A PROMISING INDUSTRY

SHALL THE UNITED STATES PRODUCE ITS OWN SUGAR? FACTS CONCERNING THE SUGAR-BEET INDUSTRY, AND WHAT IT MEANS TO THE COUNTRY—SUGAR-MAKING.

New York Tribune.

To all careful observers that are well informed on sugar matters it is becoming more and more evident that the sugar-beet industry is destined to soon figure largely in the agricultural industries of the United States. American enterprise has always stood ready to avail itself of every chance to obtain wealth. Our agricultural interests are looking for a new crop, every production of the farm being now under speculative influences. Abundant or short crops are known to the speculators long before they are harvested, and they reap the benefit properly belonging to the producer. The raisers of sugar-cane or the manufacturers of it into sugar can never obtain great wealth, although they make a fair living. The beet-sugar industry, which now bids fair to become national is conducted on an entirely different basis. The territory adapted to the production of beets is not only far superior to that in Europe, but in our country is practically unlimited.

The capitalists, or beet-sugar manufacturers, build the factories, and the farmers produce the raw material. The question of producing sugar from beets is no longer problematical, but is a certainty, there being six large factories which are annually successfully operated in the United States. These are situated: Three in California, one in Utah and two in Nebraska, the largest being that of the Chino Valley Beet-Sugar Company at Chino, Cal., which is now operating some 300 tons of beets a day, and turning out 250,000 pounds of sugar every twenty-four hours. The campaign there will end about November 1, with an output of about 20,000,000 pounds of sugar, against 8,000,000 pounds in 1892 and 2,000,000 in 1891. This same rate of increased production is told of the other factories, with a very enthusiastic feeling among the farmers, who have now had several years' experience in beet culture, and from the fact that very many new agricultural impliments especially adapted to the cultivation of this crop have lately been perfected, the work is annually becoming less laborious and done in a more scientific and economic manner.

When it is understood that it will take 1,000 factories of the size of any of these to supply our own consumption, remembering that each factory similar to those located in California will consume something like 300 tons of beets, eight to ten carloads of coal, six carloads of limestone and two carloads of coke every twenty-four hours, it can readily be seen what such an industry will mean to our country, and that its influence must permeate every branch of trade. It would furnish labor to hundreds of thousands of people, dividing up our farms in smaller acreages, giving us a higher grade of farming, a crop attended with much less risk, enabling the poor man who can rent or own ten acres of good land to successfully compete with his more fortunate or wealthier neighbor, and relieving him from a crop that is speculative, for he contracts with the factory for his beets before the seed is planted.

The silver States and California, with the excellent facilities for irrigation developed there, give a degree of control over the sugar-beet production that is simply ideal; and that cannot be obtained elsewhere in the agricultural world, which places these States, as well as many of the Western, Southern and Southwestern States in the front rank as economic sugar producers. In North Carolina, where the frost line will not permit of a successful cotton crop, this is especially true, and the same may be said of certain parts of many other Southern States. This year experiments are being made in some twenty-four States, and the beets are being sent for analysis to the factory located at Norfolk, Neb.

What is there now to prevent the quick, possibly sudden, development of the industry in America? The low prices of cereals necessitate the consideration of other crops. The country is abundantly supplied with skilled labor, and the people need some such new departure. Especially is this the case in the South and Southwest. During the last thirty days Professor Alexander Herzfeld, Dr. Waldemar Frentzel of Berlin, Geo. Scheller of Breslau, and T. Hecker of Magdeburg, have visited this country in the interest of the German government to examine American agriculture, and especially the beet sugar industry. They have visited all the countries, spent some time at each point in talking with the farmers and looking at the crops. Professor Herzfeld has said that if the United States shall continue to protect the sugar industry so that the development that now seems assured by protection may not be deterred, the American market will be lost to Germany and France. He especially mentioned the desirability of locating plants where climatic conditions will enable the working of the factories for a longer period than they are able to do in Germany, and expressed his astonishment at our beet fields and the interest that was manifested by the farmers.

The German Baron von Tresckow, connected with the German Department of Agriculture, and William Lander, of Erfurth, Germany, are now visiting Louisiana looking into the cane industry in behalf of their government, and all this clearly demonstrates that the time is now coming when the United States can produce its own sugar, open up a new field of industry and retain at home some $150,000,000 that is now annually being sent abroad for sugar.

The seed is planted in California from the middle of February to the first of June, and in Nebraska from the last of April to the last of May. The culture and growth of beets are similar to that of cotton, the seed being drilled in rows about eighteen inches apart, and then the plants are thinned out every seven inches. The thinning is done largely by children, all the rest of the culture of the crop being done by horsepower. As the crop comes to maturity, samples are taken to the factory for analysis, and as soon as it is ascertained that a sufficient quantity of beets is ripe to keep the factory going, it is started up and operated continuously until the last beet has passed through.

The process of making sugar from the beets is interesting. First, the beets are brought in by the farmers and deposited in large sheds with V-shaped bottoms, which are connected with the factory by means of channels, through which a moderate flow of water carries the beets into the first washer. By means of a spiral the beets are tumbled about, washed and carried on until they drop into an elevator, which carries them to the top of the building, where they pass through an automatic weigher, and are sliced in such a manner as to open up the pores of the beets as far as possible. The sugar beet is very similar to the honey-comb, and in its little cells is secreted the sweet matter, so that in slicing it is desirable to open up as many of these little cells as possible. Hence the necessity of having the knives sharp, so that the cells may not be ruptured, but clean cut. As these slices or cossettes come out from under the cutter they are put into what is known as a diffusion battery, for the extraction of the sugar by soaking in water. In brief, warm water is turned on the contents of a large iron jar holding several tons of sliced beets. This water circulates through the mass of cossettes and passes through the bottom by means of a pipe, which enters into the top of jar number two, the water being forced along by pressure. From one battery to another this liquor passes along until it has gone through fourteen cells, when it is shown that sufficient water has passed through number one; the water is now turned off and number two becomes number one, and number one is emptied of its cossettes and refilled, becoming number fourteen, and so the circle is continued all day and all night, procuring in this way all the sugar in the cossettes in liquid form, and which now has the color of vinegar. This liquid is now taken to a measuring tank near by, from which it goes into a mixer, where it is mixed with lime and then put into a huge tank for carbonation, in which the lime and all other foreign matter it contains is rendered insoluble by means of carbonic acid gas forced through the bottom of the carbonation tank. Then the mixture comes through the filter pressroom, where, by means of an elaborate series of frames, it is filtered and becomes transparent. This process of mixing, carbonating and filtering is then repeated for the second time. This finished, the sugar is treated with sulphur fumes, and then passes into the quadruple effect, which is four large boilers, in which the water contained in it is evaporated, when there remains what is called think juice. This syrup is boiled in the vacuum pan and now becomes massecuite, or raw sugar, and is then run into centrifugals and made into white sugar. This sugar is now damp, like wet snow, and by means of a granulator is dried, and through different sieves is separated into the finer or coarser grained sugar, ready for the market.

It is estimated that a factory that can work 400 to 500 tons of beets a day gives sustenance to about 6,000 souls, and the cost of building, equipping and running such a plant is about $1,000,000. The factories commence their season in California in July, and in Nebraska in September, and when the farmers surrounding the locality where they have a sugar factory can produce sufficient beets so that they can be put in silos, they can run practically eight months in the year, though at present their run is continued to about 80 or 100 days.

DIVINING DEPTHS OF LOVE.

It is singular to see how many meaningless ceremonies are now practiced by young women—ceremonies which were formerly used in earnest as love charms or incantations. Most of these have an amatory origin, and in connection with not a few certain flowers are used, presumably as a means of foretelling the future. In several parts of England when a young lady expects a visit from her lover she will pluck a marigold, take it in her hand when he arrives and carry it until the end of his visit, when from its fresh or faded condition she will judge of the strength of his affections.

A German girl, after having been called on by her lover, will put a star flower or dandelion in water and leave it there until his next visit, drawing an omen from its condition, while a Spanish maiden will take a moss rosebud, wear it on her breast, and if it expands to become a perfect flower the omen is considered exceedingly fortunate. A superstition of the same kind is shown by the East Indian maiden who places a poppy in her hair. In England the primrose is used for the same purpose, and in country districts of New England the spikes of the rib wort plantain are taken, wrapped in dock leaves, placed beneath a stone, and if the next day signs of new buds appear the omen is considered happy.

In France young ladies desirous of ascertaining the extent of a lover's affection take the common daisy and pull off its leaves one by one, with the questions, "Does he love me? Does he love me little? Does he love me much? Does he love me with all his soul?" Marguerite in "Faust" uses the common blue bottle with similar questions. In England the ash leaf is sometimes employed to ascertain the faithfulness of an absent lover, and the Irish maiden learns of her future by putting a shamrock in her shoe, after which she walks abroad, and the first man she meets or one of his name will be her husband.

THE WAGES OF SIN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—In the Virginia Hotel, located in the heart of the fashionable residence district of the North Side, a dramatic double suicide occurred this morning. Behind a door, bolted and double locked, were found the bodies of Victor Cyrier, a drug clerk, and Mrs. Caron, the wife of a druggist for whom Cyrier had formerly worked. The woman had died by poison, while Cyrier, after taking poison, had shot himself three times and lay stretched across the foot of the bed on which the woman lay.

The couple registered under false names as man and wife at the hotel last Tuesday, and were apparently very happy. When their door was forced open this morning both were found dead, and they had evidently been dead several hours. Letters were found on the center table, written by both parties to relatives, bidding a last farewell to friends and announcing their purpose to die together. Mrs. Caron wrote bidding farewell to her husband and her little child, her letter closing, "So young, what will she do without her mother?"

Cyrier wrote as follows: "She died at half-past 5 o'clock this morning. I can't write. I can't open my eyes."

It was evident from the letters that both had taken poison at the same time with the agreement that the one surviving longest should die by pistol.

Cyrier had boarded with the Carons while working in the drugstore, and the intimacy between the clerk and the wife was noticed last summer, but not by Caron until three weeks ago. At that time he found them in a compromising position, and Mrs. Caron and Cyrier disappeared at once. Neither was well supplied with money, and, when their funds became exhausted by high rates at a fashionable hotel, they agreed to suicide as a solution of all their troubles.

HAD BEEN GIVEN UP FOR DEAD.

Annie Baum gave thanks at Tacoma last Thanksgiving Day for her husband, George Baum, mine owner and prospector, who had been given up for dead. He returned safe and sound from the mountains, and the meeting with Mrs. Baum was both peculiar and impressive. Baum had been absent eight months prospecting. For several months his wife lost all track of him. Although no letters ever came she went regularly to the postoffice at a certain hour and inquired. Others agreed that George Baum was dead, but while Mrs. Baum had doubted she never missed going to the postoffice and hoping for his return. Of late it had become a painful duty for the general delivery clerk to tell her there were no letters.

In the meantime she had changed her residence so that when Baum did return he could not find her. He went to the postoffice, seemingly led by some invisible force, and inquired for his wife's address. In accordance with an inflexible rule this information was refused him, but he was told to inquire of Postmaster Case for a special dispensation. It was about the hour for Mrs. Baum to appear for the letter that never came, and while Mr. Case agreed to give Baum the desired information he procrastinated, his eyes glistened and he rubbed his hands in anticipation of the climax. Mrs. Baum would come sure as fate. Everybody about the office who knew that Baum had returned was on the alert and shared in the excitement.

Mrs. Baum entered promptly at the usual hour, and in taking her place in the line before the general delivery window caught sight of George. She did not shriek or faint, but she trembled. From where Postmaster Case stood smiling excitedly and chafing his hands very nervously it seemed that Mrs. Baum would collapse. After the first shriek she moved forward rapidly as if walking on thin ice and slipped her arm under her husband's. Her head fell limply against his shoulder. She did not speak for the dispatch says her heart was too full for utterance.

EFFECTS OF THE NEW TARIFF.

The sugar-makers of the country, or very many of them, are not satisfied with the proposition to gradually abolish the sugar bounty, as intended in the Wilson bill, and will continue the contest in the Senate and House with the hope of securing a modification of the clause, if they cannot get it stricken out entirely. They assert that under promise of the continuation of the bounty granted by the McKinley law, which they construe as a time contract, they had every reason to suppose the 2 cents a pound bounty would be continued fifteen years from the time the bounty was provided, and they say hey will push their fight to the utmost limit with the hope of securing better terms than the Wilson bill gives.

They assert that they have made large outlays on the strength of this promised bounty and have made contracts for many years ahead, controlled by the same consideration. They say with the business once well started the United States can produce all the sugar the people of this country will consume and thus keep at home over $100,000,000 annually now sent abroad for sugar. The sorghum and beet-sugar men of the West are interested in the question as well as the cane-sugar men of Louisiana.

The silver and lead miners will find in the new tariff bill something to think over beside the clause placing silver on the free list, in the proposition to make bond warehouses of all smelters. It is claimed this will afford an opportunity for fraud if smelters should desire to engage in it, and that it would still further increase the importation of foreign-mined ores. The metal schedule provides for a duty of 15 per cent ad valorem on lead ore and no duty on ore containing both silver and lead, while the silver is of greater value than the lead.

It will be left to the Treasury Department to fix the regulations under which ores shall be admitted, and if the department officials should be friendly to the smelters, it is argued it would be a very easy matter to admit almost all lead ores under the silver-lead classification. There is a prospect the bonded warehouse proposition will be strongely antagonized.

The Nonantum Worsted Company, which has been in operation at Boston for fourteen years, has notified its 800 hands that the reduction of the tariff, as by the proposed new law, will necessitate a reduction of wages or the stoppage of the mills.

ALL HANDS SHORTEN SAIL.

Last Wednesday night there was an excitement on board the ship America outside the harbor of San Francisco. Captain Harding and his crew thought that the vessel was doomed and that she would be piled up on an unknown rock which rose mysteriously out of the sea.

It was very thick outside the heads and the America was drifting about waiting for an opportunity to come into port. Farallon light could not be seen, nor did the Point Lobos light shine through the mist.

Suddenly the lookout shouted "land ahead!" and what appeared to be an island loomed up on the port bow.

The ship was veered off a little, but the island kept getting nearer and nearer. About it the waves dashed and the frightened watch above decks imagined they could almost hear the roar of breakers.

The rattle of blocks and order for all hands to shorten sails brought the watch below on deck, some in their night clothes, and when they saw the great black rock under the America's very bow a general rush was made for the boats.

In the meanwhile sail had been shortened and every effort made to sheer off, but without avail, as the rock seemed determined to punch a hole in the America's side in spite of her crew.

But quiet was quickly restored on the ship when it was found that the supposed land was nothing but a dead whale bloated to enormous size and as odoriferous as some of the city sewers.

The wind changed, and with it came whiffs from the carcass that caused the America's men to crowd on all canvas and make their escape.

The pilot boat Lady Mine sighted the same defunct leviathan during the preceding day and gave chase, thinking it was a derelict.

Luckily, the Lady Mine is a swift craft, and on discovering her mistake she came about like a racer for the America's cup and stood away on an off shore tack.

Thomas Roberts, the wife spanker, who resides at Newark, N. J., has been convicted of assault. It was a case curious in the annals of wife-beating. His wife Louise is a dainty little creature, with a soft, white skin and a lot of hair that curls up at the end. She is only 17 years old. The couple were married in July, and before the middle of August was reached the first spanking occurred. He kept the excitement up and Louise grew very much upset, for it made her tingle with anger, as well as pain. Her mother lives in Roseville. Roberts says her chatterings caused the trouble with his wife. The spankings in the Roberts family continued in a fitful and a more or less painful fashion, until the climax was reached one day last week. By this time Roberts had grown very clever and could spank his wife harder and with less fatigue than any man in Jersey. On that day he was in spanking humor, so he went to work and, having thrown his wife across his knee, he spanked her with vigor. This made Mrs. Roberts tired and she had him arrested. Mrs. Roberts swore to the spankings and in a tearful voice said: "He used to spank me like a child." The jury declared Roberts guilty of assault.

PRINCESS COLONNA'S DIVORCE.

The suit for divorce by Princess Colonna (formerly Miss Eva Mackay of California) has brought out the details of a distressing mesalliance with the Italian prince. When Eva Julia Bryant Mackay, for she assumed the name of her stepfather, John W. Mackay, met this man of lofty lineage he was a lieutenant in the Italian navy, with an annual compensation from the Italian Government of Umberto of $1,500, according to American money. He had the fine eyes of the Italian, and a clear though not a strong face. His appearance at that time was a recommendation, for he had the grand air. The romance of his name was attractive, though the great estates of the Colonna seem to have wandered into the hands of more thrifty and less distinguished owners.

The young Prince was on shore leave from the navy. When in Paris he appeared among the elect of society, to which his title gave him entrance. Mrs. Mackay and her daughter were prominent in Parisian society, where Mrs. Mackay's fetes were considered worthy of any royal court in Europe.

The marriage occurred in 1885, with the circumstances familiar to all who read, for the wedding and the fete that followed were described in every news publication in Europe and America.

Domestic discord followed soon after the marriage, though even the old friends of the Princess in this State did not learn that her married life was not happy. The young wife had nothing to say of the distress that came to her from marriage with one who treated her with cruelty that was not to be endured or with indifference that astounded one to whom the courtesy of American men to women was familiar. She was an affectionate, considerate wife, and by her nothing was said of her husband except in commendation.

The Prince was different. In Paris he was described as a roysterer and a gambler, full of impudence and vices. In Rome and at Naples he was the subject of after-dinner conversation. He was described as a gambler for high stakes at the races and with cards. Fantastic country tours that he made in a magnificently equipped and decorated coach drawn by four horses and attended by outriders made him known to peasants as well as nobles. In this coach he would take some companions—and he was not particular of the class with which he associated—and a small orchestra of string instruments, and drive from place to place. The pranks of the party in the coach amazed the people along the roadways and in the towns through which it passed or at which it stopped.

The Princess is a singularly charming and lovely women, and people in San Francisco intimately acquainted with the Mackay family say the trouble will weigh heavily on the millionaire, as he idolized Eva and his three grandchildren. He has made very large allowances to the Princess without complaint. Those who have known the Princess since she was a toddling child in Downieville, Sierra county, where she was born, say they never heard from Mr. Mackay or Mrs. Mackay even an intimation of the domestic troubles of the young wife, who is now seeking a separation and the custody of the children.

One who recently returned from Europe confirms the statement that the prodigal Prince has been expelled from clubs in Paris because he failed to redeem the notes he gave at the gambling tables. He said that in Naples the neglect of the Princess by the Prince was a subject of comment, and the Prince was condemned by his own countrymen for his treatment of his American wife. Much of his time was spent in the gambling places. His expenditure of money was lavish.

Last fall a report spread in Naples that the Princess was about to seek a legal separation, and the financial credit of the Prince suffered in consequence. Undoubtedly he is heavily in debt and payment may be difficult, if not impossible, now that the legal allowance made to his wife is without his control. His dissipations during recent years have left their mark on his face, and he is no longer in looks the handsome young nobleman who knelt at the altar with Eva Bryant Mackay and received the blessing from M. di Rendon, the Papal Nuncio.

The public debt statement shows a net increase of the public debt, less cash in the treasury, during the month of November of $7,716,498. The interest-bearing debt increased $180. The debt on which interest has ceased since maturity decreased $35,190, and the debt bearing no interest decreased $343,166. The decrease in the cash in the treasury is $7,094,694. The interest bearing debt is $585,039,220, and the debt bearing no interest $374,589,716. The total debt is $961,568,316. The certificates and treasury notes offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury amount to $599,229,402, an increase of $11,619,441. The net gold reserve is $82,959,049, and the net cash balance $12,240,567. The total available balance is $95,196,616, a decrease of $7,094,674. Total cash in the treasury is $734,320,435. The receipts of the government during the month of November were $23,979,401, expenditures $31,302,026.

Some months ago Miss Mary Clancy, local agent for a sewing machine company down in Tennessee, was indicted by the officers of the company at St. Louis for embezzlement and forgery. The first charge fell to the ground because the corporation had no existence under the laws of Tennessee. The forgery charge had been on trial several days. Miss Clancy admitted that she forged names to contracts for the purchase of machines, but pleaded not guilty to the general charge. The trial lasted three days and resulted in acquittal. The courtroom was thronged by ladies and the jury was embraced by them after bringing in the verdict. It was a clear case of guilt and a clear case of acquittal on account of the sex of the defendant.

Admiral Stanton, who was relieved of command of the South American squadron for saluting the flag of the rebel Admiral Mello, has arrived in New York. He declines to speak of the incident which led to his recall. Concerning the bombardment of Rio Janeiro, he says he has been through the city several times and beyond a piece of cornice chipped off here and there very little damage was done the city.

LATE NEWS OF INTEREST.

The first regular session of the Fifty-third Congress assembled at Washington on Monday.

Monday morning an enterprising rancher sold a San Jose grocer thirty-seven dozen eggs. Twenty-seven dozen were rotten.

Pauline Cushman, who won notoriety during the rebellion as a female scout, died from an overdose of morphine in San Francisco Saturday afternoon. Whether the potion was taken with suicidal intent or not is not known.

J. J. Van Alen will not go to Italy as United States Ambassador. He respectfully declines to accept the appointment, and, in spite of the President's request that he reconsider this determination, he firmly declines.

Admiral Mello has left Rio with several of his swiftest war vessels, in order to intercept the new ships which are on their way to reinforce President Peixotto. Intense excitement prevails at Rio de Janeiro, and it is believed that a great naval battle will shortly be fought off the Brazilian coast.

The Wholesale Grocers' Association of California has passed resolutions denouncing the proposed reductions in the tariff on raisins, figs and prunes, and asking all producers to agitate the subject. The production of prunes in California this year is estimated at 60,000,000 pounds, raisins 65,000,000 pounds, figs 1,500,000 pounds.

The breaking of a ten cent bolt in the cruiser Olympia last week cost the Union Iron Works just ten thousand dollars—$8,400 in the special quality of coal used and the remainder in the extra outlays the company was put to in paying the salaries and expenses of the officials of the United States who were to have superintended the trial and who will be obliged to go through their labors again after the vessel has recoaled.

Oliver Severean, the eight-year-old son of Philip Severean, a wealthy capitalist of Gardena, was shot while hunting near Redondo last Wednesday. The father and son were out hunting in a slough, and Mr. Severean was raising his gun with the muzzle pointing toward the boy, when the hammer struck something, exploding the shell, and the contents went into young Severean's abdomen, making a gaping wound. He died three hours afterward. The father is nearly distracted.

The Mayor of the small German town of Mittenwalde has discovered in a case two bonds of the city of Berlin, drawn by the Elector Joachim of Hohenzollern, making up together 1,200 florins, dated 1681. It is said that the Mayor wishes to claim this debt and the interests thereon, which to-day would surpass the bagatelle of several millards of marks. If the debt were admitted Berlin would be financially destroyed and Mittenwalde the richest city in Germany.

The longest day in the year at Spitzbergen is three and one-half months. At Wardbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21st to July 22d, without intermission. At Tornea, Finland, June 21st is twenty-two hours long, and Christmas has less than three hours of daylight. At St. Petersburg the longest day is nineteen hours and the shortest is five hours. At London the longest day is sixteen and one-half hours, at Montreal it is sixteen hours, and at New York it is about fifteen hours.

Matilda Perkins, aged 17 years, is in the county jail at Birmingham, Ala., a raving maniac. She was a religious enthusiast, and last Wednesday attended the Sam Jones revival meeting. Sam's preaching enthused her so much that she sprang up and began shouting. While standing on a bench in the presence of 7,000 shouting, she fell, and striking her head, injured it. Her injuries were not regarded as serious, but after she began acting queerly and soon went raving crazy. She is perfectly well physically. It required three men to tie her and carry her to the jail. She talks about Sam Jones all the time. She is in irons.

The action for breach of promise, involving heavy damages and the question of the possession of a diamond bracelet, brought against his highness, the Sultan of Johore, by Miss Jennie Migbell of Brighton, came up in the London courts recently. Application was made on behalf of the Sultan for a stay of all proceedings on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction over him. The judges decided to allow the appeal of the Sultan on the ground that he was an independent sovereign and did not come under the jurisdiction of the court.

Southern California has become tired of feeding the armies of tramps that have been attracted here by the mild climate, and henceforth a more vigorous policy will be adopted by the railroads and citizens. The position taken by the officers of the Southern California railroad to the domineering insolence of the deadbeat fraternity now touring through this country as "unemployed" men has already had the effect of breaking up the big gangs that have heretofore had everything their own way. The tramps are numerous, but instead of capturing a train by force of numbers, they are now traveling in smaller squads and stealing their rides as individuals.

The growing dislike of men for the pleasures of the dance brings sorrow to many a feminine heart. An up-to-date young woman thus voices their general plaint: "The dancing men are now so appallingly young that a waltz with a grown-up person with a mustache is quite an event, and the occasional gleam of a bald head a positive relief to the eye. If you only saw the beings that we have to dance with; yes, and be thankful for, too, you'd pity us. Creatures who half a dozen years ago would have been flouted on all sides we have to make much of and appear to be enjoying ourselves with, too, for of course anything is better than sitting out. The fact that men as a rule won't dance after twenty-one, and that girls won't leave off before fifty-one, leads to some curious sights."

In London last Tuesday the expected sensational suit of Seaton vs. the estate of the late Abingdon Baird, the well-known English sporting man, was called for hearing. Seaton was a well-known frequenter of the races. He brought suit against the estate to recover the sum of $75,000, which is said to be the unpaid balance of a consideration of $175,000 which Baird promised to pay the plaintiff for quietly recovering bank-notes to the amount of $250,000, alleged to have been stolen from Baird by a lady with whom the squire had relations. As soon as the jury was sworn in a conference between the counsel was had and, later, Sir Henry James announced that an arrangement had been made satisfactory to both parties. The proceedings then closed. Among the people noticed in the vicinity during the conference between the counsel was Mrs. Langtry. From the jubilation with which she received the news of the settlement it may be presumed the terms were not unsatisfactory to her.

Max Gulter has commenced suit against Richard V. Doggett in San Francisco for a dissolution of the co-partnership existing between them. All the firm owns is a woman, and Gulter asks that she be sold and the proceeds be divided between them. At present Doggett has her locked in a box at his house, and refuses to give her up. She has not expressed her wishes in the matter, if she has any. The complaint alleges that Gulter and Doggett each own a half interest in the woman, but Doggett wants the whole of her, and there is where the trouble commences. They purchased her for sideshow purposes, but the business did not thrive so Doggett, who was in possession, took the woman to his home, and locked her in a box. Gulter saw sideshows springing up all along Market street, and thought it would be a good time to go into the business again. He went to Doggett's house to get possession of her, but found his partner armed with a revolver. He ordered Gutler to travel unless he wanted to carry away some lead. Gulter traveled, and now commences his suit to get half the value of the woman. She is petrified and in good condition.

THURSDAY.....................DECEMBER 7, 1893

THE fight against the irrigation district goes on apace, and to-morrow in the Superior Court will be heard the arguments of Judges Pope and Brousseau for and against the district. The petition asking the Directors to call an election to take the sense of the people on disorganization, it was thought would be presented at the meeting of Directors on Tuesday, but being yet short of a majority of the names of the taxpayers in the district, it was withheld until probably the next meeting of the board, which will be a week from next Tuesday.

The proceedings in the Superior Court to-morrow will be watched with great interest on the part of the people of the town and vicinity, and probably a large number of the taxpayers will be present to hear the arguments.

The question as to the insufficiency of Judge Pope's papers in the injunction proceedings have caused no little speculation and are referred to elsewhere this morning. There is talk that in the event of the Judge's position being found to be inadequate, other legal talent will be engaged to assist him, and probably the new lawyer will be W. J. Hunsacker, the Santa Fe's attorney, which corporation has taken an active stand against the district. The company's taxes in the district amount to quiet a large figure, while in the water company they pay no taxes at all for the development of the water facilities.

In another column will be found the correspondence on the subject received since our last issue.

DON DAVID YORBA was in town on Monday and during the afternoon dropped in to see us. We never see Dave but we are reminded of the spelling match between the Anaheim and Yorba schools some score or so of years ago. If we mistake not, our friend McFadden was then in the heyday of his pedagogic fame, and taught the young idea how to shoot at Yorba. Mac was always of a bantering disposition, and one fine day swooped down upon the school in town with a challenge to a spelling bee. His proposition was to bring down four of the best scholars at Yorba and spell them against the whole school in town! Dave was one of his band of four spellers, Tom Scully of Rincon was another, we believe, and a third was a young fellow named Borden who afterwards turned preacher, and when last we heard of him, had been alloted a parsonage in the classic shades of Smith Mountain in San Diego county. We well remember the day when these mighty spellers from up the river lined up against us. All the advanced scholars, who had been taken out of school to do chores on the farm, were called in to help us out in the mighty fray, but after the first of the three matches of the day was over there was not a single one of us left to tell the tale of defeat, while the four spellers from Yorba remained standing like a brick wall, Don David at the head. The second trial was a little better. We stood up a little longer, but like McGinty, down we went before the jaw-breakers, every one of which the Yorba boys rattled off without effort. The third trial came up and we went to grass again—couldn't spell at all, and we left the schoolhouse that cold and foggy afternoon, our young lives blasted forever! It was a great victory for Mac and his boys, and is yet green in the memory of some of the surviving vanquished. Don David has left school for lo! these many years, and is rapidly acquiring fame and fortune among the hills of the pretty place that bears his name.

TIME passes and the people in this section realizing it to the fullest extent, are just at present making the best of it. The Anaheim co-operative sugar beet factory is an assured fact for the coming year, Tim Carroll is moving briskly with his scheme, with something like 4,000 acres subscribed, and now comes Fullerton formulating plans and opening correspondence with capitalists for the establishment of a raw sugar plant in its vicinity. Our neighbor produced at the first trial three years ago a very satisfactory product of sugar, and once the establishment of the new industry is an assured fact, will no surprise the world in quality as well as quantity of sugar beets that can be raised in this glorious country.

Now which of these three will win the prize and outrun the others in first establishing this much needed industry in our midst? But while at present the sugar beet absorbs our interest, let us not forget that Anaheim and vicinity produced the grapes which yielded the most grape sugar; and that the Anaheim sweet wines, port, angelica, sherry, etc., are to-day on the wine cards of Delmonico's world renowned establishment, quoted and commanding the highest figures. There is a fortune yet open for the young; the few old pioneers of this industry are retiring from active life, and it is for the younger ones not to let the work of the older disappear with them. The growing of grapes is to-day, as it has been in the past, one of the most profitable and best adapted to our climatic conditions, for our grapes were sweeter, preserved longer and in every way were more perfect than those of any other locality known. Anaheim and the golden belt wine district, extending from here to the foothills above Fullerton, are the pride of California.

One irrigation in May in Anaheim was all that was needed, while in the golden belt district irrigation was not used at all. Let us by all means revive the wine industry again. Our section can well be called priceless. It has practically demonstrated that it can produce the best grapes, the richest sugar beets, and now that our new and improved orange groves are coming into bearing we will equal and probably surpass Riverside in the quality of our oranges.

Fullerton and Placentia are the peer of any section for orange culture, and already shippers have fully admitted such to be the case. We stand away ahead of any section in this frostless orange belt, as the past two years fully verify.

The telegraphing of the President's message is a great feat which few people take into consideration as they skim the columns and note the points. Very few people conscientiously settle down to peruse the message in full, but from this ordeal there is no escape by the telegraphist and telegraph editor. Many people are hale and well who remember that all they read of the message long ago came tediously by post, and was condensed into a very small compass in the newspapers, which had space for little. But to-day 15,000 words, equivalent to eleven or twelve ordinary newspaper columns, come over the wires from Washington with the rapidity of beams of light from an arc light radiating in all directions. With the mechanical transmitter now employed for duplicate messages the telegraph instruments become printing machines, whirring the words along the wires at a rate faster than speech and automatically recording the words at the receiving end. Hundreds of cities and towns simultaneously receive the President's message, and it goes forth from the telegraph offices in type-written sheets to thousands of newspapers. More than that, portions of the message are telegraphed to Europe, India, China, Japan, South Africa, Australia, South America and the West Indies. As it were the message may be read at dawn, sunset, noon and midnight simultaneously, for it goes all over the globe. These are feats little pondered, but what would the world have said about them in 1830, when the telegraph was a toy?

GEN. SHANKLIN'S VIEWS

THE OLD MAN'S VIGOROUS IDEAS OF THE WATER SITUATION VIGOROUSLY EXPRESSED.

The following is a copy of a letter received by the Anti-District League from Gen. J. W. Shanklin of Oakland, on the water situation, and which speaks for itself:

OAKLAND, Dec. 1, 1893.

Messrs. J. B. Pierce, A. Henry, C. Spencer—Sirs: I have just received your postal of Nov. 18th, announcing yourselves as the committee of the "Anti-Irrigation League," and setting forth the fact of the expenditure of nearly $30,000 with nothing practical to show for the expenditure, and asking me to give you my power of attorney to aid in disorganizing the new district. My own judgment is opposed to your movement, notwithstanding the virtual loss of the $30,000.

I know your country well, and its people and their fickleness in all matters relating to the public welfare or advancement of the district or country naturally tributary to Anaheim. I have long realized the fact that selfishness dominates every effort made to bring your neighborhood into harmony with the progress of the people south of you, and I might add, all around you. When the election was held to determine whether or not the district should be organized, the vote in favor of it was almost unanimous. But you allowed men to be elected Trustees, such as Crowther and Ryan, who were from the first opposed to carrying out the object of forming the district, and put Ryan in as president of the board, with almost complete control, if he saw fit to use it, and a man of his ability and temperament seldom ever fails to exercise to its fullest extent whatever authority he possesses.

I attribute the loss of the $30,000 to the selection of men who, while opposed to the district, accepted office and took the oath required to further its organization, but turned traitors to their trust and virtually squandered the money, and now exhibit themselves in their true colors by proceeding in the courts in every manner possible to break up the district.

I may be mistaken in my opinion as to the advantages that would have arisen from carrying out the work contemplated by bringing all the irrigable land in your neighborhood under one complete system of water distribution, instead of the partial, unequal and unjust mode that now prevails under the by-laws of the Anaheim Union Water Company. Your organization, if it studies the matter at all, cannot help seeing that under the present system you can never have all the land susceptible of irrigation in your neighborhood cultivated as it should be, more especially when the Anaheim Union Water Company refuses to sell its stock to persons who need the water and the limitation of a share of stock to a particular acre, regardless of whether a man's land requires less or more than one share to the acre would give him. The company has out less than 7,000 shares, which by the Company's by-laws cannot be used for irrigating more than 7,000 acres; and if the whole stock were out only 12,000 acres could be irrigated. Now by our estimates of the irrigable land about 30,000 acres can be benefited within the proposed district which you are organized as a committee for the purpose of destroying, merely because your officers have squandered $30,000.

Query—Which is better for your neighborhood, to bring thirty thousand acres under successful cultivation, or confine the area to less than 7,000 acres for all time, merely because of the loss of $30,000 through the ignorance or incapacity, if no worse, of your officers? For my part, I prefer to lose what I have paid, put in reliable officers, and go ahead, determined to build up a country that can be made the home of thrice your present population, provided selfishness is not allowed to control. Yours,

J. W. SHANKLIN.

MR. YARNELL'S VIEWS.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—The following postal card has just reached me:

"ANAHEIM, Cal., Nov. 18, 1893.

"Dear Sir:—The resident assessment payers, whose names appear on the last assessment roll of the Anaheim Irrigation District, after contributing $30,000 to the support of a few office holders, lawyers, and bond printers, with nothing to show for these expenditures, are almost unanimous in their desire to disorganize the district and stop further taxation. To accomplish this it is necessary that a majority of the assessment payers sign a petition to the district board, requesting them to call an election to ascertain the wishes of the taxpayers in this matter. Please sign card and return.

"Hoping you will at once authorize us, on this reply postal card, to sign for you, we remain. Yours respectfully,

"J. B. PIERCE,
"ALEX. HENRY,
"C. SPENCER,
"Committee Anti-Irrigation League."

Also the following power of attorney, prepared for my signature, but which I have not signed:

"Please sign following power of attorney and return: I hereby authorize and empower Messrs. Pierce, Henry and Spencer, a Committee of the Anti-District League of Anaheim Irrigation District, to sign my name to a petition to the Board of Directors of said district asking them to call an election to ascertain the wishes of the people in regard to disorganizing the district."

If the parties in charge of the district under the Wright Act have shown themselves incompetent or dishonest, the proper procedure would be to bring them to justice, and put better men in their places. It is certainly not good policy to abandon an enterprise inaugurated for the good of the whole district because the managers have been dishonest or incompetent, as the card seems to imply.

I note with deep concern, that the water available for irrigation in Southern California is now controlled, or is rapidly being brought under control, by private corporations. The result must necessarily be, in the end, that the farmers will be at the mercy of these corporations.

I don't know what scheme is back of this effort to knock out the Wright Act and leave the waters of the Anaheim Irrigation District under private control, but certainly the people had better look well to their rights before they voluntarily abandon them.

I am impelled to write this by the fact that I have invested over $15,000 in real estate in the district, in the belief that the water for irrigation was to be controlled by the people. I would be glad to commence improving my land, if the question was settled, so that I would feel sure of not being at the mercy of some private individual or corporation for my water supply. I don't know who is to blame for the delay and the extravagance complained of in the card; but whoever it is has been retarding the settlement and growth of the whole section affected, and depreciating the value of the property, not only of the lands to be irrigated, but the property in the towns which depend on the products of those lands to give them their trade. Yours truly,

JESSE YARNELL.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 1, 1893.

FOR THE UNDER DOG.

MR. EDITOR: I presented in my article, "Look before you leap," my personal views on one of the most vital issues of this section, intending to leave it to each individual reader to solve them as he thought best.

Mr. Spencer in his article against the district tries to explain some of the questions. 1st. Does it avoid tedious litigation? He says it does—do away with the district and there is no more of it. I'm not so sure of it; it is only plain to me that we avoid that litigation which was called forth by the enemies of the district who objected to the control of the water system by the people and for the people and generally did so for personal reasons best known to themselves.

The Anaheim Union Water Co. was formed by the amalgamation of the Anaheim Water Co., the Cajon Water Co. and the Farmers' Ditch Co. for the purpose of stopping litigation and wrangle between these companies, and this was perfectly done, and is the best and only good thing the A. U. W. Co. has accomplished. Mr. Spencer admits that the A. U. W. Co. is not prosperous, but, on the contrary ruinous apparently, with which I fully coincide with him, only say not apparently but in fact is so.

Calling the district bad names comes with very bad grace. If the district did steal let Mr. Spencer take the proper course as becomes a citizen, and enter his charges before the proper tribunal, the Grand Jury. I can only say that the court fully approved the irrigation district's action, of course excepting the present tax levy. Will Mr. Spencer enter into a guarantee that the Board of Directors of the A. U. W. Co. will not or cannot levy an assessment of $10 to $13, sufficient to extinguish the indebtedness? He simply cannot do it.

About the bickerings between the north and south of the sandwash. Mr. Spencer was for two years a Director of the A. U. W. Co. and could not prevent it; in fact, what did he do to improve the condition of the A. U. W. Co.? It ran on as ruinous with him as a Director as it did before and after. Why did he not fund the indebtedness of the company? Talk is cheap; the simple fact is, the indebtedness of the A. U. W. Co. can never be changed from that of a floating one to a funded one, by reason that no capitalist can be found who is fool enough to do it. What has the company got to secure the bonds? About $6,000 worth of land and the ditches—and the water? No, that belongs not to the company, that is the people's. To make plans and arrangements for funding is all right, but it is, I should think, the height of folly to abandon and throw away that which is sure to accomplish the desired end under the full protection of the law, for a mere chimerical one, which your writer once more asserts never will culminate. With this closing my discussion, let come what will. Yours, as before,

FOR THE UNDER DOG IN THE FIGHT.

Woodward's place, where he left the buggy badly broken and wedged against the windmill tower. The horse then went home without further accident. Pierotti went after the buggy the next morning with a box wagon and a scoop shovel.

A Pioneer's Experience With Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I am a pioneer in this county, having been here 30 years. Four years ago my little son Ellery became blood-poisoned by impure virus in vaccination. His arm swelled terribly, causing great agony; physicians said the arm must be amputated, and even then his recovery would be doubtful. One day I read about a blood purifier, new to me, and was surprised to learn that it was prepared by C. I. Hood, with whom I used to go to school in Chelsea, Vt. I decided to have my boy try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was much gratified when it seemed to help him. He continued to grow better as we gave him the Sarsaparilla, and having used 8 bottles is now entirely cured. As Hood's Sarsaparilla has accomplished such wonderful results, I recommend it all I possibly can." JEROME M. SLEEPER, Upper Lake, Lake Co., Cal.

LATE NEWS OF THE WEEK

A Demurrer to the Injunction Proceedings.

The Irrigation Board Meet and Hear That the Injunction Papers Against Them are Probably Defective—The Case Comes Up in the Superior Court To-morrow—The Memorable Flop of Mr. Zeyn, Who is Against the District—Carl Grossman Threshes His Wife and Goes to Jail—Other News of Interest.

The irrigation district seems to be getting along quite well despite the fact that there is no money in the treasury and so much opposition to it. The Directors met in regular session on Tuesday, when all members were present, seemingly expectant of the petition asking them to call an election to take the sense of the people on the disorganization of the district. The petition failed to appear, and when Judge Brousseau reported that he had put in a demurrer against the injunction to be argued before the Superior Court to-morrow, and it had been common talk that Judge Pope's complaint was defective, the board seemed to be in particularly good humor, and all agreed to be on hand to see how the thing would be decided when it made its appearance in court.

Collector Witte reported the collection of $130.44 from taxes and other sources, and Treasurer Reiser reported cash on hand Nov. 6th, $2,211.70; paid out during month, $87.94; balance, $2,123 76. The latter in the suspended bank and hard to get at. There were outstanding warrants aggregating $964.20, leaving a net balance of $1,159 59.

Judge Brousseau reported that he had seen M. Boisserano as to his moving off the Yorba reservoir site, and the latter had agreed to leave the matter to arbitration. M. Boisserano felt kindly toward the district. All his sheep corrals, residence and camp are situated on the reservoir site, but he was satisfied to leave the matter of the expense of moving to a committee of two, one to be selected by the district and the other by himself, and if the two are unable to agree then to choose a third to settle it. He is willing to get off the place before the winter rains set in.

Hugh Bancroft appeared before the board in reference to securing the release of his home property at Orangethorpe which had been doubly assessed and sold for delinquent taxes, leaving a cloud resting on the title. The board voted to issue a duplicate receipt which will be recorded and the cloud removed.

Judge Brousseau reported further that the writ of review brought by the opponents of the district had been quashed and the proceedings thrown out of court. He had been served with the injunction papers and had filed a demurrer to them. The Judge remarked, in answer to several questions as to the nature of his demurrer, that the injunction is issued against the Board of Directors and their agents, servants and employees, and that his contention will be that they have nothing to do with the collection of taxes, that matter being entirely in the hands of the Collector, who is not an agent, employe or servant of the board. The Supreme Court has decided that the Collector is a separate State officer and is alone responsible for the collection of taxes. The injunction papers were, in his opinion, consequently, defective, and while the Judge could not say what Judge Towner's decision would be, he was very confident his demurrer would get in its deadly work again. As to the future of the legal fight against the district it would be time enough to talk about that when the time comes. He hoped to see as many of the board present in court to-morrow as possible to see that their attorney did his duty. [Laughter.]

He explained at length the nature of the fight against the district, saying that the first case was Crowther and others vs. the district, the writ of review was Botsford and others vs. the district, and the injunction was Ryan and others vs. the district. The plaintiffs, however, were all the same. He had been approached by several parties in Los Angeles who favored the district and would do what they could to help it along. He had nothing new to report from the Harrises, but was preparing as rapidly as possible for the confirmation proceedings.

Mr. Staley inquired whether those asking an injunction had put up a bond.

The Judge said he was not informed whether they had or not, but if they had not of course the injunction was void. The court, he said, would fix the amount of the bond.

Mr. Stadtegger said he wished the antis could be made to put up a bond to cover all possible losses so that if the taxes were not collected, and the amount was required to pay interest on the bonds, the antis would be made to pay the same and the taxpayers thus make the escape from taxation.

A representative of the California Abstract and Guaranty Company, of Los Angeles, was present and asked payment of his bill of $240 for abstracting. The bill had been presented two months and a half ago, and two months ago Mr. Reiser had promised to get him the money. It seemed, however, that the Treasurer of the district was just as far from paying the bill now as he was then. The abstract company did not feel like beginning suit against the district, but would be compelled to do so if the money could be secured no other way.

After consultation and discussion the board decided to send a letter to each one of Mr. Reiser's bondsmen, which should be in the nature of an ultimatum, notifying them to come forward and supply the deficit in the treasury or suit would be begun against them.

Adjourned for two weeks.

The new board will meet next Saturday evening to elect officers and appoint committees.

BUENA PARK.

Thanksgiving day was a gala one in this vicinity. There was a fine rabbit hunt Alamitos way. A number of our young men [illegible] joined in the sport of at least [illegible] the quadrupeds, if not capturing many, and increasing the appetites of the participants.

There was a family gathering at Governor Whitaker's. Covers were laid for twelve and all testified to the fine dinner. Games and music ended up the day. Mrs. Andrews of Maine and Miss Cora Champlin of Chicago are guests that will remain all winter. Mrs. Clacius of Los Angeles was also among the friends.

Tom Dearing, of San Francisco, is here on a flying visit. Everybody is glad to see his smiling face.

Harry Sloan spent the week with his family. Pomona College life agrees with Harry as he is looking finely.

A. W. Whitaker is still gathering strawberries from his ranch, and the plants bid fair to bear throughout the winter.

Dick Murray has left the Park for Fairview. "We shall meet but we shall miss him."

The "Country Club" were entertained by Mrs. A. W. Whitaker last Friday evening in honor of Tom Dearing.

Miss Edythe Young went to San Bernardino Saturday to attend the Y. P. S. C. E. convention.

The Y. P. S. C. E. met at Mrs. D. Young's last week. Business was transacted, election of officers, etc., followed by a programme of music. The principal feature of the Society this winter will be sociability. There are many strangers among us and they will find a warm welcome from this Society. The Reading Room is about to open its doors again and feasible plans will be arranged by which all of the leading magazines will be found in this room, and families can also take them to their homes to read. Additions are to be added to the books of the library very soon. Everybody interested in this good work can talk with George Caldwell, the station agent, or Harry Whitaker, at Whitaker & Co.'s store.

We understand there is no inconsiderable indignation over the attempt of a few of the citizens of Buena Park to obtain a few feet more land from their avenue from the county without any consideration. We trust our Supervisors will protect the interests of our county as well as those of the particularly interested citizens of Buena Park.

TO THE COUNTY JAIL.

HERR GROSSMAN THRESHES HIS WIFE AND RUNS AFOUL OF A SNAG.

Herr Carl Grossman will spend Christmas and New Years in the County Jail. He was taken there last Friday by a course of curious circumstances. He had acquired the bad habit of going home full, and would amuse himself at such times with threshing his wife—who is rather a prepossessing matron—and her cries would attract the attention of the neighbors for many doors away. Last Thursday afternoon he took it into his head to practice up a bit in the art of threshing her, and after acquiring a jag down town, went home and proceeded to beat her to his heart's content. He desisted at last, and running out of the house, she came down town and notified Marshal Steadman of the state of affairs. He went home with her and although early in the evening, found Grossman in the act of undressing preparatory to retiring for the night. As soon as Grossman saw his wife, he seized one of his shoes, and before Steadman could interfere to protect her, he dealt her a stinging blow in the face, meanwhile applying the vilest epithets to her. Steadman seized him and marched him off to jail, where he languished over night.

As soon as the brute was locked up he sent word to his wife that she should come to see him. This she refused to do, and his two little boys went over to the jail to see what he wanted. He sent back with them a message to his wife threatening her unless she withdrew the charge against him and allowed him to go free.

This she refused to do, and Friday morning she appeared before Judge Pierce and testified to the brutality of her husband. Grossman was present, and appeared very sheepish while his wife was telling the story of his misdeeds. He had threshed her repeatedly, she said, and she had resolved to have him arrested, but he would always promise to reform and she desisted. This last assault was too much for her, and taking the advice of her neighbors she complained to the officers.

Judge Pierce sized up the ruffian, and remarking that the man who would lay his hand upon a woman, save in the way of kindness, was a wretch whom it were base flattery to call coward, gave him the benefit of $100 fine or 3fty days in jail.

Subsequently District Attorney Scarborough told the Judge he could have made it a dollar a day in jail if he so wished, the latest interpretation of the law being to that effect; but Grossman had gone, and it was too late to give him the benefit of the new law. Had the Judge been acquainted with the new version of the law, probably Grossman's liberty would have been still further restrained to the time of another fifty days.

Marshal Steadman took the prisoner in charge and conveyed him across the raging Santa Ana river, where, if he wishes to indulge his passion for beating folks, he may take it out of Jim Buckley's hide.

A public whipping post is the correct thing for such men as Grossman.

Mrs. Grossman will probably apply for a divorce.

WEST ANAHEIM.

It is a long time since you heard from this quarter, so I will let you have a few items.

J. W. Bertram has bought twenty acres north of M. S. Ball and put up a small cottage and barn and intends to go into the beet business.

P. Wolff has leased a piece of land from the Dunn brothers, on the Garden Grove road, and has put up a small house.

Walter Hunter has bought twenty acres north of Caledonia Grove, A. Henry's, and put up a house and barn and is going into the farming business.

All the grain is now threshed and some of it looks to be very much damaged by the rain. It is still good for both feed and seed.

J. W. S. Posser, who went East about three years ago, has returned and intends going into the beet business. He has moved his house further west to a better location.

A. H. Gilson, from Santa Monica and previously on the McLellan place south of town, has bought twenty acres south of the old sheep camp which he is now improving.

Land is looking up out this way. A large number of buyers are around, mostly from Chino, where they were renters, and their land having been sold they are looking for pastures new.

THE WATER COMPANY.

THE ANTI-DISTRICT RESOLUTION, TABLED IN FEBRUARY, LIES DORMANT NINE MONTHS THEN COMES TO LIFE AGAIN—MR. ZEYN EXECUTES A FLOP.

The Directors of the water company met in regular session on Saturday. It was the most disagreeable day of the year—the wind howled a gale outside, yet every member was in his seat—something that had not happened in nine months. Why the full board was present was illustrated further on, when the anti-district resolution, tabled last February was, Mr. Zeyn having in the meantime deserted his side and gone over into the camp of the enemy, called up and carried, to the disgust of the district supporters.

Directors Amerige and Rust of the committee to interview Mr. Benchley on the change in the ditch running through his place, reported that they had met that gentleman and had viewed the landscape o'er, and recommended that the ditch be cemented and covered, Mr. Benchley to stand the greater portion of the expense. Committee continued, to ascertain what Mr. Benchley would stand.

Mr. Amerige reported that he had secured the engineer's draft of the La Habra reservoir and had forwarded the same to the headquarters of the Stearns Ranchos in San Francisco. He thought the site could be secured at a low figure—probably $10 per acre—but he had not received word from the company as to the price. Continued.

Secretary Garwood reported total receipts during the month of November amounting to $1,711 28; paid Treasurer, $1,537 83; balance $173 28. The following new notes had been issued in lieu of old ones cancelled: J. P. Zeyn, $5,000; Mrs. Metz, $1,500; Mrs. J. Rinker, $300; Jos. Holm, $1,500; Geo. H. Hatfield, $500; Mrs. A. S. Browning, $6,700; Richard Krebs, $1,000; Mrs. Agnes Werner, $2,530; Mrs. E. Bitner, $3,000; Henry Holste, $500; John T. Holmes, $6,200; Mrs. P. Ruff, $700; C. Hensler, $500; Mrs. S. Koll, $4,048; Mrs. R. Bishop, $1,200.

The following new notes were issued: H. Holste, $200; Mrs. Werner, $900; Mrs. R. Bishop, $100.

Treasurer Cahen reported on hand December 1st, $884 15.

Superintendent Groat reported that he had interviewed David Yorba about the Cota and Rivas tracts, and had been offered $250 for the same for the coming year; he had carried on the work of cleaning the Tuffree reservoir and though it had been hard on account of the water coming to the surface, thought it would be all right by Monday; the expense account for the month was $603 05, of which about $190 had been expended on cleaning the reservoir.

The board decided to accept Mr. Yorba's proposition; and instructed the Superintendent to put in two days more work on the reservoir, when in his opinion it will be in good serviceable condition. The total expense of cleaning out the reservoir will be about $250.

Mr. Hale called for $1,500 due him on his note, he having determined to purchase a piece of property.

Bills amounting to $855 43 were audited and ordered paid, $604 92 of the amount being for payroll, and the balance miscellaneous demands.

THE ANTI-DISTRICT RESOLUTION.

Mr. Amerige asked consent to call up the anti-district resolution introduced the 18th of February last and tabled, and have it read again. Agreed to, and the Secretary read the same, as follows:

WHEREAS, The Board of Directors of the Anaheim Union Water Company did heretofore enter into a written agreement to convey all the water rights and property of the company to the district for the sum of $150,000; and

WHEREAS, One of the conditions of said agreement was that said district should expend $100,000 in developing water and cementing ditches before acquiring the property of this company, the intention of said condition being to give to the stockholders of this company a reasonable assurance that their crops and trees would not suffer from lack of water, which would necessarily follow from the distribution of the present water supply over a larger area than is at present irrigable; and

WHEREAS, The district has failed to comply with the terms and conditions of said agreement in all respects, within the time stated in said agreement, and said agreement being null and void; and

WHEREAS, The said district still desires to acquire the property and water rights of this company; and

WHEREAS, It would be glaringly unjust to the stockholders of the Anaheim Union Water Company to sell their property at less than its face value, or to sell at any price, unless some assurance is given that they will receive such amounts of water as they have heretofore had, to the end that their trees and crops, on which they depend for a livelihood, do not suffer from lack of water; therefore

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Anaheim Union Water Company that no proposition for the purchase of the water rights and property of the company will be entertained by them, unless it is accompanied by a guarantee that at least $100,000 shall be expended in cementing the company's ditches, building reservoirs or in some other practical way developing water, before this company convey its water rights or property, and that said water rights and property shall not be sold for less than $250,000.

The resolution had been introduced at the February meeting by Mr. Botsford, and Mr. Kellogg moved to lay it on the table. This was carried by the votes of McFadden, Kellogg, Rust and Zeyn, all in favor of the district, against Botsford, Tuffree and Amerige, all against the district.

After lying on the table for a period of nine months, Mr. Botsford moved that it be taken up and passed, which was done, the vote standing as before, with the exception of Mr. Zeyn, who flopped and voted the other way.

The opponents of the district were highly elated over the flop, while the friends of the district were rather sharp in their comments over the turn that had taken place.

OTHER MATTERS.

The ditch west of the Fullerton schoolhouse, being pronounced dangerous to the lives of little children, was ordered piped and covered.

Mr. Sheppard appeared before the board and asked to be permitted to make a change in the north branch ditch, running through the Benchley place, his own land and that of Mr. Roerden. On his agreeing to get the right of way for the new ditch, the board decided to consider the matter at their next meeting, Mr. Sheppard to submit his proposition in writing.

Mr. Barr asked that the Cemetery Association be permitted to put up a water wheel at the ditch north of the graveyard, where they intend to put up a tank for irrigating purposes. Granted. Adjourned.

The friends of John Stanovich, who was shot by Gustav Landman on Sunday afternoon, attacked the Del Mar jail Monday night, supposing that Landman was there, having determined to lynch him. The entire structure was demolished, but the prisoner had been removed safely to San Diego. On Tuesday he was taken to Del Mar for a preliminary examination, and was held in $2,000 bail. In default of this, he was lodged in jail at San Diego Tuesday night. Stanovich, at last accounts, was sinking, and his death is expected.

—A blaze on the kitchen roof of Mr. Christian's house, on Los Angeles street, early Sunday morning caused some consternation in the family, but was put out without any alarm being turned in without much damage being done. A defective stovepipe was the cause.

—The creditors of the late James E. Nugent, who has departed this life for Arizona, "where there is no snow," are cited to appear before Judge Towner in the Superior Court at 9:30 o'clock this morning to prove their debts and choose an assignee of the estate of the dead.

—It is reported that Judge Montgomery, who is associated with Judge Pope as counsel against the district, has given his opinion that the complaint in the injunction proceedings to be heard by Judge Towner to-morrow is defective and cannot stand. If Judge Towner should sustain the demurrer, the case will be the third consecutive victory of Judge Brousseau over Judge Pope.

This is first blood for Los Angeles.

—The various Grand Jury committees have completed the work assigned them and on Monday the Jury went into session with the investigation of the causes for the collapse of the Bank of Anaheim. Several witnesses were examined, including Messrs. James, Bartlett, Horr and Alex Wright, who experted the books. It will probably be a week or two before the Jury make their report.

—The "Santa Ana" which started up some days ago and has continued with slight intermission up to the present writing, Wednesday afternoon, is the most disagreeable one of the season. A number of brush fires have been burning in the foothills and elsewhere, making the weather particularly disagreeable. This is enough of the wind, Mr. Weather Clerk, thanks; give us some rain.

—J. A. Hankey of Santa Ana has invented a nickel-in-the-slot peanut machine which gives promise of becoming a money-maker for its patentee. Its mechanism is similar to the numerous other nickel-in-the-slot machines, and a nickel dropped into the slot results in the handing out of an large-sized bag of hot-roasted, double-jointed California peanuts right out of the hopper. The new invention is now on exhibition at Santa Ana, and the price of peanuts is on the rise steadily.

—We are informed that no more stock will be taken in the sugar factory after January 2d next. After that date the books will be finally closed and no more stock will be offered. If the full complement of these 4,000 acres be not secured by the 2d of January, the books will be closed anyhow, and the best that can be done to put the refinery here this year will be taken up and pushed to a speedy consummation.

—THE GAZETTE was honored by a visit from a committee of the Grand Jury last week. But we are pleased to say they were not after us this time—they only came to look over some old files—in search of information, as it were. The Grand Jury is hot stuff this year, and when they make their report it will be found to be a hummer—so they say.

—A gentleman and his family from Oregon arrived in town overland from San Diego Tuesday evening, having come up from the city of bay and climate because of the unsatisfactory inducements offered him there after his arrival. He had been persuaded to come down from Oregon, but the country did not suit him and he pulled up stakes for Anaheim. He will go into the beet business.

—A Frenchman known by the subriquet of Big Miguel, living west of Santa Ana and known to all old residenters, became mentally unbalanced several days ago, and on Monday was taken into custody and adjudged insane and sent to the asylum at San Bernardino. —The social and literary club recently formed here held its semi-monthly meeting at the residence of the Misses Smith in Orangethorpe on Monday evening. The meeting was a very entertaining one, and the club bids fair to a grand success. Henry Strodthoff is President; Miss Cora Lewis, First Vice President; Miss Retta Smith, Second Vice President; Miss Hertha Meyer, Treasurer; Ed Schultz, Secretary. The club has a membership of thirty-two.

—Those who were present at the Episcopal church last Sunday afternoon had the pleasure of hearing, beside the usual discourse by the pastor, Rev. Robinson, a full choral srvice, including Magnificat and Nunc Demittis, by Bunnet in F, and the anthem "Over the Stars There is Rest," (Franz Abt), by Mrs. Staufer, who is a very charming singer. Hymns Nos. 5 and 484 were also rendered, as well as responses, Tallis in D.

—Mr. Garwood, the Secretary of the Anaheim Reading Room was charging around the other day in a manner such as we would not expect a deacon to charge; when we asked him about his trouble, he said some one had been playing tricks on the reading room. It was the first that we had heard of it and inquired further. "Some one has sent us Scribner's Magazine, the label marked paid to Nov. 1894, and now comes the Review of Reviews, paid to Oct. 1894, and we can't find out who did it." We talked with him and quieted his nerves; but he desires to express the thanks of the Board of Directors of the reading room to this unknown friend for this valuable donation.

—Frank Scott, the young son of W. W. Scott, who lives east of town, had the misfortune to sustain quite a serious wound while out hunting with a couple of companions on Thanksgiving Day. He was about to shoot at a hawk, when the barrel of his gun burst, shattering the left thumb and forefinger. He was brought to town and treated by Dr. Perdomo. At first it was thought the thumb would have to be amputated, but this was found to be unnecessary, and the wound was stitched up, after which the youth was taken home, where he has since been getting along as well as could be expected.

—When the farmers below town put in their sugar beets last season there were patches here and there where the seed failed to come up either because there was not sufficient moisture to cause the seed to sprout or because of improper planting. It was thought by some that the beets would not grow in these spots because the soil was too poor or because the farmer did not seed right, but since the recent rains the seeds have begun to sprout, and the young beets are as thick as they can possibly stand. It has heretofore been demonstrated that sugar beets can be grown and matured here the year round where the soil has sufficient moisture to sprout the seed at the time of planting. This is a big advantage over most sugar beet growing countries, and the fact that we raise the richest beets in saccharine makes this the ideal sugar producing section.

—The sad news has been received of the death of Mrs. B. H. Bancroft, which occurred in Salem, Oregon, on the afternoon of Wednesday, Nov. 29th. The remains were brought to Los Angeles by the deceased's son Henry L. Bancroft, and the interment occurred on Sunday last, the remains of the mother finding a last resting place beside those of her daughter Helen, in Rosedale cemetery. This crowning affliction of the sorrow-stricken family is deeply deplored by all residents of this vicinity, where the deceased was known so well on all sides for so long. Mrs. Bancroft came to Anaheim many years ago, being among the first of the settlers to locate at Orangethorpe, and her kindly manner and sweet and retiring disposition and domestic habit made her many warm friends among our population, to whom the news of her untimely and sorrowful death comes as the tidings of a great and irreparable loss. Her daughter, of whom so much was so confidently expected, passed away but a few weeks ago, and the loss has had its effect in this second death in the stricken family. May we hope that they have met again in a better world and that their rest will be an eternal summer of celestial peace.

—The body of Chris Lassen, who had resided here for some years past, was found in an advanced stage of decomposition by some hunters in the quatemotes a mile and a half west of Fullerton last Monday morning. By the side of the body lay a bottle of strychnine half empty, which told the story of the death. Lassen had not been seen for two weeks, and it was feared by his friends that he had destroyed himself, as when last seen he had been drinking and avowed his purpose of committing suicide. He boarded with Mrs. Dierkson, and on the morning of his disappearance was called for breakfast and replied that he would be down in a few minutes. He disappeared and had not been seen or heard of since that time. He was a German, single, aged about 29 years, and has a brother living in Placentia. The Coroner held an inquest in the afternoon and the jury rendered a verdict that death was caused by strychnine administered with suicidal intent. The remains were brought to Backs' undertaking rooms, where they were found to be almost past recognition. The interment took place Tuesday morning.

—Three tramps were exiled to Santa Ana by 'Squire Landell on Tuesday. The trio stood up a citizen on Palm street and demanded a dollar. This was given them, after which they began quarreling and proceeded to fight. Marshal Steadman was called and went down to investigate. One of the tramps squared off, when Steadman sent him to grass and finally had to bring him to town for repairs. The three were brought up town in a wagon and when at the corner of Center and Los Angeles streets two of them jumped from the vehicle and made a dash for liberty. One ran down Los Angeles street, and the other ran into Cahen's back yard, jumped the fence and came in the rear door of this office, running through the press-room, composing-room, editorial and reportorial rooms and business office. He emerged on Center street and was nabbed by Constable Landell. The other fellow was nabbed by McWilliams and Porter after a lively chase. Tramps have been unusually troublesome of late, and so these three were exiled across the river for ten days.

PERSONAL MELANGE.

Dr. Clark of Fullerton was in town yesterday on a short visit.

W. S. Fish is down from Los Angeles to remain in town for a few days.

Mr. N. Deutsch was down from Los Angeles on Monday renewing old acquaintances.

Sanford Johnson was over from Tustin yesterday swapping horses and talking hotel business.

Miss Phoebe Wise of Nevada is visiting here and is the guest of Misses Hannah and Retta Smith.

Miss Winnie Melrose is in Los Angeles taking a course in type writing and stenography.

A son of R. Fletcher, with his wife and child, has arrived here from Nebraska to spend the winter and possibly locate.

Mrs. Gardiner has assumed charge of the Postoffice, and will be assisted by her brother, Mr. Keener, and her daughter Ella.

Judge Brousseau was down from Los Angeles on Tuesday in attendance upon the meeting of the irrigation Directors.

Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams were tendered a pleasant surprise party by a number of friends at their home last Wednesday evening.

Marshal Steadman, Hugh Bancroft, H. P. Larsen, Ernst Bentz and Roy Adams were before the Grand Jury yesterday, giving evidence in the recent burglary case.

Mr. W. J. Fay has returned from Denver, but since his arrival we are sorry to hear has been detained at home most of the time with illness.

J. H. Encarl of San Diego, who is interested in real estate here, came up from the city of bay and climate last Saturday for a short stay.

Mat Everhardy was down from Los Angeles with his wife on Sunday on a visit. He had the bad luck to lose an envelope containing a check and valuable papers.

Mr. J. N. Bill, who recently arrived here from Minnesota, was in town one day last week. He has purchased land at Garden Grove and will go into the sugar beet business.

Mr. Reiser received a letter yesterday from Miss Amy Hartman, who is sojourning with her mother in Dresden, saying they are enjoying snowballing now, and both are anxious to return to California.

Dr. Bartlett of Orange and Dr. Van Norman of San Diego were in town last week looking at land for sugar beets. Possibly both will be numbered among our population before long.

E. H. Wade was down from Los Angeles on Tuesday. He is a subscriber to stock in the co-operative refinery, and hearing that operations were to begin on the factory soon came down to get in on the ground floor.

Mr. Fowler has shipped up his furniture from San Diego and has had it stored for the present. He and his wife are here to reside permanently now. Mrs. Fowler is a very charming lady and will make a valuable acquisition to our society.

Andrew Gillison is hauling brea from Brea canyon for fuel purposes. He gets it out with dynamite and works at night, the warm weather during the day making it difficult to handle. He makes a trip to the canyon daily.

While Ben Dauser was storing grain in J. M. Griffith's warehouse one day last week, he accidentally fell to the floor, quite a distance below, and to make the matter worse a sack of grain came tumbling down upon him. He was pretty badly bruised, but is now all right and at his post of duty again.

Mr. Witte was up to Los Angeles on Monday and informs us that he could circulate a counter petition to the one recently circulated for signatures against the district and secure three out of every five of them to a petition in favor of the district. Some of the people met by him, he tells us, are enthusiastic supporters of the district.

D. F. Donegan, the Los Angeles contractor, for whom the papers have been "going" for some time past, was in town one day last week. Judging from what the papers have been saying of him, we expected to see a man with horns, but Donegan seems to be entirely free from this class of personal adornment. He went out with Van Alstine in the afternoon to look at some land west of town.

Mr. E. H. Dyer is expected here the latter part of this week or the first of next. Three hundred acres of beet land have been reserved for him, and he comes to turn it over into the corporation. Mr. Dyer will put in the sugar machinery when the factory is built, and has contracted to take second mortgage bonds at par for the payment of same. He will plant 300 acres to beets, and as he will not probably be here to do the work himself, this is an excellent opportunity for renters to secure the land and put out the crop.

Mr. J. E. Botsford and son, who have recently arrived here from Port Huron, Michigan, to take up their permanent residence, were in town on Saturday, and attended the meeting of the water directors in the afternoon. Mr. Botsford does not resemble his brother W. F. very much—the latter having also recently arrived from the East—as he tends to the embonpoint in his makeup and seems happy in the enjoyment of robust health. He was here during the palmy days of the boom, and when he left he was never satisfied until he returned. He will make a desirable acquisition to our population, as his brother has been for some years past.

Judge J. E. Bacon of San Juan Capistrano returned from his Eastern trip last week and was warmly welcomed by his hosts of friends in Los Angeles and Orange counties. Judge Bacon is one of the historic figures of this region, having been identified with its growth for many years, and holds a warm place in the affections of the people of this valley. We are pleased to learn that he returns in good health to resume his duties as "Chief Justice" of that unique village, almost the last remaining stronghold of the pastoral days of California, where he and the illustrious Alcalde Egan holds joint and several sway over a happy and primitive people.

The Boy, the Dog and the Bicycle.

A boy riding a bicycle around Garfield place one day attracted considerable attention by the companion he had on the machine. He had hung a small platform in front of him just back of the handles, and on it sat a small black and tan dog. The animal sat quietly, without any fear of falling.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Copied.

A well known plagiarist brought a poem to a New York editor and requested him to publish it. As the editor hesitated the visitor said:

"This poem is not very legible. Perhaps I had better copy it over."

"What! Again?" asked the editor, with a severe look.—Texas Siftings.

The Pie Was Tough.

"That was a disgusting tramp I helped this morning," said old Mrs. Smythe of Bungtown Corners. "I gave him a pie and asked him to saw some wood, and about 10 minutes later he came in and asked me if I'd mind if he ate the wood and sawed the pie."—Bazar.

Change and Rest.

Bethel, the lord chancellor, occasionally said a good thing. Thus, when leaving a country hotel, he said: "I came down here for change and rest. I found that the waiter kept the change and the landlord the rest."—Sir W. Fraser.

The idea that the earth is slowly drying up has quite a setback by a recent announcement of the hydrographic engineers that the gulf of Mexico is one foot higher now than it was in 1850.

"ASH BARREL JIMMY."

The First Convert of the Salvation Army In America.

Our first convert in America is still living and serving the army in Boston. The history of his reform is a remarkable one.

The conversion of the first of a mighty multitude was brought about by Commissioner Railton, then in command of the American forces of the army, and Superintendent Thomas Byrnes of the New York police. Mr. Byrnes was an inspector of police at the time, early in 1880.

It is safe to say that in Salvation Army circles there are very few who do not know Jimmy, by reputation at least. Jimmy was a thief and drunkard when converted in New York in March, 1880. His name is James Kemp.

Three times Jimmy narrowly escaped losing his life. On one occasion he was nearly frozen to death outside Billy McGlory's notorious dive. On another occasion he was so brutally beaten in a Water street dive that he was supposed to be dead. The morgue wagon was called by the police, and the bruised and battered body, apparently dead, was carried to the morgue. When it, or rather he, arrived there some of the doctors made the discovery that Jimmy still lived, and so he was taken to the hospital, where he remained four months. His last narrow escape from death was when he drank a quantity of spirits of wine which he found in a cellar. Jimmy drank so much he went raving mad and tried to hang himself. He was sent to prison for three months for attempting suicide.

The first Saturday afternoon in March, 1880, Jimmy started out to have some amusement, and hearing that the Salvation Army, which had just arrived from England, was going "to show" at Harry Hill's notorious resort he concluded to go there and see what kind of people the soldiers were. When he arrived at Hill's, he found that there was an admission fee, and he, with a drunkard's economy, determined to spend the price of admission in a different manner. Toward night he strolled into a dive in Water street, where his Whyo friends painted his back and served his face the same way and wound up the performance by rolling the unfortunate man in the sawdust of the dive floor. Jimmy, after submitting to their treatment, thought they would let him stay there all night; but, alas, they kicked him out on the street.

Just as Jimmy reached the sidewalk his cap blew off and fell into an ash barrel which was standing near the door of the den. Jimmy tried to recover it, but in doing so lost his balance and fell head first into the barrel. He struggled to get out, but all his efforts were in vain. He seemed to be there to stay.

A short time after Jimmy's acrobatic feat a policeman came along, and seeing a man's legs in the barrel set to work to discover who was the owner of them and why he had them in such a position. He took out his club and struck the inverted man on the soles of his feet. These means are sometimes resorted to by policemen to arouse drunken men.

From the depths of the barrel came a voice which the policeman at once recognized. He rapped for assistance, and when another officer appeared on the scene an effort was made to get Jimmy from his novel but painful position. They pulled at the protruding feet, but Jimmy failed to respond, his clothes having been caught on the nails which had been driven through the barrel. They pulled until the old rotten shoes gave way and were left in their hands. The policemen then threw the barrel down on its side, and laying hold of the unfortunate man's feet they dragged the barrel and its howling occupant toward the police station.

A pitiful sight was poor Jimmy when he reached the station. His face, which had been blackened by the toughs in the dive, was all battered and bruised, and the paint on his face, mingled with blood, was strongly suggestive of a scalped Indian. His clothes were all torn and his shoes gone. How complete the ruin! How perfect the wreck!

Superintendent Byrnes suggested that the Salvation Army be allowed to try its hand on the man, and the result was his conversion, since which time he has served faithfully in its ranks.—Boston Herald.

Machine Work and Handwork.

It is to be remembered that, notwithstanding all we hear of the vast superiority of machine over handwork, this machinery must itself possess as great, if not greater, accuracy and refinement than the product manufactured by it. No machine can in this respect be superior to its maker. It can only produce sufficiently accurate and good work at a lower cost than if made by him. The first sewing machine of a kind, built by skilled machinists or toolmakers, is at least as good and as accurately made as any subsequently manufactured by machinery, and the same men can duplicate it more exactly than can any machinery, but machines built thus would cost far more than people could afford to pay for them, and that is all there is to the talk of the substitution of the "certainty and accuracy of machinery for the uncertainty and inaccuracy of handwork."—Scribner's Magazine.

The Butterfly and Its Case.

The most curious thing about the butterfly is the size of the case from which the insect proceeds, compared with the size of the insect's body. The case is rarely more than an inch long and a quarter of an inch in thickness. The butterfly covers a surface of nearly 4 inches square.—St. Louis Republic.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LANE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly Sweenied; I tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or. S. Z. PAXTON.
