence, but the contentious captain prepared to leave port anyhow, until the presence of armed officers on board his vessel made him forego his intention. To listen to the views of this particular captain concerning the maritime laws of this country would no doubt be quite interesting if it were not for the explosives with which his views would be interlarded, after the manner of sea captains in general.

PETALUMA, June 26.—Henry Weiser, who came here from Erie county, N. Y., some three weeks ago, died suddenly upon the street at 10 A. M. to-day. For some ten minutes previous to his death he had been assisting in trimming some shade trees, and had just descended a ladder, when, without any premonition of illness other than the usual fatigue that he experiences on slight exertion, he having been in failing health for some time, he fell prone upon the ground, dying after a few moments struggle. The coroner's jury found that deceased was a native of New York, aged 64 years, a preacher by profession, of the denomination of Union Brethren, and the opinion of the jury was that heart disease was the cause of death. He leaves a wife and nine children, residents of Downsville, Erie county, N. Y.

Twenty-four miners were killed by a colliery explosion in the Wellington colliery at Nanshan, B. O., on Monday morning.

The California Southern.

Boston, June 28.—A committee of bond and stock holders of the California Southern Railroad report to-day that they have ascertained from the best estimates that can be obtained from Parris, Chief Engineer, and Victor, Superintendent of the company, confirmed by Anderson, an expert and engineer, who lately made a report, that the whole cost of repairing the road and putting it into condition for business will not be less than $250,000. A description of the condition of the road has resulted in obtaining only $114,500 and it is not safe to expect the funds in the treasury will exceed about $40,000, making the amount available to repair the road, after the subscription is paid, $154,500. Under these circumstances the company will be compelled to either abandon its enterprise altogether—and not repairing the road would be equivalent to such an abandonment—or it will be obliged to go on and make contracts for repairs as it best can. In that event the stockholders would, under the laws of California, be personally responsible in proportion to their holdings for the payment of the sums devoted to such contracts in case of default on the part of the company.

Commenting on the above the San Diego Union says: It is our opinion, judging from the manner in which the affairs of this road have been managed since it was completed to Colton, that the Boston people really mean to abandon the enterprise. More than a year ago, when the rails and other material which had been brought here to build the line to the Needles were shipped away and the majority of the engineers discharged, we felt convinced that the contract made with San Diego would not be fulfilled. We were at that time in possession of information that we had no reason to doubt, and that subsequent events have confirmed, that the road to the Needles had been made. The halt at Colton, the removal of the company's offices from this city, the resignation and departure of the engineers, the failure to provide for the depot buildings and freight accommodations, following closely upon the shipment of the construction material, all gave plain evidence that Messrs. Nickerson & Co. had no intention of carrying out the obligations of their contract, which bound them to complete the road to the Colorado river at the Needles on or before the first day of January last. A strenuous effort was, however, made to keep up the public confidence, and those who ventured to doubt the good faith of the Boston gentlemen were denounced as "monopoly tools," etc. A good many of the subsidy notes given by the citizens of San Diego were falling due and there were also intimations that legal steps might be taken to enforce our contract rights. It was essential to quiet all feelings of apprehension, and all kinds of more or less plausible excuses were made to account for what had been done and what had been left undone. Finally, with a tremendous flourish of trumpets, it was proclaimed that the company was going to build to San Bernardino and right on via the Cajon Pass to the Needles. There came the tempest in a teapot about the Colton crossing—a simple matter of law that could have been settled at once if it had been so desired and the proper steps taken to that end. But that was not the programme. There were immense obstacles to be encountered; the "great monopoly" was crowding the poor little road that had no backers save a few Boston millionaires; public sentiment was to be aroused—and it was. There were subtle notes also to be collected from citizens of San Bernardino about that time. At last the legal formalities were performed and the road was extended three miles from Colton to San Bernardino. After a while Fred Perlin went out in the Cajon Pass and made a "demonstration"; then we had rumors that "operations would begin immediately." The road was rebuked by its San Bernardino contemporaries because it pliantly declined to "enthuse." So the rumors continued, with variations on the same old tune.

The California Southern Railroad Company, after all that has been said of its strong financial backing, would appear from the above to be a lame duck in the monetary world. The rigid facts are that the public has known nothing concerning the financial condition of the company. The people along the line of the road generally complain of the close and niggardly action of the representatives of the company in their financial dealings. The road itself has ever been a wheelbarrow concern. As a piece of engineering it has been—for its steep grades and short curves—the laughing stock of railroad men, and could not be used for the heavy traffic of a transcontinental road. It never paid for the running expenses of the one box car train a day from Colton to San Diego. Last season's rains washed nearly half of the whole concerned into the ocean. To those best acquainted with the condition of the road, it was a surprise that any attempt was made to repair it. The small force engaged for several weeks in repairs has accomplished but little, and should the road be put in its former condition it would be of but slight benefit to the public and worse than nothing to its owners. For these reasons we are inclined to believe there is a grain of truth in the telegraphic report from Boston.

Viticultural Notes.

St Helena Star. All who have sampled vines know its unpleasant effect upon the eyes, an effect scarcely apparent until after washing the face, when a smarting sensation commences and continues with more or less duration and violence according to the strength of the smarting; but all viticulturists say that there is danger of its working a permanent injury to the eyes. This is what has caused the trouble to Terrill Grigley's sight, and on another place a Chinaman has become totally blind from its effects. Zinfandels have increased their popularity this year by the excellent crop they bear, while Reisingers have lost a great part of their crop by the rain. There are two great points of advantage in the Zinfandel over the Reisinger; they are cheaper to cultivate and snore of a crop. Reisinger requires a 6-foot stake, costing $45 a thousand, and very expensive of drying. Zinfandels need on ordinary ground only a 3-foot stake, which may be had for $13.50 and is easily and cheaply driven. On extra rich ground a 4-foot stake might be used to advantage, and indeed Mr. Thoman's theory is that they should be staked 6 feet high and trained up long wooded; but about 3 feet has been the customary length of stake, and on this they have done well. Then again the Reisinger makes extra expense each year in tying, training and pruning, while the Zinfandels need no stakes after the first few years and consequently no tying. The average of vines in 1883 yielded probably 10 per cent. or more, this year it is fully 25. On the other hand the Reisinger commands $2 or $4 a ton higher price and are always sought for for vines that are to be kept any length of time.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

There is a mosquito plague at Maricao, thousands of breeders have been killed in various parts of the city to disperse the pests.

Six per cent. more beer was drunk in Germany last year than in the preceding, twelve months. The aggregate amount used was 53,000,000 gallons.

The latest novelty in sport is a series of races with oxen at Munich. The beasts prove intractable and walk, run or back just as they are inclined.

By a rare coincidence, it is said, six clergymen in Charleston, Mass., preached on Sunday week from the text: "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Mexican gamblers propose to put two gambling cars on the Central Railroad, and there is a great deal of quiet gambling done on the smoking cars.

Tomatoes and cucumbers are so plentiful in Florida that hundreds of acres of them are being plowed in because they are not worth the cost of picking.

A wealthy resident of Lynn, Mass., has been sued by a lady of his acquaintance for $5,000 damages for an alleged insult, his office being a request for a kiss.

It is now alleged that some of the jewelry which Censola says he found under the Cypriote temple set in solid rock is machine made and hails from Newark, N. J.

A party of men digging in the bed of a dry pond near America, Ga., found a fire alligator at the depth of seven feet. It was eight feet long and was in a torpid condition.

The marriage of a twelve-year-old girl to a gentleman of eighty years is reported from Boykin, S. C., the two having known each other for thirty years, and marrying with the consent of the girl's mother.

By the system in use on a new telegraph line between Boston and Providence, seventy-two messages may be sent at once over the same wire, all in the same direction, or part one way and the rest the other.

Hon. Robt. C. Winthrop, who delivered the oration at the Washington Monument cornerstone laying in 1848, is expected to deliver the oration in February next upon the completion of the monument.

In several localities in Orange county, N. Y., farmers have had being of the disease, which appears to be a dipterous affection. The animals appear to be in their usual health, when suddenly their throats begin to swell, and a few hours later they are dead.

The residence of Mrs. Patrick Murphy, of Brim Hill, a suburb of Youngstown, Ohio, caught fire Monday morning at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Murphy and one child escaped. Three children sleeping in the second story, aged five, seven and nine, were burned to death.

A Boston lady is making a prodigious effort to get a record of race and state of historical value. It will contain a fragment from Washington's tomb, marble from Caesar's palace in Rome, and a piece of a torch found in the wolf den occupied by him. Putnam at Venice and Colton at New York are the agents for the collection.

An effort was made to secure a confession from the woman who was arrested at Elberton, Ohio, on suspicion of being concerned in a plot against the Emperor's life, by placing in her cell another woman as a spy, and who was supposed to be arrested for the same offense. The spy had been hidden on her person with which she played her wiles, but the more the latter drank the more silent she remained, while the spy got gloriously drunk and gave away the whole plot.

The most detailed and authoritative description of a sea-serpent yet given is furnished by six men of the schooner, Mass. They all agree they saw it going from north to south and describe a circle, and all were satisfied that it was a monster of the snake species, not less than fifty feet long. They are older and wiser men, not given to drink, not credulous or easily excited, and did not see much little thing and imagine the rest. The names of the men are given.

Orangeburg has been on the rampage at New Orleans. Among other outrages committed was the destruction of a Catholic church at St. Mary's on St. Mary's bay. They smashed the furniture and appointments of the sanctuary, destroyed the tabernacle, abstracted the chalice, eucharist and other sacred vessels, smashed the candles and strewn the debris about the streets. Five men were arrested. As soon as this knowledge of the destruction of the church spread among the Catholics, a mob of more than 5000 bays were manned for the purpose of assaulting and firing the vessel, the crew of which were the offenders. The influence of the parish priest and of the supplying merchants prevented the destruction of the ship and cargo.

Three men entered the barroom of a respectable house in Globe street, in the part of Bradford, Pa., known as "Big Island." The house is kept by Frank Meador, who has a daughter 20 years old, and of whom he is very proud. She had always been kept from association with people visiting the saloon. It happened however, she was in the barroom with her father, and one of them, Jacob Head, aged 35 years, began to use insulting language to her. Miss Meador at first broke into tears, overcome with shame and anger, but recovering her self-possession, ordered the men to leave the place. Head repeated the insulting expressions and closed by saying that if the girl felt insulted she could revenge herself by shooting him. Quick as thought the girl sprang from her seat, seized a revolver, and, pointing it at his head, pulled the trigger. The bullet struck the man in the left side, penetrating the left lung. He threw up his hands, staggered out on to the sidewalk and fell head first, gasping, although public sympathy is entirely with her.

A Colony Proposition.

Frederick A. Binney, of 14 Victoria building, Manchester, England, has addressed a letter to the San Francisco Chronicle containing a proposition for the establishment of a British colony in California, and invites its earnest consideration. The writer states that for several years he has been trying to get up a select English colony of the educated or middle classes to buy and settle together on an estate in a California vine or orange growing district. He has the names and addresses of 200 people interested in the scheme, and could easily obtain 500 more if he had the land to offer them, but as they are only small capitalists they cannot afford to risk their money in speculative schemes. The writer asks if there are not any ranch-owners in California who could assist in accomplishing his object without the intervention of capitalists requiring a large profit. Why should not the ranch-owner, he asks, sell his land direct to the colonists in small lots? The settlement of a colony on the estate would then be accomplished on a cheap basis. The writer states that the upper class of Englishmen have formerly preferred emigrating to the British colonies, but if good inducements are held out will turn their direction to California.

The Dittiness of Politics.

Of all de mean and contemptible things about de American nation as a race an Presidential campaign. The Methodist Love for Chickens.

Philadelphia Times. Since the earliest days of the itinerancy the good brethren of the Methodist ministry have had a weakness for chickens. In the good old times it was customary to have a particularly the fat pullet specially reserved for the minister's use. In the more modern times, as is well known, is the great chicken market in the East, the New York hotels sending nearly all their orders here, and the fame of "Philadelphia dry-picked chickens" has gone all over the world.

It is said that when the place for holding the General Conference was under consideration and the claims of Philadelphia were under discussion, some one said: "Why, that's where they have the best chickens in the world." Whereupon Philadelphia received the preference by an overwhelming majority. It appears that the confidence of the clergy in Quaker poultry has not been misplaced. During the session of the conference at the Hotel McAllister, the delegates have been the Columbia Hotel, and since conference opened chicken has been on the bill of fare for every meal. There were over 400 ministers fed daily in the conference hall, and the hotel was a great success. "Laf' well," said the hotel steward yesterday, "we used up no less than 2,000 chickens, about 1,000 of em spring chickens. No use talkin' no more 'bout de Methodist gen'ral conf'ence; it was a whole chicken so quick it makes yo' head spin."

Cutting Up the Agent.

He did not appear to be a bank cashier, or a newspaper editor, as he strolled into an Alabama street grocery. He was dressed in a suit of black cloth, and was looking for the Clayton road depot. "Do ye know whether the agent is thar er not?" he inquired, after being directed to the right place. "I don't," answered the proprietor impatiently; "you can call him through the telephone and find out," waving his hand toward the instrument. "An' tell me how ye got dat ye was a merchant and then at the merchant. At least he blundered out: "Mister, I reckon I looks pretty green, but lemme tell you, I knows when a fellow's tryin' to make fun o' me, and I won't stand it." "What do you mean?" asked the merchant. "How'n the blazes art dat agent agin' agin' to get through dat little hole?" exclaimed the Clayton.

The Bang Doomed.

The decadence of the bang is announced. A matter of such importance cannot be ignored. In all ages the dressing of the hair has occupied the feminine mind for a very large extent. The Talmud informs us that Eve in the Garden of Eden, at the dawning of the world, curled around her raven tresses the golden ringlets that fell upon her snowy shoulders when she observed the approach of Adam through the trees. Even St. Paul, in his powerful epistles, draws attention to the fact that hair is the adornment of a woman and a charm she should glory in. Tarquin became enamored of Lucretia when he saw her shimmering tresses kissing her blushing cheeks as she bent over her spinning wheel. Napoleon became infatuated when his eyes rested upon the raven coils of Josephine. In view of the potent charms attached to "Only a Woman's Hair," the general public will be interested in learning that bangs are disappearing from the foreheads of the fair leaders of fashion. A few years ago a young lady without bangs would have been as obsolete as a three-cent postage stamp. Now one who wears bangs is looked at askance, as much so as if she appeared in a dashing cockney costume. The bang is out of date. It has served its purpose and must go. The new styles are the Saratoga wave and the Grecian coil. The Saratoga wave is a revival, in a modified form, of a custom which prevailed twenty-five years ago, when ladies were wont to part their hair in the middle and bring it down in two semi-circles from the center of the forehead, covering the ears and fastening it at the back of the head. The effect is to bring out the attractive features of the face and conceal bulging foreheads and coarsened temples. The Grecian coil is a skillful twisting of the hair at the back of the head. It has a very charming effect and makes a pretty woman perfectly irresistible when she turns her back.

Female "Lords of Creation."

Among the Kasha Hills, in the eastern part of Bengal, the men are said to be the inferiors, even in the eye of the law. Property descends only through women. The latter have the supreme command, and everything that concerns the welfare of the tribe is decided by them. The men are represented by travelers as little better than domestic drudges, who mind the laby and do the errands and perform other little duties of the kind, while the wives attend to the more serious affairs of daily life. The girls of a family are held in high esteem, the boys being "noodies."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Board of Equalization.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE TOWN OF Anaheim will sit as a Board of Equalization on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 24, 25 and 26, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. For the purpose of equalizing the assessments for all the current year, by order of the Board. E. F. NEWBOLD, Town Clerk.

STATEMENT OF THE CONDITION OF THE Bank of Anaheim, At the opening of Business July 1st, 1884.

Kleinigkeiten.

The July schedule of the P. C. S. S. Co. is published to-day.

Col. Walter S. Moore is said to aspire for legislative honors.

The close season for deer expired on July 1st and the market will doubtless soon be supplied with venison.

Insurance against fire in the first-class companies for which Richard Melrose is agent. Policies written and delivered at once.

Alward and McKim sold their last crop of oranges on the trees for $1500 cash. Their orchard of 63 acres contains about 600 trees.

It is positively announced that L. J. Rose's San Gabriel property has been sold to an English company for $750,000.

The contract for building the school-house in Placentia (North Anaheim) district, has been awarded to Wm. Henry of Santa Ana for $2,812.00.

The statement of the financial condition of the Bank of Anaheim, published to-day, is creditable to the manager of that sterling institution.

Taxpayers who are interested in the town assessment roll are referred to the notice of the Board of Trustees published to-day.

The United States patent for the Rancho Santiago de Santa Ana, issued to the heirs of Antonio Yorba and Juan Pablo Peralt, was filed for record in the Recorder's office Monday.

Persons entitled to stock in the A. U. W. Co., but who have not taken their certificates, will, by order of the Board of Directors, be charged interest at the rate of one per cent per month on the amount of the assessments.

L. M. Holt, of the Riverside Press and Horticulturalist has leased that paper to Robt. Hornbeck, and will take much needed rest. Under the new management the paper will be no less interesting than it has hitherto been.

The body of the younger of the Brown brothers, whose death by drowning was recorded in these columns last week, was found on the beach two miles from the scene of the accident. The body of the older brother had previously been recovered.

By order of the County Central Committee, a Republican primary election, to choose four delegates to the County Convention, will be held at the Placentia Hotel on Saturday next, July 12. The polls will be open from 12 o'clock noon until 7 p. m.

Following were the exports from the Anaheim depot for the week ending July 1st:

4 cars lumber	95,700 lbs.
4 " wire	92,150 lbs.
37 cases eggs	4,440 lbs.
37 sacks bacon	5,160 lbs.
Miscellaneous	32,963 lbs.
Total	230,353 lbs.

Thefts of small articles, such as rakes, wash tubs, rocking chairs and the like, commonly left without thought of thieves who break through and adjusted, have been reported by several residents of Anaheim and by parties living near Orange. All traces of the sneak thieves have in every instance been effectually covered.

The following officers were elected by Magnolia Council, No. 94, O. C. F., at regular meeting, June 28, and will be duly installed Saturday evening, July 12: Wm. M. McFadden, P. C. C.; S. W. Bryden, C. C.; E. A. White, V. C.; A. W. Steinhardt, Secretary (3d term); Theo. Rimpun, Treasurer (3d term); Mrs. S. J. McFadden, Proleat; Mrs. J. E. Leonard, Marshal; S. S. Wood, Warden; G. Davis, Guard; A. Rimpun, Secretary; Wm. M. Higgins, H. Kroeger, D. W. C. Cowan, Trustees; Mrs. Alice Higgins, M. D., Medical Examiner.

The Santa Ana Standard says: The extension of the Santa Ana railroad to San Diego is almost a fixed fact. A complete outfit of surveyors are running the line south-east of the San Joaquin ranch and setting the stakes as they go. They appear to be keeping the matter very quiet, which we suppose is to get as much publicity from the people along the route as possible. The route is a fine one and we have no doubt but that the road will be built as speedily as possible. Then a road up the Santa Ana River to a junction with the S. P. R. R. will be the next thing in order.

The salaries of postmasters are readjusted on the first day of July of each year. In the adjustment this year Anaheim is reduced from a third to a fourth-class office. The other offices in this State which have been reduced in class or in salary are Bakersfield, Bodie, Colusa, Gilroy, Hanford, Hollister, Livermore, Marysville, Placerville, Sacramento, San Buenaventura, San Diego, San Rafael, Tulare, Visalia and Willows. The salaries are readjusted on the basis of the receipts of the various offices for the previous year. Assuming that the business during the balance of the year equals that of the last quarter, the next readjustment will place Anaheim far up in the list of third-class offices. As a matter of fact the salary of the postmaster will be about as much as when the office was a third-class one. It is his dignity, and not his pocket, that is hurt.

The destruction of the bridge at Yuma is, to a certain extent, both a blow at the Southern Pacific Railway and at Los Angeles. It supplements the previous disaster at the "Needles," which, to a like extent, disabled the Atlantic and Pacific Railway as respects California and this city. Of course the damage in both instances is easily repairable, but it is probable that the directors of both companies will allow the Colorado, both above and below, to remain unbridged until the snows have been melted and the Spring rains are over. In this view of the matter we cannot well look for the rebuilding of these bridges before the middle of August. Meanwhile, both companies will do the best they can by transporting passengers and freight by river craft from the east to the west bank of the Colorado. As these roads, together with the harbor at Wilmington, are the real buttresses of the prosperity of Los Angeles, we witness even their temporary disablement with unforgotten regret.

The Anaheim Public Schools closed on Friday of last week after a ten months' term. During the last three days there were examinations in the various departments in which the pupils generally did well. During the last day there were closing exercises of a literary character. Altogether, the year just closed has been one of the most successful in the history of the school. The average daily attendance was 160, which is more than that of any previous year. We herewith append a summary of attendance etc. for the year ending June 27:

Number of days taught	124
Whole number of days attendance	20,222
Average number attending	160
Number of tardies	1,454
Number of truants	607
Number of pupils enrolled	1,112
Whole number enrolled	246
Average number attending	160
Daily attendance	160
Percentage of attendance	94

We are indebted to L. M. Holt, Secretary of the Convention, for a hundred page pamphlet containing a stenographic report of the proceedings of the First Irrigation Convention held in California. As the Convention adjourned to meet again in Fresno on the 2d of December next, it is important that those interested in the question should procure copies of these proceedings in order to know what has been done and be ready for future work. Copies will be sent post paid on receipt of 25 cents. Address Press and Horticulturalist, Riverside, Cal.

A man in a state of nudity was found in an Anaheim vineyard one morning this week. He was taken before Judge Gannon by Marshal Bohn and committed to the county jail, with a request to the prosecuting attorney to inquire into his mental condition. The Adamite gave his name as Hugh Call and said he had been herding sheep on the San Joaquin. We have heard it said that sheep herding was promotive of inquiry. Perhaps this is a veritable case.

From a gentleman who lately arrived from the East by the Southern route we learn that hundreds of cars with freight are side-tracked through Arizona and New Mexico. A car load of furniture shipped from Grand Rapids, Michigan, eight weeks ago, to an Anaheim dealer has failed to arrive up to this time and is doubtless standing on a side track in the wilds of Arizona, waiting for the waters to subside.

For surf and still water bathing Anaheim Landing has no superior on the coast. The regular summer visitors return each year. Many have built cottages. This season promises a larger number of campers than in former years.

A new bank has been opened in Los Angeles, called the Los Angeles Savings Bank. The names of Isaac W. Hellman and Col. Robert S. Baker appear in the Board of Directors. The bank will be conducted on the plan of savings institutions.

The thermometer reached 102° in the shade on Monday last. Thermometers were not long enough to reach the heat in the sun. Yet out-door work was not interrupted. Sunstroke is unknown. This will seem strange to Eastern people.

The ladies of St. Michael's church, at the request of many who were unable to attend the social lately given, have made arrangements for another entertainment to be held at the residence of Mrs. Sheffield on Monday evening next, to which a general invitation is extended.

The rumored change in the railroad schedule, whereby Anaheim is to have two trains per day each way, had not gone into effect up to yesterday, although it is quite probable that the change will be made. The mails, however, will continue to arrive in the evening.

Candidates for county offices are not so numerous as in former years. Under the regime in the matter of salaries, the Sheriff's office is about the only plum worth the plucking.

Sixty feet of the railroad bridge at Yuma is reported to have been carried away, the river being six inches higher than ever before known.

Rumors of the establishment of a new newspaper at Santa Ana are afloat. So far as quantity is concerned the field may be said to be now fully taken up.

The examination of applicants for teachers' certificates has been postponed until the 15th instant.

Justice Bailey has sold his residence on the corner of Lemon and Symonds streets to Domingo Restachery for $1,000.

Card of Thanks.

Miss Clara John desires to return thanks to the Odd Fellows and friends who so kindly cared for her uncle during his last sickness.

A Horrible Crime.

Los Angeles Times, July 1.

Yesterday the blood curdling crime was revealed in this city of the horrible crime committed upon, and the death of, little Essie Eldridge, at Ames, and the righteous death of her assailant.

Her parents live upon Walnut Grove creek, in Ames township, on Hollenbeck's land, five miles south-west of the old Dalton house. The little girl was seven and a half years old. She was killed between four and five o'clock last Sunday afternoon by a Chinaman employed by her father to cook for a head cook.

The family had gone to the top of a hill near, when Essie, innocent and pure as childhood ever was, became hungry, and she and a younger brother went to the camp to get something to eat. In about fifteen minutes the boy came running back and said: "Pa, turn off that Chinaman. He threw me in the water and is throwing stones at Essie, and has the butcher-knife." The father and men, with faces blanched with terror, ran down to the camp and found the little darling lying face down, stabbed to the heart. The wound entered the left breast an inch and a quarter above the left nipple, and was probed five inches. Her clothing was all off, and her eyes, ears, nose and mouth were all open. She evidently had been rolled in the sand in a severe death-struggle, in which she fought the moon-eyed demon with the ferocity of despair. A large pool of blood was near. The corpse was still warm when found.

Some of the men mounted horses and rode all through the neighborhood giving the horrifying news. Others were put on the watch for the murderer. After diligent search the knife was found some distance from the place where Essie was found.

When found the Chinaman's throat was discovered to be cut, and the demon actually had the audacity to simulate death. On hearing some persons express a well-earned sympathy, he gathered courage to make a pretended return to consciousness. Parties coming to town yesterday felt the sequel of the murder. The Chinaman was not found out of the canyon where he was found.

A Protest.

The following petition to the Supervisors has been numerously signed. It is self-explanatory:

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county:

We, the undersigned, residents of Anaheim and surrounding country respectfully represent that the owners of the rancho Los Alamitos have placed a wire fence across what is known as the Anaheim Landing road—a road which has been in use by the public for over twenty years. By reason of this obstruction, travelers between Anaheim and the seashore at Anaheim Landing are compelled to make a detour of several miles—an inconvenience more particularly noticeable at this time of year. The road thus arbitrarily closed is a public necessity; but even if the owners of the rancho do not so deem it, we maintain that they have no right to perpetually obstruct a highway which has been traveled for over a quarter of a century.

We therefore ask your honorable body to compel J. W. Bixby & Co., the owners of the rancho, to remove the obstruction complained of, and thus give the public the convenience of a highway necessary to them.

The Glorious Fourth was celebrated in Anaheim by a general fusillade of crackers, bombs and anvils beginning at twelve o'clock midnight, which was continued without cessation until sunrise, when the streets were calmed into unusual quietude. Citizens generally left town in picnic parties to the canyons, the beach and other pleasant places, causing the day to be one of Sunday-like stillness. The firemen's ball in the evening was the only public demonstration and passed off satisfactorily to all present.

Young men whose ambition for beauty runs in the direction of waxed moustaches, are warned of the deleterious effect of becaus wax for that purpose. A young Anaheim, whose pride was in his incipient moustache, lately attempted an improvement in that ornament by the use of becaus. He now mourns the entire loss of that appendage and offers his experience as a warning to others.

Another terrible earthquake visited Southern California on Wednesday. It was discovered in San Bernardino. The Los Angeles Herald published it on Thursday and the people would have ever remained in ignorance of the horrible convulsion of nature of which Eastern people are so scared.

The noticeable diminution in the number of curs that have formerly infested the streets, making night hideous, is owing to the energy of the Town Marshal who has had his mighty intellect focused on the subject of dog catching, with excellent results.

Wheat harvesting is well under way. Work on the ten thousand acre wheat field of the Laguna rancho commences on Monday.

Rev. F. Foran, of Anaheim, assisted in the ceremonies of celebrating St. John's Day at the old Mission church in San Juan Capistrano.

Large quantities of new hay have been brought into town during the last week, selling from seven to nine dollars per ton, according to quality.

Apricots now in market are unusually large and fine but not so plentiful as last season.

Steps are being taken to organize a young men's Republican club in Anaheim.

The Colored Immigrants.

Los Angeles Times, July 1.

The last lot of colored people who arrived here are doing well and are contented. About fifty are at work on the cotton ranch attending to the cotton crop which they are handling admirably. About forty Chinese are also employed, who work by themselves, and the two races are seen in full contrast. The one goes about their work slowly, silently, gloomily, the other with alacrity, cheerfulness and singing, and they work with energy, each one of them doing the work of two Chinamen. The rest have been placed on other ranches wherever their services are needed and they can be made comfortable, and everywhere they have thus far proved most efficient and faithful, giving good satisfaction. They have displaced many Chinese, to the great satisfaction of the overseers. Some of the women have taken their places as cooks. In one case the former tried hard to discourage his gentle successor, and expatiated on the hard, toilsome nature of the work. But she informed him the work is better to work for another wage, have employment for all their children large enough to work, and permanent homes, than have larger wages and employment about half the year, and be homeless, with no prospect of bettering their condition. As they are, those that show themselves enterprising and capable will gradually be given better opportunities, and we expect to see many of them tenant farmers before many years, running cotton, sugar and tobacco plantations of their own, for which the delta of Kern river is as well adapted as the most favored portions of the Southern States.—Kern County Californian.

The large room in the new postoffice building presented a striking appearance last evening as the result of the labors of the firemen to make it attractive for their ball. It was profusely decorated with evergreens, flowers, flags and firemen's paraphernalia. The high ceiling rendered it cool and airy. The new floor was well fitted for dancing and with its brilliant lights, gay company and excellent music, the Conscience boys may be congratulated upon the success of their exertions to celebrate the Fourth in the most enjoyable manner.

Church Notes.

Rev. Mr. Green will preach in German at the Evangelical new church every Sunday afternoon at half-past two.

There will be preaching in the Presbyterian church to-morrow at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. Services will be held in St. Michael's Episcopal church every Sunday morning and evening by Rev. H. J. Sheridan. All are invited.

Rev. Mr. Bollinger will preach in the German church every Sunday morning at 10:30.

Citizens who have just cause of complaint against the existence of any public nuisance, are reminded that it is the duty of the town attorney to bring legal action in all cases that are brought up in proper manner. An officer is employed for this purpose by the Town Trustees who is efficient and ready at all times to discharge his duties.

If practice makes perfect, the band in the Chinese quarters should attain a high degree of proficiency. From morn till night and from night till morn, it never tires, and its volume has lately been increased by the importation of several new and curious instruments.

The Board of Town Trustees at its regular monthly session on Tuesday transacted nothing but its regular routine business. The Committee on Public Improvements, to which was referred at a previous session the matter of improvement of sidewalks, asked further time for action.

Under the supervision of Engineer Kellogg, with a large force of laborers, the work of repairing the ditches of the Anaheim Union Water Co. is rapidly progressing.

Capt. J. W. Hartmann fired thirty-eight guns at sunrise and thirteen at sunset on the fourth, being the regulation practice according to his manual.

HOW TO BRING UP A BABY BY HAND.

Where mothers are unable to nurse their children the problem of artificial feeding becomes of high importance, especially during the summer. In a recent article by Dr.

Clement Cleveland, in the Medical Record,

the suggestion made under this head are so clear and definite as to be of great practical value. The Doctor lays it down as an axiom that, next to woman's milk, cow's milk is really the best food for the infant. The milk of the goat is preferred to that of any particular cow, from the fact that it is likely to continue more uniform. Undiluted cow's milk is too rich in fat and casein to be readily digested by the infant, for during the earliest months the baby's power of digesting fat is very deficient. The casein of woman's milk curdles into delicate flakes, that of cow's milk into much larger ones. Fortunately these difficulties can be overcome to some extent.

A milk should be selected that is not rich in cream. The morning's milk contains less than the evening's. On boiling, much of the cream comes to the surface in the form of cream, and is to be removed by straining.

Water added to the milk helps the digestion of both fat and casein. It can be helped also by gelatine, barley, or oat meal water,

or by the addition of lime water, bicarbonate of soda or potash. The addition of a small quantity of one of these salts to the milk of one milk to two of water suits the majority of children. The doctor has found it advantageous, however, to begin with one part to three, and work rapidly up to one part to two, if the digestion continues good.

He uses for the first two weeks 8 parts of milk to 24 of water; second two weeks, 8

to 14; fourth month, 8 to 12; fifth month, 8

to 10; sixth month, 8 to 8; seventh month,

8 to 6; eighth month, 8 to 4; ninth month,

8 to 2; tenth month, more milk.

Some children do better with a little water

with the milk, even after the twelfth month.

Both the milk and the water should be boiled, and the water should be boiled with a little salt. The milk should be slightly sweetened with pure brown sugar or milk sugar, and a little salt should be added. It is well to prepare in the morning the whole amount to be used during the twenty-four hours.

Cow's milk slightly acid or neutral.

To render it perfectly digestible it is sometimes necessary to make it slightly alkaline. This helps the digestion of the casein by causing its distribution into finer flakes. When undigested flakes appear in the passages, one half to one grain of bicarbonate of soda is added to the amount of diluted milk given at each feeding. Should it not answer, a teaspoonful of pure barley or oat meal water, made by boiling for an hour, a spoonful of pearl barley and a salt-spoonful of salt with ten ounces of water, may be added. This is to be used in the same proportions as the formula above. For the first month the child should be fed every two hours, never after, and it takes fully

two hours for milk to digest.

After pointing out the fact that infants are more likely to cry on account of distress

due to indigestion than from hunger, the doctor says that children at three months

should acquire the habit of sleeping throughout the night. The last bottle should be given at 10 o'clock, P. M., and the first at 6 o'clock, P. M., in the morning. At first it may cry for hours, but in three or four days an excellent habit of sleep will be formed. It is one of the most important points in bottle feeding that the child take the milk

slowly into the stomach. Rubber nipples without openings, but in which a hole may be made with a red-hot canalic needle, are the best. The milk is drawn out slowly, and keeps pace with the formation of gastric juice. Canned condensed milk is, in the doctor's opinion, too rich in sugar to be

FAMOUS SWIMMERS.

"When Mr. Willie Beckwith and his sister,

the English experts and representatives of this art, remarked when taking their departure from this country after a sojourn of four months here last summer, that they were much surprised to find so few good swimmers in this country, the saying was a true one," said an old teacher of art to a prominent athlete of New York.

"Swimming is an old and one of the most beneficial of exercises. Few know that Benjamin Franklin was considered expert at this in his day. In the cultivation of swimming as an art society has taken but very little interest, indeed, as compared with the attention bestowed on other athletic pursuits. Swimming is the most useful of all accomplishments that go to make up the complete education of a gentleman. Other athletic sports have their advocates and enthusiastic votaries, but in all that leads to muscular development, the strengthening of the nervous system, and the restoration of the several functions of life, swimming must be admitted to bear away the palm. Among the list of good swimmers who have excelled in their line, first comes probably Capt. Webb, who swam the previously often attempted distance from Dover, England, to Calais,

France, 1875, crossing two tides and two half tides, estimated to be equal to 50 miles, actual distance 23 miles, in 21 hours and 45 minutes. With the well-known reputation and many other subsequent feats achieved

by this celebrated swimmer, it has been remarked to this day, by those who claim a knowledge of the facts, that the Captain did not fully comprehend the treacherous character of the Niagara whirlpool, from want of sufficient investigation, which brought him so unexpectantly to grief. The Captain's original intention was to follow closely to the Canadian shore, and by so doing he would have been able to keep, as he believed, to an current which veiled with a strong velocity, thinking it possible that he could pass around the border of the whirlpool

and reach the river below in safety. If you throw a dog or place any other animal into a swift current, you will observe at once that the animal, immediately upon becoming immersed, instinctively points its nose against the stream, at the same time swimming in a direction toward the nearest shore, which effort, in a measure, lessens the speed with which he would otherwise be swept along.

With the general knowledge of all these facts which Capt. Webb possessed, it has been often remarked, with much surprise,

in this last fatal attempt, that he did not adopt some such expedient.

"Among other notable swimmers, next probably comes Capt. Boyton, who by the use of artificial aid in advocating his particular method has traversed over more territory

than any man who has ever lived, swimming from Pittsburgh in 1879 down the Ohio river to the Mississippi, besides giving exhibitions in the harbors of this and many foreign countries. Among other good swimmers now living in England are Sir John

George W. Webb, the Scarborough, Eng., quadrant, floated for 60 consecutive hours.

Of other feats and long distance contests,

the following may be mentioned as probably the best which have ever occurred in this country: (George Fenn defeated Capt. Boy-ton in a handicap race of 12 1/2 miles at sea by 300 yards at Atlantic City, in August, 1880;

Charles Weightman, who has been termed

the man fish, and who has been seen swimming through his various antics under water,

such as smoking, eating, etc., in his glass aquarium, floated through the Narrows to Long Beach, a distance of 26 miles. He was formerly a teacher of the art at the Victoria Park, London. Prominent among the American contestants for honors of this kind,

His Mistake.

A gentleman on East Fourth street found a ragged tramp sitting on his front steps eating his lunch.

"Here! What are you doing there?" he shouted.

"Partaking of a slight lunch. Will you join me?" the tramp politely responded.

"No! I don't want any of your villainous food."

"That's so; it's pretty tough kind of food.

I just got it out of your kitchen. Your year must be doing her own cooking

now."

"What's that, you infernal hound?" exclaimed the angry man, starting towards the tramp, still sitting quietly on the step.

"Don't get excited, sir; don't get excited;

think a minute. Aren't you mistaken in calling me a hound?"

"No, I'm not; and I'll prove it."

"But, my dear sir, you are mistaken; I am no hound, I'm a setter."

The gentleman gazed at the tramp in admiratation and left him to finish his lunch.
