HOW TO CURE LEMONS.

EXTRACTS FROM MR. GARCELON'S PAMPHLET.

The following extracts from Mr. Garcelon's pamphlet, which is attracting such widespread attention throughout the State, will be read with especial interest by our horticulturists. The gentleman has been very successful in curing lemons, and now gives the people the benefit of his years of observation and study:

For many years the question of lemon culture has puzzled me; so many plans for keeping lemons, each one partially successful, and the first warm days of May and June found the lemons on the market, because they were beginning to spoil and dry. My first experience was, it is time wasted perhaps, to dwell upon those failures; suffice it to say that I have been through all, and not until I used a room plastered for living, with attention turned to excluding light, draught and heat, did I see the glimmerings of success; even then many lemons decayed, yet those that were good kept well and proved to be good lemons. Having this clue I began to think that the fruit was not taken from the tree with proper care and gradually I used one plan and another until I reached my success of to-day.

LEMON HOUSE.

It is not necessary, unless one has a large lot of lemons, to build a very extensive or expensive house. Mine cost me, with all appurtenances, about $2,500, and will contain six or seven carloads of fruit, properly arranged, to keep from four to twelve months, and in addition I have in the basement two large rooms which I use for storing and packing, also for box material, etc. Feeling confident that the best success in handling lemons will come from each orchardist making arrangements to keep his own fruit, I recommend all growers of lemons to build a house something after my own plan, larger or smaller, according to their orchards. In a few words, a plastered room, or rooms inside an unplastered one, closely boarded and ventilated structure, and a hallway running around these rooms, which serve a double purpose, giving an inside passageway to rooms and allowing what is most essential, the boxes of lemons (newly packed) to be piled up in the outside passage until they gradually throw off excessive moisture and persist any lemon that has been bruised by careless handling or otherwise to develop imperfections, etc., before the lemons are put to their "Rip Van Winkle" sleep. I would also advise that if the basement is not needed, to set the house nearer the ground and shade with trees and vines, which will keep the temperature down, as it is desirable to keep lemons as near the 60° limit as possible. The doors should be made to shut close in the inside rooms, but there should be no windows. A few windows with close-fitting shutters ought to be placed in the outside structure; board tightly outside and inside rooms, and I now think lathing and plastering in the inside with movable ventilator in ceiling would be an improvement in mine. My rooms were plastered on ceiling, and sometimes moisture from spoiled lemons which were not properly handled before putting in the rooms, caused the plastering to fall.

WHEN TO CLIP FRUIT.

When lemons on wall cared for (as are from two and a half to three inches in diameter, they should be clipped. There should be a good proportion of the fruit, say one-half or two-thirds, ready to come from the tree from the middle of October to the middle of December, and it would be best to make two separate clippings in that time, for if you make only one many may be too large and others too small. Some growers clip smaller than I recommend, but the three hundred to a box size is the most popular. The longer you leave the fruit on the more it will be reduced in size; you will have to make allowance for contraction—one-third to one-half—before it is marketed. Every three or four weeks the crop should be gone over for sizable fruit until all is gathered. Color cuts no figure, only if the tree is not in good condition, or suitable lemons are not all gathered my rule will not hold. It has been claimed that the first clipped fruit keeps better than the last, and there is some of the fruit that is not a true lemon. Now, I take no stock in such claims; the trouble comes either from excessive chill, or from lemons that have been overlooked in former clippings; both will spoil and affect those near them after being gathered. Of course, I do not say that there is not some fruit on lemon trees through the year, not yet unexplained reason will be no good. This is true of all fruit, and is not confined to the lemon, or less to first clipping than the others; only good and experience will tell more of this fruit spoil in later clippings than in first.

HOW TO CLIP FRUIT.

The grower should provide himself with proper ladders, which may be extension or self-supporting. First, though, he should secure careful and trustworthy men, who will not think it too trivial to carry out the details which must be observed in order to assure success. Do not hurry them; recollect that although their time costs you money, you will make more by giving them all the time necessary to do the work well, and they should not be hired to pick by the box or piece. I have never used rings for measurement, although many growers do. It may be an advantage to get the exact size, yet there is a disadvantage in the fact that some lemons are ready to come from the tree a little smaller than others, and although performers desire mostly the three hundred size, yet three hundred and sixty, three hundred and twenty-four, and two hundred and fifty are good sizes. Also, the gloves and clippers which the workmen have to use with the rings delay the work. The eye of a good workman is all that is needed, and if he is at times at a loss, his forefinger and thumb around the lemon will, after he has become accustomed to the diameter, approximate the size wanted. I like oval baskets holding from 60 to 70 lemons, lined with burlap which may be tucked in the bottom, being sure to cover the heads of the tacks with cloth. Never clip lemons into sacks. Fastened to the handle of the basket may be a stout, bent wire to attach the basket to the ladder or tree. Never pull the fruit; always clip. Put the fruit into the basket carefully, and when full empty into the picking box, first throwing in a few loose sack to break the fall of the fruit. The basket being oval, one end is put into the box and then withdrawn leaving the fruit in the box, and thereby preventing bruising. Some take the fruit from the basket by hand and place it in the box. This is very safe, but time can be saved by my way, but great care must be used. After the first basketful is emptied the loose sack can be gently slipped from under the lemons and used for the next box. The size of the picking box is immaterial. I use boxes that are 24 inches long, 15 inches wide and nine inches deep. Do not expose the fruit to the sun after clipping, and remove it in the boxes the same day into the hallway of the lemon house. When clipping lemons do not leave a long stem, as in handling the stem will injure the fruit next to it.

HOW TO KEEP FRUIT.

We place our boxes of lemons in the hallway of the lemon house—if in early winter, on the south side, next to the outside boarding of inside room. The main doors are kept closed, the ventilators open, and the excessive moisture will evaporate from the fruit in about four weeks in winter months, and from two to three in summer; then put the lemons away. Now provide yourself with trays just the size of raisin trays, only deeper; the ends should be one, and one-half inches deep, and nails left to each side to keep the fruit from rolling out. I have utilized my raisin trays and nailed one and one-half inch pieces on the ends. Select one corner of a room which, to prevent loss of space, could be made a little larger than is necessary, for a number of tiers of trays. Under each tray put a closed empty tray—or two would be better—as I find that the fruit next to the bottom as well as top cures faster and shrivels more. Upon this foundation put your tray for the first lot of lemons, which carefully empty from the packing box. It would be best to begin two tiers of trays at once, so that the lemons that are left over from filling the first tray, with only one layer, can be put on the second. Of course throw out as you may come to it all imperfect fruit. In this way you build up your tiers of trays as high as you conveniently can, using your empty picking boxes for staging. Lastly, cover the top trays with one or two tight trays. In this way you fill your room and keep your inside doors open for a few days; afterward close through the day and open through the night, according to the moisture in the room, which should be kept comparatively dry. After the lemons are once put away on trays, and if they have been properly cared for before, and the rooms looked after as I have advised, there will be no need of disturbing them until wanted for packing, even if it is four, six, eight, ten or twelve months after. A few will spoil—say from 2 to 10 per cent. Although the lemons at first touch each other in the one layer on the tray, they will contract so that if any spoil they will not often affect the near ones, and the few spoiling lemons give a little necessary moisture to the air of the room. This is all. You can look in from time to time to notice condition. If a ventilator is put in ceiling of inner room you will have to be careful of draughts, and perhaps use less door opening and closing.

MARKETING THE LEMON.

This brings me to my lastly, and I am going to plead a degree of ignorance, for I have been unable to follow the fruit in its travels so as to know the reason why some of the same fruit will reach its destination and give perfect satisfaction while other boxes of like fruit handled in the same way are reported as spoiled. However, as I have shipped lemons and oranges together, I find that just as large a percentage of oranges spoil in transportation and high price of freight for less than carload lots, the quicker will both railroad and grower reap larger profits. Could not this railroad appoint some competent man to go with each train of fruit and look after the condition of every car all along the journey, regulating the ventilation, etc.? Reports on fruit shipments read "fruit heated," "fruit chilled," "fruit rotted," etc., until the shipper gets weary and his pocket-book grows thin.

In a Minimal Barber's Chair.

A barber becoming insane while shaving a man is what every man who ever had his throat cut would call a calamity. Therefore a great sensation was caused recently in Kennet Square, Pa., when William Reese showed signs of insanity while shaving Larkin Jackson. Jackson had been lathered and was sitting in the chair, when Reese made him shiver clear down his spine by remarking:

"Jackson, you would make a beautiful corpse; I will take you to heaven with me."

The barber's eyes grew wild and his hand moved uncanily, sweetening Jackson's fears. Reese laid the razor down for a minute and rubbed his hands. This was supposed to be preparatory to making Jackson an angel. Jackson, thinking it was time for him to get out, made for the door, but he was not quick enough for Reese, who met him at the door; but after a hard struggle he wrestled himself loose and started down the street with Reese in close pursuit. Reese stumbled and fell. He was captured and will not do any shaving for some time to come.

THE CHILEAN TROUBLE.

A DEMAND FOR REPARATION WILL PROBABLY BE MADE FOR THE MURDERED AMERICANS.

The relations between the United States Government and Chile are somewhat strained, and there has been wild talk of war between the two nations. The Chileans are indulging in a lot of wild talk, and it may be necessary for this government to trounce them severely. The climax was reached last week, when in reply to the very courteous request of this Government for an explanation of the murder of the Baltimore's sailors at Valparaiso, the Chileans haughtily replied that their Government would do nothing of the kind. "The Minister of Foreign Affairs," says the representative of the Chilean government, replying to this Government's request for explanation and reparation for the killing, "replies that the Government of the United States formulates demands and advances threats that, without being cast back with acrimony, are not acceptable, nor could they be accepted in the present case, nor in any other of like nature."

The Chileans' reply has been under consideration by the Cabinet, and it is expected a formal demand will be made on Chile for reparation and indemnity, failing to furnish which Chile may have her navy confiscated. What the policy of this Government may be, however, it is impossible to say, but it is possible that there may be trouble between the two countries.

It is amusing to hear what the little braggarts of Chileans have to say on this subject. They have lately come out victorious from a civil war and indulge the notion that they have the whole world by the nape of the neck. Five years ago, during the war with Peru, Chile openly and calmly defied the United States. Her ranking officer, Don Patricio Lynch, commanding her land and naval forces, notified the American Admiral in command on the South Pacific station that if any difficulty occurred between the two countries he meant to sail for San Francisco and levy an indemnity of one of the city out of existence. This he could possibly have done for a short while, for his fleet had the largest and best patterns of Krupp and Armstrong guns. The Chilean navy could have stood three miles beyond the range of the best guns we have in any fort at the Golden Gate and dropped 500-pound shells into the heart of San Francisco. Admiral Rogers in command of the United States squadron on the South Pacific station during the war, reported at the time that Chile had five fully equipped ironclads which could appear off San Francisco in three weeks after the beginning of hostilities, while he had nothing effective to meet them.

During the month of May last, when the Itata affair attracted so much public attention, the threats of Chilean naval officers as to their ability to shell San Francisco were renewed. Chilean officers belonging to the Congressional party declared that the cruiser Esmeralda could stand outside the Golden Gate, beyond reach of harm, and make a demand for $100,000,000, or upon its refusal destroy the city.

The ill feeling in Chile against the United States is not of recent origin, for it dates back to the time of the war between Chile and Bolivia and Peru. The declaration of war was made by Chile on April 6, 1879, and hostilities opened early in May following. Admiral Rodgers referred several times in his reports to the Navy Department at Washington to the manifestations of unfriendliness toward Americans on the part of the Chileans. On one occasion at least the Chilean Admiral openly threatened the American naval officers at Valparaiso that in the event of trouble with the United States the Chilean fleet would proceed to San Francisco and bombard the city.

The Chileans are a very sensitive people and treasure malice. If it should become necessary for the United States government to humiliate them, it would require a century to restore the amicable relations which existed prior to the Balmaceda revolution. About the close of the war Chile and Peru were in a difficulty, and Spain sent a fleet which bombarded Valparaiso. Spanish cannon balls are yet imbedded in the custom house, and the Chilean government will not allow them to be removed. The youth of the country all know the story, and the cannon balls serve as a constant reminder that their hatred toward the Spanish government must not be suffered to decrease. But if Chile doesn't mind her own business Uncle Sam will put some more cannon balls in the custom house for the rising generation to wonder at.

A certain portion of the English press which is always glad of an opportunity to assail the United States is seeking to establish a parallel between Chile's response to the demand of the United States and the response made by the United States a few months ago to Italy.

It may be conceded that there is, at first glance, a resemblance, but a little inquiry will develop the fact of there being a marked distinction, if not a radical difference. The demand of Italy was that the United States should guarantee the punishment of the New Orleans lynchers, to which Mr. Blaine replied that, while the United States sincerely regretted that any question of difference had arisen between Italy and the United States, our Government would guarantee the punishment of no one except after trial and conviction by due process of law; and secondly, the Government of the United States in a matter of such importance would not allow itself to be unduly hurried or put into a false position. To this response Italy finally consented without any further question.

But now as to Chile. Our Government made no demand at all, but simply instructed the Minister to call to the attention of the Chilean Government the account given by Captain Schley of the Valparaiso affair, and to ask whether that account was subject to any qualification or explanation. To this the Minister of Foreign Affairs replies, in a very brusque and unfriendly tone, that Chile will look into the matter in secret, and at her own time and in her own way; and this extremely discourteous reply is accompanied by no expression of regret that any difference between the two nations had arisen.

This is what marks the distinction, that the United States was civil and courteous to Italy, while Chile is rude and uncivil to the United States. We may assume, perhaps, that Chile has chosen her language unfortunately, but in her response there is certainly no note of friendliness toward the United States or of any disposition to do exact justice.

Our Naval Strength.

An officer of the Brooklyn navy yard, speaking in reference to the possibility of trouble between this Government and Chile, gives the following information about our naval strength:

"It is the opinion at the navy yard that the trouble between our government and Chile will not go so far as to necessitate the sending to Valparaiso of cruisers. Nothing official has been received at the navy yard relative to the course of the government. In case it should become necessary to send part of the navy to South America, not more than four ships would be necessary to carry on operations against Chile. There are not more than three or four war ships in its navy which could offer resistance to our cruisers. It is hardly probable that England, Germany or any of the great powers of Europe would interfere between the United States and Chile. Should war result, and if it should be considered necessary to send our navy to the South Pacific, there would be need of holding back war ships to protect the coast in anticipation of trouble with European governments. So far as Germany is concerned, the admiral of her navy has stated that he believed the treatment of the American sailors was an outrage and the United States government had a right to reparation. England, however great may be its commercial and financial interests in Chile, will never take sides against the United States in trouble arising from the recent outrage.

"To get the cruisers and other vessels now here in condition for a voyage would take but a few days. The ships now at the Brooklyn navy yard are the Philadelphia, Atlanta, Vermont, Columbia, Minneapolis, Miantonomah, Terror, Petrel and Chicago. The Boston has left for the South Pacific station, and the Yorktown is on the way there. The Newark is at Boston and ready for sailing orders. The Charleston, the flagship of the Asiatic station, is in China. The Yosemite is expected here from Washington in a day or two, and the torpedo boat Cushing is at Washington. The San Francisco is on the Pacific coast, and the Baltimore is at Valparaiso.

"The heavily armored double turreted monitor Miantonomah was put into commission Monday noon, and is a fearful antagonist for any warship. She carries four sixteen-inch guns, six two-pounders, two three-pounders, two machine guns and two gatling guns, and is ready to leave on notice.

"The cruisers of the first-class have twin screws, and can make the fastest time. They are the Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Newark and San Francisco.

"This tremendous naval force in full condition could be assembled at Chile from a little over a month, but would find no vessel approaching it in power along the whole Pacific coast within that time. At no time recently has our navy been in a position to place so many of its best warships at the front in so short a time. Said a naval officer the other day: We should not need troops in Chile, for our war vessels, with their complement of marines and sailors, would be ample for the purpose of subjugating Chile, should it ever come to that point, which I very much doubt."

Royal Incomes.

The amount of the Queen's civil list (£384,000) in no way represents the cost of royalty. The maintenance of palaces is a most costly item, for it includes not only the palaces inhabited by the sovereign, but a vast number of houses in which the judges her relatives and friends. One of these houses has actually been given to the Duc de Nemours, a son of Louis Philippe, and one of the wealthiest of the Orleans family. Besides this, there is the building and keeping in repair of royal yachts and various other such costly items. Parliament has voted to the sons and daughters of the sovereign and to others of her relatives. In addition to the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, amounting to about £60,000 per annum, an income of £50,000 per annum has been voted to the Prince of Wales and of £10,000 per annum to the Princess of Wales. The younger sons of the Queen have been voted incomes of £25,000 per annum, a portion of which devolves upon their wives if they survive them. The daughters of her Majesty have each an income of £6,000 per annum, and in addition to this the Empress Frederick of Germany received an income of £8,000 on her marriage. The Duke of Cambridge, as a cousin of the Queen, has £12,000 per annum, and her two sisters have severally an income of £5,000 and £3,000 per annum.

A King's Hard Life.

An Oriental dispatch casually mentions the fact that the King of Annam has at present 579 wives.

Consider for a moment what this statement entails. Glancing back at the ups in the life of the King it is evident that at one time not long past Annam's rules must have had 579 sweethearts. If he had visited each of them but once a week he would have been impossible to have gone through the list in a year. Now, no self-respecting girl will be satisfied with a lover who calls once a year. Two a week is a good average. On this basis let us do a little figuring:

The King of Annam visited 579 girls twice a week. That would be 1,158 visits a week, or omitting Sundays, 165 visits a night. To any one who knows how hard it is to tear himself away from the front gate under the circumstances in which Annam must have found himself, the terrible wear on the King's constitution is evident at a glance. Besides keeping on the jump to cover the 165 assignments there were on an average 165 cases of mental anguish occasioned by the "tearing-himself-away" process.

Suppose, next, that Annam said to each girl: "I love you, dearest. You are the loviest woman in the world." Suppose, if you can, that he said this only. That is twelve words to each one and 1,980 words each evening. This is over a column and a half of brevier type, such as this paper is printed in.

Again, of each of the 579 papas kept bulldogs, as all self-respecting papas are supposed by the newspaper paragraphers to do, there are 165 bulldogs per night to be guarded against.

But the worst is not yet. Annam has 579 mothers-in-law. Every spring he has instead of one, 579 bills for Easter bonnets; every winter he has 579 bills for sealskin sacques. Multiply your household expenses by 579 and you will understand why the King of Annam's ruler has dropped into.

Compared with this, who will say that the life of the young married citizen of the free republic of North America is not a happy one? Is the King of Annam 579 times happier than you?

The Weekly Gazette.

ISSUED EVERY THURSDAY.

Henry Kuchel, Charles Kuchel,
EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

THURSDAY.....NOVEMBER 5, 1891.

THE Fullerton paper—which is advertised for sale at $500—made a statement regarding us last week that was as malicious as it was untrue. We forbear giving it consideration, as we are assured that the reckless paper, convinced of its error, will retract the statement to-day, and apologize for it.

WE hear altogether too much about the Chileans being "well educated, cultured and shrewd," all of which we cheerfully admit. But this is not the time to rake the files to hunt up their good qualities. And there is too much rot in the newspapers about what the Chileans would do in case of war. Uncle Sam would be doing something about that time himself. There is nothing to fear from Chile. In case of war Uncle Sam would make some radical changes in the map of South America. The United States would wallop the Chileans in less than two months after the breaking out of hostilities. And the well educated, cultured and shrewd but sassy Chileans must make reparation for the cruel slaughter of Americans at Valparaiso. Do you mind that, Mr. Junta?

THE public debt was decreased $5,316,048 during October. This is good enough with the cyclops of the Pension Bureau hanging over us like the sword of Damocles.

THE London Telegraph stands alone the one truthful and unbiased journal among the pack of bullyragging English newspapers. All the others have taken sides against us in the Chilean affair—as was to have been expected. There is a lingering hatred in the average British breast against us that asserts itself upon the slightest pretext. The Telegraph, however, rises above this mire of prejudice, and speaks out in signal contradiction to the Britishers who are ever ready to take sides against us on any question. The Telegraph says:

If the evidence of the Baltimore's sailors is true they were victims of the foulest outrage ever committed upon unarmed men in a friendly port. With such a report Secretary Blaine would have failed in his duty had he not demanded an immediate explanation. We strenuously object to the name of England being dragged into the matter. If Chileans have conceived a notion that England will interfere they cannot too soon, or too emphatically be disabused of such an idea. It is quite unfair to take charges against Egan as truth and upon them found an indictment against American diplomacy. England should not taunt and menace, but advocate cautious diplomacy and mutual forbearance.

THE international tug-of-war at San Francisco is ended, the highlanders first, Danes second, sauer-kraut third, harp and shamrock fourth, Stars and Stripes not in it.

A MEETING of property owners along the bank of the Santa Ana river was held at Colton on Saturday to consider action against the present condition of the Bear Valley dam. Some days ago a committee visited the dam to ascertain as to the truth of its safety and conformity of its management to the report of Prof. Davidson, who in his report recognizes the right of the population living in the valley below, and who recommended that water be drawn off the safety point and be kept there, which the company has refused and still refuses to do.

The meeting passed a resolution asking the company to reduce the water to the 43½ foot level and remove obstructions from the waste weir so that fallen timber may pass through in case of a flood. This action is taken on the part of the property owners to provide against winter floods and the emergency of having a heavy precipitation of rain.

It is a well known fact that an accident to the Bear Valley dam would destroy millions of dollars' worth of property, and in all probability there would be a great loss of life. The company is engaged in the construction of a new dam of superior strength and endurance, but it will be at least two years in building, and the precaution asked is to guard against what Prof. Davidson gave as his opinion would happen if the waters were not kept to a 42-foot level. The property-owners propose to push their rights until the Bear Valley Company accede to their demands.

THE Eastern States held elections on Tuesday. New York elected Flower Governor and Ohio McKinley.

THE United States Weather Bureau report from Southern California points for the past week shows that Southern California produce of all kinds is now coming into the market and is being shipped East. Owing to the lack of speculative demand the prices rule much lower for walnuts, raisins and dried fruits of all kinds than prevailed last year. Fruit crops in the East having been abundant materially affects the values of California produce. The demand is light and the supply large. The low figures now prevailing, however, stimulate the demand and consumption.

THE Yuba sells a fog hung over the Coino beat fields much of the forenoon, and the percentage of sugar has been diminished, and so rapidly that the factory people were about to close down for the season, but clear sunshiny days appeared, the sugar at once increased in quantity and the factory is still running. The Riverside raisin crop is fully a third heavier this year than ever before, and the weather since the picking has been all that could be desired. The crop of navel and seedling oranges is very heavy, but of Mediterranean Sweets is a little light. In Antelope valley many farmers are dry plowing. With early rains an immense amount of grain will be planted in that section. Bean threshing in parts of Ventura and Santa Barbara counties is still progressing. The weather looks threatening, and should rain fall many beans would be damaged.

THE situation at the Vatican is not less unsettled than a week ago.

The Pope is strongly in favor of abandoning Rome and thereby calling the attention of the whole world to the grievances against the Vatican, but he is not willing to make a momentous step without the consent of his ecclesiastical advisers, and this he has as yet been unable to obtain. It is thought possible, however, that he may decide to act upon his own judgment, in which case his counsel would be compelled by their religious duty as well as their personal interests to obey his will.

While Vienna has been spoken of as a possible place of refuge for the papal court, there is much better authority for the statement that the Pontiff favors Malta, where he would be even more independent than in Rome, and where England has given a formal acknowledgement of the supremacy of the Roman Church in religious matters affecting the Catholics of that island. In Vienna the Pope would be in some degree under the influence of the Austro-Hungarian hierarchies, which are richly endowed ecclesiastical bodies, whom the Pope already considers too inclined to independence, if not to arrogance.

If the Pope goes, it will probably be to Malta.

Horticultural Commissioners.

The Horticultural Commissioners of this county furnish the following bulletin:

The time has come for the farmers of this county to begin an earnest warfare against the Codlin Moth (Carpocapsa pomonella). Unless this is done the industry of apple, pear and quince will be utterly ruined, and that of apricot, nectarine and prune will be greatly injured.

The best time to begin the battle is when the moth is hibernating, which time begins about the first of November and continues until the warm days of spring. During this time it is found in the pupa or chrysalis state concealed in the rough bark in the body of the tree, often six inches below the surface of the ground; also in the forks of the limbs, in the packing-house and in the boxes that have contained fruit. A thorough search for them should be made and all found destroyed. The rough outside bark of the tree should be scraped off and burned, cloths being spread about the tree to catch the bark for destruction. No storage boxes should be used the second time without being disinfected by heat, steam or scalding. All infested fruit should be carefully gathered and destroyed and not exposed in the market for sale. The municipal authorities of the county ought to prohibit affected fruit from being exposed in the fruit stands.

Senator DeLong of Marin county has thirty-one thousand trees subject to the attacks of the codlin moth. At the State Fruit Growers' Convention in 1882 he said: "I have ten or eleven men working continuously in the orchard all the season through. Nine of them going over the trees and pulling off all the fruit they could find that was infested with these worms, and others were picking them up and carrying them off. The mean that I used to destroy them was to put them in a large boiler and boil them up, not trusting to the hogs or anything else to eat them, and I came to the conclusion that that was the surest way of exterminating them. I have spent nearly ten thousand dollars this season fighting them." In a letter to this board, dated September 27, 1891, he says: "I don't know as we shall ever get rid of this pest, but if we do not fight them and keep them down they will ruin the entire crop. So it pays to fight them."

The outside of the fruit is often infested with eggs waiting for warmer days to hatch them. They are fastened to their position near the calyx by a nasty secretion of the mother moth, and are so small as to escape observation except by the aid of a glass.

By the means above described a large portion of them can be destroyed, but when the warm days of early summer arrive a change of base is necessary.

Now place around the body of a tree, near the ground, a cloth band six or eight inches wide, so arranged that the larvæ as they ascend the tree will be stopped under it and pupate. As often as once in six or seven days this must be visited and the pupæ destroyed. If a longer time is allowed to intervene between the visits the moth will hatch out and escape. Large numbers will be destroyed in this way, but when the new fruit gets the size of a pea or marble another change is required. Spray the tree with Paris green or London purple, as follows:

Take four ounces of the green or purple to sixty gallons of water and keep the mixture well stirred while spraying. Repeat this once in ten or fifteen days until three sprayings are had.

As soon as the leaves have fallen, and before the buds have swollen, every deciduous fruit tree in the county ought to be sprayed with a solution of lime, sulphur and salt:—20 pounds of lime, 20 pounds of sulphur, 15 of salt and 60 gallons of water. Boil together at least one hour, then strain and spray on the tree until it is thoroughly coated in every part. When this coating comes off it will bring with it all scales and moss of other fungi, and will not injure the tree.

Commissioners of Horticulture.

Mr. "Shork."

The New York Setting Sun—Mr. Dana's evening annex—has discovered that Mr. James de Barth Shork, "one of the wealthiest land owners in Southern California," who is "entirely responsible," and a "most prominent citizen," said on his recent return to his native Los Angeles that the fair management in "rotten Boston does." Moreover, Mr. James de Barth Shork has "told on it" to Senator Stewart, and he is going to tell Congress. This awful thing menaces the fair and Mr. James de Barth Shork is going to see the threat is fulfilled, for he is "entirely responsible" and a man of his word. We regret that the Sun had not enterprise enough to ascertain where, when and how Mr. Shork discovered the rotten core of the fair management. The Sun weakened its argument by getting its slanders at second hand.

McKinley will be beaten.

It is announced that three Eastern parties, whose names are withheld, have donated $60,000 to the Endowment fund of the Pomona College, and $25,000 for a building to be erected during the coming spring.

Through a mistake of the school trustees and other local authorities the twenty-seventh anniversary of the admission of Nevada as a State, which did not occur until Saturday, the 31st ult., was celebrated at Virginia City on Friday by a military and juvenile parade.

A bean ranch at Ventura produced 1,130,000 pounds of beans, or fifty-six carloads. Five hundred and sixty-five acres of Limas yield one ton to the acre; 315 acres yielded 2,200 pounds to the acre, and 140 acres in one tract average 2,650 pounds to the acre. This is the largest yield on record.

Injunction Granted.

Judge Shaw last Thursday granted the injunction prayed for by the Anaheim Union Water Company against the Yorbas. The following is his opinion:

It is ordered that the application of the plaintiff herein for an injunction during the pendency of the action be granted, provided that the plaintiff shall carry in its own ditches and deliver to the defendants in the Yorba ditch, at the head thereof, sufficient water to fill the Yorba ditch, not exceeding 200 inches, miners' measurement, under four-inch pressure, and provide a waste gate and ditches whereby the same can be readily turned into the Santa Ana river at the pleasure of the defendants.

Lieut. Finley's Departure.

The following letter has been received from Lieut. Finley, until recently officer in charge of the Pacific Coast Weather Service at San Francisco:

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 1.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—Dear Sir: This communication will convey to you the information of my relief from duty as officer in charge of the Pacific Coast Weather Service, San Francisco, Cal., under instructions from the Chief of the Weather Bureau, who has directed me to proceed to Washington, D. C., and report to him. I feel that I cannot leave this field of work in which I have taken so much interest without giving you and many others a slight evidence of my sincere appreciation of your generous co-operation with me in efforts to build up the Weather Service on the Pacific coast. Without your assistance in furnishing reports, distributing official information and otherwise encouraging the work, the measure of success would have been less. While called to another branch of the service I shall never forget the interests of the Pacific coast and the advantages I have derived from a study of its remarkable climate and resources.

I shall probably retire from official charge of the branch office about November 10th, when my successor, Mr. R. E. Kerkam, will assume control.

Again thanking you for your courtesy and aid, and wishing the acquirement of every advantage for the welfare of the Pacific slope, I remain, sincerely yours, J. P. FINLEY,
First Lieut. Ninth Infantry.

Resolutions of Respect.

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty Ruler of the Universe, in His infinite wisdom, to take from us our esteemed and honored companion, W. W. Young, whose light has gone out and whose sun has set in the midday of his usefulness, and

WHEREAS, In the death of our respected companion the warning has once again come to our Council of the unexpected approach and the noiseless tread of the Reaper—Death—who gathers his harvest at all times and at all hours and seasons of the year, be it night or be it day, expected or unexpected; be it therefore

Resolved, That in the death of companion W. W. Young this Council has lost one of its brightest, most active, useful and energetic members, one whose mind was comprehensive and bright.

Resolved, That since his voice is still and his tongue is silent, the Order of the American Legion of Honor, and particularly Evergreen Council, No. 808, has reason to regret the loss of one who was so deeply and truly interested in its growth and prosperity.

Resolved, That the widow of our deceased companion has our deepest sympathy in this her hour of trial and bereavement, and while we cannot gild a grave and make its looks attractive, we sincerely trust that she knows her refuge, when the tears do start and the shadows fall, and we do trust that his loving words through life will afford consolation to her soul and that his invisible hands will wipe her tears away.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the bereaved widow of our deceased companion; that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our beloved order, whose motto is, "Peace, Charity and Strength, Strength in Unity," and that a copy be furnished the ANAHEIM GAZETTE for publication. Respectfully submitted.

Greeley's Masterful Speech.

Delivered in Santa Ana August 24th in favor of the county high school:

"We did not expect there would be any opposition to the matter when it was first brought up. No county is so well situated for a county high school. There is no community but that could send pupils to the high school. The opposition so strongly urged is not an opposition to the high school. They don't talk high school; they talk against Santa Ana—to down Santa Ana. The opposition have gone so far as to look up the law to see who is going to be benefited. They say Santa Ana wants a Courthouse, and they urge that they will teach those Santa Ana fellows that they don't run Orange county. There would be no opposition if these people thoroughly understood the question, and were not led astray by their prejudices."

"And what shall we say," asks the Orange News, "of our School Superintendent? Our cheeks mantle with shame that any official of Orange county should descend so low as to appeal to the lowest and most brutal passions of the human breast for the purpose of carrying a point? Nothing in the annals of anarchism could be worse than this! Will Santa Ana permit herself to be played upon and her jealousy fanned into a flame by every demagogue who wishes to use her? Have we not declared over and over that we merely wish to discuss and protect our mutual interests, those of the whole county? Why will Santa Ana feel so secure and at the same time be so disposed to deal justly that she can say: 'Come let us reason together over this matter.'"

A suit was begun in the Superior Court of Fresno county last week to test the question whether an irrigation district framed under the Wright law is "such a quasi-municipality that its municipal property is exempt from paying county taxes." This case is entitled "Alta Irrigation District vs. Fresno county."

The establishment of starch factories at Westminster, Buena Park and Los Angeles marks an era of development which means much for California. The industry is one which can be carried on profitably in this all-the-year-round climate. In the East the starch factories are only able to procure potatoes for some seven months of the year, while here that difficulty is obviated. Of course, the price paid for the raw material is not high, but the potatoes are bought, all sizes together, and a price of about 35 cents per 100 pounds paid. This is a living figure for the producer.

Henry Baker, who killed a fellow convict at San Quentin a few days ago, pleaded guilty to a charge of murder last Saturday and was sentenced to life imprisonment at Folsom. Baker said he was haunted by spooks in the Marin county jail, to which place he had been transferred after the killing.

Serious Danger

Threatens every man, woman or child living in a region of country where fever and ague is prevalent since the germs of malarial disease are inhaled from the air and are swallowed from the water of such a region. Medicinal safeguard is absolutely necessary to nullify this danger. As a means of fortifying and acclimating the system so as to be able to resist the malarial poison, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is incomparably the best and most popular. Irregularities of the stomach, liver and bowels encourage malaria; but these are speedily rectified by the Bitters. The functions of digestion and secretion are assisted by its use, and a vigorous as well as regular condition and physique are thus defended against the inroads of malaria by this matchless preventive, which is also a certain and thorough remedy in the worst cases of intermittent and remittent fevers.

THE WEEK'S NEWSY TOPICS

What We Did and Said the Past Seven Days.

Meeting of the Irrigation Directors—Tim Carroll's Big Well—Mr. Parker Comes Home With His Bride—Dr. Barton Visits Us—Crusade Against Scale—A Workman Runs Across Three Grinning Skulls—Santiago Mines—Resolutions of Respect.

The Board of Directors of the irrigation district met in regular session on Tuesday morning and as usual had a big day's business to claim their attention. Mr. Porter's bond proposition was not sufficiently advanced to say that the bonds would positively be sold, although it is confidently expected news to that effect may be given out at any time. Mr. Ryan, who left for San Francisco at the noon recess, was authorized to list the district's bonds with two gentlemen who are on the eve of departure for London, where they go to place irrigation bonds. With all these gentlemen at work upon the bonds it is reasonably certain that the securities will be sold, and possibly Mr. Porter may sell them before the week is out. Even if he should be so fortunate the listing of our bonds on the London market will be of advantage to us in future sales. Judge Lamme was present, and was paid $500 on his salary. The Directors decided to join the State association of districts, a step which, though it will cost a trifling sum for expenses for the support of the association, is one eminently proper and fit to be made. In the afternoon the board were driven out to see Tim Carroll's big artesian well and reservoir. On their return Engineer Kellogg was on hand with his maps, and gave the board a lengthy explanation of them together with the nature of improvements necessary to be made on the upper ditch. As the sun was sinking to rest behind the Alamitos, and cast lengthening shadows shaft the midships, the board mustered up courage at last and denied the petition of the Southern Pacific Railroad to be set out of the district. They were a long time getting at it, but finally they nailed the railroad to the cross. We say this in all deference to our good friend Col. Hotchkiss. When it was pretty near dark Max Nebelung went the board a round on the barbarity of the reduction of his bill from $300 to $250 for making the assessment list. The question of the share of the fifty went over for consideration until the next meeting. Max says that if he doesn't get the fifty, he'll raise a rumpus that will be reverberating along toward about Christmas time. Below we have the usual comprehensive resume of the board's proceedings:

The board was called to order shortly after 10 o'clock. Present, Chairman Korn and Directors Porter, Stadtegger, Ryan and Crowther.

The Secretary read the minutes of the last regular and special meetings, which were approved.

The Collector reported the collection of $17 82 during the month, which had been turned over.

Director Stadtegger of the committee to negotiate with the Yorbas for their water right reported progress. Marcos Yorba, he said, will not accept of bonds of the district, as he does not think he will live more than a year, does not think he can take the bonds with him and wants to see the cash for his water right before he goes. However, Mr. Stadtegger reported the rest of the Yorbas are satisfied to accept bonds in payment for their water rights, if the bonds be declared valid. They are even willing to wait a year for payment, after the decision in the condemnation suit, if in the mean time the interest be regularly paid. The report was accepted, and the committee continued.

Director Ryan reported seeing the law firm in reference to their salary, and stated that Judge Lamme would be down to confer with the Directors upon the subject.

Director Porter reported in reference to his bond proposition. While he had not heard as yet from his brokers, he was expecting to hear from them every day, and was convinced he would be successful in placing the bonds. His broker had placed $1,500,000 of city bonds, and was in Mr. Porter's opinion the most competent gentleman in Southern California to handle irrigation bonds. He also reported having seen Col. Northam in reference to reservoir sites. Report filed and committee continued.

Mr. Stadtegger remarked that so much money is now coming in from Europe that it should be an easy matter to sell bonds. Western mortgages are being paid off, and money is more plentiful at the present time than at any time during the year. He thought the matter ought to be pressed.

Mr. Ryan said that he had received a summons to go to San Francisco to attend a called meeting of the Executive Committee of the State association of districts. The committee is to have a conference with one of the most prominent capitalists of the State, who has already placed $1,800,000 in bonds abroad, and who has manifested a lively interest in irrigation bonds. His name cannot be given at present, but it is sufficient to know that if he takes hold of the bonds they will go—that there will be no further obstacle to their successful negotiation. The committee would also confer with a like committee appointed by the recent bankers' convention, and there could be no doubt that after both conferences irrigation bonds would be not only more salable but would go higher up toward par. In fact this meeting of bankers and irrigationists will be about the first official conference between the two parties, and much good is looked for from it. The speaker was in receipt of the following letter from the Secretary of the Bankers' Association, which was read:

DEAR SIR: Yours of October 22d received; contents noted. In reply to the committee appointed by the bankers' convention to investigate the irrigation districts that have issued or are about to issue bonds, as I understand our duties are: that when we are called upon by any parties or districts who have bonds to be placed upon the market, that some of the committee (say three or four) must visit the district and make an examination of the property and report of the same, as to whether we would consider the property a good investment or not for the security of the bonds, the same as we would if we were sent to examine landed property for a loan on mortgage bank.

Our object in forming the committee was to give irrigation districts all the support we could to encourage irrigation in the State, and at the same time when we were satisfied that the security for the bonds was satisfactory, we would recommend them to capitalists for investment.

Should your committee wish to meet our committee at any time I think they would be glad to meet you at San Francisco, and talk the matter over and see what can be done, as we are all interested in the enterprise. Respectfully yours, A. C. HENRY,

Secretary Bankers' Association.

Mr. Ryan further stated that while in San Francisco he would come into close relation with two gentlemen who are on their way to London to place irrigation bonds, and he desired to be given authority to have them list the bonds of our irrigation district along with the rest. There is no doubt that the gentlemen would be successful in placing a large amount of bonds abroad, and Anaheim might as well get the benefit of the foreign market. He also suggested that in the mean time E. F. Spence of Los Angeles, a member of the Executive Committee of the bankers' association be invited to come and, inspect the district and report to the bankers. Mr. Spence will act in the capacity of a sub-committee, and will probably visit and inspect all districts in the southern part of the State that are desirous of selling bonds. His favorable report, it is expected, will guarantee their sale. His visit here will probably be his first, as no other district has yet had time to place the matter before him.

Mr. Porter thought that Mr. Ryan's proposition, to intrust our bonds with the brokers going to London, would interfere with his proposition, and claimed that the time given him to sell the bonds had not elapsed.

After considerable discussion, and on explanation that the gentlemen could not reach London inside of five weeks, by which time Mr. Porter's proposition could be thoroughly tested, the matter was settled by giving Mr. Ryan authority to have the gentlemen list the Anaheim bonds on the London market. He will make all arrangements with the brokers, subject to the approval of the board.

Messrs. Porter and Ryan were appointed a committee to go to Los Angeles and invite Mr. Spence to come here and tell us what he thinks of the district.

Judge Lamme was impressed the board on the matter of the compensation of the district's attorneys. The lawyers had dropped six months of their salary, originally fixed at $5,000 per year, because they had understood the condition of the district. Since then he said his firm had done considerable work, and thought that if the board would allow them three or four hundred dollars they would be willing to call it square to date. Their contract expired August 1st, and he thought $400 would be a reasonable compensation to November 1st. Their fees had been discontinued in February. The board agreed to pay the attorneys $500 for their services up to December 1st.

The district decided to join the State association and forwarded their application.

At half-past 12 the board adjourned for lunch, and on reassembling at 2 decided to accept an invitation tendered by Tim Carroll to visit his new artesian well and reservoir west of town. The board accompanied by a delegation of citizens were driven out to the well. After an hour spent in enjoying Tim's hospitality and in seeing up the well and reservoir, the board returned at 4 o'clock and resumed their deliberations.

Engineer Kellogg exhibited maps and specifications of work to be done on the upper ditch. A committee was appointed consisting of Directors Porter, Crowther and Stadtegger and the President, to go to the site of the contemplated improvements and report upon the same at the next meeting of the board.

The committee on auditing ex-Collector Cadman's accounts was at its request merged into the general auditing committee.

Max Nebelung engaged the attention of the board on the cut in his salary from $300 to $250 for making last year's assessment. After a discussion of the subject the matter went over to the next meeting of the board.

Adjourned to the call of the chair.

Tim Carroll's Big Well.

A large crowd of people gathered at Tim Carroll's big artesian well on his place in West Anaheim on Tuesday afternoon in response to invitations to go and see what the well could do. A sumptuous lunch had been prepared, to which the crowd paid their respects after they had inspected the well and sized up the reservoir. The well has been lately completed, and flows into a reservoir an acre and an eighth in extent. On Tuesday the reservoir held a million and a half of gallons and its capacity is nearly double that. The water escapes for irrigation from an eight-inch pipe, and the flow amounts to 100 miners' inches.

The reservoir is one of the finest sights in the country. Boating may be enjoyed, and the waters are sufficient to irrigate a great tract of land. Tim is to be congratulated on his good luck. He has the best well in the country, and he entertained the large crowd right royally when they went to see it.

The Directors of the irrigation district adjourned to go with the crowd to see the well and expressed themselves as delighted. They also paid particular attention to the lunch and liquid refreshments. The joker who stood looking over that the well be condemned by the district and taken to help them out in times of water scarcity.

Schlange photographed the crowd ground around the reservoir. Tim mounted the well pipe, standing well out in the foreground, Schlange said ready, Tim put on his best smile and Schlange said all over. Then the crowd went and had some more lunch and—refreshments.

Tim is an enterprising gentleman and is deserving of his success. More power to his elbow!

Daylight Fumigation.

We have been shown by Horticultural Commissioner Perry an orange from the Lock grove at Tustin that has recently been fumigated in daytime. Mr. Perry is of the opinion that daylight fumigation is fully equal to that done at night, and that in future much of the fumigation for scale will be done in daytime. The orange shown us is entirely clean, and Mr. Perry said it had been the worst looking one he could find in the orchard. The work has been well done, and there is no reason why others should not do as well. The gas in daytime is kept on the trees longer, but is not made so strong as that used at night. That is the whole secret. Of course fumigation at night is very efficacious, but we believe the time is at hand when the horticulturist may do the work in daytime.

That's What We Should Do.

In the event of war with Chile, the United States would simply wipe up the earth with them in less than two minutes by the watch after we started—and we should start pretty tolerably pronto, too.

PERSONAL MELANGE.

Edgar Johnson of the Westminster Tribune was in town on Tuesday, and dropped in to see us.

James Sturgess, one of the prosperous farmers of Garden Grove, was in town on Tuesday.

Judge Lamme was down from Los Angeles in attendance upon the meeting of the irrigation board on Tuesday.

F. G. Ryan is in San Francisco in attendance upon the executive committee of the State association of irrigation districts.

John A. Burton of Garden Grove was in town on Monday, and reports everything flourishing down his way.

Leopold Cohen, formerly a resident here, now of Los Angeles, was in town yesterday on a short business visit.

H. H. Mayberry of Los Angeles, representing the Schoder, Johnston Company, was in town yesterday.

W. E. Wright of the First National Bank of Los Angeles was down to see his friends hereaway on Sunday.

Henry Oelkers of Los Angeles was in town on Sunday. He reports business picking up in the Angelic City.

District Attorney Sanborn and Col. George Taylor of the Santa Ana Abstract Company were over to see us on Saturday.

R. T. Griffith of Los Angeles has taken a position as bookkeeper at his father's lumber mill at the S. P. depot, and will remain here for some time.

Adolph Rimpau was at South Riverside on Tuesday on a business trip. He says things are looking up at that place, orange orchards going at $1,000 per acre.

Our friend McGinty, who went up to Los Angeles to see the sights last week, returned in good health on Monday and is engaged in papering Prof. Frantz' barber shop.

Leonard Parker and bride have returned from their honeymoon trip. The happy couple have the best wishes of their friends for a long and prosperous journey through life. May their troubles be nothing but little ones! Our congratulations!

T. C. L. Kay returned on Saturday from his hunting trip to British Columbia and is confined to his bed at Dr. Bullard's with a serious attack of pneumonia. His condition has been such as to cause alarm, but we hear that last night he was somewhat improved. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

William Jacobs, a retired Chicago merchant, is in town looking over familiar places that he became acquainted with during the boom. He was with us four years ago, when real estate was high and going at a lively rate. The boom had many ludicrous sides about it, and Mr. Jacobs did not escape them. He remains in this State during the winter.

The Santiago Mines.

Dr. R. S. LAW, representing the San Francisco and Los Angeles syndicate who some four months ago bonded the Santiago Mining Company's mines east of town, was here Tuesday and engaged a force of twenty-five men to construct a wagon road from the mines to El Toro, the nearest shipping point. D. J. Sorenson was engaged as foreman of the work and will leave for the mines with his men, tools and outfit to-day. The building of the road will require about a month's time, but it is expected to have it finished before the heavy rains set in.

The Doctor is a mining expert of thirty years' experience, and has operated in Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Arizona, Mexico, and nearly every mining district of note, besides in this State. He states that the four months' development work done at these mines during the term of the company's bond has so well satisfied his people that they have decided upon at once commencing a systematic development and improvement of the property, and some very large contracts have been let in San Francisco of which we will be permitted to speak in the near future. Suffice it to say at present that mining will hereafter rank as one of our leading industries, and the opening of these mines will be of especial direct benefit to Anaheim.

Considerable quiet work has also been done during the year in the Silverado mines, and some good deposits of ore have been uncovered which will assay well and of which a large quantity is now on the dump and awaiting shipment.

Buena Park.

J. M. Parker of New Jarsey, who owns property on Grand avenue, is in town attending to his interests.

John Sloan is about to commence the building of a nice residence on the corner of Grand and Canadian avenues. Another will soon be built between the schoolhouse and the church by Mr. Barrow of Santa Ana.

Mrs. Lewis chaperoned a party of Anaheim who were on a calling expedition to the Buena Park vicinity. They visited the condensed milk factory and other points of interest.

Monday evening the Farmers' Alliance held an open meeting at Whitaker's Hall, which was largely attended by an interested audience. Music was rendered by Miss Mabel Young, and the meeting opened by the local President, C. H. Robinson, introducing D. Edison Smith of Santa Ana, who read a paper on the money question, and Henry F. Gardner, President of the County Alliance, set forth the objects and purposes of the organization. An invitation was extended to join the club which was accepted by quite a number of ladies and gentlemen. This society has been very active in the cause and is in a flourishing condition.

The Congregational Church is completed and will be dedicated next Sunday, November 8th. A cordial invitation is extended to all to participate in the services. Dedicatory sermon by Rev. Hill, D. D., of Pasadena at 2 P. M.

The social club gave a party at the new schoolhouse last Friday evening. It was a most unique affair. Lovers of the dance from Anaheim, Orangethorpe, Fullerton, Norwalk and Artesia graced the ballroom with their presence. Holgate's orchestra of Norwalk furnished fine music. Supper was served in a tent lighted with Chinese lanterns and tastefully decorated with evergreens and flowers. BUENA.

Kleinigkeiten.

—Scat, Chile, scat! Vamos!

—The Supervisors have reduced the allowance of Mrs. Dawkins, an indigent, from $20 to $12 per month.

—Those foggy mornings keep the engineers "squealing" down in the region of the semiphore.

—The Pacific Coast Steamship Company's time table for November will be found on the second page this morning.

—Parties who tried to buy wood on Monday found that there was hardly a stick of it in town. Wood has been scarce lately, and is getting to be a cash article.

—Prof. Frantz is beautifying his barber shop by putting up some elegant patterns of wall paper. When the contemplated improvements are finished he will have one of the neatest shops in the country.

—Photographer Schlange has been making some views of the city which surpass anything in that line ever taken here. He is an expert photographer, and guarantees satisfaction. Call and see him.

—The Sisters' school on Palm street is having its slate roof taken off and is being shingled instead. The slate cracked in the sun, the roof leaked and consequently a new roof is being put on.

—The demurrer to the complaint in the case of the Anaheim Water Company vs. the bondsmen of Dr. Gardiner was overruled by Judge Torrance in the Superior Court at Santa Ana on Thursday last.

—The new Congregational Church at Buena Park will be dedicated Sunday next at 2:30 P. M. It is said to be a gem of a church. Rev. Mr. Hill of Pasadena will preach the sermon. All are cordially invited.

—The contempt case of Vicente Yorba, which came to have come up before Judge Shaw in the Los Angeles Superior Court on Monday, was owing to the sickness of Attorney Chapman postponed until Saturday.

—List of unclaimed letters remaining in the Postoffice November 4th: John Adams, Mrs. Kate Brown, S. H. Bush, W. P. Davis (2), A. B. Cadman, J. R. Gorigsby, Chas. Holt, Tom McDermit, Miss Annie Park.

—Superintendent Sheppard of the water company has a gang of men at work at Flume 3 on the upper ditch, making a cut and fill. The flume will be abolished and the place filled in. A cut will also be made to shorten the length of the ditch.

—Saturday was Halloween, and the mysterious witches came to town at midnight and amused themselves by changing signs and carting off several of the wagons awaiting repairs at Schanman's blacksmith shop. The witches must have been muscular cusses.

—The county roads around Anaheim are in a wretched state of demoralization. The Supervisors should give them their immediate attention, and for the good name of the county proceed at once to fix them. The roads are a disgrace to every one in the county. Come, Messrs. Supervisors, give us better roads.

—John Wagner brought in a coyote scalp from his ranch at Placentia on Monday and turned it into the County Clerk, for which he will get the $5 bounty. There are quite a number of the varmints out his way, and it is possible he may make another hair on the Treasury before the law is repealed.

—The meeting of the Orange County Sunday School Association, heretofore announced to be held at Buena Park November 7th, has been postponed one week by request of the Buena Park people. The convention will be held at that place on Saturday, November 14th. Those interested will take notice of the change and govern themselves accordingly.

—While digging fertilizer at the site of an old sheep camp on the Alamitos ranch the other day a workman came across rather a grewsome find. A short distance below the surface three human skulls lying close together suggested the possibility of a murder of the long ago. Possibly the herders had had some "words," and the skulls are all that now remain of getting the paisanos out of the way. Quien sabe!

—The Santa Ana Blade publishes an item to the effect that a lady of that place won a panel at a medio drawing recently. This drawing, we begin to suspect upon inquiry, is in the nature of a lottery, and must not be referred to in the newspapers. The paper containing the item is liable to be thrown out of the mails! We trust our contemporary will hereafter pay closer attention to Wanamaker's law. That is, until we get another Postmaster-General.

—A couple of weeks ago some malicious boys broke into the schoolhouse at West Anaheim and committed a lot of mischief. Evidence pointed to Emil Menzel as one of the parties and he was arrested on a charge of malicious mischief and tried before Squire Landell on Saturday. The evidence was not sufficient to convict, however, and he was discharged. It is a pity the disreputable little gang who did the mischief cannot be caught and punished. The little rascals richly deserve it.

—A young man who lived here some months ago and subsequently moved to Santa Ana, but who is now living in Los Angeles in somewhat impecunious circumstances, puts in time nowadays "laying for" his former friends of this region and striking them for the favor of a loan. The other day on the corner of Spring and First streets he accosted a gentleman living not far from here, and asked him to "do him a favor." He drew from his pocket a key and a bit of chewing tobacco and said that was the "extent of his pile." He proceeded to strike his victim for $20! It is needless to say he didn't get it. It is reported that several parties have been similarly "struck," and it is suggested that parties going to Los Angeles go up town by the back street route or stay away altogether!

—D. Moot, who was quite severely injured some days ago by being thrown from the railroad bridge between here and Santa Ana by meeting a train of cars while driving across with a horse and buggy, is recovering. His horse shied at the engine and leaped over the railing into the river bed, carrying the buggy with it. Mr. Moot was caught in the wreck and narrowly escaped with his life. The train slowed up and returned to the scene of the accident, picked Moot up and brought him to town. He was bruised considerably, but is nearly well again. It is reported he intends bringing an action for damages against the county.

—The exports from Anaheim for the year ending October 1st last comprised 273 cars potatoes, weight 5,477,870 pounds; 144 cars oranges, 3,041,700; 136 cars fertilizers, 5,075,130; 64 cars corn, 2,248,110; 53 cars wool, 938,050; 17 cars hay, 178,220; 15 cars wine, 226,465; 12 cars beans, 231,400; 11 cars vegetables, 222,010; 9 cars walnuts, 193,160; 3 cars green fruit, 158,280; 7 cars barley, 140,000; 4 cars tree, 82,070; 2 cars onions, 40,670; 3 cars lemons, hides, etc., 38,550; 150 cars general merchandise and miscellaneous products, 2,994,933. Total, 914 cars, weighing 21,407,480 pounds. During the same period the imports of general merchandise amounted to 13,556,880 pounds, or a total freight movement of over 1,600 carloads, an average of 5½ carloads per day.

—The afternoon train on the S. P. now goes north at 1:23 o'clock. Street cars connect with all trains.

—Collector White gives notice this morning that taxes are now due and payable in the irrigation district, and that he will be in his office for the collection of the same during business hours until further notice.

—A petition is in circulation and is being numerously signed asking that Ed Pellegrin be appointed City Trustee, vice Herr Sennerschaidt, resigned. Ed would make a model City Father.

—The Wilkie Opera Company are billed to appear at the Opera-house on the evening of December 1st. They will give us "Sleeping Queen" and "Widows Bewitched," and are said to be very good.

—The bitter opposition to the building of the Second-street railroad at Santa Ana almost culminated in a small riot between the factions on Tuesday evening. The officers have in sight and only a few scraps resulted. There is much bad feeling over the building of the road.

—Director Crowther sprung a small-sized sensation before the meeting of the Directors in the irrigation district on Tuesday by remarking that one of his constituents had threatened to have the Grand Jury investigate the Board of Directors, unless they did better. The board resolved to do better.

—The hydraulic well being bored on the Hamlin place on the Alamitos when down 250 last week was abandoned for a more available site. Yesterday the new well was down about 200 feet, and it is expected a flow will be struck in a day or two.

—One of our subscribers informs us that the enterprising firm of Stern & Goodman of Fullerton has opened a nice, fine and stylish stock of clothing and dry goods, boots and shoes, and are selling at such astonishingly low prices that we cannot refrain to recommend our friends to call on Stern and Goodman and report their opinion at our office whether we learned the truth or not.

—J. H. Oman, who keeps the semiphore below town, was in to see his friends the other day, and could hardly recognize them—he hadn't seen a man for so long. Oman is just a trifle lonesome nowadays, his wife being away on a visit in the northern part of the State. He never sees anybody now, except those who ship past on the trains. The only man he has seen lately was a tramp the other day who stopped to ask him if he was on the right road to Los Angeles.

—We do not care to be continually calling the attention of the authorities to disgraceful scenes in town on Sundays. Last Sunday a fellow was very drunk and very vituperative outraged decent people with his flood of profanity, of which he unlunged himself vociferously in the center of town. He was put in jail, and instead of being made to suffer for his outrageous infraction of the law, was allowed to depart when he "sobered up." He should have been kept in jail over night and made to pay a fine in the morning. The attention of the Trustees and the officers is respectfully called to these occurrences, which should be stopped. Let the nuisances be abated.

—Santa Ana has been all torn up over the arrest of one or two of her attorneys and the charges and counter charges of the same. Attorney Hayford, who represents the defendant in a foreclosure of property in the name of a resident, took possession of it a day or two ago and then proceeded to tear down and remove the improvements. He was arrested for contempt of court and grand larceny. Col. Messmore, attorney for the plaintiff, attempted to dispossess Hayford, who had him arrested for assault with a deadly weapon (probably the Colonel's fist) with intent to kill! The Colonel was discharged at his trial on Monday, and Hayford will answer to the Superior Court for his indiscretion.

—Messrs. W. B. Harker and F. D. Brown have opened a real estate agency in Harker's store on Center street, and have listed some of the choicest pieces of property in this part of the State. They have improved places in and about Anaheim, and are ready to talk trade to any one who wishes to buy. Intending purchasers will do well to call on them and inspect the property in their hands. There is no doubt that there will be a large influx to California this winter—in fact, the advance guard has already arrived. Messrs. Brown & Harker will have their eagle eye out for those newcomers, and will endeavor to head off the stream of immigration this way. Good luck to them.

—A railroad laborer named Tom Murphy, who was just out of the railroad hospital at Tucson, became intoxicated in Los Angeles on Tuesday evening, laid down by a railroad track and an engine came along and crushed both his legs.

STATE NEWS BOILED DOWN

Some parties cultivating land in the vicinity of Lodi pay $13 an acre for water for irrigation. The water is pumped by steam power from the Mokelumne river, but despite this enormous rental the farmers say they can make money off the land.

The meanest man of the season turned up at Carson the other day, and he is beginning young. He recently demurred to the publication of the details of a party given in honor of his twenty-first birthday because he was afraid he would have to pay poll-tax if it came to the ears of the collector.

A special excursion of 500 visitors ran over from Riverside to the Chino sugar factory the other day. They had a brass band along, and had a great time. The factory expected to close its season's run this week, but the continued warm weather is ripening the late beets, and this will enable it to operate for some time yet.

About 600 carloads of raisins have so far gone East from Fresno this season. The shipments are now averaging a trainload of twenty cars each per day. The present estimates are that the total shipment for this season will reach 1,000 carloads, or about 150 more than last year. A few packing-houses will close this week, while all will close from two to three weeks earlier than last year.

The Santa Fe Company is making preparations to thoroughly develop the business of raising early vegetables for the Chicago market. It is expected shortly to send a solid vegetable train each week from Southern California points on the same time as passenger trains, the estimate being that Chicago can consume and distribute the cars of stuff in three a day. The freight rates will be made satisfactory, and every encouragement given the farmers.

G. J. Griffith, a prominent capitalist of Los Angeles, and owner of Los Felix ranch, well known here, was shot and seriously wounded near the Catholic cemetery at Los Angeles last Thursday by a man named Burkett, who immediately committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. Burkett had had litigation with Griffith and lost his case, which caused him to brood over the subject, and finally prompted him to his final act. Griffith is recovering.

The San Antonio Electric Power Company has been organized at Pomona, with a capital of $80,000, for the novel purpose of utilizing the water power in the canyons in that region. Contracts have been let for digging a tunnel 1,200 feet into ten sandstone mountains for the purpose of developing 1,600 inches of water. This water will be used for generating about 1,100 horse-power for furnishing electric power and electric lights for Pomona, Chino and Ontario and then for use in irrigating 1,800 acres of land in the Pomona valley.

"Yes," said a young lady from Colorado to a class of boys in one of the Riverside Sunday schools, "Yes, boys, God made every animal for some use. He made the horse that we may drive and ride. He made the sow so that we may have beef and milk; and now," she added, wishing to try the intelligence of the class, "can any one tell me why God made the sheep?" There was silence for a moment, but only for a moment, for the red-haired boy in the corner spoke out triumphantly: "Please, ma'am, he made the sheep so we could have fertilizer for the orange groves."

The Grand Jury of Sacramento county have returned an indictment against W. M. Reed, a farmer, who resides in that county, charging him with libel in the Farmers' Alliance meeting a few weeks ago. Reed in a vigorous speech declared that three members of the Board of Supervisors had received $15,000 for their votes to kill a certain ordinance which was in opposition to the liquor dealers. He quoted as authority the proprietor of a Sacramento winery, who he declared had told him he collected money from the saloon-keepers. When approached by the Supervisors the winemaker denied having made such a statement. Reed was then arrested on the charge of libel and released on $1,000 bail.

Referring to a statement made by a San Diego county Supervisor at Riverside that slanders is prevalent to a great extent in Los Angeles county, Dr. J. W. Cowper, County Stock Inspector, asserts that, on the contrary, Los Angeles county is at present singularly free from the disease. Three or four cases have been reported within the last month, but prompt action has been taken to prevent the spread of the disease. Stock owners sometimes run infected horses into the city to sell, them but they are at once shot. Dr. Cowper says the disease is much more prevalent in San Diego than in Los Angeles county. He adds that there is not so much danger of its transmission as is generally supposed. Unless horses water at the same trough they may work side by side without catching it.

According to the annual statement furnished by the County Auditor of Los Angeles county to the State Controller the total value of taxable property in the county, exclusive of railroads, after the 15-per-cent raise made by the State Board of Equalization, is $80,357,621. The State taxes on this amount are $358,394 53, and the county taxes $236,125 90—a total of $884,529 44. The bonded indebtedness of the county on September 26th last was $914,500. Of these outstanding bonds worth $142,500 draw 6 per cent interest and $592,000 draw 4½ per cent, and $180,000 draw 5 per cent. There is in the county treasury $42,066 97 in cash, which is applicable to the payment of this indebtedness, while the estimate of the valuation of the county property is as follows: Courthouse, $700,000; hospital, $50,000; Poor Farm, $240,000, and real estate $25,000. Total $875,000.

The crop bulletin reports that if favorable weather continues bean threshing in Ventura will be finished in another week. Antelope valley will, this week, make its sixth cutting of alfalfa, giving $100 an acre gross for alfalfa hay on irrigated lands that five years ago were considered worthless. Between Los Angeles and the ocean the yield of barley has been enormous. Raisin, prune and walnut drying is in full blast, the quality being very satisfactory. The drying of other fruits is nearly over, a few late peaches remaining. The season has been exceptionally favorable for raisin making. The grain crop of the San Joaquin ranch, Orange county, will aggregate 170,000 sacks, mostly barley. The season just closing has been, on the whole, a very favorable one both to the grain and fruit farmer, good prices prevailing for most products.

The contest over the division of San Bernardino county, which assumed such importance at the last session of the Legislature, is now taking on a new phase. Riverside, Colton, Chino and Ontario are interested in having San Bernardino county divided. Redlands during the contest last winter was the only ally of San Bernardino. Since then the Supervisors have submitted to the people the proposition of issuing $330,000 in bonds for a new courthouse and jail, which the people voted down. The Supervisors then declared that the courthouse would be built in spite of the popular verdict. They proceeded to levy a tax for this purpose. Now the people of Ontario, Riverside, Colton, Banning, Beaumont, Chino and Redlands are agitating the removal of the county seat to Redlands, and as San Bernardino is powerless in dealing with the combination, very interesting results are expected. The fact that the county seat was never settled by a popular vote is said to give a majority of the people power to remove the seat at any time they choose. The real animus of this affair dates far back. San Bernardino is a very old town, founded by the Mormons. All other towns are new and the two classes do not work in harmony. With the popular sentiment so aroused, it seems not improbable that the county seat will be moved.

Hat and Cap Doffing.

There are many of us who still fail to comprehend how any rational being, how the Almighty himself, could feel honored by the uncovering of a human creature's cranium; and I am old fashioned enough to be reminded of certain historical sayings regarding the doffing of head coverings.

George Fox used to ask if the very Turks did not mock at the Christians in their proverb which ran that "the Christians spend much of their time in pulling off their hats and exhibiting their bare heads to each other."

His contemporary, George Keith, wrote: "The preachers of Germany, and especially at Hamburg, which I have seen with my eyes, use such gross partiality in their salutations that commonly they have two caps under their hats. The poor, except extraordinarily, they pass by without any notice; to others they doff the hat; others more rich in the world they salute with doffing the hat and one of the caps; and to those whom they most honor, or rather flatter, they doff the hat and both caps."

And did not our W. Penn say, in a more serious vein: "The first and most pressing motive upon our spirits to decline the practice of these present customs of pulling off the hat, bowing the body or knee, and giving people gaudy titles and epithets in our salutations and addresses, was that savor, sight and sense that God, by his light and spirit, has given us of the Christian world's apostasy from God, and the cause and effects of that great and lamentable defection."—American Notes and Queries.

Man's Treatment of the Dog.

In nothing does social usage show such a brutal paradox as in its treatment of the dog. It coddles and nurtures him when he is worthless. It kills him ruthlessly when he is valuable. It supports high toned kennel clubs for his propagation, and it makes laws to destroy him at sight. It licenses the brute and puts a premium on him and it gives every ignorant justice the power to order him shot. It preaches his fidelity and affection with one breath and calls for his extermination with another. There is more superstition and ignorance associated with the dog than with the number thirteen.

I can take you tomorrow to half a score of professional dog fanciers, who to guard your pet against hydrophobia will undertake to extract the worm from his tongue or to bite the last joint of his tail off. For a hundred years they have put roll brimstone in his drinking water as a prophylactic without ever once knowing that water does not dissolve brimstone. The dog is the best loved and the least understood of man's brute companions.—Nym Crinkle in New York Recorder.

The duration of a raspberry plantation depends upon the variety cultivated as well as upon the nature of the soil and care given the plants. Ten to fourteen years is about the average under good culture.

Order to Show Cause.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE COUNTY of Orange, State of California. In the matter of the estate of George W. Horn, deceased.

Frank Ey, administrator of the estate of George W. Horn, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of the whole of the mining interests of said decedent, upon the grounds therein set forth. It is therefore ordered by said court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Thursday, November 12th, 1891, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the court room of said Superior Court, on Fourth street, in the City of Santa Ana, in said Orange county, to show cause why an order should not be granted to said administrator to sell the whole of the mining interests of said deceased as set forth in said petition, at public auction.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in the ANAHEIM GAZETTE, a newspaper printed and published in the said county of Orange.

J. W. TEWNER,
Judge of said Superior Court.
