YOUNG WINES.

The following suggestions, from Mr. H W. Crabb of Oakville, were read at the recent convention of Grape Growers and Wine Makers:

OAKVILLE, March 5th, 1887.

Mr. President—The grape is the noblest of all fruits, and the products of its juice have been justly praised in song and verse.

Young wine is continually undergoing changes, and like a child requires careful nursing, and like the price of liberty, demands eternal vigilance.

If neglected, it is as prone to go wrong as the spark is to ascend upward.

1st. Everything about the cellar should be kept clean and sweet.

2d. The wine in tanks should be filled up once a week.

3d. Young wines in warm cellars should be racked every two months, commencing with the middle of December.

4th. White wines that are cloudy at the time of the second racking should be clarified with one pound of gelatine, first sulphuring the tank strongly.

5th. Rack them off the finings in ten or twelve days.

6th. If after four days any of the wines have not commenced to clear, rack them off and repeat the operation.

7th. Wines will ripen faster in puncheons than in tanks.

8th. Dry wines should contain twelve per cent of alcohol.

9th. Wines that are viscid require tannin at clarification.

10th. Red wines need racking as often as white, and without sulphur.

11th. When cloudy, clarify them with egg albumen instead of gelatine, using one pound to the 1,000 gallons.

12th. If any fail to clear in four days, repeat the operation.

13th. When clear put those that are to be tinish in puncheons.

14th. Rack sweet fortified wines four times the first year. They should contain twenty per cent of alcohol.

15th. Filtering machines should only be used on wines for immediate consumption.

16th. Pasteurizing is the best method of treating stubborn wines.

17th. Mousiness in red wines comes from decomposition of the lees by neglect of racking often enough.

18th. Wines are unstable as long as they contain any foreign matter, and the more they are freed from it the better, and the more certain and rapid will be their development afterward.

19th. Every man, if possible, should be his own cellarman.

20th. That 656 tanks is the most practical shaped cooperage for the handling of young wines.

Starvation in Texas.

GALVESTON, April 2.—A special to the News from Austin says that State Senator Woodward, of Calhoun county, has received a statement from Aransas county, sworn to by four responsible citizens and endorsed by the County Judge, the Sheriff and the County Clerk, giving the names of nineteen families in that county, whom the officials declare are in a condition of starvation, occasioned by drought. The number of persons in each county, as stated, show a total of 105 persons. The paper states that these families are unable to procure sufficient food, and are now resorting, in some cases, to eating the carcasses of cattle that have died of starvation. The signers of the statement appeal for aid from the Legislature, but as nothing more can be expected from that source, it is left for the generous to render such aid as they can. The statement, after representing the deplorable state of affairs, concludes by saying that whatever will be done should be done at once.

DROUTH IN TEXAS.

GALVESTON, April 3.—There are indications of the prevalence of a serious drouth throughout the State, affecting in a large measure its agricultural as well as its live stock interests. The drouth may be said to be the continuation of last year's dry spell, as no general rains have fallen through the interior since last September, while local showers have been few and inadequate during the past six months. The drouth now extends over the great cotton belt, jeopardizing the outlook for the coming crop by retarding and preventing planting which is usually in full progress at this season, but can scarcely be said to have commenced, except in the coast counties, owing to the extreme dryness of the earth. Along the coast cotton is up, and reports from several points speak of some damage by frost the past few nights.

Relics of Beauty.

Livia was thirty-three when she won the heart of Augustus Cæsar, over whom she maintained her ascendancy to the last.

Pericles met Aspasia when she was thirty-six, and yet she afterward for thirty years or more had an undiminished reputation for beauty.

The famous Mme. Recamier was thirty-eight when Barras was ousted from power, and she was without dispute declared to be the most beautiful woman in Europe, which rank she held for fifteen years.

Ninon de l'Enclos, the most celebrated wit and beauty of her day, was the idol of three generations of the golden youth of France, and she was seventy-two when the Abbe de Beras fell in love with her.

Mlle. Mars, the celebrated French tragedienne, only attained the zenith of her beauty and power when forty-five. At that period the loveliness of her hands and arms especially was celebrated throughout Europe.

De Poictiers was thirty-six years of age when Henry II—then Duke of Orleans and just half her age—became attached to her, and she was held as first lady and the most beautiful woman at court up to the period of the monarch's death.

Catherine II of Russia was thirty-three when she seized the empire of Russia and captivated the dashing young General Orlon. Up to the time of her death, at sixty-seven, she seemed to have retained the same bewitching powers, for the lamentations were heartfelt among all those who had ever known her personally.

Helen of Troy was over forty when she perpetrated the most famous elopement on record, and as the siege of Troy lasted a decade she could not have been very juvenile when the ill fortune of Paris restored her to her husband, who is reported to have received her with unquestioning love and gratitude.—Philadelphia News.

Anaheim Wines.

The following letter will explain itself and is a pretty good recommendation of the excellence of Anaheim wines:

LOS ANGELES, March 25, 1887.

W. B. Matthews, Esq.

MY DEAR SIR—In reply to your inquiries I am pleased to say that the car of Anaheim sherry which you so kindly got Mr. Theodore Reiser, of Anaheim, to put up for shipment to Boston, safely arrived, after some delay in passage, and seems to have given marked satisfaction to some gentlemen quite familiar with good foreign wines. One of them, writing March 16th, briefly says: "I think it a very pleasant wine—certainly remarkable for its price."

Another gentleman, who has a fine and delicate taste, wrote to me, February 28th, as follows: "I have tried the sherry twice, and like it very much. It has the strong bouquet and fruity flavor of all the California wines I have ever tried, and is so entirely different from the sherries usually served that I can make no comparison. The first time I had some was at dinner, with three other people, after we had drank some 'Veterans' pale sherry,' which is pretty good and not tiery, nor dry. The contrast was very noticeable, and we all thought the California wine reminded us of Catawba."

"The next day I had some at lunch without any other wine; and it seemed to me much less pronounced in flavor and not so sweet. I prefer it very much to a dry wine, but I don't think most people would, as I find myself quite singular in liking sweet brown sherry, sweet champagne, etc. It seems to me very pure and without alcohol."

March 14—This last gentleman, writing spontaneously to me about the wine, in postscript, says:

"I like the Anaheim sherry better than any wine I know of the kind. It is delicious to me."

You can easily understand why a tasteformed on dry and often altered sherries, should be at first surprised by so rich a wine, with so much aroma. You observe that also Mr. Reiser's Sherry wines seem less marked by the flavor peculiar to the California wines, and grow in favor, so as to seem "delicious" to a refined and temperate taste, uncorrupted by the use of spirits in any form. I think the strictest friends of health and temperance might welcome the general substitution of such wines for the fiery stimulants and vile mixtures with foreign labels that are destroying the morals and the stomachs of the American people.

Yours very truly,

HON. ERSKINE SARGENT.

The Lomas de Santiago.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—In the matter of the Rancho Lomas de Santiago, in Los Angeles county, Cal., Acting Secretary Muldrow to-day, in a letter to the Attorney-General, declines to recommend any further legal proceedings to set aside the patent to these lands, believing that even the United States Supreme Court has not the power to review the decree of the United States Circuit Court of California in matters of property at issue and decided therein, "unless for frauds intrinsic and collateral to the matter tried by the first Court, and not relating to the fraud in the matter on which the decree was rendered." And inasmuch as no such frauds are alleged in this case, he sees no possible ground on which the former decree can be attached.

Some Austrian vineyardists have discovered that the phylloxera prefers Indian corn to grapevines. In their vineyards, where the pest had begun its ravages, they observed that vines near which corn had been planted were unmolested, although at a little distance similar vines growing in the same ground perished rapidly. They made extended experiments, which demonstrated to their satisfaction that the vines could be protected by planting maize near them. This may be worth the attention of California vineyardists. A little experiment will determine whether the corn will really exempt the vines, or merely serve as a nursery of phylloxera. It will also show whether corn planting, to act as an effective remedy, must be so extensive, and so close to the vines as to affect their growth and vigor. Perhaps by drawing the disease from the vines to the corn and then destroying the latter the pest might be eradicated, or at least rendered comparatively harmless from season to season.

ODD THINGS IN CHINA.

The highest ambition of a Chinese gentleman is to have a nice coffin and a fine funeral.

They feed their friends sumptuously when dead, but let them take care of themselves the best they could while alive.

Old women instead of the young are the belles of society.

The highest recommendation a man can have is the fact of his having a wife.

A bachelor is likened to a counterfeited coin; he is looked upon with suspicion even by members of his own household.

Love-making is only done three days after marriage. It is not only considered the safest way to get ahead of a rival, but the surest way to get a wife without losing much time.

A previous acquaintanceship between the male and female prevents them from marriage. For this reason a man seldom weds a girl of his own town. They are likewise prevented from marrying kins or namesakes. Joneses are not allowed to marry Joneses, nor Smiths to marry Smiths.

A girl is never considered anything else in her own father's house than an honored guest. She is neither responsible for the family's debts nor enjoys a share in its fortunes, as in the case of sons.

Daughters depend upon their husbands for fame and fortune, while sons depend upon the parents and upon themselves.

A man could borrow money on the strength of his having a son, but no one would advance him a cent if he had a dozen of daughters. The former is responsible for the debts of his father for three generations. The latter is only responsible for the debts of her own husband.

When a Chinaman meets another he shakes and squeezes his own hands; covers his head. If great friends had not seen each other for a long time, after the mutual hands-shaking they would rub shoulders until they become tired. Instead of asking each other's health they would say: "Have you eaten your rice, where are you going, what is your business when you get there, how old are you, and how much did you pay for your shoes?

Men wear long petticoats and carry fans, while the women wear short jackets and carry canes.

Boats are drawn by horses, carriages moved by sails.

Old men play with balls and fly kites, while children fold their arms and look on.

Schoolmasters have more power over young than parents. If within three years' schooling the child is not morally as well as intellectually reformed he is sent into another school.

Parents and spectators instead of the children are held responsible for crimes committed by the latter.

"It is better to be ignorant and know how to live than to be learned and not know how to live. The principal object of a school is to learn how to live in tranquility and happiness and nothing more." So say all Chinese scholars.

It is a much lesser crime to steal your neighbor's ox than to steal his dog. The former is simply personal property, while the latter takes the place of a man—watchman.

If a Chinaman desires the death of an enemy he goes and hangs himself upon his neighbor's door. It is a sure cure to kill not only that particular enemy, but members of his entire family will be in jeopardy of losing their lives.

When a Chinaman desires a visitor to dine with him he does not ask him to do so, but when he does not wish him to stay he puts the question, "Oh, please stay and dine with me!" The visitor will then know he is not wanted.

A rich man's servant gets no salary, yet many are the applicants; while big salaries are paid to the servants of the common people but few make applications. The peculiarities of the former often more than triple the salaries of the latter, are the sole reasons of these differences.

When a Chinaman expects a present and it does not come he sends one of lesser value.

To encourage honesty and sincerity, confidential clerks and salesmen in all branches of industries receive an annual net percentage of the firms' business besides their regular salaries.

WONG CHIN FOO.

Reward for a King's Head.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Capt. McCullough, who arrived a few days ago in command of the brig William G. Irwin, from the Sandwich Islands, relates a remarkable story of Chinese enmity against King Kalakaua. He states that certain Chinese firms paid a bribe of $70,000 to a native officer holding a high position to secure his influence in obtaining the exclusive right to sell opium in the Hawaiian Kingdom, and that the Chinese firm in question failed to secure the prize. They then demanded the return of the bribe, which was refused. McCullough further states that the Chinese have decided not to submit to what they consider an outrage, and when he left the walls of Honolulu were covered with handbills in Chinese offering a reward of $5,000 for the head of King Kalakaua. It is said that the guards have been doubled about the palace.

Peculiar Courtship.

A French peasant girl of spirit and determination was deserted by her lover, who had promised to marry her. Some time afterwards he called and found her washing clothes in the garden, near the well. They had been chatting awhile, when suddenly the girl, as if by accident, dropped a cloth into the well and exhibited great grief over the loss of it. Her companion volunteered to lean over in the well and fish the garment out; but while he was so engaged, the girl caught him by the legs and threw him in. In reply to his cries she told him if he would promise to marry her she would pull him out. He did promise; but no sooner was he out than he brought suit against her for trying to murder him. Then at last he withdrew it and married her. He came to the conclusion that he had met his match.

The Duck Hunter's Story.

"Speaking of duck shooting on St. Clair Flats," sighed an old citizen, as he took a seat in a gun store yesterday, "I don't think there are as many birds up there as there were ten or fifteen years ago. Why, sir, the channels used to be just black with 'em, and they were so tame that you could knock 'em on the head."

Everybody sighed to think those good old days and ducks could never return, and the veteran hunter continued:

"I remember I was out one day in April. I got in among the flocks, and how many do you suppose I counted?"

"Three hundred," ventured one of the audience after a long interval.

"Three hundred? Why, I always killed over a thousand every time I went out! No, sir, I counted over sixteen thousand, great, big, fat, plump, delicious ducks, and then I had only counted those on one side of the boat!"

"How long did it take you?"

"I don't know, sir; I had no watch with me. Time is nothing to a man counting ducks. I counted aloud, and when the ducks were small I counted two for one. By and by I got tired of counting, and got ready for the slaughter."

"How many did you kill?"

"Well, now, I suppose I could lie about it, and say I killed nine or ten hundred, but I'm getting too near the grave for that. No, I didn't kill a blasted one, and that's where the strange part of the story comes in. When I began to lift that gun up those ducks knew what I was up to just as well as a human being, and what did they do? Why, sir, about two hundred of 'em made a sudden dive, swam under the boat, and raised up on the port side at once and upset her! Yes, sir, they did, and there I was in the North Channel, in ten feet of water, boat upset, fight coming on, and I in my wet clothes."

"Well?"

"Well, I climbed up on the bottom of the boat, floated five miles, and was picked up by two Indians. We towed that upset boat to an island, and here another curious thing comes in. Under the boat were two hundred and sixty-four large, plump ducks. They had been caught there when she upset, and all we had to do was to haul 'em out and rap 'em on the head."

"Why, why didn't they dive down and get from under the boat?" asked an amateur duck shooter.

"Why didn't they, sir?—why didn't they? Well, sir, I might have asked 'em why they didn't; but it was late, a cold wind had sprung up, and I didn't feel like talking! All I know is that I counted over sixteen thousand ducks, was upset, captured two hundred and sixty-four, and have affidavits here in my wallet to prove everything I have stated. Does any man here want to see the documents?"

No man did. They all looked out of the windows and wondered if they could lie that way when they had passed three score years.

A Twin Romance.

A double wedding took place on February 3d, about 10 miles from Buffalo, in Putnam county, West Virginia, some of the circumstances of which are curious enough to provoke the relation. A few years ago Brown located on little Possum Creek, that goes to feed Poca river. John and Gabriel were the only children possessed by the said Browns—twins, aged 18. Strangely enough, their nearest neighbors were the Lykins family, whose only children, likewise twins, were Susan and Peggy, about 18 years of age. The Brown brothers were comely boys; tall and sinewy. The Lykins girls fell straightway in love with them, Susan favoring John, while Peggy favored the dark-eyed Gabriel.

The way of true love ran smoothly enough until a few weeks since, when, by some chance preventing the presence of Gabriel and Susan at singin' "In the Little Log Cabin in the Lane," John conducted Peggy to her home, discovering in that brief while that she came nearer his ideal of what he would like for a helpmate, and recklessly telling her so. Somehow the story gave Peggy no offense. Thus the two became distraught and sought to postpone marriage. Simple-minded Gabriel was complaining of it all to buxom Susan, and added: "I'm sorry, anyhow, that I'm engaged to Peggy instead of you." She, by happy chance, agreed with him, and was overheard by the doubting Peggy, who conveyed the glad tidings to the discouraged John. Presto, change! And all went merry as a chorus of cow-bells in a summer meadow. "The four twinses" will have twin cabins near the big mill road.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Suggestion to the Traveling Public.

Tourists, emigrants and mariners find that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a medicinal safeguard against unhealthful influences, upon which they can implicitly rely, since it prevents the effects of vitiated atmosphere, unaccustomed or unwholesome diet, bad water, or other conditions unfavorable to health. On long voyages, or journeys in latitudes adjacent to the equator, it is especially useful as a preventive of the febrile complaints and disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, which are apt to attack natives of the temperate zone sojourning or traveling in such regions, and it is an excellent protection against the influence of extreme cold, sudden changes of temperature, exposure to damp or extreme fatigue. It not only prevents intermittent and remittent fever, and other diseases of a malarial type, but eradicates them, a fact which has been notorious for years past in North and South America, Mexico, the West Indies, Australia, and other countries.

Another Railroad.

[San Diego Union.]

There are three railroads now building, whose objective point is San Diego. These are the Santa Ana extension of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, the San Diego Central and the Southern Pacific line from Santa Ana through Poway, Escondido, Bernardo and El Cajon, to San Diego.

A company was yesterday formed to build a fourth line to this city from the north. This corporation will be known as the Los Angeles, Niagara and San Diego Railroad Company. The members of the company are all residents of this city, but the road is understood to have a connection with the Southern Pacific. This is borne out by the route which has been laid out for the line. The proposed road will start at Puente, a station above Colton, on the Southern Pacific, running thence to South Riverside, through the Chino, Rincon and La Sierra ranches; from South Riverside to Niagara, passing within one mile of Elsinore, and near the coal and tin mines which are now being worked but partially from lack of transportation facilities; from Niagara running to San Diego by the old surveyed line of the San Diego and San Bernardino railroad. To this road much fertile country will be tributary, although it is only fifteen miles longer than the Santa Fe east line. The total length of the line, if completed, would be 150 miles. It would parallel the San Diego Central and Southern Pacific roads for about seven miles in Escondido and San Bernardino.

The capital stock of the company is $1,500,000, of which ten per cent. is subscribed and paid in. It is held by Chalmers Scott, who retains $14,000 of it, and by O. S. Hubbell, D. C. Reed, A. Cassidy, T. J. Daly, W. H. Carlson, H. A. Nelson, H. T. Christian, T. J. Higgins, P. C. Romondino and C. W. Pauly, who own blocks of $13,600 each.

Articles of incorporation have been signed and filed with the County Clerk.

The Latest and Greatest Discovery

—DR. J. DE PRATI'S HAMBURG FIGS.—A crystallized fruit cathartic. A discovery of the greatest interest to the Medical Profession. A boon to every household. A most delicious laxative or purgative prepared from fruits and vegetables. So perfectly harmless that they may be administered with entire safety to an infant. So efficacious to adults that a single dose will prove their value, and so elegant a preparation that it needs only to be presented to the public to become a necessity in every household throughout the land. For liver complaints, habitual constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and piles, they are a specific. To travelers by sea and land they will be found invaluable; they are positively unfailing in their action, and this is the only medicine ever offered to the public that is acceptable to the taste, and so pleasant that children will eat the figs as eagerly as candy. An Orange Analyzed.

The Journal of Chemistry gives the following analysis of an orange purchased in the Boston market: The skin weighed 67.5 grams, which is 23.53 per cent. The seeds weighed 6 grams, which is 2.84 per cent. The pulp weighed 182 grams, which is 73.83 per cent. The skin contains in 100 parts: Water and volatile oil, 78.00; organic matter, 21.30; ash, .84. The seeds contained in 100 parts: Water, 90.90; organic matter, 8.68; ash, .83. The pulp contained in 100 parts: Grape sugar, 4.3; cane sugar, 4.2; in free acid, 1.6. The free acid consisted of about equal parts of malic and citric acid. The ash constituents of the orange were as follows: Potash, 38.9; soda, 7.6; lime, 23.0; magnesia, 6.5; ferric phosphate, 1.7; sulphur, 2.9; silica, 6.2; phorphoric acid, 14.1.

Heart Disease!!

Read the hospital reports, read the mortuary reports, read the medical publications, read the daily newspapers, and learn how wide spread is heart disease, how difficult of detection it is to most people, how many and how sudden are the deaths it causes. Then read Dr. Flint's Treatise on Heart Disease, and learn what it is, what causes it, what disease it gives rise to, what its symptoms are, and how it may be attacked. If you find that you have heart disease, ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. Flint's Heart Remedy. The treatise may be had on application to J. J. MACK & Co.,

A Use for Mosquitoes.

A writer in the Springfield Republican claims to have found out the useful point of the mosquito. He says: "I found out the real mission of the pest by putting a lot of the wigglers into a hogshead of water and filling another hogshead, into which no wigglers were put. The second body of water soon became foul, while the first remained sweet, showing that our swamps would more often become sources of disease, if they were not infested with mosquitoes.

HIGH LICENSE is an idea which is spreading and taking root throughout the whole country, including California. Two license is prohibitory, or nearly so, in many municipalities in this State, but San Mateo is the first of the counties to adopt the system. It has raised liquor licenses to $750 per quarter.

FRED. SCHUMAN, the Secretary of the Hall Association, Independent Order of Red Men, has eloped with $20,000 of the association's money. Guide to join El Hammad. The beautiful moral precepts of the Order do not appear to have sunk very deep into the heart and conscience of Schuman.

REPORTS from twenty-three counties in California, printed in the San Francisco Call, show that in the northern and eastern counties a fair average yield of cereals is assured. In the San Joaquin valley more rain is needed for even a two third crop. In the Santa Clara and Napa valleys the outlook for fruit is excellent. In the southern counties late rains will produce an average yield.

A PETITION has been circulated requesting the Board of Supervisors of Stanislaus county to call an election for the purpose of forming an irrigation district in that portion of Stanislaus county lying south of the Tuolumne river. Said election to be held and district to be formed under the Wright Irrigation bill passed by our last Legislature and which has been published in the GAZETTE.

THE steamer City of Peking, which arrived at San Francisco on Monday brought a cargo of Chinamen and smallpox into that harbor, and was at once quarantined. Several of the Chinese passengers have a virulent form of the disease, but it is probable that the tremendously acute doctors of the Board of Health, who found so much fault with the Los Angeles physicians, will be able to prevent its spread.

SAN FRANCISCO also has its boodlers. The United States Grand Jury have found indictments against John A. Benson, an ex-official; State Surveyor-General Theodore Reichert, James R. Glover, Duncan McNee, M. F. Reilly and W. K. Stack, for conspiracy and perjury in connection with fraudulent surveys of public lands. One never knows who will be hit when the Grand Jury explodes.

THE Chinamen of San Luis Obispo have inaugurated a boycott against the proud Caucasian, by closing their laundries. This action on the part of the Celestials was caused by the city trustees passing an ordinance a short time ago specifying that no wash houses should be conducted within the fire limits of the city. The Chinese are loth to move, and declined to do washing, to see what effect the experiment will have on the community.

"THIS Legislature will pass into history as the cheapest and most worthless aggregation of pettiness and stupidity ever assembled under the dome of the capitol of any State."

The above candid opinion will fit several legislatures, but it especially refers to the one which has just adjourned at Denver, Colorado. It appears that it passed no measure of importance, and occupied the ninety days of its session in unseemly wrangles over the spoils of office.

THE burning of the Hotel Del Monte at Monterey will be regretted by all who have visited that charming resort. The most singular circumstance connected with the fire is the failure of the elaborate system of water works which was intended to make a disastrous fire absolutely impossible. This failure can only be accounted for by the theory that the fire was incendiary, and the water mains tampered with.

The hotel is to be rebuilt on a grander scale than ever, and already several hundred men are at work clearing the debris and making way for the new building.

NEVER was a politician more harassed than is Gov. Hill of New York at the present moment. The legislature passed a high license bill, and it is now before him for his signature or veto. The pressure on both sides is tremendous, the country Democrats uniting with the Republicans in favor of the measure, while the powerful liquor interests of New York and the other large cities in the State are opposed to it. Gov. Hill is an open candidate for the presidency, and the cruel dilemma in which he is placed will stagger even a politician of his conceded adroitness. To veto the bill is to antagonize a large element of his own party and the Independent Republican mugwumps who will vote for a Democrat if he suits them, and if he approves the bill he incurs the enmity of a majority of his party. In either case it is likely his presidential goose will be cooked.

THE prohibition law has found its way even into Morocco, and it is enforced in a way that would be quite impracticable in a Republic. On the 13th of last month the Sultan forbade the sale or purchase of intoxicants (which latter term is construed to mean smoking) and a few hours later two soldiers found smoking kief were put in irons and imprisoned. Many others have been arrested, and some have been badly beaten. The State tobacco monopoly has been abolished. The Moorish snuff and tobacco shops have been closed, and large quantities of kief were solemnly burnt in the marketplace. At the instigation of the authorities, processions of boys with snuff-stained kerchiefs fixed on poles paraded the town hooting the unclean thing and applauding the Sultan's decree. Some Moors are to be stripped, fastened on donkeys and flogged through the streets of Tangier for smoking in defiance of the Sultan's order. Dissatisfaction prevails among the people, who complain that the poor only are punished for smoking.

THE CHICAGO ELECTION.

The election in Chicago on last Tuesday has again demonstrated that the people—the masses—though easily led to a certain point by political demagogues, can always be relied upon to step short at the border line of safety, and vote in accordance with common sense ideas of good government. It is only when the real issues are masked and kept in the background that voters stumble into a pit; but when, as at Chicago, the mask is thrown aside, and everyone has an opportunity to see plainly the position of the different parties, the result will always be as it was at the Lakeside City.

The contest was waged between Socialism on the one side and Republicanism on the other. The Democratic party, under the lead of Carter Harrison, had become so thoroughly under the control of the Anarchist element that when Harrison refused to be a candidate no Democrat of honor and popularity could be found to take his place, hence the singular spectacle of an election in a large city, for the control of all the local executive offices, in the municipality, without a Democratic candidate for Mayor. The result was that the conservative Democrats rallied in supporting the Republican candidate for Mayor, and he is elected by a majority of 30,000 votes. The Socialist candidate—or, more properly speaking, the United Labor candidate—for under that name they sought to win confidence—was rash enough to declare a few days before the election that if the Sunday school children could march in procession with their chosen banners and no American flag, he saw no reason why these workingmen, if equally orderly, could not do the same even if the color of the banner was red."

As a sop, also, to the Democratic office holders, he announced his intention, if elected, to retain them all in office, except the Inspector of Police who was in command at the time of the Haymarket riots, when the police ranks were decimated by Socialist bombs. Such utterances as these created an alarm among the law-abiding voters, with the result indicated.

JOHANN MOST, the Anarchist, released from prison on Saturday, has issued a manifesto in which he says:

"To those who, in order to break me down, put shackles on me and treated me like a ferocious beast, I again throw down the gauntlet; and I hereby give them notice I shall never rest in my fight against that part of society whose hired minions they are. I shall fight them as long as I feel my pulse beat. The great war of the poor against the rich, of the robbed against the robbers, in which I have been engaged for the last twenty years, receiving many honorable wounds, is an element of my life. From this day I shall make war solely upon bloated capitalists, official banditti, and the breed of priestcraft more vigorously and more exclusively than I have done heretofore. My hatred against that diabolical trinity has developed during my late term of imprisonment to such an extent that I feel only one great incentive to fly therein at recesses of my heart, to get nearer and nearer at the throats of those imps of hell. I shall excite the oppressed in a manner so to make them to lose their patience that they may seize scoundrelism enthroned in the high and highest places by its throat and strangle it forever. I shall so solder the tocsin of alarm calling the masses to the onslaught upon tyrants of every kind.

The author of this bombastic manifesto is the same Most who was dragged from under the bed of his mistress by a small policeman from whom he was hiding.

THE drouth in Texas is something appalling. Authentic accounts of starvation continue to come over the wires, and it is difficult to imagine a condition of affairs which can give rise to so much distress. A resident of Somerset, Atascosa county, who arrived at San Antonio a few days ago, having been forced to leave his home on account of the severity of the drouth, says the people in the vicinity of Somerset and Benton are holding meetings daily to devise means to obtain food for a large portion of the community who are in need of the common necessities of life. Many have deserted their homesteads and fields and gone to search for a more favored locality. Unless there is rain at a very early day the situation will be pitiable. People are now hauling water a distance of ten miles.

THE Senate of Pennsylvania has passed a bill providing that the punishment for murder in the first degree may be death by the use of electricity. The old time custom of hanging may not be exactly the thing, but it is infinitely less "shocking" than the proposed plan.

They have a champion egg eater at Santa Rosa, who challenges any man in Sonoma county to an egg eating match. He recently ate forty raw eggs in fifteen minutes.

The stranger who died at Casa Grande, A. T., a few days ago with smallpox said his name was Hans English, and before he died he confessed to having murdered three men and one woman during his wicked career.

About 125,000 sheep will be sheared at Firebaugh, Fresno county, within the next few weeks. Over 200 sheepshearers are employed to do the work. The stock belongs to Miller & Lux.

The Virginia, Nev., Enterprise says: "Much of the mutton sold in this city—particularly that of lambs—is brought here ready dressed from California. Our sheep-owners prefer keeping their animals for their wool and for breeding purposes to selling them for mutton.

In the jail at Tower, Minn., which was recently burned, was a Finnish minister who was suffocated. About 250 of his countrymen armed themselves and started out to kill the constable who had arrested the man. The officer died, and peace was restored with difficulty.

Owing to the tricks of the Chinese miners in Northern Idaho, the people are demanding a gold coin basis in their dealings with them, says an exchange. They mix dust worth $8 per ounce with that worth $16 and dispose of it at the maximum figure. Besides this they fail to burn their fine dust sufficiently, thereby retaining much quicksilver, and also file up silver dollars and mix the filings with the gold.

Sullivan Visits Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Among the visitors at the White House yesterday was John L. Sullivan, who called to pay his respects to the President. Sullivan and his manager, Pat Sheedy, were driven from their hotel in an open coupe to the White House, arriving there about 1.15, when the reception-room was nearly empty.

Sheedy said: "Mr. President, I am pleased to be able to introduce to you John L. Sullivan of Boston, the champion pugilist of the world. He comes to pay his respects as one champion to another."

Sullivan advanced and took President Cleveland's hand.

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Sullivan," the President said. "You are not as large a man as I expected to see."

The President, however, showed signs of winning when John gave him a grip.

"Mr. President," Sullivan responded, "you are looking a great deal better than I expected to find you, judging from what I have seen in the papers." Sullivan then gave the President a right arm squeeze and added, "You are a little soft, though, and need half a dozen Turkish baths to put you in condition."

The President then doubled his biceps and asked Sullivan to feel his muscle. Sullivan did so with a patronizing air, but remarked deprecatingly: "I am afraid you could hardly stay four rounds."

Sullivan then showed the President an improvement to his "guard," and remarked that he thought the President should reduce his flesh. "You ought to have a little go with me every morning for a month or so. That would put you in right condition to handle these fellows who travel up here every day to bother you."

Before taking his leave the champion extended an invitation to the President to witness his exhibition in the evening. "Get off and come over," said he, "I will be glad to see you."

A Big Claim.

Glassell, Smith and Patton have filed with the County Clerk the complaint in an action brought by Camille Garnier and Leon Garnier against George K. Porter. The parties all live in the San Fernando valley, and the defendants set forth that they are now and for the year just past have been lessees and occupants of "El Encino rancho," owned by the heirs of Gaston Oxarart. They further allege that on the 14th day of November, 1886, defendant kindled a fire on land of his, in the immediate vicinity of the ranch occupied by plaintiffs, and that said fire, through the willful negligence of defendant, was allowed to spread over plaintiffs' land, and consume all the hay, grass and pasture, remaining on 2818 acres of that land. The value of this pasturage is placed at $20,000. Plaintiffs further allege that at the time of the fire they were the owners of a large number of sheep, 2000 of which were consumed and destroyed by the fire. The sheep killed are valued at $12,000, and the charge is made that by reason of the destruction of their pasturage the balance of the herd will very probably die. Plaintiffs allege that the greater portion of the sheep remaining to them will probably die, and further that they were put to a largely increased expense in saving and supporting the balance of the sheep, saving them from the flames and supporting them during the long months following the destruction of the feed on the ranch. For this plaintiffs raise their last demand for damages to $20,000, making a total of $40,000 prayed for. Plaintiffs therefore ask not only for $40,000, but for treble that amount, according to the provisions of section 3344 of the Political Code of California. This swells the aggregate of damages asked for to $120,000, a very pretty plum to fight for.

Grand Officers.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—The Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen this afternoon elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Grand Master Workman, E. F. Loud, Valley Lodge, No. 30, San Francisco; Grand Foreman, A. C. Bane, Mt. Hamilton Lodge, No. 43, San Jose; Grand Overseer, J. N. Young, Union Lodge, No. 21, Sacramento; Grand Recorder, Horace G. Pratt, California Lodge, No. 1, Oakland (re-elected); Grand Receiver, C. H. Haile, Alameda Lodge, No. 5, Alameda (re-elected); Grand Guide, Al Calder, Los Angeles Lodge, No. 55, Los Angeles (re-elected); Grand Watchman, E. S. Blidi (re-elected); Grand Trustee, J. N. Block, Unity Lodge, No. 27, San Francisco (re-elected); Supreme Representatives, Past Grand Master Workman Edwin Danforth, William H. Barnes and M. T. Brewer.

Bonded Warehouse in New York.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is considering the proposition for the establishment of a special bonded warehouse for grape brandy in New York City, to meet the convenience of trade. The application is made by California manufacturers, who represent that their business is increasing rapidly throughout the East, and that it would be greatly facilitated if they were allowed to store their goods in large quantities, say 10,000 barrels, in bond in New York. Commissioner Miller is disposed to grant the application, provided it is shown that the business in the East is really as represented.

Good Results in Every Case.

O. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, (Tenn.) writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial bottles free at A. Krug's drug store.

A jury before Judge Andrews of the Supreme Court of New York has decided, in substance, that a stable is or may be a nuisance, and a Mrs. M. C. Clarke was given a verdict of $2,000 damages against Moses Sevor, because the latter allowed a stable to be kept next door to her house.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd of Harrisburg, (Ill.) says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at 50 cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents per box, by A. Krug.

Notice to the Public Generally.

AS I INTEND TO GIVE STRICT ATTENTION TO the raising of first-class horses hereafter, and wanting a stallion of good blood and reputation, I made a special trip north where upon a close examination of the offspring of several of the noted stallions of Alameda and Contra Costa counties, I found none in greater demand than the colts of White King. I have seen over one hundred of his colts at one farm alone, and have driven several and find them to be a compact, hardy lot. They are noted for style, action, disposition and general make-up, and as they are sold at such high prices, I returned and secured a half interest in the horse.

He has already proved to be a sure foal getter, being fully matured before put in the stud. He will make the season for a limited number of mares. —The April schedule of the P. C. S. S. Co. is printed to day.

—F. H. Watson, aged 30 years, a laborer by occupation, committed suicide at Pomona on Monday.

—Miss Nellie Bancroft's farewell concert will take place about the 29th of April. See programme next week.

—Fred Christ, the tailor who recently began business here, has so much work on hand that he has been compelled to hire an assistant.

—Rev. G. H. Bollinger will preach at the German Evangelical church to-morrow (Sunday) at 11 o'clock. Subject: "The Resurrection of Christ."

—Postmaster Chilton of Santa Ana has resigned. Granville Spurgeon is likely to succeed to the office. There is too much work for too little pay in the office.

—There will be services at St. Michael's Episcopal church to-morrow (Sunday) at 3 o'clock P. M. Rev. F. J. Mynard officiating.

—E. J. Baldwin has men at work in his new town of Arcadia building a hotel to cost $500,000. It will eclipse the famous Raymond.

—N. A. Bittner has been appointed street car driver, vice Eugene Robertson, resigned. The last named gentleman has been on the car during the week assisting Mr. Bittner and giving him "the points" necessary in car driving.

—Charles Young of Orange died suddenly on last Saturday, presumably from heart disease. Two weeks previous to his death he joined the Anaheim Lodge of Chosen Friends, and his family will receive $3,000 from that Order.

—Miss Mossemann has just received an elegant lot of spring and summer millinery, and is now ready to show the goods. The ladies of Anaheim and vicinity are invited to call at her parlors, and inspect the stock, which is larger and better selected than any previous importation.

—F. H. Keith has an acre and a half in orange trees, which are well taken care of and fertilized. As a result he harvested four hundred boxes of fruit from this little little bit of an orchard, making a net profit of something over $900 an acre. It is probable that this happy experience is the lot of many other fruit growers here.

—Gallagher, whose arrest for robbery was chronicled last week, was again arrested on Tuesday charged with threatening to kill J. B. Starr, one of the witnesses against him. Justice Fox fixed his bond at $200, and in default sent him to jail for six months. Gallagher claims that he is the victim of a conspiracy on the part of a rival saloon keeper near the railroad camp.

—On the first page of to day's paper is a handsome compliment to our friend Theo. Reiser, or rather to the sherry which he makes. A typographical error, however, occurs, which should be corrected. In the sentence reading, "You can easily understand why a taste, formed on dry and often altered sherries," etc., the word in italics should be ethereal.

—The fact that the orange crop of Anaheim will this season reach seventy carloads, in the opinion of the shippers, suggests the propriety of establishing a packing house here to handle next year's crop. The Earl packing house has been a great convenience to shippers this season, but there is no assurance that it will continue its business at this point. Hence it is almost necessary that the growers here organize a local company to handle, pack and properly brand the local fruit.

—Orange is soon to have a G. A. R. Post. The charter has been granted, supplies shipped, etc., and the new Post will soon be in working order. The name has not yet been selected, but will be soon. Twenty-one names are now on the list, and many more are ready to join. The Post promises to be a healthy one, and will be a credit to Orange and a convenience to the old veterans who have made homes in our section.—Orange Tribune.

—The San Francisco papers are beginning to swell with importance on what they call their real estate boom. Magee's Real Estate Circular gives the total of sales in that city for the month of March as $1,610,203, which is very good for San Francisco, and fully justifies the turkey-cock performances of her newspapers. Hereaway, however, we would look upon such a thing as a mere bagatelle. Our sales for the month of March footed up five and a half million dollars, and yet we hold our heads cool and equilibrious. Diptherially speaking, San Francisco's boom is not dence-aces.—Herald.

A BAD BILL.

The Interstate Commerce bill has plunged the business interests of the country into a confusion which nothing short of a suspension of the bill will straighten out. Its immediate effect has been to send up prices of all the necessaries and luxuries of life, not produced in this State, greatly to the immediate benefit of the few dealers and to the detriment of the many consumers. There are two industries in which Anaheim is particularly interested which will suffer until a modification of the bill is made by the Commissioners. Wool, which is selling at 12 cents per lb in the Eastern market, and which has heretofore cost but 60 cents per hundred pounds for transportation to New York or Boston, now costs 5 cents a pound. The freight on wine has also been raised to about five times what it has heretofore been. Indeed, the operations of the law are working so entirely different from what was expected, that it is predicted the Commissioners will exercise the powers conferred upon them by suspending its most onerous provisions.

Since the above was in type, the Los Angeles Herald comes to hand with the following comparative statement of rates from Los Angeles eastward:

TO NEW YORK.

Coming towards Los Angeles the rates are equally oppressive. Messrs. Hirschfeld & Soldiner, wholesale stationers, state the rates from the Atlantic coast manufacturing cities on their goods as follows:

Articles.	Old Rate.	New Rate.
	Per 100 lbs.	Per 100 lbs.
Paper, wrapping and printing	$0 65	$3 25
Paper, writing	0 85	5 50
Books and stationery of all kinds	0 65	5 50

This would make a difference of 35 to 40 per cent, and in some cases a difference of 125 per cent. on the cost of landing goods at Los Angeles.

Mr. H. J. Woollacott, an extensive shipper of wine to the interior of the United States, gives the rates of freight on his goods sent east as follows:

	Old Rate.	New Rate.
Wine in glass per 100 lbs to Chicago	$2 50	$4 70
Wine in glass per 100 lbs to Milwaukee	2 50	4 70
Wine in wood per 100 lbs to Chicago	2 50	4 00
Wine in wood per 100 lbs to Milwaukee	2 50	4 00
Wine in glass per 100 lbs to Minneapolis	2 40	4 00

The above refers only to a 100 pound shipment. The following rates were charged when shipments run over 100 pounds on wine in wood:

	Old Rate.	New Rate.
To Chicago	$1 00	$4 00
To Milwaukee	1 07	4 00
To Chicago in glass	1 07½	4 70
To Milwaukee in glass	1 07½	4 70

—The special election to vote on the three proposed Constitutional Amendments will be held on Tuesday. The questions at issue are not such as to call forth a large vote, but the vote will be practically unanimous, as no opposition is expressed to the amendments.

—Davis & Co. cast forth their net at Anaheim Landing the other day and caught, in addition to a big lot of fish, a large seal, whose efforts at escape were made futile by the new net. His sealship yielded five gallons of oil and a handsome skin.

—The new firm of Northam, Cahen & Nebelung is in running order, and is ready for the patronage of the public. It is a combination of business energy and sagacity, and cannot fail to achieve the success to which they are justly entitled.

—W. M. McFadden is shipping oranges from his orchard in North Anaheim. R. H. Gilman is also busy packing and shipping his fruit. The fruit from both orchards is magnificent, and brings the highest market price.

—The bricklayers are at work on the Schindler addition to Northam & Nebelung's store. The woodwork for the flooring has been completed.

—The pretty new dwelling house built by Gunning & Hunt has been purchased by A. T. Wallop.

—Those who want to raise fine stock will find an interesting advertisement of D. J. Kraemer's in another column.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

L. P. Wiel, of Hecht Bros. & Co., San Francisco, was in Anaheim on Tuesday.

Louis Darr is said to be seriously ill with dropsy.

John Luedke of Pinal, Arizona, has been visiting relatives here during the week.

E. Pommer left on Thursday morning for a trip to Germany.

Dan Rich came down from San Bernardino on Sunday evening, and spent a few days in town.

Rev. G. A. Irvin went down to San Diego on Wednesday to attend the meeting of Presbytery.

Robert Eccles, proprietor of the Westminster Packing House, was in town on Wednesday. He reports a great revival in business in his line.

Joseph O'Connor, the shoemaker who has been in the employ of Mr. Baner for some months past, left on Sunday for South Riverside, where he will engage in business for himself.

Fred. Muff, who formerly worked in the Anaheim Bakery, has gone to Los Angeles to assist in supplying the City of Angeles people with the staff of life.

S. Littlefield and family of San Francisco have taken up their permanent residence in Anaheim. Mr. Littlefield's large purchases of property in Anaheim and vicinity show that he has faith in the substantial future of this place.

S. W. Boyden, for many years foreman of the GAZETTE office, but lately a resident of Oakland, has returned to Anaheim. Mr. Boyden is a first-class printer and gentleman, in whose success and well-being we feel a lively interest.

K. A. R. Keener of Modena was in town on Thursday. He says there is great activity in building all the way between Santa Ana and that place. Blackbirds are making havoc in his barley field that has headed out, and his time is constantly occupied in waylaying the pests with a shotgun.

The Longmont (Colorado) Leader has the following reference to the brother of Erwin Barr, who visited Anaheim recently: "John C. Barr returned last Sunday morning from California, where he has been during fourteen or fifteen months past. He returns much improved in health, his actual weight being about fifteen pounds more than when he started for the Pacific coast."

Town Trustees.

The Board met in regular session on Wednesday.

The Treasurer reported a balance on hand of $356 51.

The Clerk reported having given due notice to property owners on Broadway of the intention to open that thoroughfare.

A bid for opening Broadway, from Palm to Walnut, was received from H. L. Pary for $165, and one from H. C. Gade for $105. The contract was awarded to Mr. Gade with instructions to begin grading at once, from Palm street to West street, the property owners consenting.

The financial statement for the past year was read by the Clerk. The receipts for water were $1317 87 and the expenditures $2735 49; road account, expenses, $1341 65; receipts, $48 90; pair for salaries, $293 45; miscellaneous receipts, $62 24; receipts for licenses, $707 28; receipts for taxes, $2,446 09.

In explanation of the water works account the Clerk said that $1125 had been expended for a new tank, tools, pipes, etc., and that the water used for sprinkling the streets amounted to one-half of what was pumped.

Resignation of the District Attorney.

District Attorney Patton handed in his resignation to the Board of Supervisors on Monday. He has been in office only since the beginning of the present year, and his resignation was impelled by the condition of his health and the imperative command of his physicians. Insomnia and indigestion have unfitted him from all active work, and he can only hope to be restored to health by a change of climate and absolute rest. This change and rest he will seek in a few weeks.

The Board filled the vacancy in the office by appointing Judge Depuy, who has been the Deputy District Attorney under Mr. Patton.

Easter Services.

Services appropriate to Easter will be celebrated in the Episcopal church to-morrow (Sunday) evening at 7:30. The church has been beautifully decorated with evergreens and flowers. Rev. Mr. Mynard will conduct the services. The following is the musical program:

Processional, "Forth to the Fight."
Gloria Patri { In A.....Monarke / In B.....Wallace / In G.....Beethoven
Easter Anthem, "Now is Christ Risen."
Benedic, Anima Mea.....Norris
Alleluia, "He is Risen.".....Carey
Hymn, "Guide me, O thou great Jehovah."
Offertory, "Der Freischutz."
Chant—The Lord's Prayer.

Poultry Roost High.

Poultry is quoted at $7 and $8 a dozen and are scarce at even those prices. The oldest inhabitant cannot call to mind the time when chickens roosted so high—in price. We learn that an enterprising speculator lately went to bleeding Kansas with the intention of purchasing several carloads of chickens and bringing them to Los Angeles. The novel importation is about due, and when they arrive the local rooster will come down from off his high perch, and allow himself to be sold more reasonably.

The Anaheim Evergreen Nursery.

At the above nursery this season is to be found a larger, better and healthier lot of trees than ever before, which is saying a great deal. Among the trees on hand are YEARLING ORANGE TREES, NORTHERN FRUIT TREES, ORNAMENTAL TREES, CYPRESS, BLUE GUM AND PEPPER, all of which will be sold in lots of from 1 to 10,000, at prices which defy competition. No scale; no disease. This will be guaranteed. An inspection of the stock is invited. TIMOTHY CARROLL.
Near Anaheim Railroad Depot.

ANAHEIM ATOMS.

T. J. House is building a house at Buena Park.

Constable Smythe has an album which is a complete rogues' gallery.

Some of the orange trees on Theo. Rimpau's orchard yielded ten boxes of fruit.

One of the orange trees in Keith's orchard had twenty-two props under it to keep it from succumbing to its golden load.

J. J. Bodkin, who killed Elam at Orange a couple of months ago, will be tried before Judge Cheney on May 4th.

G. A. Brunswicker is now sole proprietor of the butcher shop in Odd Fellows' Hall building.

F. & J. Backs have built a frame structure in the rear of their brick building, which will be used as an upholstering shop.

William Westphal of Pomona was on Monday apprenticed to Mr. Bennerscheidt to learn the tinsmith and plumbing trade.

The vineyard of Dreyfus & Co. on Los Angeles street opposite the slaughter house is being grubbed up.

Wild geese are flying northward, which is an indication that the rainy season is about over in this part of Southern California.

Mme. Lecroq is now fairly established in her dress-making parlor on Center street, adjoining the gunsmith shop. She has two young lady assistants.

A few more weddings are on the programme in Anaheim, which will shortly be celebrated. Then let the marriage bells merrily ring.

W. J. Roe having leased the basement of Kroeger's Hall for a bowling alley, has placed P. L. Hickey in charge of his saloon opposite the post office.

The syndicate's building on the corner of Center and Los Angeles streets has been rented by A. T. Wallop as a storeroom for grain and other products.

On Monday H. C. Gade introduced his new truck to the thoroughfares of Anaheim. It is the largest truck that has ever been used in this place, and is very durably built.

Messrs. Gunning & Hunt, the architects and builders of Anaheim, left last week for South Riverside, where they propose to engage in work pertaining to their profession.

During the absence of Mr. Knapp in San Francisco, the telegraph office in town is closed, and Mr. Darling attends to the duties of the office at the depot.

The old Review building after many days of hard labor by the house movers has been finally put in position on Langenberger's lot on Lemon street.

The opening of the bowling alley has proven a novelty, and it is well patronized by those who have sufficient exercise during the day at work, and by others who have but little.

Two wool-clippers came down from the mountains this week, where they have been at work during the past few months cutting wool. They say that one man up there has several hundred cords of cut wood.

The town clock recently erected by R. Luedkoon the scaffolding in the rear of his store has proven a convenience to workingmen. The clock strikes every quarter of the hour, and then the full hour.

The proposition of opening Broadway from Palm street to the depot will be carried into effect. A number of men were on the ground on Thursday morning to commence operations.

"Wait till the Clouds Roll by," may be a popular air in Oregon or Alaska, but it is altogether an inappropriate invocation in Southern California. When we get a cloud here, we want it to stay with us.

Invitations have been sent out for the ball to be given on the evening of April 15th by the Anaheim Orchestra. It promises to be a pleasant affair, and the supper to be given at the Anaheim Hotel will be exceedingly fine.

Small shipments of lemons are being continually made from this place. As the weather grows warmer, the demand will be even greater, as everybody knows that the use of lemonade on warm days is refreshing and invigorating.

Laboring men in considerable numbers are making their appearance in Anaheim. Their destination is the scene of the railroad grading in the Santa Ana canyon. Their flocking thither is supposed to have been induced by the advance in wages of from $1 75 to $2 per day.

When the auction sale of lots took place on the Metz tract it was expected and hoped that the purchasers would commence the erection of buildings thereon. It now appears that the purchases were made with a speculative view, as we hear of no intention to build houses on the tract.

Early sown grain has already headed in some places in this vicinity. The stalks are short, which have the preference of the long and less nutritious weed. Late sown barley is growing finely, and another shower of rain would be very beneficial to the growing grain.

What is the use of trying to induce immigrants to locate here if, when on arriving in town, they cannot procure a house to rent? A man always wants to "look around" before deciding to purchase, and a temporary residence is therefore necessary. The Building and Improvement Society would find it to their interest and profit to commence the erection of a number of dwelling houses immediately.

WATER DIRECTORS.

The rapid rate at which water is decreasing in the river was considered at a special meeting of the Directors yesterday. On Thursday when the water was divided with the Santa Ana Company, the portion to each was but 975 inches, and it has come to the knowledge of the Directors that there are a number of unlawful diversions of water being made. It was resolved, therefore, to ask the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company to join with the Anaheim Company in getting injunctions against the illegal appropriators.

Some of the new work on the upper ditch having given way, the water has all been turned into the lower ditch. Repairs will probably be completed by Monday, and the Directors have ordered that all the water be turned into the upper ditch when it is in condition to carry it.

It was also ordered that all water sold to date be included in one run, provided, that water be not delivered in excess of the stock owned by purchasers.

The rate on water from yesterday was fixed at 50 cents for day water and 30 cents for night water.

Buena Park.

Messrs. Potter, Hill, Hickox and Silas Holman have all given a helping hand the past week and the grand avenue is showing the effects of the work. Two fine rows of Lombardy Poplar trees eighty feet apart (leaving ten feet for a sidewalk on each side) mark the avenue south from the line of the S. P. R. R.; and the grading already done on the north gives a very fair idea of what is going to be done. Mr. Whitaker informs me that more help is needed badly. If any of the parties who have subscribed to do work can possibly do a portion of it the coming week it will be of great value.... Mr. McKenney has purchased a twenty-acre tract of land on same avenue that Mr. House is building on, and is erecting a substantial story and a half dwelling to accommodate his family of seven children.... At this rate it will not be long before a school house will adorn the Park.... The settlers appear to be getting ahead of the town building and occupying the streets before they are platted or named.... Mr. House informs your correspondent that he will move into his new dwelling on Saturday of this week.... Mr. Whitaker reports a great inquiry for land, and it is probable I will be able to report a number of sales next week. SCRIBE.

Garden Grove Gossip.

Mr. Ira Woodman is expected home from Illinois Saturday, where he has been on a short business trip.... The social at the school house Wednesday night was a thorough success. A large crowd was in attendance and all enjoyed themselves to the utmost.... A number of our people attended the social at Westminster Friday evening.... Mr. Torrey's store will remain here, he having sold it to Mr. Nelson—one of our old time citizens. Mr. Bush, who has been connected with the store for some time, will remain in charge of it. Mr. Torrey will open his new store in Orange next week.... An Easter concert will be held at the church next Sunday evening.... Miss Effie Alger is spending a couple of weeks at Long Beach.... Fruit trees have mostly leafed out, and many apricots and peaches are nearly as large as walnuts, while figs of double that size are plenty.... The stage comes in loaded with passengers nearly every evening.

Israel H. Parker plaintiff vs Irvin Sanders & Lurana Sanders defendants.—Action brought in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, and the Complaint filed in said county of Los Angeles in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to Irvin Sanders and Lurana Sanders defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons, if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said Complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain the judgment of this Court requiring the defendants to set forth the nature of their claim in and to that certain real property mentioned in the Complaint therein, and declaring that plaintiff is the owner of said premises and that the defendants and each of them be debarred from asserting any claim whatever in or to said premises adverse to the plaintiff and for such other and further relief as to the Court may seem meet and for cost of suit. Reference is had to Complaint for particulars.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said Complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will cause your default to be entered herein, and will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

IN THE STRONG ROOM.

PEOPLE WHO FIND USE FOR A SAFETY DEPOSIT VAULT.

How the Companies Bid for the Favor of Feminine Depositors—Diamonds and Pearls in Profusion—A Sleeping Coupon Clipper.

Nearly all of the safety deposit companies bid for the favor of the women by maintaining handsome parlors reserved for their use, with private rooms for examinations of securities and jewels, lavatory, etc. The women are good customers, too. In some of the vaults nearly one-third of the renters are of the gentler sex, and in one, where there are 3,000 renters, 1,200 of them are misses or mesdames, 200 being married women who keep their safes in their own names, screened from the fingers and eyes of their lords. Women may not know much about business, but their prudence which is so conspicuous in the mental composition of the sex finds expression in forethought of the safety vaults. Here women may keep their savings, absolutely fearless of meddling by thriftless husbands. Here they may also store old love letters or love tokens, even newer ones, which are too precious to be destroyed and too sacred to be seen by the eyes of suspicious third souls.

"I know women who keep old love letters in their boxes, though the vault's clerk in one of the most popular companies.

"Of course it is no business of mine what they keep in there, but I have seen 'em take the letters out so often that it has got to be an old story with me."

"Young women?"

"All kinds, but principally middle aged married ones. Young women can run down to the corner drug store and buy chestnuts by the pound, but it would take a gold mine to get me to know what any woman with a thin face and gray hair, the mother of a large family, has, and with a rich husband who comes in here every week and takes out a yellow old letter, goes into one of the private rooms, stays there half an hour or an hour, and comes out with red eyes. I know another who has to have a look at an old trinket about twice a week or she wouldn't be happy. Sometimes she runs to the safe in a silence of two or three days, and other times she goes into a private room and stays with it for or fifteen minutes. She cries, too. Why, there's women who rent boxes here on purpose to keep such old things in—letters, photographs, locks of hair and so on. Why don't they keep 'em at home? That's none of my business. You can guess as well as I can."

"Much jewelry in this vault?"

"Jewelry? I should say so! About three women out of four keep jewelry in their safes. Some of it isn't worth much—old relics, family heirlooms and precious trinkets. Then there's some that have really valuable jewels. There's baskets of diamonds and pearls scattered about in them boxes, sir. Funny thing about a woman, too, is that they are so fond of coming in and looking their diamonds over. I know a woman who never lets a week pass without taking her tin box into one of the private rooms and staying there an hour admiring her jewelry."

CARELESS ABOUT VALUABLES.

"Are people ever careless about their valuables in here?"

"Bless you, yes. Some of our renters we have to watch like hawks for fear they'll leave something on the examining desk there when they put their boxes away. I found lying on the desk one day a pile of government bonds that would have made me rich. An old easy bel left them there. One night our night-watchman found a man asleep in one of the private rooms. He was about to ring for the patrol and hustle the fellow out when he discovered that the intruder was one of our renters, an old man who had fallen asleep while cutting coupons from a lot of bonds. On the desk before him was an enormous pile of the bonds.

THE WONDER OF TO-DAY.

The Trick of "The Vanishing Lady." How it is Said to be Performed.

The vanishing lady is the wonder of the town. She was invented by Latier de Kalta, a Paris conjurer, and she has been performing at the Eden theatre there. She is also puzzling the public in London and Berlin. The secret of her illusion has been kept in those cities, and scientists have written theories about her as learned and conjectural as those which Poe devoted to the Chess Automaton. The inventor has an agent in New York to sell her at $100 per copy. He has made a dozen sales. Every purchaser is astonished by the simplicity of the trick he has acquired, and puzzled anew to command the manual skill to utilize it. Dexterously performed, the feat is like this: The necromancer appears in full dress. A pretty girl accompanies him. He talks to her pleasantly while he moves about the stage, and presently he picks up a chair. With seeming carelessness he places it in about the middle of the stage on an open newspaper. The girl seats herself, assuming the ordinary, womanly, restful position. From a table he takes a large piece of foulard silk, a fabric not transparent, but sufficiently soft to show the form of the girl after it has completely enveloped her and the chair. Still talking, he in an instant quickly lifts the fold. The girl is not there. The chair is left exactly as it stood before she sat in it, the newspaper is beneath it, precisely as it was placed. No sounds have been heard in the meantime; there is no darkening of the stage; even the silk covering has shown no shrinkage, but preserved its form up to the moment it was lifted by the fakir.

How is it done? Very simply. Everybody correctly guesses that a trap is used, but the investigator stops there, defeated. The chair, the newspaper, the trap, the unfortunate below the stage, and a bright slim girl are the things that are used. The chair is not, as it looks, an ordinary article. It is of the heavy old fashioned, mahogany kind, without rounds, thickly upholstered on the seat, with an open back. It is so built that by touching a concealed spring the seat is made to drop down from the rear on a hinge, leaving the girl free to sink down the trap, which the manipulator by the confederate below the stage. Throwing the things over the chair the girl has an easy job. When the illusionist has seated her he throws over her head the silk veil. At the moment she feels herself completely covered she works another spring, which causes a thin wire framework to rise up from the back of the chair and spread itself about her form, thus preserving undisturbed the outlines of the cloth and deceiving the audience into the belief that she is still seated.

The mystery of the open newspaper spread under the chair, to kill any suggestion of a trap, is even simpler. The paper has been deftly cut so as to contain a trap opening in itself. It is so handled by the operator as to reveal the slit, and when he gathers it up after the trick he is careful to fold it, partly at least. His own work entails the last, in spreading the newspaper so that the trap cut in it shall cover exactly the trap in the stage, and, second, in setting the chair precisely over both traps. He ought to be clever in talking to divert the spectators' attention from both newspaper and chair, and the more he speaks of the absence of a trap the better he can puzzle those who are watching him. Of course, he cannot submit either the chair or newspaper to inspection. The trap used in the trick is the ordinary demon's drop of fixed size. After the girl has passed through, the confederate below the stage puts the land up and springs to its place the hanged seat in the chair. Then he rises, and the illusionist above knows all is ready for him to pull away the veil. Added mystery is gained by rushing the girl run out into the auditorium as soon as she vail. A test flight of hand can also cause the veil itself to disappear up his sleeve after he has lifted it.—Franklin File in Chicago Tribune.

Rabbit Killing in Australia.

The experiment of turning catabouse in Australia to destroy the swarms of rabbits is reported to have proved eminently successful. In one of the worst infested districts of Victoria 250 cats were brought at $5 a head, inclosed for a time in a limited space by means of wire netting, fed on rabbits and afterward turned loose in batches, food having been still supplied in a rough building for any cats which might not at once support themselves by hunting.

Not a single cat is known to have found its way to its original home, and as the result of this experiment, the special reporter of The Melbourne Farmers' Gazette says: "During a thorough inspection of the sand hummocks just a little before twilight our party only succeeded in seeing three rabbits. The cats, on the other hand, were to be met with everywhere, and mangled rabbits, some slaughtered but recently and others dead for weeks, were come across in all directions. The cats were evidently the complete masters of the situation." The writer goes on to express the opinion that there is no doubt whatever as to the success of the experiment, which is moreover, as inexpensive as it is successful.—London Standard.

Special Guardians of Royalty.

Gen Count Minio, who was shot by the imperial bodyguard the other day, belonged to the celebrated clan of Minios de Espinosa. The latter have the hereditary privilege of watching over the chambers of the royal family of Spain. At 11 p. m. the palace doors are solemnly locked, the attendants and followers withdraw, and the whole building is handed to the sole care of these Monteros in pairs they march noiselessly through the rooms and corridors the whole night, crossing each other at stated intervals. Two remain standing bolt upright the whole night long in the outer room of each royal bed chamber. At 6 o'clock in the morning the palace doors are again ceremoniously unlocked, and the Monteros retire. So jealous are they of this privilege that they never budge out of the clan, and a woman belonging to it will travel from one end of Spain to the other in order that her child may be born in their village of Espinosa.—Detroit Letter.

Aristocratic Photographs.

A photograph which has found its way into the hands of Dublin viewers recently is that of the Marchioness of Londonderry, wife of the new viceroy of Ireland. She is represented in evening dress, and while the gathers it up after the trick he is careful to fold it, partly at least. A PUBLISHER TALKS

OF HIS EXPERIENCE WITH AUTHORS WHO HAVE WRITTEN A BOOK.

A Manuscript Worth Having is Like a Grain of Wheat in a Bushel of Chaff. Books Issued at the Author's Risk.—The Criticism of Experts.

"How do we determine whether a manuscript is likely to suit our purpose? Well," continued the publisher, "that is a pretty broad question. There are so many things to be considered and such a diversity of conditions that perhaps no two cases are handled in precisely the same way. Now, suppose you were an author with a manuscript. Unless you had some previous experience, the chances are that when walking into my office and taking a seat by my desk you would feel rather shaky in the neighborhood of your knees. Your throat would also need considerable clearing, and I would have to be quite affable and polite before you would begin to feel at all easy in mind or body. After smoothing down the thorny path to the extent of at least endeavoring to make you feel at home, I would undertake to find out whether you were the kind of man who would be likely to write a book of the kind you are offering me. I would also undertake to discover whether you wrote the manuscript because you had something to say, or simply for the purpose of making a book that might possibly sell and thus add to your income and reputation.

A GRAIN OF WHEAT.

"You see, there is so much perfunctory book making in these days that a manuscript worth having is very much like a grain of wheat in a bushel of chaff. Some publishers order a new book from a hack writer pretty much as they would order a pair of trousers, but my own notion is that unless a man is so full of his subject that he can't help writing it his book won't amount to very much when it is written. A manufacturer can weave any given number of yards of cloth to order, and an architect can build a house to correspond exactly with the size of your bank account, but when a publisher says to some person, 'Hire, hire, I want a book of 500 pages on The Rise and Fall of Republican Principles in Liberia,' or some other abstract question of that sort, you can be very sure that when written the book will not be really worth reading much less printing and publishing. When a man comes to me whose ideas have evidently overflowed into a manuscript I feel that there is some promise in his work and ask him to leave the manuscript. The clerk at the next desk enters the name of the work and other necessary facts in a register and then the package goes into the vault, where it remains until I can find time to read enough of the work to fully appreciate its drift. This done, I can determine upon a reader who is likely to do it justice, and the writing goes into his hands for careful and thorough if possible critical examination. On the completion of the work he returns the manuscript, together with his criticism which we then go to full. The same process is gone through with in important cases several times.

A CRISIS IN TOURS.

"Some months ago I have had examined by half a dozen experts, and then after comparing their opinions I have in my office and reproduce a book of the kind and it carries a ten book. Here is a case in point, being a manuscript on the way from Vermont. It was read by five book experts, and, considering their opinions, I found that the original fell flatted upon the same week points, and after I had gone three each had discovered just about the same number of errors in it. The author was returned to the author with the critics' comments, and I have been told that after the changes were duly made his work would be duly published.

"Perhaps you were not aware of the fact, but it is a fact, that a great many books carrying the imprint of well known publishers are not issued at their risk. Books that promise a ready sale for any reason are issued usually at the expense of the publisher, who pays a royalty to the author. If there is any question as to the complete success of the venture the author is required to contribute to the expenses of printing, and in others he is obliged to pay the entire cost. I sometimes have men come to me with manuscripts who claim that they can sell 500 copies to their own friends. In one such case I told the gentleman that I doubted whether he would sell fifty copies on any such basis. He was at first inclined to be offended at such an outspoken opinion, but cooled off, and having Such confidence in the potency of his name in the town where he lived he examined the entire risk of publishing the book. Now, how many do you suppose he sold in the territory where he expected to sell five hundred? Of course you can't guess, but as a matter of actual fact he sold just twenty-five copies. The publication of a book is purely a business matter. If the book is wanted people will buy it; if they do not want it very few will buy it simply because they know the author. I have sold over eighty thousand copies of a book by a man whose name had never been heard of beyond a small circle. But, you see, the book had something in it."—Chicago Herald.

Writing the Christmas Stories.

Magazine Editor—It is time to arrange for our Christmas stories.

"Are the authors at work?"

"Yes, they have clubbed together, hired a room in an old house, and I send the coffee and general nourishment in by jingle bells just over the window."—Omaha Herald.

An Explanation.

Indignant Lodger—Mrs. Winks, when I requested last night I found no lamp in my room, and this morning I saw that the lamp moved. I was reading last chapter, Mrs. Winks—Yes, sir. You see, another lodger might forget to put the lamp there, so I thought you wouldn't need the moral. It's a very interesting one, sir.—Omaha World.

Injury to the Eye.

Two German physiologists have calculated the relative liability of injury to the eye, finding that, if all parts of the body were equally exposed to injury, wounds of the eye would occur to thousands of other parts the proportion of about one in 600. As a matter of fact, the actual proportion is more than twenty times as great, or 56 in 1,000.—Arkansaw Traveler.

The Better Word.

"Wasn't it Dr. Holmes," The Herald asks, "who said that only 'gents' wear 'pants,' while gentlemen generally wear pantaloons?" We think it was. The doctor might have added that men frequently wear trousers.—Boston Record.

At a recent convention of physicians it was proven by analysis that Red Star Cough Cure contained no dangerous narcotics. The test was so convincing that the most sceptical were satisfied, and physicians everywhere now recommend the remedy. Only 25 cents.

A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."

The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—

"I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in the treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.

There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.

These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

TRIED IN THE CRUCIBLE.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

About twenty years ago I discovered a little sore on my cheek, and the doctors pronounced it cancer. I have tried a number of physicians, but without receiving any permanent benefit. Among the number were one or two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted. I procured some at once. Before I had used the second bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. I general health had been bad for two or three years—I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had a severe pain in my breast. After taking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew stouter than I had been for several years. My cancer has healed over all but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise every one with cancer to give S. S. S. a fair trial.
