The Temptation

To go out of doors in rough weather is not strong, but we are, many of us, compelled to face rough weather frequently. Disease which arises from a chill is as peculiar to one season of year. This is true, therefore there should be in the closet of every household—what? Not an unmedicated stimulant, absolutely devoid of anything bit an exctive action, but a tonic combining, in the effective form of an invigorant and an alterative, the quality of defense against changes of weather. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has three or four properties that no other article of its class possesses. Not only does it relieve the complaints which it eventually cures, it fortifies the system against the bad effects of changes of temperature, fatality and too often shown in the deadly form of "la grippe." It produces a radical change in the weakened condition of a system peculiarly liable to be attacked by it, and it tends to provide against the danger resulting from an injoverished condition of the blood and a disordered state of the liver or bowels.

All About Postage Stamps.

It is barely fifty years since this convenience was introduced into the United States. The stamp is a little older in England. When first introduced postage stamps were sold in solid sheets. Of course a great many were wasted in the effort to tear them apart when there were no perforations. Indeed the loss and inconvenience was so great that the Government offered a liberal reward for a patent which would overcome the difficulty.

The first machine submitted was one which cut the stamps nearly but not entirely apart. The Post Office Department was considering this machine the idea of perforating the sheets in rows each way was offered and promptly accepted. Nothing better has ever been sought.

There was a time when better paper and mucilage were used and when the printing was an improvement upon the present stamps, but since we have learned that a damp sponge is fully as good as the tongue in preparing the stamps for adhesion the quality of the materials used becomes of less importance.

The number of postage stamps used in a year is something enormous. For instance, the ordinary postal revenue for the year ending June 30, 1891, exclusive of the money-order business, was $65,065,293 87. Of this $41,432,129 50 came from letter postage. The bulk of this is, of course, in two-cent stamps, and it is safe to put the whole number of this denomination used at more than 2,000,000,000 per annum.

The issuing of postage stamps, stamped envelopes and newspaper-wrappers all belong to one of the divisions under the care of the Third Assistant Postmaster General. There is another division of the same bureau which looks after registered letters, and still another which attends to the system for the special delivery of letters. The classification of mail matter belongs to this bureau, and it is with the Third Assistant Postmaster-General that clerks that newspapers and periodicals have to quarrel over their rights to official entry as second-class matter.

A 10-cent special delivery stamp on a letter is supposed to keep it in constant motion from the time the letter is deposited in the mail box until it is delivered to the addressee. There is liable to be a little delay in the stating of a letter when it is deposited in a letter-box instead of a postoffice, but this delay does not make way for special-delivery letters after they once get into the vicinity of the mail-bag. The clerk handling letters with the first mail leaving the office and pits them on the outside of packages, or in a bindle by themselves, so that the next office can see them at once. If the special-delivery stamp is put on a package of second, third or fourth class matter it has to be treated in a first-class manner—that is, it goes into a pouch instead of a sack, and is pushed through just as rapidly as a letter bearing the same stamp.

Last year there were over two and a half millions of pieces sent by special delivery, and it is interesting to note that the average time consumed in the delivery of each parcel after it reached the postoffice of the addressee was only twenty minutes.

THE NEW STATES.

MORE ROSEBUD COMMONWEALTHS IN THIS THAN IN ANY PREVIOUS PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

Until the admission of Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Washington and Wyoming, which, for the first time, are to vote in a Presidential election this year, the increase of the number of new States did not keep pace with the growth of the population. From 1860 to 1890 the population of the country increased from 30,000,000 to 60,000,000, but only five new States were admitted to the Union during that time. Kansas was admitted in 1861, West Virginia in 1863, Nevada in 1864, Nebraska in 1867, and Colorado in 1876. The political complications attending the admission of Colorado were numerous.

The agitation for Statehood began as early as 1864, when an enabling act was passed and a State Constitution was adopted. Congress agreed to the admission of the State, but President Johnson vetoed the bill. In 1867 a second act to admit Colorado passed both Houses, but it was balked again by veto. Another State Constitution was adopted in 1876, and the State was admitted in August of that year. At the election of 1874 the Democrats had carried Colorado by 2,000 majority, and, confident that the Territory had swung into the Democratic column for good, the Democratic House passed the bill of admission and the leading Democrats relied on the three electoral votes of Colorado in the contest of 1876. The Legislature of Colorado took upon itself the choice of electors instead of submitting it to the popular vote. In the Legislature were fifty Republicans and twenty-four Democrats, and consequently Hayes and Wheeler received the three votes of the State.

As it turned out, Colorado determined the result of the Presidential election, for without its three votes Hayes had 182 electoral votes and Tilden 184.

The six new States have, collectively, twenty electoral votes, and unless all present indications are at fault they will be cast in favor of the Republican electoral ticket this year. There is, however, likely to be a dispute in the matter, for the preferences of the electors in each State will be determined by popular vote, and not by the intervention of the Legislature of either State, as was the case in Colorado sixteen years ago.

Idaho has an area of 84,000 miles and a population of 84,385. Covering an area larger than the whole of New England and the State of New Jersey, it has less population than Los Angeles had during the boom, and if its population should be diffused, not enough inhabitants are within its boundaries, or were not at the last census, to leave one person to a square mile. Idaho was a pretty steadily Republican while a Territory. Out of 18,000 votes it gave the Republicans a majority of 1,700 in 1888, and 2,300 in 1890. It has a Republican Governor, and the Legislature is Republican in both branches.

Montana is the closest of the new States, and the only one in which the Democrats may have a fighting chance. It was partly on that account that the selection of Thomas H. Carter as Chairman of the Republican National Committee was agreed to, for Mr. Carter is a Montana man, and his influence as Land Commissioner was extensive in that State, which, it is supposed, will enable him to be able to hold in line for Harrison. Montana is more sparsely settled than Idaho. It has an area of 146,000 square miles, and a population of 132,000. It is bigger than England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Holland and Belgium combined. It was carried by the Republicans by 5,000 majority in the election of Congressman in 1888. A year later it swung over to the Democratic column by a majority of 500, and in 1890 it is not so clear that neither party had a majority, but the Democratic candidate for Congress had a plurality of 283 votes in a total of 31,000. The State Legislature is divided, the Democrats having the Senate and the Republicans the House. On joint ballot the Republicans have a majority of one vote. All the State officers, with the exception of Governor, and all of the Supreme Court Judges are Republicans.

North Dakota is overwhelmingly Republican. It has an area of 75,000 square miles and a population of 182,000. As a Territory it was never carried by the Democrats in an election, and it is an unpromising field for Democratic recruits. The present Republican Governor beat his Democratic competitor by 6,000 majority even in the year of the Democratic tidal wave, 1890. The State officers are Republican, and both branches of the Legislature are Republican. Of the thirty-eight votes in the State, the Democratic candidate for Governor two years ago carried only five. In 1888 North Dakota gave a Republican majority of 12,000. The State has three electoral votes, the same as the other new States, with the exception of South Dakota and Washington, which have four each.

South Dakota is but a little bigger than its northern neighbor in point of square miles, but it has a population of 328,000—less than half that of Connecticut. South Dakota is one of the States in which the Farmers' Alliance was particularly strong two years ago. James H. Kyle, who calls himself an Independent, is one of its United States Senators, and the Farmers' Alliance candidate for Governor in 1890 polled 24,000 votes, against 34,000 for the Republican and 18,000 for the Democratic nominees. At the election of the previous year, however, the Republican majority for Governor was 30,000. The State had a special election to fill a vacancy for member of Congress last year, and, although not contested actively, it resulted in a Republican vote of 17,000, a Farmers' Alliance vote of 14,000, and a Democratic vote of 7,000. All of the State and judiciary offices are held by Republicans, and both branches of the Legislature have Republican majorities. The population of the State is increasing rapidly.

Washington, although spoken of generally as one of the new Northwestern States, belongs more properly in the Pacific slope group, and is divided by mountain ridges from the agricultural States of the Northwest. It covers 69,000 square miles, and has a population of 349,000. It is overwhelmingly Republican. It gave a Republican majority of 7,383 in 1888, and 6,300 in 1890. The total vote of the State is 60,000. All the present State officers are Republicans. Both branches of the Legislature are Republican also, the Democrats having only 4 of the 34 Senators and 17 of the 78 Representatives.

Twenty years ago the States of the Pacific were looked upon as rather inclined to the Democratic side in politics. Oregon went Democratic in 1868, and Grant beat Seymour in the same year in California by only 500 votes in a total of 100,000. In 1876 the Republican plurality in Oregon was 500, and at the election of 1880 California was so close that its electors were divided. Oregon went Republican by 356 votes, and Nevada went Democratic by 770. Since then the movement on the Pacific coast towards the Republican party has been steady, and now all hope of carrying these States is almost abandoned by the Democrats. In 1888 Harrison carried California by 7,000 majority, Oregon by 6,000, and Nevada by 1,900, notwithstanding the fact that the representatives of these States in the Chicago Convention protested against his nomination on the ground that his attitude on the Chinese question, when United States Senator from Indiana, would cost the Republicans hundreds of votes in the Pacific States.

Wyoming, the sixth of the new States, has an area of 98,000 square miles and a population of 60,000. It has not many more inhabitants than Los Angeles, but it has three electoral votes, a Governor and other State officers, and all the privileges of Statehood. Wyoming is strongly Republican. It went Republican by 2,900 in 1888 and by 1,700 in 1890. Its State officers are Republican, and both branches of the Legislature have Republican majorities. Democrats of Wyoming cast at the recent election 7,000 votes, but they must get more than that to win this year, or, indeed, to come near winning.

It may be said, therefore, that unless the political situation is changed entirely before November the Democrats need not expect and will not receive a solitary electoral vote from the six new States of the Northwest that have been welcomed into the Union as rosebud commonwealths of enormous latent advantages, but would probably be more welcome in the political arena if they were more evenly divided between the two parties. The Democrats would appreciate the value of the accession more if it followed instead of preceding a Presidential election.

THE PLANET MARS.

SPEEDING AWAY FROM THE EARTH AT AN INCONCEIVABLE VELOCITY—WHAT WE LEARNED OF IT DURING ITS OPPOSITION.

The planet Mars has started on its return trip. It is speeding through stellar space away from the earth at a rate of 120,000 miles per day. When it shall come again as near to us as it has been during the now declining month it will have traveled the inconceivable distance of six hundred million miles. Many interesting things have been learned of this ruddy planet since its near approach to the earth, and now while it swings through its giant orbit away from us it will be useful to note what we discovered about it during the time of its opposition.

The first sight of Mars through an observatory telescope is almost terrifying, even for a person of good nerves. It is as if one saw the whole earth, with its icy poles, as a solid globe, floating overhead. One distinguishes clearly the dark blue seas and the brilliant, beaming, many-hued dry land—and on this the dry beds of a multitude of lakes, bays, gulfs, streams and canals, these latter either parallel to each other or crossing one another at right angles. As you continue to look you note the variations of color and of light and shades; and, further, that the outlines on one edge of the disk pass out of sight, while on the other the landscape expands; you see that Mars revolves on its axis, and that the ends of the axis are the frozen poles, as with us. There is a further resemblance in the inclination in the axis, which provides that on this planet also the seasons follow each other in regular succession.

The ice crust at the poles diminishes in summer, and this affords demonstration not only that Mars is influenced by the sun's rays [illegible] as we are, but also that the air and water are identical with ours. In fact the meteorology of Mars is now reduced to a science. Judging the two planets by superficial characteristics, however, one must admit a condition implying a higher degree of development in Mars. The continents of the earth, as seen from a distance, present a very torn appearance, and occupy scarcely a third of its surface, while Mars is girded on both sides of the equator by continuous mainland, intersected by a network of canals and rivers, the land occupying approximately three-fourths of the whole planet, and the water one-fourth, as a consequence of which it may be that its atmosphere is less clouded and vapor laden than ours. Peculiarly characteristic is the arrangement in which the geological nature of Mars has laid the streams (canals?). All our streams, without exception, are tortuous, and all increase in width as they near the ocean.

On Mars, on the contrary, the streams flow in straight lines, and are of uniform width from source to mouth. These streams, from 70 to 100 kilometers apart, have their banks so well defined as to suggest the idea that they are subject to intelligent regulation. It is hardly possible to conceive that two parallel canals, intersected at right angles by a third, as in Ophir land, can be the work of the elementary forces of nature. The question suggests itself again by the two canals which flow from ocean to ocean through the island Hellas, crossing each other at right angles in the center. Not less questionable is the origin of the great blue lake of the sun in the center of Keppler land, with its three rectilinear canals connecting it with the ocean.

But what most excites our astonishment in connection with these canals is that almost every one of them is double, i. e., it has its parallel canal alongside of it, but visible at intervals only. This has thoroughly perplexed all investigators. The earth has nothing analogous to aid us to a solution. On this account the return of Mars is looked forward to with considerable interest. The improvement in optical instruments within the past decade may probably help to solve the riddle, or, perhaps, what is still more probable, may present more riddles of solution. The occasion of Mars' near return will be the first time for fifteen years that we shall have an opportunity of examining its south polar region. Apart from the scientific interest which attaches to these observations, it is an immense gain to our intellectual culture to overthrow the pride, born of ignorance, which in the earlier centuries prompted man to regard this earth as the one inhabited sphere of the universe. Equal rights for all planets appears to be the law of nature, which certainly has not expended all her forces on this dark clod of ours.

FOR THE CANDIDATES.

METHOD OF FILING CERTIFICATES OF NOMINATION, ABOUT WHICH THERE HAS BEEN SOME DOUBT.

Under the provisions of the new election law of this State certificates of nomination of all candidates for public office selected by nominating conventions must be filed either with the Secretary of State or with the County Clerk. In the case of certain officers, such as Governor, members of the State Board of Equalization and others of the same general nature, the law is perfectly plain, requiring the certificates of nomination to be filed with the Secretary of State; but in the case of State Senators and Assemblymen no such doubt as to who [illegible]ificates should be filed.

The code is perfectly plain upon this point. It says (Section 1189):

"Certificates of nomination shall be filed with the Secretary of State for the nomination of candidates for the offices to be filled by the electors of the entire State or for members of the Board of Equalization, State Board of Railroad Commissioners or House of Representatives. Certificates of nomination shall be filed with the County Clerk or Secretary of the legislative body of any incorporated city or town for the nomination of any candidate for an office under the government of any city or town to be filled by the electors of such city or town. For all other nominations to public offices certificates of nomination shall be filed with the Clerks of the respective counties wherein the offices are to be filled by the electors, and where the district or political division embraces more than one county such certificate must be filed with the clerk of the county in which the candidate resides, and the name of each such candidate as specified in the certificate of nomination shall be certified to by such County Clerk to the County Clerks of other counties within the district or political division not less than 15 days before the day of election."

Section 1193 provides that "Not less than twenty-five days before an election to fill any public office the Secretary of State shall certify to the County Clerk of each county within which any of the electors may by law vote for candidates for such office the name of each person nominated for such office as specified in the certificate of nomination filed with the Secretary of State."

This provision applies to nominations for offices filled with the Secretary of State, but not to nominations for offices filled with the several County Clerks. The Secretary of State clearly has the determination of the question whether a party is entitled by law to a place on the official ballot, but when nominations are made by petition the provisions of Section 1189 must govern.

The law provides that certificates of nomination are required to be filed with the Secretary of State not more than sixty days and not less than forty days before the day of election when the nomination is made by electors. Certificates of nomination required to be filed with the County Clerks must be filed not more than fifty nor less than thirty days before election when the nomination is made by a convention, and not more than fifty nor less than twenty days before election when the nomination is made by electors.

Election day comes this year on the 8th day of November. Counting back it will be found that the fortieth day before election will be the 28th day of September, and the thirtieth the 8th day of October. The 28th day of September, then, will be the last day on which certificates of nomination can be filed with the Secretary of State by nominating conventions, and it is proper to advise the counties that it will be prudent for them to hold their conventions too late if they want to get their certificates filed in Sacramento in time. There are certain contingencies and accidents of transportation which cannot be provided against, and the only safe way will be to hold the conventions and start the certificates on their way to the Secretary of State at least eight or ten days before the limit for filing. Every nominating convention should have its work all completed not later than the 20th of September at the very outside.

Straws Show Which Way the Wind Blows.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—In order that your readers may see something of what the Sunday Law people are driving at I send you a short extract from an editorial item in the Pacific, a Congregational paper published in San Francisco. In speaking of the bill recently passed in Connecticut giving eight hours the daily time of labor for all laborers and mechanics on public works, it says: "If Sunday work is not discontinued we doubt very much if Governor Morris or any other days will do much good. And even that will not be enough; the Sabbath must be properly observed, and without the observance of spiritual things. Idleness is not a good thing for the evil inclined." Comment is unnecessary. If the writer of that item does not mean enforced attendance at church and educational education of the laboring men, we would be pleased for some one to explain what he does mean. For the Sabbath must be properly observed, and the proper way to observe the Sabbath is to go to church, listen attentively to the discourse of the priest and promptly pay for the same. Then the workingman must be educated in spiritual things. How can this be done unless we listen to our spiritual instructors? When one-third of the people of this boasted land of liberty will unite to force the other two-thirds to be Christians, we certainly will have a Christian Nation, and the millennium will soon be ushered in.

Buena Park, August 15, 1892.

Governor Murphy of Arizona has received information from the Equitable Mortgage Co. of New York that $75,000 has been deposited as a guarantee that they will negotiate the $1,000,000 Territorial bonds at par, and the contract has been forwarded for signature. The bonds number twenty of $50,000 each, with interest at 5 per cent, payable semi-annually, and are to pay off the Territorial, county and school district indebtedness. Some of the cannot be paid at present and the $1,000,000 will probably be sufficient, although the board can issue $500,000 more if necessary. There have been many perplexities in the sale of these bonds. Parson, Leach & Co. of New York once bought the bonds at 97 per cent, but refused to take them because they had not been legally advertised. Congress removed the obstruction, but the Territory then refused to take the same offer. Parson, Leach & Co. have been ignored in the last sale and they threaten to sue the Territory. Attorney General Herring thinks they have no claim.

THE Board of Directors of the water company have voted to annul the contract entered into with the irrigation district last year providing for the transfer of the old company's property to the new. The terms of the transfer are that the district shall acquire the works of the old company, paying therefor the price of $150,000 in cash or its equivaleut in bonds, and all work done by the company during the interim to be added to the purchase price. The district binds itself to begin the work of improvement of the water facilities within one year after the signing of the contract, which was signed May 23d, 1891, and to expend within two years from that date the sum of $100,000 in the work of necessary district development.

The flying of the track on the part of the Water Directors at this late day is inconceivable when reference is had to the best interests of the community. However, as it takes two to make a contract, and two to break one, and as the district has been working under the terms of the contract for upwards of a year, they will ignore the action of the water board and go on quietly about their business. The action of the board amounts to but very little in the premises, but we are surprised that they should attempt to set aside a contract, entered into in good faith, without according the other side a hearing. The action of the board amounts to less than nothing.

THE lynching of Torres is the logical outgrowth of our present lax judicial system. One has but to refer to the Sydney Bells, the McNultys, the Bruggys and the scores of the rest of them, whose trials have dragged themselves disgracefully along to the final defeat of justice and the practical abandonment of the case, to find the reason for the recent lynchings in this State. Upwards of a hundred murders in this State last year, and only two legal executions, is the disgraceful record. True, McNulty is to hang tomorrow, but he is without money, and even with this disadvantage against him it has taken five long years to get him to the foot of the gallows. Sydney Bell, convicted of as atrocious a murder as ever was committed by a midnight assassin, is granted a new trial, years after the commission of his diabolical crime, upon the flimsiest of technicalities, and now there is no possible probability of his final conviction. In a short time he will probably go forth the embodiment of another of the flagrant miscarriages of justice that have disgraced the annals of the State. It has come of late to be almost an impossibility to hang a murderer here, and we have on the average a couple of murders a week.

It is doubtful whether Torres would have furnished an exception to this rule; indeed, the evident intention of his friends to screen him as far as possible served to fire the impulses of the victim's friends. A good man had been ruthlessly murdered, and his friends constituted themselves judge, jury and executioner. All law-abiding people must deprecate mob violence, but there will be no abatement of it until the laws are so changed as to rest upon the basic principle, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.

W. E. COLLINS, the efficient Quarantine Guardian of San Bernardino county, has been notified by the State Board of Horticulture that his appointment has been revoked. This is how the State Board retaliates upon a gentleman who was possessed of the temerity to criticise the actions of Mr. Lelong, the Secretary of the board. It will be remembered that at the meeting of the horticulturists at Santa Ana some weeks ago Mr. Collins introduced a set of resolutions sharply deprecating Mr. Lelong's evident hostility. Prof. Coquillett, and warmly endorsing the latter gentleman's treatment of the new red scale parasites. At that meeting Mr. Lelong was handled "without gloves" by several gentlemen present. Mr. Collins' resolutions were endorsed unanimously by every one present and adopted without a dissenting vote. Shortly after the meeting Mr. Lelong wrote the San Bernardino Supervisors to the effect that Mr. Collins' appointment had been revoked by order of the State Board. This action is a gratuitous insult to the horticulturists in session at that meeting, and is looked upon with great dissatisfaction throughout Southern California. Mr. Collins, who is personally a very intelligent and observant gentleman, has, we understand, entered a protest against the high-handed outrage, and will ask for an investigation.

THE Republican Senatorial Convention of this district has been called to meet at South Riverside at 10 o'clock on September 19th. The candidates for the nomination thus far mentioned are Supervisor Armor and F. G. Ryan of this county, and Skip Craig, the redheaded rustler of Redlands. It is impossible to say which of this trio of distinguished gentlemen will knock the persimmon.

AMONG the political announcements this week is that of E. R. Amerige of Fullerton, who will be a candidate for Supervisor from this district, subject to the action of the Republican County Convention. Ed is a rustler, and has good get-there qualities, and if elected to the office will undoubtedly make an excellent official.

An act known as the San Francisco Depot Act was passed by the last Legislature, and will be submitted to the people at the approaching election for rejection or approval. It provides for the issuance of not to exceed $600,000 State 4 per cent bonds to build a general terry and passenger depot in the city of San Francisco at or near the foot of Market street. It provides that the people at the regular election in November shall vote for or against the act, and if a majority of votor are in favor of it, the act takes effect and the bonds will be prepared and sold at auction. Except the cost of advertising the act prior to election, the payment of the bonds and all expenses connected with the act is to be made from money collected by the Harbor Commissioners for wharfage, dockage, tolls, cranage and rents. The people should procure and study this act carefully, so that they may be enabled to vote intelligently upon it.

BY THE SOUNDING SEA.

ECHOES FROM OLD OCEAN'S ROAR—GOSSIPY NOTES AND PERSONALS FROM THOSE WHO ARE IN THE SWIM.

ANAHEIM LANDING, August 24, 1892.

Everybody who could get away went down to the Landing Sunday and as usual the day by the sea was a pleasant one. The camping season is still at the height of its popularity, and the camp grows daily more attractive.

There is a young lady in camp who is just as mad as she can be. She, together with her beau, drove over to Long Beach to see the soldier boys one day last week, and it so happened that she was left alone temporarily in the very line of march of the boys, who were on parade. As they passed, each of them tipped his "dicer," which naturally caused the young lady to blush. But the worst of it all was wher a little red-headed guardsman in the rear popped out of the ranks and took a snap-shot kodak likeness of her just as she was looking her maddest. Of course she is indignant and will never go to Long Beach again.

Mrs. Rimpau entertained her friends at a "light supper" in the warehouse Monday evening. When the guests arrived they found on each plate a candle brightly burning. This was the light supper, and some of the hungry guests were sorely disappointed. Later coffee was served, and all went merry as a married belle.

Miss Bessie James is here, the guest of the Misses Tuffree.

Many regrets were felt Sunday evening when the time came for the leave-taking of Miss Lillian Robinson, who left for her home to remain. She has been a great favorite here this summer and her absence will be keenly felt by all.

It is said without contradiction that Miss Louise Berlin is one of the most charming and attractive young ladies at the beach.

Wrestler Bass of Norwalk was down Sunday and jumped into the bay—and out again.

E. R. Amerige, who has announced himself as a candidate for Supervisor from this district, continues to have a good time here and is letting politics take care of itself for the present.

George Amorice's mustache is a taking feature with the ladies.

Miss Minnie Spencer and Miss Agnes Sprague, two of Anaheim's charming society belles, enjoyed a day by the seaside Sunday.

Judge French came down Sunday to hear the ocean roar.

Mr. and Mrs. George Horr were among the visitors Sunday.

Frank Whitaker came in from Los Angeles Sunday and had an "out of sight" time.

Henry Hetebrink and family were enjoying themselves on the beach all day Sunday.

Charlie Baker was here a little while Sunday just to hear the ocean's roar.

Col. Tuffree and charming daughter Neta and Dr. Clark enjoyed a sail the other day; but the wind gave out and the Doctor was gallant enough to do the rowing against the tide on the homeward stretch. The party had a delightful time.

Harry Reisbach is getting so now that he can sing "White Wings."

Prof. Greeley was here Sunday and took a dip in the sea.

Marshal Steadman was on hand to see if everything was going along all right.

Prof. Bernard, who has been training here for his go with Joe Cotton next Saturday evening, is getting into the pink of condition and his friends are confident he will best the coon.

Laura Gade, the nine-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gade, swam around the wharf three times on Sunday. This breaks the record.

Miss Cora Lewis and Mr. Richardson took in the sights at Long Beach Sunday.

George Whitaker is one of the popular young men with the ladies.

Dick Murray is stopping here, the guest of the Messrs. Whitaker.

Prof. Holgate's dance Saturday evening was a highly enjoyable affair.

A crazy party was one of the features in the society circles last week. It was indeed a "crazy" looking lot in attendance, so they say, but a most pleasant time was spent.

Miss Hattie Baker, local reporter of the Santa Ana Standard, and her sister Miss Bertha were here Sunday. They were accompanied by Miss Edythe Lovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Whitaker of San Bernardino were the guests of Mrs. A. W. Whitaker on Sunday.

John Schauman came down to catch a little salt sea air Saturday evening.

Charley Clevenger was looking for "fat taker" Saturday evening and Sunday.

Otto Strodthoff had a way up time on the sands Sunday. Otto's smiles always create a flutter among the feminine hearts.

Foreman Hale of the Bottsford ranch is at a loss to know the reason why he cannot make up his mind which is the prettiest girl down here.

Isaac Lyons came down with his family on Sunday for the first time this season and had a pleasant outing by the sea.

Joe Reid came in on a late wave Sunday afternoon.

Quick-fitting bathing suits and sweet smiles were the rule among some of the fair sex last Saturday and Sunday. It is said they will continue to be in style during the season.

The Anaheim City Band will be here next Sunday and discourse sweet strains of music during the day.

Mrs. C. Heimann is here and will remain for a few days.

Ben Kraemer was on hand Sunday and would run or wrestle anyone for money, marbles or chalk, but found no takers.

Some of the young ladies and gentlemen here indulged in the pastime of a horserace last Saturday, but owing to the erratic decisions given as to which horse won—some claiming "foul play," others being "sidetracked," etc.—the winning horse cannot be named just yet.

Isaac Lyons has been receiving his stock of Hardware during the week. Call and inspect stock and prices.

—Lyons has just received a fine lot of pickled mackerel, salmon and herring. He also keeps boneless codfish, smoked salmon and herring. m12-1t

HANGING OF TORRES.

THE MURDERER TAKEN FROM JAIL BY A MOB AND HANGED TO A TELEPHONE POLE.

Shortly after 1 o'clock last Saturday morning a masked mob, estimated to number as low as twelve persons and as high as thirty-five, broke into the County Jail at Santa Ana and took Francisco Torres, the murderer of Capt. Wm. McKelvey, and hanged him to the telephone pole at the corner of Fourth and Sycamore streets, across the way from the Brunswick Hotel. The work was done with such dispatch and so quietly that people in the hotel, not fifty feet away, were undisturbed in their slumbers. A Mexican who runs an all-night restaurant in a hole in the wall on Fourth street not half a block away was about his place and on the sidewalk at the time, but he knew nothing of the lynching until told an hour or two after that the dead body of a man dangled from a rope tied to the telephone pole at the corner. He went over and saw that the dead man was Torres.

Sheriff Lacy had been at the jail with Deputy Buckley as late as 9:30 o'clock the evening before. After that hour both went home, leaving the jail in charge of Robert Cogburn, who had recently been appointed to keep guard during the night. Sheriff Lacy went home and retired for the night. He was awakened shortly before 2 o'clock by Cogburn, who ran down and told him that Torres had been taken from the jail by a mob and lynched.

After the Sheriff had left the jail in charge of Cogburn matters passed quietly, and no thought was taken of the possibility that a mob would appear and lynch the prisoner. Shortly before midnight Nightwatchmen Morgan and Nigg went to the jail to chat with Cogburn. They remained a short time and then proceeded on their beat toward the eastern part of the city. They had been gone but a few minutes when Cogburn heard a crowd assembling outside, directly after which came the demand, "Open the door!"

The rest is best told in Cogburn's testimony as given at the Coroner's inquest Saturday morning. He testified: "My name is Robert Cogburn. I reside at Santa Ana and was employed as a nightwatchman at the County Jail. I was fulfilling my duty in that capacity last night. I sat on the steps until 9:30 o'clock Friday evening. Everything was quiet at that time. The Sheriff and Deputy Sheriff were with me and said they would go home. Then I walked up to Fourth street with them and then went back to jail and into the building, locking the door securely behind me. At 12 o'clock I ate my lunch and was sitting in the front room, when I heard a knock at the door. I knew the voices and knew that they were those of Morgan and Nigg, the nightwatchmen. They talked a few minutes, and went away. I locked the door and sat down on the side of the bed for about 15 minutes. At 12:50 o'clock I heard a crowd coming to the door and some one called out for me to open it. I said, "No, sir." He said, "Will you open the door?" adding that if I did not they would break it in. I said, "You had better not," and then some one struck the door with a hammer, and the panel was broken in at the first blow. The first blow was followed by several more, and the door was finally broken in. The men came in as fast as they could. They all wore masks. The door was broken. Two of the men caught me and shoved me back on the bed in my room and demanded the key. I gave it to them and they shut the door upon me, but they did not lock it. I heard some frightful yells in the inside room after they went in, but the men only remained in the jail two or three minutes. I have no idea how many men were in the room. They passed out and through the hall, all of them going out. I stood in the room for a minute or two, and then put my hand against the door, and shoving it back went into the jail. There were three prisoners in the jail besides Torres, and the inner door was open. When I came out there was a spring lock lying on the floor. I went to the door and called to the nightwatchmen. I heard some talking and noise on the corner of Sycamore and Fourth streets, and I started to go out in the street. I had not gone more than three or four steps when I met some six or eight men, who cried "Halt." They all had pistols, which they pointed at me. I stopped and went back into the jail, where I stayed for a few minutes and then came out again. There were some men on the platform in front of the mill across the street. I could not see how many there were because I could not see distinctly, but I could hear their voices. I decided not to go up to the corner of Fourth and Sycamore streets until I heard some of them. Shortly after I was just starting to go to Joe Nichols' (the Marshal's) house when Morgan, the nightwatchman, came down and said there was a man hanging to the telephone pole up at the corner, and he went to notify the Marshal. I went to the jail at 1:30 A. M., and after picking up a sledge hammer that the mob had left, I went to inform the Sheriff of what had happened."

Edmund Padderatz, who was in jail at the time, having been sent across the river from here for ten days for stealing wine from Mrs. Wilkins' wine shed, testified that he was an inmate of the jail at the time the mob entered. His testimony was as follows: "The first I heard was when some one called for the jailer to open the door. Just then I heard the front door broken in. Some of the men came to the door and asked if I was the Mexican. They had shotguns, and were masked. I told them I was a white man, and the next moment they had three out of his cell. They tied his legs and arms, and strangled him as they dragged him out. He yelled, but did not say a word that I understood. They did not speak to him. In a few minutes three men returned to the jail, with pistols in their hands, and got a hat. They asked for the hat, and one of the inmates passed it through the grate of the door."

Nightwatchman Morgan testified that he was out on his beat as usual the night of the lynching; that he and Nigg had gone to the jail to see if everything was all right. Later he and Nigg went on their beat toward the eastern part of the city. He did not hear the noise made by the mob in breaking in the jail. At fifteen minutes to 1 o'clock he was returning on Fourth street, when he met Dr. Mills near the corner of Sycamore street. The Doctor had been out attending a patient. Morgan looked toward the telephone pole and saw a man suspended by a rope, his feet about two feet from the ground. He said, "There hangs a man in effigy." On closer inspection they found it was Torres, who was dead. They then went and informed the Marshal. From the time he left the jail until they reached the corpse only twenty minutes had elapsed.

Sheriff Lacy, who was soon upon the scene, at once dispatched a buggy for Coroner Ey. The rig arrived in Anaheim about 3 o'clock, and at 4 o'clock the Coroner was at Santa Ana and cut down the corpse. An inquest was held Saturday morning, at which a verdict was rendered that Torres had been hanged by parties unknown.

On Torres' shirt front the mob had pinned the placard, "Change of Venue." The body was buried in the potters' field on Saturday afternoon, the remains being followed to the grave by a few of his countrymen.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California, and the complaint filed in said county of Orange in the office of the County Clerk thereof.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Victor B. Bell, Chas. W. Baker, F. E. Eldred, E. W. Poindexter and John W. Conover, defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county; or if served elsewhere, within thirty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of this Court for the foreclosure of a mechanic's and improvement lien, as prayed for in said complaint, and a contract therefor executed by the said H. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, said plaintiff will cause your default to be entered, and apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

The City Council and the Water Company.

The Agreement With the Irrigation District Annulled by the Latter—Our Boys at Anacapa—The Populists, and Their County Ticket—Gossip From the Landing.

The Board of Trustees met in regular session in the City Hall on Tuesday evening. Present, Trustees Witte, Schindler, Pellegrin and Rust. Absent, Mr. Littlefield.

The Clerk read the minutes of the last regular and adjourned meetings, which were approved as read.

The bill of Henry Albrecht for $10 50 for work done on the City Hall was ordered paid.

The matter of finishing the pipe line on the corner of Olive and Cypress streets was referred to Trustee Rust, with power to have the same fixed at once.

In regard to the culvert on Adele street. The matter was left to the Committee on Public Improvements with power to act.

The matter of filling in chuckholes on the principal streets with gravel was discussed. It was suggested that teams be employed to haul gravel from the gravel beds near Olive for that purpose. The matter was left to the Chairman of the Improvement Committee.

Coroner Ry appeared before the board in regard to the city owned building Hermine street as advertised for. He desired that the board rescind their action so far as they have gone in the matter, and let the property owners on said street perform the work as they see fit, providing it is done according to specifications. Trustee Witte replied to the Coroner with some caloric, claiming that he was the first gentleman who wanted the street graded, and that now he wanted to have the board's action in the matter rescinded.

The Coroner, however, differed with the Chairman, saying he only asked at the time to have the sidewalk on the street put in a passable condition. The heated discussion finally ended, and peace and quiet reigned supreme, when it was moved that the matter be left with the Chairman of the board to consult the attorney in regard to the same and report at the next regular meeting.

Ordinance No. 80, fixing the tax levy for the fiscal year 1892-93, which was introduced at the last regular meeting, was adopted as read.

The Fire Committee reported that the fire apparatus of the city was in good condition, excepting a few sections of hose. It was suggested by the committee that three more new fire hydrants be put in.

A communication was received from Mr. Platt of Newport in regard to the boring of the new city well. He agrees to bore a 11-inch, 600-foot well for 60 cents per foot, the city to furnish all the necessary casing and other incidentals. As the well would thus cost about $2,000 his proposition was tabled. It was decided that Mr. Platt be requested to be here next Saturday afternoon and have a consultation with the board and thereby possibly arrive at some definite conclusion in regard to this vexatious matter.

Trustee Schindler offered his report in regard to the acceptance of the New City Hall. The statement of moneys paid Contractor Albrecht was also offered, showing that he has been paid $3,000, leaving a balance due him—after the usual deduction of 25 per cent of the whole contract price—of $262 50. There is still due the contractor the sum of $1,080, which is held back until October next as a guarantee that everything on the building is all right. The reports were received and filed.

The Clerk was authorized to have one dozen license and three tax-receipt books printed. Adjourned.

THE WATER COMPANY.

THE AGREEMENT WITH THE DISTRICT FOR THE TRANSFER OF THE COMPANY'S PROPERTY ANNULLED.

The Board of Directors of the Anaheim Water Company met in regular session on Saturday afternoon. All of the Directors present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. Amerige reported that he had investigated the Pfeninger matter. There was proof that Pfeninger had water, but there was no proof that he had meddled with the gates. The matter was dropped.

Mr. Spencer reported that he had investigated the Stein matter. As there was no proof of Stein having changed any gate the case was dismissed.

Mr. Tuffree reported that he had seen Mr. Bailey in regard to the fill in place of flume 13. Mr. Bailey states that if the water company will fill the abandoned ditch between fills 10 and 11 and deed all abandoned rights of way to him, he will deed the new rights of way to the company and make no charge for earth used for making fills. The Engineer was instructed to furnish data for the deeds according to Mr. Bailey's statement.

John Koehler addressed the board in regard to the rights of way for water through the Collins place. Mr. Rust was appointed a committee of one to act in connection with the Engineer to investigate and report the most available method of getting water to Mr. Kuehler's place.

The President and Secretary were authorized to draw and sign a warrant for $250 in favor of Chapman and Hendricks as a retainer for services in the Jurupa suit.

Mr. McFadden reported that he had had a conference with the Litigation Committee of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation District, and they had agreed to push matters as speedily as possible.

Mr. Tuffree introduced the following: "Resolved, That this board refuse to entertain any proposition whatever from the Anaheim Irrigation District with the view of purchasing the whole or any part of their works; but will use all legal measures or means to prevent the said Irrigation district from acquiring the same by purchase or condemnation." Seconded by Mr. Amerige.

Mr. Strain offered the following amendment; "That no change of policy of this board with regard to the agreement between this company and the Irrigation district be made until a vote of the stockholders of this company justifies such change." Seconded by Mr. Rust.

The Secretary called the roll for the vote on the amendment, which resulted Ayes—McFadden, Rust and Strain. Nays—Amerige, Tuffree, Spencer, Zeyn. Lost.

The original motion was then carried by the following vote: Ayes—Amerige, Tuffree, Spencer, Zeyn. Nays—McFadden, Rust, Strain. Adjourned.

Trip to Chino.

The delegation of citizens who visited the Chino sugar factory last week report having had an enjoyable as well as an instructive trip, but their pleasure was interrupted by a breakdown in Lewis' bus when in the La Habra valley on the return trip, about eight miles from town. The rear axle broke, letting the passengers down gently. They got into Everharty's bus and made their way into town, arriving at about 8 o'clock. The disabled bus was left at the scene of the accident during the night, and the horses were unhitched and driven into town. A short time after arriving here, at about 9 o'clock, one of the horses died. The animal was one of the best in Lewis' stable.

At Chino the Farmers' Institute was in session, and together with them our delegation went on a tour of inspection of the sugar refinery, which is now running night and day. They were surprised to learn that no sugar is being refined at Chino this season, the crude sugar being shipped to the Spreckles refinery at San Francisco to be refined. It is claimed a great saving in the expenditure results from this policy.

AT CAMP ANACAPA.

HOW THE BOYS PUT-IN TIME AT THE REGIMENTAL ENCAMPMENT.

CAMP ANACAPA,
Ventura County, Cal., Aug. 24.

DEAR GAZETTE:—Perhaps some news from the seat of mimic war may interest your readers. Companies A, B, C, D, E, F and G of the Seventh Regiment went into camp at this place August 17th, to remain ten days. The camp is laid out with military accuracy on the County Fair grounds, near the sea, and adjoining the Southern Pacific Railroad track on the ocean side. The citizens of Ventura have done all that could be done to make the stay of the soldier boys pleasant, but those on the outside who think that an encampment under Colonel Schreiber means a junketing expedition at the expense of the State would do well to don a soldier's uniform and see how it is themselves. Let me give you a portion of the daily routine, as the whole is too long. At 5 A. M., reveille; 5:30, roll call; 6, breakfast; 7, drill, continuing with slight intermissions until 11:30. At 12 M. dinner, when the boys who are not on guard or special duty are free until 5:25, when the call for dress parade is sounded. At 6, supper; at 9, "Lights out" and from then until morning the pickets patrol the camp.

The above programme shows that an encampment means work, good hard work; but of course the boys have and do find time for fun."

Company G went to Ventura August 17th and the next morning the regular work of camp began. Thursday Captain Barry of the First Infantry, U. S. A., put in an appearance. He is every inch a soldier, and stands over 6 feet. In view of the recent troubles at Homestead, Buffalo and Coal Creek, he put the company through "street formation," "hollow square," "firing by squads," "firing by battalion," etc. Both officers and men were quick to recognize, in Captain Barry, the scholarly soldier and born to command. We hope he may be able to again visit the Seventh after his inspection of the Nine at Long Beach.

On Sunday the regiment attended divine service at Armory D, and listened to an eloquent discourse in their duties as soldiers and citizens by the Regimental Chaplain. He referred in pointed terms to the recent calling out of the militia in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Idaho and Tennessee, and advocated either an increase of the regular army or else a change in the militia organization. The Chaplain has strong common sense even if he can't ride a horse.

Monday the regiment again did a big day's work in the way of battalion drill, all companies being consolidated as one and drilled in extended order by Col. Schreiber. The different formations for attack were shown, the regiment firing kneeling or lying down, and taking advantage of every depression in ground or rock or tree.

Tuesday the regiment was again drilled by Col. Schreiber on "battle line," "volley firing," "firing by squads," "firing at will," etc.

NOTES.

Friday night the Native Daughters gave the Regiment a grand ball, and from the looks of things either some of the Anaheim boys will henceforth live in Ventura or some of Ventura's fairest daughters will move to Anaheim. "'Twas ever thus with fair women and brave men."

B. H. Grogan is again a member of the regiment.

The boys of Company G are strictly in it. Sunday in thirteen minutes they pulled in a tug of war Company D of Ventura, and the way those Ventura boys pulled and tugged was a caution. They had heavier men, but they forgot the stuff of which Anaheim boys are made. Anchorman Sergeant Landell, Capt. Browning, Corporal Berdrow and Privates McGoffin, McFaddeo, Neipp, Reder and Blumhart, with Sergeant Abbey as Captain, comprised the Anaheim team. Company G will, before the close of camp, pull any and all winning teams. Company G can't beat the Ventura Company D in right royal good fellowship.

Capt. Browning makes a model officer, having the confidence and respect of his men. He was officer of the day Monday.

President Keyes of Throop University, Pasadena, and Rev. Andrews of Santa Paula took dinner with Company G on Monday. They are friends of Private Grogan.

Sergeant Hatfield was overcome by the sermon Sunday.

All the companies will shoot for the gold medal offered by citizens of Ventura Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The medal to go to the marksman making the highest score.

Col. Schreiber is a model soldier.

The grocer who brought last butter Monday "got wind" of a blanket tossing and will trouble the camp no more. Two Chinamen have been blanket-tossed, and poor John thinks that "for ways that are dark and tricks that are vain the soldier boys too are peculiar."

Monday night was an exciting one in camp. Capt. Browning of Company G was officer of the day and Lieut. Hammons of Company D was officer of the guard. It seems that Companies A and C and part of F made up their minds to make a midnight attack on the camp and laid their plans accordingly. Early in the evening Company A got permission to haul the gatling gun with blank cartridges for Wednesday's sham battle. They also inspected the large brass howitzer. About after 11 P. M. Capt. Browning and Lieut. Hammons captured a man going out of camp with a rifle and blank cartridges. He was sent to the guard house, and sentries notified to be on the lookout, as both officers began "to smell a rat." Not long after a large portion of Company C, with their blank cartridges were captured and also put in the "guard house." Then the music began. It was as if pandemonium had broken loose. The whole guard was turned out. They charged up and down the company streets, either capturing or driving under cover at point of bayonet every man who could not give an account of himself. The result was that Companies A, C and F captured neither the gatling gun nor the brass howitzer, nor the camp; but they did capture the inside of the guard house. They all swear they won't this year, nor next year, nor the year after, try to capture another camp with Capt. Browning or Lieut. Hammons on duty.

The streets were very clean Tuesday after the above companies got through extra duty. They looked sad and no doubt thought that "the best-laid plans of mice and men gang aft agles."

Brigade Inspector Maj. Driffell inspected Company G Tuesday. The boys came out O. K. Then came a skirmish drill with blank cartridges, and it is quite a sight to see a section of men on the dead run suddenly drop to the ground at "Halt," and begin firing. Their heels with brown leggings flying up make them look like wild ducks pitching into a pond.

—W. J. Hill has hauled in his threshing outfit for the season. He has threshed something like 25,000 sacks of grain, while his machine has altogether threshed went to 104,000. Last year, however, he started in early and threshed until well along in September, while this year the season is cut short on account of the lightness of the crop.

—St. Peter (on a summer vacation, but looking after business on the side)—"See here! Why haven't you been up my way?" Surprised Denizen of Earth—"Why, I'm not dead yet!" St. Peter—"You deceive yourself; you've been dead some time, and you are very much in the way here." Surprised Denizen—"I'll call in the neighbors to prove I'm alive and in business." St. Peter—"That's too much trouble. Here's your local paper; show me your advertisement!"

—The People's party have honored our townsman Dr. Paschall with the nomination for Coroner and Public Administrator. The Doctor is one of our best citizens, has been a life-long Democrat, but is trying pretty hard to be a People's party man, and if elected to the office that he is so conspicuously fitted to fill will doubtless perform the duties of his office so well that it will not be much of a pleasure to the cold and clammy corpse to have him preside over the burial. The Doctor's name gives strength to the ticket.

—Mrs. John Faulkner of Santa Ana met with an accident at 11 o'clock Monday morning which resulted in her death at 4:30 o'clock that evening. She was about to light a gasoline stove she found the supply exhausted. She turned off the flame to replenish the supply, but it is supposed the flame was not completely extinct and ignited the gasoline in the can, which exploded and covered her with flames. Neighbors came to her rescue and put out the fire by means of a heavy blanket, but not until the sufferer had inhaled sufficient gas to cause her untold agony, resulting in death. She was buried yesterday afternoon. She leaves a husband and two children.

—A recent number of the San Francisco Call comes to hand with a very good photograph of our distinguished fellow-townsman, Col. R. J. Northam, whom it mentions in a very flattering biographical sketch as being among the prominent people of the State, the counterfeit presentments of many of whom appear along with that of the Colonel. We presume the Colonel's modesty kept that May Nebelung, who declares that overtures have been made him by a leading Eastern magazine to have his picture and biographical sketch presented along with those of all the good-looking City Clerks in the country. Max is considering whether he can afford the distinction.

—Our Celestial friend Man Wo enjoyed a visit during the week from his brother, whom he had not seen in a long time, and who has the distinction to be married to a Caucasian wife. The couple have three good-looking children, two girls and a boy, and the wife is herself not a bad looking woman. The Chinaman serves as cook on a sailing vessel, and his family reside in San Francisco. We did not learn the Celestial's name, but the children's surname is the good old-fashioned Anglo-Saxon one of Johnson. The family were the objects of much curiosity during their stay, which was made very pleasant at Man Wo's place of business on Los Angeles street. The family took their departure for Los Angeles on Tuesday.

—Democratic primaries will be held throughout the county on Saturday, September 3rd, and the Democratic County Convention will convene at Santa Ana on the following Saturday. The apportionment is made on the basis of one delegate to each precinct, one delegate for each fifty votes cast in the precinct at the last election, and one delegate for each fraction of twenty-five votes or over. The convention will be composed of forty-seven delegates, of which Anaheim has been apportioned 4, West Anaheim 3, Fullerton 2, Buena Park 1, and Yorba 1. The election boards in these precincts are: Anaheim, Adolph Rimpau and Julius Schneider; West Anaheim, Alex. Henry and T. A. Darling; Fullerton, B. F. Porter and Alex. Gardiner; Buena Park, Thos. House and D. Hickox; Yorba, D. Dominguez and Felipe Yorba.

—Madame Locroq gives notice elsewhere that she has moved her dressmaking establishment to her new parlors on Center street, and will open them to the inspection of the ladies of this vicinity on September 1st. The Madame is a fashionable dressmaker and is deserving of the patronage of the public.

—Twenty-eight votes were cast at the Republican primaries on Tuesday. The following delegates were elected: Judge Pleasants, A. L. Lewis, Clarence Groat, V. Bentz and A. Goldthwaite. At West Anaheim H. D. Polhemus, A. R. Eddis and Charles Norman were elected delegates. The Republican County Convention will be held at Santa Ana on September 3d.

—General Pierce is out for District Attorney and is making a rattling canvass for the nomination. The General is a lawyer of fine ability, the best platform orator in Orange county, and as popular as he is learned. He would make an excellent official, and if nominated would undoubtedly be elected. General Pierce would make an A 1 District Attorney.

—Coroner Ry held an inquest on the fourteen-year-old son of C. C. Stanley of Fairview, who was drowned while bathing with some companions, on Tuesday afternoon. The boys were bathing in a pond at Thompson's ranch at Fairview and the unfortunate youth got beyond his depth and sank. His body was in the water three hours, when it was recovered by means of a boat and rake. The verdict was accidental drowning.

—The finish contest at the Opera-house next Saturday evening between Prof. Bernard of this city and Con Colton (colored) of San Bernardino promises to be a very lively and interesting go. Although the colored gentleman is some pounds heavier than Bernard, we look for the latter to win. Bernard is one of the cleverest boxers in the country, and is a ring general of no mean order. He is able to inflict a great deal of punishment, which he avoids in turn with great cleverness. It is expected that Frank Childs will be in attendance and assist in the entertainment, which will be of a high order of merit throughout. The indications are that the exhibition will be largely attended.

—A number of our citizens made up their minds on Saturday to take a trip to Chicago. Agent Hill of the Santa Fe had informed them that he had received instructions from headquarters to the effect that the fare for the round trip had been reduced to $5. That was rate cutting with a vengeance, as the regular rate for the round trip had all along been $70. Plans were hastily made on the part of several citizens to avail themselves of the low rate, but their hopes were shattered when the agent informed them the next day that he had misunderstood the message from headquarters, and that instead of the rate being reduced to $5, it had simply been reduced $5—sect There were blue streaks in the atmosphere in various places, but no tickets to Chicago were put on sale at the low rate.

—Sam Finley and James B. Moulin indulged in the pastime of a shooting scrape in Laramie's saloon on Fourth street at Santa Ana last Tuesday afternoon at about 5 o'clock. Six shots were fired, Moulin firing first. Both men were hit, Finley in the neck and Moulin in the shoulder. Neither is fatally wounded. The cause of the shooting is an old grudge that has existed between the two for many months past, the cause of it being Moulin's wife, from whom he was divorced some time ago. It is said that Finley was too attentive to the woman, to which Moulin objected. The two met in Santa Ana some time ago, when Moulin charged Finley with improper conduct toward his wife, and a bitter quarrel resulted. Moulin went for a revolver, and Finley had him placed under bonds to keep the peace. Everything went well until Tuesday afternoon, when both men met accidentally and immediately began firing. The aim of both was bad, and nothing serious is apprehended from the wounds.

THE POPULISTS

THEY PLACE A FULL COUNTY TICKET IN THE FIELD.

The first County Convention of the People's Party ever held in this county convened at Neill's Hall, Santa Ana, on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. The convention was composed of 124 delegates. Out of this number there were fifteen proxies. H. P. Gardiner of Orange was elected Chairman. The following delegates were present from this township:

Anaheim—Peter Herring, M. Walker, D. G. Walker, H. C. Gade, S. P. Bates, Clark Minor, Dr. J. S. Paschall, B. Dresser, A. M. Williams, R. Nicks, C. Clevenger.

Fullerton—Arthur Staley, Theo. Staley, A. J. Vail, J. Fayles, J. H. Starkey, Chas. Wagner.

Buena Park—T. J. House, H. B. Williams, J. W. McKinney, Mrs. R. C. Archibald, Mrs. Stephenson, R. R. Robinson.

Yorba—L. B. Thomas, J. M. Woodward, J. Berlin Jr.

The following candidates were then placed in nomination:

For the Assembly—C. F. Bennett of Tustin.

For Sheriff—Wm. Jerome of Tustin.

For County Clerk—Arthur Staley of Placentia, son of Theo. Staley.

For Coroner and Public Administrator—Dr. J. S. Paschall of Anaheim.

For County Surveyor—J. P. Leslie of Santa Ana.

The Senatorial Convention will be held at South Riverside to-morrow, when a candidate for State Senator will be nominated. As the Assemblyman is from this county, the Senator will likely be a San Bernardino county man.

Nominations for township officers were left to the County Central Committee, which meets at Santa Ana next Saturday to name the candidates and complete the ticket.

Miss Fay Fox has been seriously ill at her home in Fullerton for several days past, but was somewhat improved at last reports.

Miss Dora Zeyn and her brother Oscar are sojourning at the Capistrano hot springs, and will remain several weeks.

A. E. Bird contemplates taking his departure for Tuolumne county to reside. The best wishes of scores of friends go with him.

Miss Lulu James is spending the week at Santa Monica, where the tennis tournament is in progress. She is the guest of Mrs. Ryan.

Mrs. George Holmes of Redlands, formerly a resident of this city, and child were in town during the week, the guests of Mrs. W. Frank.

Mrs. Hanna and sons Harry and John have returned from their visit to the Capistrano springs, much invigorated in health and spirits.

Mrs. Frank Steadman and Miss Bentz, who have been on an extended visit to friends and relatives in Oregon, are expected home in a day or two.

Theo. Rimpau went to Lordsburg on Tuesday to visit his wife and daughters, who are temporarily sojourning at that point. He will probably return to-day.

Prof. Edwin Clark, who taught school at Prospect Park, near Los Angeles, last term, will teach at San Juan Capistrano during the coming year. The Professor can't stay away from Orange county.

Richard Krebs visited the El Cajon valley in San Diego county last Saturday and Sunday. He reports the grape vines looking very well, and the valley covered with an air of prosperity.

Misses Jessie and Hilda Witte returned last week from their outing in the Temescal mountains, and the former is again in her place as the Postoffice as assistant to Mrs. Bates. Both report having had a very enjoyable time while away.

Mrs. Wood and Miss Tate of San Jose are here on a visit to Mrs. Ernest Browning. Mrs. Browning, who has been quite ill lately but is now healing, will probably accompany them on their return to San Jose, to remain away some weeks.

County Recorder Foster was in town yesterday renewing old acquaintances and looking at political fences hereaway. Mr. Foster has made an efficient and painstaking officer, and if renominated would be a tower of strength to the ticket.

Mr. and Mrs. Keithaber were over from Santa Ana one day last week, visiting with Mrs. Keithaber's parents. Keithaber is a candidate for Tax Collector, and while in town went over the field to see how his fences stand. He informs us that they are away up and strong.

Will Drips of Santa Ana, well known to many people here, died at San Jose last Saturday from the effects of a fall sustained some time ago. His mother and father had been with him constantly since the accident, and brought the body back to Santa Ana for interment.

C. Entenmann of Los Angeles was in town on Tuesday in the interest of the athletic and shooting festival of the Southern California Turner District, which takes place at San Diego on the 31, 4th and 5th of next month. The indications are that the festival will be largely attended by turners and their friends from all parts of Southern California.

Mrs. J. F. Becher of Riverside, whose presence once upon a time was the sunshine of this shop, has been in town during the week, the guest of Miss Minnie Zeyn. Mrs. Becher is here to enjoy the cooling ocean breezes, which are conspicuous by their absence at Riverside. Mr. Becher is in partnership with Mr. Avery, and the firm is building a large packing house. Mrs. Becher remains here probably a couple of weeks.

A. L. Armstrong of Danville, Illinois, accompanied by George Stamp and Robert Buchanan of East Los Angeles, were in town on Sunday, the guests of W. R. Harker. Mr. Armstrong was completely enraptured of our city, and will hasten home to dispose of his possessions in the Sucker State and return here to take up his permanent residence with us. When Harker gets after a tenderfoot he lets no guilty man escape. Mr. Armstrong will probably go into business in this city.

Horticultural Commissioner John Scott of Los Angeles was in town on Tuesday on a tour of observation of the results of our system of fumigation. In company with Mr. Perry he visited the various orchards that had been fumigated, and was very favorably impressed with the results attained. Mr. Scott is laboring under the impression that will begin fumigating extensively in the Duarte region immediately. He has a colony of the Australian parasites recently imported by Prof. Koebele, but does not think they will prove very efficacious against the red scale inside of four or five years. The difference between the rubidus and the vedalia is that the latter breed fifteen times per year, while the former breed only twice in the same time. The red scale multiplies too rapidly to keep the scale in check, but in and recourse must be had to fumigation. Perhaps the bugs will increase in five years to keep the scale in check, but in the mean time too much damage would not be placed upon them. Mr. Scott praises the work of our fumigators very highly, and says we have the cleanest orchards he has seen in a long time.

—The Native Sons throughout Southern California will celebrate Admission Day, September 9th, by a grand celebration at Santa Barbara. The programme of entertainment is as follows: On Friday afternoon, September 9th, there will be a parade of the parlors of Southern California, with the Pioneers and other fraternal organizations. In the evening at eight o'clock a reception and dance will be tendered the visitors. On Saturday morning a barbecue and bull's head breakfast will be given. Sunday will be spent in driving and showing the visitors Santa Barbara and the surrounding country. The various committees are actively at work and the Native Sons will spare no effort to make the celebration a good one. Reduced railroad rates have been made from all points to Santa Barbara and return. The rates to Los Angeles from all points will be one and one-third fare for the round trip; to Santa Barbara the rate from Los Angeles will be $3 50 for the round trip. Tickets good from Friday, the 9th, until the following Tuesday.

The provincial young man has never possessed any attractions for me, and it is certain that if I had not gone up north to stay with Daisy Drysdale, I should never have known so well such a striking specimen of the type as Dr. Wedmore. He was not a bad fellow, but oh, he was so pleased with himself! Your provincial, indeed, is rarely modest; in the limited circle of country town society a young man is pursued with too much pertinacity and ardor to have any doubts in his own mind as to his personal desirability and manifold charms.

Dr. Wedmore was a stoutish young man of thirty-two, with nondescript features and a slow, portentous manner. He had a large and increasing practice in the suburb of Northaw, where his medical skill was in constant request among the spinsters and widows of that somewhat damp and chilly neighborhood. So highly esteemed were his services in the sickroom that these ladies would send for him at all hours of the day or night, until the good doctor in self defense took to sending his red lined waistcoat to some of his more flagrant maladies imaginaires.

Daisy Drysdale's husband was a manufacturer in Mudchester, and, like other manufacturers, he lived as far away from the factory chimneys of that thriving city as possible. So his brand new red brick mansion lay on the other side of the suburb of Northaw, and the society of Northaw supplied nearly all Mrs. Drysdale's intellectual requirements. Poor Daisy! How she missed London and the Upper Bohemia! She had a genius for giving little dinners, but of what use was that, seeing the component elements of which her parties were to be henceforth composed? Still she was not to be baffled, and Mrs. Drysdale constantly entertained. The night after I arrived one of these dinners was given in my honor, and I was sent down to the dining room with Dr. Wedmore.

I shall not easily forget that night. Accustomed to the manifestly insincere gushings of London young men, I was astonished at the naive manner in which this country Zacchæus raised in vain to hide his sudden admiration. It came out in every word and look. It was a case of "love at first sight" on the part of Dr. Wedmore. Before I left the dinner table he had offered to lend me a horse, proposed that he should drive me to a meet ten miles off and expressed a wish that I should know his three sisters.

But the next time I saw him my head was tied up in a flannel shawl and my throat was so swollen I could hardly speak. The doctor had been called in professionally. The climate of Mudchester had been too much for me, and I was down with a malignant sore throat.

The doctor came every day, and once he came twice, to work a patent inhaler and paint my throat with some mysterious compound. He constantly changed the treatment; it was as if he could never do enough. He even used to bring me flowers—and who ever heard of a doctor taking his patient flowers? Daisy was amused with the amusement. She said that when she was ill she sometimes used to have to send for Dr. Wedmore two or three times before he appeared, he was so busy.

At the end of a week I was better, and in ten days I was quite well. I really felt very grateful, for I knew that the doctor had saved me by his constant care from a dangerous illness. I wonder if he took my gratitude for —something stronger? Anyway, as I told Christina when she scolded me for the whole affair, it was not my fault. I hadn't fallen in love with Dr. Wedmore—that's all.

The thing came quickly to a crisis. We were all invited to spend an evening at the doctor's house. In the north they have a mysterious meal called "high tea," which is apparently a source of no little comfort and even of self righteousness. It enables the partakers thereof to allude witheringly to the habit of "late dinners" indulged in by the inhabitants of the south. And so, if you are invited on the Northaw be sure you will be regaled on tea and cold chicken (fearful mixture), on hot cakes, jam, marmalade and currant buns. To this evening meal, then, we were bidden by Dr. Wedmore.

He lived alone with his sisters, who were curiously like him. They were all stoutish, with nondescript features and had slow and somewhat pompous manners. To see all four of them together inclined one to indecent mirth. It was impossible to be more worthy, more dull and more self satisfied. The Misses Wedmore were considered to have a pretty taste for art; they painted everything within reach with sprawling red roses or startling white daisies, and the doctor was of opinion that his sisters' artistic talent was of the first order. Miss Ada, too, sang songs by Pinsuti and Milton Wellings. The doctor liked Miss Ada's vocal efforts; while Miss Emily was literary, she assiduously read Miss Edna Lyall and Rider Haggard, and of these authors we discoursed solemnly until "tea" was announced.

To me was full of ominous portents. The doctor's manner, when he invited me for the second time to partake of cold chicken or pressed spur me with northern hospitality the currant cake, was full of certain protecting pride, while a humbly conquering expression was in his eyes when they rested upon me. It was with "intention," as the French say, that he showed me the photograph album, full of aunts and cousins, after tea, and the good doctor looked quite sentimental when later on Miss Ada warbled a romance, with a waltz accompaniment, entitled "The Love That Will Never Fade." I began to feel cold all down my back.

Five times did I get up, cross the room, engage either of the solemn Misses Wedmore in feverish conversation—I always ended by finding the doctor at my elbow. At last I resigned myself to my fate and sat down to talk to him. I imagined that the state of drains in the suburbs of Northaw would be a safe subject and one unlikely to lead to a declaration of a tender nature, but in this, it appeared, I was mistaken. We got on to the subject of fevers, and to convince me on a certain point the doctor suggested a reference to one of the medical books in his surgery. Once inside the little room, which lay just across the passage. Dr. Wedmore shut the door and advanced toward me with that particular expression which is so intolerable in a young man one doesn't care for.

I put on my most indifferent manner and inspected with much interest the rows of medical books in their glass cases.

"So kind of you," I said hurriedly to fill up the dreadful pause, "to take so much trouble. Most doctors only laugh at you if one wants to know any real fact—about your dreadful trade," I added with flippancy, seeing that the man was not listening to a word I was saying, but was gazing at me as the snake is popularly supposed to regard the sparrow.

"Trouble," he said at last, "how can anything be a trouble that is done for you? I wish you would let me tell you how much I—how much I"——

A sharp rap at the door interrupted this speech. I was very glad of it.

"Please, sir, Mr. Brown is very bad, and Mrs. Brown says will you come at once, and bring some of the drops, and she hopes you won't be long."

"A three mile drive," said Dr. Wedmore, with a sigh, "and I shall not see you again tonight." He took my hand and held it fast.

"I will bring the book tomorrow morning," he said. "Shall I have a chance of seeing you alone? Try to be alone when I come," and, wrenching my hand violently, the doctor disappeared.

"Daisy," I said hurriedly, in the carriage going home, "I am sorry to say, dear, I shall have to go home by the 10:15 tomorrow. I—I had a telegram just before we came out."

"You had a fiddlestick! What nonsense, Peggy. Why, you came to stay a month, and you've hardly been twelve days."

"Twelve days! Good heavens! Why, how has he"——

"Oh, it's that, is it? And so, you don't like him? Well I think you're silly. One might do much worse. How much better to marry some one like that than some of your flippertty London young men. He's sensible, clever, a good fellow, well off and very fond of you"——

"The 10:15, please, Daisy."

And sure enough by the 10:15 I went. As the Yorkshire fields flew before me on my rapid journey back to dear old London, the whole thing seemed like some nightmare from which I had just awoken. Great heavens! From what had I not escaped? A lifetime of high tea, suburban gossip and provincial self sufficiency, of rose bedecked door panels, the novels of Mr. Rider Haggard and "The Love That Will Never Fade."

I am very fond of Daisy Drysdale, but it will be a long time before I again trust myself to the seductions of that suburb of Mudchester.—Buffalo News.

CALIFORNIA'S CHANCE.

THE FAILURE OF THE EASTERN FRUIT CROP A GOOD THING FOR OUR GROWERS.

New York Tribune, August 14.

All the fruit merchants on the west side of the city down town were talking yesterday about the high prices of fruit. Nothing like it had been seen in twenty-five years, and all with one accord attributed it to the failure of the peach crop in the East. "When the peach crop of Maryland and Delaware fails," said A. F. Young, one of the heaviest dealers in the product, "it means high living all around. Why, you would be surprised to know how keenly the butter and egg men watch the Delaware and Maryland peach crop. The butter and egg market is strong and prices are high mainly because of the failure in the Eastern peach crop. There is always a great cry raised in the spring about the failure of the Delaware crops, and oftentimes the yield is just as heavy, and the people say, 'Oh, yes, the old cry of Wolf.' This time the wolf is there sure. There are not in all Delaware and Maryland over 250,000 baskets of peaches this year, and that will be consumed at home. This market has absorbed as much as 200 carloads of Delaware and Maryland peaches in a single day, but we are not getting a carload a day this year. There are eight or nine carloads of Jersey peaches coming in; small, inferior fruit, but still fetching good prices, $1 75 and $2 a basket wholesale. In the flush of the season, ten days hence, there won't be over 50 carloads of Jerseys a day. Last year I handled over 100,000 baskets from Delaware, while this year I will not handle over 1,500."

It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good, however, and what is the blight in the Eastern orchards is the halcyon time for the growers of the Pacific Slope. They are reaping splendid profits just now. "Within the last two weeks," said E. L. Goodsell, the auctioneer, one of the chief handlers in this city of California fruits, "there have been sold in this city over 3,000,000 pounds of California fruit, which is unprecedented. There used to be a struggle between this city and Chicago for the best market for this fruit. Chicago is sixty hours nearer the orchards than we are, and for years left us far behind, consuming ten times as much California fruit as we did. But of late years New York has forged to the front, and now Chicago is nowhere in the race. We eat more California fruit and pay better prices for it than the World's Fair city.

"The arrivals of California fruit this week have been thirty-one carloads, of which a full twenty came for an aggregate sum of $40,000. That is a gross of nearly $1,400 a car, where, as last year the cars grossed only $1,100, making the shipper a clear profit of $300 a car over last year. I tell you we are pouring a stream of gold into the lap of California. And we cannot help ourselves, because we have nowhere else to go for fruit."

There is such a lack of uniformity in the dimensions of packages of fruit from the different sources of supply which furnish the market that it will not be untimely to give a few facts furnished by Mr. Goodsell regarding the supplies of California and the size of the packages.

The first carloads of California fruit reach New York about June 20th, and contain cherries, apricots, early peaches and plums.

During July the carload assortment consists of cherries, plums, prunes, apricots, peaches, nectarines, early varieties of grapes and the famous Bartlett pears.

In August supplies comprise all the July fruits, including during the latter part some Tokay grapes and a number of varieties of summer pears and fancy peaches.

September shipments are composed of the famous Tokay grapes, in their perfection, beside the Cornichon, Emperor and Muscat grapes and a number of fancy varieties of plums and prunes and late varieties of peaches.

October receipts consist of grapes, a large variety of winter pears, with some plums and peaches.

It is seen that during the entire summer every variety of fruit is in the market to supply what is lacking because of the failure of the Eastern crop. The size of the packages containing California fruits are as follows: Cherries come in boxes of ten pounds net each; apricots and nectarines are packed in half crates containing four baskets, holding five pounds net of fruit each; grapes are also shipped in half crates and in whole crates of forty pounds net, there being eight baskets of five pounds instead of four; plums, prunes and peaches are packed in boxes of about fifteen pounds each net; boxes of pears hold forty pounds net.

NOTICE OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE UNDER EXECUTION.

In the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California.

Under and by virtue of an execution issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California, wherein L. Schorn et al were plaintiffs, and N. H. And that the sum of $504 50, with interest from the 4th day of February, 1892, is now (at the date of this writ) actually due on said judgment, I have this day levied upon all the right, title, claim and interest of said defendant, N. H. Mitchell, of, in and to the following-described real estate, to wit: Lying, being and situate in the county of Orange, State of California, and being a portion of the Rancho Los Bolsas—said portion being described as follows, to wit:
