Approves the New Orleans Killing.

The London Times, in an editorial on the New Orleans killing, says: "It is all very well to reprobate the resort to violence, but in such circumstances as these, what way is there for emancipating a community from intolerable tyranny excepting by resort to violence? The law requires trial by jury, and trial by jury has been reduced to a farce by the knowledge possessed by every juryman that if he convicts a member of the Mafia his life is not worth a week's purchase. It is really a misuse of the language to speak of the resort to violence as the standing rule in New Orleans. All Parkenson and his followers have done is to accept the conditions prescribed by the Mafia. All law rests ultimately upon force, and when the courts are dominated by the criminals whom they exist to punish, nothing remains but to go back to the first principles to effect their deliverance. Let lawless violence be abandoned by all means, but 'que messieurs les assassins commencent.' Among the men who were lynched there may have been some who did not actually fire at Hennessy, and it is not pretended that there were any who were not members of the detestable society that desired his death. That being the case, it is impossible to feel any very acute distress, because in the midst of the violence they had rendered indispensable they had been somewhat more severely punished than if they had been leniently dealt with."

OSTRICHES AT AUCTION.

THE BIRDS OF THE PLACENTIA OSTRICH FARM TO BE PLACED UNDER THE HAMMER ON WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8—REASONS FOR THE SALE.

The announcement that the California Ostrich Farming Company will sell its property at Placentia at auction Wednesday, April 8, leads to the inference that the company's experiment in raising ostriches has not proved the pecuniary success anticipated. But this is a hasty conclusion. Ostrich raising in Southern California is yet in the experimental stage, and those who have entered the business have had at the best but a limited knowledge of ostrich farming. The fact has been demonstrated, however, that the climate of Southern California is admirably adapted to the raising of the ostrich, and it has been also shown that the birds thrive upon the alfalfa which is so abundantly grown in this section. With proper climatic conditions and with the most desirable food it follows that the birds increase in numbers quite rapidly.

So far in the experiments made in this section, the young birds, rather than the feathers plucked from the old ones, have been the great source of profit, as full-grown birds are marketable from $300 to $500. The chicks are hatched by incubation, and fully 25 per cent of the eggs hatch. The chicks come out of the shell at the end of six weeks' incubation, and the shells of the eggs that do not hatch out bring a large price as curios and have a ready sale.

The ostrich family is represented by four species, the ostrich proper (struthio camelus), the rhea, the emu and the cassowary. The birds which have been introduced in Southern California are of the African species, or the ostrich proper.

The first lot of birds, some twenty in number, were brought to Southern California early in 1882 by Dr. Sketchly, and were farmed at Centralia. Later on the Doctor brought fifteen more birds from Africa, making thirty-five birds in all. In August, 1882, one Cawston, an Englishman, brought a number of ostriches from Cape Town, Africa, and located a farm at Norwalk. In 1886 and 1887 he added to the original lot birds from Natal, until he had forty-two in all.

Other ostrich farms were subsequently established at West Fallbrook, San Diego county; at Los Feliz, Los Angeles county; Santa Barbara, Santa Monica and Red Bluff. The total number of birds now in California will not probably exceed 468, divided as follows: Placentia, 164; Fallbrook, 100; Norwalk, 70; Santa Barbara, 50; Santa Monica, 44; Red Bluff, 40. The Los Feliz farm merged into the Santa Monica farm, and part of Dr. Sketchly's birds, originally at Centralia, were taken to Red Bluff. The only birds brought from Africa were those of Sketchly's and Cawston's before mentioned, or seventy-seven in all. In nine years the seventy-seven birds have increased to 468, and in the breeding of the 391 new birds it has been shown, as before stated, that the ostrich thrives as well in Southern California as upon its native soil.

But the increase above given is not a fair test of the fertility of the transplanted ostrich. The voyage from Africa to California takes seventy days, and for two or three years the first birds brought over did not fertilize. It appears that they had to recover from the long trip at sea and had to get acclimated. They were then as vigorous as ever and the birds that are hatched on California soil breed as regularly and are as prolific as those of African growth. It may be here stated that an ostrich costs $100 in Africa, there being an export duty of $50 on each, and that about 20 per cent of the birds are lost on a voyage.

The young birds are first plucked when they are seven months old; at fourteen months the feathers are very good, and at twenty-one months the plucking is fine. The birds arrive at maturity in California at the age of about five years, a year or two earlier than they do in their natural homes. The value of the feathers plucked ranges from $70 (young birds) to $200 a year. Probably a fair average is $100 for each bird, young and old. A mature bird is valued at $500. Here is Cawston's estimate of the profits from ostrich farming. The birds are divided into trios, a male and two females, and it takes two acres of alfalfa to feed the three birds:

COST OF FARM FIRST YEAR.

Ten acres alfalfa land	$3,000
Thirty birds	15,000
Two men	600
Building and incubator	500
Sundries	500
Total	$19,600

INCOME FIRST YEAR.

Seventy chicks at $50 each	$3,500
Feathers (old birds), $200 each	6,000
Feathers (chicks), $20 each	1,400
Egg shells	500
Total	$11,400

The farmer still has his land, building and incubator and old birds and consequently his investment proper of $18,500 as the end of the year nets him a profit of $8,320, deducting running expenses and interest on capital invested at 8 per cent. This estimate is the fancy side of ostrich-raising. The legitimate profits of ostrich-farming are the feathers, as the raising of ostriches for the market would soon overstock it. A farmer with thirty birds would probably hatch and raise no more than ten chicks and his profits for the year would be under the most favorable conditions about $5,000. From this must be deducted his year's work and personal expenses. The dark side of the business he keeps to himself.

Most of the ostrich farmers are enthusiasts in the business. H. B. Perry, the owner of the ostrich farm at Santa Monica, has been engaged in the business about two years, he having been, previous to settling here, part owner of the ostrich farm at Santa Barbara. As before mentioned, he now has forty-four birds and expresses himself as quite well satisfied with his profits. In fact he is so well satisfied that he says that he would be glad to buy the stock of the Placentia farm had he the means available at the present time. Mr. Perry is somewhat in advance of his competitors, as he makes up certain of his feathers at his farm, and supplies the local and retail trade direct. It is not generally known that the feathers that appear so black or so white when on the bird are, when plucked, respectively a dark brown and a light gray. Before they can be worn they have to be dyed or bleached and curled and otherwise made up, and the feathers in their natural state are usually sold to the large Eastern manufactories or sent to European markets. Mr. Perry states that plumes sell, in his way of disposing of them, at from $1 50 to $7, and that each of his birds will furnish $100 worth at each plucking, and give besides between 300 and 400 small feathers, which are made up into fans and other articles of adornment, and bring from $40 to $50 each bird. According to Perry's statement, the birds being plucked every seven months, the ostriches on his farm produce fully $200 worth of feathers a year each.

Perry's computation of the profits of ostrich farming for feathers alone would not make ostrich farming more remunerative than agriculture. His fourty-four birds produce say $9,000 worth of feathers a year. Putting the expenses of the feed and care at $5,500 a year and the profit is $3,500 a year on an investment of probably $15,000. But as before shown, there is an income besides feathers of chicks and egg shells.

A gentleman connected with the Placentia farm says: "Ostrich farming can be made profitable in Southern California. All of the conditions are perfect, and with practical men at the helm it will become one of the standard industries of this section. The Placentia farm experiment was made by a number of capitalists who paid little or no attention to the business, leaving it in the hands of a manager. Let one man or two men experienced in ostrich farming take the Placentia property and it will pay handsomely. The fact that the ostrich thrives here and will live to be from 80 to 100 years makes the investment in the birds a safe one."

WHEN THE CROP IS SOLD.

When the crop is on the market and the cash is in your sock,
And you hear the clink and jingle of the key turned in the lock,
And the clinking of the "pennies" and the clanking of the "tens,"
And the groceryman is paid up and no more his bill he sends;
Oh, it's then's the time a feller is a feelin' at his best
When he rises from his supper, then downward pulls his vest;
And he smokes his pipe in comfort and then goes and winds the clock,
When the crop is on the market and the cash is in his sock.

There's something kind o' cheerful-like about the farmer's eyes
When he knows the summer's over and he doesn't have to rise
About the time daylight's a-peepin' through the gloom,
And work until the moon's up 'mid the grain that's all in bloom;
But instead he sorter calculates he'll hook old "Buck" and "Jess"
To his cutter in the evenin' and put on his Sunday dress;
Then go a-courtin' Lizer with her apron and new frock,
When the crop is on the market and the cash is in the sock.

Oh, the huskin' and the spellin' bees—the winter's harmless fun;
The raspin' of the fiddle when the dancing is begun.
The jingle of the sleigh-bells, your best gal in the sleigh,
The exhileration of the ride beneath the moon's bright ray,
The roasting of the chestnuts, the neighbors droppin' in;
The eatin' of the apples, drinkin' cider from the tin;
Oh, it sets my heart a-prancin' and at fate it makes me mock,
When the crop is on the market and the cash is in the sock.

THE CITRUS FAIR.

TO BE EXHIBITED AT CHICAGO—ORANGE COUNTY WILL RAISE $3,000 AND PUT IN AN EXHIBIT.

The State Citrus Fair for Southern California, which has just come to an end, has achieved a success unparalleled in the history of such enterprises on the coast. Though lasting only eight days, it entertained over forty thousand visitors. The receipts from gate money were over eight thousand dollars, of which sum about one-half accrues as profit into the hands of the committee. Twenty-three different localities were represented, many of them with designs of magnificent proportions and superb artistic effect. Over four carloads of citrus fruit were placed in the exhibit, besides many other semi-tropic products. The show has been pronounced by thousands of people, who are well equipped to pass judgment, to have been the finest sight of its kind ever displayed upon this continent.

It is now proposed to reproduce this Fair as nearly as is practicable in Chicago, or, if no suitable hall can be secured there, in some other great Eastern city. The General Committee of the Fair has agreed to apply its surplus profits, amounting to at least three thousand dollars, toward the necessary guarantee fund, an additional sum of three thousand to be provided by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. The latter amount was speedily raised in the city of Los Angeles, and the whole sum now awaits the inauguration of the enterprise.

A careful forecast of possible expenses has been made by the management, and it is believed that the Fair can be reproduced in Chicago, in even a more magnificent style than originally, for a cost of about six thousand dollars, provided all the necessary fruit is donated by the localities represented. If, therefore, the Fair were to draw no larger crowds than it has drawn in Los Angeles, it would still be a financial success.

Chicago has a million inhabitants; Los Angeles sixty thousand. It is not unreasonable to suppose that five people would attend there, when the show would be in every sense a complete novelty, to one here.

The organizations which have assumed the entire financial risk of the undertaking believe that there is reasonable prospect of a profit accruing. They have provided for the division of this profit as follows: Forty per cent to the Chamber of Commerce in return for its subscription of one-half of the guarantee fund, and for its work in making the past Fair a success; and sixty per cent to the localities entering, in return for their subscriptions of fruit, or its equivalent. The net receipts must be applied, however, to the repayment of the Citrus Fair fund before any profits will be declared.

To complete the amount of fruit required for a successful reproduction of the Fair, it is necessary that each of the localities supply at least as great a quantity of fruit as it sent to Los Angeles for the display just closed. At the end of the Fair in Chicago, each locality shall be awarded a share of the 60 per cent of the profits in the proportion of its contributions of fruit, etc., for the success of the enterprise, the value of the same to be apportioned by the Executive Committee.

The Locality Committees may make such arrangements with regard to the contribution of the fruit and the subsequent disposition of the profits as they see fit. In most cases it will be found advisable to divide proceeds among individuals in accordance with the amount of their original contributions to the exhibit.

The Fair in Chicago will be under the control of the same Executive Committee and general management as the Fair in Los Angeles. The expedition will carry the regular accredited representatives of different sections, selected as follows: One each from San Diego, Orange, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties; two from San Bernardino county; three from Los Angeles county, and one at large. The railway fare of these gentlemen will be paid. Any locality that chooses to send additional representatives at its own expense may do so, and many will adopt this plan. Each locality may send whatever reading matter it sees fit. The Executive Committee will pay for all extra labor produced in Chicago for the reproducing of the designs and the placing of the fruit.

H. Jay Hanchette, the Superintendent of the Fair, will leave for the East at once, to be followed as soon as the work of organization is completed, by the Executive Committee and exhibitors. Fruit and other materials should be prepared for shipment immediately, and due notice will be given to all who send word to the Executive Committee of their intention to participate in its display, as to when delivery should be made at the cars. The Fair will open in Chicago during the first week in April.

From these facts it must be evident that there is need of speedy action on every hand. Representatives of various localities who have been on duty during the Fair are thoroughly informed as to the plans of the management and can explain how the work is to be put through. The localities which come forward at the time set, with the necessary amount of fruit, will share in the profits and the manifold advertising advantages of the enterprise—the others must be omitted.

Among the orange growing localities and counties of Southern California there are several which were not represented in the late Fair. All these are cordially invited to participate in the Fair in Chicago.

It must not be supposed that the only contributions expected will be in the form of citrus fruits. All semi-tropic products, including raisins, walnuts, dates, olives, etc., will be welcome, as well as all specimens of rare and tropical fruits.

The direct value of the reproduction of this grand spectacle in Chicago, in its advertising the merit of our fruit in the center of the Northwestern market, and in the attention which it will draw to the undeveloped resources of this section, opens up a field for speculation too vast to be more than touched upon. Suffice it to say, that the proposed enterprise offers to the people of Southern California, the opportunity which the fruit-grower and land owner have long beheld in dreams, coming now at last in a real and tangible form.

ORANGE COUNTY WILL BE REPRESENTED.

Several meetings of orange growers have been held at Santa Ana and it was voted to raise $3,000 for the purpose of putting in a county exhibit at Chicago. A committee consisting of M. J. Bandy, H. K. Snow, W. S. Taylor and E. A. White was appointed to take charge and make all arrangements necessary in order that the county be represented in a creditable manner.

THURSDAY......................MARCH 26, 1891.

OUR esteemed trans-sandwash contemporary, the Fullerton Journal, which barely escapes a conniption fit every time it refers to this destined to be great railroad center, "slashes around" in its last issue to the following effect:

> We have been told on good authority that the visits of the barber to this place on Sunday, from Anaheim, would be discontinued on account of the threatened boycott of some of the business men of that place.

We make haste to inform our esteemed contemporary that its authority for printing this outlandish statement is bad—very bad indeed. The business men of this city have a lively realization of the fact that, whether Fullerton have one barber or a dozen, is a question which concerns us very little. We are too busy talking railroad, and inaugurating other enterprises, to stop to consider the propriety of boycotting a harmless, inoffensive tonsorial artist. The reason why the barber's visits to Fullerton were discontinued was simply because his business here suffered in consequence. His regular customers, desiring to be shaved on Sunday in order presumably to call upon their best girl, proceeded to get their mugs scraped at another shop. This loss of trade was not balanced by that which he secured at Fullerton, and so, purely as a business proposition, he remains at Anaheim on Sundays. But the idea that the gentleman was boycotted into remaining here, is ludicrous, novel, ingenious and funny. We have always a good word for Fullerton, and were it in our power, we should freely donate them a whole front row of barber shops. As we cannot do that at present the best that remains is for us to tender the good people of our flourishing trans-sandwash neighbor a cordial invitation to come and ride with us on the initial excursion over the Anaheim, Chino Valley and Ocean Railroad—see small bills for particulars. Next!

Our esteemed contemporary struggles on as follows:

> A gentleman who is doing considerable shipping from this place told us that he had been taken to task for it by some of the business men of Anaheim, and as much as told that he had no business to ship from this place. Now this is a pretty state of affairs, certainly. If a man hasn't the right to ship from where he pleases, and carry on his business where he likes, the sooner we know it the better. It is only evil-minded persons who use underhanded means to accomplish their ends.

If the above "item" has sufficient truth in it to justify its publication at all, it should be accompanied by names, places, dates and the other various paraphernalia usually found at hand in well-regulated newspaper offices. The statement is absurd upon its face, and we opine is only printed to let the writer vent his spleen upon the "business men of Anaheim." He will get well. He should take some pills, bathe his head in tepid water and take a brisk walk in the open air.

No one who knows Nelson Hawks, the staid and matter-of-fact genius who made so much trouble for the type founders by originating the "point system," could believe that he ever stooped to such depths of folly as to attend the opera, and yet he does so, and can whistle off a bar from "Gipsy Baron" or "Norma" as well as the rest of them. Hawks was a great admirer of Emma Abbott in her day, and as a testimonial of esteem made the songstress an engraving of herself, wonderfully artistic and true to nature, the pleasure of presenting her with which, however, he was debarred by the hand of death. The engraving was presented to the dead songstress' sister, who lives in Chicago, and who praises the work very highly indeed. In the letter acknowledging the receipt of the engraving, she enclosed as a memento of her sister, a piece of the silver-dotted veil which Abbott wore in the balcony scene of "Romeo and Juliet," and which, the letter goes on to say, she had kissed upwards of a thousand times. This rare and soul-stirring souvenir is very highly prized by its possessor. The veil, except such shreds as were taken from it for keepsakes, was placed in the coffin with the dead and afterwards cremated along with the remains. It is a delicate, dumb, and entrancing remembrancer of the gifted and beautiful songstress, who has passed to her reward in the realms of paradise. Viewing it, one sees again the picture of the departed, full in the flush of her fascinating loveliness, caroling sweet as larks at heaven's gate. In many respects Abbott's voice was the peer of Patti's, her trill, sweet as that of the thrush, was possibly quite as superb. This mute remembrancer, so frail a breath of air might quite dismember it, is all that is left of her. Needless is it to say that Hawks would part with it for nothing less than the calling of the songstress back to life again.

THOSE of our young men who have served their time as guardsmen in the ranks of Company G should scout the idea of doing anything else than re-enlisting. The term of many of the guardsmen expires with this month, and the new roster should be made up by the first of April. If Anaheim could form a military company three years ago, it certainly ought to be able to do as much to day. Still we are informed that many of the members are reluctant about re-enlisting. This aversion should by all means be overcome. At this evening's meeting there should be fifty men sufficiently alive to the interests of our city to enlist and maintain our part of the militia.

MRS. O'SHEA refuses to wed with Parnell, and Buena Park is to have a newspaper. What surprises we are continually running against, to be sure!

Now that it has been decided to get up an Orange county exhibit to go along with the Citrus Fair to Chicago, we suggest that our orange growers get together and help out as much as possible. Santa Ana and the other towns of the county are going right ahead and doing all in their power to make this county's exhibit the peer of any in the Windy City's exhibition. We cannot afford to let them distance us in this very important matter. We raise the finest oranges in this county—fruit as fine as any in the State. The Chicago Fair is just the place for us to spread out. It will do us a world of good to do so. Let us get together and talk oranges for a while.

FROM a letter received from Superintendent Atherton, of the ostrich farm at Placentia, we learn that the first ostriches were brought to this State by a gentleman of the name of Protheroe and farmed at Centralia. The birds, twenty-two in number, were subsequently sold to the California Ostrich Farming Company. According to Superintendent Atherton a farmer with twenty birds would probably (the sex being equal) hatch 150 chicks per year, and lose ten per cent of this number. This, he says, is a very low estimate. The Placentia farm has 133 birds, and costs $1,500 per year, to maintain exclusive of rental of land and taxes. These birds will be sold at auction a week from Wednesday next. We have heard no reason assigned for the sale except that the owners, many of whom live in San Francisco, desire to discontinue the business. To the right man these birds would net a handsome profit.

Full grown birds are valued at $500. Those at the farm, 133 in number, even though they bring one-half their value, would come to $33,250. At its market value, the ostrich farm is worth in the neighborhood of $70,000.

A NUMBER of Cincinnati capitalists are turning their attention to providing irrigation in California, and have incorporated under the laws of Kentucky as the Arrowhead Reservoir Company, with a capital of $1,000,000, for the purpose of constructing reservoirs in the mountains near San Bernardino for storing water to be used in the valley for irrigation. Among the incorporators is Editor Holt, of Moreno.

IT is in very bad taste indeed for the Santa Ana Press to reflect upon the ladies of Anaheim, after what has happened.

Gee Whiz.

Santa Ana Herald.

We wish the ANAHEIM GAZETTE to understand that Santa Ana no longer belongs to the Silurian age. It has arisen into the post-tertiary period, having let the contract for water-works. In other words we belong to the top strata, and can look down upon our Potsdam sandstein neighbors of the primordial zone with self gratulatory complacency.

Important to Fruit Growers.

The next semi-annual meeting of the Southern California Pomological Society will be held at South Riverside, Thursday, April 2d, beginning at 10:30 A. M. Business of importance to all fruit growers will come before this meeting, and discussions of importance will be had. Too much importance cannot be attached to these meetings. To insure the best success we must get together as often as twice a year and compare notes, discuss our various ways of doing things and devise methods of improvement in raising and marketing our crops. The citizens of South Riverside are preparing to give the society a hearty welcome. Let there be a grand rally of soil-tillers at this meeting.

Accident at the Mine.

Saturday noon an accident occurred at the Santiago Company's mine which came near resulting fatally. One of the miners, named J. Ruiz, was working on an incline where the rains had seeped through the roof, making the earth and rock soft, when a cave occurred, a mass of rock striking the workman in the side. He was taken out at once and medical aid summoned. Dr. Hunt attended him Sunday morning, and reports the injured man as resting easy, with no bones broken. The accident was due solely to the miner's negligence, as the foreman of the mine had told him to put in timbers before proceeding with his work the same morning.

The company now have some thirty tons of ore ready to ship, and are hauling it to the depot. The ore is constantly improving in richness, there being a well-defined three-foot ledge.

Buena Park Notes.

The first regular meeting of the new year of the L. M. A. S. was at "Chateau Landell" Thursday last. Many plans were talked of for work. Although this section is not connected with any church denomination, it voted to have their funds donated to the erection of a church building at the Park. Besides their home and charitable work, this same section, having the interest of the community at large at heart, are to give a social at Whitaker's hall next week to welcome the newcomers of Centralia district. There will be speeches, music, etc., with considerable handshaking. It is anticipated a large number will be present.

Easter service will be held at the hall on next Sunday at 10:30 A. M. The regular Sunday school services will be omitted as the children are to participate in the exercises.

The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a praise service at 6 A. M. Sunday. Also have special service in the evening at 7:30 o'clock.

LATE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

City Solons Engage in a Wordy Wrangle.

Trustee Witte Goes After Herr Bennerscheidt's Scalp, and Mr. Reiser Tells a Story of Bennerscheidt's Windmill That Blew Down in a Santa Ana Wind Storm a Long Time Ago—Does Joe "Tote Fair" on the City Water Works?—Other Items of Interest—Chino Railroad.

The Board of City Trustees met yesterday in regular session. Present, Chairman Reiser, and Trustees Witte, Bennerscheidt and Schindler. Absent, Mr. Littlefield.

The Secretary read the minutes of the last two meetings, which were approved.

Mr. Witte, Chairman of the Finance Committee, reported that the committee had inspected the books of ex-Marshal Landell, and found them incomplete. He reported a large number of delinquents for city licenses owing to the neglect of the ex-Marshal. The committee recommend that that officer be be instructed to furnish the Finance Committee with all books and documents in his possession. Also, that an expert be employed to go over his accounts.

Mr. Bennerscheidt moved that the books of the ex-Marshal be examined at once.

Mr. Witte stated that the inspection of the books should be made when all documents in the Marshal's office are given to the Finance Committee. The committee had called for the books, and they had not been forthcoming. On the matter being explained further, Mr. Bennerscheidt withdrew his motion, and moved that the Finance Committee be granted further time to examine the ex-Marshal's accounts. So ordered.

Mr. Schindler, Chairman of the Committee on Public Improvements, reported that weeds were growing fast, and recommended that the necessary implements be procured to clean the streets. Also, that Mr. Langenberger asked for the erection of a lamp at the corner of Lemon and Sycamore streets, near his residence. The committee was given power to erect the lamp and to procure hoes for the cleaning of the weeds on the streets.

The special committee on procuring deeds for sidewalk purposes asked for further time. Granted.

Marshal Gade's report was read, reporting the collections for February and March, amounting to $405 25. Of this amount $3 25 was for delinquents in January, and $2 advance from the Catholic Church for April and May. Also reported that J. Bennerscheidt refused to pay license for February; that M. Nebelung and S. P. Bates refused to pay license for insurance, and that F. Conrad refused to pay license for his brewery. The report was referred to the Finance Committee.

Under the head of unfinished business the committee appointed to inspect the Assessor's maps made by S. O. Wood reported that they had had no access to the Secretary's office, where the maps are on file, and consequently had no report to make. In conjunction with the foregoing, Mr. Witte offered a resolution providing for the fixing of official hours for the City Clerk. He thought the Clerk should be in his office at least a couple of hours two days a week.

Mr. Schindler opposed the resolution, and said he could run across the Clerk at nearly all hours of the day and evening.

Mr. Bennerscheidt averred he agreed with Mr. Schindler.

The Clerk said he could not afford to set aside two days in the week waiting, like Micawber, for something to turn up. He said that whenever he was notified that his presence was necessary at his office, he always made it a point to be in attendance.

The board proceeded to indulge in a wordy wrangle as to the methods of transacting business in vogue by the Trustees. Mr. Schindler declared it was seriously interfering with the usual business of the board. After a further discussion of the subject, Mr. Witte withdrew his resolution.

Capt. Wood stated that he preferred that another man should be appointed Recorder, as he thought he would be away from town considerable of the time in the near future.

The board is having some trouble in filling the office of Recorder. Some months ago they appointed Coroner Ey, who refused to qualify. Capt. Wood having suggested that another gentleman be appointed for the office, the whole matter was laid over to the next meeting.

Capt. Wood brought in a request that he be allowed $100 in advance for the Assessor's maps. Mr. Witte moved that the request be allowed.

Mr. Bennerscheidt objected, saying the maps had not yet been officially accepted by the city, and stating that if the amount were paid the contemplated issuance of city bonds would be defeated by the people.

Mr. Witte said that the granting of Capt. Wood's request had nothing to do with the issuance of city bonds.

Mr. Bennerscheidt objected to the payment of any amount on account. He wanted to pay the entire amount or nothing.

Mr. Witte amended his motion to read that $100 be paid Capt. Wood when the maps are officially accepted by the special committee appointed at the last meeting for the purpose of inspecting the work. Carried, Mr. Bennerscheidt voting no.

Charles Hille appeared before the board and stated that he paid $2 per month for city water, and as he uses but very little of it he desired a reduction on the rate. Sometimes he does not use a bucketful of water a day. Although Mr. Hille uses water for sprinkling his garden during the summer months, his rate was reduced to $1 per month until such time as the entire series of ordinances are revised.

Under the head of new business Mr. Witte offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, There is considerable dissatisfaction expressed and complaints made by the citizens and taxpayers of this city about the water connection now existing between the city water works and the private water works of Joseph Bennerscheidt; and

WHEREAS, The said Joseph Bennerscheidt is using the water of his said works for the sale and distribution to private citizens within the corporate limits of the City of Anaheim, and within the limits of the present water mains of the city, contrary to law and to the financial detriment of the city; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the City Marshal be instructed, and that he is hereby instructed, to at once remove the said connection now existing between the city water works and the water works of the said Joseph Bennerscheidt.

Mr. Witte stated that he was sorry that he found himself compelled to offer the resolution. He desired it understood he that did not introduce it because of personal spite.

Mr. Bennerscheidt declared his water-pipes had no connection with the pipes of the city water works.

The President stated that a long time ago during the prevalence of a high Santa Ana wind Mr. Bennerscheidt's windmill had been blown down, and that Bennerscheidt had come before the board and asked that the city pipes be placed on his premises. The pipes were so placed, and the President thought the pipes had been allowed to remain ever since.

Mr. Bennerscheidt stated that the only city pipe that was ever placed on his property had been shut off a long time ago by the Marshal.

Mr. Witte said it was common rumor among Bennerscheidt's neighbors that his water pipes were in connection with the city water works.

Mr. Bennerscheidt said that the only connection between his water pipes and the city water works had been removed by the Marshal. He said he would pay Mr. Witte $200 for every connection he found on his premises.

Mr. Witte's resolution was carried unanimously, Mr. Bennerscheidt voting aye louder than any.

Michael Crowley presented a petition praying for the opening of Citron street through the Dreyfus winery property. Referred to the Committee on Public Improvements.

Joseph Jordan appeared before the board asking to be refunded $3 license, paid for carrying on a laundry. He had been informed that the amount had been illegally collected. As the city ordinances provide that laundries are liable to tax, Mr. Jordan's request was not granted.

Capt. Wood reported that after making careful estimates on the amount needed for street improvements, water works, city hall and purchase of fire apparatus, he reported as follows:

For street improvements	$6,963 98
Water works	2,975 00
Extension of water mains	1,950 00
City Hall	3,450 00
Total	$15,338 98

This does not include the estimate for fire apparatus.

The board decided to issue a call for bonds in the amount of $15,000.

Captain Wood's bill for furnishing estimates and descriptions of streets, amounting to $59.50, was paid.

Marshal Gade stood up, raised his right hand and was duly sworn in by the President.

The resolution declaring that it is necessary to expend $6,500 for the improvement of streets was then introduced and passed.

Adjourned to the call of the President.

CITY WATER WORKS.

IN A DEMORALIZED CONDITION—NINE FEET OF WATER FLOODING THE CASEMENT WELL.

Work has been practically suspended at the City Water Works during the week, the surface water in the well pit having risen to the point of flooding the pumping apparatus. This mysterious rising of the water is altogether unaccountable, it being from eight and a half to nine feet higher in the pit than it was a year ago. Engineer Schneider has rigged up the old pump, and with this he pumps the surface water from the pit sufficiently to clear the top of the well pipe, when pumping operations may begin. This surface water is conducted to the ditch of the Water Company on Chartress street, where it is allowed to escape. It is necessary to pump about 5,000 gallons of the surface water daily in order to drain the water from above the mouth of the well pipe. This is not only a laborious undertaking, but is also exceedingly aggravating, and entails not a little expense.

This is the reason why the streets have not been sprinkled during the week. If those who have been complaining about the non-appearance of the street sprinkler will take the trouble to visit the water works, they will see that the shutting off of the water for domestic use has been imminent for some time past.

The rising of the water in the well pit is something that no one precisely understands. The deep well pump is now seven feet higher than it was a year ago. From time to time it was found necessary to raise the pump to clear it of the rising surface water, until now it cannot be raised another inch and do the pumping. The water is rising continually, and it will probably be a matter of but a few weeks when the pumping apparatus will be entirely submerged. It is only necessary to pay the water works a visit to understand in what dangerous condition the works are, and how necessary it is that extensive alterations and improvements be made immediately.

Were it not for the rigging up of the old pumping apparatus to drain the surface water from the well pit, it would be impossible to furnish water to city consumers. Fortunately the old apparatus was at hand, and after considerable trouble it was set in position by Engineer Schneider and put to the work of relieving the lower pump of the water that threatened its complete demoralization. About forty minutes each day are consumed in thus freeing the deep water well, and the work consequent upon the gradual rise of the water is constantly becoming more arduous.

On Tuesday the old smokestack was taken down from the engine room, and yesterday the new one was placed in position. The old stack, which had stood for about a dozen years, had been reduced by the wear and tear of time to a mere shell, and was cracked, rusted and decayed out of all semblance of its former self. The new stack, to employ the words of the engineer, is a "dandy," has double steel-rope guys, is thirty-six feet long, eighteen inches in diameter and weighs 1,200 pounds. The work of taking down the old stack and placing the new one in position, was a job requiring great skill, and was attended with no little danger. The new stack was raised by means of pulleys, which worked on ropes suspended from a temporary beam projecting from the tank, fifty-two feet above the ground. The work was unattended by any untoward event, and it is probable that by this morning pumping operations will be resumed, and a plenty of water be secured for all purposes.

It is absolutely necessary that the water works be entirely rebuilt. The leaky wooden casement should be replaced with one water tight and cemented. The engine is old and dilapidated, and the entire premises have an obsolete air entirely out of keeping with the demands of a rapidly growing city. To cut a long story short, we have outgrown the water works, and now stand in urgent need of new works. At present, even with everything in working order, the casement pump cannot be worked at all until the flood of rising surface water is exhausted in the well pit. This condition of affairs is not calculated to amuse those who have property liable to destruction by fire.

Since the cave-in about the casement a year ago, the condition of the entire premises has been absolutely unsafe. Alterations and improvements are urgently demanded. At the coming bond election in May the opportunity of putting in an entire new plant, and otherwise improving the casement, well and water house, should be availed of, and doubtless will.

Del Campo Hop.

The Saturday evening hop at the Del Campo Hotel was greatly enjoyed by those present. The dining-room floor is splendid to dance upon, and the music by Prof. James' orchestra was up to the usual high standard. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Reiser, Mr. and Mrs. F. Crist, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Littlefield, Mrs. Goldthwaite, Mrs. Schubert, Mrs. Judge Hogan, Mrs. and Miss Adams, Miss Myrick of Oakland, Miss Kidder, Miss Eva Littlefield, Miss Nelson, Miss Champlin, Miss Cora Lewis, Miss Jessie Witte, Miss Morris, Miss Hendricks, Stella Goldthwaite, Miss Victoria Ramella; Messrs. Dr. G. C. Zeyn, Wm. McGoffin, E. K. Collins, Frank Collins, Gilbert Landell, Lee Goff, C. Vanderlip and Mel Snyder of Santa Ana, Chas. Ramella, L. Koerner, C. Wommer, W. Ross Lewin, F. Schaumburger, J. F. Thacker and others.

THE CHINO RAILROAD.

SPLENDID WHARF SITE NEAR THE LANDING FOR THE TERMINUS—THE PRELIMINARY SURVEY THROUGH THE HILLS BEGINS TO-MORROW—GROUND WILL BE BROKEN SHORTLY.

During the past week the soundings at Anaheim Landing, Bolsa Chica and Devil's Gate, a mile north of the mouth of New river, have demonstrated that splendid wharf sites exist for the terminus of the Anaheim and Chino Railroad. That at Devil's Gate, where twenty-five feet of water may be had at low tide 1,800 feet out, will probably be selected as the terminus. The soundings were all made under the supervision of R. C. Shaw, representing Richard Gird, and are exceedingly favorable.

The preliminary survey through the hills to the north of town begins to-morrow by Capt. Wood and a large force of assistants.

Fred. Chamberlain of Westminster was in to see us yesterday, and brings the astonishing report that for the past day or two it has been understood in his section that the road would run two miles north of Westminster on its way to tide water. It has been reported at the colony, so he says, that Anaheim, having subscribed more than a sufficient number of shares to insure the building of the road, it would give Westminster the "go-by," and it would be left "out in the cold."

We desire emphatically to impress upon the good people of Westminster that there is absolutely no foundation for this statement. The railroad will run directly through Westminster, and nowhere else. If the Anaheim, Chino Valley and Ocean Railroad is built at all, and heaven knows it looks that way at present, the line of rails will go directly through Westminster on the route to the sea, and positively nowhere else.

We want the Westminster people to come to Anaheim to do their trading. This is the most available place for them, geographically, and we intend to advance other inducements to have them come here, as they did in days lang syne.

Anaheim is the coming town of this county, and we want Westminster to stand in with us. We feel almost privileged to say that this railroad will go through Westminster or it won't be built at all. That ought to be strong enough for our friends to the south of us. We intend to publish the route just as soon as it has been agreed upon. The route through town has not yet been determined, but it is reasonably certain that a commodious depot will be erected not far from the business center of town. The road will come into town from the north, and run not very far from the Southern California tracks. It will then continue to Santa Ana street. Here it will branch to the southern limits of the town, and make a B line for Garden Grove and Westminster. If some of our friends at the latter place have not a care, the road will run right over them. North of town the route will be along the roadbed of the abandoned Anaheim and Pomona Railroad, through the Olinda ranch, Brea Canyon and on to Chino, Pomona, Ontario, Riverside and other points in the San Bernardino valley.

As soon as the preliminary surveys are completed, a large delegation of our citizens will proceed to Westminster to indulge in an old-fashioned hand-shake and jollification meeting. We rely on the genuine spirit of hospitality that pervaded Westminster in the early days, and which we know is living still, to make the meeting one of real and unfeigned jollification on the bringing together of the two sections.

A block of stock in the railroad was floated in San Francisco one day last week. It is not stated who the subscribers are, but we are reliably informed the number of shares subscribed is 100.

Miraflores Musings.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—The time rolls along so fast that one scarcely has time to think of dropping you a line before Thursday pops up and the item that should have been written in time fails to appear. Our neighborhood is growing; the many passers-by cannot fail to notice the age of improvement hereabouts—the numerous orchards springing into existence and buildings going up. We have now an 80-acre walnut orchard, two of 50 acres each, one of 30 acres and several of 10 acres each, besides corn and barley fields. Potatoes are also being planted and the tonnage will be immense. Land sales are looking up, several parties contemplating buying and offers have been made. Mr. Ford of Santa Ana contemplates establishing a large nursery hereabouts. We know the value of our lands for deciduous trees, walnuts, etc. In fact, this loamy soil is good for anything that can be produced in Southern California, and the people are fast finding it out.

A party from Santa Ana made a tour of inspection combined with pleasure on Saturday last. They had dogs with which to chase the festive jack rabbit, and judging from the whoop and hurrahs indulged in by the younger members of the party, your writer thinks that more than one of the animals succumbed to the inevitable. One of the horsemen was thrown; I did not learn if he was hurt. The ladies gathered wild flowers without number—poppys, blue eyes and other varieties which grow in profusion.

Mr. Smith and bride have arrived and are living in their new dwelling.

Charles Miles of Los Angeles visited us and was agreeably surprised at the progress being made.

Mr. Laskay of Washington is having 10 acres planted to English walnuts.

Mr. Hanna completed his task of planting about 60 acres in walnuts and placing a row of mountain cedars along the county road.

Mr. Vaughan of San Fernando had 10 acres planted to walnuts for a Mr. McGray of Boston, and the end is not yet. Verily, Miraflores grows and will yet be a suburb to your city of no mean importance. MIRA.

Next Week's Masquerade.

The masquerade ball to be given by the local parlors of Native Sons and Daughters at Reiser's Hall on Wednesday evening next, promises to be one of the society events of the season. The decorations for the hall, imported especially for the occasion from the Ichi Ban of San Francisco, have arrived and have been unpacked at the residence of Mr. Langenberger. The decorations will consist of Japanese art goods, and will comprise lanterns in unique designs, parasols enormous and tiny, screens, storks, and many other devices of an exclusively Japanese character. The decorations will probably be the most elaborate ever attempted in this city, and the hall will no doubt be a miracle of beauty.

The costumes will be brought from San Francisco by A. Jahn & Company, the leading costumers of the coast. Costumes will be on exhibition at the Del Campo Hotel early next week. Leonard's Santa Ana orchestra of five pieces will furnish the music. The Native Sons are many of them lordly fellows, and our Native Daughters are not only beautiful and charming, but pinks of propriety withal. Together the two parlors should be given a rousing send off, and the hall filled with the beauty and the chivalry of this coming great railroad center. As near as we can surmise the ball will be attended by all the fair women and brave men of this city.

Fred Rimpau will act as inspector of maskers. Those who wish to describe their costumes for our next issue, may call upon him and procure maskers' cards. These may be filled out and left with him on the night of the ball.

The ordinance was amended in one or two minor particulars, but in effect it stands precisely as when introduced. The vote was four in favor to one against its adoption, Supervisor Schorn being the only member voting "agin it." We will all drink soda water now.

—Prof. Zeus' studio in the Metz block is filled with the exquisite sketches and paintings of his class. Those painted by Miss Lute Bailey, Miss Frances Schmidt and Miss Bessie James show great aptitude of the young ladies for this class of work, and the Professor should be congratulated for instructing them so capably. Prof. Zeus is an artist who should be given every encouragement.

—The Board of Directors of the Anaheim Union Water Company met on Saturday afternoon and put in some time discussing the terms of the contemplated transfer of their property to the irrigation district. Nothing definite was arrived at. The Board of Directors of the irrigation district meet on Tuesday, when it is expected something tangible will be arrived at.

—Attention is directed to the advertisement of the Evergreen Nurseries, the largest and best in the country. Tim Carroll, the enterprising proprietor, who swears by printer's ink and advertising, sells more trees than any other nurseryman in the State, and has a reputation for straightforward, fair dealing that is world wide. Give Tim a call for anything in his line, from one tree up to a million, and he will be pleased to give you the best the market affords, and at prices cheaper than the cheapest.

—Louis Bolz has opened up the favorite resort at Anaheim Landing, where campers and picnickers may secure refreshments at all times. During the summer months Mr. Bolz will offer a varied programme for the entertainment of his visitors, and on Sundays will have a band of music in the pavilion, where dancing will be in order. He will leave nothing undone for the accommodation of his guests, and will carry on everything in first-class style. When you go to the Landing call on Bolz and have a good time.

—Nelson C. Hawks, of Hawks & Shattuck, the printers' supply men of San Francisco, was in town on Saturday and dropped in to see us. He helped us select a brand new job office of latest styles of type, rules, borders, ornaments, etc., with which, when it arrives, we intend to astonish the natives. We have selected a complete new outfit, which will be second to none in this part of the State. Call in and inspect stock, prices and material. We do all kinds of fancy, colored, legal and commercial printing, at prices as low as the lowest, and guarantee satisfaction in every case.

—Fourteen-year-old Robert Kerr, who lives with his parents at Santa Ana, met with a shocking accident on Wednesday last. While going up the stairs of a house on his father's ranch north of Santa Ana, the hammer of a shotgun which he was carrying caught on one of the steps, and the weapon was discharged. The contents struck the lad in the right forearm. He was conveyed to his home at once, when physicians were summoned, and it was necessary to amputate the arm above the elbow. The Kerrs were residents of Orangethorpe some years ago.

—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to be present at the semi-annual meeting of the California Press Association, to be held at Napa City on April 14, 15 and 16. The Dramatische Section of the Turn Verein gave a concert here two years ago and will be pleasurably remembered by the people Anaheim. Everbody should turn out and give them a hearty welcome.

—A burglar attempted to enter the residence of F. A. Korn at about half-past 12 o'clock on Sunday morning. He was frightened off, and, being set upon by a watchdog belonging to Mr. Everhardy, who lives across the way, the miscreant shot the beast and killed it. If this prowling midnight burglar had been arrested, an average Anaheim jury would probably insist the evidence was not quite sufficient to convict. The proper mode of procedure in such cases is to affectionately await the burglar's coming with a double-barreled shotgun (loaded, not unloaded), and give him the full benefit of both barrels when he heaves in sight.

PERSONAL MELANGE.

William Wolf has returned to his home in San Diego.

C. R. Blair is in town on a visit to his family.

G. W. Brandeberry has accepted the position of nightwatchman of this city.

S. A. Dennis came in from The Needles on Sunday to stay a short while.

Coroner Ey attended the Stanley lecture in Los Angeles on Saturday night.

Col. J. K. Tuffree, of the Rancho Buena Vista, was a guest of the Redondo Beach Hotel on Tuesday.

S. S. Federman left on Sunday evening for San Francisco, where he is purchasing his spring and summer stock.

A. J. Newton, representing the wholesale merchandise house of Whittier, Fuller & Co. of Los Angeles, was in town yesterday.

Dr. Warner of Garden Grove was in town last week, as enthusiastic as ever about the Chino railroad. He avers the readiness of his neighbors to begin grading operations at once, and is anxious to see the road built.

Mrs. R. Q. Wickham, wife of County Clerk Wickham, expired at her home in Garden Grove on Sunday morning last. The remains were interred at Santa Ana on Monday. We tender the stricken husband our heartfelt condolence.

Dr. Gustave Zeyn left on Tuesday morning for San Francisco, where he will practice as a physician. The Doc understands all about giving pills and sawing bones, and we predict a bright future for him. We hope his lines may be cast in pleasant places.

Grand Warden Stockwell, of Los Angeles, was present at the initiation ceremonies of Anaheim Lodge of Odd Fellows on Tuesday evening, when candidate Wallace, of Los Angeles, was put through the mill. Tom Hull was over from Santa Ana to witness the goat riding, and to see that no one foundered at the supper.

John Wagner of Placentia, who was so severely burned in a brush fire on the afternoon of January 19th, and whose recovery was doubtful for a long time, was in town on Tuesday afternoon, receiving the congratulations of his many friends on his providential escape. He is rapidly regaining his health, and will soon be restored to his lines of usefulness.

Mr. Charles Koch and wife, from Lake City, Mich., have been the guests of Dr. Hunt and family for the past week. Mr. Koch expresses himself as being very favorably impressed with Anaheim and vicinity, especially with the fruit orchards, and hopes at some future day to be able to retire from the mercantile profession and sit under his own "vine and fig tree" in Southern California. He was also surprised at the reasonable prices asked for property, and first thought it must be due to an inferior soil, but on closer investigation finds he has seen no more fruitful orchards than he has visited here. Having just returned from Riverside, San Jacinto, etc., we feel this to be quite a compliment. Mr. Koch and wife return home soon, and we hope that these very favorable impressions may cause his return to our city, and that he may become one of our citizens.

FEMALE HERMITS.

Two Feminine Eccentrics Live Alone in Indiana for Many Years.

For more than sixty years Mary and Lizzie Harper have lived in a tumble down log hut near the village of New Trenton, Franklin county, Ind., four miles from the Ohio line. They are the most remarkable specimens of eccentricity in this country, and have been objects of curiosity for more than half a century. They are old maids, and have been really dead to the world ever since they were children. Mary, the elder, is 83 years old, and her sister Lizzie 60.

The oldest inhabitant of that locality doesn't know when the Harpers came to the place. It is only known that the father and mother of the eccentric old maids lived and died in the miserable log shanty from which neither of the two women has ever been away for more than a few hours at a time. The roof of the shanty fell in ten years ago, and was only held up from the ground by the high posts of the old fashioned bedstead in which they sleep. There is no floor, and the ground has been worn down into a regular burrow. The sisters own property, but they take no interest in the care of it. The stock which they used to have all died from exposure and neglect.

All the efforts of the neighbors to induce the women to take some interest in the care of their property have been unavailing. Mary only tries to pay the interest on the mortgage on their farm, and once every year walks twelve miles to the county seat and settles the account. Her sister Lizzie has the peculiar habits of the snake and ground hog. Although she has no physical ailment, she goes to bed on Oct. 1 every year and is not seen again until April. There is some mystery surrounding the strange conduct of these old maids, but the reasons for their hermit life and their almost complete retirement from the world have never been satisfactorily explained.

Recently the neighbors erected a small frame cottage adjoining the pen in which they lived so long, but it was only after threats of having the two women removed to the poor house that they could be induced to occupy it. They are continually complaining about their hard lot, and want to return to the hovel, which is the most squalid and miserable place imaginable. The sisters are perfectly respectable, but know nothing of what is going on. They can't even tell the day of the week, and are utterly indifferent to everything.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Don't Be Afraid of Cold Air.

To suppose that the constant inhalation of impure air has a tendency to excite the symptoms of consumption is not at all unreasonable, when we consider the wonderful mechanism of the lungs and the efforts which they are continually employing to throw off the poisons of a corrupted air which has been breathed again and again, until its foulness has become unbearable, and even worse—overpowering. One drop of the fluid condensed from the air which has come from the lungs has been found sufficiently powerful to cause instant death. Is it any wonder that many are wasting away and slowly dying upon this destructive food?

The fear of catching cold has caused more sickness than all the colds that ever were "caught." With this peevish dread many strip up their doors, bind up their windows, and look upon every puff of wind as if it were some keen thief who had come to rob them of their lives.

This custom prevails mostly among the better class, or "the rich," as they are termed. The poor man, whose comforts are confined to a little frame house, is seldom heard to complain; and his children are always hale and hearty, in spite of the many draughts which come in through the cracks and the rents of every door and window. The infinite value and the immediate necessity of ventilation must not be underrated, for it is this ever changing current that contributes the greatest boon toward the health and happiness of all classes of humanity.—Hall's Journal of Health.

A Plucky California Girl.

A San Diego girl distinguished herself at Pacific beach the other day. She was one of the three students from the College of Letters who belong to the swimming club. They went to the bath house in the cove of Mission bay, got into bath suits, and rowed out to a little island a half mile off looking down on San Diego. The San Diegon has become an expert swimmer, and she was so busy teaching her girl companions that none of them observed two of the college boys swimming over and carrying off their oars. When it was discovered the San Diegon girl remarked that she wouldn't be outwitted by any sneaking boys. Her companions could not be trusted in deep water, and they accordingly turned pale. The San Diegon told them to get into the boat, as she would pull them across. She then pushed the boat off, took the rope in her teeth and swam across to the boat house, having to float on her back but twice in the entire pull.—San Diego Union.

Look Out for Yellow Garters.

The fortunate girl is the one who has a yellow garter given her by the bride of less than a year. And why is she fortunate? Because it insures for her a laddie who shall be her own true love and her husband ere another twelvemonth has elapsed. The yellow garter must be worn day and night and never removed save when the act of cleanliness requires it. During the first six months that it is worn the young woman will see her own true love and become desperately well acquainted with him.

The next three months sees them engaged to be married, and the last three months of the year bear a wedding chime in their echoes. Dear, sweet match making young matrons give a yellow garter to all the young girls of their acquaintance whom they wish to see wedded, and then they do all in their power to further the cause by introducing every eligible man of dear Jack's acquaintance.—New York World.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE MOTHER COLONY BY A SAN FRANCISCO NEWSPAPER—SOME STATISTICS.

The San Francisco Chronicle of Sunday last published an elaborate article on Orange county, from which we take the following extracts. The article is illustrated with a picture of Center street and an engraving of the Del Campo Hotel.

Campo Alleman, as the natives in the southern part of the State call this most prosperous and attractive of settlements, is one of the best known localities in all Southern California. Here was worked to a successful issue one out of the many colony enterprises which have from time to time been started in this State. On a co-operative basis, for which nothing but failure was predicted at the start, there has been built up a community which for solid prosperity has few equals. The story of the Anaheim colony has often been told and it has often been used as an illustration and argument to induce others to embark in similar enterprises.

Briefly, nearly thirty-five years ago a number of industrious workingmen in San Francisco, nearly all of them of German descent, banded themselves together and from their earnings paid for and improved a large tract of land which they bought for a nominal price. Until the orchards and vineyards that were planted became productive the colonists continued steadily at their usual occupations, paying in at regular intervals the money that was needed to carry on operations. When maturity was reached the lands were divided among the co-operators, each one being allotted a productive vineyard and orchard as well as a plot in the town site. The scheme worked to perfection and the original colonists are among the most prosperous and well-to-do people of the country.

Those who selected the site for the establishment of the colony showed unusual good sense. They selected a tract of land whose fertility becomes all the more apparent as time passes. Corn, wheat, barley and oats grow with a marvelous productiveness. Of the first named a hundred bushels to the acre, and that without irrigation, is nothing uncommon, and of wheat from forty to sixty bushels has more than once been harvested. Potatoes, beets, turnips, squashes, onions and other farm crops yield most bountifully, and the vegetable garden yields a constant succession the year round. The deciduous and citrus fruits attain perfection, while the wines of Anaheim have a wide reputation for their excellence.

Anaheim in 1865 had only about 100 inhabitants, the number having increased since then to 1,500. The buildings of the town twenty-five years ago were of adobe and frame, and were of very plain appearance, there being no two-story structures in the town. Since that date there have been erected six churches, costing $20,000; a $16,000 opera-house; a $35,000 Sisters' college; ten two-story brick blocks costing $90,000; a $35,000 brick brewery; a $35,000 hotel and some 200 frame residences, costing $200,000. The wine business was in its infancy here in 1865, but was the principal item of trade. Now there are ninety business houses of all kinds; the shipments of oranges alone are increasing annually, while hundreds of tons of other farm products are also handled here.

During the year 1890 there were shipped from Anaheim alone upward of 1,500 carloads of produce, including 113 carloads of oranges, 83 carloads of green (deciduous) fruits, 265 carloads of grain and vegetables, including potatoes, cabbages and beans, of which hundreds of acres are being sown for the coming season. The walnut crop, of which during the past season there are about 125 tons, brought upward of $23,000 into this valley.

The aggregate amount received by the horticulturists of this section for their crop of the past season is placed at $150,000, and the figures may overtop that. The season of 1890 was the most profitable the farmers and fruit growers have ever had. It was the first wherein a brisk demand prevailed for fresh peaches, apricots, plums, etc. Although this was partly due to the almost total failure of the Eastern fruit crop, it was also in great part due to the fact that capitalists were now just awakening to the great possibility of profit in drying and canning California fruits. The past season having been so profitable to them—one firm, it is reported, having cleaned up $200,000 in their California fruit shipments—there is no doubt that the large market for fruits and vegetables, once so auspiciously begun, will continue. An instance in this connection may be drawn in the lines of cabbage and potatoes. Previous to last season these vegetables were a drug upon the market. The past season potatoes sold at 3 cents per pound, the highest price ruling since the war, owing to the failure of the Eastern crop. Cabbage also brought large figures, and this season the area planted to both these vegetables in this section presses 1,000 acres. The recent rains have started plowing on an immense scale. Hundreds of acres of oranges and walnuts are being planted on all sides of Anaheim. All orange orchardists report a heavier crop than last year and the output will go several carloads over last season's yield.

Preliminary work is now being done on the proposed extension of the Chino narrow-gauge railroad from Ontario, in San Bernardino county, through Chino and thence via Anaheim to a point on the ocean shore. The requisite amount of stock has been taken and the road seems assured. It will run from Ontario to Chino, down the Brea canyon, through Anaheim, Garden Grove and Westminster, and to the old Anaheim Landing or thereabouts. This road will carry the product of about 3,000 acres of sugar beets to the Chino sugar factory, and bring cheaper coal and lumber and cheaper merchandise from San Francisco. The work will begin at Anaheim, as the material, rails, ties, etc., will all come by water by way of Newport. As a result of this enterprise times are lively along the line of the proposed road, and much permanent growth is expected in consequence.

At Anaheim is located one of the largest breweries in the State. The reputation of this beer extends far beyond the borders of our county.

The Great Spring Medicine—The Blood is the Life.

GENTLEMEN: I have been troubled with bad blood for some years, but recently purchased two bottles of Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, which has entirely cured me. As a blood purifier it has no equal, and I also take pleasure in recommending it as a tonic, alterative, and reliabe rheumatic remedy. Very truly yours, S. E. FERGUSON, Eaton Rapids, Mich.

This is to certify that we know Mr. Ferguson, and believe the statement made by him to be true. We unhesitatingly recommend this medicine as we believe it to be the greatest family medicine on our shelves.

Spreading for Leagues Around

The marshy, overflowed lands, sunken lots and half submerged river banks, which give them birth, the seeds of malaria impregnate the air, and are inhaled at every breath by thousands unprovided with any adequate safeguard against the baneful influence. Yet such exist—potent alike to remedy or to prevent, pure in its constituents, and the professionally recognized substitute for the hateful drug quinine. Its name is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a family specific and safeguard, foremost not only as an antidote to malaria, but also as a means of permanently removing dyspepsia, and relieving constipation, liver complaint, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments, and nervousness. Among invigorants it takes the first place, and it is also a superb appetizer. Use it systematically.

Lingering with slow consumption for many years, he saw Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery advertised in a country newspaper, and he determined to try it. A few bottles worked a change; six months' continued use cured him. Always too independent to ask his country for a pension, he now says he needs none. He helped save his country, he saved himself!
