The Plague of Boccaccio's Time.

From the great beginning of the mortality of 1348 to the early years of the Fifteenth century, the chroniclers registered no less than six such epidemics, though some were of comparatively minor deadliness. By consulting the books of death preserved in the archives of the Grascia, it is possible to ascertain that from the 1st of May to the 18th of September, 1400, there occurred no fewer than 10,908 deaths, of which the greater part were children.

Of the plague of 1348 beside the classical and splendid description of Boccaccio, we can discover vivid and sad records amid the family chronicles in the diaries and memorands of the day. It must have been a despairing and awe-inspiring sight. Giovanni Morelli tells us how in one hour, a friend or neighbor was laughing and joking and the next he was dead. People fell down dead in the streets and at their benches, fell down dead when alone without the help or comfort of a human being.

Many went mad and threw themselves into the wells or the Arno, or from out their windows, driven to this by great sorrow, or panic, or fear. Many died many died unseen, many were buried before the breath had left their bodies. One might see the cross bearing priests who had gone to fetch a corpse take up two or three on their way to the church. It is calculated that in Florence alone two-thirds of the population died—that is, 18,000 persons.

Of the epidemic of 1400 a detailed description is given in a letter of Ser Lapo Mazzei: "Here shops are hardly open any more; the masters are not at their desks; the police, the Justice is without superiors. No one weeps for the dead." It was an awful visitation; children died, friends, neighbors and relations fell victims; there was no longer any means of recording even the names of the dead.

Irrigation Bonds Confirmed.

Judge Van Dyke of the Los Angeles Superior Court last week confirmed the bonds of the Glendora Irrigation District, in accordance with an opinion filed by him. By the act of March 14, 1889, the Board of Directors of an irrigation district may commence a special proceeding by which the proceedings of the Board in the issuance of bonds may be judicially examined, approved and confirmed.

The proceeding before the court was under the act mentioned, which allows any person interested in the district or in the issue or sale of the bonds to demur or answer to the petition.

The only party appearing and contesting the application for confirmation was the Glendora Water Company.

In discussing the points raised the court says: "The act for the organization and government of irrigation districts, commonly known as the Wright act, has been sustained as constitutional, and approved by the Supreme Court in a number of decisions, after full and thorough discussion of the matter.

"It has been held that the districts organized under this act are public corporations, and that the property held by such corporations is in trust for the public and subject to the control of the State; that its object is for the good of the public and to promote the prosperity and welfare of the public; that while they do not possess all the municipal powers conferred upon cities and towns, still under the law of their creation they are vested only with public duties and are mere agencies or auxiliaries of the State in the discharge of its sovereign power and duty of providing for the common welfare; and that the acts and proceedings of such districts and their Board of Directors should be liberally construed to carry out the purposes of the law."

The Court in conclusion says that without considering in detail the objections on the part of the only defendant appearing, it is sufficient to say that in the opinion of the Court such of them as are sustained by the evidence are not of such a material nature or kind as to render the proceedings on the part of the district in question invalid; and from the stipulation of facts on file and the evidence in the case the petitioner is entitled to a decree of confirmation as prayed for, and it is so ordered.

Penalty for Heing Short on Kisses.

When Jonas Greenebaum makes out a check for $3,500, which sum a jury the other day decided he should pay Miss Irma Heibron for trifling with her young affections, over in the World's Fair City, he will not sign it:

Yours as ever loving, Jon.

While the jurymen were a little loath to reveal the secrets of their deliberations, one of them intimated that "the kisses did it." In his loving epistle "Yours as ever loving Joe" contracted to deliver an almost inconceivable number of these tokens of affection. He defaulted, and the jury figured out the damages as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| One carload kisses (not delivered) | $1,000 |
| One million kisses (not delivered) | 750 |
| One lot—21 bushels—kisses (not delivered) | 350 |
| Several bushels kisses (not delivered) | 750 |
| Many sweet kisses (not delivered) | 150 |
| Sundry job lot kisses (not delivered) | 25 |
| Heartaches | 500 |
| Disappointment and wrecked hopes | 500 |
| | $3,500 |

When Miss Irma heard the verdict read she smiled, and when her friends congratulated her she smiled again. She said she was happy in the vindication the verdict gave her. She will go lecturing.

Memories of 1871.

On the last week in May each year the French socialists are accustomed to celebrate the "bloody week," which witnessed the downfall of the Paris commune in 1871, the killing of 25,000 of the inhabitants and the exhiling of 50,000 others. As early as 1880, under the leadership of Gambetta and the moderate Republicans, a general amnesty was voted, with only five or six exceptions, to the participants of the commune. It is significant also that many of the municipal regulations which the communists demanded were afterwards granted by the Chamber of Deputies.

"Bloody week" began on Sunday, May 21st, when the Versailles troops entered Paris by a breach in the fortification wall which the National Guards had neglected to defend. They came in by the Bois de Boulogne, and terrible street fights occurred daily until on the following Sunday, May 28th. Marshal McMahon was in full possession of the city and declared the commune at an end. On May 23d the Versailles troops captured the Central Market halls and threatened General Bergeret, who was stationed at the Tuileries. He was forced to retire, blowing up and burning the Tuileries as he left, but managed to save the Louvre, which some of his followers wished also to destroy. The fighting was mostly done by National Guardsmen against heavy odds, and resulted in fearful slaughter; hence the week has obtained its name.

The Female Form Divine.

A sculptor's ideal of beauty is evolved on mathematical principles. A perfect woman is 7 or 7½ or 8 heads tall; her shoulders are two heads wide; her legs are 3½ to 3¾ heads long; her waist is 3 heads in circumference. But the size of heads varies in women who are equally perfect in shape. The head of the Venus de Medici is nearly one-eighth less in proportion than that of the Venus of Milo or the Cuidian Venus of Praxiteles, which was esteemed by the ancients the most perfect statue in existence. The Medici Venus is a slim, slender girl, whose proportions resemble the statues of Psyche. Living reproductions of her are more frequently seen in New York than out West.

There fell into the Argonaut's possession a list of measurements of the proportions of a young lady of San Francisco who is looked upon as being beautiful and having a fine figure—in short, a typical California girl. With these it compared a similar ground plan of a New York girl, which it secured by the following artful dodge: It was collecting statistics concerning the young women in Eastern seminaries; likewise the measurements of Ballow's well-known ideal of beauty. They compare as follows:

| | California Girl. | New York Girl. | Ballow's Ideal. |
|---|---|---|---|
| | Ft. In. | Ft. In. | Ft. In. |
| Height | 5 6½ | 5 6½ | 5 6 |
| Length of head | 0 9¼ | 0 8 | 0 8½ |
| Circumference of bust | 3 3 | 3 0½ | 3 2 |
| Circumference of hips | 3 3 | 3 0 | 3 2 |
| Circumference of waist | 2 1½ | 1 9½ | 2 0 |
| Circumference of neck | 1 1½ | 1 1½ | 1 1 |
| Width of shoulders | 1 7½ | 1 5½ | 1 6½ |

The weights of the first and the last are between 130 and 135 pounds, while the New York girl weighs about 126.

Polycletos, an old Greek sculptor from Licyon, left rules governing the relative proportions of the female frame. He said that twice the thumb was once round the wrist, which is not, unless the thumb is unusually large and the wrist unusually slender; that twice the wrist is the size of the neck, which is about the case in a well-proportioned woman; that twice the neck is once round the waist, which is about so. But he also says that the hand and foot and face should all be of the same length, which is very rarely the case, and that the body should be six times the length of the foot, which would limit most men, whose feet average ten inches in length, to a stature of five feet. The gentleman from Lieyon is evidently not a trustworthy guide.

Referring to the above table it will be observed that the waist of the New Yorker is much smaller than that of the other two. The fashion of small waists is the rage in the East, and the desired result is obtained by tight lacing, which is carried to such an extent that the physique is lost in amazement as to where the lady has bestowed her vital organs. No statue in existence exhibits such a disproportion between the waist and those portions of the trunk which lie above and below it. The compression of the girth is a mere fashionable fad which good taste must condemn. Our California girl wears a 24-inch corset, which might easily be reduced to a 23-inch if the wearer saw it to sacrifice comfort to Eastern fashion. There are belles in New York who are not satisfied till they have squeezed themselves into a 17-inch corset. Such persons, it would seem, would have enjoyed the Scottish boot.

The bust and hips should, in a perfectly formed woman, be exactly the same in circumference. They are so in Ballow's ideal, the Venus of Milo, in the Cuidian Venus and in the California girl. In the New Yorker the circumference of the bust is half an inch greater than that of the hips, which is probably the work of art, not nature.

Ballow does not give the dimensions of his ideal's feet or hands. He merely says that they are "in proportion," which is rather vague. The rule among sculptors is that the foot should measure one head, which is unsatisfactory, as some large women have small heads, and some small women large heads.

The female foot is probably smaller in New York society than out West, for the simple reason that it has less to carry. Shoemakers say here that they sell more 4 and 4½ shoes than any others, but many ladies in society buy 3½, 3 and even 2½ shoes. The knights of St. Crispin do not believe in the sculptor's rule about feet. They say that small feet, like large wife, are a gift from heaven, and may be found attached to persons of any dimensions. Everybody has observed that there is no necessary connection between the hands and the figure; that some slim girls have large hands, and some girls with opulent figures have small hands and fingers.

Take all the measurements together, and the conclusion is forced that the California girl more closely resembles the Cuidian Venus than the New Yorker. Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup is medicated in a manner so as to be more effectual than the plain syrup and not have any taste or odor of the onions, making it very pleasant to take. Sold at 50 cts at Reid's drugstore. towsp1

The gentleman from Lieyon is evidently not a trustworthy guide.

Referring to the above table it will be observed that the waist of the New Yorker is much smaller than that of the other two. The fashion of small waists is the rage in the East, and the desired result is obtained by tight lacing, which is carried to such an extent that the physique is lost in amazement as to where the lady has bestowed her vital organs. No statue in existence exhibits such a disproportion between the waist and those portions of the trunk which lie above and below it. The compression of the girth is a mere fashionable fad which good taste must condemn. Our California girl wears a 24-inch corset, which might easily be reduced to a 23-inch if the wearer saw it to sacrifice comfort to Eastern fashion. There are belles in New York who are not satisfied till they have squeezed themselves into a 17-inch corset. Such persons, it would seem, would have enjoyed the Scottish boot.

The bust and hips should, in a perfectly formed woman, be exactly the same in circumference. They are so in Ballow's ideal, the Venus of Milo, in the Cuidian Venus and in the California girl. In the New Yorker the circumference of the bust is half an inch greater than that of the hips, which is probably the work of art, not nature.

Ballow does not give the dimensions of his ideal's feet or hands. He merely says that they are "in proportion," which is rather vague. The rule among sculptors is that the foot should measure one head, which is unsatisfactory, as some large women have small heads, and some small women large heads.

The female foot is probably smaller in New York society than out West, for the simple reason that it has less to carry. Shoemakers say here that they sell more 4 and 4½ shoes than any others, but many ladies in society buy 3½, 3 and even 2½ shoes. The knights of St. Crispin do not believe in the sculptor's rule about feet. They say that small feet, like large wife, are a gift from heaven, and may be found attached to persons of any dimensions. Everybody has observed that there is no necessary connection between the hands and the figure; that some slim girls have large hands, and some girls with opulent figures have small hands and fingers.

Take all the measurements together, and the conclusion is forced that the California girl more closely resembles the Cuidian Venus than the New Yorker. And that a representative Californian statue should be cast after a study of that masterpiece as well as of the Venus of Milo and the Venus Callipyge.

Proverbs for Advertisers.

Spare the advertisement and spoil the business.

He is a wise man who takes a large space and puts little matter in it.

Whosoever loveth a good business loveth advertising; but he that despiseth fame is an ass.

As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is an effective advertisement in a journal without circulation.

A good advertisement is like the merchant's ships; it bringeth abundance from afar.

He that payeth for advertisements with goods is a fool, for he raiseth up competition in his own market.

Every wise man advertiseth, but a fool speculateth on the Stock Exchange.

He that trusteth in a large circulation shall be wealthy, but he that believeth in cheap rates shall be busted.

The smallest circulation has oft the loudest tongue.

A big advertiser leaveth an inheritance to his children's children's children.

A small advertisement is better than a bad traveler.

There is no worse robbery than a journal that does not circulate.

It is hard to get a forty-page catalogue into an inch in column.

An advertisement is not a luxury, but a necessity.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The assessment of Los Angeles county for the present year shows an increase over last year of $3,000,000.

The Queen of England has entered upon the fifty-seventh year of her reign, having succeeded to the throne on the death of her uncle, King William IV, on the 20th of June, 1837.

A rumor is going the rounds of railway men that the Southern Pacific intends to divide its Sunset route, placing the line south of Tehachapi to El Paso in charge of a general superintendent, and that K. H. Wade, general manager of the Southern California Railway, has been offered the position. Wade returned last week from a trip to Albuquerque, where he had been in consultation with D. B. Robinson, vice-president of the Santa Fe, which gives some color to the rumor.

As the steamship Corona was about casting off lines at Redondo Sunday morning, a man named W. T. Sims, connected with the Santa Fe Railway, accompanied by Miss Jessie Kent, both of Los Angeles, stepped rapidly along the gang-plank and started with the vessel out to sea, with the evident intention of an elopement. When their plan of campaign was disclosed to Capt. Hall he declined to officiate as magistrate as to making them man and wife, and therefore had to depart ship and land the disconsolate pair, the maneuver requiring about fifteen minutes of the Corona's valuable time.

Chris. Evans was arraigned in the Fresno court Monday morning for the killing of Wilson and McGinnis at Young's cabin, Sampson flat. Evans asked time to get an attorney. He is said to be negotiatating with Pat Reddy to defend him. He was very weak, and in order to ascend the two flights of stairs to the courtroom it was necessary to have two assistants. His voice was so weak that when answering the questions asked by the judge, he could not be heard, and the District Attorney, who was near Evans, had to repeat his answers. The case was continued without date.

Commissioners acting on the part of San Bernardino and Riverside counties have held two preliminary meetings to adjust the value of the property between the two counties. Riverside has claimed right along that she should receive about $100,000 from San Bernardino county, but at the last meeting it is said the Riverside commissioners were confronted with a contract entered into between the managers of the Riverside light and the managers of the San Bernardino light, by which Riverside agreed to take no money from San Bernardino county in final settlement.

The Board of Supervisors of Riverside county have enacted a stringent prohibition ordinance in accordance with the vote passed by them a couple of weeks ago. But one exception to the law is made, and this is in favor of hotels of twenty rooms or more. These are allowed to furnish liquors to their regular guests, but at meals only. The penalty for a violation of the law ranges from a fine of $100 to $500, or imprisonment in the County Jail from thirty to 100 days, or both fine and imprisonment.

In St. Louis last week a staff giving the name of Louis Trowbridge walked into the office of the Chief of Police and asked to be arrested. He is a self confessed forger, and had been free for eight years, while another man had been suffering for the crime. Eight years ago, Trowbridge, then a San Francisco lumber merchant, forged a note of $1,800, using the name of Warren Jones, a banker at Eureka, Cal. He got the money on a note from James Harmon. Harmon was arrested, convicted and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. Stricken with remorse Trowbridge last week gave himself up.

A suit was commenced in San Francisco last week by Wells, Fargo & Co. against the Postal Telegraph Company to recover $318, which it claims to have lost by reason of an error made by the defendant corporation. The error was committed in the transmission of a dispatch from Chicago to San Francisco. The dispatch was sent by the Chicago agent of Wells, Fargo & Co. and instructed the agent at San Francisco to purchase 500 shares of Gould & Curry and 500 shares of the Union Consolidated Silver Mining Company. The dispatch was in cipher, the word "beaker" signifying the number "500." In the transmission of the dispatch the telegraph operator substituted the word "beaver," which in cipher stands for "1700," and the shares of stock were purchased accordingly. In the subsequent deals made in the stocks the Express company lost $318 by the error.

Acting Secretary Hamlin has instructed collectors of customs, in order that the department might be fully advised concerning the admission of Chinese persons into the United States, to prepare and forward to the department a statement showing the number of Chinese persons admitted by them from January 1 to June 30, 1893, and the reasons therefor; the number to whom admission was refused, and the reasons, and the number permitted to land for transit to another port for exit from the United States. Collectors are directed to make a weekly report of Chinese persons seeking admission into the United States, giving names, description, occupation and places of destination in the United States; those admitted, and the evidence upon which such action is based and also the names, description and occupation of those to whom admission was refused, and the reasons for such refusals; also the names, occupation and description of such persons as were permitted to land for transit through the United States.

In Oakland an extraordinary event occurred last Thursday. The Mayor of the city, having determined, by investigation and by advice of attorneys, that the Southern Pacific Company was obstructing the free use of Broadway by a fence and Wharfinger's office on the west side of the foot of Brush street, maintained for years by the company for purposes incidental to the business of the ferry boats of the company, and located at the wharf at that place, led a force of men, and directed the removal of the fence and the house. The wharfinger's office was mounted on wheels and drawn by hence to the Corporation Yard, the wharfinger, who refused to leave his post, having a ride through the streets. Every stick within the lines of the street was removed and then a large part of the police force was left on guard at the wharf with instructions to permit no new obstructions to be erected. The proceeding was similar to the action of the Mayor of Long Island City, who, at the head of the force of the Street Department, tore up the rails of an intruding corporation. During the evening the Southern Pacific Company ran loaded cars upon tracks within the lines of the street. An immense crowd had gathered and men hauled the cars from the street and tore up the rails. No violence to persons was attempted.

"Be sure you get Ayer's" is an important caution to all in search of a thoroughly reliable blood purifier, Ayers' Sarsaparilla being the one on which there can be no manner of doubt. It has stood the test of nearly half a century, and has long been considered the standard.

THURSDAY.....JULY 13, 1893

THE Board of Supervisors, true to their penny wise and pound foolish policy, have refused to make a further appropriation for the continuance of the Orange county exhibit at the Chicago fair, and the possibilities are that it will have to be discontinued. This is particularly unfortunate, as the Fair is coming to be at its best and will henceforth be at the height of its excellence, but the result is not likely to be by the enforced withdrawal of our display, which has all along attracted so large a share of attention among the exhibits of the southern counties of the State, can have but very little effect with our parsimonious Board of Supervisors. Only a small appropriation is needed, but this the Supervisors, we understand, cannot see their way clear to entertain. But the exhibit will have to be maintained, even if it be necessary to do so at private subscription. Orange county has at present a much better opportunity for displaying her products than was possible at the time of the gathering of the exhibit. The early summer fruits, melons, berries and vegetables are now coming into the market in profusion, and these it seems to us should be very extensively advertised at Chicago. There is no section of California where such a wealth of early fruit and vegetable product obtains as at this time here in Orange county. The disappearing orange and the incoming peach and apricot side by side, coupled with the profusion of berries that now crowd the market, with a background of the early vegetables that have made this section famous—green corn, asparagus, string beans, cauliflower, squash—would combine to make a most interesting and attractive display. Let the exhibit be by all means continued, and let us make a display on the lines indicated, which cannot but have the effect of directing the attention hither of the thousands of visitors to the Fair who can now have but a faint conception of the extent of the fruit and vegetable wealth which this county possesses.

The Santa Barbara Supervisors have just appropriated an additional $1,000 to maintain their exhibit at Chicago, and we submit that it would be an excellent plan for our board to follow suit.

It is refreshing for the taxpayers of the county to know that in future they will not be called upon to pay the costs of a suit such as that brought by one Dunning against three parties, last week, out of pure wanton maliciousness. This case was brought to the attention of the District Attorney, and he will in future enforce the law providing that in all actions of this kind the complaining witness must be required to put up a bond for the bill of costs, in case of acquittal. Dunning's case was brought to recover 4 bits, which amounts, however, had been offered him in payment for two meals at his restaurant. He refused to accept of it, preferring to "make it warm" for the parties. Complaint was accordingly made against them, the county was put to an expense of something like forty dollars, all out of pure cussedness, and the defendants were at once acquitted. Dunning's spite against them was satisfied, however, in the fact that the parties, two men and a woman, languished in jail a day and night at Santa Ana, being all this time kept at the expense of the taxpayers. The case was a disgrace to the county, and if hereafter similar actions are brought in the courts the complaining witness will have to put up for costs or go away with his spite unsatisfied.

THE following communication, which reaches us through the mails, is sufficiently interesting to speak for itself:

SANTA ANA, July 6, 1893.

EDITOR ANAHEIM GAZETTE—Dear Sir: At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Anaheim Co-operative Beet Sugar Company, on Saturday, July 1, 1893, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, viz.:

Resolved, That the Board of Directors of the Anaheim Co-operative Beet Sugar Company, recognizing the earnest and valued support which this enterprise has received from the ANAHEIM GAZETTE and its publishers and proprietors, and in appreciation of the services so rendered, it is therefore ordered that the ANAHEIM GAZETTE be designated as the official paper for this company, in which all notices required by law to be published in this county shall be published.

And the Secretary is hereby instructed to furnish the said ANAHEIM GAZETTE with a copy of this resolution.

I. G. MARKS, Secretary.

We make our politest obeisance to the honorable gentlemen of the Board of Directors, and assure them one and all that we shall be ever ready and willing to accept any favors in the line of advertising that they may have the pleasure to send down our way.

And we shall sing the praises of the co-operative refinery and their Board of Directors. We might mention incidentally that we have always held them to be men of discriminating judgment, and in this case it seems to us they are particulary so. See?

THE Mid-winter Fair, which opens in San Francisco in December next, is now engrossing the attention of the people of the State. A site of fifty-four acres in Golden Gate Park has been dedicated to the use of the Fair, and the negotiations for a site are thus definitely settled. The location is most attractive and convenient, and is ample for all the purposes of the exposition. It is surrounded by one of the most beautiful parks in existence, and a motor line takes one to the picturesque Cliff House, a few miles away. At least one thousand exhibits from the Fair at Chicago will be sent to the exhibition, and it is estimated that visitors will come to the Fair from all over the state and country to the extent of hundreds of thousands of people. We suggest a meeting of the Editorial Association at the Fair in January.

THE Pension Bureau has notified a great many pensioners throughout the country, who are drawing pensions under the Act of June 27, 1890, known as the Dependent Pension Act, that the payment of their pensions will be suspended for sixty days, during which time they are required to show cause why they should continue to draw pensions. This action is pursuant to a recent ruling of Secretary Smith, to the effect that a pensioner, under the Act of June 27, 1890, drawing a pension for total disability, must be shown to be physically incapable of manual labor. It is estimated at the Pension Office, although the work has recently begun, that something over 1,000 surpassions have already been made.

THE Bank of Anaheim will probably be open for business next week, the illness of Mr. James preventing the possibility of an earlier resumption of business. All the depositors are signing the contract permitting the bank to resume on a pro rata payment, and the indications are that the bank will be ready for business the early part of next week.

All of the recently closed Los Angeles banks have resumed or are preparing to resume. The University and Southern California National resumed on Monday, when their deposits largely exceeded the withdrawals. The First National is preparing to reopen next Monday, when it will start in business with a larger paid-up capital than any bank in Southern California. The opening of the University Bank was something of a surprise, though it was in condition to open several days ago. The First National Bank is still closed, and is only waiting for orders from Controller Eckels to follow the example of the Southern California. Only two banks now remain closed of the six that closed two weeks ago. The City Bank is in the hands of a receiver and will not reopen. The First National Bank felt the rush the worst, having nearly a million dollars withdrawn, but the bank has many wealthy stockholders and friends, and will open on Monday.

The First National at Santa Ana remains closed, but it is expected it will be open for business probably some time next week. The recent financial flurry has spent its force, and the business interests of the country are regaining their normal composure.

MR. GOSCH continues his dissertation on the silver question, which he handles with consummate dexterity. Next week he will deal with the probable effects of the repeal of the Sherman silver bill, and we look for a graphic description of the dire results to follow that catastrophe. Mr. Gosch's letters will be found to be of absorbing interest, and are already evoking considerable discussion.

CONGRESSMAN W. W. BOWERS was arrested at San Diego on Monday on a charge of criminal libel, preferred by G. Washington Monteith of San Rafael, formerly a resident of San Diego. The offense charged is the writing of several letters recently appearing in a Marin county journal reflecting upon the character of Monteith. The editor and publisher of a National City paper, which republished the letters from the Marin paper, were also arrested on the same charge.

AN amendment to the Constitution will be submitted to the electors at the next election, increasing the State Board of Equalization to one member from each Congressional district, the Controller to have, as at present, a seat in the body ex-officio. The Constitution originally provided for a board constituted in this way, but when the time arrived to enlarge it, in consequence of the increase in our representatives in Congress, some difficulties arose in the way of putting it into operation, and an amendment was carried limiting the State Equalizers to four, including the Controller. The proposed amendment, if carried, will give us a board of eight members in all, which will be likely to secure a better hearing for local interests.

Among those over from Santa Ana were Walter Tedford, Judge Freeman, J. W. Jackson, W. G. Young, A. C. Curtis, Theo. Kling and Crocker Bowers.

Hoots.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—I wish to enter my protest, as a beet raiser in the Anaheim district. Nothing that can be said to the contrary can convince me that the rows of beets have been planted too close together in the rows, and also that the rows are too close together. I know whereof I speak, and if our beet growers will plant their beets in rows at least three feet apart and fewer of them in the row, by one half, than they do hereabouts, I will guarantee better results, both as to quantity of beets and their quality as to saccharine matter. This I speak of, as I know, notwithstanding the instructions the beet raisers have received. I am going to try them this way next year and will guarantee that the old-fashioned way will be best (not best) two to one in all respects. Yours truly, FARMER.

Mr. Mansur Asks for Information.

EDITOR ANAHEIM GAZETTE: What is the matter with your postoffice that letters are not delivered to persons to whom they are addressed, instead of returning them to the writer? Three times in six months I have had letters returned to me, when I knew the party to whom they were addressed called for their mail at least once a week. If the people there can stand such work and make no complaint, it is time for those who have correspondents there to make a complaint for them. I am tired of having important letters returned when I know there is no good reason for it, and I would like to have you answer my questions through your paper, which comes to me every week (if this letter happens to be delivered), and oblige, C. L. MANSUR.

THE SILVER QUESTION.

BY MR. C. H. GOSCH.

EDITOR ANAHEIM GAZETTE—Dear Sir: In my last I made an attempt to throw some light on the silver question, pointing to the cause of its origin and the object aimed at by its originators, having no other but their own dastardly and egotistic ends in view, with no scruples of any kind as to whether in attaining their ends the progress and development of the whole world's population is thrown back a century; while fully three-fourths of it, namely, the "silver basis countries," will be forced into hopeless bankruptcy, as a natural and inevitable consequence of the destruction of the greater part of their money, and thereby all other property and values. I also called attention to the fact that the price of wheat has been fluctuating in close sympathy with that of silver, both reaching their lowest point ever known on the same day. The object I had in view in pointing out that fact, was to show that the farming class, the stronghold and mainstay, in every sense, of our great country, is the one that will, more than any other, be directly and vitally affected by the final solution of this most important of all questions.

Therefore, I take it to be to the interests of every single farmer to acquaint himself more fully with that great question, asserting his lawful rights upon the Legislature very soon to be enacted upon in Washington, which can be done by instructions given to the Senators and Representatives of our State, who, representing the Golden State, should, by inherent right, play a more prominent and influential part than any others from the whole Union. Our Representatives in both houses enjoy, in this great question, the most exceptional prerogative of saying to the balance of the nation's council, in substance, this: "I have the great honor of representing the great and glorious State of California, the Golden State and El Dorado of the West; the State that in a short number of years has produced some two thousand million dollars of gold, unparalleled by any other country since the world stands. This enormous golden wealth has flown, principally to Great Britain, in exchange for merchandise, consisting in a great part of tric-a trac and Yankee notions that were not exactly indispensable to our country's welfare. I put it down as an absolute and indisputable fact that only that enormous influx of California gold enabled England to establish mono-metallism, or the single gold standard, and to be the first to discard silver. It is, therefore, California that has furnished England the gold which that country—or rather her almighty gold barons—have turned into a weapon, with which she is fighting the balance of the world that believes in silver, but with which alone, in the absence of the necessary gold, the whole world can at present be provided with the indispensable circulating medium. Amongst all nations, it is England alone that proclaims that there is too much money in the world, and, so, to remedy that evil, she has declared war on silver for years past, and has up to the present time been most wonderfully successful, to the dismay and stupefaction of the balance of the world. However, I think the time has come when a peremptory 'halt' should be called to that triumphant march of the English golden calf, which march was possible only through the aiding and abetting of a number of our own degenerate sons residing in Wall street, who, with the same objects in view, have never questioned the absolute supremacy of England in all money or commercial matters, carrying out all her mandates with a slavish servility—more so than if those mandates had been decreed by God Almighty Himself. Knowing as we do that the persecution of silver is a gigantic conspiracy of specially England's goldocracy to reduce the world's supply of money for their own exclusive interests, thereby robbing and impoverishing every single existing nation of the earth by hundreds and even thousands of millions of actual wealth, which losses must necessarily be followed by such an unbarbarism, would be unable to replace by the tools of a hundred years, I now here-with, in the name of the noble State of California, which, by furnishing an abnormal amount of gold, has become the innocent cause and serving as a perfidious pretext for the actual monetary crisis, consider it my privilege and duty to enter a solemn protest against the dastardly machinations against silver, hatched in overprosperous England, and successfully implanted to Wall street, New York. And furthermore, I call the attention of this house to the seemingly forgotten fact that if our country has been politically independent from England for over 117 years, we find ourselves at this very day still in a state of commercial dependency that must be looked upon in the highest degree humiliating and abject, carrying out every single dictate of hers relating to mercantile and monetary matters with the same obedient humility and submission, as might be expected from any of the humblest little republics of South America. I therefore express it as my opinion that our country is old enough, by enough, rich and intelligent enough to take care of itself in future, by shaking off the degrading tutorship, and complete the work left undone since 1776."

This in my humble opinion is the substance of the tenor in which both the Senate and House of Representatives ought to be addressed at their opening to legislate about the calamitous silver problem, and it would be very becoming if any one of the California Representatives would take upon himself that patriotic task, which I have not the least doubt will find an unprecedented echo, not only all over the whole of the United States, but by the whole of South America and the balance of the nations that are suffering for the same reasons.

If the United States would now assert their full dignity and genuine independence of action, as the only possible answer to England's discourteous flank movement respecting her recent monetary legislation for India, they will be applauded by the whole civilized world, including the manufacturing and working classes even of England, who the same as outsiders have had to suffer under the disastrous effects of the machinations of the almighty gold plutocracy residing in her very midst. All the eloquent pleas of the powerful manufacturing interests of England against the Government's pernicious monetary policy have availed nothing, and will avail nothing, and I conclusively shows that the greatest of men are apt to commit great blunders. More anon.

To Again Enter Upon An Era of Prosperity.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—I read Mr. Gosch's article last week in the GAZETTE with considerable interest. It is to be hoped that we shall hear from him again. There is no doubt but the silver question is one of the most important factors in the present money crisis. Up to 1873, when silver was demonetized, and for nearly two years later, silver was on a parity with gold, but silver and all staple commodities began to apparently depreciate. Apparently, I say, but as the staple products—wheat, corn, wool, cotton, etc., remained on a parity with silver; but gold, which was made the standard of our circulating medium, began to appreciate; so, instead of saying that silver is at a discount and at the lowest price ever known, why not say that gold is at a premium or the highest known? Why not let the people know that nearly all the public and private debts were contracted upon a silver basis, and then by the chicanery of the creditor class silver was demonetized in Europe as well as in the United States, so that every comodity decreased; distress has become universal; 25,000 foreclosures of mortgages in Europe has reduced people once comfortable to want. The effects in this country have not been so swift, on account of the greater natural resources, but none the less certain. Silver must be restored to its old basis, or some other system adopted to give the metal relief, or the producers and debtors of this country will occupy the same positions as the slaves, peons and ryots of the gold standard countries of the old world. When silver was demonetized it was worth $1 31 an ounce; wheat was worth $1 25 a bushel; cotton 16 cents a pound. Other staples were in close sympathy then, as they are to-day. Silver is now about 73 cents an ounce, wheat 60 cents a bushel and cotton 7 cents a pound. The decline in corn, oats and other farm products is estimated at $400,000,000 and wheat, cotton, etc., at $560,000,000, making about $1,000,000,000 shrinkage that comes directly from the producers annually, besides the greater shrinkage in the value of their real estate. Is it any wonder that the people are panicky; that banks suspend; that debts cannot be met by industrious economical people? The circulating medium must be increased. Give us silver backed up by the Government; give us gold, but let the Government make them equal in paying capacity, at the old rate of 16 to 1, and not have the debt ridden people struggle for years to pay debts that were contracted under more wholesome financial laws; but whose debts have been increased by reason of the decrease of money or by it becoming more difficult to get, hence making it more difficult to pay debts than formerly. Congress has the power to give us relief. Let us see if they are under the influence of the gold trust. We shall not have long to wait. We hope for some patriot to rise equal to the emergency and by his influence wipe from the statute book those discriminating laws that have pillaged and robbed the people out of billions, and give us the needed relief, that we may again enter upon an era of prosperity.

William III, Germany's young ruler, will accept the invitation of the President of the United States to visit the World's Columbian Exposition. Such is the declaration of the diplomats in discussing the recall of the Imperial Commissioner, Adolph Wermuth, through whose energy and executive ability Germany's matchless exhibit at Jackson Park has been made possible. Mr. Wermuth sails for home on July 20th. His departure is ostensibly occasioned by the stress of business in connection with his office as Privy Counsellor, but among his associates it is asserted that the Commissioner has been called back to the Fatherland to escort Emperor William to Chicago. Commissioner Wermuth says that he hopes and confidently expects to return before the close of the Exposition, and that fact strengthens the current rumor. In leaving the scene of his most recent and arduous labors Mr. Wermuth has much praise to bestow upon the White City upon the lake shore, in whose upbuilding and adornment he had been such an important factor. He forgets himself and his own work entirely and looks upon the Exposition with the eye of a disinterested critic. While his national pride cannot help being aroused by the superb display his country has made, he puts this in the background, and expresses unbounded admiration for his country's competitors, and especially for Americans.

Dispatches from Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, say an assault has been made upon the town from land and sea by the revolutionary forces. When the news of the Admiral's arrival on board the steamship Jupiter spread in the town, the citizens were terror-stricken and feared an immediate attack. Many abandoned their homes and sought refuge in the country. Admiral Wandelokok postponed the bombardment until the arrival of the insurgent land forces, the preconcerted plan being to begin an assault from land and sea at the same time. Meanwhile, the rebel Admiral's force was increased by the crew and officers of the gunboat Camocia. The President's towboat, while trying to enter the harbor, was fired upon by the gunboat Camocia. Gen. Saravia's battalion began massing back of the town on Tuesday morning, and that night a bombardment opened. The result of the fight is not known, because the government officers in Rio Grande do Sul seized the telegraph offices and refused to allow messages to be sent out.

Roman society is full of the reported betrothal of Don Scipione Borghese, son of Prince Paolo, and Miss Vanderbilt. This, it is hoped, will give the illustrious Roman family a chance of regilding its scutcheon. Archbishop Satolli is said to have helped to arrange the match. Neither William K. nor Cornelius Vanderbilt has a daughter old enough to be engaged or even dreams of marriage. Hence it is said that the engagement reported must be that of Miss Vanderbilt outside of the principal Vanderbilt family of America.

Steady Progress

Has characterized Hood's Sarsaparilla ever since it was placed before the public. When ever introduced, its sales have grown from year to year, until now it is the most popular and most successful medicine offered. Any druggist will confirm this statement. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine of merit. It does actually accomplish all that is claimed for it, and when given a fair trial, is reasonably certain to be of benefit.

Positive Statements.

"Since Hood's Sarsaparilla has been in my hands for sale I have had frequent and unsolicited testimonials in its favor. Although carrying this preparation for less than one year, my sales have been greater than of any similar preparation, and the testimonials in its favor are at once positive and personally noticeable." A. WRIGHT, Healdsburg, Cal.

Sells On Its Merits.

"My boys say, 'Papa, why don't you buy more of Hood's Sarsaparilla at a time; we are always short.' It sells on its own merits." F. BEAL, Portland, Oregon; the oldest druggist in Oregon.

LATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

City Trustees Meet in Regular Session.

Enough Money in Bank to Pay Off Interest on the Bonds, but Small Creditors Will Have to Wait—Odd Fellows' Installation—Notes from the Landing—Board of Supervisors—Loan and Building Association—Correspondence—Personal Notes.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular session on Tuesday evening. Present, Trustees Witte, Pellegrin and Rust.

The Marshal reported the collection of $338 20 for water and licenses. Several delinquents were granted further time to pay up. The Marshal was cautioned, however, to use all diligence to collect the same at his earliest opportunity.

The report of the City Clerk was received and filed.

The Treasurer's report was received, showing a balance in the treasury on July 10th of $1,389 79.

The Finance Committee reported that there is enough money in bank to pay off the interest on the bonds, which will have to be paid next month. There will only be about $100 remaining in bank to the city's credit after the payment of the interest, and there are bills against the city amounting to $600 or $700 which ought to be paid.

The Ordinance Committee reported that they will have all the ordinances re-written by the next meeting, when they will be submitted to the board for approval.

Trustee Rust stated that he had written again to Well Borer Platt in regard to the cutting of the pipe in the new city well, but had received no answer. The matter was left to Trustees Rust and Witte, who were instructed to have the pipe cut at once.

The Marshal was instructed to have a leak fixed in the water main near Wommer & Halpin's barn on Clementina street.

Engineer Schneider asked for permission to stop street sprinkling next Saturday at noon so that he may be enabled to clean out the new boiler. It will take about twelve hours to do the work. He will also need some new hose, which was ordered purchased. The new pump will be raised, as it is now too low to be used advantageously. The street sprinkler will be consequently taken off next Saturday afternoon.

The application of Mrs. Mitchell for a rebate on her hotel license was denied.

A number of demands were presented, but only a few were audited and ordered paid, owing to the stringency in the money market. Adjourned.

At the regular meeting of last week the Marshal was instructed to collect the legal water rate from the Del Campo Hotel, and cancel the hotel license, provided no boarders are taken.

The City Water Works were ordered insured in the sum of $2,000.

Mr. Kuebler complained about a culvert placed by Mr. Remick on Broadway, near the Santa Fe depot. He claims the culvert is a nuisance and asked to have it abated. It was ordered that the matter be investigated by the Committee on Public Improvements, and if found constructed contrary to the ordinance in such cases made and provided, Mr. Remick will be arrested for the offense.

H. C. Gade complained about some large haystacks in the city limits, near his residence, and owned by Mr. Titus, which were in dangerous proximity to neighboring buildings. The Marshal was instructed to call the gentleman's attention to the ordinance relating to the abolishment of haystacks in the city and have them removed.

GEO. V. HORR, Secretary.

The Secretary was authorized to purchase the necessary books and remodel the system of book-keeping at present in vogue, as suggested by the Auditing Committee's report.

A communication from the State Board of Commissioners, notifying the Association that there was due, in accordance with an Act passed by the last Legislature, the sum of $3 95 for a license for the ensuing year. It was ordered that a warrant be drawn and the money sent them.

The Legislature passed an Act relating to loan and building associations at its last session, from which the following is an extract:

"To meet the expenses provided by this Act, every building and loan association, or corporation or association doing business on the building and loan plan, shall pay, in advance, to the Commissioners, its pro rata amount of expenses, to be determined by an assessment levied upon the shares of each of such associations in force on the 31st day of December, 1892, gro rata, according to the par value of such shares, and annually thereafter, and the said Commissioners shall levy in a like manner, and collect in advance, a like assessment on the shares of all such associations in force as per report, herein provided for, to be made to said Commissioners, of the condition at the close of business on August 31st preceding."

The amount due from the Anaheim Association is $3.95, there being 702 shares of par value of $100 per share.

It was ordered that inasmuch as the Bank of Anaheim, in which the members of the Association deposited, had temporarily closed before the time for the payment of dues for the current month, that all fines for delinquents be remitted for the month.

It was ordered that as soon as the final papers had been approved in reference to the loan of $800 to W. F. Middleham, that the Secretary be authorized to draw a warrant in his favor for the same.

The Committee on Revision of the By-Laws not having received a copy of the Act passed by the Legislature relating to building and loan associations, had no report to make. Adjourned.

Down by the Sea.

Anaheim Landing is commencing again to assume its old-time summer appearance that has made it famous in past years. Already several tents dot the sandhills that line the shore and several families occupy the dwellings that are scattered about the camp. The families of H. Cahen, H. D. Polhemus, J. Reid and Mr. Pike are late arrivals, and more are expected to arrive daily. The Landing has always been a favorite watering place for residents from the valley, and this year promises to be no exception to the rule.

Mons. Cahen, Miss Olga Zons and Capt. Halpin were down on Sunday for the day.

Mrs. Lyle and Miss Pike of the West End visited the beach Sunday and had a delightful time.

The Misses Stevens, two charming society belles of the West End, are sojourning at the beach, and will remain during the heated term.

Mrs. Bauer and family spent Sunday at the seaside.

Mrs. Bolz conducts a first-class restaurant at the beach, where the inner man can be satisfied.

Doc Reid was out Sunday pacing the sands meditatively and wondering why the crowd was so small.

Sport Wetzel went down Sunday to see what was "on tap."

Ernest Bentz and Oscar Warling rode down on their bicycles, and were open for engagements, with no takers.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors met Monday in special session for the purpose of opening bids for a courthouse site. Several proposals had been received, but before any of them were opened W. C. Reed appeared before the board and asked that the opening of the proposals be postponed a couple of weeks, as he desired to submit a proposition for a site, but had not had time to make the necessary arrangements for all the property to be included in his proposition. After discussion it was agreed to postpone the opening of the bids until Monday, July 24, at 10 o'clock A. M.

A petition asking for the passage of an ordinance changing the closed season for killing male deer from October 1 to September 1 was presented, and action on the same deferred until July 24th.

The board then adjourned until this morning, to sit as a Board of Equalization.

In the sittings of the board as a Board of Equalization last week the following business was transacted: The Assessor was instructed to raise the assessments of Frank Snow, R. B. Luther and James Sturges.

M. Mendelson, Oliver Hill, J. W. J. Culton, Isaac Lyons, Pio James and S. S. Foderman were notified to appear before the board to day and show cause why their assessments should not be increased.

The assessment of H. J. Clarke was changed from Santa Ana to Garden Grove and that of A. Ackerman from Santa Ana to Anaheim, and the personal property assessment of F. Conrad from West Anaheim to Anaheim.

Centralia.

Last Sunday night a young man and a young lady of Anaheim (two of the 400) called on friends in Centralia. On leaving for home their robe and buggy cushion were missing. No way in which some friend played a joke. The robe and cushion were found on the young man's gate post on his return home.

Mr. Chas. Wommer and Miss Lillian Robison enjoyed a ride through here last Sunday evening.

Horse-back riding is the rage now—next to "cycling."

Messrs. Purdy, Schumacher and Donce of Fullerton passed through Centralia en route to Long Beach on Sunday.

Miss Laura Roller is making a two weeks' visit in Los Angeles.

Messrs. Webster and Fogarty of Los Angeles spent Sunday at the Rollo ranch.

J. C. Roller has returned home after a ten days' business trip in Los Angeles.

The Chicago Fair.

A letter just received from Chicago says that one of the most interesting objects in the Orange county exhibit is a jar of fruit, in appearance something like the quince, from Mr. Littlefield's orchard in this city. When Mr. Joplin was about collecting the exhibit, some months ago, he called on Mr. Littlefield, and took a fancy to the fruit, and was given the product of the only tree of its kind in the orchard for the exhibit. The letter says the fruit is wonderfully well preserved, and excites the curiosity of every one who visits the exhibit. Mr. Littlefield came by the tree in rather a singular manner. He had ordered some flowering plants from a San Francisco house, among them some magnolias, and in the consignment was the tree whose fruit has suddenly leaped into distinction at the Fair. The consignment of trees came originally from China, and this particular one came possibly into it by mistake. At any rate, it is believed to be the only one of its kind in the country, and is regarded as being a great curiosity. Recently it was recognized by some Chinese as being a tree very highly prised in the Flowery Kingdom. The fruit is preserved, and makes a very toothsome dish, being a cross between the preserved citron and the quince.

A Pair of Silk Garters.

A young gentleman in Los Angeles named Jim Denforth, who has lodgings at the residence of H. P. Herron in that city, came near decorating a cold marble slab in the Morgue one evening last week, and all on account of a pair of woman's silk garters. Herron was out for the evening, and his wife had occasion to go into Denforth's room, when the man showed her a pair of silken garters, which he said he proposed presenting her with. The woman accepted them, when Denforth said the latest fad was to "wish them on." Mrs. Herron consented, and while the gay young man was engaged in placing them in their proper position, a shot came whistling through the window, in dangerous proximity to Denforth's head. Herron had become suspicious of his wife, and returned to find the guilty pair together. He rushed into the house and fired three more shots at the rapidly disappearing Lothario, but his aim was bad, and the leaden messengers of death went wild. Denforth skipped the town, and Herron will ask for a divorce on statutory grounds. Herron lived in Anaheim several years ago and was employed as a druggist by Dr. Hunt during the milk-shake season.

Kleinigkeiten.

—Mrs. Hack's boarding house is being given a new coat of paint.

—Billy Berdrow has shot the umbrella, all on account of the poetry.

—Frank Ey has brought suit to recover a mortgage held against D. J. Kraemer.

—The weather is getting warm, and people are making preparations for going to the seaside.

—Stern & Goodman's warehouse at Fullerton will be opened next Saturday evening by a grand free dance.

—Work on the new Methodist Church at Fullerton has been temporarily suspended until affairs become straightened out.

—George Hayford, the whilom Santa Ana attorney, was fined $50 in Los Angeles last week for beating his wife.

—Gus Schade has closed up his second-hand establishment because times are hard and he doesn't want to sell on credit.

—A letter has been received from Carl Wrede, saying that he would leave New York last Saturday for a trip to Germany.

—Conrad's ice machine is out of gear, and he is compelled to get ice from Los Angeles to supply his customers and the local demand.

—The Centralia creamery is making about 250 pounds of butter daily. In two or three weeks they expect to be turning out 300 pounds daily.

—Do you want a windmill? Address S. J. Smith, Orange, Cal., and get the greatly reduced prices on the Aermotor before buying elsewhere.

—A break in the water main on Center street below Clementina Saturday afternoon caused the shutting off of water for a couple of hours until the break was repaired.

—Editor Peabody of the Santa Ana Blade has been away in the northern part of the State. We think we note an improvement, ahem! in our esteemed contemporary.

—The Angels are away behind in the second series. Having won the first, we don't understand this. We shall have to give them another warming up, we guess.

—The fumigating season is at hand, and Mr. Perry has his scale-destroying paraphernalia ready to begin the work of bug-killing, and operations will probably begin in a few days.

—The City Trustees of Santa Ana have closed off the gas lamps on the public streets and thoroughfares and have shut down on four of the city's electric lights, all on account of the hard times.

—A band of gypsies have been encamped in the vacant lot north of the schoolhouse during the week, telling fortunes, swapping horses, etc., but grass was short, and on Monday they folded their tents and silently stole away.

—A lady's parasol, lost between the S. P. depot and town Sunday evening week, and advertised in these columns last Thursday, has not been returned. The finder will please return it to this office and receive reward.

—J. W. Patterson was in from the Rosserie Monday evening. He informs us the hens have quit laying, all on account of the stringency of the money market, but he thinks the hard times will soon be over.

—The last of the oranges at Brookshurst are being shipped East. The first of the week there remained four carloads of oranges and four of lemons, which will be sent forward as fast as the force of packers can handle them.

—The water sales of the Anaheim Union Water Co. for the month of May amounted to $1,886 78, and for the month of June, $1,788 68. The water in the ditches has been low of late, but there is no extraordinary demand as yet.

—Stern & Goodman are the first to move the new crop of barley. This week they ship 9,000 sacks of the new crop, 5,000 sacks from Santa Ana, 2,000 sacks from Fullerton and 2,000 from Santa Fe Springs. The first consignment of 5,000 sacks goes to Arizona, and the other 4,000 to San Francisco.

—The Fullerton High School trustees have engaged the services of Prof. W. R. Carpenter, formerly a teacher in the Santa Ana schools, as principal. M. R. Pendleton has been engaged as principal of the public school, and Miss Alice Goodrich of Orange will be assistant.

—The half-yearly apportionment of State school money has been made by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Orange county, with 4,157 census children, gets $8,812 84. Los Angeles gets $54,221 12, having 25,576 census children, it being the second county in the State in point of census children.

—The body of Juan Lorda, who was drowned with Jean Jauregeay at the Landing Sunday week, was found washed upon the sands at Long Beach Friday morning. An inquest was held on the remains, and the body was interred in the Alamitos cemetery.

—Rev. E. Thompson, D. D., representing the American Sabbath Union, will preach at the M. E. Church on next Sunday, the 16th inst., at 3 P. M. All the church members of the city are requested to attend. The Doctor is an eloquent speaker, and by the use of his charts presents the Sabbath interests in a most forcible manner.

—Lowis' horse Fashion, while hitched near his residence on Center street last Saturday afternoon, took fright at a passing team, broke its bridle and started to run away. A badly demolished buggy was the result, but the horse was uninjured. No one was in the buggy at the time and fortunately no casualty resulted.

—The case of the People vs. Alexander Grant, an action for forcible entry and detainer, was postponed in Judge Landell's court last Tuesday until this morning, when it will come up for trial. The action is the outgrowth of a quarrel among some of the people at the Puente oil wells.

—Assessor Ross has completed the assessment roll of Orange county, and reports the total assessment of all property for 1893 as being $9,441,360. Last year it amounted to $9,458,528, showing a loss this year of over $17,000. The railroads' assessment has not been received from the State Board of Equalization. There is also a loss of $70,720 on personal property. The loss is directly attributable to the lack of field deputies, which the Supervisors were so parsimonious as to withhold from the Assessor.

—"What is that, mother?" "An editor my son. Some folks seem to think he has gold by the ton; but listen, my children, and don't give it away. He works like a horse for a dollar a day. He sits at his desk till he wears out his eyes, and pants, then he tries writing copy to keep off the flies, and in winter 'tis chills, and his creditors cheerfully send in their bills. But alas! he is mortal, this editor man, and soon goes the way of all built on his plan. He turns up his toes and is quickly forgot, and he goes where delinquent subscribers are not."

—The case of the Anaheim and Santa Ana water companies vs. the Jurupa Land and Water Company made its first appearance in the Superior Court on Tuesday, when the defendants were granted twenty days additional time to answer.

—Fish in New river are scarce. Last year there were millions of them, and fishing parties from here returned laden with piscatorial delicacies. The low water in the river is the cause for their disappearance this year. The salt water from the sea backed up during the low water in the river, and the fresh water fish had to succumb. It is rather a curious fact, but there are no fish in New river this year, and fishing parties to that region are a thing of the past.

—The Bradshaw (Nebraska) Express of June 24th contains the following notice of the hostelry owned there by our well-known fellow-citizen Erwin Barr: "The Barr House has been greatly improved in appearance. The kitchen has been cleaned, parlor and bedrooms repapered and the whole house renovated. Mr. Barr, though a non-resident, has displayed a worthy ambition to have his house second to none on the line."

—The Chamber of Commerce of Santa Ana has appointed the following delegates to the Fruit Growers' State Convention, which meets in San Francisco July 13th: Anaheim, Tim Carroll; Fairview, George Clarke; Garden Grove, Dr. Chaffee; Placentia and Fullerton, William M. McFadden; Santa Ana, George W. Ford and I. N. Rafferty; Tustin, H. K. Snow; Villa Park, Joel B. Parker; Westminster, Samson Edwards.

—Attention is directed to the advertisement of Prof. Franz Nobelung, who is prepared to give lessons on the piano and organ. The Professor's well-known talents in this line need no further introduction to the people of this vicinity. He is capable and painstaking, and his pupils in music show great advancement from the start.

—The ladies of the Methodist Church will serve ice cream and cake in W. R. Harker's old stand, on Center street, Saturday afternoon and evening, the proceeds to go to refitting the church. The ladies have determined to replace the chairs in the church with pews, and will thus renovate the church, including the putting down of carpets. They expect and should be given liberal support by the citizens of the city.

—The attachment on Tomas Juanto's band of sheep at Alamitos has been lifted by his going into insolvency. The attachment on Felipe Chabaya at Yorba has been satisfied by payment. O. V. Knowlton put in twenty days as keeper for the former band, which numbered eight or nine hundred, and Jack Landell put in thirteen days watching the latter band of 1,500 or more.

—We have received a souvenir photograph of that well-known impressario, L. R. Stockwell of Stockwell's Theater, San Francisco. The gentleman is one of the leading actors of the bay city, and ranks well up with the notable comedians of the country. It's been many a day since we've had the pleasure of seeing Stockwell, but when we take our Honolulu and Mid-winter Fair trip next December we'll have to step in and see him.

—The stockholders in the Cemetery Association, at their meeting at Kroeger's Hall last Saturday, elected the following new Board of Trustees: Theo. Rimpau, W. M. McFadden, E. Hart, H. Kroeger and M. Schelling. A meeting of the board will be held next Saturday afternoon, when the officers of the Board will be elected. It is the intention of the new Board to enlarge the cemetery by purchasing five acres of ground, and to set out trees, lay out streets and otherwise beautify the same.

—The matter of repairing weak places along the banks of the Santa Ana river has claimed considerable attention by the Supervisors of late. The board is agreed that something must be done. Each Supervisor is to work in his district and see what aid can be secured from property to-be benefited by doing the work, the Supervisors to appropriate money enough to pay for the balance. The work contemplated will not be extensive or expensive, and the places which are dangerous are to be repaired. The straightening of the channel is deemed to be impracticable, and hence that work will not be carried out.

—A man named Johnson, in the employ of Ernest Browning, had the misfortune to sustain the fracture of his left arm above the elbow last Saturday afternoon. He was hauling hay, when the load became shifted and he slid off upon the horses' backs. They started to run away and the wheels of the wagon passed over Johnson's arm, breaking it as stated. The runaway team was stopped before doing further damage. Dr. Ballard was called, and set the broken member, and at last accounts the injured man was getting along as well as could be expected.

—Next week beet digging will begin. A couple of the newly-made beet diggers are expected to arrive from Chino in time to begin the digging. These are capable of digging from two to three acres per day, and will make it lively for the haulers. The polarization of the beets raised here will be watched with interest by the citizens, as upon the result of their saccharine qualities depends the success of the beet industry in this section. It is confidently expected that the beets will average well in sugar.

—One of the Russian colony of three-cent potato diggers dropped a tiny paper bag of pearl barley on the sidewalk on Center street one afternoon last week, and immediately set about to illustrate his previous condition of servitude by getting down on his knees and scraping it up with his hands and putting it in the bag again. He gathered up everything in sight, sand and all, to the very last grain, pinching up the last grains with his fingers. He was in the act of raking over the sand on the edge of the sidewalk to see if he could not find some of the barley in the dirt, when a kindly-hearted merchant came along and told him to throw the stuff away, saying that he would give him some more free of charge. This offer the Russian accepted, and arose and went on his way rejoicing.

—At the election for officers of Company G, held at the Armory last Thursday evening, First Lieutenant Halpin was elected Captain, Second Lieutenant Landell was elected First Lieutenant and Private B. R. Grogan, Second Lieutenant. These three energetic young gentlemen ought to be able to put the company in the front rank of the companies forming the Seventh Regiment, and they will doubtless proceed at once to do so. There is no reason why the company should not be again what it was in former times, the best drilled company in the regiment. The organization has been suffered to fall into a condition of ingenuous desuetude, but is rapidly regaining its second wind and is now on the upward grade. Three new members were mustered in Thursday evening, and more good material is in sight and will be pressed into service. Every young man in town should be a member of the company.

Solly Smith of Los Angeles achieved a great victory over Griffin in the pugilistic encounter in Chicago the other day. Solly has a cousin residing in Anaheim, who enjoys the advantage of Prof. Smith, and who trained Kennedy for his go some time ago against the Riverside colored man. Recently the Professor has had charge of a band of sheep shearers, but is at present, we believe, without an engagement.

Col. Robison returned from his camping trip on Monday. He caught a severe cold when in Trabuca canyon, and had to be taken eight miles to Capistrano, where he took the train north. Morgan and Walker went back to the canyon, and will put a couple of weeks at the springs. Feed is good, the canyon being a dense field of wild oats, and game is plentiful. The boys are having a great time, and when they return we shall expect to hear the latest in the snake story line.

While at work upon the new Methodist Church at Fullerton last Friday afternoon, Gib Landell had the bad luck to fall from a scaffolding some fifteen feet to the floor, sustaining injuries which for a time rendered him unconscious. He was taken to the residence of A. D. Porter and medical aid sent for. He recovered consciousness after the lapse of some little time, and after the physician arrived it was found that no bones were broken and that nothing more serious had resulted than a severe shaking up and a very bad bruising. Gib had a very narrow escape, but is now out and at work again.

IN THE WHITE WOODS.

When winds are wild o'er steep and plain
And Nature's beauty seems to wane,
The winter woods are still as fair
As when the summer lingered there.
All is white and chaste and hushed
When Nature, tired and summer flushed,
Lays her down where snows are deep
And sinks into her beauty sleep.

And Nature's lovers long for rest
Sleeping through her winter's rest.
—Francis S. Palmer in Harper's Weekly.

THAT CLOCK.

It was a rarely pretty thing, formed of bronze, with a couple of Cupids in attitudes of charming abandon, the neatest of carved flowers and various other decorations, all calculated to attract attention and please the eye.

It stood under a glass globe in a conspicuous position in the show window of a well known Broadway jeweler, and as pretty Mrs. Mayblossom, the wife of a month, passing by with her young husband, caught sight of it, she abruptly paused and gushingly exclaimed:

"Oh, George, what a lovely clock!"

"Yes, Annie, dear," replied he, "it is really beautiful."

"How I wish," said she wistfully, "that you could afford to buy it. It would make such a splendid ornament for the marble mantelpiece."

"I would be only too happy to do so, but you know, Annie, I'm a young merchant, and whatever resources I have must be strictly devoted to business."

She gave a little sigh of regret, but urged the purchase no further, and the newly married couple shortly afterward arriving at Mr. Mayblossom's place of business he, after a tender parting from his wife, entered his store, while she continued on her way to buy some few necessary things for their recently established household.

In spite of his economic resolutions the young husband felt strongly inclined to gratify his pretty wife's wish, and when therefore he found lying on his desk a letter containing a sum of money and was informed by the writer that it was the repayment of a loan which Mr. Mayblossom had made to a friend in his bachelor days and long looked upon as hopeless he determined to invest the money, which was as good as found, to the purchase of that clock.

It did not take him long to return to the jeweler's to strike a bargain, the money he had so opportunely received being a little more than the price asked, and the clock and globe were carefully done up in a parcel.

"To what address shall I send it?" asked the polite storekeeper.

"There is my card," replied Mr. Mayblossom, taking the bit of pasteboard out of his cardcase. "I wish you would send it at once, as my wife is out, and I desire to surprise her by having her see the clock on her return home."

"I am sorry that it is impossible for me to do so. My delivery clerk is absent and will not return for an hour or so."

"No matter, then. Give me the parcel."

He took the clock, and having reached the sidewalk hailed a commissionaire, who happened to pass by.

"You will take this clock to this address," he said, handing him the parcel and a card from the cardcase which he still held in his hand, "and here's the money for your service. Now be off and see that you execute your errand promptly and don't you dare to demand any pay from the lady."

"All right, sir," said the commissionaire. I'll do the job in a jiffy."

Mr. Mayblossom returned to his store in a very blissful state of mind, while the man glanced at the card for the direction.

"Hello, what's this?" exclaimed he in some surprise, reading the address, "Miss Priscilla Dusenbury, dressmaker, 340 — street.' "Well, now, who'd think that such a fine gentleman would be sending clocks to dressmakers? No matter; that's none of my business. I've got my pay in advance, and I'll take her the clock."

Now, Miss Priscilla was a charming, red cheeked, blue eyed damsel of 18 or 19 years of age, possessed of a fair patronage, good health and a beau who gloried in the name of Augustus Tomkins, and was indeed a clerk in the identical jewelry store where the clock had been bought.

She was sitting stitching a robe, humming a song, and with her thoughts centered on her devoted Augustus, speculating whether he would make his customary noonday visit, when a knock sounded on the door, and opening it she saw the commissionaire with his parcel.

"A present for you, miss," said he, placing the clock on the table before the astonished girl. "And such a fine gentleman too. He's paid me already. I congratulate you, miss. Good morning."

And before she could even say "Thank you" he was gone.

In great surprise Priscilla untied the parcel, and an exclamation of joy escaped her lips when she beheld its contents.

"The very clock I was speaking to Augustus about. The dear, delightful fellow has bought it from his employer and sent it to me. Oh, don't I wish he'd come today, so that I could tell him how much obliged I am to him for his splendid gift."

She arranged the clock on her tiny mantelpiece and had hardly finished doing so when there was a second knock on the door, and in answer to the "Come in" in stalked Mrs. Mayblossom.

She was one of Priscilla's customers and had come to see about a dress upon which the latter was just then engaged.

Her first glance naturally took in the clock.

"Oh, Mrs. Mayblossom," exclaimed Priscilla, noting the direction of her eyes, "isn't it lovely? And it was just sent to me as a present by a gentleman who loves me ever so much."

"Oh, he loves you, does he?" said the young wife in tones so cold and metallic that Priscilla looked at her in surprise.

"Of course he does," said she, "and I'm devoted to him. Why do you ask?"

"Oh, no matter," replied Mrs. Mayblossom, too proud to reveal to her dressmaker the doubts and suspicions which had entered her mind from the moment she beheld the clock; "but you will please return my dress in its unfinished state. I shall require your services no longer."

With which words she flounced out of the little room, leaving Priscilla more than ever astonished and mystified.

"What can have been the matter with her?" thought the dressmaker. "Can she know my Augustus, and could he have been paying her any addresses? I must ask him when he comes."

It was already near noon, and but a short time elapsed after Mrs. Mayblossom's departure before the fascinating Augustus put in an appearance.

He, too, caught sight of the clock, and his manner, which had been ardent and loving at his entrance, suddenly changed to one of fierce rage and wild jealousy.

"False, fickle woman!" cried he in a melodramatic air. "Is it thus you betray the fond faith which my too trusting heart has reposed in you?"

"Augustus," exclaimed she, terrified at his excited manner and tragic tones, "what do you mean?"

"That clock," cried he, pointing to the innocent cause of all these complications.

"Why—why," stammered she. "Did you not send me that?"

"I send you a hundred dollar clock!" exclaimed he in tones of bitter scorn. "I, with a salary of $15 a week! You cannot deceive me. You know that Mr. Mayblossom bought that clock at our store this morning. You know that he sent it to you, and you received it. You took this costly present from a married man. Oh, Priscilla, I thought more of you, but now all is over with us. My love is dead, and I live but for revenge."

He clapped his hat over his eyes and rushed out of the room, leaving Priscilla nearly frantic with fear and grief.

Meanwhile Mr. Mayblossom had quietly spent the morning attending to his business, and now, during the noonday recess, was slowly wending his way home, full of blissful anticipations of a loving welcome from his wife and utterly unconscious of the storm that was gathering on his domestic horizon.

He reached home and was greatly astonished to learn from the cook that, though dinner was ready, there was no wife in the house to share it with him. She had come home in a terrible rage, had gone directly to her room, remained there a few minutes and then left the house.

What could it mean? He went to his wife's room. It was empty. There was no clock on the mantelpiece. Ah, what was that? A letter addressed to him and in his wife's handwriting. He hastily opened it and read:

Forever farewell. By the time you read this letter I shall have returned to my parents. Your deceit is discovered. I have learned all. First, I went to the dressmaker's and saw the clock there, and then I went to the jeweler's and made sure that you bought it and sent it to her. Do not seek me, for I am forever lost to you. Your heartbroken ANNIE.

Sensible, good natured George burst into a fit of merry laughter as he read this epistle.

"Here's a fine mix up," muttered he, "and all because my wife happened to place her dressmaker's card among mine when she was arranging my cardcase yesterday. Well, I suppose I'll have to go after her and explain."

He went into the library below preparatory to leaving the house and discovered lying on the table another letter addressed to him.

"Hello!" exclaimed he as he opened and glanced at the epistle. "More complications, and all on account of that clock. Let me see:

"MR. GEORGE MAYBLOSSOM—I need only state that Miss Priscilla Dusenbury is, or rather was, my affianced wife to prove my right to call you to account for your infamous conduct of today. No man, and a married man at that, shall give presents to one I love, or rather have loved, and deny me the satisfaction due to a gentleman. By designating a gentleman to confer with Mr. Clark, a friend of mine, in regard to the necessary arrangements, you will confer a favor on yours, etc.,

AUGUSTUS TOMKINS.

"Hoity, toity," cried Mr. Mayblossom, fairly convulsed with laughter. "A duel, as I live! Hang that clock anyway! I wonder what will turn up next?"

"I will," exclaimed a voice melodramatically.

He looked up from the challenge he was reading and beheld Priscilla standing before him, wrathful as a Nemesis and holding the unlucky clock in a threatening attitude.

"Mr. Mayblossom," said she, "I have come here to tell you that I want none of your presents. If I had known that you sent me that clock, I wouldn't have received it. It has already robbed me of my lover, and you can take your infamous gift back again."

With that she hurled the poor clock to the floor, and the glass globe was shattered into a thousand fragments, the pretty Cupids lost their arms and heads, the carved flowers were broken, and nothing remained of the beautiful but unlucky timepiece save a mass of ruins.

"You giddy, headstrong girl!" exclaimed he angrily. "Now you've done the damage without listening to a word of explanation."

"I want no explanations from you, sir," retorted she haughtily, leaving the room.

As she descended the staircase she encountered Mrs. Mayblossom with her mother, a sensible, practical woman, who had induced her daughter to return and seek an explanation of the apparently suspicious circumstances from Mr. Mayblossom.

A fistic encounter between the wife and the dressmaker seemed imminent when the front door opened and Augustus entered.

The young man had tracked his sweetheart to the very house and had come to drag her away by force if necessary.

Fortunately at this moment Mr. Mayblossom descended from the room above, and after some difficulty managed to give the necessary explanation. The result of all was a repentant wife, two contrite and crestfallen lovers, and—a ruined clock.—London Tit-Bits.

- KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE. -

STOCKTON, Cal., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing that Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it, as I had a horse with a bad spavin. Now it is 12 months since I removed the spavin with it. I used your remedy on one side the spavin was and unsparingly the other, and I have not used it since. I took a corkscrew and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very sore, with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a ringbone from her ears for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any ringbone for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.
