TOWN'S FIFTIETH BIRTHDAY

$4000 to Be Raised to Commemorate Notable Event—
All the State to be Invited

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Anaheim will be celebrated this year by the citizens in a manner entirely worthy of the happy occasion. Fifty years ago this fall the town was laid out, and the pioneers shortly thereafter set sail from San Francisco for their new homes in the south. The original town was composed of fifty twenty-acre lots, and these were apportioned to the shareholders. Of the fifty pioneers only three remain, namely J. P. Zeyn, Theodore E. Schmidt and Mrs. C. Langenberger. There resides in Oakland C. F. Scholl, who will be invited to attend the celebration.

Anaheim was founded September 25, 1857. Whether to have the celebration on the Fourth of July or to wait until Admission Day (Sept. 9th) has not as yet been decided. Each day has its supporters and a decision will probably be arrived at in the near future.

It is the purpose of the chamber of commerce to raise $4000 for the celebration. All visitors will be entertained at a great barbecue, at which several steers and many sheep will be baked in the highest manner of the culinary art.

The seventh regiment is expected to go into camp here during the day, and to give an exhibition drill during the day. Prizes for competitive drills between the companies will be offered.

A ball game between clubs of the Southern California league will be played during the afternoon.

The parade, as far as can be mapped out at the present time, will be about as follows:

FIRST DIVISION.

Anaheim Floats:
Mother Colony.
Irrigation.
Products.
Chamber of Commerce.
M. and M. Association.
Orange County.

SECOND DIVISION.

Pioneers and Native Sons.
Odd Fellows.
Knights of Columbus.
Eagles.
Masons.
Woodmen of the World.
Fraternal Brotherhood.
Other lodges.

THIRD DIVISION.

Cavalcade forming queen's escort.
Queen of the Day, on gorgeous float.
Queen's Court.
School Children.

FOURTH DIVISION.

Merchants' floats.
Individual floats.

FIFTH DIVISION.

Seventh regiment, N. G. C.
Marching Clubs.

SIXTH DIVISION.

Civic Bodies.
Board of City Trustees.
Anaheim Band.
County lodges.
Booster Club.

After the parade exercises will be held at the opera-house, and Madame Modjeska, herself one of the pioneers of Anaheim, will probably appear in one of her favorite roles at Music hall.

Invitations will be sent Gov. Gillett, Senators Perkins and Flint, Congressmen Smith and McLachlan and other notable people throughout the state to attend.

Congressman Needham of the Sixth district, who opened his first campaign here while a candidate for congress of this district twelve years ago, will also be invited.

In the evening there will be an elaborate electrical display, and fireworks.

Special trains will come to this city on all roads from all directions, and reduced rates will be given.

Mr. Neff has made arrangements for holding farmers' institutes at Escondido March 26 and 27, Oceanside March 28 and La Mesa March 29 and 30. The meetings will be addressed by Prof. Twombly of San Luis Obispo, Dr. Harling and Prof. Major of Berkeley and Prof. Ramsey of Whittier. E. K. Carnes, state entomologist, who is attached to the insectary at Chula Vista is also expected to be present.

The state board of horticulture is engaged in a very important work at the Chula Vista insectary, it being nothing less than the propagation of parasitical insects which prey upon scale, mites, the red spider and other enemies of the fruit grower. Parasites for the purple and red scale are also being propagated and excellent progress is being made in their development. These San Diego meetings will probably be among the most interesting of the season. Mr. Neff will later hold a series of meetings in Ventura county and will then conclude his work until opening the fall season of institutes.

Argue Adams and family and Moses McClellan left yesterday for Missouri. They will probably dispose of property interests there and return to Orange county to locate.

STANTON BILL WITHDRAWN

Orange County Men Put Up Too Vigorous a Fight, and Stanton Meets Defeat

Information received from Sacramento yesterday was to the effect that the Stanton bill was withdrawn in face of an active and well-organized opposition and is probably dead for the session.

Phil Stanton's bill providing for annexing a part of Orange county and annexing it to Los Angeles was reported out of committee in both houses of the legislature at Sacramento Thursday. The bill was reported without recommendation, the vote being 4 to 4 in the assembly, one member of the committee being absent. Immediately upon receipt of this intelligence Santa Ana got busy, and determined to send a committee to the state capital and oppose the bill.

Information of this whirl of the political wheel was received at Santa Ana by a telegram from N. A. Ulm, who was in Sacramento in the interests of the merchants' mutual insurance bill. The telegram reads as follows:

"Stanton bill under consideration by assembly committee. Newland and Price were there. Committee stood 4 to 4, one absent. Adjourned to meet again. N. A. ULM."

Newland and Price of Huntington Beach had a conference with Stanton when he was in this end of the state and as a result they went to Sacramento to lobby for Stanton's bill.

The following telegram was sent Ulm after a conference with a number of committeemen at Santa Ana:

"Confer with Anderson and Bishop. Committee will render you all necessary aid. Price not on assessment roll. BEATTY."

A committee consisting of R. Y. Williams, S. H. Finley, H. J. Forgy, Jas. McFadden of Santa Ana, and Richard Melrose of this city was sent to Sacramento.

Attorney Melrose, who went to Sacramento last week as a representative of the board of trustees of the State normal school of Los Angeles, to advocate legislation in which the school is vitally interested, in a letter to a friend says:

"I found when I came here that Assemblyman Bishop had telegraphed to me to come here on the county division matter. I had supposed that the matter was moribund, and was surprised to learn that it was very much alive. I have successfully accomplished my mission in the matter of the normal school; but I deem it advisable to remain here for a time to do what I can to defeat the Stanton bill for the curtailing of the boundaries of Orange county. R. Y. Williams and Supervisor Angle are also here for that purpose, and the gun clubs and Huntington Beach are also represented by an active lobby. Bishop has the fight well in hand, and I believe he will win out in the assembly. The senate however is not in as good shape, and the result there is somewhat problematical."

Senator Carter of Los Angeles, Stanton's business associate and partner, led the fight for the passage of the bill in the senate on Tuesday, when a vote was to have been taken. He painted a black picture of the supervisors of Orange county raking in the taxes from Huntington Beach, and the other shore towns; and spending all of it on the roads at the other side of the county; he told of the people of the wave-lapped region crying out against taxation without representation; of the lack of "consanguinity" between the beach people and those of the celery fields and walnut groves.

Carter said that owners of 16,000 of the 20,000 acres proposed for annexation had petitioned for the passage of the bill; that 225 of the 300 registered voters of the territory wanted the county boundary changed.

"In five years," he said, "Orange county has not paid out $500 in the improvement of roads in the beach section, although the latter has paid 17 per cent. of the total taxation. Besides most of the property is owned by Los Angeles people, and is tributary to Los Angeles rather than Santa Ana."

Senator Anderson of Orange denied there was any grounds for the charge. He said 75 per cent. of the people in the strip were against the Stanton project. He presented resolutions from various commercial bodies in the county, as well as from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, supporting the claim that the mass of the residents of both counties oppose the move in boundary lines. He said the gun clubs of the beach section were partly responsible for the agitation.

"Political conditions in Orange county," said the senator, "are such that we cannot tell where this change might leave us. There's a man named Price here lobbying for this bill, who is not on the assessment rolls of the county, and who even did not pay his poll tax last year."

This latter statement was denied by Senator Carter, who said that Price owned $20,000 worth of property in the strip.

Senator Wright of San Diego entered the debate at this point, taking the side of Orange county.

"I am taking a big chance in doing this," he remarked, "for I was informed by Senator Carter that, if I did not support this measure, he would fight every one of my bills. I am against county division of all kinds, and I consider this move a particularly bad one."

"Now, I have had some experience with Los Angeles county politicians," he said, taking a dig at Assemblyman Stanton for his advocacy of the re-nomination of Gov. Pardee. "Before the last state convention, I was invited down to Bay City, and I was informed that, if the San Diego county delegation to the Republican state convention did not do as he wished, he would see that we did not get anything we wanted at this session of the legislature. But things did not go the way he wanted them to."

Senator Wright argued that it would be unconstitutional to divide Orange county as proposed. "Besides," he said, "the legislature is not in session to pass laws for real estate speculators."

Behaw of Contra Costa said it was a case of petty larceny.

Carter closed the debate after the noon recess, and while on the floor got into a wordy encounter with Senator Wright. He accused the San Diego senator for an ambition to shy his castles into the congressional ring, likewise denied that he had threatened to oppose Wright's bills. Then he withdrew the bill, threatening that, "when the Willis constitutional amendment

Suit Against Mrs. Mitchell

The German-American bank has filed suit against Mrs. N. H. Mitchell of Pasadena to enforce compliance with provisions of a contract entered into by her for the sale of property wherein the bank is situated on Center street. The bank purchased the lot from Mrs. Mitchell upward of a year ago and erected its building. The contract provides that the bank should pay her $50 per month rent until January 1st of this year, when a deed was to be made to the bank and the money for the lot turned over to her. The bank has filled all conditions of its contract, and some time ago notified Mrs. Mitchell the money was ready to be paid to her and requesting that she come forward with the deed. It is alleged in the complaint that Mrs. Mitchell refused to deliver the deed, and now asks that rent continue to be paid her for a period of ten years. This the bank refuses to do, and now brings suit to compel her to abide by the written terms of the contract.

The Odd Fellows some months ago brought suit against Mrs. Mitchell to collect $600 as her share of the cost of a party wall. The Odd Fellows building association have an agreement in writing with her by which she agreed to pay half the cost of the wall. On her refusal to pay suit was brought against her in superior court. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. The lady appealed to the supreme court.

Miss Carrie E. Roberts, formerly principal of the Anaheim grammar school, but during the past year resting at her bungalow at Sunset Beach, has been appointed deputy county school superintendent by Superintendent Carpenter. Miss Roberts will be in charge of the office at the courthouse during Prof. Carpenter's visits to the schools of the county. One of the foremost educators in the state, as she is also one of the best liked teachers ever employed in the county, she is qualified in an eminent degree to fill the arduous duties of her office, and will without doubt render an excellent account of her stewardship. Her many friends hereabout rejoice at her good fortune, as well as Prof. Carpenter's good fortune in securing so able an assistant.

The Puente Oil company is said to have received a cash offer of one million dollars for its oil wells and holdings north of Fullerton. The company is pumping thirty wells and has 4000 acres of oil bearing land. Many expert oil men believe that the company's property is worth more than a million. The Puente is a closed corporation, being owned outright by five or six stockholders.

That Balance of Trade

America's pocketbook was enriched by practically $500,000,000 through the exportations last year of cotton the products of that staple, according to a statement issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The exports of this product amounted to one-fourth, or 28 per cent of the $1,773,000,000 worth of the domestic exports.

Of the $413,000,000 worth of raw cotton exports, $11,000,000 went to Japan, a reduction compared with 1905.

In quantity the record shows a falling off as compared with 1905, the total number of pounds shipped during that year being 4,137,154,935 while for 1906 they were only 3,850,229,030.

The falling off in the quantity, however, was more than offset by the increase in the price of cotton exports, the increase in value in 1906 exceeding the previous year by $21,000,000.

The value of cotton cloths exported last year was $32,500,000 of which a little over $500,000 went to Europe; $16,750,000 to China and $5,000,000 to other Asiatic countries.

The merchants and manufacturers' association and the chamber of commerce of Santa Ana have appointed committees to solicit funds with which to purchase two acres of ground on Washington avenue next to the Southern Pacific railroad. The land will be held and deeds will be given any manufacturing enterprise that will take advantage of the opportunity for establishing a plant in that town.

Forty-two injured Greeks, victims of a smash-up of a construction train at Leith, Nevada, on the Salt Lake road on Friday were brought to Los Angeles by special train. Twenty-seven were taken to the California hospital suffering from broken arms and legs. One had a fractured skull. Two suffered amputation of legs. Two will probably die. Three dead are still at the scene of the wreck. Fifteen who were slightly injured were taken to the Hotel Avon. Most of the men have families in the old country.

Douglas Tilden, a sculptor, has finished a statue of the late Stephen Mallory White, ordered for the city of Los Angeles, and a committee consisting of ex-Mayor Snyder, Joseph Scott, J. Hunt and two others viewed the work in Tilden's studio in Oakland. The height of the statue is a little over eight feet, and the pedestal sixteen feet. The stonework is designed in granite and treated in a simple, classic style, resting on a base having a flight of eight steps all around. The inscription in front is: "To Senator Stephen Mallory White."

The total cost of the statue, as by contract between the sculptor and the committee is $20,000.

A congestion of all classes of freight, worse than that of a few months ago, is threatened in San Francisco and the Southern Pacific officials are at a loss how to combat the blockade. The operating department has brought the matter to the attention of J. C. Stubbs. He says he believes that the only way out of the difficulty will be to increase the demurrage charge. Freight is being sent to San Francisco from all parts of the country and in order not to have too great a congestion trains are being held up on the different systems so as to allow the unloading of the cars already in the city. On January 1, 703 cars destined for San Francisco were held on the coast and western divisions and one month later 1975 loads were held back and these figures show an increase of 1272 cars in thirty days or an average of about forty cars a day in excess of what was being handled in San Francisco.

Things Doing at State Capital.

SACRAMENTO, March 4, 1907.

EDITOR GAZETTE: Both houses have adopted and submitted to the people the Wright-Held constitutional amendment which reads as follows: "Section 24. The legislature shall have the power to enact laws relative to election of delegates to conventions of political parties; and the legislature shall enact laws providing for the direct nomination of candidates for public office, by electors, political parties, or organizations of electors without conventions, at elections to be known as and designated as primary elections; also to determine the tests and conditions upon which electors, political parties, or organizations of electors may participate in any such primary election. It shall also be lawful for the legislature to prescribe that any such primary election shall be mandatory and obligatory. The legislature shall also have the power to establish the rates of compensation for primary election officers serving at such primary elections in any city, or city and county, or county, or other subdivision of a designated population, without making such compensation uniform, and for such purpose such law may declare the population of any city, city and county, county or political subdivision. Provided, however, that until the legislature shall enact a direct primary election law under the provisions of this section, the present primary election law shall remain in force and effect."

It gives the legislature "power to enact laws relative to the election of delegates to conventions of political parties," and the "legislature shall enact laws providing for the direct nomination of candidates for public offices—without conventions." This seeming clash between the two methods will be threshed out before the people prior to the next election. It has been suspected that a "bug" would be found in this amendment, for the reason that, so far as the senate is concerned, there is no sincere desire for any direct primary whatever. If the amendment stands the test of judicial construction it will serve a useful purpose as an anchor to windward in the event that the present constitutional provision should prove inadequate.

As good men as we have are of the opinion that the constitution as it stands is sufficient for all purposes. Mr. John W. Stetson, a true blue friend of popular government, prepared a measure as a companion to the present primary law whereby, a second ballot box shall be maintained at all polling places where the present primary law has been adopted for the reception of "candidates" tickets in addition to the "delegates" tickets already provided for. The voter will mark one ballot for the selection of delegates to conventions, and deposit that in one box, and a second ballot giving his choice of candidates for office for whose support, in convention, he wants to instruct his delegates to vote. If as many as 25 per cent of the total vote cast, the same being a plurality, are for any candidate, the convention must nominate that candidate. If no candidate gets as much as 25 per cent of the total vote, the lowest is dropped after each roll call, and the delegates thus set free are at liberty to vote for any other candidate still before the convention.

This will reduce trading to the lowest terms where there is no popular preference, and will eliminate it altogether and give the people a direct voice in making nominations wherever as many as 25 per cent of the voters in any party want any man nominated for any office by their party. It will mean freedom from corporate control if the people care to be free. If not, then they should have their ears pierced in token of thralldom to the Southern Pacific forever. This is Assembly Bill 794. Don't forget the number, and don't forget to write at once to your senator to push it through.

Another companion measure, Assembly Bill 934, provides for the declaration of party affiliations at the time of registering, which may be changed after registration has closed by affidavit showing good faith. The purpose of this is to keep the voters of the several parties on their own side of the party fence. Write to your senator to vote for this, too. The "organization" is dead against it.

The enactment of these two measures into law will enable the people to select their own legislators next time, to select their own United States senator, their members of congress and such city officers as they may have to elect. The law is not made obligatory, but it is believed that an enlightened public sentiment will lead counties to turn their backs upon the old system of nominating candidates by barter instead of by intelligent choice. Time is short. If the reader of this wants free government it will cost him but two cents in money and five minutes in time to tell his senator to stand for it and stand hard.—A. J. Pillsbury.

County Brevities

Nine hoboes had a remarkable experience in a freight wreck between Yorba and Gypsum the other day, on the Riverside branch of the Santa Fe, and all came out alive and practically uninjured. They were riding in a box car. A brake beam broke and it left the track. Six cars behind it rode safely on, but the seventh caught on an obstruction and was piled up on top of the first, crushing it into kindling. The men were literally buried in wreckage, but one by one they crawled and soon were toasting their feet at a fire.

The last car was filled with merchandise principally fine dry goods, silks, satins and velvets, and $1000 worth of this was stolen before the railroad men found time to protect it. Mexicans who live and work in the vicinity flocked to the scene and took everything they could carry away.

D. J. Bastanchury, E. R. Amerige and W. R. Collins, appraisers of the estate of the late Joseph Toussau, have appraised the same at $13,859. This is the estate over which there has been litigation in the superior court. Mrs. Rose Toussau, mother of deceased, contested the will, which left the property to the widow, Mrs. Constance Toussau. The matter was settled out of court. John Lapique, a refugee attorney from San Francisco, then tried to have himself appointed as attorney for Mrs. Toussau and when he failed in his attempt he began proceedings to have certain attorneys interested in the case disbarred from practice, but he made a poor showing before Judge West. Lapique left promising to return but up to the hour of going to press had not appeared upon the horizon.

WASHINGTON CHAT

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE GAZETTE]

Economy has not been the watchword with the present congress. Despite the strenuous efforts on the part of the speaker and a few others to keep down the expenses of the government, the fact is looming up that with the appropriation bills which have been passed and the estimates of those which will pass between now and the 4th of March, the total sum expended will be more than a billion dollars, a sum greater than that spent by any other congress. As near as can be figured now, the surplus in the treasury at the end of this fiscal year will not be more than $27,000,000, while during the next fiscal year the expenditures may exceed the revenues by some $100,000,000.

The amount that will be necessary for the work on the Panama canal during the next year, according to the estimates of the canal commission, will be $25,000,000. Even this has not deterred the congress from providing in some measure for almost everything that has been asked for, with the exception of the waterway from the Gulf to the Lakes, which, it is estimated, would cost $31,000,000, and the increase in the salary of the government clerks.

Early in the session the safety valve was placed wide open and has remained so ever since. Postal employees are given increases amounting to $7,000,000. New battleships are provided at a cost of $20,000,000. The largest river and harbor bill since the formation of the government carries $93,000,000. The army has received a gift in the form of new coast artillery which will cost Uncle Sam several millions a year. In addition to giving the old soldiers of many wars $138,000,000 in the regular pension appropriation bill, congress has added $15,000,000 more in a service pension act. Another million has been given to the Jamestown exposition and it is likely that the sundry civil bill—one of the last to be passed just before adjournment, will carry more than $100,000,000. These constitute just a few items that go to make this congress the most expensive in history.

Rigid Inspection
Secretary of Commerce and Labor Strauss has become wonderfully familiar with the workings of his department in the short time he has been a cabinet official. Nothing escapes him and each branch of his bureau is being placed on a strictly business basis. His latest work is in the direction of providing for a more rigid inspection of the steamboat inspection laws of the United States. He believes that the enforcement of the law is in competent hands but he wants to obtain a stricter inspection of all steam vessels over which the United States has jurisdiction.

His aim is to avoid such accidents as the recent Larchmont horror which has brought many complaints to the department against what is alleged to be carelessness of owners of vessels carrying passengers. Secretary Strauss has impressed upon the inspectors the necessity of a strict enforcement of the law, declaring that where human life entered as a factor, too much care could not be exercised in safeguarding it. He reminds the officials that as spring and summer seasons approach, travel by water will increase tremendously in volume and nothing should be left undone to insure the safety of persons on vessels over which the government has control.

New Designs in Coins
For the first time in fifty years the designs in the gold coins of the United States are to be changed. This is the decision of the President, who, under the law, may do as he likes regarding such designs, providing that they shall not be changed oftener than once in twenty-five years, and that on each coin there shall appear an emblem of liberty, the year of the coinage and the words "E Pluribus Unum." Beyond being bound by this general description, the president can make any change that suits his fancy.

President Roosevelt believes that the gold coins now in use are not artistic and in discussing the matter with the officials of the treasury department, he decided to consult an artist. As a result, appropriate designs are being prepared which will be submitted to the executive for his approval, and to guide him in the selection of a suitable stamp, it is believed he will appoint a commission of officials to assist him in selecting the proper one. Nothing will be done with the silver coins now in circulation as the emblems on them have been in use only a few years.

Watching the President

It is interesting to see how the secret service men stationed at the White House keep track of the movements of the president. During a greater part of each working day, the president is at his desk in his private office. While he is so occupied it is the duty of the secret service men to remain in the reception room adjoining, where all visitors are seated. Here they are kept informed by the president's secretary of the actions of the president.

When he goes back to the White House proper the secretary imparts to them the information and they follow him through the long corridor. Should he go out walking or riding, or to play tennis, this also must be told them for it is absolutely necessary to the proper protection of the president that they should know his whereabouts every moment of the day.

Formerly it was the custom of the secretary to convey his messages to the secret service men by word of mouth, but now a series of silent signs are made entirely—sort of a wireless telegraphy with a special code, so that no matter how many visitors are waiting in the room with the secret service men, not one knows the information given to them by the secretary as to just where the president is or what he is doing. The whole scheme is acted out in pantomime and it works to perfection.

PURE FOOD BILL

Senator McCartney's pure-food bill, which passed the legislature and is now before the governor for his signature, is one of the most important acts of the legislature. The bill is a Los Angeles measure entirely, for which the women's clubs in that city are largely responsible, and for which McCartney in the senate and Hammon in the assembly have acted as sponsors. The new law, which will be effective Jan. 1, 1908, provides among other things, that the manufacture, production, preparation, compounding, packing, selling, offering for sale or keeping for sale within the state, or the introduction into this state from any other state, territory, or the District of Columbia, or from any foreign country, of any article of food or liquor which is adulterated, mislabeled or misbranded is prohibited. Any person, firm, company, or corporation who shall import or receive from any other state or territory or the District of Columbia or from any foreign country, or who having so received shall deliver for pay or otherwise, or offer to deliver to any other person, any article of food or liquor adulterated, mislabeled or misbranded within the meaning of this act, or any person who shall manufacture or produce, prepare or compound, or pack or sell, or offer for sale, or keep for sale, in the state any such adulterated, mislabeled or misbranded food, or liquor shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

The term "food" as used includes all articles used for food, drink, liquor, confectionery or condiment by man or other animals, whether simple, mixed, or compound. The standard of purity of food and liquor shall be that proclaimed by the secretary of the United States department of agriculture.

The term "misbranded" as used applies to all articles of food, or articles which enter into the composition of food, the package or label of which shall bear any statement, design or device regarding such article, or the ingredients or substances contained therein which shall be false or misleading in any particular, and to any food product which is falsely branded as to the county, city and county, city, town, state, territory, District of Columbia or foreign country in which it is manufactured, or produced.

Food and liquor shall be deemed mislabeled or misbranded in any of the following cases:

If it be an imitation of or offered for sale under the distinctive name of another article of food.

If it be labeled or branded or colored so as to deceive or mislead, or tend to deceive or mislead the purchaser, or if it be falsely labeled in any respect, or if it purport to be a foreign product tend to mislead the purchaser, or purport to be a foreign product when not so, or if the contents of the package as originally put up shall have been removed in whole or in part and other contents shall have been placed in such package.

If in package form, and the contents are stated in terms of weight or measure, they are not plainly and correctly stated on the outside of the package.

If the package containing it or its label shall bear any statement, design or device regarding the ingredients or the substance contained therein, which statement, design, or device shall be false or misleading in any particular.

When any package bears the name of the manufacturer, jobbers or sellers, or the grade or class of the product, it must bear the name of the real manufacturer, jobbers or sellers and the true grade or class of the product, the same to be expressed in clear and distinct English words in legible type, provided, that an article of food shall not be deemed misbranded, if it be a well known food product of a nature, quality and appearance, and so exposed to public inspection as not to deceive or mislead nor tend to deceive or mislead a purchaser.

It is provided in the bill that a state laboratory inspector shall enforce the law, under auspices of the state board of health, and his salary will be $3000 a year. Violations of the act are a misdemeanor, and the sheriff and district attorney of the counties of the state are to enforce the act. All food may be seized and by order of court shall be destroyed.

No food products as defined in the new law shall be manufactured in California after July 1 next.

A NEW WATER OFFICE

The directors of the Anaheim Union Water company at their meeting on Saturday appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. McLaughlin and Hale, to receive offers of free sites for a new headquarters office to be erected in this city, bids to be submitted not later than tomorrow, Friday, the 8th. As will be inferred from this action, the board's intention is to erect a building to be used as an office by the company. Fifty feet of ground is desired, and bids or offers must be in the nature of a donation. In return for a deed thereto, the company will obligate itself to erect a substantial brick building thereupon.

The company feels it has outgrown its present quarters, and much valuable data, consisting of maps and engineers' reports, deeds, agreements, rights of way and other important papers are in consequence not safe from destruction by fire. It has been estimated the company's papers are easily worth $100,000 and the destruction of some of them would be an irreparable calamity. Many of these documents could not be replaced, and their destruction would be in the nature of a severe loss to the company.

Recently the company's landlord raised the rent, which prompted Mr. Hale to observe that Fullerton people stood ready to give the company a house and lot free of cost if headquarters were maintained in that enterprising town.

Mr. Crowther replied by stating that a number of offers of free lots in this city would be made the company if such offers were requested, and that it was unnecessary to move the office to Fullerton in order to get donations of building lots, or even a building.

The result of this discussion, coupled with the fact that the company would look for another site, resulted in an offer of one of two lots, each 25 feet front, to the company at its Saturday's meeting. These lots are located on East Center street, and are worth $1000 each.

The board decided 25 feet was not enough, and that 50 feet was necessary for its purpose. The result was that the committee was appointed to receive offers of sites, the same to be submitted not later than tomorrow.

The offer already referred to will be doubled, that is to say, 50 feet will be offered, and we hear that a brick building on Los Angeles street may be offered at nominal cash consideration. Several other sites will probably be submitted, and so far as we are concerned, we hope the best site may win.

It is now up to our citizens to say what they will do. True, the time is short; but it should not take long to decide what course to pursue in this important matter. Let it not be forgotten that the wide-awake citizens of Fullerton have been quoted by Mr. Hale as offering a free house and lot, which will necessarily at the proper time receive due consideration by the board. Of course we do not wish to see the headquarters moved away from the place where they have been located fifty years, nor do we think there exists at this writing any prospect for a change. But we must meet the liberality of our neighboring town in similar spirit.

This, we think, will be done, and several acceptable sites will probably be offered.

It was the purpose of the late Mr. Fay while president of the company to erect a headquarters office a number of years ago. He pointed out the great danger of the exposure of the company's papers to destruction by fire, and showed the company's losses in such disaster might more than pay the cost of many offices. With his untimely death the project dropped out of sight, until the present agitation for a new building. The same danger exists today which was feared by the former revered president of the company, and were he alive and in his old position, a new office building would be an accomplished fact before many months had passed away.

Let liberal offers be submitted to the committee, and let work upon the new headquarters office be put speedily under way.

A long step in the work of beautifying the city is the projected widening of Sycamore street, the elimination of jogs in the thoroughfare and the piping of the unsightly cement irrigation ditch which runs through the city the entire length of the street. Perhaps in Southern California, where so much depends upon irrigation, a cement irrigation ditch running bank-full of water ought not to be considered in unfavorable light; but certain it is that the ditch under consideration, above the street grade and in the thoroughfare as it is, is not altogether a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Sycamore street is probably one of the finest residence streets in the city. When widened and graced with cement walks and curbing, it will be to the north side what Broadway is to the south. Much of the travel to Placentia goes over a portion of this street, and all travel between this city and Fullerton passes it. The present sidewalk area extends to its portals, but goes no farther. An exception must be made in the case of Mrs. Rothaermel, who is sidewalking her newly opened tract, and is placing upon the market one of the handsomest residence sections in the city. She is expending $7000 in doing this, and is setting an excellent example to others to follow.

It is designed to widen the street to fifty feet, to take out the jog at the corner of Los Angeles street, and to sidewalk it, from Olive street to Lemon. Simultaneously the work of piping the open ditch will be taken up, with a view to further beautifying the street. While the zone to be widened does not at present include the entire length of the street, the subject is one which should suggest itself to all property owners along the thoroughfare, for it will not be many years before the street will be regarded as one of the finest residence streets in the city.

Mike DeYoung in his San Francisco Chronicle says it is immaterial to him whether the Southern California counties "stay in or get out," referring to the agitation for state division. Well, really, Mike, that's kind of you, with all your ill-smelling past record. But when the Southern counties resolve to "get out," they are going to "get out," whether you or the Chronicle ever skin another sucker or not.

Gen. Fred D. Grant made a hurry-up trip to the White House to head off a nomination for the Ananias club.

Japan may not be beating her swords into plowshares, but she is spending her income from bond sales for steel rails instead of guns, and that is getting pretty close to the biblical formula of modern times.

Mo' Gunst has come, but Abej Ruef appears to have went.

The city will soon ask for offers of a free site for the Carnegie library, a letter having been received from the philanthropist stating that as soon as the site shall be procured he will arrange for payments upon the building, to be made as work progresses. In this connection it might be well to ask that plans and specifications for the building be asked for, to the end that actual work upon the structure may begin at as early a date as possible. We know one local architect who has in contemplation the preparation of plans for what he tells us will be the handsomest edifice of the price in the state. It would be unfair to him to say at this time what the features of his plans will be, for there will probably be a spirited competition on the part of local architects for the honor of preparing plans for the library, but we might be permitted to say that the plans embrace all modern features, interior as well as exterior finish, and if adopted will leave no cause for regret either upon the part of the donor, the library board or patrons of the institution.

We hear that several sites will be offered, but so far have heard that only one will be offered absolutely free of cost. It should be added right here that neither the city nor the library board will undertake to pay a dollar for a site. Sites must be offered free, and the best site so offered will undoubtedly be the one to be graced by the library. We have been requested to favor this or that site, and arguments have been submitted tending to show good features of one site over another. But we have no choice in the matter, except to state that no site not absolutely free can for a moment be entertained.

One site filling all these conditions we already know of. If the other sites are to be considered, let their supporters get busy, for probably a decision will soon be made.

Let sites be formally called for, and as soon as dimensions of the lot are procured, let plans for the edifice be invited, the understanding being that all plans are to be submitted without cost to the city or the library board.

THE STATE CAPITOL

Apropos of current political gossip about removing the state capital from Sacramento to Berkeley, the following information concerning the state's big building at Sacramento, by a correspondent of this journal, will be of interest. The building is 282 feet long and five stories high, including the basement. The corner stone was laid in 1860, and it was not completed until 1874. It is a splendidly built brick building, and is one of the most beautiful capitols in the United States. But it had too little room in it without being too small. Practically only three of the stories could be used, the basement being in effect a cellar, and the upper story only a fire-trap attic. There was a scarcity of rooms for state offices and none at all for committee rooms. This led the legislature of two years ago to appropriate $352,960 for a renovation of the capitol building. A year was lost in getting plans threshed out and contracts let, and the work has been going on about a year. The first work was to cut holes in the basement, make area walls for basement windows, take off the badly rotted wooden roof and raise the walls so as to make a full story of the upper story. These things have been done, the new steel roof is going on and another year will see the work finished with room enough for all purposes for the next generation if not for half a century. The capitol had cost $2,600,000, and with the new improvements will bring the cost up to $3,000,000. It could not now be duplicated for $5,000,000, and probably not for $6,000,000 or within five years of time. It can be enlarged at any time by building wings at either end, as in the case of the capitol at Washington. The earthquake did not do a dollar's worth of damage to it, and it will prove serviceable for two centuries if suffered to stand.

It must seem rather funny to Reed Smoot to be able to speak now without keeping one hand ready to guard.

Chief Wilkie says those thieves who got away with $173,000 from the Chicago sub-treasury must have been crass amateurs. How about Mr. Wilkie's secret service men who were supposed to prevent their getting away at all?

President Roosevelt may have queered himself with the Harvard faculty by that football talk, but he can depend on it that the undergraduates will elect him chief coach any time he is out of a job.

After the senate committee gets through at Brownsville, they might go a little further south and find out whether President Castro has really been ill at all.

Ambassador Bryce and the president exchanged polite official speeches at the White House this week, and then got down to a subject that really interested them both, which was the international copyright bill.

After all, the newspapers that were so condemned for printing detailed reports of the Thaw case, ought to get some credit for the things they did leave out.

A. C. Spaulding was in town on Monday from his ranch west of town. He said it looked good to see it raining so. Water in his wellpit has steadily risen until it covers the pump at the bottom of the pit, which is 34 feet deep. Chas. E. Jones to Take Charge

Charles E. Jones of this city, who for many years filled the important position of superintendent of the extensive Guggenheim mine in Colorado, and who for a year past has been a resident of this city, will in a few days go to Kelso, San Bernardino county, to take charge of the Kelso mine. Mr. Jones is one of the most experienced miners in the United States, and the fact that he has decided to re-enter the business and will have personal control of the Kelso mine, is strong evidence of the fact that he regards the mine as offering an inviting field for development. He recently visited the properties, and went down the shaft. Here he exploded a shot of powder and brought home with him specimens of ore. These were assayed and found to be rich. Mr. Jones later determined to take personal control of development work, and will in a few days go to Kelso with that end in view.

Since his residence in this city he has received a number of invitations from the Guggenheims to return to Colorado and assume control of their mines, but he has persistently refused to abandon the climate of this section, where he located for the benefit of his wife's health.

Good Reports of Mine

Judge Howard, W. H. Spake and Mr. Maxwell returned this week from the Kelso mine, whither they were some days ago in company of Messrs. Nelson and Campbell of the company operating the mine.

Speaking of the trip Judge Howard said: "I believe the mine will develop into one of the richest in the west. The property consists of 200 acres, and at a distance of a mile and a half we could plainly see three ledges from fifteen to twenty-five feet in width running through the property. The ledges look good to me, and I believe the mine will shortly develop into one of great richness."

"The main shaft is down 140 feet and excellent progress is being made. There is a large quantity of ore on the dump. This, we were surprised to learn, had been cast aside for the richer ore that is confidently believed to be located at a greater depth."

"We brought home samples of the ore and had it assayed. It went $17.15 to the ton, in gold and silver."

"We were hospitably entertained and consider ourselves well repaid for the trip."

Judge Howard took a number of photographs of the mine which will soon be placed on exhibition.

Mr. Spake and Mr. Maxwell also spoke in high terms of praise of the character of the mine.

Mr. Nelson states that $15,000 has been expended in developing the property to its present stage, and is more confident than ever that he and his associates have a bonanza.

C. C. Chapman has been appointed by Gov. Gillett a trustee of the state normal school at San Diego. Mr. Chapman's name was withdrawn by the governor two months ago, along with other appointments of former Gov. Pardee, a number of whom were discredited by Gov. Gillett. Among these latter were Senator Anderson, whose nomination as trustee of the Whittier state school was announced by Pardee as he was about to leave his office. Anderson will probably not be appointed by Gillett. Mr. Chapman is at present a trustee of the San Diego normal, and is fitted by his personality and experience in every way to grace the position.

Tuesday last being the sixteenth birthday of Kathryn Hayden a number of her friends gave her a pleasant surprise. The evening was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served. She received a handsome present as a gift from all and it was greatly appreciated by her. The guests dispersed at a late hour, wishing the hostess many happy returns of the day. Those present were Irene Mills, Helen Browning, Lilla Steadman, Laura Kraeber, Lucile Fox, Sybil Tipton, Frank Hill, Edward Lawrence, Walter Cadman, Leslie Bowen and George Chambers.

Mrs. Louis Stapper of Los Angeles and Mrs. Wm. L. Vetter of Omaha, old-time Atchison friends of Mrs. Joseph Helmsen, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Helmsen during the week. An informal musical was arranged in their honor on Friday evening.

Frank Shevlin was over from Santa Ana a day or two ago in a new automobile which approaches nearer to a flying machine than anything at the county seat.

F. B. Fay, president of the Citrus Union, predicts that there will be 4000 carloads of oranges left on the trees at the end of this season, and it appears that the estimate will not be far from correct unless there is an improvement over the record of last month. Mr. Fay says: "Owing to the heavy rains the oranges are more subject to decay than usual, but I believe that navel can be left on the trees until June if necessary, although it is desirable to move them sooner when possible. The larger and riper the fruit becomes the more difficult it is to market. Oranges on the trees that are not heavily loaded do not keep so well."

Articles of incorporation have been filed by the West Anaheim water company, the purpose of which is to develop and supply water for irrigation and domestic use, and acquire all necessary water rights, lands, ditches, right of way, machinery and appliances, etc. The principal place of business is West Anaheim. CALIFORNIA IRRIGATION.

If the man be blessed who makes two spears of grass grow where one grew before, then must the irrigationist be more than blessed, for he has brought water to waste places and is making millions of spears of grass grow where none grew before.

Irrigation, it must be remembered, does not take the place of rain. It is the scientific application of water to soil, and it has been said by one of the greatest irrigation experts of the world that there is not an acre of land in the whole country that will not be a better producer under scientific irrigation.

In California there are many large irrigation projects, and millions of acres have been redeemed by the scientific application of water, but there are many millions of acres more that will as readily respond. The traveler to the southern part of California is always amazed at the beauty of the foliage and fruit and flowers around the cities of Los Angeles and Orange county, yet it is but a quarter of a century ago when all this land was given over to the cactus and sparse herbage of the desert.

There is a personal side, too, to irrigation. It is a material means to the end of dividing up the great tracts of ranches into small farms, and it means a closer social life to the farmer and his family. It brings brightness to homes, and makes communities where once long distances intervened between farmhouses. More than this, irrigation teaches farmers the benefits of co-operation.

Irrigation means, also, intensive farming. Where great tracts were once given over to wheat raising, now small farms are cultivated on scientific principles, and intensive work gives more profit to one acre than ten would produce in the old way. It brings to perfection diversified farming on small tracts, and gives to the small farmer an income equal to that of the big rancher who depends upon the harvesting of his grain on thousands of acres for a living. It means even more than this, for on a small irrigated tract the farmer can so arrange his crops that he can market his produce every month in the year, receiving quick cash returns for his labors.

The example of Imperial Valley, in the eastern part of San Diego county, is a constant object lesson so far as the value of irrigation is concerned. In that valley on January 1, 1901, there was not to be found a single white man. Next year a dozen surveyors were to be seen working out levels from the Colorado river. In 1903 some hundreds of men were working on the ditches. On January 1, 1906, the valley teems with life. Many thriving towns are there, with all the modern appliances—telephones, electric lights, railroads, banks, and even manufacturing, all surrounded by farms, where 100,000 acres are under cultivation, supporting the 20,000 inhabitants of the valley.

The United States government has under contemplation vast projects, which will mean the cultivation of territory that will equal many of the nations of Europe.

AGRICULTURE IN CALIFORNIA.

With forty million acres of her land arable, and with ten million more of the so-called desert land waiting only the coming of water in irrigation ditches to make them blossom and bear fruit, California presents a wonderful field for the home seeker in the way of agriculture. The remaining fifty million acres of mountain and non-arable desert forms an immense pasture, where cattle and sheep may find feed in unlimited quantity and unsurpassed quality.

California land is peculiar in that it presents greater opportunities than are to be found elsewhere. The soil of California is of such richness that it will grow more to the seedling than any other soil, and the climate is so beneficent that it will permit of more crops than any other land. Here we have the elements which go to make the perfect agricultural land. It is a recognized fact among agriculturists that "everything will grow in California." Not only is this true, but with the same methods of farming here as are in vogue elsewhere the farmer will get double results. It must be remembered in this connection that California methods are not different from those of other lands. The farmer who comes to California from some other country has nothing to unlearn and nothing to learn so far as farming methods are concerned.

Irrigation means much to the California farmer. It means a constant crop and a diversified crop. Extensive grain farming in California is gradually giving way to the small farm on which is raised a diversified crop. The big wheat fields of twenty years ago are rapidly passing, and the great tracts of land are being cut up into small tracts. The land must now be made to produce the high-priced crops, and there is no product to be found in all the world that cannot be produced in California on some of its farms. Twenty acres of good California land—and there is little that is not good—will give a man all the comforts of life. Under present conditions in California the small farmer enjoys the most attractive home life. He has his ground under the highest state of cultivation; he is in close connection with his neighbors by telephone; he has electric light and power for his house and farm buildings; he has rapid transit to nearby cities; he has his neighbors so close that it is better than if he were in a city; he has his schools, the best in the land, where his children may be educated according to the most modern methods. Above all, he has his three hundred and sixty-five days in the year when he and his family can enjoy "all out doors" and when his stock fare equally as well.

There is vast opportunity for development in California, and millions of acres of land equally as good as any now under cultivation are waiting for the coming of the man who will make his home on a small tract and reap his harvest; nor does the pioneer have long to wait for his harvest in California—in five years the desert changes to a modern farm, with full bearing orchards and a perfect home.

EVAPORATION LOSSES IN IRRIGATION.

The office of Experiment Stations, United States Department of Agriculture has just issued Bulletin 177, giving the results of experiments covering several years, performed in cooperation with the State of California, for the purpose of estimating the losses of water by evaporation from irrigated fields and determining the effect of different methods of applying water and of cultivating fields in checking these losses. This work was done in California under the supervision of Samuel Fortier, under the direction of Elwood Mead, Chief of Irrigation and Drainage Investigations.

In Southern California water has a very high value and the supply is limited, making it important to economize in every way possible. Thousands of dollars have been spent in lining ditches with cement and in putting in underground pipes for carrying water to the points where it is put upon the land, so that losses in transporting water, which in open earth channels often equal one-half the supply at the head of a ditch system, have been largely eliminated. It has been realized that there are still large losses occurring when the water is applied to the soil, but there has been little or no knowledge of the extent of these losses or the exact effect of different methods adopted for checking them. This work of Professor Fortier's is an attempt to measure both means of experiments with soils in water-jacketed tanks, each tank containing from 300 to 1300 pounds of soil. Water was applied to the soils, and the soils were cultivated in such manner as to resemble the different methods of treating soils in irrigated fields.

In two experiments with cultivation as soon as possible after the application of water, the losses from cultivated soils were but one-half and one-third, respectively, as great as those from similar soils receiving the same quantities of water, but not cultivated after irrigation. The savings were 5 and 2½ per cent of the quantities applied in the two experiments.

A second series of experiments included the application of water on the surfaces, not followed by cultivation, and the protection of the wet surfaces by placing upon them mulches of dry soil 4, 8 and 10 inches thick. In this case the losses in fourteen days following irrigation were: From unprotected soil, 23 per cent of the water applied; from soil protected by a 4-inch mulch, 6 per cent; from soil protected by an 8-inch mulch, 2½ per cent; and from soil protected by a 10-inch mulch, 1½ per cent of the water applied. After these fourteen days the losses from all were substantially uniform.

Another experiment included applying water to the soil at the surface and in furrows 3, 6, 9, and 12 inches deep, all soils being cultivated on the third day after irrigation began. The experiment covered ten days, and at the end of that time the losses were: From the surface-irrigated soil, 24 per cent of the water applied; from soil irrigated in furrows 3 inches deep, 21 per cent; in 6-inch furrows, 17 per cent; in 9-inch furrows, 15 per cent; and in 12-inch furrows, 12 per cent, the loss in that case being half that in the first.

These experiments related especially to the irrigation of orchards, where it is possible to apply the water at considerable depths and to cultivate the soil to depths of 10 or 12 inches without injury to the trees. Naturally these methods cannot be used in the irrigation of grain and hay, where the water must be applied at or near the surface, nor on crops whose root systems are near the surface, so that deep cultivation cannot be practiced. They show, however, that where water can be applied in deep furrows, and where irrigation can be followed by deep and thorough cultivation, half the water ordinarily lost by evaporation can be saved, and that this equals 10 to 20 per cent of the water applied, making possible an extension of, say, 15 per cent in the area irrigated with a given supply of water. In other words, if land has been receiving a depth of 2 feet of water under the old system, it need receive only 20 inches under the new system, or a stream which has irrigated 100 acres can be made to serve 115 acres.

The report gives a large amount of additional information on evaporation from soils and water surfaces under different conditions. The bulletin may be obtained of the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, at 10 cents a copy.

Supervisors Offer Protest

The supervisors of Orange county have offered resolutions protesting against the application of George E. Hart to the government for privilege to construct two wharves in Newport. The resolution read as follows.

Whereas, George E. Hart & Co. have made application to construct two wharves in Newport Bay, one at Corona Del Mar and the other at Balboa, and

Whereas, A similar application and petition has heretofore been presented to this Board of Supervisors by the same parties, and said application and petition has been, for good and sufficient reasons, denied and refused, and

Whereas, The present congress of the United States has made an appropriation for the preliminary survey of Newport Bay looking toward the making of a commercial harbor, and

Whereas, It is of importance to the government and to all of Southern California, and particularly to Orange county, that Newport Bay be kept free and clear of all obstructions, that might interfere with or obstruct the survey, development and ultimate use of said Newport Bay as a free commercial harbor; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Board of Supervisors of the County of Orange, State of California, for the reasons hereinbefore stated, objects to the granting of said application of the said George E. Hart & Co. to construct wharves in Newport Bay, and objects to the structure in said bay that might interfere with the survey and improvement of said bay by the government or that might interfere with its ultimate use as a free commercial harbor.

And this Board of Supervisors respectfully requests that it be notified in the future of any such application; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Amos Fries, captain of the corps of engineers, as objections in writing to the granting

OAK STREET TO BE EXTENDED

Wide Street Will Replace Projected Alley--Cement Ditch on Sycamore to be Piped.

In distinguished contrast to residents north of Center street, who recently protested against opening an alley extending midway through their block from Los Angeles to Lemon street, south-side property owners, so far from protesting against a similar alley through their block, on Thursday evening petitioned the city trustees that the 18-foot alley be changed into a 50-foot street. The trustees viewed the matter favorably, and will, when the petition shall bear signatures of a majority frontage, which has probably by this time been secured, proceed immediately to open and sidewalk the street.

The suggestion that the proposed alley be turned into a street was originally made by Emil Dreyfus of San Francisco, whose mother owns large property holdings in the block, and whose observations in the rebuilding of San Francisco led him to offer the suggestion here. Mr. Dreyfus said on a recent visit that wherever practicable alleys were being widened into streets in rebuilding San Francisco, and pointed out the advantages of a similar course here. Property owners adopted his suggestion and a petition bearing names of Jos. Helmsen, Spake & McCollum, L. Z. Kroeger and Henry Kroeger was submitted to the trustees asking for opening Oak street from Lemon to Los Angeles street. An error in the petition resulted in technically referring it back to petitioners; but the board went on record as favoring the proposition. The error consisted in asking for a street 40 feet wide, whereas Oak street is 50 feet wide. This oversight will be remedied and another petition presented to the trustees at their next meeting, when the work will be actively begun. Meantime the order for the alley stands, but it will be abrogated as soon as the amended petition shall be filed. It is proposed to transform the street into a business thoroughfare.

The board at the solicitation of Chas. E. Rothaermel decided to appropriate a sum not exceeding $250 as a third of the cost of piping the open cement water ditch on Sycamore street. The water company stands ready to begin piping immediately and some weeks ago offered to pipe if the city would stand a third of the cost, and Mrs. Rothaermel a third. The latter readily assented, and the board, on motion of Fiscus, seconded by Kroeger, ordered that the required sum of money be set apart for the work. The cost of the work will be approximately $900, the water company bearing an excess burden of the expense by reason of its franchise requiring it to pipe under newly opened streets. There are three such, which reduces the cost to the other parties.

Mr. Rothaermel also asked for favorable consideration of a projected widening of Sycamore street, from Olive to Lemon. He offered to deed the city a strip on the north side of that thoroughfare for such purpose. The street at present, he said, was narrow, and if sidewalks were laid, which his mother proposed doing in the near future, there would remain only 20 feet between the curbing. He had consulted with other property-owners along the street, and had been given assurances of co-operation. His mother and Mr. Zeyn own all the frontage on the north side of the street, in the zone proposed to be widened, and both agree to deed the required ground for widening. On the south Mr. Strothoff agrees to widening, and he had no doubt the Weissel estate would also agree to take out the jog in the thoroughfare at the corner of Sycamore and Los Angeles street. Mr. Zeyn, he said, was about to divide his south ten acres into city lots, sidewalk the tract and place it upon the market. The street when widened will be 50 feet.

He was assured by the board that his proposal was in line with its ideas upon the subject, and that if a petition were submitted bearing signatures of a majority frontage the work would be immediately undertaken.

This happy solution of the Sycamore-street situation is most gratifying. The open cement ditch, being above grade and in the street, has long since been an obstruction, and has been the cause of much discussion leading up to its removal. Its piping and the construction of sidewalks upon a widened street will transform it into a splendid residence street. Mrs. Rothaermel is spending $7000 in opening her tract and placing it upon the market. Fifteen hundred dollars of this amount will be for new sidewalks on Sycamore street, which will be undertaken immediately. A number of new residences are being erected in the tract.

F. C. Spencer, Miss Kate Rea and Charles Federman of the library board appeared and asked information concerning their legal standing in the matter of selecting a site for the new Carnegie library building, as well as deciding upon the architecture of the building. Mr. Spencer, acting as spokesman for the library board, said the thirst for knowledge on the part of himself and associates was probably premature, but in view of the many questions with which they were being assailed, they had concluded to address the trustees upon the subject. They wished to learn what their duties were as to selecting a site, the character of the building and so on.

Mr. Fiscus engaged to take a fall out of the subject. There would probably be, he said, several sites offered the city free, and thereupon a committee would probably be appointed, consisting of members of the trustees, library board, and citizens, to select the site and determine upon the character of the building. He had heard that several sites would be offered, but if he were asked to express his personal preference, he would have the lot at the corner of Broadway and Los Angeles street. This lot adjoins Mr. Fiscus' property, and is in other respects altogether available as a library site.

Clerk Merritt read the law relating to public libraries, and Trustee Rust assured the library board that when the proper time arrives they would be invited to take a hand in selecting a site and determining the style of edifice to be erected.

The clerk later read a letter from Mr. Carnegie's private secretary in answer to the board's recent communication. Mr. Carnegie said that when the city had procured a site, he would arrange for placing money at their disposal for paying for the library as work upon the structure progressed.

The ordinance committee reported ordinances No. 192 and 193, referring to widening Broadway and the alley to be later widened into a continuation of Oak street, both of which passed. The committee also adopted Resolution No. 50, providing for constructing cement sidewalks and curbs on Chestnut street from Lemon to Palm, Claudina from Broadway to Santa Ana, and Oak from Lemon to Palm. These public notices will be found in another column.

N. F. Steadman, appearing for Sanitos Carrisosa, placed before the board a suggestion from that young gentleman, to the effect that he would pay $50 for a license to pull off a prize fight in this city. It would rather be, he said, a boxing contest, as Sanitos had informed him on the side there would be no knockout.

Rust (looking up in surprise)—We have an ordinance prohibiting these disgraceful exhibitions, have we not? Steadman—Yes, sir.

Rust—We had better adhere to its provisions in the present instance.

Darling—I don't think the board can countenance such a proposition.

Rust—We'll cut it out.

It was even so ordered, on motion of Darling, seconded by Fiscus.

The following building permits were issued:

J. Resh, to remodel building on Resh street; $700.

W. A. Wallace, residence on Kroeger street; $2500.

Theo. Rimpau, to repair and rebuild his residence on Palm, recently partially burned; $2000.

Chas. E. Rothaermel, residence on Alberta street; $2500.

Quarterly inspection report by J. J. Malone of boilers at power-house showed them to be in good condition; safety-valves worked freely, gauge cocks clear, blowoff valves tight. It was ordered on the records.

Herman Stern, representing the fire company, appeared and requested purchase of sundry articles for the department, including a Siamese coupler, shut-off nozzles and wrenches, all of which were ordered. He said the membership of the company had been increased from 12 to 20, with no extra expense to the city. The department will receive $12 per month from the city. This sum, he said, would be turned into the department treasury and used for the purchase of uniforms and other things necessary. While at fires each member is to receive $2. He was instructed to make demand against the city for the amount already owing the department, as well as for compensation for attending the two recent fires.

The street superintendent reported grading several streets, wiring houses for lights and making water connections for new residences.

State Division Sentiment

Assemblyman Estudillo of Riverside sounded the state division note at the banquet given in honor of Governor Gillett at Sacramento the other evening. He was down on the program for response to the toast "South of the Tehachapi," and in his eulogies upon the glories of the southland took occasion to remind the Sacramento people that in state division was to be found the antidote for capital removal. His suggestion was generously applauded.

"I merely wanted to test the sentiment of the people here," said Estudillo in explanation of his table remarks. "State division is inevitable, and I look for the addition of a new star to the national flag much sooner than many people suspect. There is every reason for and no good argument against state division. Socially, economically and, I may add, politically Southern California stands apart from Northern California. The best interests of each section demands separation."

It Pays to Advertise

Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow; it strayed away one day where lambs should never go And Mary sat her quickly down and tears streamed from her eyes; she never found the lamb because she did not advertise. And Mary had a brother John who kept a village store; he sat down and smoked a pipe and watched the open door. And as the people passed along and did not stop to buy, John still sat and smoked his pipe and blinked his sleepy eye. And so the sheriff closed him out, but still he lingered near, and Mary came to drop with him a sympathetic tear. "How is it, sister, can you tell, why other merchants here sell their goods so readily and thrive from year to year?" Remembering her own bad luck, the little maid replied: "Those other fellows get there, John, because they advertise."

Interesting Game

Tufts-Lyon dropped into second place as a result of losing to Hamburgers at Athletic park on Sunday. The game was a scrappy one from the start, and great enthusiasm prevailed. The leaders started off like winners, scoring one in the first. Marshal held his opponents down to a few scattered hits until the sixth inning, when he went up like a toy balloon. Three safe hits, aided by a number of errors, netted Hamburgers four runs.

Tufts-Lyon tried hard to even up the score in their turn at bat, but succeeded in getting only a single man around.

Marshal retired in the seventh in favor of Ford.

Hartman held down the opposing batsmen to scattered bingles, and received good support from his team, although the game was marked throughout by a sprinkling of errors.

At Pasadena the Oil Wells lost to the nine at that place by the close score of 1 to 0. The game was an even break up to the ninth inning. In that inning Hart knocked a two-bagger, and was advanced to third on a passed ball. Meats let another one pass him and Hart scored the winning run.

The Oil Wells made seven hits, to four for Pasadena. Johnson pitched a fine game. The Oil Wells ran bases poorly. They should have had the game. Pasadena had a professional pitcher named Gilroy, but the Wellers had no difficulty in landing on him.

The Oil Wells will play the Hoegoes at Athletic park on Sunday afternoon.

An important decision was handed down by Judge Bledsoe in the San Bernardino superior court on Tuesday in the case of the Barton Land and Water company and others, against the Crafston Land and Water company, permanently enjoining the defendant from operating pumping plants in Mill Creek canyon. During the dry spell of a few years ago the Carlton fruit growers sank two wells in Mill Creek, and installed pumping plants, diverting 142 inches of water. The Barton people brought injunction proceedings, claiming that the underground flow sustained the surface water. This claim is upheld by Judge Bledsoe, who waives aside the contention of the defendant that as all of the water pumped from the wells is eventually allowed to flow back into the creek, the plaintiffs cannot be damaged. The opinion of the court is that as the defendant claims ownership of the water even after returning it to the creek, the plaintiffs are damaged.

A venire of thirty-one term trial jurors has been issued by Superior Judge West, as follows: William Hazard, F. R. Hazard, L. J. Carden, W. A. Patterson, A. F. Swift, M. F. Doig, Ed Belsly, S. G. Revival Meetings

Revival meetings will be held in the Methodist church beginning next Sunday morning. Rev. J. W. Morris and his singer C. H. Fowler will conduct the services. The local papers of San Bernardino speak in highest terms of

At 3.30 next Sunday afternoon Rev. Geo. A. Miller, a pastor and missionary from Manila, P. I., will give an interesting lecture on "Religion in the Philippines." He is a writer and speaker of note and worthy of a large audience. The lecture is free to all. We believe you will be pleased to learn the facts from one who has witnessed and studied them.

Series of Railway Wrecks

The Santa Fe passenger train passing here for Orange and San Bernardino on Friday was wrecked near Colton at 2 o'clock by running into a Salt Lake freight train standing on a siding. An open switch was the cause of the accident. One man, a Jap, was killed, and thirty-five people injured. The fireman had his arm so badly crushed it had to be amputated.

The engine of the passenger train was completely wrecked, the baggage car and smoker telescoped and literally torn to splinters, the wreckage of both being piled more than 25 feet high and in half the length of either car. The day coach and observation car were badly damaged, but not so badly as the forward cars, because of their steel frames.

The wreck was the climax of the most disastrous series of wrecks the Santa Fe has experienced in years. The road has experienced a number of bad wrecks in recent years. The list of the past two weeks is as follows:

Friday, February 22. Santa Fe freight of 16 cars derailed at Hepleria. Saturday, a dozen freight cars were derailed near Fullerton.

Sunday, passenger train partially derailed at Pachappa.

Monday, Santa Fe freight piled up at Esperanza and one Pullman of Salt Lake overland derailed on Cajon grade.

Tuesday, freight train piled up at Oceanside.

Thursday, San Jacinto passenger train partially derailed at Colton; Salt Lake freight wrecked on the Cajon grade.

Friday, fatal collision near Colton, one dead, 35 injured.

on county division is adopted, you can not prevent these people from going into a more progressive county."

The San Francisco Chronicle, referring to Stanton's bill, contains the following:

The present senate is sadly lacking in dignity and decorum. Saturday afternoon there was a characteristic scene between Carter and three or four other senators who dared to object to having the Los Angeles boundary bill put on the special-order file, to the detriment of business of greater public import.

Senator Wright of San Diego suggested to Carter that there were greater things in heaven and earth than the proposal of Los Angeles to annex a slice of Orange.

"It seems to me that you are butting in here a good deal," cried Carter, angrily.

Senator Belshaw and others butted in, too, and in the end it was determined to let the southern counties have Tuesday for a field day, if they would promise to scrap among themselves and clear the way for something of general importance to the state.

W. A. Ross is trying to locate Snowden Plummer who left Cincinnati 20 years ago and settled in San Diego or Orange county. For many years after coming to California Plummer corresponded with eastern friends, but for some time they have been unable to hear from him.

Mr. Utt on the Chile Situation

EDITOR GAZETTE.—I notice in your issue of Feb. 28, that the chile growers propose to form an association avowedly for the purpose of helping the chile business. With chile selling at less than the cost of production, it certainly looks as if the growers need some succor. I see by reading a report of the recent meeting of growers, and your editorial commenting on the situation, that the remedies proposed are two. First to improve the "pack;" second, to restrict the acreage. Both very desirable ends to be sought. That the association might possibly improve the pack, is true, but it is absolutely impossible to restrict the acreage devoted to chile, by any other means save unprofitableness or lack of soil on which to grow them; that there is abundant soil in Southern California to produce fifty times the present output (already 30 per cent greater than the market will take) is apparent to any agriculturist who knows his Southern California thoroughly. This being the case restriction can only come about by the failure of the crop to prove profitable. Four years since the chile market went to pieces, just as it has this year, and those who had not succeeded in disposing of their stock early, lost money. As a result of this depression the following year chile was dull sale at 8 cents per pound, a price just above the cost of production, but the two years following prices regained a profitable figure and the seasons closed with a rising market. This so stimulated planting that this year we have a surplus, the Los Angeles jobbers are over-supplied and this "hold-over" chile will meet this fall's new pack, with the inevitable result of depressing the price of the new crop, even though the new crop is only sufficient to supply a normal demand; for you may depend upon it that the produce men who handle chile, and have stock that cost them ten cents per pound, while the market is only seven, and dull at that, will remember the circumstance to our disadvantage. The remedy for the present situation is to plant sweet potatoes, beans and other crops, till the chile market recovers. If the association could by some magic immediately raise the present price of chile from seven to fifteen cents per pound the sure result would be a large increase in acreage and a consequent worse slump in prices next season than this, unless they could continue their magical powers.

The pine box association is able arbitrarily to fix and maintain prices because it controls production. The Standard oil association succeeds through monopoly, but if there is any trust making a success in open and unrestricted competition, I will allow that a potato, a corn, a chile, or a hen association will be of great benefit to the producers of those commodities. Very respectfully, C. E. UTT.

The development and reconstruction work that is going on in San Francisco has resulted in a most appreciable shortage of labor all over California, and from all parts of the state there is an urgent call for men and women and for teams. It is estimated that 17,000 teams are at work in San Francisco, and to supply this extraordinary demand all the towns and cities, and even the farms themselves throughout California have been depleted to such an extent that the shortage is a serious one. The immediate demand in California will require several thousand teams with drivers to supply it at present, and as the season opens for spring and summer this demand will be greatly increased. From $3.50 to $4.50 is the average wage paid in the interior of the state for teams with drivers, and the demand seems most insistent just at present. A labor shortage is also noted in all agricultural districts.

Slap at Pardee

In voting to disallow the claim of Frank Higgins, a Canadian lawyer for services in connection with the extradition of George D. Collins, an alleged bigamist, the senate gave former Gov. Pardee a political slap and through its action may involve the United States in an unpleasant international complication.

The Higgins claim, which now is for $9500, originally was $12,500. The debt was contracted by the last state administration without proper authority. Some say the state board of examiners shaved off $3000 and the bill went to the legislature. It was fought violently in the assembly and finally got through. Now the senate has turned it down and it will be for the state department of the federal government to give the Canadian authorities the satisfaction they demand.

Payment has already been delayed so long that Higgins some time ago placed the case in the hands of his home government which communicated with the authorities at Washington and was assured that the State of California would be urged to make prompt settlement. By the action of the senate it appears that the federal government will have to adopt some other means to secure the payment of the claim.

It was not until nearly every senator on the floor had voted in favor of the bill that the political phase of the situation appealed to the legislators. Then there was a stampede of the organization members to change their votes from "aye" to "no," thus defeating the measure.

Land Sinks Out of Sight

With a roar which could be heard for miles, one hundred acres of pasture land on the ranches of Richard Steen and Capt. Lewis, three miles from the mouth of the Grand Ronde river, Idaho, sank 150 feet below the level of the ground during the night of March 1st.

Ranchmen for miles around were awakened and set out to discover the cause. They found an oblong hole, 500 feet wide and half a mile in length, with smooth rock walls.

All day the ground continued to sink slowly as if a subterranean cavern was swallowing the grass-covered acres. The surface of the detached surface resembles a summer-fallow field. It is believed that the earth sunk, en masse, almost instantly, as the noise continued but a moment and as millions of tons of earth shot downward. There happened to be no live stock on the tract at the time and there was no loss of life.

It is the theory among the residents of that section that there is an immense underground cave, and that the unusual amount of moisture of the past few weeks is responsible for the disturbance. The country is of a peculiar geological formation. Immense amounts of lime have been discovered in the vicinity of the slip and the fallen ground lies between a strata of limestone and basalt.

A powerful and interesting play, dealing with life in our great west in the early eighties, entitled "At Cripple Creek," will be produced at the Anaheim opera house, Friday, March 8. The play is by the well known dramatist, Hal Reid, and is written in his happiest vein. The story is one of absorbing interest, filled with scenes of the most poetic beauty and relieved by comedy of the brightest description. "At Cripple Creek" will be interpreted by the strongest company of players ever engaged for a sensational drama. Seats on sale at McCollum's.

Theo. Rimpau has commenced the reconstruction of his home which was badly damaged by fire recently.

Ruef a Fugitive

San Francisco, March 5.—Indicted Boss Abe Ruef is a fugitive from justice.

An attachment has been issued for his arrest by Superior Judge Dunne and his bail in $50,000 has been declared forfeited.

This is the result of failure of Ruef to appear today when his case was called for trial for extortion from French restaurant keepers.

Judge Dunne acted on the theory that there had been no regular legal proceedings before Judge Hebbard yesterday. Three times Ruef's name was called and, when no reply was made, a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Twice the court took recess to permit the sheriff to find the fugitive. Then when the sheriff reported he couldn't locate Ruef, Judge Dunne ordered an adjournment until tomorrow with the understanding that if the sheriff is unable to bring Ruef into court assistance will be sought from the county.

Heeny wished the judge to appoint Detective Burns an elisor and guaranteed he would produce Ruef in half an hour. The judge refused. It is not believed Ruef has fled or is even in hiding, but the fact is that the boss simply gave orders to the sheriff to overlook him until he shall have found some new process to evade the law and a judge who will act in his interest.

Ruef may again seek writ of habeas corpus or he may attempt to secure a writ of prohibition to prevent Judge Dunne from proceeding with the trial.

The Mountain View Water company of Los Angeles has filed suit in the superior court of that county against the Consolidated Water company of Pomona for $15,000 damages for diverting and converting to its own use 2000 inches of water, to which the plaintiff lays claim. The Mountain View company alleges that it is the exclusive owner of certain lands near San Antonio canyon, through which San Antonio creek flows. It is alleged further by the Mountain View Water company that its rival, the Consolidated Water company of Pomona has constructed dams across the creek in question, diverting its course, thus ruining the property, which is constantly deteriorating on account of aridity. It is also claimed that the defendant company in the action constructed tunnels and reservoirs to appropriate this water for commercial purposes.
