A Year Without a Summer.

HONESDALE, Pa., Aug 7.—"I worked all day in my grain field with a heavy coat on, yesterday, and day before the thermometer was standing at 46°," said one of the oldest residents of the northern part of this county yesterday, "and that is the most practical and vivid reminder I have ever had of the year without a summer, when it was a common thing to see the farmers, every day, from June till September, wearing not only heavy coats, but overcoats and mittens as well, as they went about their work. That was in 1816, and I was 12 years old, and so I have a lively recollection of the remarkable summer. I lived in Vermont then, where the season was at its worst, as in New York State and Pennsylvania only three inches of snow fell during the month of June, while in Vermont we had ten inches. Snow fell several times during that month, and ice came daily.

"One of the severest snow storms within my recollection fell in Vermont on the 17th of that June; that was the day we got the ten inches, and it was ten good, solid inches, on the level. I have good reason to remember that day. My father had some sheep in a back pasture, to reach which we had to go through a piece of woods for nearly a mile. The snow began falling on the 17th about 11 o'clock in the forenoon, and my father started, after dinner, to fix up some sort of a shelter for the sheep in the pasture. No one had any idea, cold and eccentric as the season was, that we could have snow to amount to anything at that time of year. I remember father, as he went out of the door, turning to my mother and saying in a jocular way:

"'If I'm not back in an hour, mother, call the neighbors and start them after me. June is a bad month to get buried in the snow, especially when it gets to be so near the Fourth of July.'

"The snow increased in fury, and by night it had drifted so that the roads were almost impassable, but even then, and when it grew dark, none of the family felt uneasy about father. The weather had grown intensely cold. When night set in, however, and there were still no signs of father's return, mother sent me to alarm the neighbors and tell them that we believed father had been lost in the snow. In spite of the severity of the night all the neighbors that could be reached turned out and searched the woods all night, but no signs of the missing man could be found. The search was kept up all the next day and the next night without finding any trace of him, except that he had reached the pasture and built a shelter of boughs in one corner of the lot, under which the sheep were huddled. On the forenoon of the third day they found father half buried in the snow a mile from the pasture, in almost the opposite direction from home. He was dead. He had evidently become lost in the blinding storm, and had wandered about until he succumbed to fatigue and exposure. It seems a most improbable thing that a person ever fell a victim to a snow storm in the month of June in this latitude, but I have sorrowful knowledge of one instance where it was only too true.

"The wind during June, July and August of 1816 was almost continually in the north, and it blew fierce and cold. Farmers put in their crops, and shivered under their wraps while doing so. There was but little use in planting. Nothing grew, to speak of. There was very little rain during the entire summer. The great piles of firewood that always accumulated during the summer months at the farmhouse back doors, in readiness for winter, didn't accumulate in 1816. They were needed for current use.

"I remember that an old farmer named Shay was the only man that had any corn to gather in our neighborhood that year. He saved his crop in a funny way, and that was by building immense bonfires around his field, which he kept burning all night and on the coldest days. He and hired help took turns in patroling the field at night and keeping the fires well supplied with pine knots, which were an abundant material in those days. This novel expedient on the part of Farmer Shay kept his cornfield warm and free of pests, and he had the only crop of corn in that part of the State.

"July was colder than June, and August was still colder. Ice formed a quarter of an inch thick in July, but in August, in Vermont, water was frozen to the depth of nearly an inch. On the 30th of August there was a severe snow storm. August was as cheerless and dreary as November sometimes is. There was not a green thing to be seen anywhere. The first two weeks in September brought the first real warm weather we had experienced since May. The thermometer registered as high as 70°.

"The general opinion had been formed that the cause of the cold weather was a sudden and rapid cooling of the sun, and many believed that the end of all things was not far off. The appearance of the warm spell in September destroyed that fear for a time, but on the 16th the cold weather returned, and the people were once more thrown back to the old belief. An old man named James Goodling killed all his stock, and then hanged himself, after vainly trying to induce his wife to make way with herself also, to escape a gradual and terrible death by freezing and starvation, which he believed was to be the common doom. Cold weather increased from the middle of September until winter, and it may be said that the year 1816—in Vermont, at least—had no summer or autumn. There wasn't grain enough raised for seed the next year, and those who were lucky enough to have more of the crop of 1815 on hand than they wanted for their own use had no difficulty in selling it for $5 and more a bushel.

"All the corn raised in Vermont in 1817 was from seed grown in 1815, and I guess that was the case all through the Eastern States. Those who feared that the sun was cooling off in 1816 changed their minds in 1817, for that was one of the hottest and dryest summers that ever settled down in that country."

Corkscrew Winds.

"You can talk as much as you like about high winds," remarked the Kansas gentleman, "but I'm telling you that Kansas is the banner State for zephyrs. Why, that's where we have cyclones and corkscrew winds. You read a good deal about cyclones in the newspapers, but you never see a word about the corkscrew gales; you bet you don't. Any man who dared to publish a word about them would be lynched. If people outside knew about them, it would stop immigration and spoil the prospects of the whole State.

"Those corkscrew winds just wind around and twine into all sorts of places in the most eccentric manner possible. There have been several cases of people having their necks wrung just like you'd twist a chicken's head off. People who understand the country all build their fences in the tract of climate where these winds prevail so's to have their post-holes dug for them. I've seen a pile of lumber stand near the site of a fence for three months waiting for one of those breezes, just because the owner was too slack and lazy to dig the holes, and so kept waiting from day to day hoping for a breeze. It's a risk, though, because there might happen to come along an unusually big blow and dig a cellar, but in that case the man would probably build a house where he had intended to put a fence. I've seen one of those gales enter a window that had been left open and corkscrew a baby out of its crib and twist the bed clothes into a coil so hard that they could only be separated with an axe. I've seen a cook stove waltzed into the middle of the room, and all sorts of things like that occur during those kind of winds. You don't have much wind in Colorado, do you?"—Salt Lake City Tribune.

California Raisins in Chicago.

We have received from Prof. Henry by mail a fine sample of California raisins which will compare favorably in quality with good Malaga stock. There is no doubt that Southern California can produce (equal skill being employed) as good raisins as the very best to be found in our markets. A great boom is being given this year to fruit growing in California, which commenced with the Citrus Fair in this city in March, and has been kept up by the railroads and land agents. Large numbers of people have either gone or are making preparations to go to California to engage in fruit growing. The danger is that the business will be so overdone that those depending upon the sales of fresh fruits may find prices so low as to be unremunerative. But there are some products, such as raisins, almonds, English walnuts, etc., which can be successfully produced there, which are not perishable in their nature, and with which there is no danger of overproduction so as to force prices down below the point of profit to the producer. Those who are newly engaging in fruit growing there should study well these facts and the conditions there, and aim to grow such crops as can be safely held and will not prove a dead loss if not sold at once without regard to price because of their perishable quality.—Farmers' Review.

A New Judge Charges the Jury.

He said: "Gentlemen of the jury, charging a jury is a new business to me, as this is my first case. You have heard all the evidence as well as myself; you have also heard what the learned counsel have said. If you believe what the counsel for the plaintiff has said, your verdict will be for the plaintiff; but if, on the other hand, you believe what the defendant's counsel has told you, then you will give a verdict for the defendant. But if you are like me and don't believe what either of them have said, then I'll be —— if I know what you will do. Constable, take charge of the jury."

A Liniment for Earache.

According to the Canada Medical Record, Pavesi recommends a liniment composed of camphorated chloral, 2½ parts, pure glycerine, 16½ parts, and oil of sweet almonds, 10 parts. This is to be well mixed, and preserved in a hermetically closed bottle. A pledget of very soft cotton is to be soaked in the liniment, and then introduced as far as possible into the affected ear, two applications being made daily. Frictions may also be made each day with the preparation behind the ear. It is claimed that the pain is almost immediately relieved, and even in many cases the inflammation is subdued.

A Big Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 21.—One of the largest fires that ever visited this city occurred to-night. It started shortly after six o'clock in Small's machine shop on Brannan between Fourth and Fifth streets, and spread with such rapidity that second and third alarms quickly followed. The fire ran north for half a block and south for two and a half blocks, crossing Brannan and Bluxome streets, and extended from midway between Fourth and Fifth streets to the latter street. It was gotten under control two hours after it started. The loss is estimated at about two million dollars.

Do you wish a beautiful complexion? Then use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It cleanses and purifies the blood, and thereby removes blotches and pimples from the skin, making it smooth and clear, and giving it a bright and healthy appearance.

The Legislature Prorogued

Following is the Governor's message, adjourning the Legislature:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
SACRAMENTO, August 20.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.—At my call you met in special session on the 20th of July for the purpose of considering and taking action upon measures which relate to the immediate and future welfare of the State. A memorial signed by eighty-nine members of the Legislature was presented to me as chief executive of the State, petitioning me to call this extra session. To that memorial were appended certain measures for legislative action in regard to the diversion and use of the flowing waters of the State for irrigation, and I was therefore informed by the signers that these measures would receive their support, I am bound to believe that they, the elected representatives of the people, were sincere in making such representations to me.

In view of the vast importance of this question of water rights to the material welfare of the State, and in view of the light which now has been thrown upon it, I cannot but believe that the Legislature will pass such laws and amendments to the Constitution as may be necessary to set aside the English common law doctrine of riparian rights, a doctrine which if sustained and enforced will, in my judgment, destroy millions of property, and ruin the agricultural interests of a large part of the State. The consideration already given to the pending measures has resulted in securing nearly the unanimous support of certain constitutional amendments and bills in one branch of legislation. Although over four weeks have elapsed since the Legislature convened, no agreement between the houses has yet been reached. The complex nature of the subject and the wide diversity of opinion as to specific measures go to show that the matter could not receive due and sufficient consideration at a regular session, which is limited in time, and during which many other affairs demand attention. The settlement of this great question in this special session, called for the purpose, will repay the State a thousand fold, for the expenses of the session. It now appears to be necessary to defer daily sessions for a brief period. The general election is approaching. Two great political parties, through whose organized instrumentality, under the American system, the government of this State is at regular times renewed, are about to meet in conventions to nominate candidates. Many members of the Legislature desire to attend these conventions, and they may justly consider it their public duty to do so. Accordingly a resolution to adjourn until the 7th day of September has been passed by the Assembly, but the same has been disagreed to by the Senate. It seems to me proper that the adjournment should be had. No additional expense would be entailed since, under the constitution, the per diem of members ceases when there is an adjournment of more than three days. In the meantime by communicating with their constituents and the consequent interchange of opinion the members may be better prepared upon their return to come to a proper agreement, resulting in wise and useful legislation.

Now, therefore, I, George Stoneman, Governor of the State of California, by virtue of the power vested in me by section I of article V of the constitution, do hereby adjourn the Legislature until Tuesday, the 7th day of September, A. D. 1886, at 2 P. M. of that day.

GEORGE STONEMAN,
Governor.

Mildew on Grape Vines.

As soon as grayish spots appear on the under surfaces of the grape leaves, the vines are attacked by mildew. After a few days the portions of the leaf thus attacked will die, and the dead portion will break away, leaving a ragged hole in the leaf; sometimes the whole leaf will be destroyed. Flowers of sulphur, dusted upon the leaves with a bellows made for the purpose, is the general remedy. This should be applied on a still, hot day, and the bellows should be so worked as to fill the air with sulphur dust, which will settle upon all parts of the vine. Sulphur, in combination with lime, sulphide of calcium, has been successfully used in this country for the mildew upon the rose, and has been recently offered in France as Liquide grison and Eau grison. The liquid is prepared by boiling three pounds each of flowers of sulphur and lime, with six gallons of water. The boiling should be done in an old iron kettle. When the liquid is reduced to two gallons, allow the mixture to settle; then pour off the clear liquid and bottle it for use. In applying it, use one part of this solution with 100 parts of water. Spray the leaves with a syringe or some kind of garden engine. We would remind those whose vines are attacked by mildew, of a new treatment recently discovered in France, which we noticed in March last. Fifty pounds each of lime and sulphate of copper or blue vitriol are mixed in a cask with 100 gallons of water. When the vitriol is dissolved, sprinkle the liquid upon the vines, using a brush.—American Agriculturist.

Old Wine.

Herr E. Winkelmann, a German chemist, has made some curious revelations regarding the effect of age on wine. It is well known that Mosel wine improves till it is five years old, and then deteriorates. According to Winkelmann, there is an age at which all wines, including the very best, cease to be wholesome. He ordered some wines of the famous Bremen Rathskeller, Ruedesheimer Rose, 1653, and Hocheimer Apostel, 1726, highly recommended for their medicinal value, and found that they were deficient in natural glycerine, and contained as much acid as the cheapest new wines in poor seasons, so that they were positively injurious to health.

Horse Taming.

Some remarkable illustrations of the power of mind over brute force will be given by Oscar F. Gleason, the horse tamer, at the Coliseum in Lynn this week. How it is done is not easy to see, but he takes the most powerful and savage equine and in a few minutes reduces him to lamb-like subjection. For outward aids he uses a whip, a bridle of cord, straps and a revolver loaded with blank cartridges. The cord bridle is his most effective persuader to obedience. It is made in such shape that a pull at it will make the horse come with his lower jaw, or the jaw come without him in case he refuses. He always consents, however, when it comes to that. The most vicious and treacherous animal he has had in the course of his experience was a very large and fierce brown stallion from Montreal. The horse had developed a fancy for killing his grooms, and within a few days before Mr. Gleason took hold of him he had killed one man and nearly killed another. It was the expectation that he would be the death of Mr. Gleason. He was called the man-eating stallion. With the quickness of lightning he grabbed the trainer by the breast with his teeth. "Back, sir!" roared Mr. Gleason in a tremendous voice. Strange to say, the beast obeyed him. Again and again he approached with the same murderous intent plainly, but each time was driven off. To do this, after the first time, the trainer fired his revolver in the air. It shocked the beast's nerves, and brought him to a standstill. He was made to obey the command, "Come here!" Tripping the horse by means of straps about the legs and giving them a fall, is an important part of the discipline. The second lesson was teaching the stallion to obey the word "whoa." The trainer said: "Never use the word 'whoa' to your horse without you want him to stop short right there. Say to him 'steady' or 'easy' when you want him to go slower, but keep 'whoa' for an imperative order, for an instant stop, and see that it is obeyed. Doing so may be the means of saving your life some time."—Boston Herald.

Told by Great Men Who Would Not Lie.

The following hydrographic items are vouched for by the editors in the sections whence they emanate: It is so dry in Wheeler county, Texas, that the people have to sprinkle the water before it is wet enough to drink. In Limestone, Ky., the water is so hard that the inhabitants use plates of it for window glass. The drouth in Arizona is so severe that the water in a mint julep rustles like a bunch of dried leaves. The intense dry weather in Sangamon county, Ill., has made it impossible for the citizens to wipe their hands and faces on a sheet of water. The ducks which frequent a water course in the drouth section of the Mississippi have been laying hard-boiled eggs for the last three weeks. There is a stream in North Carolina so clear that a stranger walked right into it and was drowned before he knew the stream was there. The drinking water in Philadelphia in summer is so thick that it is customary to slice it up with a knife and serve it with ice.

Wants to be a Conversationalist.

There are all sorts of people in the world, and their wants are manifold—so manifold that at times it is hard to understand what some folks really do want. The following letter, recently received at the Inter-Ocean office, would indicate that the writer has a heart-weariness, a longing for the unattainable, evidently of long standing and, probably, incurable:

The "pocket" sewing machine has been approved and certified to by the London Times thus:

A remarkable step in advance in simplifying the sewing machine has been made by a German gentleman, and the practical nature of the invention was recently demonstrated. The new machine has not a wheel in it, and may be described as the working parts of a good sewing machine deprived of all extraneous details, and condensed within the smallest possible compass. It measures only eight inches high by about two inches wide and one inch deep. It is fitted at the foot with a screw clamp, by which it can be fixed to the edge of a table, and fairly worked by a child. The working motion consists of a vertical plunger pressed downward by the finger from the top, the plunger being returned into position for the next push by a spring. It makes a perfect lock-stitch, and will sew all kinds of fabrics, fine or coarse, within certain reasonable limits. Beyond its efficiency, it possesses an advantage which appeals to all, namely, that of economy in price. So small is its cost that it can be purchased for about $5.

We can depend upon and expect it now, for that "old reliable" organ invariably tells the truth in domestic matters when it condescends to them at all, and rejoice accordingly.

A Genuine Boy Preacher.

Last evening we had the pleasure of hearing a remarkable sermon preached in the Oliver Chapel, of this court, by a child nine years of age. He is a sacred orator of the first rank, with faculties much superior to those of most preachers we hear in the parish churches. He is the son of Don Manuel Martinez and Donna Mercedes Ortiz. He was born in Seville, and he resides in Madrid, where he is now pursuing his elementary studies, which he has begun rather late on account of his frail health. Rafael Martinez, as this remarkable child is named, has already preached in San Cayetano, San Lorenzo, San Andreas, Las Carboneras and other churches of this court. Bishops, priests and various ecclesiastical celebrities have listened to his sermons, and all have justly marveled at the exceptional gifts of this singular child.—Las Ocurrencias, Madrid.

THE office of Assessor of San Diego county is not much of a plum. It costs $2,800 to make the assessment, and the salary is $3,000.

CARP is used by Hartford to keep the city reservoirs clean. The fish have completely cleaned one reservoir of vegetable growth, and are now at work upon a second.

THE National Oleomargarine Association, numbering twenty-five manufacturing firms, will test the constitutionality of the oleomargarine law passed by the late Congress, before the United States Supreme Court.

THE design for the oleomargarine tax stamps is said to be a simple bull, tramping a serpent under its feet, in the center, while around the margin are the words, "Oleomargarine" and "Internal Revenue," the denomination of the stamp being indicated in the corner.

AN entire village in North Derbyshire, England, was offered for sale the other day; but the property did not change hands, as the highest bid was only £7,000, whereas the houses alone had cost £7,500 to build only a few years ago, and there were also a couple of large residences and an extensive mill.

A FARMER in Alameda county found a curious root at the bottom of his well, formed by a eucalyptus. The tree stood fifty feet from the well, but two roots had pierced through the brick wall of the well, sixteen feet below the surface, and sent off millions of small fibers, completely covering the bottom with a dense mat.

A MAN near Nevada City last Tuesday night, while lying on the railroad track, was struck by the locomotive running at "full speed" and was uninjured. He probably was a Nevada City man, and was struck on the cheek. We can only wonder how the locomotive escaped being made a total wreck. Wonder if Bohn, the whilom Marshal of Anaheim who successfully butted a locomotive at this depot, has strayed up to Nevada?

THERE is one feature of the British Government which commands the respect of the world, says an exchange, and that is the manner in which it upholds the rights of its citizens abroad. The old Roman spirit of "Civis Romanus sum" still holds good among Britishers abroad, and the Union Jack is a safe protection for the wandering Briton under whatever Government he may be. Our people would like to see a little more of this spirit shown by our Government. As it is, an American abroad frequently has cause to blush for his country.

Peace, With Honor.

The United States can breathe freely again. The danger that Mexico would obliterate this country all on account of an obscure editor has passed away. Cutting has been released, and it is presumed that all warlike talk and preparations will cease.

The decree giving Cutting his liberty, after a long preamble reviewing the history of the case, says:

"Considering that the offended party, Emigdio Medina, has desisted from the action to which he had right as against A. K. Cutting, and therefore the principal motive of the proceedings does not exist, therefore there is not, in the judgment of this court, sufficient foundation to continue the case, considering that the act of desisting on the part of the party offended is conceived to be with the principal object of quieting the alarm consequent upon his former complaint, as his terms clearly express, and as to continue proceedings on the point accurately decided in the first instance, would be not only to divest that laudable proposition of its effect, but also it would go beyond the intent claimed by the law and by National decorum. Therefore the court decides in the name of the justice of the State the following propositions: First, the act of desisting on the part of Emigdio Medina is granted from the civil action to which he was entitled against A. K. Cutting, who shall be placed immediately at absolute liberty; second, that the general prosecuting attorney of the State, Lawyer Jose Maria Gandari, and the defendant's attorney, Lawyer Joaquin Villaloa, be notified, and after returning the first book of minutes, let a corresponding order be issued to the Second Lower Judge of Bravas for its exact fulfillment, and let it be recorded in the archives of the State government. I, Lawyer Cipriano Pina, Magistrate of the Second Chamber of the Supreme Tribunal of Justice of the State of Chihuahua, for this act tried in the appellate grade, do so decree, order and sign. Before witnesses, I give faith. [Signed.] CIPRIANO PINA.

Increase in Freight Rates.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—It is learned that at the recent meeting of the Colorado Pool Association at Salt Lake it was decided to make a general increase of freight rates from this Coast to Colorado. The new arrangement will go into effect on September 1st. From California and Oregon terminals to Denver, Pueblo and Colorado Springs the rates will be the same, with a few exceptions, as from Chicago to the same points. The exceptions are as follows: From the Pacific Coast terminals to the Colorado points before mentioned carload rates on green fruit and oranges will be $1 40 per 100 pounds; on canned goods, $1 25; dried fruit and raisins, $1 30; wine in wood, $1 30; wine in cases, $1 90; brandy in wood, $1 90; brandy in cases, $2 10; sugar $1 20. The rate on clothing for less than carload lots has been fixed at $3; overalls, etc., $1 90; cigars, $2 10. On nearly all classes of goods there is a slight advance in rates.

Locating a Dead Body.

SHELBY, N. C., Aug. 24.—A voodoo doctor tricked the colored people here yesterday in a novel manner. On Saturday Bertha Criss, colored, was accidentally drowned and her body could not be found, when a voodoo doctor was consulted. He took the clothing the woman had worn the day before she was drowned and threw them into the river at the spot where she fell into the stream. The garments floated for about three-fourths of a mile and finally remained stationary in the stream. The doctor and his assistants then took long poles, and at the depth of sixteen feet, directly under the floating garments, the body was found.

POLITICAL.

The Republican State Convention convened in Los Angeles on Wednesday. Gen. Barnes was elected Chairman without opposition. After appointing the various committees, the convention adjourned, and the several Congressional delegations met. The delegations of the First District and the Second District accomplished nothing, and adjourned till Thursday; the Third District nominated Joseph McKenna, the present Congressman; the Fourth District adjourned to meet in San Francisco in two weeks. The Fifth District adjourned to meet in San Jose later. The Sixth District (in which is Los Angeles) adjourned until a final effort is made to get Markham to accept a re-nomination. Another peremptory telegraphic declination was received from Markham. The delegates from the Sixth District were to have met last evening to make a nomination.

On Thursday the convention balloted for three candidates for the Supreme Bench—two for the long term of 12 years and one to fill the term of Justice Ross. Judge Patterson of San Joaquin, Anson Brunson of Los Angeles, T. B. McFarland of Sacramento, Noble Hamilton and S. D. Lattimer were placed in nomination. The first ballot stood—Patterson, 318; McFarland, 227; Brunson, 194; Hamilton, 167; Lattimer, 8. Necessary to a choice, 230. Patterson was then declared the first nominee.

Second ballot—McFarland 286; Brunson, 102; Hamilton, 65. The chair then formally declared McFarland to be the second nominee for the long term.

Third ballot—Hamilton, 294; Brunson, 172; Nourse, 24; Southard, 11. Hamilton was declared to be the nominee.

The defeat of Judge Brunson is to be regretted. He is the peer of any lawyer in the State, and his nomination would have added strength to the ticket. The Los Angeles delegation voted solidly for him until the third ballot when Summerland, Hutton and Northam voted for Hamilton.

After the nomination of the Judges the Platform was adopted. The wine and water planks are as follows:

One of the most important questions under consideration by the people of California is the proper utilization of its water courses for purposes of irrigation, and when this great work is accomplished our State will support per acre a greater population than any other in the Union, and fertilize and fill with prosperity vast domains otherwise dedicated to perpetual barrenness.

The Republican party approaches this great question with a careful deliberation not less grave than that with which it has debated, and happily determined other momentous subjects; in the confident expectation that if entrusted with the power so to do, it will enact such laws as will deserve and receive the approbation of the people, and it here affirms as follows:

First—It is in favor of the immediate passage of a law declaring that henceforth no rights to water shall be acquired which will in any manner obstruct the State in the control thereof whenever it shall see proper to exercise such control.

Secondly—It is in favor of the passage of laws which will prevent the monopolizing of the waters of the State, and promote their utilization to the greatest extent possible.

Thirdly—In the passage of any laws upon this subject individual rights must be protected, but if those rights are found to interfere with effecting a just distribution of water and its utilization by the people upon equal terms, then such rights should be condemned and taken for public use under the same principles upon which all property is condemned and taken for public use, upon compensation being made therefor.

We demand an amendment to the Constitution which will permit such local and special legislation as may be necessary to effectuate these purposes.

Resolved, That the prosperity of our viticultural and horticultural industries is of a paramount importance to this State. In order to encourage their rapid development and a more free expansion of trade, in domestic and foreign markets, to prevent unjust discrimination in favor of foreign products and adulterations, a revision of internal revenue laws and amendments to the tariff are demanded as of immediate necessity to our people; and the Legislature should, by suitable legislation, provide for the effective extermination of our fruit pests.

After the adoption of the platform, the following candidates were nominated for Governor: John F. Swift, Gen. W. H. Dimond, Chas. F. Reed, Chancellor Hartson.

The result of the ballots was:

	1	2	3	4	5	6
Dimond......	153	156½	155	151	154	155
Hartson.....	111	113	108	110	103	105
Swift.......	108	119½	131	132	126	125
Reed........	83	63	62	61	66	68

After the sixth ballot the convention adjourned until yesterday (Friday) morning. About 230 votes are necessary to a choice. Following is the vote of the Los Angeles delegation:

For Dimond, 9, viz.: H. H. Boyce, L. N. Breed, George E. Gard, Sutherland Hutton, E. P. Johnson, Dr. A. McFarland, L. E. Mosher, R. J. Northam, Theo. Summerland.

For Swift, 1, viz.: H. A. Barclay.

For Hartson, 12, viz.: George H. Bonebrake, A. T. Currier, Hiram Hamilton, Thomas Lloyd, Hon. Chas. Maclay, E. L. Mayberry, W. N. Monroe, S. M. Perry, H. K. Snow, John M. Thomas, T. H. Ward and Capt. John West.

The Prohibitionists will hold a convention in Los Angeles on September 24th to nominate county officers. All men and women in the county, over the age of 21 years, who belong to the Prohibition party, or who will at the time join the party by signing the pledge roll, are invited to attend and take part in the proceedings.

Following is the salaries of the State officers: The Governor receives $6000 per year, Secretary of State $3000, Controller $3000, Treasurer $3000, Attorney-General $3000, Superintendent of Public Instruction $3000, Clerk Supreme Court $3000, State Engineer $6000, Commissioner of Labor $2400, Board of Equalization (each) $3000.

Exercising the glorious privilege of an American citizen and a Republican, Blaine gave battle to the Democratic party at a town in Maine on Tuesday. He found much to criticise in the hereditary enemy, but the meagre telegraphic report of the speech shows nothing above the ordinary level of political orations.

Senator Frye also delivered an address in another part of the State on Monday evening, and an exceedingly sensational oration it was. He gave our friends, the enemy, some heavy blows. He said:

To day you are represented in nearly every foreign port in the world by Democratic Copperheads. How did it happen? Some men say Burchard's little alliteration did it. Now that was simply an accident, nothing more. It did not offset the Northern Republican vote. I will tell you what did it. First, the suppression of the right to vote in the South did it, and next the Republicans did it. What kind of Republicans? Mugwumps. What are Mugwumps? Men who thought the Republican party had done an immoral thing in nominating James G. Blaine for President of the United States; men who thought they were better than the majority of men in the Republican party; men like Carl Schurz, George William Curtis, Henry Ward Beecher, who were too good to vote for Blaine. If you see a man marching the streets marked, 'I am an honest man,' distrust him at once. The people of this country, with exquisite fidelity to the best interests of the nation, saw a little bit of smirch on the skirt of Blaine's coat, and therefore voted that Cleveland, a man who was smirched from head to foot, should be President. The Prohibitionists beat us in New York. I say deliberately that some of the prohibitory leaders are unblushing, impudent scoundrels, who are helped by the Democratic party to beat the Republican party. I am in favor of putting a plank into the National Republican platform favoring prohibition. I am in favor of the Republican party shouldering prohibition. I know in time the party would conquer under that banner. What has the Democratic party done? It was going to do marvelous things. It was going to turn the rascals out. Every nomination made by the President is sent to the Senate. I know only two persons thus far who have been turned out for rascality; the rest have been turned out for partisanship. I can point out a number of Democrats who have been appointed to office who are drunkards and thieves, and have been in jail. I can pick out eight or ten appointments which the President has been compelled to withdraw and twenty that the Senators rejected because they were so vile and wicked. They were going to take off your taxes; they have increased them instead. They were going to cut down appropriations; they have increased appropriations. No Republican House of Representatives ever attempted to instruct the Secretary of the Treasury that he should pay the national debt. When the present Secretary of the Treasury kept the money in the Treasury, the Democratic House of Representatives directed him to use it to pay the national debt. They had no faith in the Democratic Secretary. The bill went to the President, and he refused to sign it. He had no faith in the Democratic House.

Two bogus mortgages are found to have been issued by Thomas H. Cordell, the Searcher of Records who disappeared from San Jose a fortnight ago. He raised $1900 on them, the money being furnished by Mrs. Louisa Hendt of that city, and the acknowledgement of the signature of a fictitious party in one case, and of a forged signature in another, being made by himself as Notary Public. It may be that there are other like mortgages out.

Holbrook & Phelps have a sawmill and flume six miles long in Shasta county. They use the flume for floating lumber to the dump near Buzzard's Roost. Two boys, the oldest 13, got in the flume among the floating lumber and one, when caught by the flume tender, was lifeless. The other was rescued with a broken leg and an arm pulled off. They were the sons of Armen Trout. Holbrook & Phelps had repeatedly warned all the children and even went to the schoolhouse and notified the teacher and children. No blame is attached to them.

At San Francisco Mrs. Elsie Reynold's spiritualistic frauds were again exposed Thursday night. She had made preparations for an elaborate seance. The spirit was unfortunate enough to respond to the request of a Mr. Julius Callandin, who proved to be a detective officer. When he approached the spirit it embraced him. He quickly responded by throwing his arms around it, and to his astonishment clasped flesh and blood. Shrieks followed and a general break-up was the result.

A Mystery.

How the human system ever recovers from the bad effects of the nauseous medicines often literally poured into it for the supposititive relief of dyspepsia, liver complaint, constipation, rheumatism and other ailments, is a mystery. The mischief done by bad medicines is scarcely less than that caused by disease. If they who are weak, bilious, dyspeptic, constipated or rheumatic, would oftener be guided by the experience of invalids who have thoroughly tested Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they would in every instance obtain the speediest aid derivable from rational medication. This medicine is a searching and at the same time a thoroughly safe remedy, derived from vegetable sources, and possessing, in consequence of its basis of pure spirits, properties as a medicinal stimulant not to be found in the fiery local bitters and stimulants often resorted to by the debilitated, dyspeptic and languid.

"I see," he said, as he met an old soldier comrade at the city hall yesterday, "that our Generals are having a hot dispute as to which of them contributed the most to save the day at Gettysburg. ☞ Extra copies of the GAZETTE are kept on sale at the stores of J. Helmsen and Max Nebelung.

—The Grand Jury will convene in Los Angeles on September 9th.

—Kellogg Bros. are selling fruit jars remarkably cheap, having put specially low prices on their stock.

—A new house has been built by Mr. Frank Seppi, who purchased the Coquillett vineyard.

—To the participants in the "double wedding" chronicled to-day, the GAZETTE tenders its heartiest congratulations.

—The shipments on the Anaheim branch railroad are now so large that the midday train is generally late in arriving and departing.

—Mr. Eccles of Westminster is so confident of the purity of his lard that he offers to pay a reward of $500 if it is not as represented. See advertisement.

—The Anaheim Lodge of Chosen Friends will be visited to-night by John M. Fallweiler, the Grand Councillor of the Order in this State.

—The A. U. W. Co. has decided to put new floors on flumes 12 and 6, and bulkheads on all the flumes. Eighteen thousand feet of lumber will be required.

—Our livery men did a rushing business last Sunday, as all their rigs were hired out to people who went to the Landing. It is said that more could have been disposed of for the day had they been procurable.

—We can vouch for the fact that Mr. B. H. Kerrick has some excellent horses for sale and those wanting sound young horses should correspond with him, as he invites them to do in his adv. printed to-day.

—A number of extraordinary large peaches has been presented to this office by Mr. David Bertsch, one of them weighing 12 ounces. The trees on Mr. Bertsch's place invariably grow large fruit.

—Fire wood is scarce again, especially the willow variety. But little teaming from the mountains is done at present, and the people use mostly willow wood in the summer, which is procured from the Gospel Swamp country.

—Mr. B. F. Porter was elected on last Saturday to fill the vacancy in the Board of Directors of the water company, but he has declined to accept. The Board hopes that the proverbial luck will follow their third attempt to fill the vacancy.

—From Mr. Silas Holman, who has been visiting San Diego, we learn that it is a common assumption in that thriving city that two more lines of railroad will soon enter the county—the L. A. & S. A. R. R. by way of Oceanside and the S. P. extended from Santa Ana.

—Coleman Walsh and his family, at Lancaster, were all poisoned by canned peaches Monday. A physician was in close proximity and all were saved, though the cases were serious. The fruit had been kept too long in the copper vessel in which it had been cooked.

—It appears that there is no public road leading to Walnut street from the depot, the passageway used being the private property of Mr. T. J. F. Boege and H. Newmark, who have no intention of dedicating it to public use. This is a correction of an item which appeared in these columns two weeks ago.

—A gentleman by the name of Dr. Evans, who came from Kentucky, has purchased the twenty acre tract of land adjoining that of Mrs. Collins on the east. He has already made some improvements by erecting a picket fence fronting on Center street, and enclosing the rest by a lath fence. He proposes to put in fifteen acres of alfalfa and five acres in vines.

—The Santa Ana Herald gives the following acreage of fruits in the district irrigated by the S. A. V. I. Co.:

Walnuts	490
Prunes	796
Apricots	903
Other deciduous fruit trees	505
Raisin grapes	8,944
Wine grapes	1,253
Orange and lemon trees	2,113
Total	15,004

—The Santa Ana Standard says: Last Sunday we walked through a pumpkin patch of twenty acres belonging to M. V. Lovering of Orangethorpe, and saw wagon loads of them that would average over 100 pounds to the pumpkin and one that would weigh over 200 pounds, while adjoining is corn that will go 60 bushels to the acre and hundreds of walnut trees that have grown over eight feet, and not a particle of water has touched either this season excepting the ordinary rains. We are pleased to say that ye editor's huge gopher ranche is in the same locality and flourishing by neglect as well as any ranche in the country. Our theory of farming is to secure the greatest spontaneous growth with the least spontaneous labor. But the dry belt will raise corn and pumpkins.

Don't Delay

And examine the remaining stock on hand, which must be disposed of regardless of cost at Dobner's.

—Monday morning the Santa Monica up train ran over a man about one mile and a half east of Ballona station. H. F. Haman, engineer of the train, when about half a mile from the place of the accident saw something on the track, which, from the intervening brush, he could not make out. When about three car-lengths away from the object he sounded the whistle, and this aroused the man—for the object was a man, and the engineer became aware of it, and saw that he was sitting on the rail with the feet outside and the remainder of the body inside, with his hands down, his legs drawn up and his head drooping down. When within one train's length the engineer saw the man raise his head and look toward the train, apparently making an effort to raise himself and failing. Haman tried to stop his train, but failed to and it passed wholly over the man and cut him clear in two. There was a rope, probably the rope he had used for his blankets, tangled around him and some people who examined the body at the time of the accident, seemed to believe that he had been tied to the track with it. The general impression was that he had tied himself.

Coroner McFarland held an inquest in the course of the day, at which the body was recognized by Deputy Sheriff D. W. Fields as that of Mathias Remler, a German, single, aged about 48 years, living at or near Santa Ana, from where he had been sent to Los Angeles to be examined as to his mental capacities. Col. J. Thompson, the County Jailor, has always held that the man was insane, but a medical commission decided otherwise in Judge Brunson's Court on last Saturday. The verdict rendered by the jury of inquisition was that Remler committed suicide by allowing a train of cars to run over him, and exonerated the train employes from all blame.

—Congress having failed to make an appropriation for the continuance of the Coast Survey, the work begun several months ago in this vicinity, and which came to an abrupt termination, will not be resumed this year. Capt. Lawson arrived here yesterday to superintend the removal of the baggage, etc., to San Francisco. We anticipated much pleasure from the stay of the gentlemen of the survey here this summer, and their friends here regret the circumstance which compels them to labor in another field.

—Eighteen Anaheim bloods assembled at the Padderatz residence on Wednesday evening to serenade the contracting parties of the "double wedding." After rendering some very harsh sounding music, which is usual on such occasions, they were welcomed by the happy parties, when all extended their congratulations. A most enjoyable time was spent in social intercourse, and the refreshments, etc., prepared for the serenaders were put to a good use by the jolly crowd. As the hour for departure drew near, all joined in wishing the happy couples a long and prosperous life.

—Last Saturday as one of the employes of Dreyfus & Co. was unharnessing his horses, he happened to leave one of the tugs attached to the single-tree, and gave the horse a blow to go on. This frightened the animal, and it started to run, whereupon the wagon moved, and was pulled to the entrance on Center street, the tongue catching under the boards of the sidewalk near Miss Mossmann's millinery store, and tore up a good portion of the woodwork and knocked the corner post out of position.

—Five sacks of ore were brought down this week from the Pellegrin mine in Silverado district. One would judge from the appearance of this ore that it is from a different ledge than that which was brought down lately. It is of a grayish blue tint, being alloyed with iron, while the first lot was of a yellowish color.

—Following is the total length, in feet, of the flumes on the Upper ditch of the A. U. W. Co. The flumes are all about eight feet wide:

No. 1	120½ feet	No. 8	495 feet
" 2	75 "	" 9	242 "
" 3	128 "	" 10	195 "
" 4	152 "	" 11	235 "

" 6	893 "	" 12	285 "

—Among the real estate transactions recorded during the week was the following: Estate of Sarah A. F. Wilcox, John D. Wilcox, John D. Wilcox, trustee, and John Alfred Wilcox to Annie Donahue—All interest of estate of Sarah A. F. Wilcox, deceased, in part of Ranchos Los Bolsas and La Bolsa Chica, Ranchos Los Coyotes, San Juan de Santa Ana, La Habra and Los Alamitos, and property in other counties, $36,400.

—The office of Mr. E. D. Gibson, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the seventh division, is at 115 Commercial street, Los Angeles (Room 34), where he will be found when not absent on official business. The seventh division comprises the counties of Los Angeles, Ventura and Santa Barbara.

—Several vintners are busy at work hauling their cooperage from the shops where it was manufactured. The wine-making season is drawing near, and every one is on deck getting the fixtures in order to be ready when the time for crushing arrives.

—A delegation of Anaheim Lodge, No. 85, A. O. U. W., went over to Orange on Wednesday evening to examine applicants for membership to a lodge about to be organized at that place.

—Another shipment of eighteen barrels of oil was made early this week from the Anaheim oil wells. This shows that work on the wells is progressing.

—The water will be in the lower ditch today, and will continue therein until Run No. 12 is delivered.

Grape-Growers, Attention!

A meeting of grape-growers, who sell their grapes to wineries, is hereby called for Monday evening, August 30th, at 7:30 P. M. at Kroeger's Hall, for the purpose of deciding at what price grapes shall be sold.

MANY GROWERS.

The Anaheim Railroad.

Mr. J. N. Victor and Mr. Fred. Perris, Superintendent and Chief Engineer, respectively, of the California Southern R. R., were in town on Wednesday. They were on a tour of inspection of the county, and proceeded from here to Oceanside by way of Burruel Point, Orange, Santa Ana, Tustin and San Juan.

It is probable that the force of men grading in the Santa Ana Canyon will shortly be increased, and the work of construction more vigorously pushed. The route of the road after it leaves the canyon has not yet been decided upon, though it is an open secret that Los Angeles is the point aimed at. If this is the case, there are several very direct routes which may be adopted.

Before making a final report and recommendation to the Directors of the company, the Chief Engineer desires to know whether the property owners on either side of the township line between townships 3 and 4 will give the indemnity bonds required by the company when they build along a county road. If these bonds are given, it is quite possible that the road will be built along this line, but if there are any obstacles placed in the way of constructing along this route then it is probable that the road will be built across La Habra rancho. It is also a common rumor that strong influences are at work to secure the adoption of the last-named route. It will be an exceedingly frigid day for this town and Orangethorpe and North Anaheim districts if the company cannot see their title clear along the township line, and it is to be hoped that the required conditions will be promptly complied with. It should be borne in mind that no right of way is asked, as that is already secured. What is wanted is merely a release from claims for damage by reason of the construction and operation of the railroad along the county road.

These releases are ready for signatures at the Bank of Anaheim and at the office of R. Melrose.

From the Seaside.

ANAHEIM LANDING, August 23, 1886.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—For more than a month we have been an eager expectant of a communication from some of our campers, and having so long been disappointed, now assume the pleasant task ourself and trust a few lines may not be wholly uninteresting.

Nothing new can be said descriptive of our favored point, it being a well established fact that nature has done more than usual to make it attractive—both as a health and pleasure resort. Beside the surf bathing, which is unexcelled, the placid waters of the bay afford splendid opportunities for swimming, skiff-riding and sailing; and through the polite accommodation of the proprietors of these boats, campers and visitors may at all times enjoy rare treats in that line.

The peninsula just across the bay furnishes a fine variety of shells and mosses, the beach a lovely drive, and last, but not least, we can boast of as fine a surface well as can be found on the coast, affording an abundant supply of fresh water for man and beast.

Our number has ranged from one hundred and fifty to two hundred, and during the season of two months no sickness or accident has occurred to mar the pleasure of our party, except in one instance where, from exhaustion, an old gentleman came near drowning, but was timely rescued by two of our gallant and skillful young boatsmen.

Truly, the sojourn here has consummated my ideal in the long ago past of "tenting on the beach," where the children revel in their innocent sports of gathering shells on the seashore, sliding down the sand hills and above all, their chief delight, playing in the water. Tired business men are lounging around in groups spinning fish stories, deer hunts and discussing railroads and other uncontrollable affairs; dreamy lovers stroll leisurely along gazing at the moon perchance, or else by day while looking out upon the broad expanse of ocean before them are planning for the prospective voyage on the ocean of life, while the interested mothers and grandmothers are gathered here and there, telling how it "used to be when they were young."

Being something of a gypsy in nature, we enjoy living in a tent for a while, and when we "pull up stakes" the coming week we will leave one willow pole which, having formed a prominent prop to our rude tent, has taken root and we hope it will continue to grow, as we would like to mark the spot indelibly that has rendered such solid comfort during the past six weeks.

The spacious old warehouse has furnished an excellent restaurant, rooms for boarders and rooms to renters, besides a commodious hall for candy-pulls, birthday parties, dances, literary entertainments and religious exercises. These religious exercises are deserving of special mention by having made our present season a striking contrast to former years, Sunday horse racing and pigeon shooting being numbered among the things that were. With two services on the Sabbath and a weekly prayer meeting Anaheimers may justly be proud that the Landing is a fit place for all God's people.

The season is now well spent and a few weeks more all will be returning to their respective homes, taking up the toils and duties of life; and while the places that know us now may perhaps know us no more forever, I trust not one can be counted who will have cause to regret spending their vacation at Anaheim Landing. OCEANIC.

Personal Paragraphs.

Miss Minnie Bailey of Los Angeles is here on a visit to the Misses Zeyn.

Mr. Robert Parker returned on Saturday from his trip to Canada.

Mrs. Richard Seale and family, who have been spending the summer up north, arrived home this week.

Mr. A. Hoffman of Stockton, brother of Mrs. Chas. Hilmer, is here on a visit, accompanied by his wife.

The parents of Mr. A. L. Benton have arrived from the East, and will probably settle permanently in this vicinity.

Mr. M. Oefinger, who was called to Stockton by the intelligence that his brother was dying, arrived home again early this week.

Mr. E. E. Dilley, who has been very ill for the past few weeks, arrived home from Norwalk with his family, where he was stopping during his illness.

Mr. D. K. Williams, an old-time resident of Anaheim, was tempted to come down from Los Angeles this week and renew old acquaintances.

Miss Jennie Gardiner of Orangethorpe is home again from her sojourn at the beach, and has taken up her work in Pellegrin's photographic studio.

Capt. A. S. Ferguson arrived from San Francisco on Thursday, but has been too much engaged in the work of his rancho to call upon his friends.

Viticultural and Horticultural.

The called meeting of grape-growers in Los Angeles on Monday was well attended. The Grape Growers' and Wine Makers' Association of Southern California was organized and the following officers were elected: L. J. Rose, President; H. D. Barrows, Los Angeles, 1st Vice-President; Theo. Reiser, Anaheim, 2d; A. Brigden, San Gabriel, 3d; W. A. Pile, Monrovia, 4th; I. M. Hellman, Cucamonga, 5th; J. H. Burke, Downey, 6th; Board of Directors, N. C. Carter, J. W. Batchelor, N. W. Getchell, Henry Stuhr, D. M. McGarry, R. Nadeau; Treasurer, W. H. Workman; Secretary, Geo. Rice.

The by-laws provide that the dues are to be $1 quarterly, payable in advance. Officers shall serve gratuitously, with the exception of the Secretary, whose salary is to be fixed by the directors. Estimates, prospects, statistics and a directory of membership are to be published yearly by the association. The limit of debts incurrable by the Board shall not exceed $400, necessitating two-thirds of the votes of the association at any meeting having a quorum; but debts to exceed that sum must be voted on by all the members, two-thirds forming a majority.

Discussion as to the methods by which the needed protection for which the association has been formed then ensued, and a committee was appointed by the chair, composed of Messrs. Barrows, Workman and McGarry, to report the best means to be devised by which the grape crop can be disposed of, either by selling them or by making wine and distilling.

The committee on disposition of the grape crop were to report at a meeting to be held yesterday.

L. J. Rose offered his distillery for the fall for $500 to the association, they to pay for repairs and insurance. It was proposed that W. H. Workman and a syndicate entertain this proposition and work the distillery, but no definite arrangement was made.

A political chestnut was raked up by W. H. Workman offering the following:

Resolved, That L. J. Rose is the choice of this viticultural meeting as the Democratic candidate for nomination of Governor at the State Convention, and we most urgently recommend to the delegates from this county to give him their unanimous support.

Some Republicans having strayed into the association, they objected to being politically shackled by this bit of sharp practice, and as a result of the discussion the resolution was modified so as to read:

Resolved, That we, the grape-growers and winemakers of Southern California, assembled, and regardless of politics, would hail with pleasure the nomination of L. J. Rose as Governor of the State of California.

Mr. R. H. Gilman, Supt. of the S. C. Semi-Tropical Fruit Company, is well pleased with the prospect for a good orange crop this year. The trees on the company's orchard are bearing heavier than last year, with the exception of the Navel variety. The fruit gives promise of being large and clean. We infer, however, that the prospective crop varies with locality, from the fact that Mr. L. W. Kirby does not expect as large a crop from his trees as last year.

Mr. John J. Weglein, of the firm of B. Dreyfus & Co., arrived from San Francisco on Wednesday and will remain here until the close of the vintage. We learn from Mr. Weglein that the crop of grapes in the northern counties will be quite large, and that a close estimate of the wine yield of this season from the vineyards as far south as Fresno places the amount at eighteen million gallons.

A number of grape-crushers were set in motion this week upon the earlier varieties—Riesling, Malvoisie, Sweetwater, etc. No price has as yet been fixed for grapes, but delivery is being made at several of the wineries upon the understanding that payment will be made at a price to be determined upon later in the season.

An inspection of some of the twigs of the diseased Mission vines shows that a worm has eaten the pith in the twigs. Whether the presence of the worm has any connection with the disease afflicting the vine is a question that has been referred to Mr. Morse, the viticultural expert, for answer. The discovery of the worm was made on the vineyard of Mr. John Taylor.

Wetmore is nothing if not sanguine. He says that the Prohibition States will help California to get the bill through Congress, prohibiting the sale of adulterated wines, because pure wine is needed for medicinal purposes. He also says:

"The fruit juice brandy is an interest that comes in conflict with the interest of wine makers. New York uses 600,000 gallons of thus stuff every year. San Francisco uses 70,000 gallons. There is perhaps a million gallons of it made. "Stretched" by the addition of water, it will make two million gallons of wine."

The raisin makers of Fresno met last week and passed resolutions addressed to the railroad company, protesting against the freight rate from Fresno to San Francisco and other points. They claim that Riverside is able to make shipments to Eastern points at one-half the rates paid by the Fresno shippers.

By arrangements made in Boston between the A., T. & S. F. Railway and the S. P. Company, rates on grapes attached to passenger trains are advanced to $600 a car to Chicago. The change took place Tuesday. It is to be regretted that the roads found this step necessary, as there were two to four cars a day going out, but this raise in cost of transportation is likely to stop the movement. In train lots of ten cars they will be carried for $300 a car. By ice-cars attached to freight trains they cost $400, take eight days to go through, and are said to arrive in good shape.

The St. Helena Star says that "the grape crop in Napa Valley this year, taken as a whole, is a fair average crop; not nearly as large as at first reported, but still quite satisfactory in point of quality to all growers. The quality is said to be excellent and is all the better because the vines are not burdened by an overproduction. Wine-making will commence in from two to three weeks, and the vintage bids fair to be an early one—grapes are already colored and are fast ripening. Prices are still uncertain—some sales are being made at $25 and $26, but there are those that claim these figures to be higher than are justified. We are not in a position to judge as to this last point."

It is estimated by wine men that fully 1,000,000 gallons of wine will be made in Napa City alone this year.

A naturalist in Modesto has discovered that the ants are this year digging the insides out of ripe figs and packing the cavities full of leaves stripped from rose bushes.

Lozenges in Scotland.

Pall Mall Gazette: Saturday night an interesting scene is to be witnessed in every town and village in Scotland. It is a stream of the natives in their Sabbath clothes making for the small grocers. The puzzled visitor little thinks that an inquiry into the meaning of this would give him the secret of Scotland's reputation for being a kirk-going people. What every one is off to buy is a bag of peppermint lozenges, and he always tells the shopman to give him the change in half-pennies. The half-pennies are for the plate, the lozenges for church consumption. Many pounds of the kind known as "extra strong" are eaten throughout the country at every service. There is a great art in slipping them solemnly into your mouth, and long practice has made some devout people so good at it that they can do it though the minister's eye be on them.

Our namesake of Pall Mall omits to give the reason for this Scottish custom—a custom, by the way, which we can remember as being universal in the remote period when we went to kirk in the land o' cakes. The Scotch people are as somnolent as they are devout; they work hard six days in the week, and not even the eloquence of their pastor can chase away drowsiness as they sit in the silent church listening to his expoundings. Hence, it is necessary to seek the aid of the pungent peppermint lozenge, which acts as a mild stimulant and drives sleep away. The average Scotch church goer would no more go to kirk without his lozenges than he would without his psalm book.

An Overflow in India.

MANDALAY, August 24.—One of the embankments of the Irrawaddy river burst in this city yesterday. The break is 300 yards in length, and so rapid was the flow of water that in a few moments the whole district was flooded from four to ten feet. Engineers at once cut the dam south of the city to allow the water to subside, but the result of this manœuver is as yet unknown. Fifty thousand persons are to-day homeless in this city, their houses and possessions having been either destroyed or submerged. The number of persons drowned by the sudden rush of waters has not yet been ascertained. The flooded district had within its territory many of the food supplying stores and all of these were swept away. The result will be an approach to famine among the homeless people. The river will not fall sufficiently to permit any attempt at the reconstruction of the broken embankment until November. The British military operations are seriously interfered with by the overflow.

MR. BENNETT—Dear Sir: * * By accident I came across your Insulator (a new invention to me) and perceiving at once the wonderful change in the tone of the piano since my last visit to that house, I concluded that I could not do without them, and therefore beg you to furnish me a set at your earliest convenience. Anybody who will take the trouble to place a muffled-sounding piano on a floor without carpet will find the piano is double its former value. But as our civilization compels us to cover our floors with carpet, we have to depend on your Insulators, which will give the same effect as if the piano stood on the bare floor, and we will have that clear, bell-like, ringing tone we so much desire. * *

GRAPE JELLY.—Stem the grapes and cook slightly; then strain and add a pint of sugar to every pint of juice; boil a few minutes.

PLUM JELLY.—Boil plums in a little water, strain through a jelly bag, add a pound of sugar to a pint of juice, and boil twenty minutes.

QUINCE PRESERVES.—Pare and core the fruit; boil in clear water until tender; make a syrup with a pound of sugar for each pound of fruit, and boil the quinces slowly half an hour.

A PEACH BETTY.—Remove the skin of the peaches. Put them whole, with layers of bread crumbs and sugar, in a baking tin; brown the top and serve with a sweet or sharp, hot butter sauce.

QUINCE JELLY.—Cut quinces in slices, pack in a shallow kettle and pour cold water over them; boil until soft; strain through a jelly bag. To a pint of juice add a pound of sugar, and boil until it jellies.

TOMATO PRESERVES.—Scald and peel perfectly ripe tomatoes, prick with a needle, add equal weight of sugar, and let stand over night; then pour off the juice and boil thick; add the tomatoes and cook until transparent.

FIG PRESERVES.—Take ripe figs, place in a wire bucket and dip in a kettle of hot lye. Make a syrup of sugar, pound for pound, and put the figs in, boil until done, take up, drain and put in glass jars. Boil the syrup and pour over.

PLUM PRESERVES.—Allow equal quantities of sugar and fruit; add water to make a rich syrup; boil and pour over the plums, let stand over night; drain off the syrup and boil half an hour; pour over the plums and put in glass jars.

PEAR PRESERVES.—Peel, cut in halves, core and weigh; allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit; make syrup and add to the fruit. When done, skim out the fruit and put in glass jars. Boil the syrup low, pour over and seal.

CRAB APPLE PRESERVES.—Put crab apples in the kettle and keep scalding hot for an hour, add a small lump of alum. Take the fruit up and skin but leave on the stem. Add a pound of sugar to every pint of juice and boil to a syrup; pour over the fruit and put in glass jars.

GRAPE PRESERVES.—Pick grapes from the stem, skin and put in a kettle; cook until the seeds are loose, then strain, weigh with the skins, and to every pound allow a pound of sugar. Put the grapes in the kettle; when boiling, add the sugar and cook slowly until done.

HUCKLEBERRY PUDDING.—Two cups of milk, two eggs, four cups of flour, half a cup of yeast or half a yeast cake dissolved in warm water, two teaspoonfuls of butter, a scant teaspoonful of soda, and half as much salt sifted three times with the flour; a quart of berries. Whip the eggs, butter (warmed) and milk together, and pour gradually into a hole in the sifted flour. Mix well, put in the yeast and set to rise in a bowl for four or five hours, or until light. Then stir in the berries, dredged thickly with flour, pour into a greased mold, and bake steadily for two hours. Turn out and eat warm with hard sauce.

WATER OR MUSKMELON PRESERVES.—Cut the rind in fancy shapes, put in strong brine, cover with grape leaves and set away. When ready to preserve, soak in fresh water; dissolve four tablespoonfuls of alum to every gallon of water; put in the rind; simmer till green, then work out the alum by putting the rind in cold water; pour boiling water on half a pound of ginger, and let it stand; boil and add three ounces of mace and sugar to make syrup; put the rind in and boil gently; let cool over night, then boil again; add a pound of loaf sugar to every pound of rind. Take up the rind, put in jars, boil the syrup thick and pour over.

WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.—Mix together 1½ gallons white wine vinegar, 1 gallon walnut catsup, 1 gallon mushroom catsup, ½ gallon Madeira wine, ½ gallon Canton soy, 2½ pounds moist sugar, 19 ounces salt, 3 ounces powdered capsicum, 1½ ounces each of pimento and coriander, 1½ ounces chutney, ¾ ounce each of cloves, mace and cinnamon, and 6½ drams of assafœtida dissolved in 1 pint brandy 20 above proof. Boil 2 pounds hog's liver for 12 hours in 1 gallon of water, adding water as required to keep the quantity; then mix the boiled liver thoroughly with the water; strain it through a coarse sieve. Add this to the sauce.

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs."

Georgia Prison Camps

Washington Star.

Few people have an idea of the real nature of the Georgia prison camps, where several hundred prisoners were recently in a state of mutiny for alleged mistreatment. The following description from the pen of a gentleman who has visited them, and who has made a study of the prison system of the country, will be of interest: On the northwest corner of Georgia lies the county of Dade. This is known to the neighboring regions as the free state of Dade, owing not only to the wild and mountainous character of the region, whose few and scattered inhabitants are in keeping with their surroundings, but because during the war of the rebellion they openly seceded from the State of Georgia and Confederacy, and managed to secure a freedom which they virtually maintain to-day. Through this county extends the southern prolongation of the Allegheny coal field, the workable beds of which are near the summit of the high and almost inaccessible mountains. In this wild region are situated the camps where the convicts are employed in mining and coking the coal.

These prison camps are peculiar in themselves, there being nothing like them in civilized countries, excepting Siberia, save in one or two of the neighboring States. They are the worst form of the Southern prison system, which is undoubtedly the most inhuman and barbarous in America. This system is a result of the impoverishment of the Southern States, and the inability of the newly freed and degraded negroes to accustom themselves to the blessings of freedom and is distinguished from the other three systems of the United States chiefly in this, that the entire personal control of the prisoner is relinquished to the contractor, who, in consideration of so much a year for the entire convict body, takes them, feeds, clothes, guards and maintain them, and in return makes all he can out of them. The only real responsibility to the State is to pay the amount annually agreed upon. In no other prison system in the United States is the State's control over the food, clothing, medical attention and discipline of the prisoner so completely relinquished. No prisoner is ever turned over for a day's labor to the contractor except with the sanction of the State's immediate agents, who at all times have his bodily care in his hands. Such is the theory of the Southern lease system of convict labor. It is readily seen that the margin for abuse is enormous; but what are the facts? Without exaggeration, these abuses are the most outrageous that ever blackened a people's history. The lessees, usually men of great influence in political life, have within their hands, with no real responsibility, the entire control of the life and death of any wretch whatever who may be confided to their keeping.

The prisoner is looked upon and treated merely as a source of moneymaking, and he is worked to his utmost, upon the cheapest and most unsanitary food, scantily and improperly clothed and housed, chained fifty in a gang in the most unhygienic manner, mentally and physically, that can be imagined. The death rate is seldom less than ten per cent of the population, and it often exceeds twenty. The deaths are usually from chronic dysentery, the result of improper food; typhoid fever, the result of improper sanitation; consumption and other pulmonary complaints, the result of improper raiment, shelter and ventilation.

The Dade county mines practically consist of three prison camps—two upon the mountain top (at Castle Rock and Cole City, respectively) and one in the valley. These camps consist of a huge stockade of logs stood side by side around a square, in which are numerous log houses in which the prisoners sleep. Stationed around the clearing are little boxes, in each of which stands a brutal guard with heavily loaded shotgun, who too often murders some vile wretch while seeking the freedom of the woods so temptingly near him.

The convicts are mostly ignorant negroes and low whites. Upon their entrance to the camp each one is given a striped suit, and a shackle is riveted around his ankle. Attached to this is a trace chain, in the end of which is a small ring. The chain is never removed until his death, unless by accident he survives his term of sentence. He gets his food—cornbread and bacon—in a pail, and is put to work in damp mines or at the door of the hot coke ovens. At night a log chain is run through the ring on the end of the one attached to his ankle, together with fifty others, and its end locked on the outside of the buildings. These fifty wretches chained in a bank are allowed to indulge in every evil that such association can bring. No schools or attempts at reform are ever made. The hours while idle are spent in their bunks gambling and blaspheming, and indulging in every license that the length of their chain will permit. A fire would cremate the whole lot in a few minutes, for there would be no escape.

The hospital is a miserable place, that would make a well man sick to gaze upon, and usually kills the sick who enter. Not a comfort or a convenience, and the ghastly crowd of consumptives and typhoids are enough to turn a heart of stone to see them there, where in the healthiest atmosphere of the world there is no shadow of excuse for their existence except the vilest unhygienic and unsanitary conditions.

It is a glorious sign of the times to see that the people are not altogether indifferent to this state of affairs, and the lease system is fast becoming an issue in Georgia politics.

A clergyman's wife, calling on Mrs. Gladstone at Hawarden, remarked, in speaking of the elections, that these were troublous time. "But," ejaculated she, piously, "there is One above that will guide us."

"Yes," said Mrs. Gladstone, "he will see us through it; and, if you will take a seat, I dare say he will be down stairs in a few minutes."

Specimen Dakota Tales

About two weeks ago I saw a farmer out behind a straw stack gathering into a heap a lot of old bones and pieces of hides and sprinkling salt on them. Yesterday I saw this same man selling a fine pair of steers to a butcher uptown. They were so fat and had filled up so fast that he had bound their hides with an old buffalo rope. This granger was a Sunday school superintendent before he came to Dakota, but he had swore these were the cattle I had seen him kicking together behind the straw-stack. He said all they had eaten was some wild grass that had sprung up in his door-yard, where the women folks had thrown a few tubs of warm soapsuds on wash days. He said that he had learned that the best way to winter stock in Dakota was to knock them to pieces in the fall, and set them up again as wanted, otherwise, unless we get a blizzard every week, they were liable to get too fat and round on the native grass.

Last fall I stopped at a house to borrow a match to light my pipe with. The man told me to go right out in the garden and pick all I wanted. I did not know what he meant at first; but he went out with me, and—I'm almost afraid you'll think I'm a liar for telling it—there was about half an acre growing the finest parlor matches I ever saw. They were as thick as hairs on a blind mule. He said he had a poor crop the year before, because the seed was too good for such soil. This year he had mixed his seed matches with about one-third toothpicks, and got a splendid yield.

I went out after breakfast and saw the man blowing up Hubbard squashes with gunpowder. They were too large to be moved, and the farmer wanted the ground. I noticed that one of his wife's legs was about eight inches longer than the other, and the man explained it thus: He said that when they first came to Dakota they lived in a "dugout," with nothing but the ground for a floor, from which they had to mow the grass once a day to find the baby. He said his wife had a habit of sitting with one leg over the other knee, and the leg that remained in contact with the soil got such a start that the other could never catch up.

Neat Replies.

Andrew Jackson, it is related, was at one time entertained at dinner by a gentleman, and among those present was one of those people who often find their way into storybooks, etc., as the type of that offensive class of Americans who are always trailing their nationality in the dust in the effort to exalt their individual independence. This particular gentleman, over the wine and walnuts after dinner, in order to emphasize his own independence of disposition, of which he was loudly boastful, remarked with a rare exhibition of self-complaisance to Gen. Jackson:

"I always voted against you, sir."

The company was naturally rendered speechless by this unexpected disclosure, and the scene actually looked squally; but Gen. Jackson put a stopper on the boastful individual and avoided further trouble by smilingly remarking:

"And I have always fought the battles of my country that you might enjoy that privilege."

Another instance of a happy response is that of an old Southern Judge—but whether Judge by courtesy or in fact, the writer cannot state—who must have had the faculty of quick and appropriate reply well developed, if the story related of him is true. He had been a fierce Secessionist, and the fact was not forgotten when, after the war, he re-entered the political arena of his native State. Speaking at a certain place one evening in the interest of his own candidacy for Congress some one in the audience, who evidently had a good memory, inquired:

"Didn't you speak here just before the war?"

"I did," proudly responded the Judge.

"And didn't you say we could whip the durned Yankees with pop-guns?"

"I did," replied the unabashed Judge, "but, confound 'em, they wouldn't fight that way!"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Facts About the Mule.

It is said that the mule cannot bray if you tie a weight to his tail and hold it down. This was touchingly illustrated in the cavalry movements in the second battle of Manassas. General Stuart, with a large force of cavalry maneuvering around the retreating army of Pope, got caught between two columns of the Union troops, and was obliged to conceal himself in a dense wood between two parallel roads along which the enemy was retreating. He had to lie low all night until the columns passed by. Messengers that the Union Generals sent to each other through the woods were captured and held with as little noise as possible. One great difficulty was to keep the mules in the ordinance and commissary wagons from braying and calling the attention of the foe. For this purpose Stuart ordered a man to be detailed to stand by each mule and whack him with a stick when he offered to bray, for a mule, like an orator, requires a certain preparation before beginning his neat and appropriate vocal exercises. There is a preliminary protest made with the ears, and certain solemnities of the nostrils, an expression of sorrow overspreads the countenance, and then the tail is lifted. A bray does not break forth from the lips of the mule. It begins away back in the abdominal viscera and comes gradually up. Now, as soon as the cavalry mules began to prepare for a bray, whack! whack! would go the sticks, and the bray would be suppressed—and thus all night. It is said that this was needless severity, for it would have sufficed to tie a brickbat to the tail of each mule.—Baltimore American.

Market Day in Salt Lake

Yesterday was market day, and the streets were filled with the farmers' wagons, and the farmers themselves and their wives and numerous progeny. This is the regular thing on Saturdays, and in a town away back in New England, or in Ohio, or Illinois, the fact would give an air of cheerful bustle and a picturesque aspect to the scene. But Utah farmers, like everything else which has been nurtured by Mormonism, look cranky, half-wild and generally uncomfortable. Instead of the bright-eyed, rosy-faced farmer of other sections of the country, men who live in wide, airy houses and work in the bright sunshine and clear air of the prairies; men who after their work is done at night sit down for an hour to read a newspaper, and when they meet discuss the politics or other interesting matters of the day, the farmers who come into Salt Lake on Saturdays are stoop-shouldered and shaggy-haired, with wild, unkempt beards, and skin sallow as though steeped in the close atmosphere of a small sleeping room during the nights. With them come the women, looking worse than the men, hollow-cheeked and worn with toil and care, the faces vacant with lack of intellectuality and eyes dull with looking at nothing with more than a mere animal interest. Where the wives and daughters of the Eastern grangers look rosy and bright, taking an interest in making the farm pay and getting a living from a goodly share of its produce, these women ride, jolting and jumbling, behind the lord of the manor, staring meekly at his back and not even showing an interest in the changing sights of the city streets, after the monotony of a country home all the week. The only thing which arouses their lethargy is the Temple, that monument to the system which seizes their petty earnings after all their hard work.

Dingily clad, with hands lying idly in their laps save when some one of a numerous family, fattening like young geese, attracts their attention, they swarm into the city; visit the tithing house to purchase what has been left for them after the best has been taked for some mogul of the church, and there sit under the trees, or wander about aimlessly like stray beings through the streets until time comes to go home again to the same dull routine. Yesterday their miserable appearance was enhanced by the mud through which they splashed stoutly, and the dingy wagons and rusty harnesses looked more uninviting than ever.—Salt Lake City Tribune.

A Woman of Genius.

One sees so many wonderful characteristics and adventures attributed to the English in the French papers that are evidently "not true," although "well invented," that I do not usually pay much attention to them. The following, however, is vouched for on the authority of M. Fernand de Jupilles. The locality was a provincial town in England:

A tenor named G., who was singing at the local theatre, was much in need of money. His bill at the hotel had just been presented and he was unable to pay it. He called on his manager and asked for an advance, but the latter was not generously disposed.

"I believe," he replied, "that your engagement calls for the payment of your salary at the end of the month, does it not?"

"Yes."

"Well, let us keep our agreement."

The manager would not see the matter in any other light. The artist was well known, however, so much so that the Prince of Wales had announced his intention of being present at that evening's performance. He left the manager very much cast down and returned to the hotel to tell his wife of his ill-success.

"Wait," said that excellent helpmeet, "I have an idea."

At her suggestion they wended their way to a pawnbroker's shop, which happened to be opposite the theatre.

"Sir," said the better half, "I have need of £20 for a few hours. Can you lend me them at your own rate of interest?"

"On what security?"

"The person of Mr. G., here present."

The pawnbroker burst out laughing.

"We are quite in earnest," replied the wife. "Mr. G. plays the principal part in the piece that is to be given this evening before the royal family. When I present your ticket to the manager he will of course hurry over to redeem an artist he can't very well do without."

After a little reflection the broker consented, paid the money, and the singer remained his prisoner, installing himself in the most comfortable chair he could find. The hour for the performance drew near, and the theatre began to fill. When it was found that G. was absent, the manager commenced to be anxious. What could have happened?

"This is what happened," exclaimed the brave little woman, who had just come in, "he is in pawn—a slave to his word he will not move till £20 has been paid for him."

"But that's impossible."

"It may be impossible, but your piece will not be played all the same."

"What's to be done?"

"Cross the street and pay the pawnbroker; it'll only take a minute."

There was no other way out of the difficulty; the pawned tenor was redeemed and the manager was compelled to admit that a woman's wit had carried off the honors of the contest.—New York Graphic.

"I sat just beside Horace Greeley once at a great political meeting in New York just after the war," said the Rev. Dr. Bennett, "and heard him define the difference between society and politics. Said he, looking over the crowd: 'If I were to confine the right of suffrage to only such of you men as I would permit to marry my daughter, there'd be mighty few of you ever get a chance to vote.'"

THE BEST

Hair restorative in the world is HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. It cures all diseases of the scalp, and stimulates the hair glands to healthful action. It stops the falling of the hair; prevents its turning gray; cures baldness, and restores youthful color and freshness of appearance to heads already white with age. The following are a few illustrations of what is done by

HALL'S

Vegetable Sicilian

HAIR RENEWER:

☞ MRS. HUNSBERRY, 344 Franklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., after a severe attack of Erysipelas in the head, found her hair—already gray—falling off so rapidly that she soon became quite bald. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER brought it back as soft, brown and thick as when she was a girl.

☞ MR. KESLING, an old farmer, near Warsaw, Ind., had scarcely any hair left, and what little there was of it had become nearly white. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER stopped its falling out, and gave him a thick, luxuriant head of hair, as brown and fresh as he ever had.

☞ MRS. A. T. WALL, Greenfield, Cheshire, Eng., writes: "I have found the greatest benefit from the use of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, it having restored my hair, which was rapidly falling off, and returned its original color."

☞ DR. EMIL SEIP, Detroit, Mich., certifies that "HALL'S HAIR RENEWER is excellent for hair growing, and gives back the natural color to faded and gray hair."

☞ MRS. S. E. ELLIOTT, Glenville, W. Va., says: "One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER restored my hair to its natural, youthful color."

No injurious substances enter into the composition of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, and it is not a dye. Its vegetable ingredients render it in the highest degree beneficial to the scalp as a preventive of disease. Its effects are natural and lasting, and it does not make the hair dry and brashy, like the so-called restoratives compounded with alcohol.

1st—It will produce a rich, natural color, brown or black, as desired.

2d—The color so produced is permanent, cannot be washed off, and will not soil anything with which it comes in contact.

3d—It is a single preparation, and more convenient of application than any other hair or whisker dye.

4th—It contains no deleterious ingredients, as do many preparations offered for like use.
