Sunset Telephone Improvements

The Sunset telephone company has expended a large sum of money recently in installing a new and up-to-date system in this city. New portable phones and other improvements have been installed, an all-night service inaugurated and the service is in every way satisfactory and complete.

In company of Manager Ahlborn and Mr. Schwartz of the telephone company a reporter for this journal paid a visit to the newly equipped office on Monday and was agreeably surprised at the extent and character of the improvements. Mr. Schwartz said the service now given patrons of the company here was equal to that in vogue in the largest cities of the coast.

The company has installed a new common battery switchboard with underground cable leading to the central office. Telephones recently installed are the latest type of common battery instruments which have been approved by experts as the best manufactured. The telephones are supplied with battery from the central office where the company has installed an up-to-date equipment in the form of a charging machine powerboard, together with the necessary attachments for the purpose of recharging the battery from time to time as may be required.

All a subscriber has to do is to place the receiver to the ear and in less than a second a light is shown on the key-board at central office. This indicates that the subscriber desires a number, and central does the rest. This up-to-date equipment is second to none in the United States.

The company has spent many thousands of dollars in the Anaheim district and will expand the territory tributary to this city as soon as subscribers can be secured to justify such move.

Expansion is the policy of the company. It is recognizing the rapid strides of Anaheim and will endeavor to keep well abreast with the wants of the city. The monthly payroll of the Sunset company in Anaheim is now ranking among the largest.

An expert lineman is constantly on hand to attend immediately to trouble on the wire. Office building is equipped in first-class manner, consisting of a cozy office for the manager, a reception room nicely furnished for the accommodation of the subscribers and patrons of the company. Large well lighted rooms are provided for the operating force and also a separate apartment called the Restroom, which is especially set apart to rest the operators during their offtime, as the operating force works in short shifts to avoid nervous breakdown.

In another apartment are located the cables holding the hundreds of wires connecting Anaheim with the outside world, also the electric plant to charge the batteries which furnish the necessary current to the telephones located in the district. In another apartment are kept the surplus instruments, wire, cable, pins, glass, etc. The equipment of the Anaheim office ranks with that of Los Angeles or any other first-class city. The increase in subscribers during the month of November under the new management has been fully ten per cent. The hello force consists of three day operators and one night operator.

Twenty-five new phones have been installed the past few weeks, and business is constantly on the increase. Manager Ahlborn has proved himself to be an efficient and painstaking official, and with a corps of accommodating hello girls is giving the city the best telephone service it ever had.

Two Meanest Men

Constable Llewellyn and Zanjero Brunworth stand revealed before the community as the two meanest men. It all came about this way: A bunch of eight hoboes struck town a few days ago and went into camp in an abandoned ditch northeast of the gas-house. They had with them the epileptic Lemke, already referred to in these columns, who was sent down town to "chuck a dummy," or in other words throw an imitation fit. The fellow succeeded in raising quite a collection of dimes and other small change, with which drink was purchased for the hobo gang.

Llewellyn espied the outfit the first evening after their arrival. They were having their supper in the big ditch. A bright fire was blazing, and about the blaze beds had been prepared. Some of the tramps had blankets, and soft couches of leaves had been prepared for them. After their evening meal the tramps spent a time about the camp fire, and later turned in for the night.

Here is where Llewellyn's meanness got into play. Hunting up Brunworth he requested him to turn down several hundred inches of water into the ditch the tramps were occupying.

Brunworth proved to be as mean a man as Llewellyn. A great head of water soon enveloped the lusty hoboes from head to foot.

With a howl they hiked out of the ditch and started out of town. They evidently had no use for a town which treated them so shamefully.

Minutes of Water Board

Anaheim, Dec. 1, 1906.

Regular meeting of the board of directors of the A. U. W. Co. with the following members present, namely, Crowther, Bradford, Hale, Kraemer and Gunderson.

The committee on examination of the written assent of stockholders to the change in the Articles of Incorporation presented a written report showing that stockholders owning more than two-thirds of the subscribed capital stock of the company had signed the written assent. The report was accepted.

Wm. Berkenstock asked the privilege of arching over a part of the A. U. W. Co. ditch running through his place, he to pay all expenses and the work to be done under the supervision of our superintendent. Granted.

J. H. Brunworth asked the privilege of renting the water-alley north of his place. The matter was referred to Gunderson.

The application of W. Wuesthoff for the privilege of purchasing 12 barrels of cement for ditch construction was granted.

The following bills were ordered paid:
H. C. Kellogg.....$ 224 62
H. H. Gardner Co..... 721 28
California Portland Cement Co 1228 50
J. Lempe appeared personally before the board asking the privilege of constructing a bridge across the Cajon canal north of his ranch. Granted.

Moved by Hale, seconded by Gunderson, that the president and secretary be and they are hereby authorized to sign a deed to S. Kraemer for the Kraemer reservoir site, reserving the rights of way for all necessary ditches for waste and storm water. Carried.

Attorney Melrose reported favorably on the form of the Loftus lease, whereupon the president and secretary signed the same on behalf of the company.

The committee having reported favorably upon the matter of the written assent of stockholders, the necessary resolutions were passed to complete the said amendment to the articles of agreement. Adjourned.

P. H. KRICK, secy.

One of the steller attractions of the season will be "The Convict's Daughter," a new, original sensational melodrama by J. A. Fraser, Jr. It is described as a play of intense heart interest and containing uncommon scenic realism as well as life-like characters. The escape of an innocent convict on a freight train is a thrilling scene. The company is a large and capable one. The play is booked at the Anaheim Opera-House, Tuesday, Dec. 11. Reserved seats at McCollum's.

The Burglar and the Shotgun

A burglar entered Spoerl's gunstore shortly before 12 o'clock on Sunday night and helped himself to five revolvers in the showcase upon the counter. The he stepped in front of the upright showcase against the wall containing guns and rifles, but before he had a chance to open the door a double-barreled shotgun at his elbow blazed away, the shot tearing a hole in the ceiling.

The shot was heard by people in an adjoining restaurant, who saw three men running south through the lot, two men being well in front, the other a distance in the rear. Apparently the two in the lead had stood outside while the other fellow went inside. A tolerable fair description of the burglars, who are believed to be kids about town, was secured and arrests may follow. It is believed they are members of the Wyatt gang of young toughs. Wyatt is at the Whittier reform school for burglarizing the same store several weeks ago.

When Spoerl reached his store on Monday morning he found the rear door open. Behind the counter in the front room lay two pistols which had been dropped by the burglar in his flight. Outside the door lay another revolver.

Spoerl thinks the burglar succeeded in getting away with two revolvers. The burglar crawled through a rear window, after which he opened the door opening into the backyard.

When the shot came he lost no time in loitering. Spoerl states he had only a small charge of shot in the gun. He has had the gun ready for burglars since the last time his place was burglarized several months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Gilman were in town from Placentia on Tuesday. Mr. Gilman states his orange orchard is as good as fine a crop for the coming season as his trees ever produced, and he has grown many fancy crops since embarking in the orange business. These reports do not astonish one, coming as they do from the richest and most beautiful spot on earth.

Andy Fuhrberg and Willie Winsell are at Bay City hunting ducks and fishing. They will remain several days at the beach.

Parade of Products

Yesterday Santa Ana entertained a crowd of several thousand people at her second annual parade of products, which was superior in attractiveness to that occurring a year ago. The citizens spared no pains in preparation. Special rates were arranged on all roads. One of the features of the day was a free ride about the ranches and groves in the vicinity of the county seat. The parade was started at 11 o'clock in the morning and was reviewed on Sycamore street, near Sixth. Special arrangements were made by the hotels and restaurants to provide visitors with food, and various church and fraternal societies were prepared to furnish dinner for several thousand people.

William M. Tubbs was grand marshal of the parade, which was in five divisions.

In the afternoon the program included a concert by the Santa Ana band at the courthouse, followed by an address of welcome by Hon. Clyde Bishop; races at the driving park, under the direction of the Santa Ana driving club; a baseball game by league players; an exhibition by the Santa Ana fire department, and a concert by massed bands.

In the evening there was an exhibition street drill by the Columbia club with illuminations and fireworks and a band concert at the reviewing stand. There were also a number of balls given.

Nick Bittner has not yet pungled up that $250 which Judge West ordered him to pay his wife before Dec. 1st. Mrs. Bittner has made affidavit that her erring spouse has neglected to comply with the court's instructions, and he is to be cited to appear and show cause he should not be punished for contempt of court.

W. J. Montgomery sold two 9-months old pigs to Karl Klement, the butcher, on Tuesday for $60. The pigs weighed 800 pounds and Mr. Montgomery thinks they are hard to beat.

The comedy drama, "Marriage of Kitty," which has been playing a week in Los Angeles, will be produced at the opera-house here on Monday evening, Dec. 10th.

EASY-FORM MUSIC

The latest musical invention. Simplicity itself. If you know your A B C's you can learn to play correctly upon the Piano or Organ with little practice.

The ordinary system of music notation is so complicated that comparatively few people have the time or patience or ability to thoroughly master it. This new invention does away with all the difficulties and enables everybody to learn how to play correctly in a short time.

Not a mechanical piano or organ player in any respect. It's an invention that's going to revolutionize music and form the basis for a complete musical education. Arranged in artistic portfolios of "Easy Form" music containing ten pieces of music. The guide for the key board of a piano or organ and full instructions—short and simple. Price complete $5.00.

THE GIRLS' STATE SCHOOL

A State Institution that has Not Made Good

By Arthur J. Pillsbury.

If California had just the right kind of a state school for the education and reformation of stubborn and wayward girls it is not impossible that it would now have enrolled as many as three hundred pupils. It is not improbable that there are as many as that in the state who need to attend such a school. On the occasion of my recent visit to the girls' department of the state school at Whittier there were thirty-seven girls in attendance, and in my opinion that was too many.

The present management of the girls' school at Whittier is not especially and preeminently to be blamed for conditions that exist, or for the general want of confidence which the courts, the officers and the people entertain for the school. The school never got off right foot foremost, and it may be doubted if there has ever been a period in its history when it rose fully to the requirements of such a school.

No other indictment needs to be filed against the school than that true bill made out by the following record of the terms of service of the twelve principals of the school, the women who have had the welfare of the pupils in their immediate charges:

Chloe B. Jones, May 27, 1891, to May 20, 1892.

Mrs. S. A. Moor, May 20, 1892, to November 1, 1892.

Miss Minnie King, Nov. 1, 1892, to December 1, 1892.

Miss Jessie DeWolfe, Dec. 1, 1892, to January 8, 1895.

Miss Vesta A. Olmstead, Jan. 8, 1895, to September 1, 1896.

Ellen J. Wilson, Sept. 1, 1896, to Nov. 11, 1896.

Mrs. M. E. Threlkeld, Nov. 12, 1896, to February 1, 1898.

Miss Mary O'Hara, Feb. 1, 1898, to June 1, 1901.

Mrs. M. L. Davis, June 9, 1901, to October 15, 1902.

Miss Jennie Wall, Nov. 1, 1902, to January 18, 1906.

Mrs. Eva Flounders, January 19, 1906, to April 1, 1906.

Mrs. Lottie C. Sinsard, April 1, 1906, to October 31, 1906.

The thirteenth principal, in a little more than fifteen and one-half years, was installed November 1st of this year and I have not her name.

The fitness or unfitness of these twelve women to perform the services for which they were employed is not here in issue. I have not the requisite knowledge of the facts in each case to warrant the bestowal of praise or blame, but I do affirm that there should have been no such history of rotation in the office of principal of the girls' school at Whittier. There is nothing and can be nothing worth while in such a school without continuity of management.

The work of formation or reformation of character is a life work, and especially is this true of the reformation of wayward girls. It should be entered upon by a woman, mature in years, in full command of herself, yet with an open and growing mind, who undertakes the work as a devoted service and not as a job. A woman fit to be principal of such a school is worthy of a generous salary, not a measly $70 per month while there are two men in the institution drawing $250 each—none too much either—enough to enable the devoted worker to provide for her wants when her work shall have worn her out, as it inevitably will in 15 or 20 years. I should say $1800 a year, and found, for the woman big enough to fill the position.

Given the right woman for the place, her will, in the management of the school, should be supreme. Not even her board of trustees should venture to interfere in the management of the school or do more than to advise and aid and so control the purse strings that the institution may not get into financial deep water. And especially there should be no wife of the superintendent of the boys' department holding a perfunctory position of superintendent over the principal of the girls' school, but without any real responsibility or burdensome duty to perform. Happily that condition does not now exist at Whittier.

The work of reformation of crooked human characters is one that must be grown into. An apprenticeship in a well ordered institution engaged in similar work would prove helpful, but it can not make up for the want of the requisite personality. On the other hand, the requisite personality can make up for the want of a previous institutional training.

It was up to the several boards of trustees, and the superintendents of the larger institution, to find the right woman for the place of superintendent, or principal, of the girls' school at Whittier, and then keep her until she wore out. Either they have not found the right woman or they have not kept her when they have found her, and a substantial failure has been scored.

Two years ago I became convinced that the State of California should either go out of the girl reformation business or divorce the girls' department from the boys' at Whittier state school, and establish a new institution at some other place.

The entire farm and equipment at Whittier are needed for the delinquent boyhood of California under sixteen years of age, or will be needed until the several counties and cities of the state have awakened to a realization of the value of truant schools for preventing boys from becoming delinquent. A more thorough segregation and classification of Whittier boys are needed than can be had under existing conditions.

The work of reforming a wrong-headed girl is so different from that of a boy that it is asking too much of one management that it shall perform both functions.

I submit to the people of California that an experiment that has been conducted for fifteen years without furnishing satisfactory results has been conducted long enough. It is time to try something else.

Those who have thoughtfully measured Whittier school for girls have found it wanting, but this is not saying that its failure is total, or that it has done no good. Many girls have gone out from Whittier to behave themselves respectably thereafter, just as more than half the prisoners, sent to that school-for-crime known as San Quentin prison go out from there never to be heard from, criminally, thereafter. One "jolt" was enough for them.

All the Whittier school girls want to go home. They can go home within a reasonable time if they behave themselves and in many cases, perhaps more, that condition precedent is sufficient. They have felt the hand of the law upon the shoulder and have not liked the grip of it. It brings them to their senses, but that works no radical reformation in the character of the pupil and does not send the pupil out much better equipped to battle with the forces of evil. The stain of commitment is inflicted without supplying the compensating washing out of that stain by work mete for repentance. They are made sorry for the punishment rather than for the sin.

The faults I find with the Whittier school for girls are, in the main, the following:

1. There is no proper segregation of the morally perverted from the merely wayward, the unchaste from the stubborn, the leaders from the led, the younger from the older and more hardened. The buildings are there for it, but there is in the management no realizing sense of the importance of such segregation and classification.

2. There is no adequate industrial training and trades teaching. There are cooking and sewing to be sure, but no cooking or sewing school, nothing making an unremitting demand upon the half dormant intellectual life of the pupil. There should be, and could be, if the necessity were keenly felt, schools for cooking, sewing, dressmaking and millinery, and to this end the law should not only permit articles to be made for all the women on the ground, but for outside custom so far as necessary for a full training in doing real things.

3. There is little in the way of instruction in those accomplishments which mean so much in the life of every girl and which contribute so much toward establishing in her mind a healthful self-respect, always fundamental in developing a robust moral character.

4. I have, upon my visits to this institution, failed to find adequate manifestation of a full realization of the significance of the task in hand, and also that esprit de corps, and that consecration to a noble service which I hold to be inseparable from any true reformatory work.

I used to think that one could not reasonably hope that a state institution could rise to the exalted ideal have attempted to set forth, but I have had reason to change my opinion. This high end can as well be attained in a state institution as elsewhere—if the job be turned over to some capable woman and left absolutely in her hands, to choose her own assistants and work out the problem in her own way, supporting her in all reasonable efforts and thwarting her in none. It is the only way.

The thirty-seven girls at Whittier state school are not essentially different from outside girls. Three-fourths of them are from broken homes are untrained, undisciplined, untaught and unsafeguarded during those tempestuous years when youth is perpetual in intoxication and the age of discretion has not yet dawned. Inasmuch as the courts, and the lenient divorce laws of California are going on breaking homes at the rate of some 2000 a year, the state owes it to itself to do something better worth while for the salvage of flotsam and jetsam of domestic storm and stress than has heretofore been done at the girls' school at Whittier.

My voice is for a separate state school for wayward girls.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Noticing an article entitled "Anahelm vs. Santa Ana" in regard to a debate between the two high schools on quite an important subject, viz.: "Shall the United States enlarge its navy?" in which Anahelm came out the victor by a few points, on the negative side of this question, while I sincerely congratulate Anahelm on her victory, I am of opinion that victory was gained by superior oratory and delivery; for Santa Ana high school was on the only side which can be taken by every American citizen.

I wish to call the attention of all citizens of Anaheim, and if this should reach any other parts of the United States, California in particular, to the impending visit of the little brown men from across the sea, in a few months, with a fleet of battleships. Of course this is to be only a friendly visit, such as any nation may make, but at the same time every hour's time of that trip will be recorded in FULL, no little detail will be omitted, however trivial, as regards water supply, provisions, fuel, weather conditions, sickness, hospital, and in fact every detail will be exact as regards the transportation of every single man in the whole fleet. This trip will furnish and be a trip of data for the little brown men's rulers for future reference; and on top of this comes the announcement by the little brown men that in three years' time they expect to have the most powerful navy in the world, barring none.

While I am not an alarmist and do not wish to be so considered, I will say this: If it ever gets to a point where that navy and our navy must meet in open warfare our navy must come out of the fracas No. 1, and if they do not may the Lord have mercy on all the towns along the Pacific and Atlantic seaboard, for the little brown men's guns can throw a shell a long ways. The Pacific coast has no sea defenses to speak of, only at a few points, and one of these is isolated. San Diego in fact is isolated by not having a railroad back from the sea far enough for the safe transportation of men and provisions. A little 6-pounder gunboat could and would smash to smithereens any train that would start to run into San Diego by the present railroad. The United States has planted some big guns at Point Loma, near San Diego, but they would not amount to much without inland communication, and this at present it has not.

On the part of the government this is penny wise and pound foolish. No foreign country would allow so grave an error to exist from a military point of view.

I have seen a statement recently that the Russian government had made their railroads all five feet gauge in order that no other nation could use their tracks. But do you know that I have had a statement made to me away back in the eighties, by a man (a machinist) who worked on them, that in a roundhouse on the Russian frontier in Germany there stand 40 locomotives ready to unleash on this same five-foot gauge railway. And so ought the United States be ever ready with the best fighting machines on water that can be built, and plenty of them. In every fight some will go to the bottom, and when the fight is over there ought to be some left and a few to spare. We have plenty of men, steel, fuel, etc. I say to keep the peace build a navy that will make peace respected as far as this country is concerned. Yours very truly,

H. L. SMITH.

Corn Most Valuable of Crops

In his annual report Secretary of Agriculture Wilson says of the value of leading crops:

"Corn remains by far the most valuable crop, estimated at eleven hundred million dollars. Next come the cotton crop, which, including the seed, should be worth to the growers nearly $640,000,000. The value of hay, which is third in order, approaches $600,000,000. Wheat, the fourth crop, may be worth $400,000,000 or $500,000,000; oats $200,000,000; potatoes, $150,000,000. Barley, with a value of $65,000,000, shows a gain of 21 per cent in production in the past seven years.

"The tobacco crop will be worth about $5,000,000. A remarkable development is that of the sugar beet, now the ninth crop in value. The production in 1906 is placed at 345,000 tons, valued at $30,000,000. Seven years ago the value of this crop was $7,000,000. The value of all kinds of sugar, syrup and molasses aggregates $75,000,000.

"In the bureau of plant industry, the leading features of the work of the past year have been the co-operative demonstration work with farmers, fruit growers and others under the careful supervision of the department experts and the introduction of new crops of economic value. One of the most important achievements in this latter line is the discovery of the existence of the Siberian alfalfa, a plant native on the dry steppes of Siberia, where the mercury freezes without snow, thus proving the plant to withstand, without protection, a temperature of 40 degrees below zero.

"This discovery may mark an epoch in the agriculture of the northwest prairie regions of the United States.

"Among other valuable plants introduced are a vigorous alfalfa from Arabia and the Tangier peninsula, which has yielded as high as nine tons of green feed to the acre. With a view to increasing the matting industry, the department's explorers have secured living plants of the best foreign varieties of rushes. Experiments in the propagation of many seeds and plants introduced from foreign countries are being carried on at the plant introduction garden at Chico, this state.

"Great progress has been made in the practical application of a national forest reserve policy. In area, the reserves were increased during the year from 85,868,022 to 96,999,138 acres. In revenue the reserves brought in $767,589.96, as against $60,142.62 for the preceding year. One fiscal year under full control of the forest purchase act has established two facts, viz., that the reserves advance the present interests of the people of the west and that they will speedily pay the cost of administering them. Through government control, the interests of the future are guarded without sacrificing those of the present. The reserves powerfully promote development, they work counter to the prosecution of no industry and retard the beneficial use of no reserve.

The resources do not withhold land from agricultural use but greatly increase the amount of available farm land.

"The promotion of agriculture is one of the main ends of the forest reserve policy. By guaranteeing future supplies of timber, they are indispensable to the future development of mining. The stockmen throughout the west are now united in favor of the forest reserve system."

The secretary especially commends the good will with which the associations of western stockmen have co-operated with him. Finally, the reserves have proved beneficial alike to the lumber industry and to the timber consuming public.

The available merchantable timber is not locked up from present use, but it will not be disposed under a short-sighted policy of utilization, which would leave a gap between the end of the present supply and oncoming of a second crop.

Protection of the reserves from fire has been a most important task laid on the forest service. It is cause for congratulation that the loss by fire during the year was slight, even by comparison with that of 1905. This favorable effect is due to increased efficiency of the patrol system, combined with favorable climatic conditions. The important fact was demonstrated that the forest service is able to substitute conservative for destructive use, while greatly increasing the use itself.

The largest totals of sales were, in board feet, 73,000,000 in South Dakota, 71,000,000 in Wyoming, and 53,000,000 in Montana. In South Dakota a special reason exists for pressing the sale of timber with energy. The ravages of a bark beetle threaten the annihilation of the entire forest, and only by extensive cutting of infested trees can the spread of this pest be checked and the damaged timber utilized.

A systematic effort has been begun to determine the feasibility of livestock raising in Alaska. A small herd of Galloway cattle has been introduced. These cattle have been substituted during the summer upon the native grasses, and a considerable supply of grain and hay has been grown to maintain them during the winter.

During the past year the department has carried out splendid drainage investigations in some of the irrigated districts in Utah, Washington, Nebraska and California, this work being paid for in part by state appropriation.

The drainage of swamp lands in humid parts of the United States would result in extending or improving agriculture over an area equal to the states of Illinois, Kansas and Ohio.

During the past year the officers of the experiment stations have aided the officials and others in making surveys and inspecting to determine the feasibility of the large drainage projects and the proper plans for the work. The survey investigations have been carried on in thirty-four states.

Complaints Against Railroads

So many complaints have been received that railroads are increasing dividends, while failing to give adequate car service, that the interstate commerce commission is about to start upon one of the most important investigations in its history.

The commission will take up the question of increased dividends in connection with assertions that they are the result of unduly high rates.

In connection with the shortage of cars, there are intimations that some shippers are favored at the expense of others.

Generally, railroad rates have not been reduced. The tendency has been to higher figures, about the principal grievance of the shippers is that they cannot get the cars to transport their goods, and these complaints have become general. They have been pouring in on the commission at the rate of hundreds a day.

All the time the railroad stockholders have been receiving "melons" and increased dividends. One example was the 10 per cent dividend of the Union Pacific. Another was the 10 per cent dividend of the Lackawanna. Still another was the division of valuable rights by the Pullman company.

The investigation of the increased dividends in connection with the shortage of rolling stock will be undertaken by the commission immediately, and these followed up by an investigation of the relations between increased dividends and the increased cost of articles of necessity.

One point that is made by many complainants is that were railroads are practically in combination, as is the case with the anthracite lines, instead of taking all the traffic they can get and providing facilities for it, they are saving the money on rolling stock and favoring certain shippers in certain localities.

If this can be established it will prove the existence of a widespread evil that the rate bill was designed to check, and make necessary recommendations to congress for the passage of a law empowering the commission to compel railroads to supply cars and rolling stock for all traffic offered.

Petitions received by the interstate commerce commission also recite exorbitant dividends paid by all the express companies, and these are put forth as conclusive evidence of the ability of the companies to do business at lower rates.

The petitioners assert that if the traffic companies by reducing grades, removing curves and improving terminals and switching facilities, are able to haul freight at less cost, there should be a reduction in freight rates.

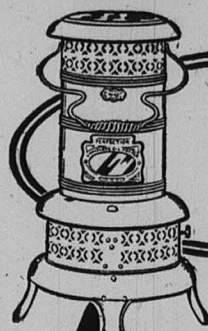

It is believed the investigation by the interstate commerce commission will be especially directed at roads dealing in coal, which were the subject of an inquiry by the old commission last year. Notwithstanding the advance in the price of coal in recent years, as made by the railroads, it is found the top has not yet been reached.

It is pointed out that while the price of coal to the consumer is continually going up, directors of well-known coal roads are declaring extra dividends.

One question to which the interstate commerce commission will demand an answer before it is through with this subject is this: "If the anthracite roads are making so much money that extra dividends can be paid, would it not be more equitable to share the profits with the public, by reducing the price of coal?"

The production of wine in California for 1905 is given at 29,000,000 gallons. The next state in production is New York, which is credited with 5,000,000 gallons. Ohio comes next with 3,000,000 gallons, while Missouri made 1,500,000 gallons. The total production of the entire United States was 40,000,000 gallons.

OUR NAVY AGAIN

Our former fellow-townsmen, H. L. Smith of Ocean Park, writes concerning the recent debate between Anaheim and Santa Ana high schools upon the question of our naval armament, in which he argues with forceful effect for a powerful navy, but as to the subject in debate appears to have had imperfect information. The question was not, as Mr. Smith understands it, "Shall the United States enlarge its navy," but, in brief, "Shall the United States maintain a navy as large as that of any nation in the world." This puts the contrast between this country and England, which expends $250,000,000 a year upon its navy, while we expend $100,000,000. It was clearly shown in the debate that there was no necessity for this country maintaining so large a navy as Britain, surrounded as that country is by nations actuated by a sense of unfriendliness if not actual hostility to her, and with possessions in many quarters of the globe, notably in South Africa and India, which are kept in subjection only by the showing of her powerful naval force. The students arguing in support of the negative side of the question did not plead for weakness in our naval armament, not at all; they specifically pointed out, on the contrary, that this country should maintain a powerful navy, kept at the very maximum of effectiveness, but not necessarily "the largest navy on earth."

What Mr. Smith says about the Jap we cordially endorse, and we agree with him heartily in what he writes of the need of our being in a state of preparedness in case of war. Of course we do not anticipate any trouble with the Jap. He was left in too weakened a condition financially in his grapple with the Bear to do much fighting for a generation to come. It takes money to wage war, along with ships and guns and coal.

But the affair at Chemulpo, where the Koreitz and Variag were destroyed by the Mikado's cruisers, at the very moment when Russia was considering the Mikado's demands for cessation of military operations at Port Arthur, should teach the United States a lesson. Certainly we shall have no Spanish pigmy to deal with in a clash of arms with this pagan nation. We fancy the Oregon could hardly repeat its memorable journey around the Horn with these cocky fatalists at war with us.

The completion of the Panama canal seems to us to afford the keynote of our security from foreign attack, and the waterway must be pushed to completion with all possible dispatch. With the doubling of the effectiveness of our navy by this trans-isthmian water way, and being in control of all Pacific cables, we should be singularly immune from attack by any foreign foe. The Jap will scarcely send a fleet into our home waters. If he should have such hardihood, his lingo would be, to paraphrase the observation of an American naval officer, the reigning language in an exceedingly warm place for many beautiful moons to come. He would find there is no Rojestvensky, no Kuropatkin, no Alexis, no Stoessel here to fall down before him, bringing disgrace and disaster to their country.

There would be instead our Deweys, our Sampsons, our Schleys, our Evanses, our Clarkes, our Wainrights, our Perrys, our Decatur, yes, even a John Paul Jones.

But let us free ourselves from the notion of an unprovoked attack from this bit of a pigmy of the far east. Yet if war should come, the navy will give a good account of itself, as it has always done from the time of the Serapis to the Christobal Colon. And when the scourge of war shall have passed and the trophies of battle distributed, we shall all have a dancing Geisha girl in our back yards, and Mr. Smith shall have two.

In speaking a day or two ago with a prominent Northsider who favors enlargement of the city, he cited the case of a citizen living west of town whose taxes were higher this year by a few cents than they would have been had his property been located inside the city. Here is food for thought for those excellent citizens of the outside territory who oppose expansion of the city "on account of high taxes." As we understand it, no new territory embraced in the city could be taxed for bonds already outstanding. Moreover residents of the municipality are absolved from the 40-cent road tax levied in outside districts. We are pleased to note an increasing interest in expansion, and we believe the chamber of commerce should get a good neckhold upon the subject and lay it clearly and dispassionately before the good people on the outside. If this city expects ever to get in the swim for a federal building, we must begin laying our foundation now by enlarging the limits from their present microscopical proportions.

It is regrettable that the city had no float in the parade of products at Santa Ana yesterday. It should have had two, or more; the more the better. This was indeed the purpose of our citizens a brief while ago, when the subject was first presented to our chamber of commerce, but the matter seems to have dropped out of sight, no one seems to understand why. A little more ginger in the chamber of commerce seems to be coming to that excellent body.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Rea of San Diego, cousins of J. B. Rea, were guests of the family of that gentleman Thanksgiving day. They are just returning from the east, and were in snow from the time of leaving Canada until their arrival in this valley. In the Cajon pass they saw two feet of snow. Here they found sunshine and flowers.

Showers during the week bring the total rainfall for the season, according to Mr. Dickel's gauge, to 1.52 inches. The precipitation is somewhat less than that of last year, when the gauge showed 5.40 inches to the first of December. November 6th of last year 2.36 inches fell in the severest storm of the year. During December only .25 of an inch fell; in January 2.53; and in March 5.40. The season's fall amounted to 18.13 inches, and the year was one of the best in the history of the county. The present season opens well. No early rains have fallen, and all indications point to a wet year. Weather prophets say we shall have abundant rainfall.

Wm. Schumacher, while speaking an evening or two ago about altitudinous prices for meats of all kinds, sighed for a return of the piping times of '76, when mutton could be purchased, owing to the dry year, at from 25 to 50 cents per head, and a quarter of a dollar realized from the pelt. Nowadays, mutton costs him from $5.50 to $7 a carcass, and he says the unconscionable wholesaler threatens another advance before snow flies. Mr. Schumacher says the lot of the retail butcher is a strenuous one, but adds that he is retailing more meat now than ever before. Moreover he never sold a poor piece of meat since he has been in the business.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Yungbluth returned on Sunday evening from their honeymoon trip to Santa Barbara. On the occasion of their wedding on Wednesday afternoon of last week, they eluded a merry party of rice-throwers by giving them the slip and going to Garden Grove in an automobile, taking an electric car at that point for Los Angeles. The wedding guests, being under the impression the newly married couple would take the Southern Pacific train, proceeded to that depot. Not finding them they boarded the train and went to Loara, expecting to find them there. Their plans being set at naught they showered rice upon several inoffending parties, to the merriment of a large crowd of onlookers.

Luther Hungerford was in town on Friday from his ranch at Carmentia, accompanied by his wife and family. Eight years ago Luther and his brother Henry were much in the public eye as a result of one of the most sensational murder trials ever held in this county. The two were charged with the murder of James Gregg, the rancher in the Santiago canyon. They admitted the killing, but claimed it was done in self-defense. They were each found guilty of murder in the second degree, but Judge Ballard held they were either guilty of murder in the first degree or were innocent. The point of law turned upon the question whether the accused or Gregg began firing first in the fusillade which ended the latter's life. A sensation was caused when they were later set at liberty. Reports flew about that bribery had been practiced, but these were unfounded, yet the judge's action in the case cost him a renomination for the office. Luther subsequently went out of his head, but later regained his mind, and is now farming in Los Angeles county across the Orange county line. Henry some weeks ago left for Missouri.

Henry Knapke was in town on Saturday from Oxnard, having come down from the sugar town to witness the Burns-O'Brien contest in Los Angeles on the Wednesday evening previous. Henry is head machinist at the sugar mill, which this year output 600,000 bags of sugar, more than 250,000 bags in excess of its last year's run. The season was the longest and most profitable in its history. Many acres yielded 30 tons of beets, running from 16 to 20 per cent sugar.

This community, in common with other citrus towns in Southern California has been experiencing a wood and coal famine, and prices for these commodities are higher than at any previous time in years. Wood is scarce for the reason that there are no men to be had to chop down trees, and for the further fact that Pasadena, Long Beach, Los Angeles and other places have drained the valley of its available supply. An eucalyptus tree at the corner of North and Los Angeles street recently chopped down yielded six cords, while some time ago a 35-year-old eucalyptus tree on Olive street produced ten cords.

A. A. Mills and wife were victims of a peculiar accident which happened to them some days ago at their residence. As they were in the act of driving away in a light spring wagon the seat tipped over backward, precipitating them to the floor of the wagon. Mrs. Mills fell against an oil stove, sustaining severe bruises about the shoulders and head. Her little child which she carried in her lap escaped unhurt. Prof. Mills sustained the fracture of the right floating rib, and was for several days incapacitated from work. The horse remained steady and thus averted what might have proven a far more serious accident.

John Schaffer, for many years a highly respected resident of this city, died at his home in the North Side on Sunday of a complication of diseases superinduced by an attack of typhoid sustained some months ago. He had been confined to his bed for several weeks and recovery was despaired of. He was a native of Germany and was aged 46 years, 5 months and 17 days. He leaves a wife and eight children. Burial services were conducted at the Catholic church on Tuesday morning.

Julius Krause of Los Angeles, architect for the Hammel & Denker estate, was in town this week preparing for the construction of a brick block to be erected by Mrs. McLaughlin at the corner of Emily and Center streets. On Tuesday Surveyor Hurley was here running preliminary lines for the building, which will be 87x98 feet. The builder has not yet decided whether to build two or three stories, but may consider the offer of a local lodge to erect a three-story edifice, the upper floor to be used as a meeting place for the lodge. The lower floor will contain two storerooms and the second offices and rooms. Work upon the structure will probably begin this month. Surveyor Hurley also laid out the block east of the grammar school, which is owned by the estate, and upon which six residences will be erected for rent. The building at the corner of Emily and Center will cost $8000 if two stories in height, and $12,000 if three stories.

John Gustafson, one of the best known farmers of Orange county, was in town from Buena Park on Wednesday. Mr. Gustafson has given up beet raising, at which he was uniformly successful, for alfalfa, and on his forty-acre ranch at the Park he gathers a crop every five weeks. He irrigates tract from a well sunk 530 feet deep, from which he raises 170 inches of water by means of a forty-horse power electric motor. He has recently constructed a $4000 cobblestone residence of nine rooms, in the construction of which he hauled 100 loads of cobblestones from the Santiago creek. The residence is cool in summer and warmer in winter than frame dwellings, and is architecturally one of the neatest structures at the Park.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.

The captain of one of the teams and the prime mover in the sport, is Archie Roosevelt, son of the president. His playmates are thirty boys about his own age from the Friends Select school at which Archie is a pupil. Temporary goal posts have been arranged by the youngsters and soon after the close of school in the afternoon a full-fledged game is under way. Each of the players has a regulation uniform, and while all of the plays perhaps are not scientifically carried out, a great deal of enthusiasm is expended, to say nothing of the noise. Tourists have been astounded at the sight of boisterous boys whooping and yelling in the shadow of the executive mansion.

Frankly speaking, the subject of inheritance taxation does not seem to stand the ghost of a show. There are Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which causes the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists will be supplied. Write to Ely Brothers, 66 Warren St., N. Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

The office hours of Dr. Roberts, the eye specialist in the Federman building will be on Saturdays hereafter. Other hours by appointment. Dr. Roberts keeps an automobile to visit patients at their homes, when for any reason they can not, or do not care, to come to the office.

Keep this for Reference on Account of Rules

For the purpose of indelibly impressing upon the minds of the people of the Southwest the new location to which we have just moved our large establishment, covering four stories and basement at 416-418 S. Broadway, we have determined upon an offer which will not only accomplish the object desired, but will also bring to us the gratitude of all who take part in this contest. We want the name of "THE WILEY B. ALLEN CO." to become forever impressed upon the minds of all the people of the great Southwest, and our determination to have it so has resulted in the following remarkable offer:

This is a word contest, and the sole conditions are that the words must be confined to the letters in the words "THE WILEY B. ALLEN CO.," and that all the contestants must state whether or not they have a piano or organ. This latter is for the purpose of enabling us to know just how many homes are without instruments. There are no limits or restrictions as to the number of contestants in a family, but only one prize will be given in a family.

The contest is as follows:

See how many words can be made out of the letters in "THE WILEY B. ALLEN CO." The person making the greatest number of words will receive a magnificent $600 New "Knabe" piano absolutely free. This will be the first prize. The person making the next greatest number of words will receive as second prize, a celebrated New $500 "Fischer" piano; and the person making the third greatest number of words will receive as third prize a beautiful New $400 "Price & Teeple" Piano.

The one hundred next highest answers will entitle each one to a credit certificate of $100 on another piano, just like one of the prizes, or on any other new piano in our warerooms. The one hundred next highest answers will Notice: Keep this for reference as this announcement will not appear again.

Every piano we have is fully guaranteed by us, and includes a handsome scarf and stool, also delivery to the successful contestant free of expense, within twenty miles of Los Angeles.

NOTE—During the growth of the great business of THE WILEY B. ALLEN CO. it has been one of our essential principles to sell not only pianos that are reliable, but at the very lowest possible margin of profit, and to this ideal we have unwaveringly adhered, making it as safe for a child to purchase one of our pianos as the most experienced buyer. Therefore, the credit certificate which you may win, be it $25, $50 or $100, will represent its full value in entitle the successful contestants each to a credit certificate of $50 on a piano, the same as in the foregoing, or any other new piano in our magnificent stock.

The two hundred next highest answers will entitle the successful contestants each to a credit certificate of $25 on any new piano in our warerooms.

In the event of a tie between successful contestants, the answer first received will be entitled to the prize.

Not only will a certificate be accepted as so much cash paid on a piano, but easy terms will also be given to those who do not wish to pay all cash.

The Contest will close on Dec. 10, 1906

and all answers should be marked on the outside, "Word Contest," and mailed or delivered to our address at 416-418 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal., by that date. The result will be announced about one week later, and successful contestants notified.

Remember these Instructions:

See how many words you can make out of the twelve different letters in "THE WILEY B. ALLEN CO."

That is not using the same letter more than once in a word. The letters you may use are T H W I L Y B A L E N C O. The word cannot be used more than once, even though it has different meanings.

You can use any word in the English language (Webster is our authority) but no name of persons or places.

You may use plurals. No obsolete words allowed. State if you now have a piano or an organ.

Add your list when completed and state number of words. Sign your full name and give postoffice address.

You must comply with all the above rules.

cash on any instrument of our magnificent stock. Among the well-known and celebrated makes of pianos for which we are sole representatives are the Knabe, Mason & Hamlin, J. & C. Fischer, Conover, Ludwig, Kingsbury, Price & Teeple, Packard, and those perfect player pianos, Knabe Angelus, Emerson Angelus and Kingsbury.

Further information and copies of the above instructions may be obtained by phone, mail or applying in person to 416-418 South Broadway. Telephones: Main 2077; Home, Ex. 667.

The Convict's Daughter

One of the most entertaining and finely mounted plays of the season will be seen at Anaheim Opera-House, Tuesday, Dec. 11. "The Convict's Daughter" is possessed of a well-defined plot, a story interestingly and effectively told. The cast is all that could be desired, and all are well adapted to their respective parts. The scenic effects are good, and the prison scene in Act Four particularly thrilling. They must be seen to be appreciated, and those who fail to see them will certainly do themselves an injustice. Prices, 25, 35, and 50c. Reserved seats at McCollum's.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is by destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CURENEY & CO., TOLEDO, Sold by all druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
