The Roar of Great Guns.

Here are two field batteries—12, 6 and 9 pounders in all—firing as rapidly as they can be loaded. The reports blend in a roar, and you must raise your voice as if a hurricane was howling about you. You are not impressed, but rather aggravated and annoyed. There's a snap to each report like the cracking of a great whip—a spiteful sound which reminds you of a dog following at your heels with his yelp! yelp! yelp!

There is no more trying situation for a soldier than to be lying down in support of a battery. He is only a few yards in front of the guns, and he not only feels the full force of the concussion as communicated to the earth, from the shock of the gun, but the report itself seems to strike the spinal column and travel up to the back of the head. Then, too, there is the fear of shells exploding prematurely or of grape and canister "dribbling," to cause wounds or death, and it is a positive relief to see a column of the enemy break over for a charge. The roar of the guns does not linger for hours after, as is the case with mortars and seige guns, but you find your nerves on edge and your temper spoiled for a day or two. The men who lay in lines with a battery firing over them probably endured more mental suffering than the enemy at whom the guns were pointed. The fire of great guns is terribly trying for the first few minutes, but this feeling gradually gives way to one of awe and sublimity.

There is something so terrific and appalling—you feel yourself so atomless in comparison—that you would speak in whispers if the roar could suddenly cease. You are an onlooker; if assisting at a gun, physical activity would take away from the mental strain. When Admiral Porter got his twenty-inch guns, each armed with an 84-ton mortar and a 32-pound rifle cannon, at work against the forts below New Orleans, and the big guns in both forts had opened in reply, there was something akin to the sound of heaven and earth coming together. The mortar shells weighed over 200 pounds apiece, and the rush of them through the air made one's hair feel as if it crawled. The venomous hiss of a big skyrocket was magnified thousands of times, to be followed by a crash which seemed to split the sky open into cracks and crevices.

When the firing had continued until all reports had been merged into one steady roar there was little short of an earthquake on land or sea for ten miles around. The earth shook as if a great steam hammer was pounding it a few yards from your feet. It standing near a tree, you could feel the roots letting go of the soil with a sound like bugs crawling over dry leaves. On the water great mud spots rose up here and there to show where the earth forty feet below had been disturbed. In the Mississippi River itself huge catfish leaped above the surface in fright and pain or floated belly up and were carried along with the current, gasping for breath. Out on the blue water air bubbles as large as dining plates floated to the surface and bursted with a snap, and fish of all kinds exhibited the greatest confusion and alarm.

Thirty miles away the roar was like that of a gale sweeping over a pine forest. Horses and cattle sought to hide away, birds flew about uttering cries of distress, and dogs pointed their noses toward the sky and howled dismally. Birds and fowls felt the air and earth waves long before human beings did, and their actions were so queer as to become alarming. The coming of the roar to those afar off was preceded by a jarring of the earth and a moaning in the air. Springs overflowed, and the water in wells circled around as in a whirlpool. The wildest species of birds left the woods and thickets and came flying about the houses, and rabbits asserted their burrows and sought the companionship of domestic animals. The thunder storms of a score of years combined could not have rent the heavens nor disturbed the solid earth as that cannonade did.

If the beginning was painful and exasperating the ending was something to be remembered for a lifetime. Ten minutes after another, one great gun after another, was silenced by order. The reverberations had travelled through air and earth and water a distance of fifty miles. They now seemed to return back to the guns. The rent and riven skies had kept up a constant moaning and complaining. One sound was gradually died away. The man in pain finally drops off to sleep. The earth resumed its solidity again, the sun shone forth in its old familiar splendor, the birds and fowls piled up in the west and tinged with gold all along their lower edges seemed proof to the eye that the world still stood as we had lived in it the day before those monsters awoke and demanded human blood and wreck and destruction as the price of their silence.

The Anvil and the Bear.

Henry and Jarvis Camp of Root Hollow, Wyoming county, over in Pennsylvania, missed a sheep one morning this month and found bear tracks and blood in the snow outside of the barnyard fence. They tracked the bear to a gorge nearly two miles west of their place, where they lost the track in a hole in the rocks. There were bits of wool on the edges of the stones, and the young men, feeling certain that they had holed the sheep-killer, went home and drew a couple of anvils to the gorge in a sleigh. They loaded one of the anvils with powder, put the other anvil on top of it, placed them on a plank, and pushed them as far into the bear's den as they could. Then Jarvis applied a slow match to the powder, and he and his brother ran to a safe distance.

Presently the anvils boomed, the rocks shook, and smoke poured out of the hole. Henry was ready to shoot the bear with a rifle, expecting that the noise would drive him out. In a moment the bear dashed out of another hole a few yards up the gorge, ran along a shelving rock, and dived into a mass of brush just as Henry fired at him. He didn't hit the bear, and the frightened old brute made tracks over the hill toward the north. The men followed him into Highriter's swamp, where they gave up the chase in an hour or so.

That night the bear returned to his den and stayed in it for eight days. On the eighth night he came out, walked around in the snow for a while, and went back. The brothers had visited the gorge every day and they came to the conclusion that the bear had devoured the sheep and was getting hungry again. He gave them no chance to shoot him. That afternoon they nailed a calf's liver to the trunk of a tree a few rods down the gorge and hung one of the anvils fifteen feet above it, fixing the rope in such a way that the anvil would drop to the ground the moment the bear began to yank at the bait.

Jarvis went to the gorge the next morning and, from a distance he saw that the anvil had fallen. He carried a rifle, and hurry ng to the tree he found a wildcat lying under the anvil crushed to death. He got his brother as soon as he could, and the two pulled the anvil up again and reset it. On the third morning they found the bear lying dead with his nose against the tree. The point of the anvil had been driven three inches into the bear's skull. The bear's throat was pinned to the roots of the tree, and the bold sheep thief had died in his tracks. He weighed 334 pounds.

Concerning Bees.

Foreign bees without pedigrees may be admitted to the United States free of duty. The Secretary of the Treasury has so decided. Until the last tariff bill was passed bees from abroad came in free as "animals imported for breeding purposes." The McKinley law declared that that ruling should apply only to animals "regularly entered in recognized herd books." Accordingly, bees were assessed 20 per cent. ad valorem because they had no pedigrees. The bee keepers protested and carried their point. Some time ago the Post Office Department declared that bees were "unmailable," on the ground that they would be likely to sting people if they got loose. The bee keepers secured the recall of that regulation by proving that the packages employed could not be broken. Most of them use an ingenious wooden box with a sliding cover, invented by Dr. Beeton, an expert attached to the Department of Agriculture. It is four inches long and is divided into three communicating compartments. The compartment at one end is filled with soft candy for the insects to feed upon; the one at the other end has holes for ventilation, while the middle compartment is a dark chamber for the occupants to crawl into when it is cold. In such a receptacle bees can be sent around the world. Each box will hold a queen and from twelve to twenty workers. Before mailing it is secured with rubber bands or put in a strong envelope.

The breeding of queen bees for market has grown to be an important industry, and agents nowadays travel around the world to seek new varieties of bees. A very excellent and popular stock of Italians, honey gatherers has been introduced from Cyprus. When the Venetians owned the island 200,000 queens were sent there. People used honey for sugar in those days. Now there are only 30,000 hives, owing to the oppressive taxes levied on the industry by the Turks. The Italians are nearly unwilling to sell any of their bees, believing that those left behind will fly away after the ones which are disposed of. Accordingly the purchaser is obliged frequently to buy fifty hives in order to secure fifty queens.

Strawberry Dumplings — Ever Eat Them?

Make a paste from one pint of sifted flour, two tablespoonfuls of butter (half lard if you prefer), a tablespoonful of salt, and enough milk to moisten sufficiently to roll out—about half a teacupful. Mix very lightly with the tips of the fingers, and roll out about a quarter of an inch in thickness; cut in rounds with a cake cutter; put from three to six berries, according to their size, in the center of each, and pinch down twenty minutes. A nice sauce is made by beating to a cream a cup of powdered sugar with two tablespoonfuls of butter and adding, a couple at a time, enough berries to give it the appearance. Mash and beat while adding them until light, then place them in a cold place until wanted.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected, his kidneys followed him into High-riter's swamp, where they gave up the chase in an hour or so.

The Sky in April.

The planets which figure in the role of evening stars in April are Mercury, Venus, Saturn and Uranus. Venus holds the post of honor among the planets. She may be seen at her best at any time between sunset and 10 o'clock at night. Saturn may be seen in the east high above the horizon now at the close of evening twilight. This planet, too, is in its brightest phase of the year, and is well situated for observation. Saturn is almost as readily recognized as Venus is. The Queen of Planets shines with a brilliant white light, and is brighter than any other orb in the heavens, while the luster of the ringed planet is dark yellow. The latter orb, which is in the opposite side of the sky from Venus, is the brightest object in the vicinity, and, like the other four or five planets which can be seen with the naked eye, has a steady light. Uranus rises about two and one-half hours after sunset, and is in the southeast. Like the three other planets named, this remote member of the sun's family is now near its brightest phase, and may be seen when the atmosphere is clear. Its great distance, though, makes it appear like a faint star to the unaided vision. It will be in the field of view all night.

The planets which take the part of morning stars in April are Jupiter and Mars.

There will be interesting conjunctions in April between the moon and some of the planets. In the earliest of these Saturn figures. This took place last Saturday evening, the 9th. The moon passed on the north side of the planet, and, a little before sunset, they were only a degree and three-quarters apart. This distance was increased to about two degrees when they came fairly into view at the close of evening twilight. At this time both orbs were in the southeast and the moon was a little over half way between its half and full stage. About midnight on the 12th of April, or three days later than the Saturn conjunction, the moon, in traveling along its course to the east, occulted Uranus, passing between us and that planet, and hiding it from view for nearly two hours. Then the waning moon, still moving toward the east, passed near the morning stars Mars and Jupiter. On the evening of the 30th, when the next moon is only about four days old, it will sweep by Venus. This will be the most striking and beautiful of the April conjunctions.

Why the Beet Sugar Industry Will Grow.

Professor Kedzie of Michigan gives the following as his conclusions about the beet sugar industry: It is a crop promising large returns, outstripping wheat as a cash crop. It promises a reliable market at home. The finished product, sugar, is in a concentrated form, costing little for transportation, and it is wanted at home. The glut in transporting a big wheat crop to foreign lands will not be realized in sugar. The transportation to market therefore is brought down to a low figure.

Beet raising properly conducted does not exhaust the soil. The chemical materials removed in the finished product are only carbon and water—wind and water. The nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, etc., permanently carried off in wheat and other grains, are not found in sugar. The skillful culture of beets is found to be the best preparation for a grain crop, and has improved the capacity for soil production in Germany and France. Beet raising will compel high farming and thorough cultivation. To keep the soil from exhaustion the waste parts of the beets must directly or indirectly be returned to the soil. The tops and crowns not used in manufacturing, and the beet pulp from which the sugar has been extracted, make most excellent feed for fattening cattle. Thus stock-feeding becomes a necessary part of routine on a sugar beet farm. Beet raising compels good farming—a strong point in its favor.

Safety in the Midst of Danger.

This would seem a contradiction—is so, in fact, to the eye. But experience has proved its possibility. Take the case of the individual who dwells in a malarious region. A robust constitution is no certain defence against the dreaded chills. What is recorded testimony, covering a period little short of half a century, proves that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is remedy, this. The continent and island on the field where the medicine has proved its efficacy. In South America, the Isthmus of Panama, Mexico, everywhere in fact where malarial disease takes on its most obstinate and formidable types, the Bitters is a recognized specific in illimitable demand, and prescribed by physicians of repute. Potent, too, is it in disorders of the stomach, the bowels, and against that destroyer, la grippe. It improves appetite and sleep, neutralizes rheumatism and kidney complaints.

Interesting World's Fair Notes.

Alameda county has appropriated $3,000 for its county exhibit, and will make further appropriations as required.

The total expense connected with the exposition buildings and grounds at Chicago is now averages a trifle over $1,000,000 a month, or about $38,000 for every working day.

The accepted design for the California exhibition building will have some 60,000 square feet of ground space. Including the gallery, there will be about 100,000 square feet of floor space.

Under the law passed by the last Legislature San Francisco county may appropriate $50,000 for World's Fair purposes; Alameda, Los Angeles and Santa Clara, each $40,000, and each of the other counties $7,500, making in all $545,000.

The exposition buildings at Chicago will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on October 12, 1892, the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. The exposition will be open to visitors May 1, 1893, and continue six months, closing October 30, 1893.

The Board of Trade of Humboldt county has petitioned the Board of Supervisors for an appropriation of $2,000, for the purpose of making a creditable exhibit at the World's Fair. It is understood that almost the entire amount, if granted, will be used in making a display of native woods and timber.

The counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino, San Diego, Orange, Santa Barbara and Ventura, composing the Southern California World's Fair Association, are decidedly farther advanced in the matter of collecting exhibits than any equal number of counties in the State. Each county will appropriate the full limit authorized by law, which will give a total of $77,500. The headquarters of the association are in Los Angeles. A thorough canvass of each county is being made and a large number of exhibits have already been secured. Thrifty orange trees have been transplanted into boxes. These trees will be taken to Chicago, the purpose being to show an orange grove in full bearing.

The California World's Fair Commission has called a World's Fair Convention, to be held in San Francisco April 20th, at 2 P. M., in the Academy of Sciences, consisting of delegates as follows: Two to be appointed by each Board of Supervisors, two by each District World's Fair Association and two by each County Association. The object of this convention will be to create closer and more intelligent relations between the various counties and associations and the State Commission relative to the exhibits now in process of preparation, and to learn what is being done throughout the State, and have a general exchange of ideas as to the best method of securing an attractive and ideal display of the State's products at Chicago.

Saved!

A fat man rode in the elevator car of a big downtown building in an Eastern city the other day. The boy who boosted the car was ambitious in letters, and had a novel hitched up in front of him. He was not as much skilled as he was ambitious, and, like other unlearned men, he read painfully and half aloud, keeping at the same time an eye on the floors.

"Flossie," he muttered, "turned upon the baffled inventor her eyes, flashing with indignashun, and stamped her foot on the second floor, gents, Quackenbus, Doheney & Casey—"on the marble pavement, while her violet eyes flashed fire, and her shapely bosom heaved with"—third floor, massage parlor, 309, to your right—"with wrath. 'Oh, my,' she said, 'you little rocked with them'—fourth—'you had to deal. I am but a pore'—Billings, 708—'pore country girl, little skilled in the ways of'—Dr. Williams—'the ways of the world, but I know you, catiff, an' I defy you.' 'Ah,' cried the baffled fiend, 'you'—ninth—'shall not thus escape me.' He drew a murderous revolver from his—teeth—and pointed it at the fair creature. At this moment—eleventh—'afar's we go. Who do you want to find, sir?'

"I wanted to get off at the sixth," said the fat passenger. "But that does not make any difference. Does the feller kill her?"

"If I see," said the elevator booster, reversing the lever for the down trip. "At this moment the door burst open, and a little active form tore into the room. The girl gave a cream and fell into the arms of the deity of 'Thank God, I am saved!' she fell into the protecting arms of honest John Souther. Here's the sixth."

"Thank you," said the fat man.

More Infected Trees.

The District Attorney of Los Angeles has entered suit and secured a preliminary injunction against James Colgrove, Edward G. Durant, F. M. Durant and the Fairmount Land and Water Company, preventing them from distributing 48,000 peach, plum and apricot trees which are now deposited on their land near Lancaster. These trees are alleged to be infected with fruit pests. The petition alleges that the particular pests with which the trees are infected are the peach-borer and black aphis, both of which have heretofore been unknown in this State; that the borer cannot be destroyed by any known process, and that it is impracticable to disinfect trees with black aphis, as aphis are liable to fly to and infect other trees before the original lot of trees can be disinfected. The trees came from Delaware and it was known to the Horticultural Commissioners that they were coming, but it was thought they would be taken to Los Angeles. Instead of this they were carried up Antelope valley near Lancaster, and dumped. A deputy inspector examined the lot, and not being familiar with the pest with which they were infected pronounced them "clean;" but the Commissioners knowing they had come from an infected district in the East, examined them and found numbers of the trees diseased as described. The Fairmount Land Company is a concern which is just now selling land in Antelope valley in small lots to settlers. The company plants the land with fruit trees and so sells it. Fruit trees can be purchased in the East for about five cents apiece, whereas here they cost about twenty cents each. The county authorities declare that great efforts have been made on the part of the defendants to elude them in getting trees into the county.

After the Santa Fe.

The San Diego railroad executive committee of one hundred, of which Mayor Sherman is ex-officio chairman, has written a letter to George C. Magoun, chairman of the board of directors of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company, in which is recited the fact that the Temecula Canyon route of that line to San Diego has been abandoned since the flood of the winter of 1890-91, and that the people of the bay country gave the line a magnificent land and money subsidy to insure the construction of the line, together with franchises on the bay valued at $5,000,000, equal to, if not in excess of, the total cost of the entire line.

The letter recites that these gifts were contingent upon the building and maintenance of the road, and declares that the company has no right legally or equitably to abandon any portion of the line.

The letter ends: "We do not believe that another instance of such gross neglect to restore railroad communication can be found in the whole country, and we are fully authorized to say to you that the people of this county have borne this neglect as long as they propose to. They are unanimously resolved to take such steps as will secure either an early construction of the railroad, either through the Temecula canyon or via Fallbrook, or a return of the lands and moneys donated and the forfeiture of the franchises granted as aforesaid."

The letter is signed by the Mayor of the city, as chairman of the committee, and the secretary. A letter was also written by the committee to C. P. Huntington, president of the Southern Pacific, asking him to come to San Diego at his earliest convenience and confer with the citizens relative to extending his road to the bay.

THURSDAY.....APRIL 14, 1892.

THE Board of Directors of the Co-operative Beet Sugar Factory held a special session at the rooms of the Bank last Saturday afternoon, and decided to push the matter of the organization of the corporation with all possible speed. It was decided to have blank deeds printed, to procure a seal for the corporation and to attend to various other matters that claimed attention.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors occurs on the 19th (next Tuesday), and on the following Saturday a general stockholders' meeting will be called to assemble at Kroeger's Hall. At this meeting the active work of securing subscriptions and deeding land to the corporation in trust will begin. Three thousand acres must be trust deeded to the corporation to be held as security for the capital to be used in the erection of the factory.

In conversation with many of our citizens upon the subject of the location of the factory, we learn that it is almost the unanimous desire to have it located either inside the city limits or not a great distance away. Several available locations within the city limits may be secured, and we submit one of them should be selected as the site. Locating it a couple of miles out of town will not do. We want the sugar factory in Anaheim, and we are all prepared to work tooth and nail to bring it here.

Let this matter be fully discussed at the general meeting on the 23d.

THE Eastern banker, Speitzer, who is now in San Francisco ostensibly to invest in California securities, is doing more to discredit irrigation bonds than any person we have lately heard of. In considering the bonds of certain districts, with a view as he says to investing, the only objection he finds to the security is that the indebtedness in some cases put upon the land by the bond issue is, from his point of observation, too great a proportion of the assessed valuation of the property. In considering this point the Eastern investor seems to overlook the fact that the moment water is put on the average piece of California soil the value of the land is increased many fold. It is this fact of the assured increased valuation by reason of increased productiveness that has been the leading argument in promoting irrigation projects in this State.

Few sales of irrigation bonds have been reported for some time. The embarrassment of Baring Bros. seriously affected the sale of securities in Europe, and the reluctance of California bankers to buy the bonds has prevented sales in the East. But districts have been formed and bonds issued notwithstanding the apparent apathy of the investor. Thirty-eight districts have been organized since 1887, with a contemplated irrigable area of about 2,500,000 acres. The amount of indebtedness of bonds per acre varies in accordance as the districts are large or small. Here in Anaheim, with 32,000 acres in the district, it is $18 per acre. At Rialto, with only 7,200 acres, it is $60 per acre, and at East Riverside, with 3,000 acres, it is $33 per acre.

All of these bonds are what is technically known as "good," and the bonds of this district are positively gilt-edged.

If Mr. Speitzer is looking for securities, he can find none better than our irrigation bonds, but if he expects us to issue bonds on a basis of five per cent of the total property valuation, he had better return East and remain. We shall endeavor to place our bonds in despite of him.

THE regular spring meeting of the Southern California Pomological Society will be held at Redlands Thursday and Friday, May 5th and 6th. Among the topics down for discussion are the following: "Cryptogamic Diseases of Trees and Vines," by Prof. Newton B. Pierce, the Government expert on the vine disease; "Insect Pests and their Enemies," by Prof. Coquillett and B. M. Lelong of the State Board of Horticulture; "Can injury by frost be prevented by irrigation or otherwise," by H. J. Rudisell of Los Angeles and others. A two-days' discussion of the topics set down in the programme by ladies and gentlemen of practical experience in fruit culture must obviously result in great value not only to those in attendance but to the country at large. The circular issued by the society says that it is expected not only every member of the society will be present, but every tiller of the soil who can possibly spare the time. All will find an enthusiastic welcome, and will be well repaid for their attendance.

THE twelfth annual report of the Board of Railroad Commissioners has been received; also a copy of the official railroad map of the State, a very fine affair, only that Orange county is left out. This is a stupid blunder, all the more inexplicable in such a particularly handsome piece of work. The Commissioners had better do their work over again, and put Orange county where it belongs.

THE beet sugar industry in California is being put fairly upon its feet under the wise and salutary provisions of the bounty law, and we are especially interested in the question by reason of the adaptability of our soil and climate to the production of the sugar beet and also by the fact that sugar production is destined to become one of our chief local industries.

Cane sugar has been exposed to competition with beet sugar, an industry developed with marvelous rapidity during recent years under the protection of the bounties paid by the governments of Germany, Austria-Hungary, France and Belgium. The total crop of European beet sugar, as estimated by Mr. Licht, the statistician, was 3,600,000 tons for the year ending July 1, 1890. This was an increase of 800,000 tons over the product of the previous season, or 200,000 tons in excess of the crop of the Spanish West Indies. Beet sugar has virtually driven cane sugar out of Europe and is now threatening to displace it in the United States. Out of a total production of 11,556,000,000 pounds for the world, 7,100,000,000 represents European beet and 4,456,000,000 tropical cane, divided as follows: Spanish West Indies, 1,340,000,000; other West Indies and Guiana, 786,000,000; Brazil and Peru, 360,000,000; Louisiana, 250,000,000; Hawaii, 240,000,000; East Indies and Africa, 1,480,000,000. The general effects of this competition have been —first, the closing of all great markets except that of the United States against the export of the cane sugar of tropical America; and secondly, the destruction of the industry in countries where financial resources were lacking for the introduction of improved machinery on a large scale. Of the importations of sugar into the United States for the year 1890 about 43 per cent came from Cuba and Porto Rico, 13 from the British West Indies, 11 from Hawaii, 4 from Brazil and other countries on this continent and 11 from the East Indies, and the remainder, 18 per cent, represented European beet. The West Indies are the chief source from which the American market is supplied, and the bulk of their product cannot be sold elsewhere. The planters have been forced to reduce the cost of manufacture one-half to introduce improved mechanical processes and to abandon inaccessible estates involving high rates of transportation. Outside of the West Indies the industry is declining under the pressure of low prices. Peru, with unrivaled natural resources for producing cane sugar, but with long lines of communication with the markets of the world, is not making progress. Brazil has been struggling without success to revive its sugar industries by government bounty. In Mexico, Central America, Venezuela, Colombia and Ecuador the planters are content with making a low grade of brown sugar for the native population.

Orange County Y. P. S. C. E. Convention.

The following is a report of the Second Annual Convention of the Young People's Society of Christam Endeavor in Orange county, held at Orange April 9th.

At 10 o'clock, April 9th, the second annual convention was called to order in the Christain Church by the President, S. E. Kieffer. The house was filled and the opening consecration service was inspiring. Old and young seemed filled with the Holy Spirit and the hour was fully taken up in testimonies, songs and prayers.

At eleven the business of the Union was transacted. The reports of the seventeen different societies showed a membership of seven hundred in Orange county. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Miss Flora Scarritt, President; Mr. Moody, Vice President; R. Pearson, Recording Secretary; Miss M. P. Jones, Corresponding Secretary. Several resolutions were passed, the most important of which was, "Resolved, That this Convention send a plea to our State representatives in Congress, urging that no loan be made by the U. S. Government to the World's Fair managers unless they will close their doors on the Sabbath." This resolution was passed by a unanimous vote. The convention then adjourned until 1:45 p. m.

Lunch was served in the church parlors to the delegates, officers and pastors.

After the opening song service in the afternoon there were read seven five-minute papers, filled with helpful suggestions.

An able address was given by Rev. J. T. Hopkins on the subject "One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethern," or "Christian Unity."

Miss Elsie M. Palmer, of Pasadena, gave some very excellent suggestions in the organizing of Junior Societies, and ably answered all questions put to her by persons in the audience.

The half hour given to the pastors was improved by them in giving facts regarding the Endeavor work in their various churches.

The question box was presided over by Rev. A. C. Smither of Los Angeles. At 5 o'clock the convention adjourned until 6:30. During the day E. B. Hays, State President, was present.

At 6:30, the evening praise service was led by Miss Flora Scarritt, after which Miss M. P. Jones, of the Anaheim Society, was elected as delegate to represent Orange county at the State Convention at Santa Rosa, and subscriptions were made to pay her expenses.

After the opening service, Rev. A. W. Rider of Los Angeles was introduced, and gave an address on "The Power of an Endless Life." He brought out very forcibly the fact that we in our youth were building for Eternity. Life is an endless charm; youth linked inseparably with mature life, mature life with old age, old age with Eternity. As we live in youth, so will our lives be in maturity, as in mature years, so in old age, and as we live in old age, so will we stand before the judgement seat of God. Our lives all have a power, but what the exponent of that power will be depends upon us. No one can know his exponent but the Omniscient One. He urged the young people to live, not after the poverty of a money-getting life, nor after the vanity of a pleasure-seeking life, but after the power of an endless life.

Rev. J. H. Collins spoke on "Benefits of Systematic Bible Study, and Suggestions as to personal work." He showed very forcibly the advisability, the necessity of a complete knowledge of the Word of God, in our work among people of varied character.

After a closing prayer by Rev. A. W. Rider, the Mizpah benediction was pronounced.

During the day and evening over thirty of our Anaheim Society were present and all felt that "it had been good to be there."

MISS MAUD ROBERTS,
Corresponding Secretary.

A Mammoth Skeleton.

California has not been particularly rich in paleontological discoveries, the most of the bones of the creatures of prehistoric days being discovered in the Central States, but Harry Cole, who resides on the Moss farm, near Westminster, has found the bones of some animal, the size of which was immense. The skull is four feet across. At the back of the skull is a ball and socket joint, the only one found in the whole body, when the first vetebra connects with the skull. The brain capacity is very large. There is no cavity in the skull for eyes and the skul'l is entirely free from fracture.

The jawbones resemble those of a whale more than any other species of creature. They are nine feet long, slightly curved, and have an opening of about three inches along the entire length. Between these bones is a long flat bone extending the full length of the jawbones. The lower jaw is in two very thin pieces that fit closely together. The edges are very smooth and somewhat thicker than at the center of the bones.

Mr. Cole succeeded in securing thirty-two vertebræ. The last vertebræ is twelve inches across and from tip to tip of its projections five feet. There are twenty-seven ribs, the largest ones being twelve feet long and the smallest ten feet.

In connection with this skeleton are two large flat bones resembling the shoulder-blades of the mammoth, and two large bones very much the shape of the bones in a horse's fore leg from the knee to the shoulder. These bones are four feet long, and measure four feet two inches around when taken together.

These remains were found a few miles from Anaheim Landing and about twenty feet from high-water mark. As near as can be judged it was a sea monster, although it had bones that indicate that it was amphibious. Mr. Cole has the prize on exhibition at his farm near Westminster.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

Yesterday's Meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Odd Fellows Entertain Visiting Brethren—New City Hall Building—The City Election—Musicale! and C. C. Supper—More Guesses at the Triple X—Social and Personal Mention.

The Honorable the Board of City Trustees met in regular session yesterday, present Chairman Reiser and Trustees Littlefield, Witte, Pallegrin and Schindler.

The Clerk read the minutes of the last regular and special meetings, which were approved.

The Marshal reported the collection of $349.36 for licenses and water rates during the month.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $7,826.76, on hand in bank in favor of the city. Both reports were referred to the Finance Committee.

The Committee on Public Improvements reported that asphaltum pipes had been laid at the approaches to sidewalks on the corners of Center and Los Angeles and Center and Lemon streets.

The rules were suspended to hear the application of Mrs. Luedke, who asked to be permitted to move a wooden building from the corner of Center and Clementina streets to the south side of Chartres street, near Lemon. Consideration of same laid over until next regular meeting.

Consideration of report of Committee on Public Improvements resumed. Proposition of S. P. Railroad Company to furnish water for street sprinkling at the rate of twenty cents per 1,000 gallons, taken under consideration.

Application of Juan Rivas, who lives on Clementina street below Elm, to be connected with the city water mains. The board decided that if Senor Rivas should succeed in getting three or four other consumers in his neighborhood to pay for the privilege of attaching themselves to the water mains, the same will be extended to and beyond his place.

The Ordinance Committee reported, recommending that the action on the ordinance granting privileges to the Western Union Telegraph Company be deferred, and that the telegraph company be required to remove all poles standing in Center street, from Helena street to Adams street.

In the matter of the hydrant on the corner of Center and Palm streets broken by the runaway team belonging to Fred Rimpau last week. Clerk instructed to notify Mr. Rimpau to repair it.

Bills to the amount of $535.23 were paid.

Petition of H. Knapke, asking for remittance of $5 45 fine. Denied.

Trustee Schindler tendered his resignation as Superintendent of Construction of new City Hall. Not accepted.

Invitation of Olive Milling Company to attend the opening of their new siphon read and accepted with thanks.

The board proceeded to canvass the vote of last Monday's election, after which they adjourned until next Monday afternoon.

A Very Pleasant Evening.

The initiation exercises at the Odd Fellows' Lodge on Tuesday evening were attended by about twenty five visiting brethren from Santa Ana and others from Ontario, Fullerton and other towns in the valley. Bro. Sherman of Garden Grove rode the goat, and the local Odd Fellows, in view of the fact that Sherman is a very modest man, thought they would make the initiation rather a quiet affair. But they were doomed to disappointment. Shortly after the lodge convened one by one of the Santa Ana brethren entered the room and were assigned seats. When the number reached twenty-five or more the local brethren found that the initiation of Bro. Sherman would be no tame affair. The hall was filled to overflowing, and they say Sherman rode the goat in tip-top style. After the exercises the members were invited to a little spread, and all hands fell to and had a right royal time. As usual Tom Hull distinguished himself in the comedian line, and Sheriff Lacy and George Briggs were close after him.

When it comes to having a jolly good time the Odd Fellows of this city are at the head of the procession. It takes Bros. Harker and Champlin to arrange the little details, and all the neighboring Odd Fellows know it. That is why Bro. Sherman's initiation was so small affair.

At a late hour the visiting brethren took their departure for their homes, satisfied that when they want a good time they must come to Anaheim to get it.

The New City Hall Building.

Work on the new City Hall building is being pushed rapidly ahead, and already one has an opportunity of observing what a fine building the structure will be when completed. The front will be of dressed brick, with stained mortar, and Trustee Schindler, who as Chairman of the Committee on Public Improvements is in charge of construction, informs us it will be one of the finest pieces of work in the county. There can be no disposition to doubt his word, for already the front walls present a very handsome appearance. The fancy work is being done in the highest style of the art by Carl Robertson, one of the best masons in the country. There are eight men at work upon the building, and it is probably will be ready for occupancy in a couple of months.

On the ground floor will be stored the apparatus of the fire department, and above will be the offices of the Trustees, Clerk, Recorder, etc. In front of the building an iron balcony set back some six feet into the building and extending across the front will give the structure a very fine appearance, and the clock tower surmounting it will add very materially to its attractiveness.

When the building is completed it will be a decided acquisition to the ornamentation of the city, and reflect credit upon the architects and builders.

Both Contractor Allbrecht and Mr. Schindler are taking an especial pride in the construction of the building, and propose to show the people what they can do in the building line once they let themselves out.

Musicale and C. C. Supper.

A Y.P.S.C.E. musicale and "C.C." supper will be given at the Hotel del Campo on Friday evening, April 22d. The musical programme will be one of peculiar excellence and will be rendered by such well-known artists as Prof. Orvis Smith of Santa Ana, Mrs. Wenger of Los Angeles, accompanied by Miss Helen Bancroft; the Y. M. C. A. Quartet of Los Angeles, Mrs. Stock and Miss Fraser of Santa Ana and others. After the musicale there will be a "C. C." supper with the following menu:

Crooked Crabs. Charming Compound.
Country Cousin's Comfort.
Common Cereal. Charmed Cream.
Creature Cheer.
Chinese Cordial. Crystal Choice.
Chopped Cabbage.
Crystallized Corn.
Congealed Cream.
Cake.

Admittance, 35 cents, including supper.

The Election.

The city election last Monday passed off quietly, a very light vote being cast. There was no contest except for Marshal, and the excitement was not what could be termed at fever heat. Voting was by the Australian ballot system, it being the second time the system had been tried here—the first being at last year's county high school election, when we buried the little high school scheme quite out of sight. One hundred and fifty-five votes were cast, eight of them being thrown out. Of these, five were stamped improperly, and three were not stamped at all. The vote is as follows: For Trustees, long term, E. J. Pellegrin, 115; C. O. Rust, 106; short term, S. Littlefield, 105. For Treasurer, P. James, 103. Clerk, M. Nebelung, 106. Marshal, Frank Steadman, 88; W. Schumacher, 56.

Frank Steadman is elected City Marshal, and we believe will make a No. 1 officer. He is the right man in the right place, and will prove a terror to evil doers.

The other gentlemen elected are well fitted for the offices they are chosen to fill, and we shall no doubt have an honest and economical administration of the city government.

Two English Lads.

During the week we have had with us two young English gentlemen, Mr. Forbes B. Sandilands of London, and Lieut. A. T. Halpin, recently of the English navy, both of whom have become so attached to our section during their short stay here that it is probable they will locate with us permanently. Mr. Sandilands is quite an extensive traveler, having done the continent and been to India and the Far East. He has resolved to become a Californian and an orange grower, and of course has selected our favorite orange belt to locate in. In this he is joined by Lieutenant Halpin, who in future will be a landsman, having recently procured his release from the navy on account of ill health. The Lieutenant was eighteen years in the navy, having entered her Majesty's service when 12 years of age, as is customary with English naval officers. He rose to the honorable rank of Lieutenant over eight years, the next rank above him being that of Captain. He was in the Zulu war, and has sailed the waters blue from one end of her Majesty's realm to the other. He was on the iron-clad Monarch last, and left the vessel some three months ago.

Both gentlemen left London about four weeks ago, and came direct to Anaheim. Here they met their friend Patterson, the boss poultry raiser of Orange county, who has been diligent in showing them over the country, and who will do his best to prevail upon them to remain. In this we should like to see him succeed, as both gentlemen would make excellent citizens and become desirable members of our society.

Returned from Mexico.

Plez James returned from his trip to Mexico on Friday, and Adolph Rimpau came in on Saturday, having stopped off a day at Toma to visit his sisters who are sojourning there temporarily for the benefit of their health. Both gentlemen are glad to get back. The trip was rather a rough one, the country below the line being for the most part mountainous and wild. They found Alf Pellegrin at the mines near Hermosillo, enjoying good health and prospects. They enjoyed the trip very much, although Mr. James didn't know at first what tortillas were. He took them for some new-fangled sort of napkin, but in mind was undeceived when he witnessed the astonishing rapidity with which Adolph proceeded to store them away. Both gentlemen return in the best of health, and look as though they enjoyed their trip immensely.

Isaac Lyons has been receiving his stock of Hardware during the week. Call and inspect stock and prices.

Kleinigkeiten.

—Next Sunday is Easter.

—Feels like summer's come again.

—Dr. Bullard is putting up a new barn.

—The question arises, Is the cannery going to run this season? If not, why not?

—The warm weather last Sunday sent a number of people down to the seaside.

—Ripe loquats are in the market. This is the greatest country on earth for fruits and vegetables.

—Charley Norman will take over a carriage load of people to witness the opening of the big Olive siphon this morning.

—Quite a number of our citizens went to Los Angeles Tuesday night and last evening to attend the Marine Band concerts.

—Secretary Garwood gives notice that all parties are warned not to pasture stock near the ditches of the water company.

—Another oil well has just been sunk at Puente, making nineteen in all, with an aggregate daily capacity of 200 barrels of oil.

—There will be services at St. Michael's Episcopal church to-morrow (Good Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. George Robinson officiating.

—The county political pot is sizzling, yes. Slates are flying in the air. This will be a rattling county campaign, and matters will be interesting before long.

—The Strong Company is engaged in shipping oranges from Mr. Ryan's orchard at Brookshurst. The oranges are among the finest to be found in the market.

—The Kuebler Brothers have laid asphaltum pipe crossings at the approaches to the sidewalks in town. The pipe is manufactured by them and is of very durable quality.

—Ice cream at the ice cream parlor opposite the Postoffice, to-morrow, Saturday and Sunday. Everybody invited. A splendid chance for the young ladies to treat their leap year young men. See?

—A large quantity of brea is being taken out of the deposits on the "Carlisle tract" in the Brea canyon and shipped to San Francisco. Billy Carlisle is largely interested in the tract, and some day expects to make a fortune out of it.

—Photographer Schlange has been taking some very fine views of places in this neighborhood lately, and has them on exhibition at his place of business on Center street. They attract wide attention, as they are very fine specimens of photography.

—H. Krueger expects to receive a lot of loquats from San Jose in a few days, which he will distribute among the farmers for experimental purposes. He is preparing his land on Orangethorpe avenue for the extensive raising of best seed.

—The freight department of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company estimates that the company will ship 6,000 carloads of fruit from California to eastern points during the coming season, 2,000 carloads more than the past season. This is doing quite well.

—E. C. Polk, a fancy sign writer who has been in town for several days, has done a particularly neat piece of work in the framed signs hung up in the office of the Commercial Hotel. Notice the inscription at the bottom: "Subscribe for the GAZETTE; only $2 a year."

—We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to be present at the opening of the siphon at Olive to-day. As there will be a free lunch, it is expected that newspaper men from all parts of the county will be there. We shall make it a point to be in attendance ourselves.

—Manager Vanderbeck of the Los Angeles ball club is going to give Strong, the well-known Pomona pitcher, who has been seen on our local diamond, a chance to pitch for his club, and he may also give Fred Mallett a chance to show what he can do. Mallett and Strong are two promising youngsters.

—Mr. Gates informs us that his apricot trees never promised such an abundant crop. The trees will be literally loaded with fruit. He will probably dry them himself, as he did last year. Mr. Gates has the reputation of preparing dried fruit of excellent quality.

—The disciples of Izaak Walton, not being able to go trout fishing in the neighborhood, turn their attention to the catfish in the reservoir above town. The Tuffree reservoir is filled with fine large fish of this kind, and numerous small fries are made. Next to trout catfish are said to be the bass fish.

—Otto Young, the pretzel glassarm, whom our gilt-edged aggregation of ball tossers knocked out of the box once upon a time so badly that he didn't know whether he was afoot or ahorseback is umpiring at San Francisco. Otto runs a waffle and sausage establishment at Stockton, but they say he will soon be pitching ball for San Francisco again.

—There is no part of the State settling up so rapidly as the country in the neighborhood of Buena Park. As far as the eye can reach houses can be seen going up and the country for miles around is being seeded to grain. New orchards are being set out, and a vast territory is being planted to corn and potatoes.

—A jolly party of picnickers from Buena Park and Anaheim went down to the Landing one day last week, where they spent a very pleasant day by the seaside. A bountiful supply of luncheon was served and a regular old-fashioned picnic was enjoyed. Late in the evening the party returned, much pleased with the day's outing.

—Professor Frantz last week bought what was left of Joe Kreins' hardware stock, purchased at the Pamperl auction, for $25, and has already disposed of thirty or forty dollars' worth of trinkets. Frantz speculates in hay and hardware, and is rapidly and surely building up a reputation as a shrewd and far-sighted investor.

—The bridge on North street below Palm is in a shockingly bad condition, and should be put in immediate repair. A subscriber advises us that while crossing it with his team a day or two ago one of his horses came near breaking its leg by stepping through a hole in the structure. An accident was only averted by prompt assistance. Fix that bridge.

—Uncle Jake Everhardy has been buying up a lot of hogs the past few weeks, and tells of a farmer down in the Peat Lands who bought about 100 shoats for a mere trifle, and after fattening them on boiled potatoes sold $1,200 worth out of the lot in less than no time. There is big money in the hog business, sure enough.

—The Strolling Players appear at the Opera-house to-morrow evening in Byron's comedy, "Sir Simon Simple." The Strolling Players are the well-known company from the Alcazar Theater, San Francisco, and bear a good reputation. We have heard the Misses Nellie and Fanny Young and George Trader, and they afford a plenty of amusement. They play at popular prices and will doubtless have a good audience.

—On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. C. Fossek were agreeably surprised by a number of their friends who invaded their house, bold without warning. A very pleasant evening was spent at cards and games, after which refreshments were served. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fossek, Mrs. Chynoweth, Mr. Baron, Mr. and Mrs. Hartung, Mrs. Heimann, Miss Marie Heimann, Miss Ida Everhardy, Misses Minnie and Dora Zeyn, Miss Olga Zeus, Miss Elizabeth Kuehel; Messrs. H. W. Chynoweth, J. Rimpau and others.

—Ida Stone came in yesterday from Col. Northam's ranch on the La Habra, where he is foreman. He is putting in a lot of walnuts, oranges and other trees on the tract.

—The case of the water company vs. Dr. Pfenniger, charged with tampering with the company's ditches, was tried before Judge Landell yesterday. As we go to press the Judge is wrestling with the decision.

—Letters for the following persons remain uncalled for at the Postoffice: Senor Don Guillermo Coronado, W. L. Davidson, Engelhart Bros., Mr. Frook, John Johnson (Hagginstead), J. H. Lee, Edwin Leonard, W. Miller, F. Selland, J. M. Silvas, Mario Silbas.

—Local sports are all torn up over the probable coming together in the "squared circle" of George Betts, the well-known local boxer, and Barber Lymburner of Fullerton. It is uncertain whether a match will be made, although Betts holds himself ready to have a little fun with boxers of his weight and class.

—In our advertising columns will be found a call for a general meeting of the Anaheim Co-operative Beet Sugar Corporation, to be held at Kroeger's Hall on Saturday, the 23d instant. There should be a large attendance, as matters of great importance will come before the meeting.

—The Rimpau Bros. announce that their spring and summer goods have arrived and are being disposed of at prices lower than ever. Since the enlargement of their store premises they have one of the largest and best ventilated storerooms in the county, and their shelves are filled to overflowing with a choice line of goods. Drop in and see them and inspect stock and prices.

—Complaint is made of the doings of a lot of young men who are in the habit of congregating at the opera house and vexing the drowsy ear of night with loud talk, pistol practice and various other illegal acts. The lock on the hall door has twice been broken, and on Tuesday night one or two shots were fired through the windows from the building. This is dangerous work, and as the frisky youngsters are more or less known they will probably be arrested if they repeat their hilarity.

—Last Tuesday evening a very pleasant social was given in the church at Buena Park by the young people of that place, at which a small admission fee was charged, the proceeds to go to the benefit of the church. An interesting literary and musical programme was rendered, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Through the efforts of Misses Selma Roller and Edythe Young and other young ladies a great part of the success of the event is due.

—The Anaheim Baseball Club go to Los Angeles next Sunday to play a return game with the Tufts-Lyons club, for the benefit of Charley Farrell, who broke his leg here some weeks ago while playing ball. The boys go up with blood in their eye, determined to defeat the Los Angeles nine on their own diamond. They have beaten them twice here, and will endeavor to make it three straight. A week from next Sunday the Tufts-Lyons club play a game with our club on the local diamond. We tip the locals to win both games.

—A scrub joke was played on a couple of our young men who ventured out of town last Tuesday night to see their best girls. They were seen driving out in a go-cart and some friends on mischief bent followed them—we won't say who they were. After the young men were comfortably situated beside their inamoratas the wags outside took the rig and drove it into town. When our young men were ready to return home they found the rig had disappeared and were compelled to walk home, a distance of about three miles. The next time they go calling they will lock the horse in the stable.

—The Jewish Passover began last Monday night and ends at sundown next Tuesday. This is one of the most rigidly observed festivals in the Jewish calendar. It is held in commemoration of the exodus of the children of Israel from Egypt. Leavened food or fermented beverage must not pass the lips of the devout Israelite during the period set apart. The particular feature of the Passover is the home celebration during the first two evenings of the festival, called the "seder." For this occasion an abundance of good things is provided. No Jewish family is allowed to lack a bountiful supply of provisions, no matter how poor or destitute. The rich make it a point to see that none of their faith go hungry.

—Our townsman James Rutledge is in daily receipt of the most flattering testimonials of his celebrated Mortis Poultry Cure, which must indeed be a wonderful preparation. Last Tuesday he received a letter from a poultry raiser at San Diego, saying that a small package of the Cure had done him over $500 worth of good. Mr. Rutledge has many of these testimonials and they all bear a very flattering endorsement of his preparation. He will introduce the Cure into every household in the United States within the next two years. He has already expended $18,000 in advertising the Cure, and is determined to go in for advertising on a still more extended scale. He deserves success.

—We are sorry to announce the death of John Hunter, an old and very highly respected resident of this section, who passed away at his residence in North Anaheim last Saturday afternoon in the sixty-seventh year of his age. Deceased had been for a long time confined to his bed with illness, and had recently undergone a surgical operation, from which it was impossible for him to recover. He had lived here for many years, and had occupied many places of public trust, having been president of the irrigation district and of the water company. He took an active interest in public affairs, was a frequent contributor to the newspapers, and up to a short time before his death took part in matters of public moment. He was a familiar figure upon our streets, and had friends upon all sides. He leaves a wife and family of grown up children to mourn his loss. To them his death is a very sad blow. We extend them our condolence in their great bereavement.

—Ollie Schumacher had his first experience as nightwatchman last Sunday night. Two gentlemen became involved in a controversy and proceeded to argue it out with their fists. One knocked the other down and was diligently belaboring him over the head with bare knuckles, the under one meanwhile lustily crying "Murder," when Ollie hove in sight with his club, and with the assistance of bystanders succeeded in separating the combatants. One on their feet the parties were in a very fair way of explaining things satisfactorily, when the under gentleman of the fracas, who had received somewhat the worst of the argument, essayed to even matters up by seizing Ollie's club and dealing his assailant a stinging blow on the head, knocking him down. They were forthwith arrested and conveyed to the city bastile. The case of the clubwielder was called before Recorder Pierce on Monday and he was discharged, the evidence going to show that the other gentleman was the aggressor.

PERSONAL MELANGE.

Miss Lulu James is visiting friends in Santa Barbara.

L. W. Kirby and family of Yorba spent Monday in town visiting friends.

Miss Lute Bailey is visiting with Miss Jettie Arthur at Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bailey paid a short visit to Los Angeles on Tuesday.

Silas Hellman has gone on a business trip to New York, to be absent some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster of South Riverside visited with Mr. and Mrs. Crist during the week.

Arthur Lewis is in San Francisco attending the session of the Grand Lodge of Chosen Friends.

Mr. Hilmer is down from Fresno, and reports everything looking well in the upper country.

Otis Houghton, special agent of the Home Mutual Fire Insurance Company, was in town yesterday.

G. Rittenhouse of the Los Angeles Times has been in town during the week in the interest of that paper.

Agent Hill of the Santa Fe, who has been quite ill lately, has recovered sufficiently to resume work.

Judge Charles Silent of Los Angeles was in town last Thursday, settling up the Hamlin estate, west of town.

Mr. Fowler came up from San Diego last Saturday to attend the meeting of the Directors of the beet sugar company.

Fred Manchester, representing the Home Mutual Insurance Company of Los Angeles, was in town one day last week.

W. M. McFadden is in San Francisco in attendance upon the grand lodge of Chosen Friends, of which order he is Grand Treasurer.

Sam Kraemer was in town the other day talking crops and other things. He says we ought to have some more rain to insure good crops.

Charles Atwood and family, recently from Los Angeles, have leased the Adams cottage on Sycamore street, and have taken up their residence here.

Mr. Grannis leaves for his home in Minnesota in a few days. His health has improved very much while here, and it is probable he will return to locate.

Phineas Newmark was down from Los Angeles on a flying business trip on election day. Phineas is a rustler, and is working up a great reputation down this way.

Capt. Ferguson went down to San Juan on Saturday to play a visit to Alcalde Egan. He returned yesterday afternoon, and reports having had a very pleasant time.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Buckley was in town yesterday, serving subpoenas and talking business. Jim has scores of friends over this way, and they are always glad to see him.

"Jote" Smith was in town from Centralia the other day, talking politics, crops and various other matters with his friends. Mr. Smith has lately purchased a place out his way, and is engaged in improving it.

'Squire Landell took a flying trip to Los Angeles on Friday, and returned in the evening. It was the first time the 'Squire had been away for a long time, and he came near getting lost in the big city.

Judge McCoy of Westminster was in town on Tuesday, en route to Riverside to attend the meeting of the Presbytery. The Judge reports matters flourishing in his burg, crops looking well, and every one contented and happy.

Mr. Bleckman of the Santa Fe is getting to be quite a familiar figure on our streets. He has his eagle eye on the potato crop, and if nothing happens will be sending out trainloads of the tubers direct to the East in a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Bancroft of Los Angeles visited with the old folks at Orangethorpe last week. John has recently been elected President of Los Angeles Typographical Union, and his honors seem to rest lightly upon him.

Mr. Capitain was down yesterday on business connected with the beet sugar factory. On his visit here last Saturday he was accompanied by P. Weisel, recently from Milwaukee, where he was for years engaged in the manufacturing business. Mr. Weisel intends to locate in this section and may become a resident of Anaheim.

Thos. D. Bates, advance agent of the "Strolling Players," who appear at the opera-house to-morrow night, was in town last week and dropped in to see us. Mr. Bates is just getting over the effects of a broken leg, which at one time threatened his life. He is a very pleasant gentleman, and promises us a first-class show.

W. H. Webber of the Los Angeles Cracker Company was in town a day or two ago on a business visit. Webber makes an excellent host, and is in his element at the head of the table. He serves every one with strict impartiality, but since he gave Jimmy Glass the tough pieces and joints of the turkey and no oyster pate they say they never speak as they pass by.

Our young friend Chris Saalwaechter left on Sunday for Cincinnati, Ohio, where his mother and two sisters are living very low with la grippe. They have failed to recover from the prevailing epidemic of some months ago, and doubts are entertained about their recovery. Last Saturday Chris received a letter saying they were very low, and on Sunday morning he took his departure for his home. We hope he will find them better, and that they very soon begin and do record to recovery. Chris will be absent four or five weeks.

J. P. Merrill, formerly of Texas, but now associated with Dr. W. E. Pritchard of Los Angeles, was down last Sunday on a visit to relatives and friends at Buena Park. Mr. Merrill owns a fine tract of land at the Park, besides a ranch at South Cucamonga, where he resides part of the time. His brothers Tom and Dick lately arrived here from Texas, bringing with them a large herd of cattle, which are now pastured near Centralia. The gentlemen have a number of old acquaintances here, and will probably remain in our midst for some time.

The celebrated pianist Paderewski, now in this country for the first time, is not the spring chicken that his business managers would fain have us believe him to be. It is said that he was a visitor for Helena Modjeska's heart said hand as far back as 1864, at which time he was a professor of piano playing in the conservatory at Crakow. But he was cut out by Count Charles Bozenta Chlapowski, political editor of the Crakow Daily Polander. It is furthermore narrated that the constant pretties of eating lemons has given to Paderewski's hair the peculiar tint and still more peculiar willowness which makes it so remarkable a feature of the artist.

OUR YESTERDAYS.

I saw my yesterdays go past,
A sinuous steam of souls of days,
Clad diversely; in the vague haze
Some forms, it seemed, no shadows cast;
Each right hand held its mirror fast,
Some wreathed with myrtle, some with bays,
And those that answered to my gaze
Showed me my memories as they passed.

Over a twilight plain afar
Their blurred line faded out of view.
Toward mountains mystic as the sea;
But, shining each one like a star,
The mirrors wherein I saw you
Gleamed backward through the dusk to me.

BOB GORMAN'S LETTERS.

Mr. Barlow was in a reminiscent mood that evening.

"Poor Bob Gorman!" he said musingly. "I have often said, Mr. Whomso, that in this day and age of the world there was no excuse for a person growing to man's estate without being able to read, at least fairly, and write well enough for his everyday business or social requirements. But my experience with Bob Gorman slightly modified that opinion."

"Bob had been born and reared in the very wildest of the Montana mining and grazing districts. He absolutely had never had the opportunity to acquire the slightest knowledge from textbooks or by oral instruction, and when I saw him, some two years ago, he was a strapping fellow, warmhearted as a woman, but illiterate to the last degree.

"He came here from Montana with a herd of bronco ponies to dispose of to the settlers around Skytown. We were thrown together many times in a business way, and I came to admire Bob Gorman for his manly qualities and strict attention to the interests of his employer. He seemed to like me, also, and would come to the store and talk for hours at a time about life in the mines and ranches west of the Missouri.

"One day he came to me with a letter.

"'Mr. Barlow,' he said, in a half hesitating way, 'will you please read this to me?'

"'Why, can't you read?' I exclaimed in surprise without pausing to think a second time.

"Gorman blushed painfully. I would have given almost anything to unsay the words.

"'Y' see, I ain't never had no chance'——

"'I understand, Bob. Yes, I'll read it for you.'

"'It's from Nance—my wife,' Gorman explained, and an expression of great happiness beamed from his eyes. 'Nance, she lives at Mingersville, an' she's the finest girl in Montanny, you can bet on that. I'm goin' to own a ranch of my own one o' these days, an' then I'll be fixed so I can stay at home with Nance an' not have to go knockin' roun' the country, sellin' broncos. Please read the letter, sir.'

"The writing was almost illegible, and the third person was used all through the letter, so it was evidently from another's hand. It told how 'Nance was sick of a fever, but was a-gettin' 'long' and 'sends her love to Bob, wishin' he'd cum home soon as possibel.'

"The happiness faded out of Gorman's face the moment he heard of his wife's illness, and when I finished the letter his voice trembled as he asked:

"'Is that all, Mr. Barlow? Don't it say how she is, nor nothin' more 'bout what ails her?'

"'No,' I answered, with deep sympathy.

"'My God! I wish't I knew!'

"He remained in silent meditation for a few moments.

"'I wouldn't worry,' I said; 'it can't be very serious.'

"He shook his head forebodingly.

"'She'd never a let 'em write to me that way if it wa'n't. 'Tain't like her. I'll fix up my things here an' go back, quick as I can,' he said, and walked hurriedly away.

"In a short time he returned with a postal card.

"'Just say for me, Mr. Barlow, that I'm cummin' home. Begin it Dear Nance—but you know how. She's sick, an' I want it to be kinder lovin'. Tell her I'll be there just as soon as I can get things fixed here. Send it to Nance Gorman, Mingersville, Dawson county, Montanny. Be sure an' put on the county, 'cause it's a small place, an' I want her to get that, sure.'

"I complied with his request and he left the store.

"In a couple of days he came back to me again. He had an old satchel in his hand, and his face was fairly aglow with pleasure.

"'Where are you bound for, Bob?'

"'Montanny,' he said, slapping his satchel brisquely. 'I'll be with Nance inside o' twenty-four hours. I feel like a boy, Mr. Barlow — been away three months, y' know. I only hope she's better. I'll leave Ole Rumsey in charge o' the herd. Give him anythin' he wants on credit—it's all right.'

"He fumbled in his pocket and finally drew out a letter.

"'Got a letter here. Guess it's from Newt Tremble; he runs the Ten Strike ranch—the one I work for, y' know. Least I think it's from him; it looks like his handwrite. If you'll just read it to me now'——

"'Certainly,' I answered, with a smile. His happiness was infectious.

"I opened the letter and a glance at its contents startled me. Here is the way it read:

DEER Bos—I tak mi pen in han too tell you kno That nance she dide last nite hard luck Ole chap dont feel too Bad cum home soon from CLAPPER.

"'What does it say, Mr. Barlow?' asked Bob anxiously, noting my changing countenance.

"How could I tell him? Here he was, all ready to start for home, anticipating a joyful meeting with his wife, and it was reserved for me to dash his hopes—maybap break his heart.

"'Bob,' I answered huskily, 'this isn't from your employer.'

"'Ain't it from Newt? Who is it from, then?'

"'Do you know any one by the name of Clapper?'

"'Clapper? Oh, yes—he's a foreman of Newt's. What does he say?'

"I did not reply.

"'Anythin' wrong at the ranch?'

"Unconsciously a tear must have come to my eye, for Bob Gorman caught my arm as in a vise.

"'Read that letter!' he commanded in a harsh voice.

"I read it to him, slowly, solemnly, sympathetically. He stood like a stone for some minutes after I had finished. I tell you, Whomso, that silence was awful. I could do absolutely nothing to console the man who stood before me filled with a grief that was wrecking his life.

"'Great God!' he finally exclaimed, tossing his arms above his head and staggering like a drunken man. I tried to catch his hand, but he shook me off and fled.

"I never saw him after that, but one day old Rumsey came to me.

"'Got a letter from the ranch,' he said, in a trembling voice, 'and what do you think has become of Bob?'

"'What?' I asked eagerly.

"'Dead,' said Rumsey sadly. 'Some of the boys found him on the perary with a bullet hole in his heart. You can bet there was foul play somewhere—why, Bob didn't have an enemy in the world.'

"'Ah, but he had one enemy, and that was—his fate!

"That is why I excuse ignorance."—William Cooke in Chicago Figaro.

"Did you give your schoolmaster anything during the holidays?"

"Yes," said the bad little boy, "I gave him a bottle of lotion to soften his hands."—New York Epoch.

Notice of Sale of Real Estate.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, THAT IN PURSUance of an order of the Superior Court of the county of Los Angeles, State of California, made on the 19th day of December, 1889, in the matter of the estate of Louise Keller, deceased, the undersigned, the administrator, with the will annexed of said estate, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder, for cash, in gold coin of the United States, and subject to confirmation by said Superior Court, on or after the 30th day of April, 1892, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said Louise Keller at the time of her death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to that of the said Louise Keller at the time of her death, in and to all those lots of land, situate in the city of Anaheim, county of Orange, State of California, and described as follows:

Lots numbers 54 and 55 in Block "C" of a subdivision of Vineyard Lot C 3, according to a map of said subdivision known as "Heimann and George's Addition Building Lots in the City of Anaheim," and recorded in book 2 of Miscellaneous Records at page 248 in the Recorder's office of said Los Angeles county.

Also Lot Number 59 in said Block "C" of said subdivision, according to said map. Also the south 45½ feet of original town Lot Number 9, as shown on a map of the "lands of Anaheim," and recorded in said Recorder's office in Book of Deeds No. 4, at pages 629 and 630. Also that lot beginning at a point on the west line of Los Angeles street, 45½ feet southerly from northeast corner of said original Town lot No. 9, and running thence south along said line of Los Angeles street, 45½ feet; thence at right angles westerly 149½ feet to the west line of said Lot 9; thence along the same at right angles northerly 45½ feet; thence easterly to point of commencement.

Terms and Conditions of Sale: Cash, gold coin of the United States; ten per cent of the purchase money to be paid to the undersigned on day of sale, balance on confirmation of sale by said court.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and may be delivered to the undersigned personally, or left with his attorney, E. F. Powers, 102 North Main street, Los Angeles city, Cal., or may be filed with the Clerk of said Court. FRED R. WEIGLE,
Administrator with the will annexed of the estate of Louise Keller, deceased.

Dated April 8, 1892.

E. F. Powers, Attorney for Executor, 102 North Main street, Los Angeles, Cal.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT

Of the county of Orange, State of California.

In the matter of the Estate and Guardianship of Mettemies Hansen, Lene Hansen and Mette Hansen, minors.

It appearing to this Court from the petition this day presented, and filed by Henry Hetebrink, the guardian of the estates of Mettemies Hansen, Lene Hansen and Mette Hansen, minors, praying that a decree should be made and entered herein authorizing and empowering the said Henry Hetebrink, in case of the sale of the lands described in said petition or any part thereof, to receive from Mette Hansen, widow of Carlos Hansen, deceased, or her assigns, for said minor children, as the fact is, to wit: For Mettemies Hansen, $700; for Lene Hansen, $700; and for Mette Hansen, $700. And that the said Henry Hetebrink be further authorized and empowered to execute and sign all such forms of notice to him as aforesaid to execute to Mette Hansen, the said widow of Carlos Hansen, deceased, or her assigns, a release and discharge of the lien and charge which the said Mettemies Hansen, Lena Hansen and Mette Hansen now have against the said Premises, that it is for the best interests of said minors and necessary that such decree be made.

It is hereby ordered that the next of kin of the said wards and all persons interested in the said estate appear before this Court on Thursday, the 21st day of April, 1892, at 9:30 A. M., at the courtroom of this Court in the city of Santa Ana, then and there to show cause why a decree should not be made and entered as prayed for.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four successive weeks before the said day of hearing in the ANAHEIM GAZETTE, a newspaper printed and published in the said county of Orange. W. TOWNER,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated March 14, 1892.

H. W. Chynoweth, attorney for petitioner.

NOTICE OF FORFEITURE.

To CHAS BRILL: You are hereby notified that we have expended one hundred dollars in labor and improvements upon the Canon claim as will appear by certificate filed December 15, 1891, in the office of the Recorder of Orange county, in order to hold said premises under the provisions of Section 2,324, Revised Statutes of the United States, being the amount required to hold the same for the year ending January 1, 1892, and if within ninety days from the service of this notice or within ninety days after this notice by publication, you fail or refuse to contribute your proportion of such expenditures as co-owner, your interest in said claim will become the property of the subscribers under said Section 2,324.
