When Doctors Disagree, Who Shall Decide?

Herbert M. Fish, a progressive and respected resident of Cape Vincent, N. Y., said: "The doctors disagreed in my case, one said I had the grip, another that it was jaundice, and so on. I tried many remedies but did not receive the slightest benefit. I was low spirited and nervous and had become reduced in weight from 155 pounds to less than 123. One day a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I tried them and the result was indeed marvelous. My appetite returned and I began to feel rested and restored. At the end of the tenth box my physical condition was better than it had been for years and I was a well man.
HERBERT M. FISH."

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 17th day of Nov., 1898.

VALUABLE ARID-LAND GRASSES.

The Department of Agriculture Importing Plants Adapted to Dry Regions.

As the years roll by the country will see millions of dollars saved to the farmers of the West and millions more made. The advocates of irrigation for the West claim that the carrying out of their proposition would create a vast empire where is now the Great American Desert. Seventy million acres of arid land is the amount estimated by the geological survey as susceptible of irrigation with the present surface water supply of the arid region.

"This utilization of all" Western waters would increase the arable area of the United States less than 10 per cent," said F. V. Coville, the Chief of the Division of Botany of the Department of Agriculture, "and while it would open up a new channel of vast possibilities, I think that we are working along lines which will add almost as much to the nation's development as would the storage and utilization of all her Western waters. What can a work of such magnitude be? Why, the finding and introduction of plants adapted to the hundreds of millions of acres of land of the arid belt which must always remain arid even after every drop of water has been conserved by means of storage reservoirs and otherwise. Although the opening up to settlement through irrigation of between 70,000,000 and 100,000,000 acres of land would create thousands if not millions of homes, yet there will always remain these vast tracts of arid and semi-arid grazing lands which, while useless for most crops, will produce certain plants in profusion. Most of the Western lands are fertile. All they need is water; if not water, then some crop which will thrive on the light rainfall they receive; not sufficient to keep alive ordinary crops. We are finding such crops, and I think we will eventually cover this arid area with plants of various sorts which will yield millions of tons of additional forage and grain for Western flocks and herds. The Department of Agriculture has explorers all over the world searching out such plants. For every acre in arid America, North or South, of high or low altitude, there is a counterpart in the old world, and the old world is full of experience. In Russian Turkestan, in Arabia, on the borders of the Sahara the varied conditions are exactly similar to those of different parts of our Western territory, and in these ancient lands they have grown arid-land crops for thousands of years. Every acre of the new West has its double in the old East. Our men are hitting upon valuable things from time to time, and when something of use is discovered the department makes it its business to see to its distribution. It seems strange that even with our advanced methods of transportation and our mail facilities valuable discoveries are often buried in communities for years.

"Broom corn millet (Panicum miliaceum) is a plant which I expect in time to see cover great Western areas. It will grow heavy grain yields where it is both too cold and too dry for Indian corn, too cold for Kaffir corn (which would otherwise compete with it) and too dry for wheat. It will produce 30, 40 and even 50 bushels per acre of grain excellent for converting into hog fat, mutton or beef, and this upon land where ordinary crops cannot live. The man who has 10 acres under irrigation, and owns adjacent thereto a tract of arid land, will want such crops.

"Kaffir corn itself is an example of what the proper crop will do for a locality. Ten years ago this plant was an experiment in the United States. It was said to thrive on land too dry for Indian corn, and it was tested through Western Kansas, where corn raising was a precarious industry owing to the light rainfall. According to the report of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, Kansas raised in 1893 47,000 acres of this crop; in 1898 it raised 535,743 acres, valued at $5,688,380—a reclamation practically of half a million acres in a single State. Entire western counties are now yielding magnificent annual crops of this valuable plant which, prior to its introduction, consisted of supposed worthless land. Brome grass (Bromus inermis) is another instance of a fine arid-land plant which required pushing. Brome grass will undoubtedly reclaim enormous areas of arid land. No grass will grow without moisture, but where most grasses would die brome grass will simply stand still and wait until moisture comes, when it will immediately start off, producing splendid forage. This grass has been known in several sections for a number of years, but it has never been grown extensively even in those sections, farmers seeming to be afraid of it, and its fame has never spread widely until last year the department undertook to educate Western farmers as to its virtues and to distribute seed."

The Nicaragua Canal.

Captain McCalla of the Marblehead, now on this coast, gives some interesting figures regarding the value of the Nicaragua canal. Between New York and San Francisco the Marblehead steamed 16,086 miles. Had she, instead of going through the Straits of Magellan, gone from St. Lucia to San Francisco via the Nicaragua canal, the navigable distance would have been 8070 miles. The coal consumed amounted to 4189 tons. It is estimated that the canal route would have saved 2418 tons. The value of the coal thus saved, at the rates charged in South America, would have been $23,899.19. "I beg leave to add," says Captain McCalla, "that from a military point of view, the possibility of reinforcing the fleet in the Pacific or Atlantic by units from one or the other is of the greatest importance, and as the canal would enable us to more quickly reinforce the Pacific or Atlantic fleet, such a waterway would enable us to rest satisfied with a smaller navy than would be required without a canal, because the forces would be within closer supporting distance of each other than if they had to pass terough the Straits of Magellan."

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

Astonishing Increase of Population—Notable Gains in Orange County.

A recent compilation of figures relative to California's growth during the past decade shows the wonderful advancement of the southern counties, especially during the last five years. Orange stands second only to Los Angeles in the percentage of gain, far eclipsing the other five counties, and in fact being second in percentage of gain in all the counties of the State.

1894	1,348,532
1899	1,505,407
Net gain in the state	156,874

The tabulation (the work of that eminent statistician, L. M. Holt) shows a loss in fifteen northern counties, namely, Alpine, Colusa, Glenn, Lake, Madera, Napa, Nevada, Plumas, San Benito, Sierra, Stanislaus, Sutter, Tehama, Tulare and Yolo. The total loss in these counties is 8,199.

Next is given the population of the seven southern counties for 1894 and 1899, all of which show gains:

Counties.	1894.	1899.	Gains.
Los Angeles	130,853	160,125	29,272
Orange	19,174	24,368	5,194
Riverside	18,202	20,636	2,274
San Bernardino	24,944	28,449	3,505
San Diego	33,078	35,815	2,787
Santa Barbara	19,673	21,487	1,814
Ventura	14,581	16,310	1,729
Totals	290,515	337,190	76,675

Here we have an increase of 76,675 in five years, while during that same period the increase in all the remainder of the State was only 80,200.

There are other features of interest in connection with the growth of California as illustrated by these estimates on the school census.

The total number of census children in the State in 1898 and 1899 were as follows:

1898	347,624
1899	359,125
Gain in one year	2,501

Counties.	1898.	1899.	Gain.
Los Angeles	42,043	44,215	2,172
Orange	5,429	5,667	238
Riverside	4,710	4,729	19
San Bernardino	6,528	6,616	88
Totals	58,710	61,297	2,587

The entire increase in the State is found in the three counties of Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside—lacking only two children—the increase in these three counties being 2499—only 2 short of the 2501 increase in the entire State.

A series of tables from 1850 to date proves the growth of Southern California has been steady during that period, and that whereas in 1850 the southern end of the State contained less than 4 per cent of its population, the proportion is now increased to 22 per cent:

Date.	State.	So. Cal.	Per cent.
1850	92,302	3,917	4.24
1860	379,994	24,751	6.45
1870	560,249	32,032	5.72
1880	864,552	64,378	7.44
1890	1,203,999	200,497	16.64
1899	1,505,407	337,190	22.39

The last column in the above table shows the ratio of the population of Southern California to that of the State.

Six reasons are given which readily account for the ascendancy of Southern California:

First—It has a climate that is unexcelled in any part of the world to attract the invalid, and any climate that is good for the invalid is very good for a well man.

Second—It has two transcontinental railroads that are reaching out to every corner of this section just as fast as those sections are developed—and a little faster in many cases.

Third—More railroads are coming, or at least one more will reach us from Salt Lake City before the close of the century—and that is not a great ways off.

Fourth—We number among our citizens many men who are built on the broad-gauge, progressive plan—such men as built a Chicago—such men as built the United States—and they have the ability and the disposition to build a Southern California, and they are doing it.

Fifth—The products of the soil here bring more dollars per acre than they do anywhere else in the United States.

Sixth—The fact is we are growing—and he who fails to invest his money on that basis is the one who will make the miss.

Just as Tall as the Venus.

The recognized perfection of a woman's stature is 5 feet 5 inches, the height of the Venetian Venus. The other accessories for physical perfection, according to the Arable code, are:

Black—Hair, eyebrows, lashes and pupils.

Red—Tongue, lips and cheeks.

Long—Back, fingers, arms and limbs.

Round—Head, neck, arms, ankles and waist.

Large—Forehead, eyes and lips.

Narrow—Eyebrows, nose and feet.

Small—Ears, bust and hands.

For a woman 5 feet 5 inches 138 pounds is the proper weight, and if she be well formed she can stand another 10 pounds without greatly showing it.

When her arms are extended she should measure from the tip of middle finger to tip of middle finger just 5 feet 5 inches, exactly her own height. The length of her hand should be just one-tenth of that and her foot just one-seventh.

The distance from the elbow to the middle finger should be the same as the distance of the elbow to the middle of the chest.

From the top of the head to the chin should be just the length of the foot and there should be the same distance between the chin and the armpits.

A woman of this height should measure 24 inches about the waist and 34 inches about the bust if measured from under the arms and 43 if over them.

The upper arm should measure 13 inches and the wrist 6.

The calf of the leg should measure 14½ inches, the thigh 25 and the ankle 8 inches.

Closing Exercises.

After each paper a general discussion will follow, in which all, whether members of the society or not, are cordially invited to take part.

The lower room of the Opera-house will be open for the reception of lunches by those bringing them from the outlying sections. Chairs and tables will be provided, and lunches may be partaken of in the room.

The Committee on Exhibits and Decoration have been busily at work collecting exhibits for display, and probably one of the finest displays ever made at a meeting of the society will be the result.

The public is cordially invited to attend. Admission free. Everybody come and hear an interesting program, and see the display of the products of the valley.

Raisin Industry.

There are sixty plants in California engaged in packing and seeding raisins this season, the majority of which are located in the Fresno district. These packing-houses furnish employment in round numbers to 5000 hands, most of whom are women and girls. Very few of these packing-houses employ less than fifty, while the larger ones number from 200 to 250 on their payrolls. The aggregate amount of money paid out to these employees each month will approximate very nearly a quarter of a million dollars while the packing season lasts.

The rains of the past two weeks have checked the delivery of raisins by growers quite materially, but now that the weather has become settled and favorable to drying the growers will hurry in the crop to the packers, and shipments to the East will be expedited accordingly. Eastern buyers have been clamoring for goods for the Thanksgiving trade, and packers have in consequence been at their wits' end to satisfy the demand in season.

The California Raisin Growers' association, with its vigilant inspectors in each packing-house, is maintaining with rigid rules the "standard of excellence" in every grade of raisins permitted to be boxed and stamped with the name of the association, so that jobber and retailer can feel assured when purchasing California raisins so stamped that he is getting just what he pays for.

The great value of associations to farmers and growers of special products, organized for the purpose of properly marketing their crops and maintaining reasonable prices, is shown most forcefully in the experience of the raisin growers this year as compared with the prune growers. Through effective association the raisin grower has marketed his crop at full prices, as fast as the raisins could be delivered and packed, and with positive knowledge that not a car will be carried over into another season so freely have Eastern dealers placed orders for the crop. On the other hand, the prune growers, who have an equally desirable product, find it extremely difficult to sell their crop even at prices which are but little more than half the true value of the product, as compared with other fruits. Dealers in buying and handling raisins have perfect confidence in the ability of the raisin growers' association to maintain prices at all hazards, and therefore have no friends pursued, and in overtaking the figure they found they had Hunt. Later the girl was found hiding in a brush heap, where it is supposed she ran from the front door of the house when Hunt ran from the back. Mrs. Burrows was with the searching party, and when her daughter was found she fell in the throes of epilepsy. Her recovery last night was in much doubt.

Money in Figs.

One million dollars per annum can be easily added to the income of California, in the opinion of Prof. Walter T. Swingle of the United States Department of Agriculture, by cultivating figs. Prof. Swingle has been touring the State and keenly observing. His conclusion is that the foothill region of California is excellently adapted to the growing of fig orchards and is like the natural home of the fig. Imported figs are now selling on the Atlantic coast at the extravagant rate of $1000 per ton, and there are few to be had at that price. If California had a fig crop now it would be as good as a gold mine.

"California ought to raise figs enough for the whole United States," said Prof. Swingle to the Call reporter. "I am satisfied that the possibility of so doing will be demonstrated satisfactorily."

The explanation of this is that if the fig moth, brought from Asia by Prof. Swingle in Capri figs, shall survive the frosts the problem of fertilizing the figs, which has puzzled generations of Californians, will be settled. It has heretofore been supposed that the only way to introduce the fig moth into California was to import small Capri fig trees in pots and wait for them to grow. Prof. Swingle had adopted the more direct method and brought them in figs being wrapped in tin foil. A journey across the Mediterranean Sea, the Atlantic ocean, and the North American continent did not hurt the moth in the least. There are many samples of the moth in the State now, all so imported and are doing well.

If the moths survive the frost this winter, the way will be blazed out for the future industry, which cannot but prove an important addition to the State's commercial resources.

Prof. Swingle says that he thinks that it is also possible to introduce the fruit-bearing cactus into California successfully. This is something like the prickly pear, with the "prickers" left out. The fruit is of a dull, red color and tastes something like a canteloupe. In Arabia this fruit grows on the desert and does not need any water to thrive. There are large tracts in California, now producing no revenue, that might be made to pay well with crops of this Arabian fruit. Prof. Swingle is investigating carefully concerning the outlook for the date palm.

The shortage in the Asiatic fig crop ought to supply a market for any California black figs fit to send forward this season. Black dried figs have already been sold, in small quantities, in the East, at very good prices.

DONNERWETTER!

Anaheim Cor. L. A. Times, Oct. 27.

ANAHEIM, Oct. 26.—City trustees have decided to require the sprinkler, under the new sprinkling contract to be let in a few days, to do city teaming and gravel hauling at such times as the sprinkling cart is not on the move. The sprinkler will be required to furnish his own team. This change puts the city in possession of a useless pair of mules [it does not] that it has owned for several years. As to disposing of them, the rather startling proposition from a municipal body was made in regular session of the trustees last night that they be raffled off [hear! hear!] if it were found troublesome to secure the price asked. The idea was adopted, and the city is billed to appear in the role of manager of a raffle, unless the arbitrary price set on the team is secured.

ANOTHER SENSATION SPOILED.

From the Times, Oct. 27.

On Oct. 20th it was reported from Fullerton [by the Times' Anaheim correspondent] that a "prominent young rancher," William Hunt, had been accused of criminal assault upon a young girl, and an interesting tale of the visit of indignant neighbors to Hunt's house, the flight and capture of Hunt and rescue of the girl was woven from the information given by a constable who took part in the affair.

William Hunt, the "prominent young rancher," called at the Times office last night to tell his story. He is a lad 16 years old, who lives with his parents near Centralia. He said the trouble all came from the objections of Mrs. Burrows to the attention he paid to her daughter Annie, 15 years old. Mrs. Burrows, he said, saw him talking to Annie, and charged upon him with a sunflower stalk. After breaking up the lovers' tryst, the old lady threatened to send the girl to Whittier and alarmed her so much that Annie left home that night and sought refuge at the Hunt home.

The next day a family delegation called at the Hunt home, and during the parley Annie slipped out of the house. A constable searched the house in vain, and while he was prowling about the ranch Hunt concluded to have some fun with him. He donned a skirt, slipped out and showed himself, and the constable gave chase. After a short run Hunt dropped the skirt, and the laugh was on the constable, and was joined in by the Burrows delegation. Hunt then found the girl, and he says everything ended satisfactorily to all but the constable. Mrs. Burrows agreeing that he should be permitted to renew his attentions to Annie when both are a little older. No criminal proceedings were instituted or contemplated.

AS IT FIRST APPEARED.

From the Times, Oct. 21.

FULLERTON, Oct. 20.—William Hunt, a young rancher of prominence, has been placed in a serious position by charges of alleged criminal assault upon a thirteen-year-old daughter of William Burrows. Burrows and Hunt have ranches near Centralia. For some weeks past Hunt has been stopping the Burrows girl on her way home from school. Two weeks ago Burrows threatened to thrash Hunt because of alleged undue intimacy with the girl, and was only prevented from doing so by the interference of friends. Since then Hunt and the girl have met clandestinely. Thursday night after supper the girl left her home and did not return. Yesterday morning Burrows and a party of friends went to Hunt's house after he had ascertained that the girl did not spend the night at a neighbor's, where it was supposed she had gone. Reaching Hunt's delivery of the girl was demanded. Hunt denied that she was there. Burrows insisted that she was. While parleying was in progress Burrows threatened to break into the house, a figure in woman's attire sped from the back door of the house toward a brush pile. Burrows and his friends pursued, and in overtaking the figure they found they had Hunt. Later the girl was found hiding in a brush heap, where it is supposed she ran from the front door of the house when Hunt ran from the back. Mrs. Burrows was with the searching party, and when her daughter was found she fell in the throes of epilepsy. Her recovery last night was in much doubt.

GRAFTER BARR: TAPPER FOWLER ($750.)

Some of the Choice Allusions to Them One Hears About Town—Two Dromios Well Mated.

"That was a bully good roast you gave old Barr in your last week's issue," said a leading merchant of Center street on Thursday last, after perusing the paper; "you just keep it up; that is what he needs, you bet. He has been a resident of Anaheim for fifteen years or more, and I have never yet heard him say a good word for the town. He used to come in to see me quite frequently, until he finally became such a bore that I had to tell him to make himself scarce.

"You know, each time he would come to see me, he had something to say to run down the town. At first I regarded his statements as being made from the standpoint of one who really had some sort of criticism to offer. But I shortly found out that it was his purpose to belly-ache about the town and run it down to everybody he came across.

"He used to talk union district high school, and I believe the only reason why he did so was to keep the high school out of Anaheim. He knew very well that the offer of a site half way between the two places (if indeed it was ever made) could not be made to stand the test of the law. In the first place, Anaheim could only be taken into the Fullerton union high school district (providing such a desire existed upon the part of the citizens of this city) by legal means; and the location of the high school could be located only by legal means. Consequently all this talk that Barr indulged in was to no purpose, except as it gave him an opportunity to hit the town a lick, and take the high school away from this city to Fullerton. That was a bully good roast you gave him; say, have you copies of the paper containing the testimony of his case against Hart? In which Hart said Barr wasn't worth killing? No? The papers are all gone? Well, that's too bad. Men come in here nearly every day and talk about it, and I wanted to keep one of those papers. You must print that testimony all over again. That was the richest thing you ever printed in your paper.

"There goes the white-headed old reprobate now," he continued, as he pointed to Barr waddling down the opposite sidewalk, hitting the walk at every second step with his cane. "His hair is getting considerably whiter this last year, and he doesn't seem to be so dapper as he used to be. He carries his head considerably lower, and it really reels around like a cocoanut in the breeze, as you said in your paper a couple of years ago. Did you ever see Barr leaning on his cane while talking to a fellow, with one leg thrown around the other and leaning forward as though he was about to fall over? Funny position he assumes, isn't it? Well, I must go over and wait on those customers, but don't forget to keep up the good work. Give us his cemetery record."

"Barr found congenial company when he ran across Tapper Fowler, ($750)," said another merchant in another block, as he conversed with a half dozen men about town one evening recently. "That man Fowler's tapping of Dyer for $750 'the first rattle out of the box' was a little bit the rawest piece of work I ever heard of. Dyer was the man more than anyone else who made the factory a possibility. Of course our Beet and Land Company of 1200 acres was of material assistance. With the subscriptions by the farmers of West Anaheim, Buena Park, Los Alamitos, Garden Grove, Westminster, Norwalk and Artesia, the factory ought to have been made a success of, and, with the several hundred shares held in Los Angeles it looked to me that we were going to have that factory. When Dyer came down and bought those 300 acres I considered the deal as good as made. I didn't know until some days afterward that Fowler's 535 shares were bogus. And when I shortly afterward learned that Fowler had deliberately tapped Dyer for $750, for commission on the land sale, I felt that the jig was up for the sugar factory—that Fowler's many protestations of fidelity were in the air, and that he was in the business solely for the commission he could rake off of unsuspecting landbuyers. Dyer was very nicely taken in, and I know he entertains feelings of very bitter resentment against Fowler. I regard Fowler as the man who broke up the sugar factory, and I have many times considered why the people of Anaheim allow him to live here among them. Certainly he has done more to injure the town than any forty men who ever lived here. He has a good running mate in Barr, who loses no opportunity to run down the town—the two go well together. Baghouse Barr and Tapper Fowler."

"Barr must be out $2000 at least on the Plain Dealer outfit," said another well-known citizen, "and it's telling on him. I wonder what satisfaction he gets importing an Alabama Ku-Klux to vilify the best citizens in town. Then he goes around and tells them he has nothing to do with the paper, protests on the witness stand that he has nothing to do with it, and then lopes off to the office to carry such 'stinks' to it as his lil nature may dip up during his walks about town. I never knew a man so close-fisted in my life; he is always ready to turn a dollar, whether by an offer of marriage or by conspiring to destroy a will; but he is the hardest man to get a dollar out of I ever saw. Yet he is blowing himself for a couple of thou' for a sheet that is doing more to hurt the town than anything we have had since Fowler killed the sugar factory. The three ought to be put together and bundled out of town.

"Talking about Barr ever helping any one financially, I wonder if his assistance was in these cases similar to that rendered by him to Charley Calmar, who ran a restaurant in the Backs block some years ago. Barr lent Calmar $50 for a month and charged him $20 interest! Think of it! When Calmar paid Barr he was upon the point of thrashing him. He desisted on account of Barr's grey hairs. But Barr so undermined his business, by going about telling stories of him, that Calmar soon had to close up his restaurant. Talk about people being 'run out of town!' Barr is a prince at that sort of business. He ought to be tarred and feathered."

THURSDAY.....NOVEMBER 2, 1899

ANAHEIM is upon the eve of a period of advancement that will be hailed with delight by the well-wisher of the community. Orange county has during the past half-dozen years been advancing with no uncertain step. its increase in population during the last five years being nearly equal to that of Riverside and San Bernardino combined. New orchards have been set out, and new industries inaugurated that have served to attract the homeseeker, and a notable increase in the population, especially in this end of the county, is the result. Our neighboring town of Santa Ana has enjoyed quite a pretentious building era for some months past, there being more building going on than at any time in a dozen years. Anaheim proposes to get into the procession, and the happiest results are looked forward to. First, there is to note the fact that Herman Harris, the Santa Ana dry-goods merchant, has taken a four years' lease of the three stores in the new Deutsch block, and will occupy the premises with a dry-goods, grocery and department store. The Mercereau Bros. of West Anaheim have rented the Kroeger block and will open a new grocery store. Peter Weisel, Esq., who has lately returned from a trip to Europe, is so well pleased with the cannery's first campaign that he announces he will erect a new cannery for next season's crop of fruits and vegetables, with a capacity of 20,000 cans per day. The establishment will put up in the neighborhood of 650,000 cans this season, and if frost holds off a little longer, the output may reach 700,000 cans. There are many acres of splendid tomatoes still in the field, and these are being gathered as fast as they ripen. Next year Mr. Weisel will put up probably 2,000,000 cans. There will be few canneries in the State having a greater output. The present cannery building will be used as a warehouse. Next in order comes the moving up town of the Griffith Lumber company, which will erect a large planing mill on land near the new Southern Pacific depot. Extensive lumber yards will be established at this point, and the yard made the distributing point for lumber in this section of the county. Tim Boege, the West End capitalist, also contemplates moving up town and establishing himself in business, and there are rumors that several new business houses will open up for trade before the beginning of the new year. With the vacant stores occupied, there will come a demand for new buildings, and already one hears of plans being made for the erection of several. Reports of the construction of the Placentia railroad are revived, and on all sides one hears nothing but good cheer relative to the boom in business and building which the town is about to enjoy.

THE Anaheim Deciduous Fruit Association has sold a number of carloads of nuts this season for as high as 9 cents per pound. When it is recognized that, as between 8.15 cents (the price fixed upon by the executive board for first-class softshells) and the price received by the Anaheim nut growers the increased returns of the latter amounts to $170 per car, the statement has an added significance. The Anaheim association co-operates with the other nut growers' associations, except that it refuses to be bound by the price fixed by the executive board. It announced at the beginning of the season that it would market its crop by the system of f. o. b. sales, similar to that prevailing in the citrus fruit growers' exchange. The result has proved the wisdom of its course. The association has orders for more nuts than it can fill—from New York, Minneapolis, Salt Lake, Ogden and other cities—and the last orders received are held subject to its ability to fill those already in hand.

Many nut growers, hereabout as well as in other sections, express the opinion that the entire body of nut-growers' associations will next year be formed after this method, which gives the grower the benefit of any advance in rates. Last year the price of nuts, for instance, fell to 6½ for first-class hardshells and 7½ for softshells. The growers attempted to stand for 9 cents, but the "gentleman's agreement" failed to work, and the Rivera growers were unsparingly criticised for their unfairness in disposing of their nuts at a cut below the price the other associations had agreed to stand for. This began the demoralization, and prices had to give way to new conditions of the market. The year before, by the exercise of just such unbusinesslike methods, the price fell to 4 and 5 cents, and in some cases nuts were sold as low as 2 cents per pound. It appeared that even though the executive board fixed upon a price, the subsequent manipulation of the market by the brokers might so disturb prices as to send them down to a ruinously low level. On the other hand, after the fixing of the price by the executive board (which was this year placed at 7.65 for hardshells and 8.15 for softshells), any raise in the market is pocketed by the brokers—which amounts this year, to $170 per car. The Anaheim growers are quietly putting this money into their pockets, and sawing wood.

The brokerage paid by the associated growers runs from 3 to 5¼ per cent, which includes all the expenses of the central exchange. The average so far this season is reckoned at 4 per cent. Those growers who are not affiliated with the exchange are required to pay 6 per cent, practically half a cent per pound, or $10 per car. At an average of 4 per cent the associated growers pay $6 per car. A car of first-class softshells at 9 cents brings $1800, while at 8.15 the return is $1630.

The saving effected by the local association on account of the instantaneous method of dipping for bleaching purposes, as compared with the patented Anderson method in use by some of the other associations, brings the net return of a carload of nuts to over $200 more than the price received by any other association.

The local deciduous fruit growers' association has also demonstrated the possession of wise business forethought in the sale on Thursday last of its dried fruit. The remainder of its dried-fruit crop was sold at 12 cents, a rate netting the growers $36 per ton for green fruit, and netting one grower (Mr. Neff) $40.

The various fruit growers' associations of Southern California should pattern after the methods of the Anaheim association—it will be money in their pockets if they do. Let all the nut growers stand together next year in one compact exchange, and 9 cents per pound will be realized. But meantime we would like to ask how those growers who have sold for 7½ cents to outside brokers feel when they realize that their neighbors in the association are getting 9 cents—a difference in favor of the association of $200 per car?

The association on Saturday received an offer of 9½ cents for a carload of walnuts. Members of the association are of opinion that the price will yet touch 10 cents.

THE Directors of the street car company, finding that the removal of the Southern Pacific depot up town has had the effect of reducing the receipts of the company to a point below the running expenses, have under discussion the propriety of discontinuing the line. That would be in the nature of a public misfortune. The trouble seems to be that too many of our citizens seem never to realize that a car line exists in town: when they have business at one end of the town or the other, they walk instead of spending a nickel for a ride in one of the handsomest street cars in Southern California. Patronize the street car! The company desires to make no profit out of it, but they rightfully consider it should at least pay running expenses. Treat yourself to the luxury of a street car ride, and keep the institution going.

THE law approved March 20, 1897, entitled "An act to regulate the width of tires of wagons to be used on the public highways of the State of California" goes into effect on the first day of January 1900. It is quite sweeping in its provisions and affects nearly all vehicles moving on wheels.

The law is founded on good sense; it was enacted in the interest of everyone who travels, either on horseback, on bicycle, automobile or in light or heavy wagons. The object of the law is to prevent the routing out of roads; to preserve the highways and make the work of horses lighter and at the same time more effective. The widths of tires under the new law run from three inches for one and seven-eight inch tubular steel or iron axles, to six inches for wagons having three and one-half inch tubular steel or iron axles.

The Legislature very wisely set the time for the operation of the law nearly three years away, so that observance of its provisions would not be oppressive. The changes could be made gradually and the State be easily operating on a wide-tire basis, so to say, by the time the narrow tire would be a violation of law. But evidently the Legislature had forgotten the fact that procrastination is very popular in California. Few people care to do today things they can defer until tomorrow, or accomplish this year what they can put off until the next.

The penalties for violating the law are quite severe. So far as we can learn not the slightest attention has been paid to the enactment, and if there is a disposition to force its observance the disregard for the wide-tire law will prove to be an expensive piece of business.

Following are the sections relating to conditions and penalties:

Section 2.—Every person who sells or purchases, or uses upon any public highway of the State of California any wagon or other vehicle, the wheels of which wagon or vehicle have tires of a less width than as specified for such kind of wagon in Section 1 of this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Section 3.—Every person who brings into the State of California, or who, in said State, offers to sell or sells, any such wagon or vehicle, the wheels of which have not tires of the width prescribed by section 1 of this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

section 4.—Any person found guilty of a violation of any of the provisions of this Act shall be fined in the penal sum of not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned in the county jail not less than twenty-five days nor more than six months.

Section 5.—This Act shall take effect and be in force after January 1, 1900.

From these sections it will be seen that failure to put wide tires on their wagons by the owners of them is likely to lead to rather serious complications

IT is reported from Anaheim that weevils infest the seed grain now being distributed there, and that the ranchers are alarmed at the situation.—Los Angeles Times, Oct. 27.

It is a long time since the Times has had a friendly word to say concerning this city, and the above is in line with its usual course. Diligent search for information among seed dealers fails to elicit a single iota of evidence that would tend to furnish any excuse for this malicious assertion.

Capt. Wrede's Illness.

Henry Grubb was in town from Placentia yesterday afternoon. He reports the serious illness of Capt. Wrede, who was taken with a stroke of partial paralysis on arriving at his ranch on Friday evening last. He reeled and would have fallen, but called to Grubb, who ran to his assistance and carried him indoors. Dr. Clark was summoned and pronounced the case due to the probable stoppage of one of the blood vessels in the head. The Captain was yesterday afternoon considerably improved, and will in all probability soon be able to be around again.

Dr. W. E. Selleck, the Santa Ana veterinary, was in town yesterday. He is the heaviest man in the county, weighing 320 pounds—he used to weigh 330, but took anti-fat and reduced his weight 10 pounds. He stands 6 feet 4½ inches in height, and ought to be pretty bad medicine in a scrap.

MR. ARMOR ON CAP. WOOD

EDITOR GAZETTE:—While it is not my wish to draw the fire of the Plain Dealer toward the GAZETTE, nor my purpose to bandy epithets with that sheet, there are certain misstatements and misrepresentations in its last issue that should be corrected before the public. A number of the former accusations were evidently cleared up last week, as they are not repeated again, but only those made on the authority of Captain Wood are repeated with some additions.

So far as the charge of attempting to silence Wood by threats is concerned, there was always one witness present, besides myself, at the interviews and sometimes two, who would deny the charge, if called upon, because it isn't true. As to his remaining "firm" and backing up the charges, that is only the assertion of the Plain Dealer; to us he repudiated many of the statements in that paper, although he admitted that he felt sore over the failure to get his plans adopted. Besides the witnesses, we have his declaration in writing to that effect.

Whether a libel suit will be instituted or not is not yet determined; but to say that such action, if undertaken, would be for the purpose of heading off an investigation by the grand jury is absurd. All the grand jury could do would be to bring an indictment and get the matter into court, where it would go in case of a libel suit. This constant reference to the grand jury and attempting to bully the court into calling that body together in advance of the court's judgment of times and seasons is all for effect upon the readers of the Plain Dealer. Nobody is obstructing investigation, and when it comes in the jail matter we'll be there.

The report of a pretended conversation between Captain Wood and myself about his ability to prove his charges is rank fiction. The same is probably the case with the statement that Supervisor Potter heard "on good authority that Bradshaw's board bill at Santa Ana was paid by the contractors who had the jail job;" at least it would need better authority than the Plain Dealer to convince me of its truth. When it was stated that the Supervisors did not think the Wood plans could be built for $20,000, one reason was given for their rejection, but perhaps not the only one. The offer of a contractor to build it for that amount was no more convincing to the Supervisors at that time than the claim that the Brown or Strange plans for a courthouse could be built for $80,000 was to some of the present board. The Supervisors have full jurisdiction in such matters; no court, grand jury or other authority can compel them to think one way when they really think another. On this line The Post, which is not my paper, did not advise the Supervisors to pay no attention to the protests of the people. It did advise the people—that is, some of the people—not to protest so hard as to bulldoze the Supervisors and compel them to do violence to their own judgment. If the Supervisors are fit for the place, after studying plans for weeks they are better able to make a wise selection than people who have not made such a study. As it would be manifestly impossible for all the people to make such a study, the Supervisors are elected to represent the people in that and other matters. If they are not fit for the place, the fault is with the people who elected them; and these people cannot take away the authority delegated to these officers, before the end of their term, without impeachment. To do otherwise would be to violate the fundamental principles of republican government, which is a government by representatives chosen by the people.

The Plain Dealer must have a very low opinion of the intelligence of its readers to raise the question of the number of bricks delivered to the jail, when it was built under contract; it might as well find fault with the number of grains of sand in the mortar. The walls were to be of certain dimensions in length, height and thickness, and no member of the board ever knew or cared to know the exact number of bricks forming these walls. Besides having the Superintendent to look after the materials that were put into the building, the Supervisors themselves were present often enough to see that the walls were built of brick. No bill was paid by the board without the order of the contractor; and if a certain sum was paid for bricks there would be that much less to pay for the other expenses connected with the building. There could be no "rake-off" on the quantity of bricks put into the jail, provided enough were put in to make the walls of the required dimensions.

The trouble with such critics is that they assume there is fraud, assert it in their yellow journals and then consider it proved because they have seen it in print. From that time on the matter is referred to by them as if settled beyond a peradventure. For one cause or another different individuals are thus "exposed" until the whole community, county or State contains no honest, upright men except themselves—in their own estimation. If any one offers a protest to such an arbitrary condemnation, he is immediately smothered with filth—it is wonderful what a supply these guardians of the public morals possess; but then the good book says: "Out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh." Respectfully,

S. ARMOR.

FARMERS' CLUB MEETING.

The Farmers' Club held its regular monthly session at the residence of W. J. Fay on Monday afternoon.

After the reading of the minutes of the meeting held at the residence of J. J. Schneider Sept. 25th, reports were received relative to the meeting of the Pomological Society to be held in this city today and tomorrow. The reports tended to show that all necessary preparations were being made for the success of the meeting, and that an interesting session and fine exhibit of products would be the result.

The exhibits will include canned and dried fruits, olives, walnuts and deciduous fruits, condensed milk from the Buena Park creamery, and celery from the Peatlands.

Mr. Korn, in reply to a question by Mr. Rogers relative to the cutting back of walnut trees, said he had tried the scheme a year ago. The trees are doing well, except where they had been cut back too severely. In the old country, where walnut trees are known to be all of 100 years old, the practice is to cut the trees back annually. The dead wood is taken out and the trees trimmed back with excellent results. Mr. Korn had followed this practice, and the trees for the most part had made rapid new growth. The new growth had produced fine nuts, and he recommended the practice. In places he had to cut back the whole top, and the trees did well.

Mr. Huntington said that Charley Miller had cut back a number of his walnut trees and transplanted them, and they looked exceedingly well.

Mr. Korn observed that ten years ago he had transplanted walnut trees from the Reiser tract, but he achieved no success. He would never do it again.

Mrs. Strodthoff said that Mrs. Stone of Orangethorpe avenue had recently taken out about two acres of hardshell trees that had died out, although from no apparent cause. The roots appeared to be healthy, as did the trunks also, yet they had to be taken out.

Mr. Fay said he had recently received communications from parties interested in the State convention to be held in San Francisco Nov. 14th, to discuss the conservation of water under State control, and also letters from the association whose purpose is to place this work under the Federal government. He was opposed to the Federal control of the storage waters of this State, and characterized the scheme as one brought into existence by the cattlemen of Colorado and Montana. He objected to California being used to pick chestnuts out of the fire for those commonwealths. The scheme of the National irrigationists was to lease government lands, and use the rentals for the construction of reservoirs under the river and harbor bill, for the conservation of waters. The government, he said, owned no lands in California that were even remotely susceptible to irrigation. The large cattlemen own every acre of land in Montana that is susceptible to irrigation, and the purpose of the national association seemed to him to be to have the Federal government construct reservoirs for their own benefit. He did not think the government would ever expend a dollar in the construction of reservoirs in California.

Relative to the system of State control, he was not sufficiently advised to say whether he favored it or not, but he thought that if the government had any lands in the State that were susceptible to irrigation, the work should be done under State control.

On Mr. Fay's signifying his willingness to attend the San Francisco meeting, he was, on motion of Mr. Rogers, elected a delegate to represent the club at that meeting.

Mr. Rogers stated he was not in favor of bonding the State for the construction of a system of reservoirs.

Mr. Fay observed he was not informed as to the nature of the State association, but he certainly objected to bonding the State of California for the construction of reservoirs in other States. The government system of reservoirs would be too slow in construction and too expensive to be favored at any rate.

John Eymann reported on collections for defraying the expenses of the Pomological society's meeting, reporting excellent progress.

Mrs. Fay served refreshments, after which the club accepted an invitation from Mr. Korn to hold its November meeting at his residence.

A vote of thanks was tendered host and hostess for the courtesies of the occasion, and the meeting adjourned.

Alexander Craw, State Entomologist; B. M. Lelong of Sacramento, Secretary of the State Board of Horticulture, and R. H. What's the matter with establishing it at Anaheim?

A Novel Suit.

S. M. Craddick vs. Chas. W. Hanson is the title of a cause filed with the County Clerk for adjudication in the Superior Court. The case is one of more or less interest to the public, as the point involved is the question whether or not a man may disavow a proposition made verbally. Plaintiff alleges that on October 27th defendant agreed to sell him ten acres of land near Orange, for a money consideration. On October 30th plaintiff offered the price named and demanded a deed. Defendant refused to accept money and turn over the deed. Plaintiff therefore prays judgment requiring defendant to execute a good and sufficient deed to the realty, and that he be made to pay $100 for the withholding thereof, and costs of action.

Breach of Promise.

Nellie R. Wallace of San Francisco, who is suing F. J. Capitain for alleged breach of promise, had her case up in Judge Fitzgerald's court in Los Angeles on Tuesday on motion for a change of venue. The case was continued until today. Plaintiff wants the case tried in San Francisco. Capitain, who is now in Ventura, filed an affidavit opposing the change. He states his witnesses, who live in Los Angeles county and cannot well go north, will testify that Nellie has been and now is an adventuress, and that she has not been damaged $50,000, or any other sum. Capitain avers that he is a married man, and that plaintiff has known it all along.

BROWN APRICOT SCALE.

Directions for Applying the Wash Recommended to be Used for its Eradication.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—As there exists a great deal of inquiry as to how and when to treat the "brown apricot scale," allow me to say that we must first admit (owing to expense and trouble) the impracticability of treating the orchards but once a year; then it behooves us to treat them when the best results can be obtained, which is as soon as the leaves fall.

If you will look along the midrib of the leaf and on the timber, you will see multitudes of young scale which still retain their power of locomotion. By the time the leaves drop naturally they will have lost that power to a great degree.

If the leaves should fall prematurely from any cause, such as frost, drouth or wind, they should be plowed under at once, or they may be blown by the wind to other parts of the orchard or orchards not infected.

The wash recommended to be used as soon as the leaves are down, or if a second application is made just before the buds swell in the spring, is as follows:

Rosin	30 pounds
Caustic Soda (70 per cent)	9 pounds
Fish oil	4½ pints

Directions for preparing: Place the rosin, caustic soda and fish oil in a large boiler, pour over them about 20 gallons of water and cook briskly for three hours, then add hot water, a little at a time, stirring well until you have at least 50 gallons of hot solution. Place this in your spray tank and add enough cold water to make 100 gallons. Never add cold water while cooking. The solution should be poured through a fine screen or piece of thin open cloth, to remove any debris that would otherwise clog the nozzle and cause trouble and delay.

L. Z. HUNTINGTON

GUTTERSNIPE PLAIN DEALER.

Santa Ana Blade, Oct. 31.

Certain developments at the session of the City Board of Trustees in this city last evening gave light as to the methods employed by a publication which for something over a year has disgraced this county. Fortunately there is but one publication that this statement may be truthfully applied to—the Plain Dealer of Anaheim.

At the city council last evening certain charges reflecting in the highest degree on the personal honesty and integrity of the municipal officials of Santa Ana, were investigated. It was thereupon shown that the charges referred to were unfounded and, so far as they reflected on the integrity of our city officials, were malignantly false. It transpired that the poor old irresponsible who publishes the Plain Dealer himself penned the entire effusion published by him as a communication, and had another man sign it. That man [Filipe Zarate] last evening testified that he had no idea the charges made against the honesty and integrity of the city officials of Santa Ana were true.

The man who wishes to injure his neighbor by accusing him of dishonesty or worse, the man who for any reason wishes to malign and defame any public official, the man who wishes the publication of any scurrilous story reflecting on the virtue and good name of a citizen, or of an entire community, has only to drop a nickel in the slot of the Anaheim Plain Dealer and lo, it is done.

This work has been done to such an extent that it is high time some public protest were made. In this city men in private life have been assailed, city and county have been accused of wrong-doing and corruption, and, finally, the entire community of Santa Ana has been branded as a sink-hole of moral corruption and vice.

It is because we live in Santa Ana, love this city and respect its thousands of moral, cultured and refined people, that this public denial and protest is made.

BUENA PARK.

More town lots have been sold, which means more cottages to be built.

The brownies were out in full force on Hallow'een night, and more mischief was concocted and carried out than it would take a week to tell. A spook party visited several homes at the Park, made their silent calls and solemnly (?) departed.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the wedding bells were rung for one of the prettiest young ladies at the Park and one of the most estimable young men, Myrtle Brewer, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Brewer, and A. Lincoln Lovett were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the Congregational church, Rev. D. W. Morgan officiating. The church was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride. A dinner was served at the bride's home to near relatives and intimate friends. The happy couple departed on the afternoon train for a bridal tour.

The Smith family was a success. Again we were reminded of the need of a good hall for entertainments, as the Smith family and their relatives were somewhat crowded both on the stage and in the audience on last Tuesday evening.

New Firm.

Wm. Falkenstein of the firm of Harris & Falkenstein was in town yesterday. Mr. Falkenstein informs us his firm has rented the three rooms in the Deutsch block, and that carpenters and painters will be put to work immediately renovating the premises, and that the stores will be open about the 15th or 20th. The firm will carry a general line of dry goods, groceries and furnishing goods.

Carriozosa Arrested.

M. S. Carriozosa, assistant postmaster at Yorba, was arrested on Saturday, charged with embezzling government funds. He was taken to Los Angeles, where he was examined by United States Commissioner Van Dyke on Tuesday and held to appear before the grand jury in bonds of $1000. The alleged shortage in his accounts amounted to $800, and resulted, it is said, from his careless manner of keeping his private and government accounts and from his failure to deposit the government funds in a national bank as required by law. Carriozosa rectified the mistake and the evidence before the commissioner is said to have proven conclusively that no criminal intent existed. He is a young man of considerable means. It appears that instead of depositing the money as the postal regulations demanded, he mixed it with his own funds, thereby committing a technical breach of the law.

—Anaheim camp, No. 432, Woodmen of the World, entertained their friends last evening in their forest at the Opera-house. There was a log-sawing contest for a prize axe, between teams from the Santa Ana, Fullerton and Anaheim camps, as well as a prize nail-driving contest for ladies. Woodcraft's "stump-puller" and "bark-peeler" was there and interested a multitude. The entertainment concluded with a hop. The committee was composed of Dr. H. A. Johnston, J. M. Backs, Jr., L. Z. Kroeger and Johnny Cleveland.

—The regular quarterly meeting of the German M. E. church will meet on Sunday. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. and preaching at 10:45; communion immediately after. Love feast at 7 p. m. The sermon will be preached by Rev. Guth, presiding elder, at 7:45. The preachers' meeting of Southern California will be held on Monday at 3 p. m. At 7:30 there will be a program at which three clergymen will speak. Protracted meetings will continue at the church at 2:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. All are cordially invited.

—A. S. P. piledriver's crew passed through town Sunday noon on its way to Newport, where new piles are being driven to replace the old ones in the wharf. Piles have been passing through town for some weeks past, some of them being the largest ever seen hereabout, being 70 feet in length. One day last week the crew was telegraphed to go to San Pedro for some emergency work, and it went through attached to a passenger train. It returned south on Sunday, and has since been at work at Newport.

A gang of Southern Pacific tracklayers began work at Smeltzer's on Monday morning, putting in sidetracks and changing the location of the depot. Their work will be completed this week.

—Duck hunters in the marshes near Anaheim Landing have not been lucky so far this season in getting much game. The Sunday hunters, however, have "great sport" in fixing up hiding places, anchoring the decoys in well-arranged bunches and camping in their blinds to await the approach of birds. Where the "fun" comes in is when pleasure seekers in rowboats idly oar their way up the various creeks and pass the various groups of decoys—it is remarkable how ducks on the wing will come and try to alight just when pleasure boats are passing. At other times it seems as if the ducks had left the country, and hunters in the blinds get impatient and gather up their decoys. This is when it gets most exasperating—while the hunter is preparing to leave, ducks in large and small flocks fly about, and of course "point their bills skyward" at sight of the hunter. There are a few market hunters at the Landing, but they say that unless the shooting improves the expense of ammunition will scarcely be realized.

—Luther Hungerford was discharged from custody by Judge Ballard in the Superior Court at Santa Ana on Monday afternoon. On Thursday evening last Hungerford was found guilty by a jury of murder in the second degree for the killing of James Marion Gregg at the Hidden ranch in the Santiago last June. He was to have been sentenced on Monday, but his counsel moved for a new trial, on technical grounds. Judge Ballard took the matter under advisement until 2 o'clock, when he announced that in his opinion the evidence in the case did not warrant the verdict, and he would therefore grant defendant a new trial.

District Attorney Williams thereupon said that there would be no use trying the case again as there was no further evidence than had been adduced and on that ground moved to dismiss the case.

Judge Ballard thereupon instructed the clerk to make the following entry on the minutes:

"On motion of the district attorney, and for the further reason that it would be in the furtherance of justice, this action is dismissed."

District Attorney Williams' position throughout the trial of the case was pitiable. He occupied a back seat, so to speak, while a Los Angeles lawyer of mediocre ability conducted the case for him. The whole case seems to have resolved itself into a flagrant miscarriage of justice. Williams is the weakest man who ever occupied the office of District Attorney in Orange county.

It is announced that the case against Henry Hungerford, who was charged jointly with his brother with the killing, will probably be dismissed.

PERSONAL MENTION

Wm. Pechstein was in town on Tuesday from his ranch at Buena Park.

Mrs. Meyer of San Diego is visiting in town, the guest of Mrs. Koenig.

Rev. Kogler will hold Lutheran services in the Episcopal church Sunday week at 2:30 p. m.

B. Pitman, traveling freight agent of the Southern Pacific company, was in the city on Friday and made us a pleasant call. Mr. Pitman is a young man of pleasant address, and will no doubt succeed in developing considerable business for his road hereabout.

M. V. B. Lovering, one of the prosperous horticulturalists of Orangethorpe avenue, was a visitor in town one afternoon last week. Mr. Lovering reports the walnut crop turning out in fair shape, and his section of the county experiencing its share of the general prosperity.

Conductor McCain of the Los Alamitos train was in town on Saturday afternoon. His program was to take his train home that evening and then hire a rig, drive to Norwalk and take the evening theater train to Los Angeles, to spend an hour or two on the scenes of his old stamping ground.

Assessor Vegeley was in town on Friday. Mr. Vegeley has a piercing black eye, a bristling black mustache, a pale and careworn expression of countenance, and exudes a faint odor of A. P. A.-ism in his wake. He makes a fine campaign speech, when not seized with the buck-ague, and can toss off a high ball with the best of them. Call again, Vegeley.

Rev. Dr. J. Martin conducted services at the Methodist church on Sunday morning, and at Buena Park on Sunday evening. Dr. Martin will continue to preach here and at Buena Park each Sabbath until further notice; here morning and evening, and at the Park in the afternoon. The announcement of last Sunday's services, which was mailed us by the Doctor from San Diego, arrived too late for insertion in our last issue.

Prof. Greeley, County Superintendent of Public Instruction, was a visitor in town on Friday last. Prof. Greeley has recently returned from a trip to San Francisco, where he attended the meeting of the Masonic grand lodge. He reports the county schools in good condition, the average number of pupils attending being greater than at any time in the history of the county.

H. C. Keller of San Bernardino, brother-in-law to Bob Sparks, has been in town during the week on a horse-buying expedition. Mr. Keller was here some six weeks ago, when a number of horses were offered him at $75. He declined to purchase, and on trying to buy them last week found they had advanced in price to $100. Mr. Keller purchased about a dozen head. Stock is higher than it was a year ago.

Prof. E. Rechnitz of Los Angeles has invitations out for a masquerade and cakewalk at the Del Campo Hotel on Thanksgiving night, the 30th. He will have a Los Angeles orchestra, and will throw colored calcium lights on the grand march, which he informs us is the latest city novelty. The ball is given as an opening social hop for the Professor's new dancing school, which he hopes to continue during the winter.

John Hartung, Oliver Hill, Bob Dunn and W. H. Blennerhassett were among the Anaheimers taking in the pacing race at Los Angeles on Saturday. The race was won by Gentry, the fastest time being 2:03¼, the best time ever made in a pacing race on the Coast. Three carloads of Orange county excursionists returned on the midnight train. The boys all report a way-up time.

The time (2:03¼) is not only the fastest time ever made on the coast, but, so John Hartung informs us, is the fastest heat ever paced in any race.

C. C. Chapman returned last week from a month's trip to Chicago, and was in town on Sunday in attendance upon divine worship. He attended the jubilee convention of the Christian church at Cincinnati at which some 12,000 delegates were present. He reports business good throughout the eastern States, and the people anxious to get some new crop California walnuts and oranges. He found a few foreign oranges in the Eastern market, and says they look like our seedlings when green, but is of the opinion they will not in any way interfere with marketing California oranges.

Controller Colgan has our thanks for a copy of his report of the values of property in, and indebtedness of, each county in the State for the year 1899. Orange county stands as follows: Value of real estate, $6,693,405; value of improvements in real estate, $2,064,215; value of personal property, $1,094,010; money and solvent credits, $101,115; total value of property as returned by Auditor, $9,953,645; value of railroads, as assessed by the State Board of Equalization, $634,819; total value of all property, $10,588,464; original assessed value of mortgages, $309,785; total rate of State and county taxation, $1.40 inside incorporated cities, and $1.75 outside.

Mr. McFadden of Placentia has shown us some samples of Jamaica and Mexican oranges, which were sent him from Chicago by Thomas Strain. Mr. McFadden will exhibit specimens of these oranges at the meeting of the Pomological society today and tomorrow. This fruit is in itself a persuasive argument against the propriety of adopting the Jamaica reciprocity treaty, it being bright and well colored and thoroughly preserved after its shipment from Jamaican and Mexican ports to Chicago, and thence to Anaheim. It would come very largely into competition with our own fruit, and might deal the industry a blow that would take years to recover from. We suggest that Mr. McFadden talk upon The Necessity for Protection to Oranges at the meeting today or tomorrow.

Guadaloupe A. Forster, wife of Don Marco Forster of San Juan Capistrano, died at the family residence at that place after a brief illness on Thursday last. The interment occurred on Saturday at 11. Mrs. Forster was a lady of very charming traits of character, and her death will be mourned by a wide circle of friends throughout Southern California. The Forster home, one of the loveliest in the State, has been the scene of many joyous gatherings, at which Mrs. Forster was ever the central figure. The session of the editorial association there, a number of years ago, will be recalled by many to whom deceased endeared herself, and all will deeply regret her untimely end. Mrs. Forster leaves a husband and family of six grown-up children to mourn her loss. She was aged 60 years.

C. O. Rust left yesterday for a month's trip to Oregon.

A. H. Cargill leaves tomorrow for New York on a business trip. He will be absent three or four weeks.

Fred Lewis and Frank Littlefield are engaged in trimming trees to free them from the electric wires about town.

Mrs. N. F. Steadman visited with friends and relatives in Los Angeles on Saturday and Sunday. She returned on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Browning and daughter Nellie, who have been visiting in Shasta and San Jose for some four months, returned on Saturday to their home in Anaheim.

Gilbert Judd passed through town on Tuesday at noon from Los Angeles to Santa Ana, leading his well-known trotter Klamath and John Snover's filly Floricita.

Ernest Kellenberger drove over to Santa Ana on Tuesday afternoon on a short business trip. He expects to leave for Mare Island on the 15th to re-enlist in the navy.

Roman Wisser and wife are entertaining Charles Reister and family, recently from Albuquerque. Mrs. Reister is a cousin of Mr. Wisser. They will remain several days.

I. D. Mills and J. N. Smith of Santa Ana were in town on Tuesday. Bro. Smith said that Judge Ballard's discharge of Luther Hungerford was unusually criticised at the county seat.

Carpenters Kealiher and Eneard began yesterday making the necessary changes in the room in the Metz block adjoining Boyd's, which will be used by Lippincott's undertaking establishment.

Thos. Selvidge, one of the recruits who left Santa Ana for Vancouver some weeks ago in charge of C. M. Hamilton, has returned to that city, having been rejected in the final examination.

Henry Hildebrandt has brought an attachment suit against Dominick Lieb for $250 and costs, and has levied on lots 6 and 7, block D, in vineyard lot D 3, on which Lieb recently constructed a dwelling house.

Judge Ballard has ordered a sale of the property of Fred Christ, deceased, to be made at public auction, the date of the sale being November 18th. Mrs. Christ is the administratrix, and has filed an additional bond of $2300.

Lincoln Lovett and Miss Myrtle Brewer of Buena Park were married yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's parents. The newly married couple took the evening train for the north to spend a short honeymoon.

Ike Williams was in town yesterday. He informs us that his mother, who last week sustained a surgical operation, is doing so well that she talks of getting up in a few days. Mrs. Williams comes from a long-lived and sturdy family, and excellent hopes are entertained for her early recovery.

D. Edson Smith of Santa Ana has petitioned the Superior Court for letters of administration upon the estate of his mother, Mrs. Hannah B. Smith, who died in Corona recently. The estate is appraised at $11,000 and consists of promissory notes and securities. Mr. Smith reads a paper on Small Fruits at tomorrow's meeting of the Pomological Society.

Wm. Schweneckert has taken a job with Herr Nebelung's force of walnut graders and packers at the Southern Pacific up-town freight depot. The other day a visitor to the works, being somewhat overcome by the fumes of the sulphuring process, said he did not see how the men about the place could stand it. Schweneckert replied: "Oh, it don't make any difference to me. I'm a City Trustee; I'm used to hell and brimstone!"

Senor de la Guerra was in town on Saturday afternoon, accompanied by Senora de la Guerra. Senor de la Guerra looks for rain a plenty this coming winter, and says if it will kindly hold off a week, it may descend in any quantity suitable to the weather clerk. He has gathered in his chillis, baled his hay, and now is busy gathering in his walnuts, of which he will have an excellent crop. He will finish this week, and then let it rain, he says, as much as it wants to.

Carpenter Jones has made extensive alterations and improvements for Mons. Cassou at his property on the corner of Center and Clementina streets. A new flooring has been put in, electric lights installed and the premises newly painted. Mons. Cassou will conduct an up-to-date rotisserie in the place, and will be at home to all his friends as soon as all the improvements are made.

Mons. Cassou announces he will have his formal opening a week from next Saturday evening, Nov. 11th. He will have an orchestra in attendance, and will serve a lunch from 8 to 12 o'clock.

Judge Shanley was engaged in showing the cement ditches at his place on Lemon street to some visitors on Sunday, and was incidentally picking up a walnut here and there from where it had fallen under the tree, when his watch, which he was carrying without a chain, fell from his pocket to the ground. He did not miss the timepiece until he went to wind it as he was about to retire at night. Surprised at his loss, the Judge meditated long and seriously as to whom he had been with that day, and was inclined to suspicion Dr. De Borra, because that gentleman had sat next to him in church. However, he resolved to hunt for it in the orchard the next morning. He walked over the orchard four times, and was about to give up the hunt, when the gleam of a sunbeam reflected from the gold casing formed one of the prettiest sights the Judge ever saw. He picked up his $275 watch, and will hereafter wear it attached to a chain when he goes out to pick up nuts in the orchard.

Mrs. Mottram has been lying between life and death at the residence of Mrs. Schauman, since Tuesday evening, and very little hope is held out for her recovery. Her ailment is due to internal cancer of the breast. Some months ago she underwent a surgical operation for cancer of the breast, which healed outwardly, but later attacked the interior tissues. Her condition is also marked by severe attacks of bronchitis and a gradual weakening of the system.

Mrs. Mottram has resided here two years, coming from England with an invalid niece, Miss Freland, for the benefit of the latter's health. Miss Freeland died of consumption some months ago in San Francisco, whither she went to pass her last remaining days with her brothers, one of whom came over from Japan to be with her. Mrs. Mottram is a lady of culture, and is highly connected socially in England, where her family is one of the oldest in the kingdom. That she should be so sadly stricken is cause for deep regret among her friends here, who are doing all in their power to make her last hours comfortable.

Mrs. Mottram's son, Wm. Salvin of Santa Ana, has been with her for some days past. He has been apprised of the worst, and is bearing up bravely under his load of sorrow.

Father Dubbel administered extreme unction on Tuesday evening. Last evening the patient was resting quietly, but was gradually sinking.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

November 30th Fixed Upon by the President as a Day of National Rejoicing.

President McKinley has issued the following proclamation:

"A national custom, dear to the hearts of the people, calls for the setting apart of one day in each year for special thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings of the preceding year. This honored observance acquires with time a tenderer significance. It enriches domestic life; it summons under the family roof the absent children to glad reunion with those they love.

"Seldom has the nation had greater cause for profound thanksgiving. No great pestilence has invaded our shores. Liberal employment waits upon labor. Abundant crops have rewarded the efforts of the husbandman. Increased comforts have come to the home. The national finances have been strengthened and public credit has been sustained and made firmer. In all branches of industry and trade there has been an unequaled degree of prosperity, while there has been a steady gain in the moral and educational growth of our national character.

"Churches and schools have flourished. American patriotism has been exalted. Those engaged in maintaining the honor of the flag with such signal success have been in a large degree spared from disaster and disease. An honorable peace has been ratified with a foreign nation with which we were at war, and we are now at friendly relations with every power on earth.

"The trust which we have assumed for the benefit of the people of Cuba has faithfully advanced. There is marked progress toward the restoration of healthy industrial conditions, and under wise sanitary regulations the island has enjoyed unusual exemption from the scourge of fever. The hurricane which swept over our new possession of Porto Rico, destroying the homes and property of the inhabitants, called forth the instant sympathy of the people of the United States, who were swift to respond with generous aid to the sufferers.

"While the insurrection still continues in the island of Luzon, business is resuming its activity and confidence in the good purposes of the United States is being rapidly established throughout the archipelago.

"For these reasons and countless others, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, do name Thursday, the 30th day of November next, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed as such by all our people on this continent, and in our newly acquired islands, as well as by those who may be at sea or sojourning in foreign lands; and I advise that on this day religious exercises shall be conducted in the churches or meeting places of all denominations in order that in the social features of the day its real significance may not be lost sight of, but fervent prayers may be offered to the Most High for a continuance of the divine guidance without which man's efforts are vain, and for divine consolation to those whose kindred and friends have sacrificed their lives for our country.

"I recommend also that on this day, so far as may be found practicable, labor shall cease from its accustomed toil, and charity abound toward the sick, the needy and the poor.

"In witness whereof, I have set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

[Signed] "WILLIAM McKINLEY."

Chamberlain's Pain Balm Cures Others, Why Not You?

My wife has been using Chamberlain's Pain Balm, with good results, for a lame shoulder that has pained her continually for nine years. We have tried all kinds of medicines and doctors without receiving any benefit from any of them. One day we saw an advertisement of this medicine and thought of trying it, which we did with the best of satisfaction. She has used only one bottle and her shoulder is almost well. ADOLPH L. CITRON OF COMMERCE.

It may be Expected to Do Well Wherever the Lemon will Grow—Method of Preparation.

The citron looks like an immense lemon. It is rather more tender than the lemon, but as a rule may be expected to do well wherever the lemon will grow. Several of our consuls have reported upon the methods of preparing it, as follows:

The greater part of the imports of citron comes from France, and is nearly all from the island of Corsica. Citron is chiefly prepared for the market at Leghorn, which is the most important citron port on the Mediterranean. The fruit is first put into a salt pickle, in which it is allowed to lie for three months. This pickling in the case of Corsican fruit is done to a limited extent by the Corsican citron grower, but as a rule it is done after the Corsican fruit reaches Leghorn. The next process consists of dividing the fruit into halves and quarters and packing them into sugar syrup. The syrup when first used is weak, but its strength is gradually increased by additions. Four weeks is the ordinary period during which the fruit remains packed in sugar, after which it is ready for the market.

The fruit resembles a huge lemon, and is often so large and heavy that it must be supported on the tree. They are shipped to the factories for candying, sometimes in sacks, but usually in large hogsheads filled with brine. On being taken out of these hogsheads or sacks they are placed in tubs containing fresh brine and left for about a month. The brine is then renewed and the fruit may remain in it until required for use, even for a period of four or five months.

When the citrons are to be candied they are taken out of these tubs and boiled in fresh water until sufficiently soft, which is ascertained by testing them with a fork. This usually takes about one and one-quarter hours, and they are then cut to pieces, the seeds carefully removed, and they are immersed in cold water and left for twenty-four hours and become a green color. After this they are put in large earthen jars with hot syrup, which should entirely cover them, and remain there about three weeks. During this time the proportion of sugar is gradually increased. They are then put in boilers, with crystallized sugar dissolved in a little water, and cooked; then allowed to cool for twenty-four hours and boiled again until they can absorb no more sugar, and then taken out of the boilers and placed on a wire netting to dry. They are now ready for packing and are placed in small wooden boxes containing about twenty-five pounds each. The proportion of sugar used in the process of candying is 80 per cent—that is, eighty pounds of sugar to a hundred pounds.

The citrons now exported from Messina are brought from Reggio, in Calabria. They are shipped in brine and are prepared as follows: The citrons are cut in halves, thrown into casks and salted—100 pounds of salt to the cask. The casks are then filled up with sea water and turned on their sides. The citrons are left to soak from 15 to 20 days. They casks are then opened and the citrons weighed; 770 pounds of citron are allowed to the cask; sea water and a little salt are added, and the cask is ready for exportation. A small auger-hole in the bung permits the gas produced by fermentation to escape.

The fruit is not candied for exportation in this neighborhood, but is sent to Leghorn or Genoa, to large factories for this industry.

The information received on the subject of preserving the fruit is as follows: The citron is cut in two or four pieces; it is then placed on the fire and boiled until the inside can be easily taken out with a spoon; then soaked in water for four or five days, and the water changed twice a day until the citron has lost its bitter taste. To every kilogram of fruit one kilogram of sugar and a quart of water is added, and placed over a slow fire and left standing for two days. Then 100 grams of sugar to every kilogram of fruit is added, and the boiling process repeated, left again for two days, and then again repeated at intervals until the syrup is thick. The fruit is then dried in an oven or before the fire, and can be exported in wooden boxes.

According to another authority the fresh citron is divided, the pulp taken out, and the rinds are then steeped in brine for several weeks. They are then boiled in syrup until the rinds are quite cooked; they are then dried and boxed as above described.

Others again, after taking the rind out of the brine, boil it in water for two days, changing the water two or three times a day, and beginning each time with cold water; then one kilogram of sugar to one-half kilogram of water is taken; put into the quantity of syrup thus made one kilogram of the rind as above prepared. Each day, for six or seven days, bring the fruit now in the syrup to a heat in which you can just bear your hand, adding 50 grams of sugar each time.
