LIME IN SOILS GOOD FOR CROPS

Beneficial Influence Exerted Upon Different Grades of Land

A Desirable as Well as Necessary Element for Production of Superior Citrus Fruits and Walnuts

In England, Germany, France and other European countries the application of lime in various forms has been, and still is, practiced extensively. Deherain, a famous French agriculturist, states that "certain regions of France have undergone a veritable transformation, owing to the use of lime and marl" (marl being another form of lime mixed with sand and clay). Authorities seem to agree that lime is necessary to the plant, and if it is wholly lacking in soils, even though an abundance of all the other essential elements are present, it cannot develop normally. Just as a chain is useless with a missing link, so the plant cannot grow if one of the essential elements is missing.

Lime has been found to be especially deficient in soils derived from granite, also mica-schist and sandstone.

As a matter of fact, soils of limestone origin sometimes show benefits from liming, due to the fact that the soil may be so charged with inert organic matter as to acidify to such a degree that the production of certain crops is an impossibility.

When the remains of plants undergo decay upon soils deficient in carbonates of lime and magnesia, acid or sour humus is liable to be produced, which is particularly noxious to most agricultural plants.

Such conditions are liable to occur even in upland and naturally well drained soils. Liming is in all such cases an effective and undoubtedly the most economical remedy.

Heretofore three special methods have been pointed out in which lime exerts a beneficial influence. In the first place, it profoundly affects the physical structure of stiff soils, producing a flocculation of the silt, and thus preventing its deposition in individual particles. A well limed soil is thus apt to be open and porous and easily tilled.

In the second place, the lime exerts a certain soluble influence upon decomposed particles of rock, thus favoring their decomposition and the consequent freeing of the potash and phosphoric acid which they contain.

In the third place, the lime tends to correct any acidity of the soil which may be due to the accumulation and excess of humus, or which may arise from imperfect drainage.

One of the chief benefits of the introduction of lime into a soil is derived from the fact that it favors to a high degree the evolution and development of the nitrifying ferments.

The lime which is used for fertilization is, as a rule, chiefly in the form of oxide or hydrate, that is, slacked lime. After its incorporation in the soil, however, both the oxide and hydrate of lime are rapidly changed to carbonate under the influence of the carbon dioxide (carbonic acid) which is found in the atmosphere of the soil in notable proportions, in fact, in a much higher percentage than in the air.

Future investigations should establish the fact that this use of lime is of far more importance in agriculture than any of the other four essential elements of plant food.

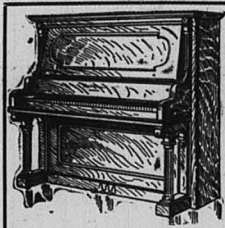

Many clay soils when wet by rain (or irrigation especially) are not porous enough to allow water to pass through them with sufficient rapidity, in consequence of which they become waterlogged, and the air which is necessary for the healthy development of the plant root within the soil is excluded. In time of drought, also, such soils cake readily, thus becoming more difficult to till and less adapted physically to the growth of plants. Liming is an effective preventive or remedy for all of these unfavorable conditions.

The improvement of drainage brought about by liming is one of the most effective means of preventing surface

LUCKY CONTESTANT SECURING MOST VOTES

Will Get a $500 Piano Which is Equivalent to $45 per Week for Her Efforts

Regent

GUARANTEE

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Sept. 24, 1904. THIS IS TO CERTIFY, that the Piano Forte No. 4721, Style Regent, manufactured by Blusius & Sons, Philadelphia, is made of the best material, is durable, perfect in all its details, and in every respect fully guaranteed for the term of ten (10) years from this date, and should the instrument, with proper care and use, prove defective in material or workmanship within that time (except of extreme heat or dampness excepted) we hereby agree to put it in perfect condition at our shop, or replace it with another. Particular attention is called to the superior tone, quality of the pin block, bridge, quality of felts, and action in this piano, and that this Guarantee is given and intended to include all of these vital parts of the instrument.

Fitzgerald Music & Piano Co., per J. F. Fitzgerald

Next week will conclude the Gazette's popular prize contest. Do the contestants realize that the successful one who secures this elegant $500 Regent Piano will be earning at the rate of $45 per week for her efforts? One week left to win this prize.

As to who the successful contestant securing the first prize will be it all depends on her efforts the last week. The one getting the best results from her work during the few remaining days will most likely be the fortunate one. Any one of the prizes are of sufficient value to repay the contestants for washing: When heavy rains fall on limed soils the water sinks into the soil instead of rushing over the surface.

Soils composed of silicious sand are frequently benefited by being rendered more compact by liming.

Ascertain first whether lime is needed; if it is, apply it judiciously, and never depend upon the lime alone to maintain the fertility of the soil. If your land does not respond to lime, get the other necessary constituents before assuming that the lime is not beneficial. Do not blame the lime for lack of results.

Waste lime from beet sugar factories has been effectively applied to soils. It contains some potash, phosphoric acid and nitrogen, which still further increases its value.

Lime-cake is more valuable as a fertilizer than air-slacked lime, owing to the amount of nitrogenous compounds, and it also carries smaller amounts of potash and phosphates.

As a general rule it may be stated that from half a ton to one and one-half tons of lime per acre, applied every five or six years, is sufficient. Application of two or three tons per acre may, however, be advised in cases of very acid or compact soils. The practice of applying small amounts of lime at somewhat frequent intervals is being generally accepted as preferable to the use of large amounts at rare intervals. It is generally considered best to apply after plowing, and harrow it in thoroughly.

From the superiority of oranges grown on soils which are known to be rich in lime, it would seem that this is probably a very desirable and necessary their efforts. None will be without compensation. No one can secure a high grade piano in an easier or cheaper way than the plan offered by the Gazette. Remember there is only one more week left to make this effort. Get to work now. Each one stands a fair show without favor.

The management of the contest will leave the hour of closing same to the contestants to decide upon by next week so that it can be announced in that week's issue of the paper.

The final count will be made by a committee of disinterested business men and each one of the contestants is guaranteed absolute fairness.

The contest has aroused much enthusiasm and interest during the past few days among the contestants and their friends. Numbers of new subscriptions have been turned in and they continue increasing every day. It is expected that a long list of them will be brought in on the last day before the final count takes place, as it is believed that several of the contestants have a number of new ones up their sleeve that will be turned in on the last day.

The result of the contest will be looked forward to with unabated interest. The vote this week is small compared to what it will be next week.

element for the production of superior fruit. The fine, smooth-skinned and deliciously flavored Indian and Halifax River oranges, with their characteristic aroma, are grown largely on soils rich in lime from shell mounds and coralline and coquina rock.

The oranges produced in the noted Orange Bend Hammock, which are of a distinctive quality, with a delicate rich aroma and this smooth rind, are produced on a soil underlain by a marl rich in lime.

Dr. A. Stutzner, in his work on the "Fertilization of Tropical Cultivated Plants," writes: "The orange and citrus fruits desire a deep, porous, dry soil, rich in lime. If sufficient lime is not present the fruit will be thick-skinned and not have a fine aroma. It appears also that the effect of abundant lime is to hasten to some extent the time of ripening. Fruits grown on soils rich in lime appear to color and become suitable for shipping somewhat earlier than those grown on soils containing but little lime."

Stiff Rumbles the Quake

The country has not yet realized the extent of the Republican victory of three weeks ago. The gravitation of accumulating majorities has crushed Democrats into silence. What they are "up against" outside of the President is that the vote for Roosevelt was practically double that for Parker. Out of the total popular vote of nearly fifteen millions, the minor parties have cast a little over a million votes. President Roosevelt and Parker will divide the remaining 14,000,000 votes in the proportion of about 8,250,000 and 5,750,000. If the solid South, where an untrammeled expression of popular will was not had, be eliminated from the calculations, with its 1,600,000 votes, it will be found that Parker only a little less than 2 to 1.

In New York state, Parker was defeated by more than 170,000. Pennsylvania, with its 500,000 plurality, went for the President by more than 2 to 1. Illinois, with 300,000, and Ohio, with 250,000 plurality, by almost 2 to 1. Wisconsin, one of the "doubtful" states, and California, gave Roosevelt about five votes to Parker's two. Washington, nearly four votes to Parker's one. Several of the smaller states, like Vermont and South Dakota, made it almost unanimous.

The figures reveal a Republican gain of 28 per cent, and a Democratic loss of 72 per cent, over the vote of 1900, and a total vote of 100,000 less than that cast for McKinley and Bryan in 1900. Only in three states, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, did Parker gain and Roosevelt lose. The President lost 137,674 votes in Alabama, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia, while Parker lost 233,526 in the same states. Both gained in Delaware, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and West Virginia. Of the remaining thirty states, the President gained 599,747 over 1900, but Parker lost 1,035,224.

STATE PUBLICITY TO BE DISCUSSED

DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATIONS TO MEET IN PASADENA DEC. 17TH

County Promotion Committees Throughout the State a Unique and Successful Feature in California

The second semi-annual meeting of officers and representatives of all the development organizations and Chambers of Commerce in California will be held December 17th. This meeting will be unique in that it signifies the success of a movement to effect practical plan of co-operation on the basis of equal representation of all development organizations in the state. There are in California no less than 140 of these organizations. They expend in local improvements and in advertising resources and products all the way from one thousand to twenty-five thousand dollars a year. All of this money is raised by public subscription and the contributors share results with the rest of the community in its increased prosperity. The purpose of these semi-annual meetings is to further the relationship of thorough co-operation between all organizations. This relationship has already been established in the formation of county promotion committees throughout the state and it is said that California has the most effective system in this line of any region in the world.

The first meeting of officers was held in Sacramento on June 18th last, when the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, It is desirable in order to further the interests of the several counties of California and bring about a centralization of promotion efforts throughout the state, that the several organizations co-operate and also that the several counties be brought still in closer touch with the California Promotion Committee, the central body, it is,

Resolved, That there be formed in each county of the state of California a committee known as the County Promotion Committee; the members of such committee to be appointed from each of the development organizations of said county by mutual arrangement. The size of the committee to be governed by the number of organizations in the county, with the understanding that each organization is to be represented. Such a committee to choose a chairman and a secretary from its members. It is further resolved that there be formed a committee to be known as the Counties Committee of the California Promotion Committee. Such committee to consist of the various County Promotion Committees as formed in accordance with the preceding provision; the members of the several County Promotion Committees to be accredited representatives at the meetings of the Counties Committee.

Resolved, That meetings of the Counties Committee be held semi-annually and at such other times as they may be called by the California Promotion Committee.

In accordance with this resolution, the formation of the counties committee of the different counties has been generally adopted. Besides members of the counties committee, an invitation has been extended to members of all development organizations in the state to be present. Members of the State Publicity Committee and Advisory Committee of the California Promotion Committee will also attend. The theme of the meeting will be "California Publicity." Addresses will be delivered by men from all parts of the state prominent in development work and general discussions will be invited to open the meeting. Special railroad rates will be made from all parts of California.

At the Sacramento meeting, there were present delegates who had come a distance of 600 miles and it is expected that the attendance will be even greater than that of the first session.

Hit the Pike

A tourist rejoining in the name of Theo. Nims, being found by Nightwatchman Berdow, at the hour of 2 o'clock in the morning of Monday, in the vicinity of the city of the livery barn on Center street, he was forthwith run in for safe-keeping in the tanks. He pretended that he had paid for a bed in the barn, but Berdow insisted that he spend the night in the cooler. On Monday morning Mr. Nims was arraigned before Recorder Howard, who imposed a fine of $10. He suspended sentence, giving the tourist a limited time in which to make his escape to parts unknown. Mr. Nims hit the pike in the direction of La Mirada and is by this time probably out of harm's way.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure it, have done much to embarrass the system. Science has proven catarrh is a local disease, and therefore a local remedy is required. The only remedy is a local remedy. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops in a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case of Catarrh cured by their remedy. Address: A. C. CHENNEY & CO., Toledo, O. DECIDES NOTED WATER CASE

OPINION OF RIVERSIDE JUDGE ON UNDERGROUND FLOW

Diversion of Water Cannot Be Prevented, Although Claims for Damages Might Ensnare

Judge Noyes of Riverside handed down a decision this week in the case of Newport vs. the Temescal Water Company, which is of interest to Orange county irrigators. The plaintiff sought to enjoin defendant from taking water from the Chase wells at Ethnaon to Corona, on the ground that pumping lowered his wells and diverted water from his lands. Decision is for defendant. The court holds that plaintiff might have a claim for damages, but cannot prevent diversion of water. The case is the first tried in the state on the use of underground waters, since the Katz-Wolkshaw decision in the supreme court, and is of wide interest throughout California.

The Chase Company and the Temescal Water Company had established expensive pumping plants in the Perris district, had been welcomed there by the plaintiffs in the present action and had built a pipe line to convey the water to the Corona district, some miles distant. Plaintiffs sought to restrain by injunction defendants from the use of the water, on the ground that the underground sources of water supply in the Perris valley were reduced and the ranchers were damaged.

In his opinion Judge Noyes says: "The principle of the law is that when the vitality of the soil is not impaired by the drainage of the sub-surface water supply, the freehold itself is not irreparably injured. The drainage, if any, is of a special nature, to be specially pleaded in an appropriate action for damages and an injunction remedy cannot be invoked."

The decision points out that Newport and the other plaintiffs had knowledge of the purpose of the Chase and the Temescal company in installing pumping plants in the Perris valley and encouraged them to locate there.

Then the judge emphasized the bad faith of the plaintiffs in bringing suit for permanent injunctions, after having welcomed the defendants to the valley. On this point the opinion reads: "Changed conditions become overwhelming to the conscience of a chancellor when these changed conditions have been wrought in good faith and through open or tacit acquiescence of the complaining party, and their disturbance now would result in great financial loss and destruction of property values."

"The first duty of a court of equity is to preserve the conscience of the parties and to require them by its decree to do with others as they would be done by."

"It is judgment cannot be far wrong when these conditions are upheld and enforced."

The decision is the most important handed down in California on a water problem. Every irrigated community in the state was directly interested in the result, and an adverse decision might have seriously affected millions of dollars of securities based on irrigated and highly cultivated sections in the citrus belt of Southern California, including Riverside, Redlands and Corona.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.

Drying preparations simply develop dry matter they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying, irritating, fumes, smokes and acids and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 60c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Many of the Los Angeles millionaires who hold membership in the shooting clubs along the Orange county coast line are expert with the fowling piece, while others are conspicuously unsuccessful in attempts to land the teal and mallard. Mr. Botsford of the Bolsa Chica club handles his gun as well as the best of them, while Count von Schmidt of the same club has long been known as one of the most successful bird hunters in Southern California. Over in the Lomita club Col. Northam has not been so successful, and the report comes up from the shore that he recently exploded 150 shells and never got a feather out of the slaughter. Mayor Snyder, also of the Lomita club, on the other hand, bagged the limit of fifty birds the first day this season.

Birds are not plentiful, but excellent sport is participated in. Each club has two shooting days weekly, members shooting alternately. They travel between the shooting grounds and their homes by the electric railway, are called shortly before 5 in the morning, and after a substantial breakfast are rowed to the blinds in time to begin shooting a half hour before sun-up. The state law requires that no shooting be indulged in previous to that hour, and the time limit extends to a half hour after sunset.

Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture in his annual report places the total value of farm products this year at $5,000,000,000. No such result from tilling of the soil was ever before known in any land. Only five years ago (1900) the value of three and three-quarter billions was regarded as phenomenal. The corn crop value exceeds a billion dollars, cotton exceeds $600,000,000; hay and wheat are $500,000,000 each. And these values are arrived at after excluding the value of crop to livestock and the amount consumed by the producers themselves. This is a marvelous record of the bounty of nature and of human endeavor. Considering the productive capacity of the nation, there must be added to these agricultural values mineral values—coal, iron, copper and the precious metals being the chief items—figures for which are not yet available. Highly favored again is the South, where its great crops—corn and cotton—have given a maximum yield. The effect of this is felt in every branch of southern activity. Mills and factories are running to the limit of their capacity. Railroads are compelled to strain every nerve to handle traffic offering; nowhere in the South is heard a single complaint as to business conditions. The direct result in railroad earnings is apparent in every weekly and monthly return, and gross receipts advance by leaps and bounds.

Our young friend, Ed Kraemer, seems of late to have had his lines cast in rather unpleasant places. He has spent the week in the county jail as a result of an order of court issued by Superior Judge West committing him into custody for contempt. Kraemer was in court last week to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt in failing to pay the monthly stipend of $25 for the support of his four children by his divorced wife. He pleaded inability to pay, having been recently adjudged bankrupt. However, the court found him to be in contempt and ordered his incarceration. In addition to this situation suit has been entered against him by which the sale of his orchard at Placentia to Michael Neipp is sought to be set aside. Kraemer's health has been undermined and his physical condition is said to be bad. His friends regret the troubles which seem to have overtaken him, and hope he may soon regain his liberty and set himself to the consideration of other matters engaging his attention.

Postmaster Littlefield states that pouches containing mail matter are frequently missed by the Santa Fe "flyer" and have consequently to lay over until the next train comes along. Not infrequently mail is returned to the postoffice as a consequence, to remain over night. Thus a delay ensues in its transmission which should be remedied by compelling the railroad company to stop its trains long enough to properly take aboard the large and growing mail of this postoffice. Recently a letter-pouch, missed by the afternoon flyer, had to lay over until the following day, missing connections in Los Angeles and causing a whole day's delay in its transit East. This intolerable practice should be frowned down upon. Further when mail is thrown from these moving trains it is strewn a considerable distance along the track, much as if it had been blown in by a tornado, and this practice ought to be passed up to the railway company for abatement. An ordinance compelling flyers to stop would hit the situation off about right.

At Hutchinson's drugstore may be seen a line of burned-leather articles and bric-a-brac of burned wood which offer an excellent variety of gifts appropriate to the holiday season. The articles are the handiwork of Mrs. Hutchinson and Mrs. Henry Adams, and are the most beautiful of their kind ever on display here. The burned-leather goods embrace table covers bearing artistic designs, one of them being a reproduction in miniature of the San Gabriel mission. In burned wood there are handkerchief boxes and receptacles of one order and another, all of them works of art and meriting an inspection on the part of the purchasing public. Mr. Hutchinson states that those who desire special designs may leave orders and the same will be given careful attention.

Percy T. Morgan, W. B. Bundschu, Prof. Hilgard of the University of California, C. de Guigne and Andrea Sbarboro, appointed a jury to consider the awarding of a prize of $25,000 to the successful competitor who solves the problem of producing tartaric acid in commercial quantities from California grapes, have met at San Francisco and opened communications on the subject with 375 persons, representing all parts of the civilized world. These communications will be considered carefully, and a decision will be given if the jury finds that the proposed process is effective.

Postmaster Littlefield has received instructions from Washington authorizing the establishment of route No. 4 of rural free delivery. Distribution of mail on the new route begins January 24, and J. Hollingsworth has been appointed carrier. The new route runs west, and the lines of the two routes already serving that section will be changed in various details in order to improve and facilitate delivery. Upward of one hundred subscribers have signed for the new route, and new subscribers are being added to the list daily. Establishment of a fourth route of rural free delivery shows how the community is growing.

The President's message to Congress was received by members of both houses with more satisfaction, as a whole, than is usually expressed over the annual utterances of chief executives. One fact about the message which all commentators remarked, was the absence from it of unusual suggestions, and from that fact they deduced that the policy of the President, as expressed in this, his first message since he was actually elected President of the United States, will be a policy of moderation and progress in consonance with the operations of Congress. As one senator remarked, upon reading the message: "We are now certain of what we believed all along, that President Roosevelt's second administration, like his first, will be marked by progress in all things that make a nation strong."

Considerable comment was caused by the fact that the President gave the place of honor in his message to the discussion of the relations between labor and capital, and that, aside from his recommendation in regard to the employers' liability law, he refrained from direct recommendation. This discussion of one of the greatest questions now confronting the people of the United States was indulged in by the President, it is believed, for the purpose of setting the best minds of the nation and of the world to thinking upon a problem that has long vexed statesmen and students, and to a partial settlement, at least, of a situation to which Mr. Roosevelt intends to devote some of the energies of his administration in the coming four years.

D. J. Parker of Los Alamitos has brought suit in Superior Court asking for a review of proceedings in the recent hearing of the Bolsa Union high school matter. It is alleged that at the time of voting in Laurel grammar district as a part of the Union district, fraud was perpetrated in securing and using the name of School Trustee Butterfield as one of the parties agreeing. According to the complaint, the board of supervisors was requested to put Laurel district in the Union district, and gave their consent with the proviso that at least two of the Laurel district trustees were favorable to the proposition. Trustee Hoover's name was secured and the other signature attached to the document was Butterfield's, who was not at the time a duly qualified trustee. Acting upon the signatures of these two men the supervisors proceeded to declare Laurel district a part of the Union high school district. Suit is brought with the purpose of giving Laurel legal cause for withdrawal. Judge West, after hearing preliminary argument, issued a writ returnable the 16th inst., causing the supervisors to present to the court a certified copy of all the transactions in connection with the incorporation of Laurel into the Union district. At the beginning of the present school year the high school was located at Los Alamitos, but was removed upon order of the Superior Court after a sharp legal struggle.

J. L. Garvey won his suit against the city of Santa Ana, which he brought to quiet title to a 50-foot strip of land through his property, which the city maintained had been dedicated as a street. The strip in dispute was intended as a continuation of Flower street from Fifth to Sixth. When the Ross tract was subdivided in 1876, the plot showed a street from Fifth to Sixth to cover the ground in dispute, but later when the original owner sold four acres to Garvey, it was measured by metes and bounds and no provision was made for the street. Garvey occupied the land for 27 years, and when in 1903 he had an opportunity to sell a lot, the abstract office refused to give a clear title. Garvey asked the trustees for a quit-claim deed, but this was refused and he brought suit, and this week Judge West in the Superior Court decided that the city had no interest in the strip.

To the several friends who have referred to the subject, as well as to others interested, we may be permitted to state that this journal is powerless to suppress "blind pigs." It does not countenance them; on the contrary, quite the reverse. But let those who have evidence that we have such an institution in our midst produce the proof in court, and we promise the community shall have the truth and the whole truth told them concerning the evil. During the week we have been told we have a blind piker in town, but we cannot undertake to suppress it. Let the law be enforced; let evidence be procured, and then punishment condign be meted out to the quadruped.

On Sunday, December 11th, the Los Angeles Examiner will be one year old, and a special edition is to be issued to commemorate the anniversary in the form of a mammoth double number—the Christmas edition and the anniversary number—to be published in conjunction with the big regular Sunday issue. An advance sheet of the issue has been received by the editor, and it fully justifies the claims of the prospectus. Superb illustrations will be a prominent feature in the Christmas edition, and both the pictures, the stories and the other special attractions will be the best that money can buy. Special attention will be paid to the interests of Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico, and numerous pictures will illustrate the text.

Out of 139 decoy prescriptions sent by the State Board of Pharmacy to Chicago druggists to be filled, 23 contained no trace of the drug called for; 66 were 80 per cent. impure; ten were 20 per cent. impure; nine 10 per cent. impure, and only 31 were pure. As a result, the state board will prosecute 100 druggists for selling impure drugs. Prescriptions signed by Dr. J. Scott Brown, calling for a mixture of pure aristol, were sent to drug stores, and when filled chemical tests showed chalk, mixed with iron oxide or some other mineral substance used for aristol, which is an antiseptic much used by many surgeons. Blood poisoning is the result of using iron oxide on wounds.

Governor Pardee, in his capacity of commissioner of the Lewis and Clark exposition, has addressed a letter to all the members of the coming Legislature advising an appropriation for a California building at the Lewis and Clark Centennial. The last Legislature appropriated $20,000 for an exhibit at the fair, but this was known to be only preliminary. A suitable state building would necessitate a further appropriation of $55,000 to $75,000, and all the legislators so far heard from have favored such an appropriation. California is now awake to the fact that excellent results may be obtained from an extensive exhibit at the exposition, and every effort is being made to install a creditable display.

Owing to continued dry weather, the celery crop of the Peatlands is being moved out slowly. The market demands are greater than the output, but movement of the crop has been greatly retarded. It is estimated that 3000 acres were planted and the whole crop will be some 1000 less than 2000 cars. In some sections the hot weather has seriously affected the output. At present daily shipments are about ten to twelve cars, and at this time last year two or three times that amount was going out.

The Mirror Galvanometer.

Some interesting tales are told of Lord Kelvin's discoveries and how the ideas of them came to his quick mind. For instance, this is said to have been the way in which he found the mirror galvanometer. He was puzzling over the difficulty of perfecting the ordinary telegraphic apparatus used on overhead wires, which was not suited for the varying current passing along cables. The lagging of the electric currents had the effect of making them run together into one bottom current, with serious ripples which correspond to the separate signals of the message. The problem was how to invent a means of interpreting clearly and easily all the delicate fluctuations. One day Lord Kelvin's eyes fell off and swung in front of the magnet, reflecting its movements, and instantly the idea of the mirror suggested itself. So a monacle has had a direct effect on science.

The Missionary's False Turn.

A well known church of England missionary among the aborigines of Queensland, Australia, gained great influence over a certain tribe in a very peculiar manner. This tribe had the queer custom of having the front tooth of the upper jaw knocked out. The missionary by accident had lost this same tooth and replaced it by a false one. When he was talking with the aborigines, he would pull it out, point to the hollow place remaining without an tooth, and say: "My brother, belong to you!" In this way he gained the complete confidence of the tribe, converted every member of it to Christianity and introduced as such civilization as they were capable of assimilating.

Different Kinds of Days.

Five kinds of days are recognized, and it has been said that the world is full of days that are without an adjective defining what kind of a day is meant. There is a civil day, the astronomical day, the apparent solar day, the mean solar day and the sidereal day. The civil day begins at the midnight preceding the moon moon and consists of twenty-four hours counted after 12 o'clock. The astronomical day begins twelve hours after the civil day, or at the mean noon of the corresponding civil day. These hours are reckoned from 0 to 24. It will be seen, therefore, that while 10 hours 12 minutes Jan. 1 astronomical time is also 10 hours 12 minutes Jan. 1 civil time, 12 hours 12 minutes Jan. 1 astronomical time is also 10 hours 12 minutes a. m. Jan. 2 civil time. There are many anomalies growing out of this use of the civil day, and there are many arguments in favor of using the astronomical day. It is one of the reforms which undoubtedly will come some time. London Standard.

Packin'-house Burned.

The Gilman & Wilson packin'-house north of the depot at Orange was destroyed by fire on Saturday evening shortly after the employees left the place at 6 o'clock. The fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline engine, there being five of them in the house by which the graders were operated. Five carloads of oranges, including one on the track, were destroyed. An engine ran down from Olive and hauled a long string of cars out of harm's way. Twenty men are thrown out of employment. The building has been in operation as a packin'-house some fourteen years.

Threatened removal at the end of the present school term of Ida Galbraith, a teacher at Columbia City, Ind., because she rebuked Capt. Hobson for abuse of the President when Hobson spoke in that place during the campaign, has brought the girl many letters and offers of a position, if the threat to remove her is carried out. Parents and many pupils protested against the anticipated action of the trustees, but there is a feeling that Miss Galbraith may be quietly dropped from the roll of teachers when the school closes for Christmas. Among the letters which Miss Galbraith has received is one from a friend in Washington, who says a position in the Phillips is open as principal of a school will be open to her.

The Nimble Paragraph.

It is a most extraordinary thing that some of our most successful novelists cannot turn out a newspaper paragraph to save their lives. In most novels there is some page or other on a supposititious clipping from a newspaper bearing upon the events under narration, and in ninety cases out of a hundred the matter that makes up the "clipping" is most unreal. The truth of the matter is that all the training in the world will not enable a man to write in this manner unless he has been through the mill and had all the nonsense deleted by the remorseless subeditor. Our novelists do not have their manuscript hacked and chopped about by this skillful executioner, and their pseudo newspaper clippings are models of what the real thing is not—Journalist.

The Turnpike Era.

Between the years 1790 and 1840 in numerous plans were made for the creation of turnpikes in the United States. There had been one great success, the Pennsylvania turnpike in Pennsylvania, and then came countless other projects. In 1811 New York had 137 chartered roads, with a total length of 4,500 miles, and the sum required to build them amounted to $7,500,000. An build them followed this period, but the canal promoters and railroad men had great difficulty in advancing their schemes. They were considered insane when they insisted that the turnpikes could be conquered by these means of transportation.

Nature's Beauties.

Character is fed largely through the eye and ear. The thousand voices in nature, of bird and insect and brook, the sighing of the wind through the trees, the scent of flower and meadow, the myriad tints in earth and sky, in ocean and forest, mountain and hill, are just as important for the development of a real man as the education he receives in the schools. If you take no beauty into your life through the eye or the ear your nature will be hard, joyless, unattractive—Success.

The Horribly.

The horribly is the most cruel and bloodthirsty of the entire family. He is armed with a most formidable weapon, which consists of four lancets so sharp and strong that they will penetrate leather. He makes his appearance in June. The female is armed with six lancets, with which she defends both cattle and horses and even human beings.—Colman's Rural World.

STREAM OF WATER AT WEST END DOES DAMAGE

Runs an Afternoon and Night and Property Owner Makes Objection—Mr. Miller Appointed Janero

Regular meeting of the board of directors of the Anaheim Union Water Company was held Dec. 3rd, with the following members present: Crowther, Hale, Kraemer, Sherwood and Zeyn.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

The ditch committee orally recommended the raising of the cement ditch as petitioned for by the stockholders of the Katella Water Company.

Moved by Kraemer, seconded by Zeyn, that the company raise the ditch fourteen inches and as far back as necessary. Carried.

The written report of the ditch committee was referred back to the committee, to report at next meeting.

J. B. Rea appeared before the board asking that a pipe be put in where the section line crosses the Garden Grove road.

On motion the superintendent was instructed to put in a pipe for a distance of 50 feet at the crossing of the section line with the Garden Grove road, said pipe to be 20 inches in diameter, and a bill for one-half of the expense be presented to the company.

The report of the finance committee was received and filed, and warrants were ordered drawn in payment of the various amounts as therein recommended.

On motion the president and secretary were authorized to issue a warrant for sum of $52.00 in favor of Tarter Montgomery for engineering.

The report of the treasurer was received and filed. It showed cash in treasury amounting to $9308.86.

The secretary's report was received and filed.

J. B. Neff asked the privilege of purchasing from the company 25 barrels of cement to be used for a ditch on his ranch. Petition was granted.

A communication from the Olinda Land Company called attention to the cutting of our ditches where the same pass through the lands of said company, and asked that the same be stopped. On motion referred to the ditch committee.

A complaint was read from the present owner of the Schweitzer place that a large stream of water had been running for an afternoon and night on his place to his damage. The secretary was instructed to inform him that this company would see that it should not occur again.

A communication from H. W. Krug et al asked that a ditch be cemented on the usual terms. Similar petitions were received from W. A. Wallace for a ditch along his place, and from Geo. Bauer et al for the cementing of a ditch leading to their lands. Referred to the ditch committee.

J. P. Zeyn asked that a ditch be cemented leading to his property in Fullerton. He explained that at each irrigation he suffers a loss of about 25 inches of water, and that he is willing to pay one-half of the total cost of constructing the ditch. Referred to the ditch committee.

Moved by Hale, seconded by Kraemer, that the superintendent appoint Mr. Miller as Janero in Anaheim, to take the place of G. Dement. Carried.

On motion the petition for the transfer of stock was granted, the transfers to be made as soon as the water accounts had been paid up.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

MR. KROEGER ON WATER SUPPLY

DIFFERS WITH OPINION OF ENGINEER MENDENHALL

True, Water is Steadily Lowering, but the Cause is Laid at Doors of Drainage Districts in the Peatlands.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—In your last week's paper is a statement concerning our pumping plants from Civil Engineer Mendenhall's report, about our underground water supply which needs some correction. It is true that the water is sinking rapidly, but this is not the entire fault of the pumping plants, which in and around Anaheim are pumping about 2000 inches of water. These plants are not in operation all the time; as you well know, but only when the water is required for irrigation. The most serious waste of our underground water is through the drainage canals in the Peatlands. When I had some business there six or seven years ago, and saw the big amount of water in their first big canal, I was astonished. It was running from four to five thousand inches of run on it. This water is running steady, night and day, through the whole year without interruption, and I felt sorry to see this fine stream running into the ocean, and thought if we around here could have this water for irrigation what a benefit it would be for this country. Since that time more drainage districts have been formed, and I do not know how many more canals are running at the present time. The settlers in the Peatlands have succeeded very well in making their land dry—they have succeeded beyond expectation—and today are praying for rain to make the celery grow. I think our supervisors have made a great mistake in granting those drainage districts, and I do not know how to get in their power to stop it if they can.

In 1862 the water in my well was 14 feet from the surface. From that time it fell steadily up to 1868 to 30 feet below. After 1868 it rose again up to 1875, when it was higher than ever before—only 12 feet in my well. As our water then got a small of the gravel, I had a deep well bored to 105 feet deep, and have not measured the sinking of water until about four months ago, when Mr. Seale found it to be 71 feet below the surface, and today it is 72 feet. So you see it is sinking very rapidly, and if it is going at that rate in a few years our drinking water will be scarce. But the underground supply will run as long as there is a drop of water on the surface of the Santa Ana river.

Our government is spending millions of dollars at the present time to increase the water supply, while in this country our authorities try by all means to destroy it. It is high time this practice was stopped. H. KROEGER.

Rural Free Delivery

Following is an abstract of the annual report of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, J. L. Bristol:

Extension of the rural free delivery service has resulted in an increase of 125 in the number of postoffices discontinued during the fiscal year ending July 30. During the year, there were 3540 postoffices established and 5587 discontinued. There was a decrease of 168 in the number of offices established.

The principal cause of the increase in discontinuances has been the extension of the rural free delivery service. The total number of discontinuances was 3750 postoffices, with a saving in salaries of $117,122. At the close of the fiscal year, there were 11,123 postoffices in the United States, 265 first-class, 1204 second-class, 3899 third-class and 65,766 fourth-class.

Operation of rural mail delivery and the extension by private interests of a telephone service has created a demand for more postoffices for the delivery of small packages of merchandise, on an order to local merchants by postal card, telephone or otherwise. The value of such packages is small, and the present rate of 1 cent per ounce, is practically prohibitive. Mr. Bristol recommends that Congress fix a rate of 3 cents per pound or any fraction thereof on packages not exceeding five pounds, mailed at the distributing postoffice of any rural free delivery route. If this special rate were established, Mr. Bristol says, it would be a great convenience to patrons and become a source of revenue to the department.

It is estimated that $500,000 will be needed by the department to continue the establishment of rural routes as fast as they are favorably reported for the remainder of the current fiscal year. An appropriation of $3,000,000 for the establishment of new routes will be asked for by the department ending June 30, 1906.

RESTORED

(Original.)
"Have you no counsel?" asked the judge of a prisoner about to be tried for obtaining money fraudulently. He was an elderly man, through whose slightly clouded eyes one might see evidence of respectability.

"I have not, your honor."
The judge turned to a young lawyer present, one who had recently been admitted to practice, and said:

"You may take this case."
The prisoner and his counsel with drew, and when they were alone the latter asked his client for information.

"The trouble started twenty years ago," said the accused man. "My wife was greatly troubled that we had no child and constantly longed for one, though it seemed to me that my income was too small for two, to say nothing of three. However, time passed brought us a boy, two years old and pretty as a picture, who had been born of other parents. His father and mother, acquaintances of ours, died within a few days of each other of pneumonia and left him absolutely orphaned. We took him to our home and gave him all the attention he required, intending to bring him up as our adopted son. He was a bright little fellow and very affectionate. Of course at that age he soon forgot his father and mother, and since we took their places he supposed he was our own child. I was very fond of him, and my wife, who idolized him, spent a great deal of money dressing him and buying pretty things for him. He was taken sick with scarlet fever, and we watched over him night and day till he recovered. This, of course, meant a large doctor's bill, which neither I nor my wife would have objected to had we means to meet it, and even as it was we were rejoiced because our pet suffered nothing in consequence of an ailment which leaves so many children blighted."

"One day when the child was four years old he disappeared. Some children with whom he was playing at the time on the sidewalk said that a man came along who took him by the hand and led him away, promising him that he would buy him some candy. We believed that he had been kidnapped for ransom, but as no ransom was ever demanded we were puzzled. My wife was frantic about her loss, and I confess I was stunned. We hired private detectives to trace him, but they failed to find him. After giving up hope, I counted on my indebtedness, all of which had been incurred for our dear boy, and found it more than $2,000. I wished to conceal the matter from my wife, whose love for the child and her extravagance on his account had partially caused it. I carried the load secretly for years, robbing Peter to pay Paul, hoping that my affairs would take a favorable turn and I might pay it off. But as I grew older my services became less valuable, and the debt became greater on account of the exorbitant rate of interest I was forced to pay. It occurred to me that if I could get it into the hands of one man I could handle it more easily. So I persuaded a man to buy up the claims. But I found myself only in a worse condition than before. The fellow induced me to sign a paper, the contents of which I did not read carefully. It contained misrepresentations. Think how he could bind me through relatives (who would not turn a hand to save me), he made a criminal charge."

The young lawyer listened to this recital attentively and, when it was finished, without asking for further details, returned to the courtroom and asked for a continuance of the case till a subsequent date. This was granted, the prisoner was released and the attorney went away.

The next day the lawyer drove up in a carriage to the prison and presented a paper directing the discharge of his client. The old man, wondering, stepped out in the light of day, and his counsel bade him enter the carriage, saying that he would take him home. The newly discharged prisoner obeyed, momentarily expecting an explanation. None came. Then they drove up to a shabby cottage and were met by an old lady who, when the discharged man muttered the word "free," fell into his arms and wept. Then when they were in the house the lawyer took the hand of each in his and said:

"I am the boy you lost eighteen years ago. Yesterday after hearing your story I went home, examined some papers that have long been in my possession and found, as I suspected, that you were my foster parents. I was stolen away by a relative who had learned that I had fallen heir through a aunt to a fortune. His purpose was through me to get possession of my legacy. He traced me after my parents' death to you, but as he feared you would not give me up he concluded to entice me away. He failed to secure my fortune, but that story I can tell you another time. Here is a receipt for your indebtedness—my indebtedness rather—which I have paid. For the rest of your lives I shall endeavor to take care of you as you took care of me."

He had not finished speaking before the old lady had wound her arms about him, the tears streaming from her eyes, and at his last word the three stood for a time silent. Then the young man said:

"Come, this is no place for my father and mother. You shall see what comforts I have in store for you."

The care lavished upon the old couple so long as they lived was an expression of pure gratitude, for their benefactor had been too young when stolen to remember them when he was restored to them.

EDNA C. WATERS.

The late M. A. Lower, the antiquary, is responsible for this Lullington anecdote:

One Sunday morning the curate, a man of diminutive stature, preached from the shortest text in the Bible, "Jesus wept," to a congregation of a dozen people, and the offertory realized only 18 pence, whereupon a stranger remarked that it was the smallest church, the smallest congregation, the smallest parson, the shortest text and the smallest collection he had ever known.—Westminster Gazette.

Furious Fighting
"For seven years," writes Geo. W. Hoffman of Harper, Wash., "I had a bitter battle with chronic stomach and liver trouble, but at last I won and cured my diseases by the use of Elett's Bitters. I unhesitatingly recommend them to all, and don't intend in the future to be without them in the house. They are certainly a wonderful medicine to have cured such a bad case as mine." Preventive Treatment.

The Dutch peasant lives with canals all about him and remedies his cottage by way of a drainage. Perhaps it is in the blood of the Dutch child, says a writer in M. A. P., not to fall into a canal. At all events the Dutch mother never appears to anticipate such a possibility.

One can imagine the average English or American mother trying to bring up a family in a house surrounded by canals. She would never have a moment's peace until the children were in bed. But then the mere sight of a canal to the English child suggests the delights of a sudden and unexpected bath.

An Englishman inquired of a Dutch woman, "Does a Dutch child ever by any chance fall into a canal?" "Yes," she replied, "cases have been known." "Don't you do anything for it?" continued the questioner. "Oh, yes," she answered. "We haul them out again."

"But what if a woman is," explained the Englishman, "don't you do anything to prevent their falling in?—to save them from falling in again?" "Yes," she answered, "we spank them."

Calculating the Distance of a Storm.
Although lightning and thunder occur always simultaneously an interval of shorter or longer duration is usually observed between them. Two plain phenomena which it is due to the fact that sound travels at the rate of 1,100 feet per second, while the passage of light is almost instantaneous. Based upon this fact, it is an easy matter to tell, at least approximately, how many miles a thunderstorm is away. A normal clap will beat one stroke of the second, and by counting the pulses heard during the interval of the lightning and the thunder the lapse of seconds is arrived at, and consequently the distance of feet, which can be reduced to miles.

For example, if thirty seconds elapse between the flash of the lightning and the crash of thunder the storm center is at a distance of 3,300 feet or about six and one-half miles. An almost accurate calculation can be made by using a watch with a minute dial.

The Parisian Cafe Caricaturist.

Among other Parisian types described by a recent observer is the cafe caricaturist. "He is a youth with a pale face and very long hair. He looks the type of the bohemian and he is. He offers to draw caricatures for 50 centimes (10 cents). His luncheon is frequently a night, as he is always sure of his dinner. But no matter what the state of his finances, he will have his luncheon, to which he adds but little water. The cafe caricaturist is invariably an artist who has not succeeded. He has either been at the Beaux Arts, or has struggled under some famous painter. Somehow or other he has come to grief and has swelled the ranks of those whom fortune has disinherited."

The Value of a Name.

Nelson, a thriving little English town, is a living instance of the value of a name. Not long after the battle of Trafalgar some tinkers, tailor or other person established a tiny wayside inn and called it after the naval hero. There was nobody on the spot from whom to expect custom, but the road led to and from populous districts. Travelers stopped at the place, and presently a cottage or two began to rise from the ruins of the inn, and the name of the public house answered for the whole. That was the nucleus of the present town. Now 40,000 people live around the site which the old inn keeper chose and called after the name of his hero.

Passing Counterfeits.

Johnny—Say, Papa, passing counterfeit money is unlawful, isn't it? Papa—Yes, Johnny—Well, papa, if a man was walking along the street and saw a ten dollar counterfeit bill upon the sidewalk and did not pick it up, wouldn't he be guilty of passing counterfeit money and couldn't he be arrested and put in jail? Papa—More likely the lunatic asylum. Now you may go to bed, my son.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Method in Her Madness.

Christina—Why, you silly thing! What are you putting your damp hands out on the window sill for? You'd get them all rough and red. Annabel—Yes, I know. But Mr. de Milion thinks that every woman ought to do all sorts of housework, and I'm getting my hands ready to show off tonight.

Prompt relief and quick cure for liver and stomach trouble. 25c at W. B. Hutchinson's druggists, guaranteed.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street, ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1908.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedily a way to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.
