IS TWO HOURS' SLEEP ENOUGH?

The discussion aroused by Edison's theory that two hours' sleep is enough for any rational and healthy human being continues vigorously. The majority of people insist that eight or nine hours' sleep is necessary to perfect health. A few instances are recalled by persons who have gone into the subject deeply, of men who have succeeded in getting along very well with four hours' sleep out of the twenty-four, and isolated cases of extraordinary periods of wakefulness in cases of danger and great excitement are quoted. The walking-matches which were held at one time gradually resolved themselves into the question of how long a man could get along without sleep, and in one instance a walker went five days with an average of less than three and one-half hours' sleep out of each twenty-four hours. Mr. Edison's theory is that the practice of sleeping eight or nine hours is a relic of barbarism, which became part of our nature when there was no artificial light, and that, when darkness came on, there was nothing else to do but to sleep. Night editors, night watchmen, night telegraph operators, and other members of the numerous army of laborers who turn night into day, sleep fewer hours a day than other persons. There are many thousands of men who go to bed at seven o'clock in the morning, after completing their night's labor, and who are awake and stirring at twelve o'clock. They find five hours' sleep enough. So do men who have to go to market early, such as the purchasing agents of big cafes, restaurants, clubs, and grocery firms. These men rise at half past three or four o'clock in the morning, although they seldom go to bed before half past eleven. Occasionally they take a nap in the afternoon for an hour, but that does not upset Mr. Edison's theory in any way. Perhaps a more notable instance is where the life is followed by some of the owners, trainers, stablemen, and jockeys of big racing stables. While the horses are in training during the season, they are nearly always taken out for trial in the early hours of the morning. The names of scores of men could be given who rise at halfpast four every morning during the racing season, repair to the stables and who never get to bed until near the hour of midnight. Sailors sleep four hours, then have an eight-hours' watch, and so do the officers on the ocean steamers. The second four-hours' rest at the expiration of the first eight hours on deck is often spent by the officers and men in reading, smoking, and lounging about. Sometimes they snatch an hours' sleep or so; but seamen assert that five hours' sleep is enough for any able-bodied man.

NAPOLEON AT LUNCH.

The great Napoleon was by no means great in little things. In the fine art of dining he was particularly small, although he was such a genius in attracting his foreign visitors by tickling their palate with the most wonderful "creations" of that jewel among chefs, Le Guipiere. It never took the first Napoleon more than ten minutes to swallow his breakfast, and, to the disgust of his artist of the kitchen, he refused to spend more than half an hour over his dinner.

Napoleon generally lunched at a small round table. And this was well, for it was one of his little peculiarities to forget the use of his knife and fork and to plunge his fingers into a dish and regale himself, a la singe, with whatever savory morsel he might get hold of. As for using his dinner-napkin, that was altogether out of the question. At dinner the Emperor had the various courses brought in at the same time, and often ate of three or four courses at once, in his absent-mindedness taking anything placed before him, so that occasionally he had a piece of jelly or a cream on his plate before he had finished with the entrees. He always ended his meal with a large cup of coffee.

At luncheon or dinner parties at the Tuileries Napoleon took hardly any notice of his guests. He got up when he had finished and walked into the drawing-room. The Empress Josephine, however, took no notice, and made a sign to her guests not to rise. If, however, she was occasionally obliged to follow the Emperor the rest of the party had to go empty away. This was so well known that one day, when his Majesty rose, after only a few minutes, from the luncheon table, and his guest, Prince Eugene, following him into his room, the following dialogue took place: "You haven't had sufficient time to finish you meal," said the Emperor. "Pardon, your Majesty," replied the Prince, with a gallant bow, "but I dined before I came." The Emperor's favorite dishes were mutton, lentils and a salad made of French beans, and he never drank more than half a bottle of the lightest of table wines. But whether he was at the Tuileries or in camp he never dined off anything but solid gold and silver.

HER CRITICISM.

A picture entitled "At the Bath," and representing two young women near a pool of water, one engaged in drawing off her stockings and the other her dress, was exhibited in Washington lately. I stood near a party that was discussing it one day. One of the men said: "Yes, the picture is good. The coloring and technique are fine."

"That's true enough," said the woman, "but who in the world ever saw a woman take a dress off over her head?"

The argument was convincing. The picture was no longer discussed. The party moved on, and the man standing next to me said: "She's right, and the artist is certainly a man."

H. O. Clegget, private secretary of Senator Hunton, gives an interesting story of the manner in which the effort was made to bribe Senator Hunton. Bultz went to Warrenton with letters and sought an interview with Epha Hunton, Jr., the Senator's son. He approached Hunton as an attorney, and told him he wished to engage his services in an important case. He also told him his fee was to be $25,000 or more. The latter asked Bultz in what manner his services were required in consideration of such a handsome fee, and then it was that Bultz delicately intimated it was to secure his father's vote against the tariff bill. Hunton indignantly ordered him from the office, and at once acquainted his father with the fact. Senator Hunton laid the matter before the Financial Committee, and they prevailed upon him to keep it quiet for a few days until they might get a few of the facts in the case. Nothing has since been learned, and it is not known whom Bultz represented.

THE MIDWINTER FAIR.

ROSE SHOW—NEW PYROTECHNIC FEATURES—A NIGHT IN CAIRO—THE PIRATE SEIDL.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—Last week the Fair officials decided that they would make an experiment with the admission, and reduced it to 25 cents after 5 P. M. and on Sundays, and though the evening admissions have not been very much greater, this past Sunday's ran up to more than the usual number, in spite of the fact that the weather was miserably foggy and damp.

The California rose show, which has been in progress for some time, was by far the prettiest floral exhibition thus far. It was supposed to be strictly a rose show, but there were several other kinds of flowers about, principally pinks, sweet peas, geraniums and assorted lilies. There were roses of every size and color, every species abounding, rainbow roses, Marechel Neil roses and La France roses. One table attracted particular notice and was covered with white La France's, most beautiful blood red pinks and primroses, interspersed with all colored sweet peas. If you have a thickly planted garden with about every species of rose of quality together with other fine looking flowers, you can get just about half an idea of what the gallery of the Horticultural Building looked like.

A couple of new features have been introduced into the pyrotechnic displays of late. One is Niagara Falls, and the other is "The Bombardment of Ft. McHenry by the British Fleet." The Niagara Falls is just simply a steady shower of sparks and very beautiful, but the bombardment is very complicated. There are three separate pieces and each one about sixty feet apart. Of course, all three pieces have to be lit up at once, so an electric fuse is used, which by pressing a button makes a spark, lighting three power trains immediately, and each train lights either one of the ships or the fort. The ships and fort now begin firing, creating an awful din. The sound of machine guns and muskets mingled with the mighty roar of eighteen-inch mortars, which send up bombs that explode after reaching an altitude of two or three hundred feet, with a terrific report and at the same time sending out showers of bright stars. But all this time while the guns are being fired and the cannons are roaring the lights forming the outlines of the ships and fort are changing colors. Suddenly there is a blinding flash and a report beside which the others, though awfully loud, fade into insignificance, and the ships and fort disappear from sight.

Tuesday evening was an evening that will be long remembered to regular Fair-goers, especially those who have been most interested in the Midway Plaisance. The Oriental people together with the Mining Camp people gave an entertainment, which they called "A Night in Cairo," in the Turkish village. The admission to the village was originally to have been $1, but to get a big crowd they brought it down to 50 cents, and got all the people the place would hold. The fun, or rather the "entertainment," commenced at 8 o'clock, with a parade to the village, after which the dancers adjourned to the stages of their respective theaters and were supposed to commence to dance at once, but they didn't. They seemed to take especial delight in making the jam of people in the theaters wait. From eight till nine o'clock the people waited for the dancers to appear, but they were either obstinate or something was wrong and would not appear till nine o'clock; but when they finally did appear the rapturous howl with which they were greeted was almost enough to raise the dead dancers in far off lands. Just as the show commenced, Charles Blitz, the star "barker" of the Midway, created a sensation by coming into Bella Baya's Theater and demanding to know in a loud tone of voice whether "This is the ploice doncheknauw, where they have the blausted, bloomin' muscle daunce, doncherknauw." This sally, together with the get-up of the speaker, brought forth a burst of applause and yells of approval from the audience, which kept on cheering and guying Blitz as long as he remained in the theatre. During the sword dance the sword of one of the dancers slipped from his hand and struck Terreda on the arm, inflicting a slight wound, though she came back on the stage in time to do her part. When she came back on the stage she was received in a manner that might flatter the vanity of any actress, and her dancing fully warranted it. With a chair held in her mouth and straight over her head, she revolved in a most violent manner for fully three minutes, and at the end of that time did not seem to be the least dizzy.

After all the theaters were over, everybody in the village, including dancers, oriental and occidental, adjourned to the big hall where the ball and combined dances of all nations were to take place. Standing room and even breathing room were soon at a premium, and the hall, large as it was, was not one-tenth large enough to hold all who wanted to get into it. The Mexican band furnished the music and all the dancers acquitted themselves creditably. While the band was playing an overture, a half drunken woman started to dance up and down between the files of musicians and a gentleman in the crowd tried to lead her away. Some of the rougher element interfered and the brawl soon became general until the guards took a hand in the matter, and as usual taking the wrong side, gave the gentleman who attempted to stop the disgraceful dancing a rather rough handling, from which he escaped with a beautifully colored eye and seedy looking clothes. Thus the revelry kept up until 2 A. M., when the entire show was broken up. It was undoubtedly a success financially, and it will be repeated every second Tuesday night.

Broken hearted, disconsolate, disgusted and financially busted is Papa Seidl. His place is closed down, everything he possesses, except his fat and round "corpus" in the hands of the Sheriff, who is selling his wines, supplies and fixtures to pay debts and transport "Papa" to old Vienna again. Papa Seidl not only carries the regrets of his creditors back with him, but also those of lots of jolly good fellows who spent many a pleasant evening in his restaurant. There have not been enough people in his place in the last few weeks to pay the interest on his debts which followed him from Chicago, let alone the principal and his later debts in San Francisco.

The viticultural exhibit which was opened not long ago is a very pretty annex to the Horticultural Building and represents one of the greatest industries in the State. The main wine-houses represented are B. Dreyfus & Co., J. Gundlach & Co., St. Helena Wine Co., Jacobi & Co. and Lachman & Jacobi. Part of this building is devoted to what is known as a German "Weinstule" or wine room; not an ordinary saloon, but a place where one can sit down to a bottle of wine and a pipe and talk. None but privileged characters are allowed to drink here and one must be armed with a permit from the head of one of the exhibiting houses in order to procure a bottle of wine.

A very peculiar feature of the Midway Plaisance now is the number of illusions that are running. At first there was only one, "Pharoh's Daughter," and it was such a success that within about two months almost every available building on the Midway has been turned into an illusion. Some are good, but most are very poor.

There is also a double woman on the Midway, connected at the back. She has four legs and four arms, and sitting on a stool can play two pianos or sew on two machines at one time.

WALTER L. DREYFUS.
SAN FRANCISCO, May 17, 1894.

A SEVERE FROST NORTH.

SONOMA, May 16.—One of the most disastrous frosts that have visited this valley for many years occurred last night. Great damage was done to the vineyards of Sonoma valley, which now present a black and withered appearance. Many of the vineyardists will lose their entire crop of grapes, while others will lose from one-third to one-half. Corn, potatoes and beans were also laid low by the unexpected frost.

A telephone message from Bennett valley, several miles northwest of this place, says the damage by last night's frost in that locality is even worse than in this vicinity.

NAPA, May 16.—Fully two-thirds of the grape crop of this valley was ruined by frost last night. Fruits, corn and vegetables are not much injured.

FRESNO, May 16.—The mountains are covered with snow. Two feet fell at Pine Ridge, ten inches at Sequoia and four inches at Fort Badger. Sheep which have been driven up the mountains by the scarcity of food have suffered terribly. Four thousand out of a drove of six thousand by actual count were frozen to death at Markwood Meadows last Monday, and several smaller droves have perished.

SONORA (Cal.), May 16.—The storm of wind, rain and snow Monday and Tuesday was most fatal to sheep. The road from Sonora up to Strawberry station, a distance of thirty-two miles, is lined with dead sheep.

The storm was unusually severe for this time of the year, and the sheep having been sheared before entering the county were in an unfit condition to meet the wintry blasts. In the ravines and beside the bowlders along the road the dead animals are piled two and three deep.

Up to this date some 40,000 sheep have entered this county en route for the mountain ranges, and as all of them were caught in the storm it is a low estimate that one-third of them have perished. The total rainfall for the two days was 3 inches, and 35 07 inches for the season.

FOR IRRIGATION.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Representative Bowers to-day delivered a speech on the proposed appropriation of $8,000 for the investigation of the irrigation of arid lands. The speaker said: "This appropriation should be multiplied by ten. Something like a quarter of a century ago I settled in the arid region of Southern California. During the years that have since intervened I have seen those waste places, those desert spots transformed into gardens and fruitful fields, but not one-quarter of the available land in my district, or in Southern California has yet been made productive, owing to the want of irrigation. I have had some experience in irrigation and I differ entirely with the Secretary of Agriculture and believe that proper investigation and development of this subject have not really begun.

"Recently the Government in its wisdom has set apart and fenced in and consecrated to disuse as a reservation large areas of the watershed of California, placing there a company of cavalry to keep the people out, so that the desirable region may not be used for any purpose whatever. This week I presented to the Secretary of the Interior a petition signed by 800 of the leading citizens of the San Joaquin valley, asking that under certain rules and restrictions cattle and other stock now starving in Southern California may have access to the foothills of these reservations and obtain subsistence from the grass now growing there. During the present season the worst drought that has visited California in twenty years is prevailing. In years gone by, before these reservations were made, those mountain pastures, when a dry season came on, afforded refuge for the stock, but now the people of that region are obliged to ship their stock to Arizona, Nevada and Northern California to save it.

"The problem that faces California is this: There is undoubtedly water enough falling and collected each season upon the western slope of the Sierra and Rocky mountains and flowing to irrigate all the valleys of that State. Now the greater part sinks upon reaching the plains and is lost. Thus this water practically does no good. The problem now is to collect, to reservoir and to preserve that water all along the mountain slopes, and by doing this a vast amount of tillable land in California can be made available for cultivation. Now the Government, having taken that watershed from those people, it is in duty bound to have that region of country surveyed to find out the best manner of saving the water that falls along the mountain slopes." All the Pacific coast delegation voted in favor of the appropriation except the Populist, Cannon. Bowers will formulate a bill providing for the complete investigation of the subject. He has, however, no great hopes of its acceptance by the Democratic majority.

The Prohibition State Convention has nominated the following State ticket: Governor, Henry French of Santa Clara; Lieutenant-Governor, M. J. Hall of Los Angeles; Secretary of State, M. C. Winchester of Yolo; Controller, H. Clay Needham of Los Angeles; Treasurer, W. H. McGown of Sonoma; Attorney-General, C. P. Dorland of Los Angeles; Superintendent of Public Instruction, R. F. Burns of Placer; Clerk of the Supreme Court, W. P. Netherton of Santa Cruz; State Printer, A. G. Sheehan of San Bernardino; Surveyor-General, Green Spurrier of Stanislaus; State Board of Equalization, H. B. Burlingame of San Francisco, O. H. Love of Oakland, C. T. Clark of Napa and Dr. Elias Jessup of Whittier; Railroad Commission, Frank E. Coulter of Sacramento, R. J. Knapp of San Mateo, Henry L. Kuns of Merced; Justice of the Supreme Court (full term), Will D. Gould of Los Angeles; for the unexpired term, M. D. Hurst of Woodland; United States Senator, General John Bidwell of Butte.

The Prohibition State Convention nominated the following men for Congress: First district, Dr. J. B Gregory of Healdsburg; Second district, Mark Keppel of Woodbridge; Third district, L. B. Scranton of Esparto; Sixth district, Judge J. E. McComas of Pomona; Seventh district, W. H. Summers of El Cajon, San Diego county. The Prohibitionists succeeded in raising a campaign subscription fund of $2,600. In addition a lot at Pasadena, valued at $2,000, was subscribed by a gentleman named Campbell. On this account a resolution favoring incorporation was adopted and the matter was referred to a committee of five lawyers, of which Chairman Kellogg was made a member. When the county subscriptions were called, Los Angeles promised $200, Alameda county $150, and the others various amounts down to $5. The lot subscribed will be sold, and thus the sum will be swelled to $5,000. A resolution favoring the publication of a book of songs for use in the campaign was adopted.

Why Government Should Not Own the Railroads.

[From Sacramento Themis, May 13th.]

The Populists' and agitators' demand that all enterprise shall be controlled and conducted by the Government would, in a couple of decades, cause our great and beneficent republican form of government to entirely disappear and give place to the very worst form of tyranny. It may sound well to say that the Government should regulate and conduct all affairs, but in that event the real, not the ideal, Government would consist of those who might by any means obtain control, even to the extent of selfish, inexperienced and incompetent officials, not to mention unscrupulous and conscienceless politicians, who for the time may have secured control of the Government. It has always been a mystery to the thoughtful why there should be such pronounced enmity toward railroads and other great enterprises by the laboring masses. Because some man or set of men, with forecast, experience, brains and capital, grasps the possibilities of enriching great communities and developing vast territorial wastes is certainly no reason for senseless opposition and destruction.

It is a fact that the enterprise of a few men on this coast has transformed worthless acres into fruitful farms. Towns and cities have sprung into being through their agency. Through the instrumentality of railroads alone has been added to the wealth and capital of this coast millions upon millions of dollars. The barren wastes have been made into orchards, vineyards and fields of golden-headed grain. Employment has been furnished for thousands of men, where none before existed. Yet we find the enmity and resistance to all those great projects emanating from those who are really benefited. It is true that the promoters' wealth has been increased, but the greater proportion has been for the common wealth of the country. It is also true that there may have been, and may still exist some cause for complaint against the individual management of these corporations, but the general good certainly overcomes the evil. Under no conditions would it be wise or safe to place these enterprises under Government management. It would very soon result in the worst kind of anarchy. The free republican form of government would become subverted.

THE STRANGE DECKER CASE.

YREKA, May 19.—The cloud which has hung over George Decker, the Yreka rancher, for two weeks, was cleared up to-day by the arrival of his wife and daughter whom he was accused of murdering years ago.

The case is a most remarkable one. Twenty-seven years ago Decker's wife and daughter left Yreka and shortly afterwards he obtained a divorce. About two weeks ago some boys found a heap of bones in a cave near Decker's place and the citizens of the community jumped to the conclusion that they were the remains of Decker's wife and babe who had disappeared. Decker could not prove that they were not as the people who had seen his wife depart from Yreka were dead. He was arrested and accused of murdering nearly every person in the vicinity of Yreka who had died suddenly or had disappeared for a number of years. The murders charged to his account by credulous citizens amounted to ten, and he was looked on by his neighbors as a monster of inquity. They were barely prevented from lynching him after his arrest.

Decker claimed to be innocent and his attorney set to work to find the missing woman and child. He found them living at Colusa, not 200 miles away, totally ignorant of Decker's peril. They arrived at Yreka to-day and Decker was discharged from custody. Both he and his wife had married again and raised families and to-night a reunion was held at which Decker's escape from danger was celebrated.

YREKA, May 18.—Ben Mitchell, brother of Mrs. Decker, and Nevada, the daughter of Decker, arrived in Yreka on the noon train. The town was wild with excitement. People wished to see the mother before they will become convinced that a fraud has not been perpetrated. Attorney Farraher says the mother will arrive tomorrow. Old timers see a great resemblance between the girl, who left Yreka twenty-seven years ago, and the mother, as she then looked. The grand jury will not permit Decker to be interviewed by his attorney or the arrivals to-day until the mother arrives on the scene. Mitchell and Nevada Decker will not appear before the grand jury until tomorrow, in company with the mother.

MISERIES OF MONARCHS.

Nero had bulging eyes and was very near-sighted.

Julius Cæsar had weak digestion and was subject to epileptic fits.

Mary was rendered unhappy by her marriage with Philip of Spain.

Peter the Great was half crazy most of his life through drink and rage.

George IV was greatly vexed for years by carbuncles on his face, caused by secret drinking.

Mary Queen of Scots became bald in middle life and was forced to hide the blemish with a wig.

Edward I of England was annoyed by his great height. His subjects dubbed him Long Shanks.

Charles XII of Sweden was ungovernably rash. He often regretted his impetuosity, but never reformed it.

Henry VIII was for years troubled with constantly recurring carbuncles. Their number and virulence finally killed him.

Alexander the Great had a hereditary tendency to drunkenness that embittered his whole life. His father was very intemperate.

During a heavy cyclone the other day, two hogs and a fat goose, belonging to Sam Wainscott, were blown from his barnyard in Peoria, Ill. These very pigs and the companion goose, according to the dispatches, are now in Ellwood, Indiana, in the barnyard of T. J. Hancock, where they were dropped by the cyclone which swept over the city at that time. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when Hancock was aroused from his sleep by the storm. He went out into the barn to look after his stock, and his attention was attracted to the clouds, in which he saw, during a lightning flash, the pigs and goose. Suddenly they dropped to the ground in his yard, and the next morning they were as lively as usual, having suffered only slightly during their perilous trip of 207 miles through the air. Hancock wrote to Mr. Wainscott, asking for a description of the missing pigs and goose, and it tallies perfectly with that of the animals in Mr. Hancock's possession. This is the best story of the year.

The question of the validity of the Coyote Scalp Act was argued before Judge Caltin of Sacramento last week. The matter was the mandamus proceedings instituted by J. W. Ingram of Kern county to compel State Controller Colgan to draw his warrant in favor of the petitioner for the amount of his claim as approved by the Supervisors. The State filed a demurrer to the petition. The argument was on the demurrer. The Attorney-General contended that the Controller could not draw his warrant until the State Board of Examiners had allowed the claim. The Attorney-General also argued that for the State to pay the scalp bounty would be the nature of a gift, which the Supreme Court has decided in other cases the State has not the authority to do under the constitution. Another point raised was that the Legislature had provided no appropriation for the purpose. Counsel for Ingram argued in contravention of the State, after which Judge Catlin took the matter under advisement.

A tramp giving his name as Lacey J. Baird arrived in Knoxville, Tenn., the other day and asked to be admitted to the City Hospital, as he was sick. A few hours afterward A. L. Sharrack, Land Commissioner of the Burlington Railroad system, arrived in the city in search of Baird, whom he had followed 10,000 miles to get his signature to a deed for a valuable piece of land in Edgemont, S. D. Sharrack went to the hospital and in a few minutes paid Baird $500 for property which lies in the heart of Edgemont and is valued at $100,000. Baird left Dakota several years ago after having paid for the property and has been a tramp ever since. The Burlington Railroad Company has spent hundreds of dollars trying to locate him.

She—Kiss me again.

He—My dear, I've just kissed you seventeen times in seventeen seconds.

She (reproachfully)—Harold, you love another.

LATE NEWS OF INTEREST

Frost in Sonoma county last week injured the vineyards to the extent of $10,000.

To raise funds for the Pullman strike the American Railway Union assesses each of its 380,000 members 3 cents a week.

John Smith, who underwent a preliminary examination for the murder of Mrs. Lucnas at Wilmington, was discharged from custody in Los Angeles last week, the evidence being insufficient to hold him.

Many thousand sheep were frozen to death in Fresno county last week by the unprecedented cold weather. One flock of 4,000 was found frozen to death in one heap, where they had tried to find shelter from the snow among a clump of trees.

The Supreme Court has handed down an opinion affirming the judgment of the lower court in favor of the defendant in the case of W. P. Lynch, Assessor of Butte county, vs. Butte county, to compel that county to reimburse him to the amount of $2,400, which he paid out for the services of four deputies to complete the assessment roll of the county for 1892. The Supreme court holds that Lynch has no cause of action.

The sentiment in favor of further and more closely restricting immigration to the United States grows and crystallizes. One Congressman has introduced a bill providing that aliens shall not enter after January 1st next, except they present a United States Consular certificate affirming that the Consul nearest the late residence of the immigrant has examined into his case, and knows that he does not belong to the class debarred by the Act of March 1, 1891, relative to importation of aliens under contract to perform labor, or to the classes excluded by any other law.

It has been decided at brigade headquarters to hold a camp of instruction between August 18th and 28th. Both the Seventh and Ninth regiments will camp together. A committee has been appointed to select a suitable camp ground with due regard to securing cheap transportation for the troops to some point within reasonable distance of Los Angeles. It is expected that there will be 1,000 men in camp, and this means the expenditure of from $12,000 to $15,000 in the place selected.

Between $30,000 and $40,000 worth more of machinery from Stuttgart, Germany, has arrived at the Chino beet-sugar factory. This makes the total amount of machinery, boilers and apparatus received at Chino this season about $129,000. The grand total for improvements, labor, additions, etc., at the factory this year will be over $225,000 before the beet season opens. The refinery part of the factory is to be so improved that it can refine 200 barrels of sugar a day if necessary.

The cutter Valkyrie, formerly owned by Lord Dunraven, foundered off the coast of Africa. All on board were drowned. Lord Dunraven sold the Valkyrie to an Italian, and she recently competed in the Mediterranean regatta. The Valkyre was considered one of the finest yachts ever produced by Great Britain, but she proved a disappointment, and Dunraven disposed of her. She was not the boat, however, which competed for the America's cup against the Vigilant last year.

Detective Len Harris, the noted Southern Pacific detective, who was shot by Chris Evans last year, was shot by a highwayman at Boulder Creek, in the northern part of the State, last week, and died a day or two later at his home in San Francisco, whither he had been conveyed for treatment. Harris had been given a tip that the railroad station at Boulder Creek would be robbed, and he concealed himself in the station. The robber appeared and commanded the agent to throw up his hands. Harris stepped out from his hiding-place and was shot in the abdomen by the robber. The latter escaped.

Four big distilleries located near Fresno have been under surveillance of the revenue officers for several weeks past, and are now liable to confiscation for serious violations of the revenue law. Collector Wellborn for two or three weeks has been investigating all four establishments and some days ago a report detailing the results of the inquiry was forwarded to Washington. The specific revenue law violated by the four distillers provides that the usual bonds required of distillers must be furnished by persons having no interest whatever in the distilleries. It is charged that the real owners of the distilleries in question operated them under the names of their employees and furnished the bonds themselves. The government officials have decided to allow a compromise and the distilleries will probably not be confiscated. The four distilleries have a capacity of 500 gallons daily.

Carrie Wendel has been held by the Chicago Grand Jury for the murder of Joseph P. Royal. She lay on a couch during the inquest, and was not sworn. She made a statement regarding Royal and his record, which shows the murdered man up as a deep villain. His real name was Ryan and his father live near Savannah, Ga. She had nursed him when he had been wounded in shooting affrays. He killed a Denver man in a duel in North Carolina three years ago, and was shot through the lung. She went to him from St. Paul. She cared for him a year later, when he was shot above the eye in Savannah. Royal generally carried two revolvers and a dirk. The trouble between them was caused by the knowledge which came to her a short time ago that he had another wife living, to whom Royal said he must go. Fear of being deserted preyed upon her mind until she became irresponsible. Miss Wendel will be kept at the county hospital until able to be removed to jail. Her sister is with her day and night.

Emily Freeman, the young girl from Denver and Sacramento, who arrived in San Francisco a few days ago in the belief that she was the daughter of James Mooney, who was stolen from her parents at the carpenters' picnic at Belmont, eleven years ago, and that she had at last found her parents, is now convinced that she is not the lost Annie Mooney. The Mooneys were not satisfied, and the girl was in doubt. They all knew that Mary Cuneo, the woman in whose custody the child spent the years of her earliest recollection, could solve the mystery, if she only would. The Mooneys and the girl went to the Home for Inebriates, where drunken Mary Cuneo is confined, and implored her to tell them the truth. Cuneo, who had regained her senses, finally threw off the mysterious air, which she has all along maintained concerning the girl, and talked freely. The girl, she declared, is her own daughter and was born in the Stockyards at Chicago in 1874. Andrew Cuneo and Clara Cuneo of No. 166 Franklin street, Chicago, were godfather and godmother to her. They are wealthy and the girl has money waiting for her in Italy. Mary Cuneo detailed the story of the child's life up to the time the little girl was taken from her in Sacramento on account of her dissolute habits.

Lodge introduced in the Senate a resolution authorizing the appointment of five Senators to investigate the charge of attempted bribery of Senators in connection with the pending tariff bill, and also the charges published by a Philadelphia paper containing allegations relating to the influence of the Sugar Trust upon tariff legislation. Rumors of the use of money to influence action on the tariff bill have been circulated, but heretofore received little attention. Intimation that money consideration could be secured for votes against the tariff had been made to the clerks of Senators Kyle and Hunton by a North Dakota lobbyist, formerly a member of Congress from a Southern State and who was identified with the carpet-baggers. It was represented that Kyle would receive $14,000, and $10,000 would be retained by a go-between as commission. McFarlane, Kyle's clerk, promptly informed Kyle, who was in South Dakota, and he promptly returned to Washington. It is scarcely possible that any syndicate controlling money necessary to attempt the purchase of votes would entrust it to a man who approached clerks.

THURSDAY........................MAY 24, 1894

ACCORDING to the annual report of the City Clerk, which we publish in another column this morning, there is a surplus in the city treasury in favor of the city, after deducting all bills contracted during the year, amounting to $2,164 63. The total revenues of the city from all sources during the year have amounted to $10,159 64, and the disbursements $7,102 26. The revenue derived from the sale of water for the year has been $2,002 50, less the Marshal's commission of $100 12 for collecting, leaves a net balance of $1,902 38. This is a very good showing. Indeed it is doubtful if a more satisfactory yearly statement was ever submitted to the people of the city.

The approximate running expenses of the city water works amounted to $1,615 75, which leaves a net profit from the work of $286 63. The city is supplied with thirteen fire hydrants and four sprinkling hydrants. The total property owned by the city is reckoned at $14,160. The cost of lighting the city for the year ending May 1st was $355 10, or an average cost of each lamp of $9 10.

The report shows the finances of the city to be in a healthy condition, and should be perused with interest by the taxpayers of the city.

THE Los Angeles Herald laments the disposition observable on the part of some newspapers to usurp the functions of the courts in trying and convicting or acquitting people charged with crime. It declares the practice "bad for the community," which is doubtless true, and adds:

This is all bad business, and the worse because it is foreign to the mission of the press. The press is supposed to be run as the exponent of truth. The newspapers are quite as necessary to the best interests of the people as are the courts or the lawyers, but in a wholly different way. Each has its own proper sphere and the bench cannot usurp the functions of the press or vice versa without injury to the cause of justice.

This is all very fine; but what of the Herald's attempt, some time ago, to convict Abran Aguilar of the crime of killing his runaway wife? Was not the Herald's reporter the most hysterical of the whole lot in his inveterate rancor against the accused man, and the most insistent in his endeavor to cast opprobrium upon him? And weren't his views backed up by the able editorial writers of that robust journal? If we recollect right, it seems to us that they were. Yet this man was proven clearly innocent in the end, and allowed to come home after paying several hundred dollars for his freedom. And but for the insane utterances of the Los Angeles papers, each and all of them eager for a "sensation," and all of them led by the Herald, it is doubtful if his incarceration had exceeded a day, instead of his being kept in prison for weeks. But for the Herald's utterances, no mob would have collected to string him up to the nearest telegraph pole, and it would not have been necessary for him, leaving his home and friends, and fearful of his life, to ask for a pistol with which to defend himself. As our recollection comes to us, we believe the Express was also most anxious to be the first to "give the news," and print all that was bad about this unlucky chap, who had a close call for his neck—a very close call indeed. Yet he had all along the strongest evidence in support of his avowal of innocence, but these were put in the background and referred to doubtfully, and there seemed to be a preconcerted notion on the part of the papers and police to convict him.

O yes, it is all very fine to decry the practice of "trial by newspaper," when it is undertaken by others, but the Herald beholds the mote in the other fellow's eye, and considers not the beam in its own.

PERHAPS the greatest fiasco of the year is the Examiner's story of the Decker case at Yreka. Twenty-seven years ago he separated from his wife, and they afterwards obtained a divorce. Recently the discovery of a lot of bones near his place gave rise to the very curious notion that he had killed her, and in a short time ten or eleven other murders were laid at his door. Decker was placed in jail, narrowly escaping the customary red-handed mob, and for a time was said to be visited nightly by the ghosts of his even dozen victims. His cries could be heard out on the street, so the veracious reports of the Examiner ran, and the other solitary inmate of the jail was all but frightened to death and could not sleep a wink over the unfortunate Decker's strange carryings on. Of a sudden Mrs. Decker appears upon the scene with her grown daughter, whom Decker was charged with having slain when a child, and the incoming trains, at last reports, contained an increasing multitude of arrivals eager to testify to never having been killed by this man. Both Decker and his wife had married again, the lady being ahead of him in the race, she having married twice since they separated, and both have raised large families of children, all of whom are doing well. Perhaps the Examiner has the names of other people whom Decker murdered, and it might be well to trot them out while the crowd is still at Yreka.

WE hear a report to the effect that the "Half-way Saloon" is to be moved to the edge of this precinct where the proprietor will set up in business and ask for a license to carry on a saloon. This will hasten the prohibition doctrine. It is not absolutely necessary for us to have the "Half-way house"—we can get along abundantly well without it. Furthermore, if this man should be allowed to set himself up in the saloon business on the edge of the precinct, we have no doubt petitions will be extensively signed under the local option law to close him up, and the same may affect the saloons in this city. This "Half-way house" was driven out of Fullerton; we do not care to have it in our precinct.

WE are in receipt of a letter from a gentleman living in Riverside county saying that he will not be responsible for any debts contracted by his wife, who is supposed to be residing in this city. These are very interesting notices, but they must be paid for in advance, and as the disconsolate Riverside county gentleman has failed to materialize in this important particular, the notice fails to appear.

THE act of Mr. Royal Freeman, the Republican County Tax Collector, in awarding the printing of the delinquent tax-list to a paper at Santa Ana without asking bids for the work from the other newspapers of the county, as has all along been the practice since the organization of the county, is a piece of official corruption that will scarcely be countenanced by the taxpayers of the county these hard times. The publication of the tax-list is one of the largest printing contracts of the year, and the interests of economy are best subserved by asking for bids for doing the work. This has always been done in Orange county, and to the fact that the various offices have been thus economically administered is the favorable financial condition of the county in great part due. If Mr. Royal Freeman shall say that this practice shall discontinue, and that in future the various departments of the county shall be run for what there is in them to political favorites, we opine the people will rise in their might and have a word or two to say regarding his candidacy for re-election. Mr. Freeman's course is censurable to the last degree, as corrupt politics. He will be a difficult pill for the Republican County Convention to swallow when he comes up for renomination. We think that so far as the nomination is concerned he may hang up his harp on a willow tree.

The contract with the Orange County Herald, which Freeman has awarded the printing of the list, to the exclusion of asking bids from the other papers of the county, stipulates, we believe, that the work shall be "seventy-five cents per square." The tax-list appears three times. Is this rate of "seventy-five cents per square" for one insertion, or three? If Freeman gave this printing contract to the Herald at 75 cents when the Blade offered to do the work for 10 cents per square, his act calls for an indignant protest from every taxpayer in the county.

A MALICIOUS JOB.

COUNTY TAX COLLECTOR FREEMAN LETS THE CONTRACT FOR PRINTING THE TAX LIST WITHOUT ASKING FOR BIDS.

Santa Ana Blade, May 22.

It has been the custom in Orange county, as is the rule in other counties, to let the contract for advertising the delinquent tax list to the lowest bidder, after calling for proposals in a public way. It is a contract involving the expenditure of a large sum of money, and to call for competitive bids is the only honest and business-like way of getting the work done. To do otherwise raises the presumption that there is a job by which the treasury is made to suffer, and when we find that the contract is let in a hole-and-corner way for more than seven times as much as it is worth, that presumption becomes a certainty.

This year Tax Collector Freeman has chosen to disregard the established practice, and without saying a word to any newspaper publisher in the county, except the one he favors, he has let the contract for seven and one-half times as much as it can be done for.

DONE IN SECRET.

Mr. Freeman, in pursuance of his hole-and-corner tactics, let the contract for printing the delinquent list to the Orange county Herald at the rate of seventy-five cents a square. That is the highest rate allowed by the county ordinance fixing county rates, and it may be presumed that if the ordinance allowed one dollar a square, Mr. Freeman would have pressed the limit. As soon as the publisher of the Blade learned from Mr. Freeman what had been done he proceeded to make the following proposal:

SANTA ANA, CAL., May 1, 1894.

To R. L. Freeman, Tax Collector Orange County:

I hereby offer to print the delinquent tax list of Orange county for the current year in the Daily Evening Blade for ten (10) cents per square, legal measurement.

EDWARD F. CAHILL, Publisher.

The actual cost of setting the type for this work, paying printers full rates, is 7½ cents a square. The Blade did not want to make anything on the contract, and offered to do the work for 2½ cents over the cost to cover incidentals.

BUYING NEWSPAPERS.

When this offer was submitted Mr. Freeman came to the Blade office and said we could have the contract provided that in addition to fulfilling the legal requirements, furnish his office with 500 copies of the paper every day for three weeks. The Blade was entirely willing to fulfill all the legal requirements of the contract but refused to furnish the 500 copies demanded. Mr. Freeman has no power and no authority to make contracts for the purchase of newspapers, and if he has made a contract to that effect with the Herald as he says, that paper may find some difficulty in collecting its bill.

On this flimsy and transparent pretense Mr. Freeman refused to give the contract to the Blade. The Herald, he said, had agreed to give him 500 copies of three issues of the paper for distribution, and because the Blade would not furnish him 500 extra copies of eighteen issues he felt himself justified in letting the contract at seven and-a-half times what it can be done for and all the legal requirements fulfilled.

HE IS A CANDIDATE.

Mr. Freeman says he is a candidate for nomination of the Republican party to succeed himself. It may be doubted whether that party will dare to load its ticket with a man with the record of a job like this, but if the court house ring has got the slate fixed then the people may be trusted to administer a rebuke at the polls.

The farmers are selling their eggs at ten cents a dozen, and find it hard to get that. Mr. Freeman puts his hand in their pockets and makes them pay seven and-a-half prices on a big job.

CHICAGO, May 19.—Miss Beatrice Harraden of London, author of "Ships That Pass in the Night," is in the city on her way to California. She is a guest at the house of C. L. Williams, in Oak Park. She is a slender little woman, with great brown eyes, sun-browned complexion and a languor of manner that does not at all comport with the activity of her mind. Her thick black hair is worn short and parted at one side.

She had little to say of herself or her work, except that she could not understand why the general public had taken up her book. She would have been disappointed, she said, if the book had been an artistic failure, but she cannot see what there is in it to set the public agog. She doesn't think she is great enough to make a plot and likes to let her stories write themselves.

Miss Harraden likes America and of course, says she thinks Chicago is great. She will go West and live on a ranch near San Diego till she gets tired of it, after that she doesn't know what she will do. She is traveling alone.

Counsel for Richard Heath, charged with the murder of Louis B. McWhirter, appeared before Judge Webb asking for a continuance of Heath's third trial, which had been fixed for June 19th, in consequence of W. W. Foote, the accused's counsel, being confined to bed by an accident which would prevent him from appearing in court before the first of September. It was agreed that Heath's counsel should make a final motion on the 28th for postponement on the indictments, and they will consequently not be reached until next fall. Foote recently fell and broke his leg.

A story comes up from Warner's ranch about an unusual kitten they have there. It is mostly a good-looking kitten of a gray complexion and is of regular shape from the tail forward to just beyond the ears, where it begins to grow into two kittens. It has almost four eyes and two distinct and well-formed mouths, two sets of teeth, two tongues and two tuneful howls. Two of the eyes occupy separate sockets at the side of the head and two more occupy one socket in the center of the head. Another peculiar thing is that the kitten was born with its eyes open. Its mother did not like it from the first and refused to nurse or notice it.

The Phantom City of Glacier Bay.

During the past eight or ten years a curious phenomenon has been observed at Glacier bay, Alaska. It always occurs immediately after the full moon of June and at no other time during the year and is said to be a beautiful mirage of some unknown city suspended in the rarefied air directly over the bay. A Juneau (Alaska) photographer has taken pictures of it on four different occasions, but so far no one has been able to identify a single one of the ghostly buildings outlined on his plates.—St. Louis Republic.

A BLOODY PRIMARY.

HANFORD, Cal., May 22.—Word has reached here that a little battle occurred yesterday during the progress of a Republican primary at Dallas school house, eighteen miles south, which resulted in the death of James McCaffrey at the hands of Wm. Ryan. James O. Ryan, father of Wm. Ryan, was mortally wounded. Half a dozen men are said to have been in the battle, and no less than fifty shots were fired. Officers and physicians have gone to the scene of the tragedy.

The voting had just commenced when William Ryan offered to vote and was challenged by W. P. McCord. The challenge brought on a dispute and soon half a dozen men in the room were engaged in fighting. J. O. Ryan attempted to draw a pistol and was knocked down by W. P. McCord. The two Ryans left the room, and when outside, young Ryan began to fire at those in the house. A farmer named James McCaffrey received a shot through the abdomen which killed him on the spot. During the fight J. O. Ryan was shot, the ball entering the right side. He declared that George McCord fired the shot that hit him. Young Ryan says he shot at McCord, but hit McCaffrey.

BRECKINRIDGE.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge was seen to-day about a report that a delegation of prominent Kentuckians intended to come here and urge him to withdraw from the race for Congress in favor of his son, Desha. Breckinridge said: "I have heard the rumor. They can say for me that the old man will be in Congress next time. After that the young man will be allowed to take his chance in the race. But for the present I am still in it."

LEXINGTON (Ky.), May 21.—Hon. W. C. Owens to-day delivered his initial speech in his anti-Breckinridge campaign to the people. Fully three hundred women were present, wearing Owens badges. The applause was almost continuous throughout the speech, showing that Owens was well received. He said 60,000,000 people were awaiting the verdict of the citizens of the Ashland district, in this case, and he hoped, for the injured manhood and womanhood of the State, that the voters would do their duty and not sulk in their tents, and go to the polls and vote against this burning disgrace.

A most disastrous flood occurred at Hankow, China on April 20, news of which has just been received. The river Han rose rapidly about midnight, coming up in the first hour six feet. The loss of life at Hankow was more than one hundred, while at points higher up the stream the fatalities were far more numerous. The total deaths number more than five hundred.

About midnight on the date mentioned an enormous volume of water came down the Han, carrying with it undoubted proofs of the destruction which it must have caused on its way, in the shape of broken furniture, planks, beams, wreckage, etc. Very few junks, of which thousands are moored in the mouth of the Han, were able to stand the strain. Most of them broke loose, crashing into each other. The crashing of planks and beams, right and left, the yelling of boatmen, mixed with the cries of those whose craft were wrecked, who were struggling in the water, and who were being crushed between the wreckage and the disabled junks, combined to render the scene one of the most indescribable turmoil and confusion. About eight hundred junks of various sizes were destroyed and many of the watermen lost their lives.

Native reports from Yang-Lo are to the effect that over four hundred dead bodies have been washed ashore there and it is likely that many more will be found.

SALT LAKE, May 21.—The horrible condition of Chinese opium den depravity as it exists in this city was plainly portrayed in the Police Court to-day, when Fon Gee, the proprietor of a Second-South-street joint, was on trial. The accused has long been suspected as a conductor of a house where the extract of the poppy plant is smoked by white women. For days and nights the place was under official surveillance. Women came and women went. Evidence accumulated, and early yesterday morning Patrolmen Gillispi, Roberts and Ford raided the house. The story of the viciousness and utter abandon related by the arresting officers beggars description. Two white women were found lying on the floor, completely under the influence of the drug, and almost in a nude state. With Fon Gee they were taken to the city jail. The Chinaman was charged with maintaining an opium joint and the women as being resorters. Fon Gee's case was concluded before Judge Smith this afternoon. Fon declared that he was innocent. He was sent to jail for fifty days.

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—In the coyote scalp case of Ingram vs. Controller Colgan for a writ of mandate to compel that official to issue his warrant on account of a coyote scalp claim in Kern county, Judge Catlin to-day handed down a decision deciding in favor of the claimant. Judge Catlin held the Act of March 31, 1891, entitled "An Act fixing the bounty on coyote scalps," constitutional. That the title of the act sufficiently expressed its object and that the act does in substance contain an appropriation.

Scrofula Sores.

"My adopted boy, aged 14 years, suffered terribly from scrofula sores on his leg, which spread till they at one time formed one great sore from the calf of his leg up to his thigh, partially covered with scab, and discharging matter continually. The muscles became contracted so that his leg was drawn up and he could hardly walk. We tried everything we could hear of, without success, until we began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. In just a month, after he had taken two-thirds of a bottle, the sores entirely healed, his leg is perfectly straight, and he

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—The sudden departure of a popular minister with about $1,000 of borrowed money, the desertion of his wife and several children and the simultaneous disappearance of an attractive widow form a scandal which is raging in Placerville.

About eight months ago, Rev. T. M. Driver arrived in Placerville from the South to take the pastorate of the Methodist Episcopal Church there. He was accompanied to his new field by his wife and four children. The pastor about a week ago expressed a desire to go to a Methodist conference which was soon to begin in another part of the State. It was on this and similar representations that he was enabled to borrow, in sums ranging from $10 to $500, something in the neighborhood of $1000, but reports differ as to the aggregate.

THE WEEK'S NEWS.

Application for Reduction of City License.

Suggestion That the Saloon License Be Raised and That of the Merchants Lowered—City Fathers Listen to Arguments Concerning the Question at Their Tuesday Evening's Meeting—Modjeska Here—Memorial Day—Meeting of the Water Board—Are Stockholders Discriminated Against?—Other Items—Social Notes—Personal Mention.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular session at the City Hall on Tuesday evening. Present, Trustees Rust, Conrad, Helmsen, Lewis and McWilliams.

The Clerk read the minutes of the last regular meeting, which were approved as read.

The Finance Committee reported on the examination of various reports, which were found correct.

The Committee on Public Improvements reported that the bridges on the south end of Los Angeles street and Broadway and on the corner of Los Angeles and South streets were in dangerous condition. The committee had informed the water company about the same, but as yet the bridges have not been repaired. The leak in the water tank has not been stopped, but it does not leak so badly as formerly. The leak exists in the bottom of the tank and it will be a difficult job to remedy it. The tank will have to be retarred, and will be attended to as soon as it is convenient for the committee to get at it. The committee's report was received and filed and authority was given them to repair the bridges referred to and charge the expense to the water company.

The Ordinance Committee submitted Ordinance No. 98, which relates to the closing of the plaza at the intersection of Center and Palm streets, which was donated to the city by Mr. Langenberger in 1869. The ordinance also relates to the closing of certain streets on the plaza site, and further provides for the reversion of the land to acreage property. The ordinance will be passed at the next regular meeting of the board. The incidental expenses for reverting the land to acreage property will amount to $30, and the Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Garnsey of Los Angeles, who owns the property, to deposit that amount in bank here.

Bids for a city map were received as follows: S. E. Keiffer will make a map on a scale of 100 feet to an inch, 7x9 feet, showing everything except lot subdivisions, and containing all the data available of the present water system, together with the water company's ditches, if so desired, for $60. If subdivision of lots are to be shown the cost will be $75. Any additions made to the pipe system in future will be placed upon the map free of charge.

A. Broeger agreed to furnish a 7x9 map containing all blocks and streets, etc., but no subdivision of lots, for $50.

A misunderstanding existed between the bidders as to the embodying of ditches and lots upon the proposed map, and it was decided to ask for new bids.

Mr. L. Goldwater appeared before the board in behalf of a company which is desirous of putting in an electric light plant. Three or four arc lights would give as much light as the thirty-nine lanterns we now have, and the cost of each light would be about $10 per month. The electricity furnished to operate the plant could be used for various other enterprises, as doing pumping at the water works, and would be a decided improvement to our city. The lanterns used at present for lighting the city are barely worth keeping in repair, and in this prosperous era we ought to adopt more modern improvements. Towns throughout the State are putting in electric light plants and there is no reason why we should not keep up with the procession. The matter was left to the Committee on Public Improvements, which will act in conjunction with Mr. Goldwater and the plant will be put in if possible. They will report at the next meeting of the board.

Messrs. Rimpau, Cahen and Federman addressed the board in regard to securing a reduction in their licenses. The gentlemen now pay $5 per month, and a license of $2 50 was thought to be a sufficient monthly rate to carry on their business. The license ordinance provides that all stores doing a monthly business of not less than $2,000 nor more than $5,000, must be charged $5 per month, and the $2 50 rate applies to those whose monthly sales amount to not less than $500 nor more than $2,000.

Mr. Federman here suggested that the saloon license be raised, but Trustee Conrad objected, and while the other Trustees joined in the discussion, no action was taken. It may come up later.

The matter of reducing the dry goods license was referred to the Ordinance Committee, which will report at the next meeting of the board.

The Special Pump Committee reported that they are negotiating with a Cincinnati firm for a new pump, and will have word by the next meeting whether or not the same can be purchased. The committee was granted further time.

The bond of J. B. Pierce as Recorder with E. D. Marrion and John Pfeninger as sureties in the penal sum of $500 each was received. Owing to a mistake in the bond, the same was referred back to the Recorder for correction.

A letter from J. H. Claubaugh, agent of the Santa Fe, was received, asking for a bill for water furnished the packing and section houses on their property, and asking to have the same made as reasonable as possible, as they now pay for the water used at three different places on the property. There are nine people living at the section house, and the rate for that number was put at $2 per month, the packing house rate also coming to $2. All these have been using water for nearly two months, and the Marshal was instructed to present a bill for the same.

The Finance Committee reported having purchased 300 feet of 4-inch steel riveted pipe at 16 cents per foot f. o. b. Los Angeles, to be laid to the new residences on East Broadway, from the Los Angeles-street main. A fire hydrant will be placed at the corner of Broadway and Los Angeles streets as soon as the hydrant can be shipped here from the East.

The new inch-pipe line to be laid to Fred Crist's new dwelling on Broadway will be extended from the Olive-street terminus, a distance of 291 feet, as the distance from the Broadway main to the dwelling, from which point he requested the pipe to be laid, would be 830 feet, thereby necessitating too great an expense.

Trustee Lewis asked for a reduction in the water rate for livery stables. He pays $7 per month and considers it too high, and as the water work's receipts are now greater than the expenditures, he thought the rate could be conveniently shaved down all around.

The water ordinance needs revision. There are a number of parties using a great deal more water on lawns and gardens than they pay for, while others are overcharged. The matter was laid over until the next meeting, when the ordinance will be revised, or meters will be put in for the larger water users.

The Clerk was instructed to notify property owners to keep the streets clean in front of their property, in the failure to do which the city will do the work and charge the cost of the same to the delinquents' next assessment list. Everybody clean the streets!

Gus Davis wrote asking for a reduction in his license. He pays $2 50 per month and thinks the rate is too high. Referred back to him, with the request that he file an affidavit stating that he does not do enough business to warrant the payment of the $2 50 rate. Adjourned.

HARRY BLAKE'S OFFENSE.

—A young man named Harry Blake, hailing from the classic shades of Tustin, was fined $10 by Recorder Pierce on Monday for disturbing the peace and quiet of the people of this city the afternoon before. Blake and another gentleman from Tustin, who sported beautiful flowing side whiskers, drove down Center street under the influence of a jag, and when in front of 'Squire Pierce's temple of justice attempted to run over and demolish an unoffending fire hydrant situated there. The wheel ran up on the sidewalk and the progress of the buggy was impeded by the hydrant, when the driver started up his horse with the intention of pulling up the hydrant by the roots, when the horse became liberated from the rig and bolted down the road, throwing the occupants of the buggy out and demolishing the rig. Blake turned the air in his immediate vicinity a delicate parti-colored blue with his cuss words, and Marshal Steadman arrested him and was about to walk him off to jail when the astonished gentleman with side whiskers put up $10 bail for his appearance in court next day. The broken vehicle was patched up, the horse caught and both started home again. On Monday morning Blake showed up in court, and was fined in the amount of ten circulating simoleons of the realm.

MODJESKA HERE.

THE DISTINGUISHED TRAGEDIENNE VISITING FRIENDS HERE FOR A FEW DAYS.

Madame Modjeska, the distinguished tragedienne, who has lately closed a most successful starring tour through the East, arrived in Anaheim on Tuesday evening, and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. Langenberger at their palatial home on Sycamore and Lemon streets. On the second floor, over the parlor, a handsome suite of rooms are set apart and known as "the Madame's rooms," which are always at her disposal, and which are at present being occupied by the actress. With her is her husband, the Count Bozenta, familiarly referred to by his friends as "Mr." Bozenta, Miss Maud Durbin, of Modjeska's company, and the Madame's maid. The Madame's grandchild, who has been a guest at the house for some weeks past, and who on Tuesday came down to see the presses of this office in running operation, was an object of special interest to the Madame on her arrival, and he looked in return for her coming with the keenest interest.

The party remain here until to-morrow, when they go to Arden, Madame's country place in the Santiago canyon, where they will probably remain for a couple of months, resting amid the pastoral quietude of the mountain scene. After summering at Arden until the middle of July or the first of August, they go to San Diego for a brief trip, and thence to Europe and to their old home in Poland, to be abroad for some months. They return in time to take up the Madame's next winter tour, probably the latter part of the year. Modjeska contemplates giving only two more seasons on the stage, when she will retire.

Last evening the distinguished visitors were entertained at dinner by Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Bullard.

MEMORIAL DAY.

PROGRAMME FOR THE OBSERVANCE OF THE DAY AND DECORATION OF GRAVES NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Memorial Day will be observed by Malvern Hill Post, G. A. R., and citizens of this community generally in the usual time-honored fashion next Wednesday afternoon. There will be a parade of the Post, which will arrive from Fullerton, headed by the Fullerton brass band, at half-past two, at which time Company G, Seventh Regiment, N. G. C., will fall in and act as escort from the city to the cemetery. An effort is being made to have the various business houses declare a half holiday for the afternoon, and also to have the different lodges appoint committees to decorate the graves of their departed members while the soldiers' graves are being strewn with flowers.

The following circular from Malvern Hill Post gives the official programme:

HEADQUARTERS
MALVERN HILL POST, NO. 131,
DEPARTMENT OF CALIFORNIA, G. A. R.
FULLERTON, Cal., May 23, 1893.

Post will observe Decoration Day, May 30th, by decorating the graves of their dead comrades, who are buried in the Anaheim cemetery. The procession will be formed at Fullerton at half-past 1 o'clock P. M., led by the Fullerton brass band, and will arrive in Anaheim at half-past 2, where it will be joined by all the people of that city who wish to take part or witness the exercises. The programme at the cemetery will consist of music by the band, ritual service by Post, short addresses by Rev. French of Fullerton and Rev. Ward of Anaheim, appropriate vocal music by the Anaheim and Fullerton choirs; and the decoration of graves by the Post will conclude the services. The citizens of Fullerton and Anaheim are cordially invited to join with us in this memorial service. Everybody bring flowers. By order,
J. W. MCKENNEY, P. C.
J. H. CLEVER, Adjutant.

Next Sunday Rev. Beaizley will preach a memorial sermon at the Presbyterian Church, to which we are desired to say that all old soldiers, whether members of the G. A. R. or not, are invited to be present. The Post will fall in at Odd Fellows' Hall, and march to the church. Services will be at 11 o'clock.

MARRIAGE.

CORONA—AGUILAR—At Santa Ana, Friday, May 18th, 1894, by His Honor Judge Freeman, Ramon N. Corona, aged 25, to Senorita Romanita Aguilar, 20, both of this city.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me again very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant." For sale by J. Reid.

Coxey, Browne and Jones were sentenced on Monday to twenty days' imprisonment in jail for displaying a banner in the Capitol grounds at Washington on the occasion of the May-day demonstration. Coxey and Browne were also sentenced to pay a $5 fine or ten days' imprisonment for trespassing on the Capitol grounds.

Constable Fleckinger, who killed "Colonel" Paisely of the Industrial Army, during the fight of 'Wealers and peace officers at Rocklin last week, has been acquitted.

A heavy attachment was levied by the Sheriff upon the property of Mathew Gage of Riverside Saturday. The action was brought by the Pacific Bank of San Francisco to recover a loan of $90,000, and is levied upon Gage's home place of seven and one-half acres at Riverside, the 178 inches of water in the Gage canal, which he reserved at the time that property was conveyed to the Riverside Trust Company, and his interest in the same company.

THE WATER BOARD.

HUGO WETZEL CLAIMS TO BE DISCRIMINATED AGAINST IN THE SCALE OF WATER PRICES.

The water board met in regular session on Saturday afternoon; present Directors Crowther, Amerige, Nebelung, Spencer and Ryan; absent McFadden and Botsford.

Mr. Spencer of the ditch committee reported on the continuation of the cementing of the ditch from East street west to Fairview, recommending Santa Ana street down to Werder's east line, thence west to the intersection of the old ditch running south. The engineer was instructed to make a survey of the route, and draw up plans and specifications, upon which bids may be asked and the work constructed as suggested by the ditch committee. The ditch will run from East street west to Fairview, a distance of two and a quarter miles, but it will probably be a couple of weeks or more before the work begins. The loss in the present ditch is such that it takes four heads of water at East street to get a single head down to Fairview.

Messrs. Ward and Coombes of the Gray Bros. cementing firm appeared before the board in reference to the charge of non-fulfillment of contract in the cementing of the East-street ditch. It is charged that the cementing on one side of the ditch is not quite up to the requisite thickness, being in places 2½ to 3½ and in some places 3¾ inches in thickness instead of four inches. It is claimed by Messrs. Ward and Coombes that this irregularity was caused by the inexperienced tampers. The matter was finally referred to the Ditch Committee with power to act, in conjunction with the engineer and attorney of the company.

The continuation of the cementing of the South Branch ditch west from Browning's corner to Brookshurst was discussed, the opinion of the board being that if a sufficient number of shares of stock be sold covering the land in that neighborhood, the ditch would be cemented as suggested; but that until such time it would be good policy to allow the ditch to remain as it is. On motion, the cementing of the South Branch ditch was ordered to cease at Browning's corner.

Engineer Lum submitted plans of a cut near Flume 7, where it is intended to straighten out the ditch from the form of a letter S to a straight line. The plan was adopted, and the same filed.

The committee on lumber was continued, to interview Mr. McFadden of Santa Ana regarding bonds and lumber.

The Superintendent had no report to make, but said a break had occurred in the upper ditch at the point where the Santa Fe track crosses the ditch near Horseshoe Bend. The break was occasioned by a squirrel hole. At this point there are about 700 feet of gravely strata, and there is a constant loss of 150 inches of water while passing over the place. The ditch caved last year and delayed trains for some time, and all engineers are cautioned to run slowly over it. It was suggested that a conference be had with the railroad company to change the aspect of affairs. The President was instructed to interview the railroad Roadmaster and agree upon a course mutually satisfactory to both parties.

Mr. Spencer brought up the matter of the gate at Cheeseman's store, and stated that the irrigators in that neighborhood are subjected to considerable annoyance on account of the boys meddling with the gate. They wanted a new gate put in the ditch some distance north of the store, and Mr. Kelly appeared for them in support of the same. The board decided that the only way in which a new gate could be put in was for the irrigators themselves to pay for it; that it would be establishing a dangerous precedent for the company to pay for the work, inasmuch as they would probably be swamped with petitions for gates from all over the district. The matter was finally referred to the Superintendent with power to act.

Hugo Wetzel appeared before the board, in conjunction with Henry Hetebrink, and stated that the irrigators in his section are being discriminated against in the schedule of water rates adopted by the company. The price this month is sixty cents, and the supply begins at the lower end of the ditch, and irrigators are gradually supplied until the run reaches those at the head of the ditch. Mr. Wetzel held that by reason of the large demand for water, the zanjero would not reach him on this run before the first of next month, when an advance to eighty cents in rates goes into effect. He may be able to get water this month in time for the sixty cent rate, but certainly not next month nor the month after; and the break in the ditch made it problematical whether he could get water this month. The irrigators to the north are therefore being discriminated against in the rules fixing the rates by the month, and he held the price should be the same all over the district per run, so that one stockholder shall have water at the same price as the others.

Mr. Amerige said that the rule works both ways. When the price of water is declining and the upper irrigators are not served until the following month, they have the benefit of the reduced rate going into effect that month.

Mr. Wetzel replied that when the price of water was lowering there was evidently no demand for it, but, when it was rising it was different, and his neighbors wanted to be put on an even plane with the other stockholders.

No action was taken, and Mr. Wetzel stepped back to confer with Mr. Hetebrink, and the board passed to the consideration of the engineer's plans of the proposed new cut at Flume 7, when the former gentleman stepped up and asked the board if they had voted upon his proposition to change the water rates from the present fluctuating monthly scale, to the old manner of fixing the price per run.

The Chairman—No, sir; no action has been taken. The rates remain as they were.

Mr. Wetzel—Will some one please make a motion, to see how the board stands on this question?

The Chairman (rapping him to order)—This board is abundantly able to take care of itself, sir; it wishes no interference from outside parties.

Mr. Wetzel and Mr. Hetebrink withdrew, the water schedule remained as it was, and the board adjourned.

Fresh ranch butter at Isaac Lyons.

While the performance of the lions was going on Sunday in Boone's at the Midwinter Fair the fierce lion Parnell seized Boone's valuable dog Nero and started to tear him to pieces. After firing five shots from his revolver close to the lion's nose without making him loose his hold, Boone beat off the animal with a crowbar. The dog will probably die. This is the lion that killed his keeper some weeks ago, and this was his first appearance in the arena since that time.

A week ago Monday the pastor left presumably for the conference. It was soon discovered that the widow had followed him. Driver has written a letter from Lodi to the church officers resigning the pastorate and the office has been declared vacant. It is said he will be brought back and prosecuted. He leaves his family destitute and an eighteen-year-old daughter is at death's door as a result of the scandal.

Kleinigkeiten.

—There was a report on the street yesterday that the Commercial Hotel property would shortly change hands.

—The sprinter Pulley beat Morris in the footrace in Los Angeles Saturday, and many Santa Ana sports are "soaking their sparks to eat on."

—The John A. Pirtle Real Estate and Trust Company of Los Angeles has purchased the issue of the Olive school bonds, amounting to $6,000 at 6 per cent, at par.

—The Christian church is raising money to erect a fine church building on their lot on West Center street. We are informed they are meeting with good success.

—Dr. Perdomo having purchased the lot adjoining his property on the north, is now engaged in fencing it. The Doctor is never so happy as when improving his holdings.

—Shipments of oranges have been retarded for some time past, owing to the unsatisfactory prices East, but it is expected that all the remaining fruit will be shipped out by the end of next week.

—Veit Bentz won the suit of clothes in the drawing last week, for some weeks previously the suits having been drawn by Fullerton ticket holders. When Bentz gets on his new togs, he'll be easy the dude of the gang.

—See the change in Herman Dickel's advertisement. His stock of groceries, hard ware, etc., is comprehensive and well selected, is being added to constantly, and prices are lower than ever.

—Mr. Witte informs us that he has about decided to take an appeal in the irrigation case from Judge Towner's decision declaring the tax levy illegal. He is of the firm opinion that the upper court would reverse the decision.

—The iron front of Mrs. Koll's new brick block has arrived and was yesterday placed in position. The building is being pushed toward completion rapidly, and will be ready for occupancy before many weeks are over.

—Knowlton & Fox, the painters, are painting and varnishing Prof. Frantz's barber pole in white, gilt and black, and when it is placed in position this morning our readers will entirely agree with us that it is in every way a gorgeous creation. The pole is the handsomest ever seen in town.

—The ladies of the Methodist church will sell ice cream at Dr. Paschall's office on Center street next Wednesday afternoon and evening (Decoration Day). The ladies tell us this will be real ice cream, at 15 cents per plate, including cake, and the young ladies will entertain the customers as they are getting away with it. Two creams!

—The trust deed of the beet company to the Security Company of Hartford, Conn., which Mr. Glen represented on his recent visit to Anaheim, has been placed on record, mortgaging 3,000 acres of land hereabouts for $400,000 to be used in the erection of the sugar refinery.

—Louisa Burrows has begun suit for divorce from her husband Stephen Burrows. The couple live west of town, and are members of the Seventh Adventist faith. The hearing of the case is set for the 29th instant. The trouble is incompatibility of temper, the husband being aged and the wife young and fair.

—It is reported that Keller, who conducts the "Half-way House" near Fullerton, intends to move the building a quarter of a mile this way on the Fullerton road, which is the eastern limit of that precinct, and apply for a license in this precinct. The petition should not be granted.

—As we go to press we learn that Stern & Goodman, the enterprising Fullerton merchants, have bought out Cahen's grocery establishment, and will take charge of the same about the middle of June. The advent of these rustling business men will be hailed with delight by the people of this city.

—W. A. Rugg, recently from Los Angeles, has leased the old Journal outfit from Grandpa Holverson, and has started a seven-column folio weekly newspaper called the Independent, of Populist tendencies and well defined Prohibition ideas. Mr. Rugg has chosen a veritable Garden of Eden to settle in, and we hope his paper will fill a "long felt want," and his coffers be filled with dollars overflowing.

—Mr. C. G. Rogers of Iowa, brother of Mr. M. L. Rogers of this city, who has been on a visit here with his wife and daughter for some weeks past, took his departure yesterday for San Francisco where he will visit the Fair. They are all very much impressed with the delightful climate and the resources of California, and probably some day will become permanent residents of Anaheim.

—Property owners on Los Angeles street are moving to have cement sidewalks laid on that thoroughfare from Center street to Sycamore, and as soon as all the deeds to the walks are secured the work of improvement will begin. The house at the corner of Los Angeles and Cypress streets has been set back to make room for the sidewalk. The sidewalks are now for the most part an abomination, and the property owners show their good sense in going in for improvements.

—A man from the country jogged into town Monday afternoon at about 4 o'clock, and turning the corner at Federman's store, the king bolt of his vehicle dropped to the ground and the man came down in the street, the horse continuing along towards the opera house with the shafts and the front wheels as if nothing had happened. At the corner of Olive street the horse was caught by some boys and returned to its owner, who put the buggy together, got aboard and jogged out of town again.

—The Southern California Railway (Santa Fe route) is selling reduced rate tickets to Echo Mountain and Rubio Canyon, on the Mount Lowe railway, by way of Raymond and the Terminal line, and issues transportation either for the canyon or Wilson's Peak. This is one of the most interesting scenic routes in the country, and is just the place for a Sunday's outing. Echo Mountain and Rubio Canyon are reached by the Mount Lowe railway, and parties wishing to go to Wilson' Peak may travel burro-back some distance further on. The Santa Fe is also selling reduced fares to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado for the summer.

—Mrs. J. W. Towner, wife of the Superior Judge of Orange county, died after a brief illness at the family residence at Santa Ana last Saturday afternoon. She had been in failing health for some time, having never fully recovered from the effects of a runaway accident of some weeks ago, when the vehicle in which she and the Judge were riding was run into and upset by a runaway team. She was quite severely shaken up and injured at the time and it was impossible for her to recover. The funeral occurred on Monday, when the remains were taken to Los Angeles for cremation. Deceased was aged 65 years. The Judge has the sincere commiseration of the entire community in his bereavement.

—The Orange County Sunday School Association will hold its eleventh semi-annual convention at Reiser's Opera-house on Saturday, June 9th. All Sunday Schools in Orange county are requested to send delegates to the convention. Dr. J. D. Moody, of Los Angeles, superintendent of normal work, Southern California State S. S. Association, will give an address on "Normal Work in the Sunday School," followed by a thirty minutes' conference. A primary class exercise, conducted by Miss Elsie Aubert, will precede the discussion of this important department of Sunday school work. The home department will be explained by its originator, the Rev. Theophilus Beaizley. Music by W. Frank Harris and orchestra.

—It is understood the Fullerton saloons are still in full blast, and have raised a large sum of money with which to fight the recent order of the Supervisors denying their applications for licenses. They have been doing a rushing business, and are loath to let go of the snap. But the laws must be observed by these saloon men along with the rest of us, and if these places are kept open in defiance of law, some one of the proprietors will be made an example of with a dull sickening thud. Let the laws be enforced.

—Constable Ben Porter brought over a couple of brakebeam tourists one day last week and ushered them into the august presence of 'Squire Landell for sentence. One of them was from the slow town of Philadelphia, where the Judge also hails from, and he knew so many places familiar to the Judge, and called up so many happy recollections of the old lang syne, that he and his pal were successful in getting "floaters" out of town. Porter escorted them back to Fullerton and they left for the north trackwards.

—We print to day an advertisement calling a meeting of stockholders in the Anaheim Street Car Company. Some of the stockholders are in favor of selling the street car line, and it is for the purpose of ascertaining the wishes of all the stockholders that the meeting is called. It is not proposed, however, to sell the line without obtaining a guarantee from the purchaser that he will continue to operate the line for a number of years, the time to be decided by the stockholders. If no purchaser can be found who will accede to this condition, it is not likely that a sale will be made.

—In a note received from Mr. W. H. Bailey of San Francisco, President of the Olinda Ranch Co., he writes that he is glad to read of the improvements being made by the water company in the way of cementing ditches and improving the irrigation system. That seems to us to be the only way for our country to prosper. Let us settle the water question, cement the ditches and get to work on a businesslike basis. Mr. Bailey's ideas upon this interesting question are eminenty correct.

—The tent meetings under the auspices of the Christian church continue with unabated interest. On Sunday evening the tent was packed to its utmost capacity and scores were turned away unable to find seats. On Monday evening Rev. W. F. Cowdan, general manager of the Christian missions on the coast, spoke to a large and interested audience. Several have already been added to the congregation, and the ordination of baptism will be administered, to those who are candidates, on Friday afternoon at the Christian church at Orange. The meetings will continue each evening during the week except Saturday.

—Mr. L. H. Padgham, the jeweler, announces that owing to his continued ill-health he has decided to dispose of his entire stock of watches, jewlery and silver plated ware at auction, the sale to begin this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Pellegrin's old stand. The stock embraces a fine collection of Roger's knives, forks, spoons, souvenir spoons, Elgin, Waltham and Rockford watches, in gold filled and silver cases, and all kinds of novelties. The sale will continue every day at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 in the evening until the entire stock is closed out. Here is an excellent opportunity for our people to purchase a fine line of goods at cheap rates.

—Santa Ana is still wrestling with the liquor question, and at the last meeting of the City Trustees an ordinance was introduced which if passed would result in closing up the saloons as by a prohibitive act. The ordinance provided that a penalty of $50 be placed upon the selling or giving away of liquor without a license. It provided further that a bond be required of every saloon keeper in the amount of $5,000, and to exact from saloons a license of $1,000 per year for license; there were to be no chairs, no tables, no screens and no back rooms, and the saloons must close at 10 and not open up for the cocktail route earlier than 5 o'clock in the morning. Fortunately for the saloon men the ordinance was defeated, 3 to 2. Rather a close call.

—From our friend E. O. Gerberding of the Hueneme Herald we have received a neat little brochure entitled "What Congress Has Done." In a note accompanying the same Mr. Gerberding tells us the work, as we can readily imagine, caused him a vast amount of research as well as the expenditure of a vast amount of time. We had settled back and had prepared for a literary treat—knowing Br. Gerberding's capacity for a learned disquisition on the subject—when on opening the book we found it to contain—nothing, simply blank pages, that is all. The work is an epic.

—Frank Steadman's name has been mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for Sheriff. While Frank has made no effort in that direction, there is no doubt that he could secure abundant recognition in the convention, as he could probably get a solid delegation from this side of the river, and stand an excellent chance for the nomination. If the politicians in the camp of our friends the enemy do not preserve this important office for Santa Ana—or in other words if Theo. Lacy does not knock the persimmon himself—Frank should be on the inside track for the nomination, and once on the ticket he would run like a "scart wolf," or better. He is a good man in every way, and will do to keep an eye on.

—A meeting was held at the City Hall last Thursday evening by several citizens for the purpose of organizing a company to construct and maintain a race course near this city. The meeting adjourned, however, without accomplishing anything, not enough interest being taken in the matter to warrant immediate organization. It was determined to circulate a subscription list among the citizens who take an interest in the project, and it is possible that enough money will be subscribed to start operations. It is suggested that the Deutsch 20-acre lot may be secured and laid out in a half mile track and the inside to be used for a park and baseball grounds. The expense of putting the place in shape will cost about $400, and there will be a monthy expense account of about $35, besides the annual rental of the ground, which will amount to $100. The enterprise is a good one and quite a number of our citizens are using their best efforts to add this feature to the attractions of our city.

—Mr. L. Hache came over from Chino on Monday and remained until Tuesday afternoon. He is still somewhat indisposed from the effects of the accident in which Mr. Hamilton lost his life, and walks with a well defined limp. He informs us that while driving on the day of the accident they had come to a turn in the road, when Mr. Hamilton fired at a bird flying overhead. The horse bolted down the road, precipitating them both to the ground, injuring Mr. Hamilton so that he expired the following Thursday. Mr. Hache was himself severely injured and was confined to his room for a couple of weeks.

He finds the beets here looking well where they acquired a stand, and is of the opinion that we shall have two thousand acres of first-class beets. He finds, however, that some of the farmers have allowed their beets to grow up in places not more than three inches apart, when his instructions have been to thin them out eight to ten and in places twelve inches apart. If the farmers decide to make a success of beet culture they should follow directions scrupulously. Mr. Hache will be with us again next Monday, and he expects to remain during the entire week.

PERSONAL MELANGE.

Misses Lute Bailey and Margaret Trower go up to Los Angeles to-day on a "shopping" expedition.

Misses Cora Champlin and Irene Fleming visited with friends at Capistrano last Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. J. P. Zeyn returned from San Francisco on Tuesday evening, having enjoyed his trip to the Midwinter Fair very much indeed.

Herman Dickel has a young "Silkwood," upon which he prides himself very highly, and early any morning may be seen speeding the horse on the good roadways hereabouts.

Miss Marie Nicolas was tendered a very enjoyable surprise by her many friends at the family residence at Orangethorpe last Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served and at a late hour the party dispersed.

Miss Zoila Smythe leaves next week for San Francisco, where she will attend the session of the Grand Parlor, N. D. G. W. Miss Fannie Higgins leaves for the metropolis in a day or two to be present at the session and to visit with relatives and friends.

Mr. W. G. Potter of Centralia left on Tuesday for Oneida, N. Y., where he goes to attend the settlement of the estate of his brother, who expired last year and left a considerable income. Mr. Potter will be absent perhaps a couple of months.

Frank Dyer, who has been learning the barber trade at Prof. Frantz's establishment, is home for a few weeks tending to the cows and alfalfa while his brother is away. Frank was the dude of the gang while in town, but will probably have hayseed in his whiskers when he comes in again.

Mr. Goldwater's proposition to inaugurate an electric light plant in this city should meet with abundant favor with the people. The electric lights will cost but little more than the present antiquated gas lamps, and will result in attracting renewed attention to our city.

Mr. S. K. Holman left on Tuesday for Bay Shore, Long Island, to be absent during the summer. Mr. Holman takes with him his dog "Elko," which has accompanied him on his trips across the country several times already. "Elko" is a valuable dog, and it is doubtful if his master would sell him for a farm, especially during this dry weather. Mr. Holman's many friends here wish him a safe trip and a speedy return.

We were greatly surprised as well as gratified the other day at seeing George Lombard walk into the office, looking as well as ever. George has been absent for three or four years in the East, and has been ill for a considerable time, although he is again recovered and looking as hale and hearty as ever. He will probably settle down in California permanently, and go into the fruit business, in which he achieved such a distinguished success while with us years ago. He was not in California long before he came to Anaheim with his wife and child, to renew old acquaintances. We hope to see him in town often again.

Jake Stern was over from Fullerton yesterday with his brother Herman, who was on the ocean a year ago to-day coming over, and who talks English as well as a native. They are making arrangements for opening a general merchandise store in Anaheim and will either go into the Odd Fellows' block or will buy out one of the leading merchants of this city. The Odd Fellows' block is to be remodeled, the lower floor set down to the street line and cement sidewalks laid down in place of the present board affair. The Stern boys will make things hum when they get over here.

One of the most recherche events of the season was Mrs. Lionel Browning's progressive heart party given the afternoon of the 17th instant. Mrs. Browning, herself such an agreeable hostess, was assisted by several other ladies, whose joint endeavors succeeded in making the afternoon delightful to all present. The parlors of the Del Campo were artistically decorated by Mrs. Rust. The refreshments were palatable and bountifully served. The first prize, a gold and silver California souvenir spoon, was won by Mrs. Stearns. The progressive prize, a beautiful paper cutter of orange wood, was won by Mrs. Seeger, and Mrs. Mitchell took the booby prize. Those who were unable to accept Mrs. Browning's invitation missed a most enjoyable afternoon.

We had the pleasure of a call on Tuesday from Mr. W. J. Hunsacker, the well-known attorney of the Santa Fe Railroad Company. Years ago we knew this distinguished gentleman, when as a level-headed lawyer and afterward Mayor of the charming city of San Diego his fame spread beyond the confines of his county. Mr. Hunsacker has been a resident of Los Angeles for some years, and has occupied the responsible position of attorney of the Santa Fe for most of that time. He has a State-wide reputation as a lawyer, and is an estimable gentleman in every way. When Judge Brunson resigned as attorney of the Santa Fe, the railroad company selected Mr. Hunsacker as being the most able among the host of lawyers after the responsible office, and he has fulfilled his duties in a manner worthy of himself in every way. He was here taking depositions in the Yaeger damage case against the railroad, and returned to Los Angeles on the afternoon train.

J. H. Oman, who tends the semiphore below town, was in to see the sights and lay in a stock of groceries one evening last week. He comes to town on his railroad bicycle, and after he gets a start, he only touches the high places in transit. Oman used to be one of the best engineers in the employ of the Southern Pacific, but he met with an accident one day that crippled him for life. The roads were washed out, and as he was pulling a heavy freight train over a place where the track had been replaced temporarily, his engine went over in the ditch with him, piling up the cars in a great heap alongside the track. His arm and leg were broken, and he was otherwise very seriously injured. He was extricated from the wreck with difficulty, and taken to the hospital, and after weeks of suffering, was finally able to get out again. Many a man would have sued the road for damages, but Oman was made of different stuff, and although he never drove a locomotive again, has been steadily in the employ of the railroad ever since. He has a wife and two babies down at the semiphore, and he passes away the time signalling trains at the crossing and in bringing up the kids and his chickens in the way they ought to grow.

FREELAND PIONEERS.

They Have Gone to Find Their Valley of Eden In the African Wilderness.

Dr. Theodor Hertzka's plan to found an ideal commonwealth in east Africa is being carried into effect with great rapidity. Late in February the English members of the pioneer expedition to Mount Kenia left London for the continent, and a week ago the pioneer corps sailed for Mombasa, on the east African coast. Their ultimate object is to organize a colony in which land and capital will be free, and everybody will be well clothed, well fed, well sheltered and well educated. Their immediate object is to explore the land round their so called valley of Eden, on Tana river, and to select and limit exactly the territory which the colony or commonwealth of Freeland is to occupy.

Dr. Hertzka has been exceptionally successful in obtaining powerful patronage for his ventursome enterprise. Not only has the British government granted him land and moral support, but the Austrian authorities have also given the little band of reformers much encouragement and some money. The Royal Museum of Natural History in Vienna, for instance, has presented the pioneer expedition with the apparatus and instruments for procuring information and collections of the flora and fauna of the valley of Eden.

The Royal and Imperial Military and Geographical institute of Vienna, the South Kensington museum and other societies have also given practical proof of their interest in the explorations. All fresh knowledge will be promptly communicated to the Royal Geographical and other societies. Among other things the Freelanders have set themselves to do is to institute a regular service of small steamboats from the mouth of the river Tana to the limit of navigation, about 350 miles, and to carry on experiments in the domestication of the elephant and zebra.

GOOD LOOKS SAVED HER.

A Young Woman With Beautiful Hair Had a Peculiar Way of Stealing.

A young lady employed by a gold and silver smith in New York has only her good looks to thank for the fact that she was allowed to resign without being prosecuted for theft. She has an extraordinarily fine head of hair, which she allows to hang loosely over her shoulders and nearly down to her waist. From time to time it was noticed that the gold used in the room in which she worked did not go as far as it ought in making jewelry and gem settings, and that even allowing for the filings, which are most carefully preserved, there was a distinct leakage. Steps were taken to subject the employees to a more rigid search, but no discovery was made until the young lady with the long hair quarreled with her roommate over a love affair, and in a fit of jealousy her rival gave away the most interesting story.

The young lady had kept her hair well greased, and then while at work would frequently pass her fingers through it casually, as though it were a matter of habit. By the process she accumulated a good deal of gold dust in her hair and sometimes dropped some diamond chips as well. Every night she combed out her locks with the smallest of tooth combs, carefully collected the peculiarly purloined treasure trove and sold it without any difficulty. She broke down completely when taxed with the offense, made restitution as far as she was able, and her tears and promises were so profuse that she was then allowed to depart in peace, although her employers somewhat inconsistently took measures to prevent her obtaining further employment in the business in which she was an expert.—New York Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A STRANGE BREAK.

Under a Great Pressure a Bar of Iron Parts In Two Places.

At the Scranton shops of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad there were recently made some tests of wire rope and fastenings for it. One and a half inch steel cables are used in some of their mines, and these tests were made to determine whether or not the fastenings were as strong as the cables. Sockets with taper holes, known as rope cones, to receive the rope, and ending in a fork to fasten to the cage, are used. The rope is passed through the hole and the ends of the wires turned back, making a bushy head. Into this mass of twisted and doubled wire they pour lead or babbit metal.

The pieces were tested in their regular wheel press. It was soon proved that rope was amply strong, sustaining 70 tons with no other effect than a reduction of diameter owing to the compression of the soft center. Lead proved very soft for fastening the wires—they pulled through it. A composition of three parts lead to one part antimony did far better.

The forks sustained load enough to bend steel pins 2 inches in diameter before breaking, but when they did break a curious thing happened—one side of the fork broke in two places, and a piece about an inch long dropped on the floor. This happened when the load was about 70 tons.

The cross section of the metal was the same where each break occurred—but why should two occur?—Locomotive Engineering.

An Aeronaut's Experience.

The aeronaut who made an ascent in Paris and was supposed to be lost escaped after a thrilling experience. He intended to make a short ascent, but was caught by a violent upper current and carried 80 miles in 45 minutes. He was dragged along the surface for six miles in the Champagne district before he made a landing.—Paris Figaro.

A Gallant Frenchman.

An old law of Paris forbids kissing in public places. A cabman who saw his wife only once a week gave her his weekly kiss in front of a restaurant the other day. Both were arrested. The cabman was fined $5. He gallantly paid the fine, remarking that the kiss was worth it.—Exchange.

An Odd Cure For Fainting.

In The Law Times some interesting stories are told of the late Baron Parke, afterward Lord Wensleydale. His love of the law is illustrated by the anecdote of his apologizing to a hostess for his late arrival at a party on the ground that he could not tear himself away from "a beautiful demurrer." His passion for fresh air was such that on buying a handsomely furnished house his first order, it is said, was that all the bedposts should be sawed down and the next that all the bed curtains should be burned. At Exeter he insisted on ventilation in a wholesale way which wrought havoc with counsel and juries.

The best story of Baron Parke is perhaps that which tells how once when summoned to advise the lords he was seized with a fainting fit in the middle of his argument. Various remedies were applied without avail. At last a happy thought occurred to one of his brethren, who well knew his peculiar temperament. He rushed into the library, seized a large musty volume of old statutes, rushed back and held it to the nostrils of the patient. The effect was marvelous. He at once opened his eyes, gave them a slight rub and in a few seconds was as well as ever.

LOST IN A STORM.

The Terrible Experience of a Young Hunter In the Mountains.

Harry Hardinot, a resident of Yorkville, Mendocino county, had an experience last week that will probably result in his becoming deranged. He was hunting in the mountains on Wednesday, and becoming confused lost his way and wandered over the mountains for three days and two nights in the storm without a bite to eat or shelter.

The severe cold and snow which prevailed made his suffering most intense. The first night out he succeeded in building a fire and kept watch during the long weary hours. The next day he started again in his fruitless search for a trail or anything to indicate the way to civilization. The rain drenched him through and through.

At this time, he not returning home, the neighbors were notified, and a searching party of 31 mountaineers was organized. All the adjacent hills, mountains, gulches and creeks were scoured without the least discovery.

Thursday night snow fell on the mountains to a great depth, and the cold was terrible. The unfortunate wanderer was driven before it, his mind almost unbalanced by the hardships he had endured. His travels were through the roughest country—in places never before visited by man. Friday morning found him almost exhausted, yet the spark of life which was left gave him hope, and he kept moving. At last he saw a fence and followed. He was now so exhausted that he was compelled to lie down and rest every rod of the way.

At last he was rewarded in seeing the house of Rodney Lowery on the Rockpile ranch, a sheep range of many thousand acres. Mrs. Lowery saw him coming and ran to his assistance, fearing that he was wounded, as he still clung to his rifle. He could hardly tell his name, he was so bewildered in mind. He had been out in the elements 56 hours, and his emaciated condition told too plainly of his keen suffering. Saturday afternoon two of the searching party found him at the isolated home of the shepherd, and the following day he was conveyed to his home near Yorkville, where he is now under medical treatment. It is feared that he will never recover his health, and if so his mind will be entirely gone, owing to the terrible experience he passed through.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A FLYING STREET CAR.

An Aerial Whaleback to Run by Trolley at the Antwerp Exposition.

A flying street car is the latest novelty which an ingenious Belgian has devised for the convenience and amusement of visitors to the Antwerp exposition. He does not call it a flying street car, but "grand balloon dirigible" is the Belgian way of putting it.

In appearance the flying street car resembles the famous Pennington airship or a miniature whaleback upside down. The floating apparatus is a huge cigar shaped bag, to which is attached the street car itself. In the front or prow of the car is an immense fan or propeller, and at the other end an apparatus like a barn door in three sections, which provides a rudder.

The car is divided into three sections, one for the motorman, another for the passengers and a third, which corresponds about in size to the baggage apartment on a suburban car, is for the use of the conductor.

The much abused trolley system has been turned to good account in connection with this flying street car, as from the overhead wire the electricity is obtained with which to work the motor. Connecting the car with this overhead wire is a traveling cable, one end of which connects with the motor, the other being attached to a trolley which slides along the wire as the car moves.

In the rear compartment of the car, where the conductor has his quarters, is all the paraphernalia for lowering the machine. A stout ship's anchor attached by a wire cable to a windlass, which in turn is connected with the electric motor, provides the means for hauling down the flying car when a station is reached where passengers are to alight.

The first practical demonstration of this aerial means of rapid transit will be made during the Antwerp exposition. One model machine is already pretty well advanced toward completion, the termini of the route being the exposition grounds and the bourse at Antwerp, which are about a mile apart.

During the exposition trips will be made every half hour by this novel means of locomotion, and the success of the experiment may probably revolutionize street car traffic. One great drawback to its popularity, however, is that the trip of a mile will cost 5 francs, or $1.—Philadelphia Press.

Nonconformists Make Trouble.

A correspondent says that the nonconformist farmers of Wales, in order to convince the government of the necessity for the early introduction of a bill for disestablishing the state church there, are again refusing to pay tithes. They have adopted Irish Land league methods of resisting and assaulting the sheriff's officers, barricading houses and even indulging in moonlighting. It is not improbable that the military will have to be called upon to assist the civil power. The Tories are arranging for a new campaign in Wales by flooding the country with orators and literature in the interest of the state church.

A Well Worn Bond.

A curiosity in the shape of a Delhi town bond for $500 was turned in to the town treasurer a few weeks ago. It was punctured so full of pinholes as to be almost unreadable, and it bore other evidences of hard usage. As soon as its genuineness was determined, however, the money was paid on it, and a county official made an investigation. Its late owner finally admitted that he had carried the bond for years pinned fast to his undershirt, and that as he changed his shirt quite frequently the bond had become full of pinholes.—Delhi (N. Y.) Letter.

The Young Moon.

The editor of The Popular Science Monthly takes certain imaginative writers to task for their unscientific and absurd statements regarding "the young moon" and "the crescent moon" and advises them to leave it alone, because they so often contrive to get it in the wrong place. In a story which has come under his notice he finds two friends described as sitting out one summer evening looking over the Thames, and the writer goes on to say, "By this time the young moon had arisen, and its cold light shimmered over the misty river." Such writers are reminded that the young moon goes to bed early and can never be seen in the process of rising.

Dean le Breton.

Mrs. Langtry's father, Dean le Breton, was the leading dignitary of his church in Jersey, presiding especially over the picturesque church at St. Saviour's. He was a man of superb physique and strikingly handsome. His beauty descended to more members of his family than to his famous daughter, for the brothers, of whom there were several, all were splendid looking, Apollolike fellows, notably Mrs. Langtry's youngest and favorite brother, who was killed in a tiger hunt in India.—New York Times.

AN EFFECTIVE MADSTONE.

How It Adheres to the Body and Sucks Out All the Poison.

Nearly every one has heard more or less about madstones and the wonderful cures with which they are credited in saving life where a person had been bitten by a mad dog. Many regard these stones as a mere superstition, but statistics go to prove that they really do contain many wonderful properties. Madstones are seldom heard of anywhere except in the southern states, where they are quite common, and most of the people of that section place great faith in them. Mrs. J. M. Parks, a lady residing in this city, is the possessor of one of these remarkable stones, and a reporter called on her to learn something about them.

"Yes," she said when questioned on the subject, "I have a madstone and have had it many years. My husband found it near Magnesia Springs, Fla. I have only had occasion to use it three or four times since it has been in my possession, and each time the best results followed. The reason that I have not used it often is that I never hear of a case where a person has been bitten by a mad dog until I see it in the paper, and then it has always been stated that the patient has been taken with convulsions. It is too late to use the madstone then. Spasms do not generally appear until about nine days after the person is bitten, and if the stone is applied any time previous to the convulsions the poison will be entirely drawn out by it.

"The worst case I ever cured with my madstone happened when a policeman here in the city, named Price, was bitten on the hand by a mad dog. His arm had swollen up to three or four times its natural size and had turned black. The man was suffering the most excruciating agony, and his physicians had despaired of his life. I accidentally heard of his case and at once hurried to the house with my madstone. The doctor consented to give it a trial, and the result was that the man recovered and is now walking around the streets as well as ever."

Upon the reporter's asking if he might see the stone Mrs. Parks immediately produced it, remarking as she did so, "It does not look nearly as powerful as it really is."

It is a little, porous, chalklike substance about an inch long, half an inch wide and a quarter of an inch thick and appeared to be a sort of vegetable compound.

"The process of applying the madstone," continued Mrs. Parks, "is very simple and somewhat similar to vaccination. You select some part of the body between the bite and the heart and with a sharp knife scrape the skin till the blood comes, then apply the stone to the raw spot. The stone will adhere immediately, and its drawing qualities are so great that it will almost bury itself in the flesh, sucking out the poison until all the pores of the stone are filled with the deadly virus. The stone then drops off of its own accord, and after being thoroughly cleansed with milk, warm water and soap is applied again. This is kept up till the stone refuses to stick, thereby showing that all the poison has been drawn out."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Sting of the Nettle.

The leaf and stem of a nettle are literally clothed with erect hollow hairs. If one of these hairs is viewed under a microscope, it will be seen that its free end, after tapering to a very fine degree of slimness, finishes as a little knob, while in the other direction, after gradually becoming more robust, it suddenly expands into a large bulb, corresponding with the poison gland of the adder.

The point of the hair is very brittle, and contact with our skin causes the end to snap off, leaving a hollow needle point which readily pierces our cuticle, and pressing upon the bulb at the other end the poison is forced through the central channel and inflames our blood. The tender handed who stroke the nettle are stung for their pains, because their gentleness has only served to break the brittle points and rendering them fit for piercing, but the rough handed break the hairs at their thickest parts, where they are too stout to prick.—Good Words.

"Boil Down" Everything!

The taste for short stories, in place of the ancient three volume novel, has been cultivated even in conservative England and has become so widespread in the United States that very few periodicals which deal in fiction at all are without their stories begun and finished in a single issue. The talent required to produce a fascinating and successful fiction in this narrow compass is a peculiar one, and while there are numerous failures there are also a surprising number of successes. Well written, descriptive articles, too, are in demand, and special cravings for personal gossip and lively sketches of notable living characters are manifest. That perennial interest which mankind and womankind evince in every individual whose name, for whatever reason, has become familiar supplies a basis for an inexhaustible series of light paragraphic articles.—New York Journal.

Man's Inhumanity to Himself.

The most inhuman outrages, outrages which would disgrace the savage, man perpetrates upon his own system by swallowing drastic purgatives which convulse the stomach, agonize his intestines and weaken his system. Many people constantly do this under the impression that medicaments only which are violent in their action, and particularly cathartics, are of any avail. Irreparable injury to health is wrought under this mistaken idea. The laxative which most nearly approaches the beneficent action of nature is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is painless but thorough, and invigorates the intestinal canal instead of weakening and irritating it. The liver and the stomach share in the benign discipline instituted by this comprehensive medicine, whose healthful influence is felt throughout the system. Malarious, rheumatic, kidney and nervous complaints succumb to it.

Giers and Gourko Are Dying, and Wannowsky Is Breaking Down.

Nicholas de Giers is dying in St. Petersburg. Joseph Gourko is awaiting his end in Warsaw. Peter Wannowsky recently sought to restore his shattered health on the south shore of the Mediterranean, but he has returned to his Russian home as he left it, a broken down man. Each of these three remarkable men has been half a century in the service of his country. Each has exercised a mighty influence on Russian politics since the Berlin congress. Each approaches his grave, his breast covered with decorations signifying that he has enjoyed to the last the full confidence and even the friendship of his sovereign.

It is a trite saying in Berlin that Count von Roon forged the German sword, Moltke sharpened it, and Bismarck drew it from its sheath. In St. Petersburg it might be said with equal truth that Wannowsky forged the Russian sword, Gourko sharpened it, and Giers kept it in its sheath.

Wannowsky has prepared for war, Gourko has threatened it, and Nicholas de Giers has averted it. On the continent the statesman without a war policy is usually condemned to the obscurity of the virtuous woman. M. de Giers' efforts to preserve the peace have been so evident and so successful, however, that the ebbing of his life is watched with the keenest hopes and fears from Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Rome.

Giers, Gourko and Wannowsky are the last of the celebrated Russians who survived the Bismarckian period of European politics. They were contemporaries of Gambetta, MacMahon, Disraeli, Gladstone, Moltke, Roon, Bismarck, Benedek and Andrassy, although none of the three came into his fame until long after the names of those men became household words throughout Europe. Of the famous statesmen and generals of their day, only Francesco Crispi, the Italian prime minister, is still in office. Of the sovereigns of great powers, only Queen Victoria and Emperor Franz Joseph still reign.—Exchange.

LIP LANGUAGE.

A New Fad Which Is Now Under Discussion In England's Upper Tendom.

"Lip language" is understood to be the latest craze which will occupy the spare time of society in the place of banjo playing and skirt dancing. Somebody once sang something about:

When meek gray eyes droop still more meek
And dimples play at hide and seek,
There's but one language lips can speak—
'Tis brief, but rather pleasant.

Perchance we have all of us had some experience of this kind in our time, but it is quite a different kind of lip language that I am now alluding to. It is reading and understanding words shaped by the lips without articulation.

That this is possible is well known by the efficient manner in which deaf actors have been able to take their part on the stage, and if people become proficient in the art it will be surprising how quiet society will become. Doubtless life will be somewhat dull, but at any rate we shall be spared that perpetual babble and cackle which ofttimes makes a dinner party so wearisome, and we shall get rid of the roar and buzz of overcrowded assemblies.

If perfection is attained in the art, with a couple of good opera glasses people will be able to converse when a considerable distance apart. The male practicers of the art will undoubtedly have to shave, and it will be a nice point of law to find whether slander or libel conveyed by this silent system will be actionable or not.

Probably the only people who will object to the new pastime will be those perpetual jabbers, those incessant jaw exercisers, to whom nothing is so sweet as the sound of their own voices.—London Graphic.

THE HONEST INJUN.

He Broke the Law of the Land, but Would Not Tell a Lie.

It would be interesting to know what the enemies of the red man have to say about the case of Nathaniel Jamison. Nathaniel comes from down Lawton's way, and Tuesday he was selling the dark brown sassafras on the streets of the city. Now Jamison is a thrifty red man. Having disposed of many goodly bundles of sassafras, he went to a dealer in firewater and bought a demijohn of rare whisky. This he took with him to the reservation at night, and to his red brethren of the forest he disposed of it at retail prices. So he made two profits on his sassafras. The red man knew that it was contrary to law for him to sell whisky to his people, but in his own heart he felt no sense of guilt.

Day before yesterday he went to the firewater man again, and while he was buying of him a United States marshal arrested him and took him before the commissioner. Contrary to Christian custom, he pleaded guilty. The commissioner, knowing him to be a pagan and believing him to be drunk, thought it best not to enter that plea. But the Indian cried out: "I'm guilty! Any man who pleads not guilty when he's guilty is a d——d liar!" Of course there was no answer to make to this, and the honest Injun had his way for once.—Buffalo Courier.

Caused an Epidemic.

Some municipal authorities declare that the universal use of confetti in the recent fetes was the cause of the prevailing epidemic of typhoid fever. The Paris streets were not only covered as with snow, but the trees were filled with paper serpentines thrown by the revelers. Clearing away the flimsy ribbons cost the city nearly $10,000, besides injuring young foliage.—Paris Herald.

The First Meridian.

The Russian papers favor the Italian project of choosing Jerusalem for the first meridian. If Russia accepts, it is believed that its example will be followed by France, which was offended by the refusal of the geographical congress of Washington to accept the Paris meridian as the first.—New York Post.
