ORANGE AUCTIONS CONDEMNED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 3.—The orange auction held on Wednesday has depressed the market. Twenty-six fruit firms are boycotting the auction company, supported in the boycott by many large packing and shipping houses in the south and by some of the more extensive growers. The fact that scarcely a carload of oranges was disposed of at the last sale indicates the effect of the opposition. The auction syndicate has postponed all sales for a week, on the plea of the slow ripening of the crop. The best Washington navels average only $2, and some lots brought only $1 35, both prices for the same fruit.

Should the operations of the syndicate assume a sufficient proportion to control the market here, the loss entailed by the producers who depended upon this market would be enormous. The commission demanded by the auction people is 8 per cent, while the standard rate through the commission houses is 10 per cent. The difference of 2 per cent in favor of the grower is overcome, according to dealers, by the lower prices at which the goods are sacrificed on the block. The wholesale fruit merchants here will also suffer a great loss, and the ones to directly profit are those firms composing the syndicate.

E. A. Curtis, the Southern California manager of the Earl Fruit Packing Company, is in town with a view of investigating the workings of the auction concern. He cannot find words with which to condemn the movement, and asserts that should its operations continue, prices for the orange crop of California will be seriously affected.

THE SENATOR AND THE OYSTER PIRATES.

WASHINGTON, January 2.—Senator Gibson has returned to Washington the hero of a thrilling adventure with "oyster pirates" on the eastern shore of Maryland. He resides at a picturesque spot on the Avon river, and owns a number of choice oyster beds, and while at home for the Christmas holidays he noticed that an oyster sloop, with three small boats astern, was creeping suspiciously up and down the river, just opposite his bivalve hatchery.

One night one of the colored boys about the house informed the Senator that the sloop had pulled over into the oyster beds and dropped anchor. The Senator took down his repeating rifle, loaded it, filled his pockets with ammunition and went down to the boathouse just opposite the beds. He could see several men in small boats with oyster rakes engaged in gathering his oysters.

Without a word of warning the Senator began firing in the direction of the boats as fast as he could work his rifle. Instantly the pirates dropped down in their boats, turned back to the sloop and got away. The bullets from the Senator's rifle whistled through the rigging so lively that the skipper was afraid to hoist sail, so he and his crew, bending low, "poled" out of the cove to a place of safety.

The next morning a fine pair of oyster rakes were found sticking out of the water just where the pirates had left them and they were duly impounded as trophies of the fight. A few days later the Senator was in Easton on business when a rough looking man came up to him and inquired:

"Is this Mr. Gibson?"

"That's my name," replied the Senator.

"I lost a pair of oyster rakes," said the man, "and I am told you found a pair down your way the other night."

"Yes, I have a pair of rakes that some oyster thief left in my beds two nights ago, and if you will go up to my place with me and identify them I will take great pleasure in turning you over to the authorities and seeing that you are sent to the Penitentiary."

The rakes are still in the possession of the Senator.

DIRE PROPHECIES FOR THE YEAR.

NEW YORK, January 2.—Zadkiel, whose predictions have been remarkable enough to command universal attention, says in his almanac for 1895 that a year of change will dawn on mankind. The ever changing planetary heavens which sway mankind, as Dante believed, will soon bring to pass some notable changes both in the old and new worlds.

Before January 15 there will be trouble in Morocco and in Ireland. The State of Africa will be one of contention for European diplomacy and unrest, and the fires of revolution in Ireland will embitter British politics.

Violent earthquakes will occur in the south of Europe and in the Grecian Archipelago about the 15th. Earthquakes will be felt in the vicinity of London and the border of Wales about the 11th.

The birth rate will increase and theatres and places of amusement will do well toward the end of January. The 24th will be an evil birthday anniversary.

In February some great city magnate of London will bow his head to fate. Political feeling will run high and Irish affairs will be again to the front, and a measure of reform will pass the English House of Commons. For this month colliery accidents are predicted; public calamities will occur in India, accidents at sea will be numerous and public health not good.

In March, England is warned to take precaution against the onslaught of a violent epidemic. The military party will be to the fore in that kingdom, with the clash of arms resounding in the empire. Death will reap a bountiful harvest among the great.

Trouble will occur in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, and toward the latter end of the month there will be great excitement in London and a destructive conflagration—probably of incendiary or anarchistic origin—will mark the transit of Mars over the ascendant of that city. The Czar of Russia will be in danger toward the end of March. April will bring many fires to London. Earthquakes will occur about the 25th and 29th.

In May the French republic will find its path a thorny one. In June France and Italy will quarrel over their colonial possessions. The anarchist will be active in this month. Public troubles will occur in Australia and the divorce courts will be filled with celebrated cases. Deaths by drowning and explosion will be common.

In July the trouble between France and Italy will culminate in emeutes. Serious shocks of earthquakes will occur in Southern Europe.

August is to bring to the United States riots and great popular excitement. The state of American trade will react in Liverpool, where trouble and loss will be felt. Cholera will be prevalent in India.

In September a more peaceful time will set in for France and Italy. Trade disputes and strikes will occur this month. The Russian people will have a troublesome autumn and many of them will prefer to die fighting rather than from starvation. The nihilists will be after the Czar pitilessly.

In October murderous outrages, turbulence and fires will be prevalent in England, and also an epidemic of sickness. Public troubles will break out in the United States, especially in the Southern States.

November will bring great earthquakes, which will be most severely felt in China and Japan. The East will be full of violence, if not war. The Czar will be plagued by nihilists. Monarchs in general will have a hard time, and one of them, at least, may lose his crown and his life.

In December a blow is to be directed against the power of Great Britain.

PRICE OF ORANGES.

WASHINGTON, January 7.—The frosts in the Gulf States have almost totally destroyed the orange crop of Florida, and that State's loss will be California's gain. Already oranges are becoming scarce in the entire East. Advices have been received by large fruit dealers here indicating that the loss on the orange crop is complete. Owing to the great difference in freight rates, Eastern dealers have heretofore depended almost altogether on Florida for their local supply of oranges, and have never considered California as much of a factor in this trade.

It is in just such emergencies as this, however, that the fact that oranges are grown in California will be brought to the attention of Eastern people. There is said to be a large crop in Sicily, but growers on this island cannot compete with California people either in price or the quality of their fruit.

Reports have come to Washington of an attempt of California orange operators to corner the market in view of the Florida disaster, and it is also reported that the news of frosts in Florida has caused a rise of from 50 cents to $1 per box at San Bernardino. It is the opinion of fruit men in the East, however, that any effort to corner the market would be futile owing to the large crops in Jamaica, which, although not of so good a quality as California oranges, would yet supply the demand should an exorbitant price be demanded for the product of the Golden State.

SAN BERNARDINO, January 7.—The rise in the price of oranges of 50 cents a box which was registered by the Redlands Growers' Association has been followed by all the associations in the valley, and now oranges cannot be bought in quantities for less than $2 50 a box, and from later reports growers and shippers are inclined to think that the quotation is too low. There is every indication that the bulk of the crop will bring $3 in the orchard.

Officers of the Redlands association are in communication with dealers in Florida and private telegrams from them yesterday say that 85 per cent of the crop is a total loss and will be worthless, except what can be sold at once before the frost affects the fruit. This has served to strengthen the prices here and the orange men are already talking $3 per box for their fruit, a price they have not realized for severel years.

It is now only a question of what the East will pay for oranges. There is a limit to the price of the fruit, and if it is pushed too high it will bring us into competition with the Mediterranean oranges. But $3 is not at all exorbitant. We have sold for better than that, and from the present outlook we will get that much or more this year.

SANFORD (Fla.), January 2.—J. E. Pace, an orange grower, has assigned. He is said to have lost $30,000 by the freeze.

LOVE AND PROPOSALS.

SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS OF METHODS EMPLOYED IN DECLARING THE PASSION.

There is a clever statistician who could teach a thing or two to the novelist. This statistician has attempted to classify the action and methods of proposals, and as a result has presented tabulated figures, extremely interesting to psychologists. Out of a hundred cases thirty-six gentlemen take the lady in arms, sixty-seven gentlemen kiss lady on lips, four gentlemen kiss lady on cheek, three gentlemen show very good taste by kissing lady on eyes, two gentlemen kiss lady on hand. It is to be presumed these two out of a hundred are the timid, diffident kind, though it is possible that they might be of the quietly sensational nature. One gentleman kisses lady on nose. It must be added that the statistician is careful to insert the saving clause "by mistake."

There is even a record of a man kissing a lady on edge of shawl; but, thank goodness, there is only one in a hundred, and the chances are that this man is peculiar.

Seventy-two hold lady's hand, seventeen hold it very tightly, fourteen have lumps in their throats, and nine exclaim aloud, "Thank God!" Only seven out of a hundred declare themselves to be deliriously happy and five are too full of utterance. Three out of a hundred stand on one foot when they make proposals and two go down on one knee, while nine make a formal prelude—something like the slow music at the play, we suppose, when the villain appeals to heaven to witness the consuming flame of his affections for the heart he plots to ruin, etc.

The behavior of the lady under the circumstances is equally entertaining and instructive. Out of 100 cases eighty one sink into the arms of a chair; eleven clasp their arms around the gentleman's neck; six weep tears of joy silently and forty-four weep tears aloud—whatever that means; seventy-two have eyes full of love and nine out of 100 rush from the room to tell somebody. Only four are greatly surprised, and eighty-seven of 100 knew that something was coming. Five giggle hysterically and one even sneezes. Only one of 100 struggles not to be kissed, while six kiss gentleman first. But to believe the statistician one out of 100 women will say, "Yes, but don't be a fool!"

BOUND TO GET THERE.

A RAILROAD OFFICIAL'S STORY OF TWO ENGLISH LADS WHO WERE IN A HURRY.

"The English tourist is often a suprising person," said a railroad official, "and I have frequently had cause to wonder at him. Some time ago I had an experience with two English tourists that was out of the ordinary. I was in a large Western city in charge of the passenger business of a trans-continental railroad which ran two special trains a week to the Pacific coast. One afternoon I was about to close my desk and go home, when the local ticket agent came into my office with two young men. It was not necessary to look at them twice to understand that they were Englishmen. They were the typical tall, big-boned, blonde-haired men whom one recognizes immediately as being English. They were dressed in ultra English style, and carried themselves with the self-confidence and independence of men who thoroughly believe in themselves and are utterly indifferent to the estimate placed upon them by others. I call them men, though they could not have been over eighteen or nineteen years old. The agent told me that they wished to see me about a matter of business. I assured them that I was at their disposal, and waited, wondering what they could want of me. The taller of the two acted as spokesman.

"'We want to get to San Francisco,' he said, 'in time to connect with the steamer for Japan.'

"'I am very sorry,' I replied, 'but our special train which connects with the steamer passed through here two hours ago.'

"They looked serious at this, but did not seem overcome.

"'I suppose,' said the tall one, 'that the next regular train will be too late to connect with the steamer.'

"'Oh, yes,' said I, 'you would be delayed about a week in San Francisco.'

"'Oh, that will never do,' he replied. 'We must catch that steamer. You will have to make some arrangement by which we can overtake this special train.'

"I was paralyzed by the cool assurance with which he suggested this. The train he wished to overtake was known as the Golden Gate Special, and was a record breaker. It was one of the fastest trains on our road, and we were proud of the time it made. But here were a couple of youngsters who wanted to know whether they could not arrange to catch it with the same calmness that they might have asked for a cup of coffee. I smiled on them pityingly.

"'Don't you know,' said I, 'that this is an exceptionally fast train, and that it is almost impossible to beat it? Why, even if it were possible to do what you ask, the expense would put it out of the question.'

"They listened calmly and without change of expression. Then the one who had spoken before said:

"'Yes, I know all about that, but we have got to catch that boat. We are attached to the British embassy at Tokio, and have been travelling on a leave of absence. Our time will be up the very day that that boat reaches Japan. We must be there at that time because we have promised to. We had intended to catch the previous boat, but we were having such a good time that we thought we would chance it and wait over. Now nothing can be allowed to interfere with our plan.'

"'Well,' I said, 'I don't see how I can aid you, sorry as I may be for you.'

"'I don't see why there is any need arguing about this. We want a special train to overtake that train, and if we can't do it any other way we will have to follow it across the continent.'

"I looked in amazement at these two clerks—that is what they amounted to, I suppose, at least that is what we would consider them in this country—who were cooly asking for a special train to cross the continent. I was not at all convinced that they appreciated the enormity of their demand. In fact, I felt more amused than credulous.

"'I suppose,' I said, 'you have some idea of what it will cost you to do this?'

"'Oh, we are willing to pay whatever it is,' was the reply in a drawling tone.

"'It will cost you $300 if you overtake the special at her first stop,' said I: '$500 if we have to wait for the second stop, and $1,000 if we go clear across. It is barely possible that we can make a connection at the first stop.'

"The Englishman made no other reply than to thrust his hand into his trousers pocket and pull out a big roll of bills. He counted out $1,000 and laid them down on the desk.

"'Of course,' he said, 'I presume if we make the connections that you speak of, I will get back what I have paid in excess.'

"I saw then that he was in earnest. I took out $300 to guarantee us, and returned the rest to him with the understanding that he was to pay the conductor if he missed the first connection, according to the terms I had outlined. I at once set the machinery in motion to get out the train. It required a good deal of work. In the first place we had no engine in which the fires were up, and found it would save time to have one brought on from another station. Then we had to send for an engineer who would be capable of running the train at the high rate of speed that was demanded, and still avoid unnecessary risks. As ours was in the main only a single-track road we had to telegraph all along the line to keep the track clear of freight trains and arrange to have the ordinary passenger trains side tracked at convenient times and places. Altogether about four hours were taken up in these preliminaries. During that time the Englishmen loafed around, looking very bored, and not at all interested in our efforts to hurry things. When it was announced that the train was ready they invited me to drink to the success of their trip in a bottle of wine, a condescension on their part that amazed me, and the last I saw of them they were bowing from the rear platform of their car as the train went flying out of the depot. They made the connection at the first junction, as I learned by telegraph that night. How they ever did it I don't know, but I have a shrewd suspicion that they bribed the conductor and engineer to run the train at a rate never known before, and that would have been condemned by the higher authorities if they had heard of it."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR COLUMN.

[Address all communications to or correspondence for this column to C. E. Holcomb, Fullerton, Cal.]

The Junior C. E. Society of the Presbyterian Church gave a very pleasant entertainment at the residence of Mr. and Mrs Hack on Thursday evening last. Its object was to raise funds to provide comfort bags for the sailors of the Floating Society of San Diego. Master Willie Hack, president of the society, acted as master of ceremonies, and an interesting program was presented, consisting of songs, recitations, readings and tableaux by the boys and girls of the society, concluding with a short talk by the pastor. Later in the evening light refreshments were served, and altogether it was a very enjoyable evening. Between four and five dollars were realized, and the young folks feel quite encouraged by the success of their undertaking. Mrs. S. E. Kieffer and Miss Elise Aubert are the superintendents of the Junior work.

⁂

On the last Sunday evening in the old year, the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church held a sort of a "auld lang syne" meeting. Word had been sent to as many of the former members as possible, and although not so many responses came as had been hoped for, there were greetings from Victoria, B. C., Chicago, Boston, and Harrisburg, Pa., besides others from various points in our own State.

⁂

This week being the week of prayer, and the members of the Fullerton society not being able to be present, (many of them) if meetings were held every night, a motion was made and carried that at 7:30 p. m. every evening this week every endeavorer should offer special prayer for those who have tried to become christians without success. And cite any such to Jeremiah 29-13, Deuteronomy 4-29, Romans 4-5. God has promised to reveal himself to all who seek him with their whole heart.

⁂

Harvey McDermont was leader of the postponed consecration meeting last Sunday evening, he being vice-president. We had a good meeting, time all occupied, and more could have been used. The fact is all our meetings are good meetings. Juniors are enthusiastic and growing in numbers and in the strength of the Lord.

⁂

We want to hear from the Westminster Endeavorers. They received special mention in the District Convention, and they could undoubtedly give the rest of us some points that would be helpful. And by the way, any information for this column for next week's paper, can be handed to me this week at the A. U. W. Co.'s office, or left at the GAZETTE office and I will get it there.

⁂

Did it ever strike you that the only way one can hinder another when both are travelling the same road is for one to be ahead of the other? When any one says I will not become a christian because there are hypocrites in church, he virtually admits that he considers that the hypocrite is ahead of him in the heavenly way. For do you not see that the hypocrite could not block the way if he was not ahead? I tell you it is a pretty mean man that will admit that he is worse than a hypocrite. Then besides suppose A is a hypocrite and B will not accept Christ because A professes to and B does not want to fellowship with A. Very well, A and B do not fellowship on this little sphere, but bless your heart they will be the closest kind of chums throughout eternity. See Job 8-13, 13 16. Rev. 21-8, 22-15. The way to keep from living close to a hypocrite is to live close to Christ. Because a five dollar bill is counterfeited is no excuse for never accepting a V. Did you ever see a piece of brown paper counterfeited? No. Why not? Because it is not worth it. There are counterfeit christians, but did you ever see a counterfeit infidel? The fact of it is, he is not worth counterfeiting, is he?

I just want to say a few words to the C. E's, who read this column. This column was given to the C. E. societies in this part of Orange county for their use, and the idea was to fill it with local news from each society, and short articles from an endeavorer on any subject that might be useful, and it was not given to the editor of this column in order to show how smart he was or to air his knowledge, however much it might need it. Now fellow endeavorers, if you like this column, think it is a good thing, and want to see it kept up, just write and say so. A little taffy kind o' makes a fellow feel good. If you don't like it, have any criticisms to make, or don't like the way it is run, just sail in and write your level best. That makes a fellow feel good too, sometimes. Do your share in this work.

CENTRALIA ITEMS.

After two weeks' vacation, Centralia's school recommenced Monday with a full attendance.

Some of our young folk joined others of Orange and Los Angeles in a rabbit chase on the Alamitos on New Year's day. Good sport.

Mrs. J. C. Roller returned home from a two weeks' visit in Los Angeles. She was accompanied home by J. H., E. J. Roller and wife, Mrs. Wieler, and Col. A. A. Wood of Riverside. The guests remained at the Rolio ranch New Year's week.

Miss Bowen entertained two friends from Los Angeles on Christmas.

The Winter brothers have leased the North corner land from Chas. Landell, for the ensuing year.

Madames H. Archibald and Johnson of Buena Park visited with friends in our community one day last week.

Miss Katharine Mehan who visited in Southern California last winter, has issued invitations to friends here, to join her in many sleighing parties of which she is a popular participant at her home in Michigan. She often wishes for California friends and climate.

Ed Parks has rented the Dewey place this year. Ed ought to be quite happy now—yes, we know he has lately married a charming young lady of Artesia.

Rain this season has been thankfully received by all. This will boom Centralia more than heretofore.

We will soon have a Postoffice established in our community.

CARD FROM MR. DES GRANGES.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—In reply to the article published in the Independent, I wish to say that the criticism of the few is just. I am not afraid to say that the engagement of E. C. Sharpe was the action of the whole board. As far as I can remember there has never been a job let under the present board, but what they called for bids, but in this case nothing of the kind was done, and it I had not been there they never would have asked me anything about it. In the first place, what do they know about Mr. Sharpe any more than what he has said? One of the board said that he drew up the plans and specifications; how do they know, did they see him do so? In the second place, they never asked any one else to do so, or even gave them an opportunity to do so. I think it an outrage on the tax payers to pay such a price, when there are just as competent men to be had as Mr. Sharpe for half the same price, and if they will do what is just in the matter they will find that I am not far out of the way. Respectfully,

J. P. DES GRANGES.

THE WATER AMENDMENTS.

MR. EDITOR.—The time of the annual meeting of the stockholders of the A. U. W. Co. approaches. An amendment to the bylaws of the company is to be acted upon—the extension of its territory. The enlargement of the district is a good idea, and our improvements in the carrying capacity of our ditches enable us to enlarge. Every irrigator knows what relief the small improvements made the past year have accomplished. The simple fact speaks for itself. The company realized over $13,000 from the sale of water the past year, or more than double the amount of any previous year since the existence of the company. Of course the year was a dry one and therefore all the water the ditches could carry was utilized, but during the present year we will have two volumes of water to one before. What then? Can the present territory utilize the increased supply? It is hardly probable. Therefore, the Directors wisely take time by the forelock, and present this amendment. I individually, and I believe many of the stockholders, have a soft spot. Mine is not in the upper story, but in my pocket. When that gets squeezed it hurts, so the meaning of that amendment I construe as follows: With the improvements, the Directors have looked for a market for the increased supply. Now, if the stockholders in their shortsightedness should refuse an access to an increased market, the present territory must alone come up for the expense, and of course assessments would be in order. I am for utilizing all that can be utilized by any and everybody, in order to escape assessment. I am with the Directors in their view, that the water ought to pay its own expense. I hope that the meeting take favorable action, and vote for the amendment.

STOCKHOLDER.

Leading New York bankers have made formal demand on the President for the removal of Secretary Carlisle. The request is made by J. Pierrepont Morgan, who went on to Washington from New York for that purpose. The chief factor in the request for Carlisle's removal is in the late syndicate which took the last issue of bonds. There have been many informal demands for the Secretary's retirement coming from Wall street in the last year, but this is the first time the movement has taken an organized form. The New York financiers charge that the Secretary broke faith with them on the recent bond issue by springing his currency plan just after he disposed of the bonds and depressing the price on the market resulting in the dissolution of the syndicate. The President informed Secretary Carlisle of the modest request and indicated he had no intention of asking him to quit.

He (at the trysting place)—What a time you have kept me waiting!

She—Quite the contrary. It is only 6 o'clock and I did not intend to be here before 7 o'clock.

He—Just so, but you have mistaken the day. I have been waiting here since yesterday.

The public debt was increased $31,000,000 during December.

Lee Danner, tried and convicted at Visalia of seducing Laura Steinland, was fined $2,050, or one day's imprisonment for each two dollars if the fine were not paid. The fine represents the cost of the suit. Danner married the girl and paid the fine.

The Rivera Walnut Growers' association shipped 147 carloads of walnuts, weighing 2,271,972 pounds. These nuts sold f. o. b. at Rivera for $150,235 92. In addition to the association's crop, about 10 carloads were shipped by the Pallets and others outside the association.

John Creamer of Sedalia, Mo., is a big man with a small wife whom he loves very much. At their home the other night he suddenly grasped her and gave her a vigorous hug with his right arm. She lost her breath, managed to make an outcry, and was assisted to bed. The family physician found that three of her ribs had been broken.

Carrying over his shoulder a gunny-sack containing ten cartridges filled with dynamite and weighing thirty-five pounds, James George, an employee of a stone-quarry in the western suburbs of Chicago, stumbled and fell. An explosion followed, the shock of which was felt half a mile away, and the unfortunate man, mangled and torn, was thrown thirty feet through the air. Only fragments of his body were recovered.

The Lick School of Mechanical Arts was formally opened in San Francisco last week. Lick left $450,000 for the building and support of the school, which will be open to any boy or girl in California competent to enter and will be free of charge for tuition. Mathematics, history, science, carpentery, iron fitting, modeling, sewing, wood-carving, dress-making, and millinery will be taught in the different departments.

It is said that Governor-elect Budd contemplates a set of changes which will save the State an annual expenditure of about $2,000,000. In pursuance of this economical policy it is said that Budd is anxious to abolish commissions and bureaus, which he thinks are of very little use to the State. Among the commissions likely to be abolished is the State Board of Agriculture. The report of its abolition has already created a great deal of uneasiness.

A very distressing and painful story is sent out from Washington, embellished with many sensational details, relative to the alleged separation of Truxton Beale from his wife, formerly Hattie Blaine. The marriage took place two years ago and was a notable social event. While separation may not have actually taken place, it is impending and is in effect complete. The fact of the estrangement of the couple is widely known in society. Incompatibility is the cause assigned.

Mrs. Mary B. Martin of Albany, well dressed, good-looking, and apparently about 35 years of age, lost her husband at Utica, and her pocketbook, containing about $15, on the streets of Rochester, and transportation was given her to her home. She left Albany with her husband, William A. Martin, and when she got as far as Utica William went out to get a drink. He never came back. Mrs. Martin got off the train and discovered that her husband had left the depot in a hack with a young woman, who had evidently been waiting for him. She learned that her husband had purchased a ticket later for Rochester, and she swears she will horsewhip the pair if she finds them. The woman, she says, was a "saleratus blonde."

A compilation of the complete returns of all States except Florida and Nevada cast at the election in November shows a total of 11,263,377 ballots cast, as follows: Republican, 5,588,326; Democratic, 4,148,456; Populist, 1,246,752; Prohibition, 219,813. In 1892 the Republican vote was 5,175,202, showing an increase of 413,124 in 1894. In 1892 the Democrats polled 5,554,226 votes, showing a loss of 1,405,770 votes in 1894, and had a plurality of 379,025 over the Republicans, but they were in a minority of 969,205 on the total popular vote. This year the Republicans cast 5,588,326 votes, or 34,100 more than the Democrats did when they elected Cleveland, and they have a plurality over the Democrats of 1,439,870, and only lack 26,726 votes of having a popular majority.

The Seven Day Adventists of Battle Creek Mich., who last year gained notoriety through presenting to their church various articles of value, the whole aggregating about $25,000, last week made another New Year's offering in the presence of several thousand people. A close estimate of the value of the articles presented has not yet been made, but it is believed to be not far from $35,000. One of the elders, before the gift-giving began, preached a short sermon in which he expressed his belief that the end of the world was near at hand, and the violent occurrences of the time indicated it. Among the articles heaped on the platform, when the gifts were called for, were watches and chains, bracelets, silverware, clocks, rings, ear-rings and in fact everything in the jewelry line that could be converted into cash. Nearly forty bicycles were also given. The whole collection is to be sold and the proceeds devoted to extending the theories of the order.

A Los Angeles jury returned a verdict of $8,000 in favor of Charles A. Lee, who sued the Southern Pacific for $50,000 for the loss of his right leg. November 15, 1888, he was employed as a brakeman on a freight train, and while switching some box cars at Hornby siding, just above Saugus Junction, he was thrown from the pilot of the engine, on which he was standing, by a defective switch and was run over. He attributed the accident to the contributory negligence of the plaintiff in being upon the pilot, and further claimed that he knew of the defect in the switch and the risk he was running. The case was tried before Judge Clark and a jury in May, 1892, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff of $35,000. Judge Clark evidently considered the damages excessive under the circumstances and granted the defendant's motion for a new trial. From this order the plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court, but the ruling of the lower court was affirmed. A motion of the defendant to set aside the judgment on technical grounds and a motion of plaintiff for a judgment on the verdict, were taken under advisement by the court. Lee is now Postmaster at Tehachepi.

The elopement of Noble Stroud and Mallie V. Yager to Jeffersonville, Ind., was attended with a sensational occurrence. The horse attached to the buggy in which they were fleeing from the young woman's home in Jefferson county, several miles back of Louisville, ran away, and the couple had a narrow escape from being killed. Mr. Stroud had been forbidden by the parents of Miss Yager to pay her attentions. It was arranged to elope on Thursday night, and at a late hour Stroud hitched up his horse and called for his sweetheart. Preliminaries had been agreed upon, and Miss Yager was in waiting. It was 11 o'clock when the runaways started. Mr. Stroud did not jog along. No time was to be lost, for pursuit was feared. Being familiar with the road, Mr. Stroud gave his steed the rein. Finally the horse got beyond his control. Miss Yager became alarmed and leaped out of the buggy. As the horse continued to increase his speed Stroud decided that the best thing to do was to follow the action of Miss Yager. He climbed over the buggy top and dropped on the ground. He rolled over and over, but was not badly hurt. Hastening back he found his sweetheart running toward him. She had escaped with a few scratches. Notwithstanding they were several miles from the city they proceeded on foot. They came across the wrecked buggy and found the horse near by. The animal was taken to a stable, and the couple continued on their journey to the First street ferry dock. Upon reaching Magistrate Hause's office he was found asleep, but he quickly arranged his toilet, and the two were man and wife before 8 o'clock.

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

THURSDAY..................JANUARY 10, 1895

We have received the following correspondence concerning the matter of the abandonment of operations in the irrigation district:

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Well, we have held our election and voted practically unanimously to suspend operations, as an irrigation district, and having so voted, why of course we shall discontinue, but when, where and how, is still an unsettled question in my mind, and I think that I am not the only one in the fog, in regard to the matter—hence I beg leave to ask the honorable Board of Directors of the Anaheim Irrigation district through the columns of your valuable paper, a few questions, and I am sure that their answers will very much interest the people of this community.

Section 4, of the District Irrigation Law, provides that:

"An election shall be held in each district on the first Wednesday in February, 1893, and on the first Wednesday in February in each second year thereafter, at which an Assessor, a Collector and a Treasurer, and a Board of Directors shall be elected."

Do you intend to call this election on the first Wednesday of February, 1895, and if so why has not the call been made in our public newspapers?

If no call is made, or election held, as I am informed is the advice of Judge Brousseau, [Judge Brousseau has not so advised the board—Ed.] will not a question of the legality of the action of the old Board of Directors so holding over, be raised in the final settlement of the affairs of the district that will block the attempt to discontinue the district and involve us in litigation for years to come? Respectfully yours,

F. R. HOLCOMB.

The district will be abandoned, we take early occasion to inform our correspondent, just as soon as operations may be legally discontinued. The question of electing new officers is one that has engaged the attention of the board seriously for months past, but they, in common with all the rest of the taxpayers, had hoped that final abandonment would come before the time for calling this election in February. We believe Judge Brousseau will advise calling the election, but if he can legally see a clear way out of it, he will not cause this extra expense to the people. If all the taxes levied to pay up the outstanding obligations had been paid, instead of a large portion of it becoming delinquent, disorganization had been effectually accomplished by the first of February. But many have refused to pay, and their property will appear in the usual delinquent list, the work of which was let by competitive bid by the Collector on Tuesday, and the same will go through the regular process of delinquent sale. The law provides no other course. This will take the district beyond the first Wednesday in February, and at this writing it seems to us new officers will have to be elected.

If the Board of Directors could resign their offices to-morrow and wind up the district's affairs legally by that time, we think they would do so willingly, and be grateful for the privilege. But they cannot, and disorganization must ensue according to the legal formula.

All the property held by the district, including lands purchased at delinquent sale, must be disposed of at public auction, and likely enough those taxpayers who allowed their property to be sold at delinquent sale will be permitted to buy their lands back at cost, to clear title. If there be any surplus after that, the residue must be divided pro rata among the taxpayers. After this shall be done a final decree of court will be entered legally dissolving the district. It may be six months or a year before that is finally accomplished.

As to calling the election to chose new officers, there is still time for that, and at any rate the old officers must hold over until their successors are elected and qualified. New officers will have to give new bonds, which will be somewhat difficult in the present state of affairs, and, as we approach the summit of disorganization, it seems that complications, like Alps on Alps, arise. But disorganization will come as speedily as possible, and just so soon as a decree of court can be entered dissolving the district, the same will be done, and we shall finally reach the apex of disorganization, with the least possible expenditure of time and money compatible therewith.

The Directors of the Water Company have in preparation a circular to stockholders showing the work accomplished during the year, and that under contract, and in contemplation. Final estimates are presented upon the South branch and East street cement ditches and other improvements that have been carried on during the year and an outline of the present carrying capacity is set forth in detail. The sale of water during 1894 amounted to $13,700, while the year before, which had the largest sales of any year up to that time in the history of the company, the sales aggregated $6,500. Here we have a doubling of the water sales, which has been brought about by cementing the main ditch. Eight heads of water are now delivered at the western limits of the ditch, where before the cementing of the ditch only two could be delivered. The company's debt is being refunded at a lower rate of interest, and altogether the affairs of the company are in very satisfactory condition. The present Board of Directors are the most progressive the company has ever had and under their management the corporation has prospered to an extent never achieved before. The circular will be issued probably by the end of the week.

Br. Havemeyer has sent on to Washington a delegation of New York sugar importers to intercede with the Secretary of the Treasury for a change in the sugar schedule, and setting forth that the ad valorem impost should be levied upon polariscopic tests instead of upon the invoice. While the Secretary has granted the importers the privilege of submitting briefs, he cannot for a moment be so rash as to think of permitting the change. Their request is nothing more or less than to be given an opportunity of avoiding to a large extent the impost levied upon sugar. With the tariff based upon polariscopic tests, nothing would prevent them from so deteriorating the quality of the raw sugar imported as to lower the duty paid upon it to a very material extent. The Trust would import the same amount of raw sugar probably, but their contributions for governmental revenue would be based upon the adulterated article, and thus save to them a very respectable amount which the authors of the Wilson bill designed should go toward the support of the government.

Yet there is danger that this outrageous request may be granted. The Government is in lack of revenue. No sugar has been imported since Havemeyer's Trust turned over a cool ten million in the importation of raw sugar previous to the levying of the present tariff tax. These importers will in all likelihood represent that sugar importations will continue to be nil so long as the present tariff tax remains as fixed by the bill. But if the import be changed to a tariff levied upon polariscopic tests—or, in other words, if the Trust be given a chance to evade payment of the tariff—the importations of raw sugar will at once turn into the Treasury a large amount which will be calculated to forestall the necessity of another bond issue. Which horn of the dilemma will Mr. Carlisle seize—this truckling to the Sugar Trust, or negotiating another bond issue?

SUGAR BEET RAISING.

POSSIBILITIES FOR THE GROWER IN THEIR PRODUCTION.

EDITOR ANAHEIM GAZETTE.—Sir: By way of encouragement to the farmers of your section, who have come to know how to grow sugar beets as a crop successfully—it may not be amiss to call their attention at this time to the possible uses to be made of the same in the near future other than that of sugar making. Sugar and alcohol are identical, they contain the same constituent elements although of different form. The best sugar producing plant will produce the most alcohol. Unquestionably the sugar beet, bred up as it has been for the past fifty years or more with special reference to the production of sugar, now leads all others in saccharine richness, and were the methods of its manufacture into alcohol as well defined as making it into sugar, no doubt its use now for alcohol making would be general. The method and experience only are now lacking. Alcohol in this country is now largely made of corn, which is a long way inferior to the sugar beet in sucrose. Had our corn been bred up with special reference to alcohol making as has been the sugar beet for sugar making the past fifty years, no doubt it would now be a long way ahead in the production of alcohol; in fact, such breeding up for such purpose would have resulted in making it sugar corn with as much sucrose in one bushel now as there was fifty years ago in three bushels. However, the possibilities of such results as to corn they cannot be brought alone in one day, as it involves too much time. The quicker and shorter cut is to learn to make alcohol out of sugar beets already bred up as before stated.

The low price of beets in Europe has called attention to this new departure for relief to the beet grower, and the experiments going on there now are likely to result in establishing the business on a firm basis. At Omaha, Nebraska, a distillery has recently been established for the manufacture of alcohol from beet molasses, a low bi-product of beet sugar making, heretofore of little value which it is said is a pronounced success. Surely this is a good beginning in this direction and if a success from the tailings there can be no question as to the result when once a start is made in making alcohol from the original product, prime rich sugar beets.

I would also call attention to the growing of sugar beets for seed, a broad field for profit to those who will take the matter up intelligently, beginning in a small way and learning the methods and just how to do it to the best advantage and with the best results. There may be times when the sugar factories are overstocked for sugar making, then in such case the overplus can readily be carried over and utilized for growing seed the coming year. At once an outlet for over-production, which should not be lost sight of. It is said beet seed will generate for seven to ten years after it is grown, This being the case the grower at once finds he has a crop properly stored that need not be rushed into market to be sold before it spoils. In other words he can hold his seed for several years if need be for a fair price until the glut is over; an important consideration in the growing of any crop. I would advise beet growers in your section to take this branch of the industry in hand and make a beginning at once, believing that those who are ahead in experience will be the gainers thereby. There can be no sugar beets raised either for sugar-making, the production of alcohol, for seed raising, or cattle feeding without first having the seed, these other interests all of them depending on it.

Lastly if beet pulp is profitable for cattle feeding after nearly all the sugar in the juice has been taken out, why not the rich luscious 16 per cent sugar beet containing 320 pounds of sugar in the juice per ton, the most profitable of all for cattle feeding? Sugar producers fat and is fattening. What is there therefore to be had in the way of food for cattle so healthful, nourishing and fattening, at so low a cost, as prime sugar beets? I feel confident that beef made as a result of feeding sugar beets when known to consumers, will in time command a special price, the highest in market, and justly so. Beet growers should also keep this in mind in view of a possible overstock for sugar making, and some one of them work out the problem of doing it to their very best advantage with well determined results.

BANK ROBBERY AT ONTARIO.

The Ontario bank was robbed of $5,000 by two men at noon on Friday last. The cashier was locked in the vault, and a customer of the bank, entering at the time of the robbery, was clubbed into insensibility and left for dead. The robbers escaped. While several arrests have been made, the guilty parties are still at large. At Riverside the officers arrested two men who had just come in from the hills where they had been hunting. One of them proved to be a minister. Both were released.

POMONA, January 9.—Notwithstanding there have been over sixty persons out hunting for the two men who robbed the State Bank of Ontario on Friday morning nothing has been learned concerning their identity or where they have gone. The bold bank robbery and the escape of the desperadoes has been the sole topic of discussion in Pomona valley for three days and every stranger in the valley or in Northern Riverside county has had to give an account of himself at the time of the crime. It was thought certain that an arrest of the guilty parties would be made by this afternoon, but this evening the detectives seem more discouraged than ever at the prospect of ever getting the robbers. Some of the detectives from Los Angeles have ceased working on the case and gone home. It transpires that over an hour and a half elapsed before any one started upon the track of the robbers on the day of their crime, and it was a longer time before any real effort toward the capture of the men at Ontario. The robbers were seen by several persons on the road southward from Ontario to Chino and when last seen were near Rincon Hills. A heavy rainstorm came up a few hours later and all tracks were obliterated in the mud and water. Many people say that if the thieves are not caught to-day their escape may as well be counted upon as settled.

A sensational cowhiding occurred at Pine Bluff, Ark., Monday evening. H. L. Colburn, prominent in church and business circles, was publicly cowhided by May Huggard, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. May Huggard, a highly respectable widow. Colburn sent a note to the girl requesting her to meet him at a disreputable house. Carroll Godfrey, an uncle of May, secured a shotgun which he held at Colburn's head, while the girl cowhided him in the presence of a large crowd.

FABLES OF THE DAY.

THE IMPECUNIOUS EDITOR AND THE DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBER.

An Impecunious Editor, sending out bills to Delinquent Subscribers, mailed a statement of account to one in a Distant City, showing the arrearages of his subscription. Quick came the reply by post;

"You have forgotten the dollar and a half I paid you in 1867, a couple of years after the war, and for which I hold your receipt."

With the accent on the Receipt. The Moral of this is that while we live in the Present, it is best to let the Past Dead bury its Receipts.

A Secretary of an Irrigation District, affixing his signature to a number of Warrants Against the Treasury, put his name in the Place Where the President's ought to be: and singularly enough the President's autograph was affixed to the scroll where the Secretary's ought to be.

A Neighboring Banker detected the error, and pronounced the Warrants No Good.

The printing had been done in the Editor's job office, in the usual highest style of the art.

"You unmitigated Scoundrel!" quoth the irate Secretary to the meek and lowly Editor, rushing into the Sanctum with walking stick Brandished Aloft and fiery eye, and the Editor retreating hastily up the Loft; "What despicable means are these thou hast employed to bring my efforts to naught! Come down from the loft and I shall teach you a lesson," still Brandishing the Club.

But the Editor declined. "Did'st see the name 'Secretary' printed plainly upon the scroll provided for thy signature?" he asked, as he climbed still further up the loft.

"Yes! But what's that got to do with it!"

"And did the President likewise observe the print and flourish on the Warrant provided for the affixing of his signature?"

"Confound your picture, but what's that got to do with it? How does it come that my name is in the wrong place, and that of the President likewise, and my efforts set at naught, and Goldwater refuses to pay?"

So the editor, his patience ceasing to be a virtue, descended from the loft and mopped up the floor with him.

Moral—Virtue is its Own Reward; but likewise bet upon yourself to the Last Dollar.

A Poverty Stricken Editor, still sending out mute and dispassionate Appeals to Pay, forwarded a bill to an August Personage of Distinguished Lineage, who owed him for a period covering no less than seventeen years of delinquent subscription.

Quoth the August Person of Distinction: "Fifteen years of this subscription have passed into outlawry, and I shall probably Stand You Off for the other two until such time as may suit my Convenience to pay."

There is no Moral to this Fable, only that the Meek in Spirit must Blessed be, and that the Delinquent Subscriber shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven, no.

An august Justice of the Peace, having a case before him of one of a large body of dissatisfied stockholders in a co-operative company, approached one of the leading members of the Directorate, and confided to him thus:

"I shall decide the case against the corporation, but," winking the other eye, "of course the higher Court, from what I am now able to gather as to the nature of the evidence to be submitted, will promptly set aside the verdict of the lower court. But I shall decide in favor of the plaintiff for the reason that there are a lot of other cases similar to the one now pending to be precipitated into court the moment a verdict favorable to their side shall have been rendered."

The other one fell dead on the sidewalk.

Moral—Before confiding secrets be sure the other fellow is not subject to heart failure.

A Gentleman In From the Country meeting the Editor upon the street discoursed methodically upon the Flight of Time, and reasoning that many people are dying now that never Died Before.

"When I die," remarked the Gentleman in From the Country, Feelingly, "I want you to write me up the dod gastedest finest notice that ever went in your paper. Understand that?"

Quoth the editor:

"When the time shall come for me to carry out that Painful Task, I assure you, friend of my Soul, that Compliance With Your Request shall be the happiest Thing of My Life."

Thereupon both fell upon one another's neck and wept aloud.

NO SUGAR BOUNTY.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The District Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the decision of the District Supreme Court refusing to grant the Miles Sugar Manufacturing and Planting Company of Louisiana a mandamus compelling Secretary Carlisle and Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller to proceed under the law regarding sugar bounties, notwithstanding its repeal by the new tariff law. The case was brought as a test suit. An appeal to the United States Supreme Court is open to planters, the case having gone against them in all inferior tribunals.

The court, in an opinion by Judge Shepherd, held that the repeal of the sugar bounty provisions of the McKinley act by the new tariff law was immediate and complete and contained no exception or protection of any right held at the time of the passage on the law by virtue of the provisions of the McKinley act. Consequently there remains no duty that the respondents (Carlisle and Miller) might or could lawfully perform.

LATE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Clarence Groat Gets the Sidewalk Contract.

Spirited Bidding for the Work at the Meeting of the City Fathers Tuesday Evening—Water Company to Erect Three Steel Flumes With Cement Piers on the Upper Ditch at Yorba—Vote on Disorganization in the Irrigation District—Must Another Election Be Called to Choose New Officers?—Saturday's Returns Came In In Very Incomplete Fashion—Burglars at Mr. Gosch's—The Placentia Orange Circular—Local Brevities—Minor Mention.

The Board of City Trustees met in regular session on Tuesday evening, present the full board.

Clerk Nebelung read the minutes of the last regular meeting which, after correction, were approved as read.

Marshal Steadman reported the collection of $300 40 for water and licenses.

The Marshal also reported a delinquency of $26 50 for licenses. Isaac Lyons and Chas. Federman filed affidavits stating that their business does not warrant the expenditure of $5 per month for license, and they will consequently come under the $2 50 class.

The former's affidavit was accepted, but Mr. Federman's was referred back for correction. His affidavit was made prior to the time of the consolidation of his two stores, that event happening on Monday, and the board was of the opinion that since the change perhaps his license may remain as before. However, a new affidavit will have to be furnished, before a reduction will be made in his license.

A delinquency of $24 90 was reported in the water collections for the month.

Treasurer Cahen reported a balance of $4,459 78 in the treasury.

The Committee on Public Improvements reported that the city team had fully recovered from their late indisposition, consequent upon colds contracted during the late rain, and are now quite able to be at work again.

The committee also reported that Herr Konig had not as yet complied with the instructions of the board in the matter of removing a fence on Broadway, which encroaches upon that thoroughfare to the extent of four feet, and also that the ditch on that street had not been extended quite far enough to make it conform with the street line.

The question arose whether Mr. Konig's fence really extended into the street, or whether he owns that particular strip of land upon which the fence is located.

A pole line was ordered established on Broadway, eight feet south from the point laid down by the City Engineer in defining the street line, the same to be the north line on that thoroughfare.

Trustee Lewis, as a special committee on water meters, reported on the repairing of a meter at Sing Lee's laundry.

Trustee McWilliams submitted plans for a power house. Given further time to complete the same, and authorized to advertise for bids for the erection of the building.

Petition of P. Arimond and others, asking for the opening up of Cypress street, between Lemon and Palm. Deferred.

It was ordered that the establishment of the width of Broadway, between Lemon and Olive, be left to the City Engineer.

Bids for the laying of cement sidewalks on Los Angeles street were received as follows:

Chas. Schindler—Forty cents for each lineal foot of curbing; ten cents for each square foot of sidewalk.

C. Leonard of Los Angeles—Curbing, including grading, per lineal foot of curb, 29 cents; sidewalk, per square foot, 9½ cents.

Lovie & Rogers of Los Angeles—10⅞ cents per square foot for sidewalk; 35 cents per lineal foot for curb.

Gray Bros. & Ward, Los Angeles—For sidewalk, per square foot, 10½ cents; curb, 33 cents per lineal foot.

C. E. Groat—Sidewalk and curbing, $1 09 per lineal foot, including all labor and material.

Mr. Groat's bid was accepted.

The bid of Chas. Leonard was the lowest one, but inasmuch as his accompaning bond was considered faulty, the contract was awarded to Groat, the next lowest bidder.

In round figures the bids were: Groat, $1,231 70; Leonard, $1,175 80; Schindler, $1,358; Gray Bros. & Ward, $1,311 60; Lovie & Rogers, $1,368.

The application of F. H. Oeding for a saloon license was denied.

The Los Angeles Evening Express Co. was awarded the contract to print the electric light bonds, their bid being $50 for forty bonds. Adjourned.

ALAMITOS NOTES.

The rabbit chase on New Year's day was the event of the season. The master spirit of the hunt was Mr. H. Stape Munton of Santa Ana, owner of the celebrated greyhound Nigg. There was a large attendance from here and there and everywhere. More than a few Easterners revelled in the sunshine of the day and beheld our long eared rodent for the first time in their lives. "O just look at his ears," said a young lady from Ohio, and "how they do run," she exclaimed again as a big jack led Munton's Nigg on a two mile heat. It was with much regret that I noticed feminine Anaheim conspicuous by its absence. Her figure and graceful horsewomanship are certainly not behind Santa Ana and it would have been largely to her credit had she donned hat and habit and joined the chase. This suggests the question, Why can't Anaheim have a hunting club of her own? A greyhound is one of the most intelligent as well as the most graceful of dogs, and the pure delight of seeing him full tilt after a jack on the plains of Alamitos is worth a whole year's trouble and feed connected with him. Many a young lady whose cheeks want a dash of red to make the picture perfect would find it in the chase. It is far ahead of the enervating dance or social game of whist. The following is the record of the catches.

Dogs.		Owners.
Nigg	8	H. Stape Munton, Santa Ana
Don	4	" " " "
Maud	6	" " " "
Gip	5	" " " "
Eunice	2	Joe Barter
Flash	4	Prof. Smith
Beauty	3
Sontag	4
Fancy	2	Mr. Walmsley
Lucy	1
Spy	2	Dr. De Vore
Sport	2	Dr. Thompson

It is only fair to state that Spy and Sport, De Vore and Thompson's dogs, owing to accidents received prior to the chase, did most of the work on three legs each.

Such was the enthusiasm inspired by the day's sport that a regular hunt club with Mr. Gelderman of Orange as master, and Dr. Lord as treasurer is about to be inaugurated in Santa Ana.

The pluck of Nigg, the hero of previous chases as well as this one, has been dutifully recognized by the ladies of Orange and Tustin, who have lately presented him with an artistic coverlet embroidered in scarlet and gold. The fee for membership in the Santa Ana Hunt Club is $1 a year, and the membership already reaches thirty. The funds secured by the annual fee of members is to be devoted to compensating the owners of crops, etc., for any damage inflicted by the sport.

The rains of Friday night and Saturday have been highly appreciated. The "Santa Ana" of a week or so ago dried up the soil to a considerable extent, and the late rains were just the thing we wanted. Beet planting will now be the order of the day, and surely a better prospect of a bountiful harvest rarely ever presented itself in the history of the country.

An accident which might have been fatal in its consequence, happened to an Alamitos family on their return from Anaheim a few days ago. A dog belonging to Mr. Lyle rushed out of the house as the buggy was passing and gave chase to the horse. In the latter's excitement he rushed against a post, upset the buggy and spilled the driver and his wife. This is by no means the first time the untrained mongrel has offended in a similar manner. As the dog is not worth a cartridge I venture to suggest that Mr. Lyle should hang him. According to law, Lyle could be made to pay for the damage to the buggy, and for the arnica used on the bruises of its occupants.

Notwithstanding the wet weather the gophers are working havoc in the barley fields. Trapping, and cats seem to be out of date as agents for their destruction. Poisoned barley or wheat dropped in their holes is the only effectual remedy. Fifty cents worth will clear 10 acres of the pests.

Talk about frost in Alamitos! I have a patch of volunteer potatoes the very picture of health, and expect to eat them in a couple of weeks. Notwithstanding this some people postpone sowing their alfalfa until April for fear of the frost. Those who still have their alfalfa in sacks will get left.

Should Anaheim make up its mind to form a hunt club and go in for thoroughbred dogs I will give them a pointer on the "points" of a good greyhound.

"Head like a drake
Neck like a snake
Tail like a rat
Paws like a cat."

What with the ubiquitous tramp, the half starved mongrels and the Irish element in and around Alamitos, a 44 calibre six shooter is a very desirable, if not an indispensable adjunct to one's wardrobe especially after dark.

New Year's day emphasized the old proverb, "Its a bad wind that blows nobody good." Mr. Silkwood was en route for Los Angeles with a wagon full of chickens. It had been raining hard for some days previously and even those who "knew the ropes" along the road were obliged to proceed cautiously, but Mr. Silkwood traveled by faith, for three feet of water hid the chuck holes from sight. In an unguarded moment he struck one, and over went the wagon all fours.

A hundred of his feathered freight got loose over the plains and about 50 more met a watery grave. The neighbors joined in the chase after the roaming birds, and Mr. Silkwood in return divided up the victims to sudden death. As the hens were none the worse for the way they met their end, Alamitos has been banquetting on chicken pie ever since. And now when a peddler similarly freighted wends its way along the same road, the little boys follow him, and all the women leave their tubs to watch him.

That the late rains have been a godsend to this section goes without saying.

ABANDONMENT—YES.

A DECISIVE VOTE AGAINST CONTINUANCE OF OPERATIONS IN THE IRRIGATION DISTRICT.

Not a single precinct in the irrigation district sent in their returns of the election on Saturday to take the sense of the voters on the propriety of abandoning operation therein, in proper fashion. The returns from Yorba were found to be incomplete in that the election officers had omitted in their affidavit of election a part of the legal verbiage, and the poll lists from the other precincts were found to have been left unsigned. At Placentia and West Anaheim the date of the affidavit of election had been omitted.

The board met on Monday to canvass the returns, all members being present. A pile of sealed envelopes containing the returns lay upon the table in front of the President. The first envelope opened was that of Yorba, which was found to be inaccurate. Then the returns from Placentia, Fullerton, West Anaheim and this city were found to be lacking in some essential features of the legal verbiage, and couriers were sent out to hunt up the election officers to have them appear and certify to the returns properly. When finally the votes were counted the result appeared to be as follows:

PRECINCT NO. 1.—YORBA.

Total vote cast	11

The board discussed the propriety of calling an election to choose new Directors and other officers of the district, as required by the act under which the district is operating. The terms of all the officers of the district, including the Directors, expire next month, and the law requires that an election be called to elect new officers on the first Wednesday in February in each odd numbered year. However, the board are not impressed with the proposition of calling the election, and favor abandonment of all operations as speedily and economically as possible. The matter was referred to Attorney Brousseau, who will report at the next meeting.

The Secretary was instructed to return to N. W. Harris & Co., the Chicago bankers, their check for $6,000, deposited a couple of years ago as an earnest of their intention to buy the bonds.

The Secretary was also instructed to make an inventory of the property in possession of the district, including deeds to property purchased at delinquent sale, and to report at the next meeting.

Adjourned to Saturday, the 19th.

THREE STEEL FLUMES.

WITH CEMENT PIERS, COSTING TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS, TO BE CONSTRUCTED AT THE UPPER DITCH—WORK FOR STOCKHOLDERS.

At the meeting of the water board on Saturday it was decided to procure bids for the putting in of three steel flumes to take the places of the present wooden flumes Nos. 4, 7 and 8 on the upper ditch at the Yorba cemetery. The first is 430 feet in length, the next 674, and the third 520 feet, a total of 1,624 feet in all. The work is estimated to cost $11 81 per foot, or $19,179 44. New wooden flumes would cost $9,094, but the board decided to put in substantial steel structures with cement piers, with a capacity for carrying 3,000 inches of water, which it is calculated will last for a lifetime. The present flumes were erected in 1879, fifteen years ago, and have been rebuilt three times.

Messrs. Botsford, Ryan and Crowther were appointed as the committee to procure bids for doing the work, according to Engineer Lum's specifications, and to report at the next meeting.

The upper ditch for a distance of a mile and a half at Horseshoe Bend describes a series of rattlesnake bends, which have always been an eyesore to the company, and which Superintendent Sheppard was instructed to straighten out. The water will be out of the ditch for some weeks, and the work will begin immediately. All stockholders desirous of getting a job on the work, may apply to the Superintendent for that purpose.

The Finance Committee reported that bills to the amount of $3,663 61 had been audited, of which $2,286 87 was for interest, and $496 32 for payroll.

The Law Committee reported, in the matter of the Jurupa suit, that the Santa Ana company had expended $956 05, and the Anaheim company $910 40. The expense was mainly for maps drawn by Engineers Kellogg and Kobeg, showing the river watershed, inlets and diverting ditches, and other data to be used in the suit. As both companies stand half the expense, it will be seen that Santa Ana is a little velvet ahead of us. Lawyer Chapman of Los Angeles, who has been retained to appear for the Anaheim company, will be paid a fee of $5,000. The case will probably not be finally decided for some three or four years, and when it comes to trial it is hoped to restrain the illegal diversion of all water up the river, including a quantity which Riverside is now appropriating, and to which she is not thought to be entitled. The bringing of the suit has already had the effect of stopping all ditch work on the Jurupa ranch, and a large flume blown down last winter the water jumpers have not thought it worth while to rebuild.

Secretary Blennerhassett read the following report of receipts and disbursements in his office for December:

Cash on hand at last report	$40 00
Water sales—Anaheim	39 12
" " North Anaheim	68 85
Bills payable	2,000 00
Total	$2,147 97

All of which had been turned over to the Treasurer.

Treasurer Goldwater reported as follows:

Cash on hand Dec. 1	$2,427 20
Received from Secretary	2,147 97
Total	$4,575 17
Paid warrants	1,915 28
Balance on hand	$2,659 09

Superintendent Sheppard reported having put in eleven cement gates and drops during the month, one on East street at a cost of $6 91½; a cement gate and two drops at McFadden's northeast corner, $70 81; two cement corners at Nenno's, $54 55½; gate and two drops at Hinde's, $24 62½; drop on Placentia avenue near Tombes, $19 67½; drop at Tombes' east line, $11 28⅝. Total construction account, $129 67½; payroll, $496 32½. Damages to ditches by the storm, $300.

Mr. Zeyn wrote saying that a ditch between his line and that of Mr. Stone at Fullerton projected ten feet on his property, and that if it were not placed on the line, he would plough it in. To the Superintendent.

Petition from residents of Fullerton, asking that a pipe line 300 feet long be put in instead of the ditch on first alley west of Spadra road. To the Superintendent and Engineer to report to the Ditch Committee.

Action of the Secretary in forwarding $150 to the Union Trust Company of San Francisco for signing bonds and attorney's fees. Endorsed.

Attorney Melrose was instructed to procure an abstract of proceedings in the bond issue, and to get opinion of Mr. Pope of Los Angeles as a further indorsement of the legality of the securities, and to publish the latter in these columns.

Mrs. Browning wrote asking that $2,700 be paid on her note against the company. The company is indebted to her in the amount of $5,700. On the table till the next meeting.

Speaking of the bonds, Mr. Botsford said that Los Angeles capitalists were eager to purchase the whole issue, but that local buyers would be given the preference.

The old issue of bonds was ordered destroyed, and Messrs. Amerige, Spencer and Sheppard saw that they went into the stove in proper fashion.

Engineer Lum was instructed to prepare plans for improvements at the head of the ditch.

Mr. Barr appeared before the board in reference to necessary work on the ditch running through the cemetery. To the Ditch Committee.

CHURCH NOTICES.

Presbyterian Church—Rev. T. Beaizley, pastor. Services for the week beginning Sunday, Jan. 13.

9:45 A. M., Sunday school.
11, morning service. Subject, "Go forward."
3 p. m.—Junior C. E. society.
6:30, Y. P. S. C. E. Topic, 'Soul hunger and soul food."
7:30, evening service. Subject, "A man who did not want to sin, but said he had to."
Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., Midweek prayer meeting.
Friday, 8 p. m., Bible class at pastor's residence.

At the Presbyterian Church last Sunday evening the pastor Rev. T. Beaizley based his discourse on some words from the book of Jeremiah, "Stand ye in the way and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way and walk therein." He said these were fit words for the beginning of a new year. The stamp of antiquity gives value to many things. Why should it be different in religious things? Certainly tried principles ought to claim regard. Humanity has not changed in its make up. We may perhaps understand it better, but what a man needed in the first ages he needs to-day, and that is to be and do what God made him to be and to do. The religion of the Bible has a positive character. It is a way. Now a way is a structure, not a growth or development. It was constructed and is maintained by recognized authority for a definite purpose. Many people have forsaken the way, hence the call to repent. There is a strong prejudice against repentence. No wise or honest man will have such prejudice, because such men will not claim freedom from mistake. The Bible way is both old and good. It has been tested and so have those who have walked in it. Compare the men who have walked in the Bible way, with those who have not done so, and which class has done the most, which class is doing the most to make the world better? To get reliable information about the way, you must go to those who have walked in it. Who would go to a Democrat to learn about Republican politics? Many men who never walked in the way, talk loudly against it. It is hard to say just how they manifest their wisdom. "Advanced opinions" have a great charm for many. How far have the holders of "advanced opinions" advanced beyond the pastor of the old fashioned fool, who said in his heart there is no God. To-day this looks like cowardice. Do I wish to check freedom of thought? Certainly no, but I do want to check the use of opinions put forth by somebody, instead of using the outcome of your own fair investigation. The Bible way promises rest for the soul. Nothing else can give it. Farms, orchards, bank accounts, social position, do not give soul rest, simply because they cannot. For true lasting soul rest we must go to "Our Father." The Bible shows the way.

—A report prevailed in town last evening that two suspicious characters, tallying in their discription to the Ontario bank robbers, had been seen skulking through the hills beyond the Olinda ranch.

—We have received an invitation to attend the Inaugural Ball at Sacramento. Many thanks! Further on we read the price of admission will be ten dollars. This makes us tired.

—Newman Essick, Chet Holcomb and Otto Rust are engaged as a Board of Audit going over the water company's books and experting accounts, for the annual meeting of stockholders to be held the latter part of the month.

—While work men were engaged in moving the bulletin board at the old hotel corner yesterday the structure fell with a dull sickening thud. It was shortly resurrected and placed a foot or two ahead of where it had been, and is now on the sidewalk line.

—The Placentia fruit growers' association will erect a large warehouse alongside the Santa Fe tracks a short distance west of the depot at Fullerton. What with the improvements in the orange and oil business our bustling neighbor is forging ahead at a more rapid rate nowadays than ever before.

—Charley Bauer has taken a position in Mrs. G. Davis' store. Charley is an honest and hard-working lad, and while we are sorry to lose his services as carrier boy, yet we are glad to hear of his getting a good steady job in the store. Willie Hack will carry the papers in future.

—Our old friend "Stockholder" may get a job straightening out the rattlesnake curves in the ditch at Horseshoe bend, Superintendent Sheppard having been given instructions on Saturday to straighten them and to employ stockholders of the water company so far as possible to do the work.

—The suit of Gustafson vs. the beet company for the recovery of money paid in alleged excessive charges for beet seed, which was to have come on for hearing before Judge Landell on Saturday, was postponed until Saturday next, on account of the absence of the magistrate, a sudden attack of illness preventing his coming in from the ranch.

—Constable Groat and Deputy Fox arrested three gentlemen on Sunday, Dusty Rhoades, Everett Wrest and Jimmy Neversweat, for lounging in the barns of Tim Boege and John Goodale. One of them had several pieces of fancy underwear in his possession, which he had evidently stolen. Judge Pierce gave the three tourists floaters out of town.

—At the residence of T. Anderson in Placentia on Saturday, Jan. 5th, a few intimate friends of the bride and groom witnessed the marriage of Mr. Andrew Ipsen and Miss Christina Schmidt, Rev. F. R. Holcomb of Fullerton officiating. After the ceremony the contracting parties received the congratulations of their friends and the best wishes of all for their future prosperity.

—Tim Carroll is making his annual investment in printers' ink and is placing the Evergreen nurseries on a firmer foundation than ever. Tim spends as much money for printers' ink as any man this side of Tipperary, and is in every way deserving of the success that fortune has showered upon him. His son George is coming to be the business man at the nurseries, and as he knows about as much concerning trees true to name and free from scale as the old man himself, he will be able to get along quite well.

—Mrs. Jennie Simmons of Santa Ana has brought suit for divorce from her husband, Fred Simmons, on the ground of desertion. Simmons was a trusted employee of the Newport lumber company, and two years ago skipped out for parts unknown, taking a large amount of money belonging to his employers and leaving his wife and baby behind him. He was indicted by the Grand Jury, but nothing has ever been heard of him. His wife, tiring of waiting for his return, has applied to the court for legal separation.

M. Higgins, Treasurer; Joseph Helmsen, Secretary; W. T. Brown, S. D.; P. A. Stanton, J. D.; W. M. McFadden, Marshal; A. T. Abbey, Tyler.

—In writing from Jerome, Ariz., to renew his subscription, Otto Strodthoff writes as follows:

I believe my subscription for the GAZETTE expires on Jan. 5th, I therefore enclose you herein P. O. money order for $2 for renewal of same. I try to keep pretty well posted on the affairs of Anaheim and the surroundings, and the GAZETTE being so invaluable in that direction, I find that I cannot get along without it. I receive it quite regularly, usually Saturday evening, but sometimes not until Monday. We do not have any mail into Jerome on Sundays.

It is very cold here at present; we have had very little snow but a good deal of rain.

I presume you have turned over a new leaf again and sworn off. Henry joins in sending regards. Wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year, I am Yours,

OTTO W. STRODTHOFF.

Otto is a great boy, and with his brother Henry makes a team of two of the best young men ever raised in Anaheim. Many thanks for the remittance, and may you live long and prosper!

SUPPER.

The council will be called to order at 8 p. m. sharp.

Mr. E. O. Wright and wife arrived from the East a few days ago, and have taken up their residence on Mr. Barr's place. Mr. Wright was a resident of Anaheim some five years ago, and had the misfortune while here to lose his wife. Since then he has wedded happily again, and will probably remain to enjoy the glorious climate of California during the winter.

Since leaving Anaheim Mr. Wright has traveled through every State of the union except South Dakota and Minnesota, and has failed to find any location to compare with Southern California. At Truckee last week while coming over the divide, the snowdrift measured five feet, yet within a few hours he was among the flowers and oranges of California. As Mrs. Wright has herself acquired quite a liking for Anaheim, our former fellow townsman may be induced to remain permanently.

—Complaint is made by travelers over the road between here and the Santa Ana bridge that the "gravel" now being put on that thoroughfare is nothing but a poor quality of sand with an occasional rock to vary the monotony. This will do not a particle of good, and unless gravel as called for by the specifications be used, the work might as well be discontinued until a better job can be done. This is all respectfully referred to our energetic Supervisor Potter, who we think will at once see to it that the graveling of this unspeakable highway is properly done.

—Mr. Newman Essick, secretary of the Placentia orange growers' association, has sent out a number of interesting circulars to the members, which cannot fail to carry joy to the hearts of the orchardists, and which show the advisability of co-operation as well. Mr. Essick reports a brisk demand for fruit, with prices for fancy Washington navels, $2 per box; choice navels, $1 75; standard, $1 50; fancy seedlings, $1 50; choice, $1 35; standard, $1 20; all f. o. b. shipping point. One of the circulars adds significantly that these prices are "subject to change," and as the orange market has a decided upward tendency, we should not be surprised to see a substantial raise in prices before February.

August Rannow will put in ten acres of beets the coming season for the Chino factory, and if our co-operative sugar house be erected, is ready to put in ten more. Mr. Rannow is one of the pioneer stockholders in the corporation, and is firm in the faith that we shall have a sugar factory here. If he and his neighbors, who are those of the real sugar producers of the country, and whose industry has so far been but partially rewarded, could be made the objects of the government's bounty, instead of firing it into the coffers of the millionaire monopolists, the millenium would seem to be decidedly nearer. If the bounty be restored, let it go to the farmer, at least in part, but let no subsidy bill be passed for the benefit of those who already reap millions from the industry of the farming classes.

—The strange case of the woman possessed of a demon, as mentioned by the Los Angeles papers, has come under the observation of a number of gentlemen of this city, she having paid a visit here with her husband a week ago Sunday. Under her mysterious spell she allows herself a latitude of indiscretion which cannot but be galling to her in her even tempered moments. She is reported to be of some refinement of speech and neatly not to say elegantly dressed. The strangest part of the whole affair is that her husband becomes a party to the infamy, and the woman reviles him bitterly when in company of others. The case is the strangest that has ever come to the attention of the physicians of this city.

—One of the worst burglars ever captured in Los Angeles is named Frank Steadman. This is tough on our urbane City Marshal. But Frank is not alone in his glory. Another Los Angeles crook, whose name has appeared in the papers much of late as an opium fiend and burglar, answers to the name of Arthur Lewis, and a man who killed his mother-in-law some time ago has the euphonious title of Henry Kagel. Recently while in Los Angeles we were mistaken for this chap, on account of the similarity of names and general disreputable appearance, but we managed to make our escape, and here we are. We notice however that Frank Steadman and Arthur Lewis seldom visit Los Angeles nowadays.

—Burglars attempted to enter the residence of Mr. C. H. Gosch at about 11 o'clock Tuesday night, but were frightened away before entering. They had cut away a piece of the wire screen at the kitchen window, when Mr. Gosch's daughters called to him from their room upstairs that burglars were attempting to get in. Mr. Gosch had not yet retired, and going hastily to the kitchen, was enabled to catch a glimpse of two of the burglars making off in the distance. It was moonlight, but he was unable to identify them. He has prepared himself to give these midnight marauders a very warm reception should they favor him with a call again.

When his workman came home at about 9 o'clock he noticed two men sitting near the front gate, evidently waiting until the lights in the house had been put out. He was not however able to identify them, and thought nothing of them at the time.

—We hear that an active vigilance committee exists at Santa Ana, and that an evening or two agothey escorted fifty tramps and hard characters out of town. Anaheim has harbored some of these breakbeam tourists for some days past, a dozen or more coming to town Tuesday evening. No little concern is felt among the respectable element over the burglaries and other offenses committed here, and one hears on all sides expressions of the propriety of forming a committee of safety. A dozen men in town yesterday said they favored the project heartily, and advised calling a meeting for the purpose of effecting an organization. There is but one way whereby the town can rid itself of the disreputable characters now infesting it. Let us have a committee of safety and escort these people out of town, or if they fail to comply, let us decorate the nearest telegraph pole with their carcass.

—After the period of financial depression following the collapse of the bank last year, the report of the condition of the Citizens' bank, published in another column this morning, showing deposits of upwards of $75,000, and cash on hand to the extent of $43,000, seems to us to be a particularly favorable statement. The new bank in the short space of a year has come to be recognized as one of the solid financial institutions of this part of the country, and its identification with the development of the resources of the valley is becoming more marked every day. The Board of Directors comprise some of the best known men of this city and of Los Angeles, and in Messrs. Cahen and Goldwater, as President and Cashier, the management of the institution is in safe and conservative hands. The bank's affairs are managed upon a business-like basis, and the statement of their financial condition, flattering as it is, may be confidently expected to be supplemented in future by others showing even a greater degree of prosperity and usefulness to the community.

—Since Sing Lee abandoned the laundry business last year he has given his attention to raising vegetables over near Fullerton, but he is understood to be able to pull his pistol on an adversary quite as effectually on his vegetable heath as when in the aforetime he presided over the washtub. Sing Lee has a mania for getting into trouble. If it be not in the attempted subduing of an enemy at the pistol's point, Sing Lee will come into court on a charge of attempting to beat his creditors, with a smile that is childlike and bland and with the ways that are peculiar to the heathen Chinee. Sing has had in his employ one Chin Check Meng, and has become indebted to him in the sum of $93 50, which he now refuses to pay. Mr. Meng brought suit to recover the amount and Sing's horses and wagons were attached by Constable Landell a day or two ago. Mr. Ong Quong Tow, otherwise known as Jimmy Craig, a rival vegetable vender, who has Sing Lee on his "little list," qualified upon Mr. Meng's bond, and Squire Landell, who has recovered from his indisposition noted elsewhere, will attempt to straighten out the Celestial quarrel on Monday.

Wanted—A Boy.

About 15 to 18 years of age, to take place at Chas. Federman's store. Must live at home, and have good reference. Steady employment to a good boy.
1t CHAS. FEDERMAN.

Wanted.

A Greyhound, male, not less than 6 months old and a good runner. Address: 'Greyhound," this office.

PERSONAL MENTION.

R. Q. Wickham of Santa Ana has been appointed Minute Clerk of the Assembly.

Judge Scarborough, ex-District Attorney, was over from Santa Ana yesterday on a short business trip.

Miss Kate Alexander of Los Angeles, formerly a teacher in the public schools here, visited with friends in town the past week.

Miss Alice Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fay, who has been home on a visit during the holiday vacation, returned on Tuesday to Stanford University to resume her studies.

Frank Ey was over from the county seat yesterday. Since turning over the Coroner's office to Dr. Clark Frank gives his undivided attention to real estate, and sells as much land as any agent in the county.

Jack Seeger's illness took a turn for the worse the early part of the week, and for a time recovery was despaired of. A slight rally since then has been noted, and Jack's friends hope to see him out again soon.

Miss Hilda Witte is assisting her father in the preparation of the delinquent tax list in the irrigation district. If she had been in the office during the collection of taxes, we doubt if a single dollar's worth of property had gone delinquent.

Hugh McDonald of Mendocia, Monitoba, is looked for to arrive here in a day or two, and will be the guest of W. T. Brown. His daughter will also arrive shortly to remain some time with the family of Mr. Brown.

Mr. Arnold Staub of Placentia advertises grape vines for sale. Mr. Staub informs us the blight has disappeared. He has noticed improvement in vines hereabout for the past four years, and thinks that to-day we are practically free of it.

Messrs. Geo. B. Key and R. H. Gilman were in town on Friday getting the latest quotations on oranges. The crop at the Semi-Tropic grove is about 8,000 boxes, and Mr. Key thinks the owners will come pretty near getting $2 a box for the fruit in the orchard. Br. Earl is after the crop.

Mr. Gosch has ten acres of probably the heaviest bearing orange trees in Southern California. In his orchard there are 390 trees that will yield 20 boxes to the tree, and he expects from the grove no less than 5,500 boxes. He has a flattering option upon the crop, besides, but has not yet disposed of it.

Mr. Gosch informed us yesterday that he had sold to Thacker. He will get probably between six and seven thousand dollars for the crop.

Mrs. Scott has removed with her family to Los Angeles, where she will in future reside, and where she will shortly be joined by her daughter Mrs. V. A. Browning. Mrs. Scott has traded her ranch here for Kansas property, which brings her in quite a comfortable rental. She will build in East Los Angeles and take up her permanent residence there.

Milton Anfenger of Stanford University, who has been a guest of Mr. Fay during college vacation, returned north Tuesday to resume his studies at the university. The young gentleman is the son of an old-time friend of Mr. Fay's in Denver and has passed two of his vacations here very pleasantly. He is not a member of the foot ball eleven yet, but tells us he will be in the tackle and punt business before long.

Supervisor Potter may be seen in town almost any morning early now, on his way to the county seat to attend the meetings of the board. He took the oath of office at noon on Monday and was present at the session of the board again on Tuesday. Mr. Potter drives over the worst bit of road in the county—that between here and Santa Ana—and he will no doubt see the necessity of early and thorough repairs on that thoroughfare.

Oscar Luedke is attempting to impress upon the City Fathers the propriety of placing a city clock in the tower at the City Hall. Had it not been for the jealousy of a rival watch maker who sat on the board a couple of years ago, the clock had been put in the tower at that time, and the striking of the hours been a convenience to every one in town. We hope the Trustees will look upon Mr. Luedke's proposition favorably, and put up the clock as soon as possible.

"Billy" Magoffin was in town one day last week after an absence of something over a year renewing old acquaintances. Billy has been a resident of Sonora, Tuolumne county, most of the time, and was married to one of the amiable young ladies of that place a year or so ago. His physician ordered him south for his health, and he will probably locate in Los Angeles, where he expects to go into the storage business, and where he will shortly be joined by his wife.

Mr. Beebe of the candy kitchen has been very low with typhoid fever, and his illness was greatly aggravated by the noise of a charivari some evenings ago near his residence, but which relic of barbarism Dr. Bullard promptly subdued. The sufferer was thrown into convulsions by the noise, and for a time it was feared he might not recover. While still very low, his recovery is hoped for by a large circle of warm friends whom he has made during his short stay amongst us.

Mr. Crowther, the President of the water company, drops us a line to say that the company have proposals for the entire issue of water bonds from outside parties, and that local creditors should see to it that their promissory notes are exchanged for the bonds before they are taken by the outsiders. Local money lenders should by all means invest in these bonds. The interest payments should be made here and the community should not be subjected to the drain of sending money to distant points for this purpose. They are gilt-edged securities, and their desirable character is best attested by the call for them by outside capitalists. It is to be hoped that all these bonds will be purchased in Anaheim and vicinity.

Mr. Kirby was in from Peralta on Tuesday and informs us that while a number of the residents of his section were at work near the road leading down from Rincon on the day of the Ontario bank robbery, over which the two robbers are said to have traveled on their way to the Mexican line, yet none of the residents saw anything of them. The robbers probably passed some time in the Rincon hills, where they shaved themselves of their stubby beards, indications of the operation having been found by parties looking for them. That they attempted to get to the Mexican line is improbable, and they are likely enough in the East by this time, having probably taken a train out soon after the robbery.

HEART OF NAPOLEON.

IT WAS SYMPATHETIC AND GUIDED A POETIC NATURE.

He Was Kind and Considerate as He Was Brave—Recent Testimony For This Side of the Great Soldier's Character, Which Has Not Always Been Recognized.

Speaking of Napoleon's boyhood, one who knows whereof he speaks says: "In his school days the 'grand homme' gave many indications of the very qualities which procured for him the splendid success which has brought him everlasting fame. His love of discipline, order and power was shown by the manner in which he controlled his schoolmates and constituted himself their leader, teaching them the art of war in mimic battles, constructing forts and battlements of snow in the playground in which many a fierce engagement was fought and won, with snowballs for cannon balls and ice pellets for shot. It is recorded that he undertook to reform the laxity of the college rules and regulations by addressing a letter to the junior master, indicating a system that would do away with the abuses, and that he applied these same rules afterward to the schools of Fontainebleau, Saint Cyr and Saint Germain." According to a recent writer, on one occasion he was directing a performance of the tragedy of Cæsar's death when the wife of the college porter endeavored to force her way into the assembly on the strength of her position, but Napoleon made short work of her. "Remove this woman," he cried, "who brings into our midst the license of the camp," an order instantly obeyed by his colleagues, much, it may be supposed, to the discomfiture of the good woman.

That Napoleon was at heart a great poet there can be no doubt. Mme. Remusat relates that he was a lover of Ossian, was fond of the twilight and melancholy music. The murmur of the wind enraptured him, and he would dilate enthusiastically on the moaning of the sea and the wild beauty of the tempest. His powerful imagination sought to grasp the unseen. He would sometimes amuse himself, while passing the evening in Josephine's drawing room, by telling or listening to ghost stories while the candles were shaded and the singers present executed music of a low, sweet, weird description to the accompaniment of stringed instruments. Doubtless this gift of a subtle imagination led Napoleon to suspect where it was unnecessary and look for a motive in every action of those around him. He believed all men liars until he proved them otherwise. He used to relate the story with great gusto that when he was a child one of his uncles predicted of him that he would govern the world, because he was an habitual liar. Of M. de Metternich he once said, "He approaches to being a statesman, he lies so well!"

Napoleon's life is an unending source of inspiration to the painter. David, Vernet, Scheffer, Steube and a host of others of his time have bequeathed to us some of the great battles and incidents of his career on undying canvas. To each picture is attached some interesting story. During the Italian campaign Napoleon was one night surveying the battlefield of Bassano; the moon illumined the sad scene of carnage; no sound disturbed the deep silence save the feeble groans of the dying and the moans of the wounded. Suddenly a dog crept forward from a dead body over which he was keeping watch; the poor animal retreated to his lifeless master, and then again, as though reluctant to abandon his efforts of reviving him, yet desirous of avenging his death.

Napoleon was deeply touched by the faithful friendship of the animal, who would not forsake his master like his human friends. "What a lesson for man!" cried Napoleon as he gazed on the pathetic spectacle. So strong was the impression made on his mind by that midnight episode of the battlefield that after 25 years he related it when banished to the rock of St. Helena.

Another instance of his real tenderness for the suffering and oppressed was during his Egyptian campaign. A poor fellah had been murdered by a tribe of Arabs who had entered with an armed band into a village and driven off the herds. Napoleon immediately commanded that a company of dromedaries and horsemen should go in pursuit of the guilty party. One of the sheiks, surprised at the indignation of the emperor, observed that it would not be wise for him to embroil himself with the Arabs, a dangerous people, for the sake of a miserable fellah. "Was he, then, thy cousin?" queried the sheik. "More than that," cried Napoleon, with vehemence, "all those whom I command are my children!"

Again, at the plague of Jaffa, Napoleon visited the hospital and endeavored to console the poor dying soldiers. Gros has attempted to convey an idea of this scene in his great painting of "The Plague of Jaffa," wherein he represents Napoleon touching the eruption of a soldier afflicted with the disease, an act no doubt prompted by his desire to inspire courage in those not afflicted as well as to evince his sympathy with the sufferings of his poor soldiers.—Exchange.

Ping-Yang.

Ping-Yang, in northern Korea, was the first "literary center" in the Peninsular Kingdom. Its chief author was an ancestor of Confucius named Kishi, who, gathering up his writing materials and leaving China in 1122 B. C., emigrated eastward into Korean regions. His name is greatly venerated, and many tablets still exist in his honor in the northern parts of Korea.—New York Tribune.

FOOLED THE POLICEMEN.

Two Jokers In a Lofty Perch Finally Outwit Patient Bluecoats.

Two young men, supposedly in a spirit of mischief, climbed up a big pole of the Bell Telephone company on Naudian street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second, before daylight and established themselves in the "crow's nest" just below the first of the wire bearing crossbars on a recent morning. There they sat and sang songs until a passing milkman called up and asked what they were doing.

"Oh, ask of the man in the moon," warbled one, and the other said that they were hunting for the milky way. The milkman left in disgust and notified a policeman of the Fifth district that a pair of nuisances were holding forth "in a cage on a pole." The policeman summoned a brother patrolman, and the two went to the place designated, where the jokers had changed their programme and remained as silent as the grave.

"Come down!" demanded the policeman, but he received no answer. "If you don't, we'll come up and bring you down."

"Then we'll push dem cops away," responded the singer up the pole.

The threat was too much for the bluecoats, so they replied that they would wait below until the men got tired of being up in the air and came down of their own accord. They were answered with a laugh, but sat down on the curbstone and chewed tobacco. A crowd collected, and the men up above entertained it with making jokes at the expense of the patient guardians of the peace. The crowd was augmented by hundreds of people on their way to work, who stood and watched the strange spectacle until their necks got kinks in them. The entertainers meanwhile were not idle and rewarded their sightseers with a variety of funny performances in their elevated and confined quarters.

The wires and door of the box that contains the head cable came in for a good share of their attention, and they rattled and banged to their hearts' content. Finally they got tired and began to descend. The policemen grinned expectantly and the crowd was breathless with interest.

"You're coming down, are you?" shouted the policemen derisively, but the men made no response. Suddenly the lower one, when about ten feet above the roof of the adjacent house, made a spring and landed on the roof in safety. The other one followed suit before the people below could say a word. There they poked their heads over the eaves and shouted:

"Yah, hah! Did we come down?"

Then they disappeared and have not been seen since. Where they went is a mystery.—Philadelphia Times.

NEEDED DIETING.

An Attenuated Horse That Excited an Officer's Unnecessary Sympathy.

A South Chicago policeman came across an attenuated sorrel horse tied to a hitching post the other day. He waited a few minutes until the owner arrived and then said:

"Why don't you feed your horse something? I'd wager that he hasn't seen an oat since he was a colt. Do you feed him on the photograph of a bale of hay?"

"Mr. Officer, you don't know that horse, or you wouldn't talk that way."

"I don't know the horse, but I know that you ought to be run in for working a starved beast like that. It's a case for the S. P. C. A. Do you weigh out his food to him on an apothecary's scales?"

"Officer, before you say any more do me a favor. Get in that buggy and drive around a block, and when you come back here tell me what to feed him. I'll do whatever you say."

The policeman got into the buggy and started off. He thought he was in a merry go round driven by cyclone power. He braced his feet against the dashboard and hung on to the reins until his wrists cracked and there was a shower of heels all over the road. The buggy slewed around corners on one wheel, and when the horse finally landed up against the hitching post with its front legs over the shafts the officer was so dazed that he couldn't speak for a minute.

"Well," queried the owner, "what do you think I'd better feed the horse?"

"If I owned him," answered the policeman sternly, "I'd feed him on some good reliable anæsthetic."—Chicago Tribune.

Race Misalliances.

The German servant girl in Chicago who has married an Americanized Chinese may not regret her act, as the Celestial is usually said to make a kind husband. Girls of her class usually make marriages of this sort to secure an easy life, and as they are not sensitive, they manage to escape the moral suffering that falls to the lot of better bred woman who make a misalliance. Probably the worst victims of ill assorted marriages in the United States are the girls of good family who have married Indians. In every case such girls have endured misery and shame and have finally appealed to the divorce courts for freedom.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Libeled.

A good story is told of a lady who, on her way to an evening party, purchased a most unbecoming yellow turban, which caused her to be for some time an object of merriment to the whole room, owing to the fact of the shopkeeper from whom she had bought it having forgotten to remove from behind it a large ticket bearing the printed inscription: "Very chaste. Only 5s. 11½d."—London Quiver.

A Burglary.

THIS GOAT SMOKES.

He Prefers a Clear Havana, but Comes Down to Cigarettes if He Has To.

A billygoat that smokes cigars and cigarettes, just like a man, is in the possession of Charles Reber, at 120 Krauss street, Carondelet. The goat has a 12 year growth of horns and whiskers of about the same age waving gracefully and odorously from his chin. After a hearty feast upon tin, tacks, rags, paper and anything else in sight Billie, as he is called, takes his siesta. Unless a cigar or cigarette is provided the after meal enjoyment is all broken up for Billie, and he bleats continually until provided with a smoke.

No ardent lover of the fragrant weed pulls at a cigar with more relish than this goat. A complacent smile curls his upper lip when the lighted weed is placed in his mouth, and the right fore foot makes motions toward the whiskers as though to stroke them. But Billie is no ordinary smoker, nor is he unskilled in the habit. He is not only a connoisseur of the best clear Havana goods, but is an adept at fast puffing and graceful manipulation of the weed while in his mouth. The smoke is never puffed out of his mouth. Billie inhales it and blows it out through his nostrils in great clouds. It is related that he attempted to make a smoke ring once, but in puckering up his lips swallowed the cigar, blaze and all. He evidently relished the bite as a dainty morsel, for since that incident he never takes more than one or two puffs at a cigar or cigarette, swallows it down, then blows the smoke out of his nostrils with the ease and grace that would put to shame a two legged cigarette fiend.

It is only of late that Billie has taken to the cigarette habit. It was apparently with much regret that a brother goat in an adjoining yard watched him tackle the papers. He prefers cigars, as a rule, however, but when nothing better is to be had a cigarette is welcome.

Charles Reber, the owner of the goat, notices his growing fondness for cigarettes with much alarm. "With a cigar in his mouth," remarked Mr. Reber, "he looks like the full grown, 12-year-old, 160 pound goat he is, but when he wants to dude up with a cute little cigarette it spoils his handsome cast of countenance." Mr. Reber is very solicitous for the welfare of his animal and has great expectations that the cigarette crusade now on in the city will be carried into the animal kingdom and save his goat from the grave of a confirmed cigarette fiend.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SHERIFF REDGRAVE.

STORIES OF A DISTINGUISHED BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

The Gloomy Anniversary of His Friend's Death—How the Bear Returned a Bullet—The Sheriff Isn't a Doctor, but He Stamped Out a Smallpox Epidemic.

Lying in the picturesque valley of the Columbia river in British Columbia, with the Selkirk mountains on one side and the Rocky mountains on the other, is the town of Donald, on the Canadian Pacific railroad. It used to be known as a "wide open town," but it is now a sedate little place of nearly 2,000 inhabitants. It is the meeting place of divisions of the railroad, and from that reason takes on a commercial importance that other towns of the same size along the railroad lack. It also has an added importance from the fact that it is the home of Sheriff Redgrave, the chief official of all that country around for a great distance.

Sheriff Redgrave is a distinguished man not only because he holds the chief office thereabouts for many miles, but because he has a notable past. He has had many fierce campaigns with the Indians, has fought his full share of deadly duels with desperadoes, has "dropped" his man on more than one occasion, knows what roughing it means in a country the wildest of the wild, and for years before such a thing as a railroad was thought of in that country was a marked man.

Sheriff Redgrave is always amiable and almost always cheerful. Once a year, however, he is manifestly troubled and downcast. It is a custom in Donald on these occasions to wait until a goodly collection of citizens have arrived, and then this conversation usually ensues:

"Good morning, sheriff. You seem a little troubled this morning. You look blue. Nothing gone wrong, has there?" some one will say, and the sheriff will make this response:

"Oh, no," with an apparent effort to throw off his careworn look, "nothing is the matter, but the fact is this is the anniversary of a very sad day with me, and I never can shake off its remembrance."

"Indeed?" some one will say, and at that invitation the sheriff will tell this story of an eventful day in his career, one that annually fills his soul with sadness:

"It was just 30 years ago today that I was up in the Caribou country with the dearest friend I ever had. He was a noble fellow, one that I would have gladly given my life to any day were there occasion to do so. We were walking through a gorge one afternoon, and by a lamentable oversight had only one gun with us. My friend had that. Suddenly we came face to face with an enormous grizzly bear, one of the old time bears, tremendous fellows, such as we used to have in these mountains. The bear was angry, and I think had been stung by some bees. He showed fight, and I saw at a glance that it was either his life or one or perhaps both of ours. He came right for us, roaring and determined to kill us.

"My friend was a nervous man, and I could see that he was a little frightened. Now, you know that I never lose my nerve, and so I said to him that I thought he had better give me the gun and let me kill the bear, so as to make sure of the job. He agreed and seemed to be glad to have the responsibility off his hands. The bear came straight for us, and I took deliberate aim. He had his mouth open, and I aimed to shoot him there and let the bullet penetrate the brain, and thus make a neat job of it. When the bear was about ten paces off, I pulled the trigger. That bullet went straight to its mark, of course, but do you know, just as it struck the bear in the mouth, that animal for some reason or other turned on his heels. The bullet passed through his head, and the bear, turning just as it was passing through, deflected the bullet, so that it flew back to us and killed my friend instantly by my side. Yes, this is always a very sad day with me, and I am sure you will excuse me if I don't show my accustomed cheerfulness."

Sheriff Redgrave has another thrilling experience that he relates occasionally, and it illustrates his fertility of resource in time of great emergency and reveals to some extent the reasons for his popularity and advancement in the estimation of his fellow citizens. He was up in the Caribou country many years ago and stumbled into a camp of Indians where there was an epidemic of smallpox raging. It would never do for him to return home after having been exposed to that contagion, and it also was incumbent on him as a man with a sympathetic heart to try to stamp out the terrible disease. He and his friend pondered over the situation for a long time, and at last a plan came to them.

"How do you suppose we stamped that smallpox out?" the sheriff says as he tells the story.

"Well, it was this way. Neither of us had any medical education, and if we had it wouldn't have done any good, for we had no remedies with us, and it would have been impossible to make those Indians take any medicine. What do you think we did? We just rounded up all the Indians that had the disease, and when we were sure that we had every one of them and had burned all their effects we buried all the Indians up to their necks in the ground and left them there for the night. The next morning we came around to see how they were getting along, and—would you believe it?—the wolves had come during the night and had eaten off the heads of every one of those Indians. That stamped out the epidemic in that whole section, and to this day there has never been a case of smallpox there. It was rather rough treatment, but ever since then that tribe of Indians have been among my very best friends."—New York Sun.

FOOLING WITH MOONSHINERS.

Only One of the United States Deputy Marshals Came Back Whole.

It was known in the United States marshal's office at Nashville that wildcat whisky was coming down the Cumberland river. The marshal was new in office, and therefore was determined to do his duty, which, of course, was to see that the illicit distilleries, no matter how remote, should be destroyed, and that the distillers should be brought to justice. His predecessor in office had been likewise determined and had sent brave men to the mountains, but whisky had continued to come down the Cumberland river. The present marshal, Captain Hayes, an old Confederate officer, said that he thought that when the boys found out that he really wanted them to quit they would do so. He understood them, he knew their natures, their impulsiveness and their disposition to yield to persuasion. So he sent a deputy and four men to tell the boys to quit. One night about a week later some one rang the doorbell, and the marshal himself went to the door.

"Why," said he, "have you got back, Caney?"

Caney answered, "Yes, just about."

"Where is the deputy marshal?"

"Well, he's back too."

"Why didn't he come around?"

"Well, I 'lowed that his folks needed him more than you did, so I unloaded him there."

"What, you don't mean that he's hurt?"

"No, not hurt now, but he was. He's dead at present. I'm the only one that got back whole."

"Well, I declare! Didn't you tell those boys that I wanted them to quit their foolishness?"

"Yes, and they must have been hard of hearing, for they kept on a-shootin."—Opie Read.

One of Milwaukee's big brewers was a law student in Judge Hubbell's office many years ago. Horatio Seymour came into the office one day and said to the youth as he sat reading: "Keep at it, my boy. Read and study, study and read—that's the way only to become a lawyer. I read and studied law 17 years before I felt competent to try a case." "Well, that settles it," said the youthful student. "If it took you 17 years to learn the business, Governor Seymour, I'll quit right now before I waste any more time."—New York World.

SUMMONS.

In the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California.

Mrs. J. M. Roberts, plaintiff, vs. Sheldon Littlefield and Main Street Savings Bank and Trust Company, a corporation, defendants.

The People of the State of California send greeting to Sheldon Littlefield and Main Street Savings Bank and Trust Company, a corporation, defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this Summons, if served within this county, or if served elsewhere, within thirty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of this court for the foreclosure of a Mortgage described in the said Complaint, and executed and delivered by the said Sheldon Littlefield to the said Mrs. J. M. Roberts on the 5th day of February, A. D. 1890, to secure the payment of one certain note, dated February 3d, 1890, for $900 00, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum, compounded semi-annually, and payable one year after its date. No part of the principal sum of said note has been paid, and said principal sum of $900 00, with interest thereon at the rate of ten per cent per annum, from August 3d, 1893, compounded semi-annually, now remains wholly due and unpaid. Said Mortgage conveys the following described premises, to wit: Situate in Anaheim, County of Orange, State of California, and being the east one-half (½) of lot seventy (70); all of seventy-one (71), in block "F" in Vineyard Lot "C 3," with the improvements thereon. Also lots 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, in block "H" in Vineyard Lot "C 3" with improvements. House on lot "112" as per map of Keller Vineyard as subdivided by Messrs. Helmann and Sorenson.

That the premises conveyed by said Mortgage may be sold, and the proceeds applied to the payment of said note, interest thereon, attorneys' fees and costs of suit, and in case such proceeds are not sufficient to pay the same, then to obtain an execution against said Sheldon Littlefield for the balance remaining due, and also that the defendants and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief. Reference is had to Complaint for particulars.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said Complaint as above required, said plaintiff will cause your default to be entered and apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Given under my hand, the seal of the Superior Court of the County of Orange, State of California, this 8th day of November, A. D. 1994.

[SEAL] D. T. BROCK, Clerk.

Richard Melrose, attorney for plaintiff.
