CELEBRATION CALLED OFF

The semi-centennial celebration meeting scheduled to take place at the city hall on Tuesday evening failed to take place. No money has as yet been collected on the subscription lists recently circulated. Citizens who have taken an active part in the endeavor to arrange for the celebration have decided to call the celebration off.

May Bring Suit

The Anaheim Union Water company and the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company have not yet filed suit in the superior court of San Bernardino county to enjoin Riverside irrigators from diverting water from the Santa Ana river, but grounds for the filing of such suit exist. Two suits were filed a year ago by Antonio Aros and Theodore and Ira Ashcroft to enjoin the companies from interfering with their rights to water from the Durkee ditch. These cases were to have come up on Tuesday last, but were postponed and will now probably not come up until after the summer vacation. The companies do not deny the rights of Aros to the use of the water, but the extent to which he may use it is in dispute. He claims the right to carry the water across Chino creek for use on twenty-five acres on the west side. Ashcroft claims to have the right to use water for irrigating a 100-acre tract, while the companies maintain that he is entitled to use it only for the irrigation of twenty-seven acres. Suits to enjoin these parties from using waters from the Durkee ranch were brought by the two companies about two years ago. Judge Noyes found for the defendants. An appeal was taken and is now pending in the supreme court. While there is more water in the San Bernardino basin than ever before, the two water companies are now getting less water than they have been for years. The companies have had two men in the field for two years making observations and measuring the flow of the river. These men discovered that much of the flow that should come down this far is being diverted by Riverside irrigators. Others are diverting water to non-riparian lands. Pumping plants are also infringing on the rights of the companies. It would be no surprise if the two water companies bring suit to protect their rights and interests in the waters of the Santa Ana river.

Church Notes

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at St. Michael's church, corner of Emily and Adele streets, on Sunday next, July 21st, at 11 a. m., the Rev. W. S. Dyer of the Pro-Cathedral, Los Angeles, celebrant. Sunday school and bible class regularly at 10 a. m. every Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Dearing and W. H. Raymond are spending two weeks at Long Beach. They are enjoying the varied program presented by the Chautauqua assembly.

Take your prescriptions to O. A. Mullinix.

New Gun Club

At a meeting of local nimrods held at the armory Saturday evening a gun club to be known as the Ollinda Game Reserve was organized. Herman Stern, promoter of the enterprise, was elected temporary chairman and N. B. Tedford secretary. On motion of N. F. Steadman the gentlemen were elected permanent officers of the club. The reserve includes 4000 acres of hunting grounds on the Ollinda ranch, a lease of the same for one year having been secured from Mr. Stern. The tract contains fine dove flights and quail are also to be had in plenty. Rules governing the club were adopted and the new organization starts off auspiciously. A keeper for the reserve is to be appointed later. Next Sunday a big barbecue will be given at the Ollinda ranchhouse. "Bill" Fleischmann has the affair in charge and further comment on that score is unnecessary.

The club is limited to twenty-five and the members are as follows: Herman Stern, N. B. Tedford, Frank Fox, J. J. Schneider, N. F. Steadman, Walter Wuesthoff, George Miles, P. Nicolas sr., P. Nicolas jr., T. J. Carroll jr., Louis Kroeger, Nick Hugo, H. Backs, N. W. Hall, Wm. Newberry, Herman Bennesscheldt, F. W. Fleischmann, O. H. Schumacher, Wm. Loftus, James Welch, Russell Annin, W. Bonkosky, A. Walter, R. E. Longstreet, R. Fuller.

Bonds Failed to Carry

At the special election held at Santa Ana Friday the proposed $75,000 bond issue failed to carry. Over-confidence caused the defeat of the three bond issue propositions. The board of education was confident that the school bonds would carry and made no campaign. The defeat of the bonds it is said was due to the efforts of several men who failed of election to office last April. Many votes were cast against the school bonds on the ground that the board proposed buying too much land for the new grammar school, while others thought the price too high. The $37,500 worth of school bonds were defeated by a vote of 371 to 251. The proposed $12,500 issue to enlarge the high school grounds was defeated by 345 to 268. The proposed $25,000 issue for street work was defeated by a vote of 336 to 278.

Port Orange is making rapid strides. The boulevards and streets already are graded. The ditching for the water system is well under way and sidewalks will be begun this week. Some of the sidewalks are to be ten feet wide. From Summit drive can be seen San Clemente islands, seventy-five miles out, while at the same time a view of the mountains for many miles may be obtained. This drive also fringes the cliffs surrounding Newport bay and maintains an elevation of 100 feet above the water.

LOCAL EVENTS

A Japanese employed on the Royer ranch had a bad quarter of an hour on Monday, and will perhaps remember the experience for a long time. The alien had the temerity to say that one Jap could chastise five Americans, and furthermore that Japan would own this coast within two years. Whereupon the Jap was picked up by the nape of the neck and the seat of his trousers and thrown out bodily, and to accelerate his speed down the road an occasional application of the toe of a No. 10 served the purpose admirably. When last seen the Jap was hiking for fair, and is probably going yet.

Mr. Clabaugh of the school board has received diplomas for the applicants named below. Out of eighteen applicants only two failed. The diplomas may be had by applying to Mr. Clabaugh. Kathryn Hayden, Wayne Wells, Lizzie Hennig, Herbert Hansen, Olga Lange, Irene Mills, Sybil Tipton, Wayne Gobie, Elsa Asher, Horace Howard, Lucile Fox, Grace Bush, Harry Bowen, Harry Horwitz, Rachel Knapp, Lela Steadman.

That the recent hot spell hurt the sugar beets is the statement elicited from persons whose interest it is to keep track of the prospects. It is estimated that the Los Alamitos crop alone will be 1000 tons short of what it was last year, and it is said the Chino region suffers similarly. The sugar men say the crop and the output this year will be somewhat smaller than last, but the mills may run as long as three months. The whole beet crop was somewhat retarded by the excessive dampness at the seeding time, but still the growers are going to do well.

Joseph Fiscus reports the walnut crop on his place larger than for many years past. The nuts for a while had a tendency to drop, but a liberal use of irrigation water stopped their falling. The same is true of other orchards in this section.

Mrs. Knowlton of Katella, aged 87 years, who recently contracted a severe case of whooping cough is lying very low at her home and fears are entertained for her recovery. Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Knowlton of Redondo, is attending her.

Vineyardists say the grape crop is most promising. Unless an unprecedented hot spell should intervene the vines will yield a tremendous crop. Wine men say business is exceedingly good, with brandy up ten points since Saturday.

Charles Bowlen was taken to Los Angeles yesterday to undergo treatment of his ankle by a prominent physician of that city.

Mr. Vaughan, representing a well known commercial house of Los Angeles, is in town.

C. I. Hoople has removed from Ocean Park to Oak Harbor, Ohio.

The members of the Michigan Society of Southern California are planning to have the time of their lives at the summer picnic to be held in Long Beach on July 26. This society has been organized but a short time but already has more than 1200 members from all this section of the state. Like the Iowa association, they hold an annual picnic in East Lake Park, Los Angeles, every winter and they also aim to get together at least once during the summer. At the last annual picnic it was decided to visit Long Beach for the next summer gathering and the time, as has been stated, was fixed for Friday, July 26. The officers have been at work on the arrangements for this entertainment for some time and now have every assurance that it will be a complete success. It is hoped that the Michigan people from all Southern California will make a point of attending this picnic and identifying themselves with their organization. The Long Beach members are busily engaged upon their portion of the entertainment and hope to be able to give their visitors a day that they will remember with pleasure.

City Trustees

The board of city trustees met in regular session on Thursday evening; present Trustees Rust, Darling, Fiscus. Absent, Kroeger and Stock.

The marshal reported the following collections for July: Water $443 60, license $550, light $576 70; total $1570 30. Delinquents collected: Water $39 95, light $93 95; total $133 90. Delinquents reported: Water $59 20, license $8 50, light $51 05; total $118 75.

The reports of treasurer and clerk were received and filed, the former showing a balance in the treasury of $26,675 86.

The recorder's report showed a total of five cases in court and fines collected amounted to $25.

Superintendent of streets reported laying 450 feet of galvanized pipe on South Olive street, water connections made to new residences and the telephone guyrope removed from in front of A. Nagel's store.

Engineer of powerhouse reported poleline construction on Olive and Pearl streets, wiring of houses, etc.

Ordinance No. 198, regulating the speed of motor vehicles was passed to print. The limit is placed at a mile in six minutes. Ordinance No. 199, providing for the extension of Oak street through lots 33 40, from the west line of Los Angeles street to the east line of Lemon street, was introduced. M. Nebelung, J. J. Schneider and Fred Backs are named as commissioners; salary, $2 50 per day each.

G. W. Van Syckle of Los Angeles, purchaser of the Meese tract, vineyard lots H-G, submitted a resubdivision of same, asking its acceptance. Upon recommendation of engineer street lines were changed, with approval of owner, and a new blue print of tract is to be presented at next meeting, when it will no doubt be accepted.

Petition of christian adventists to erect tent on corner of Center and Philadelphia streets for purposes of religious worship. Granted.

Frank Shanley and others appeared before the board and entered vigorous protest to the laundry permitting the discharge waters of same to flow upon the public highway, thereby being, protestants claimed, a dire menace to health. Marshal Steadman, upon question, characterized the same as a nuisance. It was ordered that the marshal be instructed to notify the laundry management to remedy the same within fifteen days, with a further motion that, failure to comply with the order, the city attorney prosecute under the provisions of the health ordinance.

Emil Heintz was granted permission to erect structure on Emily street.

J. S. Howard, representing a committee of citizens, appeared before the board and presented for acceptance a deed and certificate of title to original city lot 45, the same being donated as a site for the Carnegie library. The board passed a resolution accepting the deed. Judge Howard, at the request of the donors, besides many other prominent citizens, further addressed the council advocating the advisability of asking Mr. Carnegie for the sum of $15,000, instead of $10,000 already donated. The site at the corner of Los Angeles street and Broadway is a beautiful one, and together with the parkings contemplated, the place can be transformed into a veritable paradise. In view of this the speaker contended a donation of only ten thousand would be inadequate for the erection of a building in keeping with the prospective environments. Besides the town is growing fast. For these reasons primarily the Judge was of opinion we could safely ask for $15,000. The annual tax to be borne by the city would be $1500.

The clerk was instructed to write Mr. Carnegie of the acceptance of the deed by the city. In reference to the increased donation the trustees viewed the proposition with favor. In the absence of other members of the board the matter was laid over until the next meeting, when a full board will doubtless be present. In the meantime the trustees will feel the pulse of people with reference to asking for the larger amount.

The engineer submitted a profile of West Center street, from Citron to Adams, making the same of uniform width. To do this the city will have to vacate certain strips on the street and acquire others. The engineer was instructed to proceed with surveys for the street betterment, and Charles Boege, one of the best known citizens of the West End, will co-operate with the engineer in securing deeds for rights of way from abutting property owners for the acquisition of the land needed to straighten out the thoroughfare. Otherwise a district will be formed, covering the sections to be improved, and assessments levied in such cases made and provided.

A break in the sidewalk on South Lemon street was referred to the marshal.

Bills to the amount of $9322 12 were audited and ordered paid. The bulk of this amount is for supplies for the new powerhouse, the remainder for salaries and interest. Adjourned.

Only Jade Mine

The only jade mine in the United States is in the Klamath national forest, Siskiyou county, Cal., where it was found last year by an old prospector. Samples of the jade were sent to Germany to be tested, with the result that they were pronounced to be of standard grade and capable of taking a high polish.

Preparations are now being made to develop the mine and ship the rock to Germany to be worked into ornaments. As a first step a permit for building a road to the mine has been secured from the Forest Service, which is especially charged with furthering in all possible ways the development of mines and all other national forest resources.

The people of Siskiyou county, particularly along the Klamath river, are very proud of this discovery and are looking forward with hopes of large returns from this new resource. A railroad will probably be built down the Klamath river, passing within a few miles of this mine.

A jade mine is located under the mineral laws and therefore may be located and operated within a national forest.

Interest in Forest Protection

The people of California think of no backward step in their forest policy and its workings.

The state convention which recently met at Petaluma to consider forestry and irrigation was attended by delegates from every county in California. The discussions showed that the people are alert to every phase of the question involved, and resolutions were passed in which the State's forest policy was approved, measures were recommended for enforcing better logging regulations to secure second crops of timber, and a plan was indorsed for aiding private land owners who wish to plant trees.

It was further recommended that the State laws be so changed that the expense of providing against and extinguishing forest fires may be borne half by the state and half by the county in which the fire occurs.

Forests and irrigation are perhaps more closely related in California than in any other part of the United States. Without water for irrigation the state's agricultural resources would be small. Water is supplied largely from melting snow in the mountains during spring and summer and the wooded areas protect the snow, allowing it to melt slowly and reach the streams gradually. Any threatened diminution in the water supply is necessarily viewed with alarm by owners of orchards, vineyards, gardens, hay ranches, and pastures, and by all who depend so largely upon these industries.

California has an excellent state forest service, but the people are awake to the necessity of further improvement. They likewise appreciate the fire protection afforded by the forest officers of the government on the national forests, and the grazing regulations which prevent pasturing the forest ranges to death. Remarkable improvements have resulted in forest conditions in the past ten years under protection of the government and the state. No one there is now heard to voice a desire to go back to the old way.

NOTES.

Albert Lubken has been appointed a forest guard on the Sierra forest, South California, the appointment taking effect July 3.

R. D. Scott and W. H. Pollster have been appointed forest guards on the Sierra national forest, South California.

L. L. Smith of Willow ranch, California, was appointed on July 5th a forest guard on the Warner mountains national forest.

There is hardly a person in the United States at the present time whose business, vocation or employment does not depend in some degree upon its forests. Yet very few of them have considered seriously the relation of the forests to their individual welfare, nor do they realize the many methods, direct and indirect, by which the forests play an important part in the commercial prosperity of the nation. Paper manufacturers consume enough of our forest products each year to build a large city in its entirety; turpentine manufacturers are slowly but surely exterminating the long leaf pine in the south; telegraph and telephone poles destroy thousands of young trees annually; railroads devastate more than two hundred thousand acres of timber land to secure each year's supply of ties; the boxmaker, the cooper, the furniture, piano and vehicle manufacturer utilize millions of feet of forest products every twelve months; and all those manufacturers who do not directly utilize forest products in their business depend upon them for the many thousands of crates and boxes in which their manufactures are distributed throughout the world.

Official Report on White Fly

The recent discovery of the white fly pest at Marysville, California, the issuance of circular No. 30 by Prof. C. W. Woodworth of the department of agriculture, University of California, as well as the liberal notices from the press of the state concerning the matter, have excited an intense interest in the growers and shippers of citrus fruits in this state, and an expressed determination on their part to have the pest eradicated at the earliest possible moment.

With a view of determining the true condition of affairs as to local sentiment in and around Marysville and to see if the power of the state was to be fully exercised to enforce the well-stated effort in that direction, a committee of the Citrus Protective League consisting of W. E. Sprott of Porterville, and myself, accompanied by D. G. Overall, president of the Tulare County Citrus Fruit exchange, visited Marysville and vicinity during the last few days of June, and beg leave to report what appears to be the present condition of the matter.

It appears that the "white fly" was discovered at Marysville and the discovery verified during the last days of May of the present year.

On June 12th the Hon. Elwood Cooper, the state commissioner of horticulture, issued his official notice and warning, directing the cutting back of all citrus trees in the infected district and the destruction of all shrubbery and other food plants recognized, requiring the completion of such destruction by July 8, 1907.

The notice and warning was received by the county board of horticultural commissioners of Yuba county on June 14th, and at the time of our visit copies of the notice had been served upon all the owners of property, largely because of the fact that the trees in Marysville are ornamental only—no oranges being grown for commercial use—and naturally they do not recognize as quickly as those who grow citrus fruits for profit the great danger of allowing this dreaded pest to spread in the state. That these people have proven loyal to California is evidenced by the fact that at the present time nearly all objections to obeying the orders of the state commissioner of horticulture has passed away. Advice received since the return of the committee indicate that no legal resistance will be met.

The citrus fruit growers adjacent to the infested district are wide awake to the threatening danger and promise their influence for the enforcement of the law.

Conference with Governor Gillett show him in full sympathy with the citrus fruit interests and leaves no doubt in the opinion of the committee that the law is to be enforced to the letter, and that some experienced entomologist will be stationed at Marysville to make sure that the contemplated destruction of the white fly will be successfully carried out.

The question as to whether there are available funds subject to the order of the state authorities to carry out the subsequent inspection of the infested district, is as yet not determined.

In brief the situation may be summed up as follows: The white fly has been discovered at Marysville, California, a city of 4000 or 5000 population; county seat of Yuba county.

There are from 2500 to 3500 citrus trees within the city, mostly seedling oranges. A majority of the citrus trees are known to be infested at the present time. The trees were planted and are maintained for ornamental purposes only.

Orders have been issued and notices served requiring all citrus trees in Marysville to be cut back, tree trunks whitewashed and tops and shrubbery to be burned. The state authorities are determined that such orders shall be literally obeyed and a constant espionage kept in the infected district for some time to come.

You will be further advised of matters in this connection, if occasion requires.

Citrus Protective League,
A. G. KENDALL, secy and mgr.

THE LIFE AT POINT LOMA

Notes by Katherine Tingley,
Leader of Universal Brotherhood and Theosophy.

At the Raja Yoga school children are treated in accordance with the facts of life and the needs of life. The love which is given them is that truest affection which thinks ever of their welfare without regard to the selfish pleasures which they can render in return. The affection which shows itself in the administration of injurious dainties, by unwholesome fondling, by injudicious petting, is not love at all, but selfishness. To truly love a child is to help it to develop its highest faculties, which grow by, and through, a willing service to others, to teach it to help itself and so grow strong to help its fellows.

The child which is big enough to raise its hands to strike can equally well use that hand in its own legitimate service instead of demanding from those around it an aid which it could well render to itself. Thus, at the Raja Yoga school, we see children of the tenderest age who have grown to be helpful and self-reliant, and it would be easy to find groups of a dozen babies who make far less demand upon those who are in charge of them, and who are consequently happier, than many a single child whose parents have given it a "love" which will not be helpful to it through life.

The children at the Raja Yoga school are not only shown the beauty of self-help, but they are also shown the uselessness and folly of anger and pride and jealousy. They are afforded glimpses of their own natures and are thus taught to discriminate between the higher and the lower, between the real and the unreal. Every essential moral lesson which can be taught to adults can be taught also to children; and surely it is better that the little ones should learn, in the love and sanity of the home, the lessons which the world has a rougher method of imparting at an age when mental habits have become confirmed.

The Raja Yoga education is but a permission to the child to grow without the chains of self-love which will ever remain outside of its nature if the foundations of education be laid aright. Are there not very many parents who will even admire in their children those very faults which may, as adults, bring them within reach of the law, encouraging in them the self-will and the vanity which must surely mar their lives? The world has not yet realized how much of truth children already know, and how much of that truth we destroy by our mistakes. There are but few children who do not know well that all nature is a great teacher, until we by our materialism, and often by our ridicule, drive the knowledge from their minds.

The Theosophic education is not so much a something which is imparted. It is a liberation from the powers of the lower forces which hinder and check a growth which ought to be unchecked and spontaneous.

The usual studies of school life are not neglected, but they are made to blend harmoniously with the entire system of education. Teachers of proved and recognized ability are provided, and the ordinary school curriculum receives an attention which leaves nothing to be desired.

Finally the children are taught to regard themselves as integral and responsible parts of the nation to which they belong. They are taught to aspire to the position of national benefactors, teachers and helpers, and so to become exponents of the truest and the wisest patriotism.

Music is usually regarded as an amusement, a relaxation, and nothing more. At Point Loma it becomes a part of life itself, and one of those subtle forces of nature which rightly applied calls into activity the divine powers of the soul. The world has a wrong conception of the ideal in music, and not until it has rectified this conception can it perceive that the true harmony of music can never proceed from one who has not that true harmony within himself. We find therefore that in all the musical life at the Point the money consideration is entirely absent, and that personal vanity cannot enter at all. There is held to be an immense correspondence between music on the one hand and thought and aspiration upon the other, and only that deserves the name of music to which the noblest and the purest aspirations are responsive. Music is a part of the daily life at the Point, not merely as an exercise which occupies its stated time and seasons, but as a principle which animates all the activities. The soul power which is called forth by a harmony well delivered and well received does not die away with the conclusion of the piece. It has elicited a response from within the nature, the whole being has been keyed to a higher pitch of activity, and even the smallest of the daily duties, those which are usually called menial, will be performed in a different way, upon a higher plane, as a result. There is a science of consciousness, and into that science music can enter more largely than is usually supposed. A knowledge of the laws of life can be neither profound nor wide which thus neglects one of the most effective of all forces. In the days to come music will be a department of the government.

Drama ranks almost equally high with music in the educational life at the Point. It is made to enter largely into the instruction of the children, and nowhere are the advantages of the system more strikingly illustrated than in the dramatic power which can be called forth wherever there is an absence of self-consciousness and of vanity. The drama, like music, is regarded by the world as one of the relaxations of life because it is supposed to deal with the unrealities. True drama points away from the unrealities to the real life of the soul. As such the drama should lead and guide the public taste, providing it with ideals towards which it can aspire.

Nowhere in the social life of today is the need for reform more manifest than in the drama. In too many directions it has been made to serve the sensationalism and sensualism of the day and to stimulate the vicious thought which it might be so powerful to suppress.

The facilities for dramatic work at Point Loma are unsurpassed anywhere in the world. The gigantic open-air amphitheatre which has been completed is capable of seating three thousand people, and is equipped with every necessity and convenience for the proper performance of the work to which it has been dedicated. In conjunction with the Isis theatre in San Diego it forms the most unique dramatic feature of the century, and has never failed to call forth unstinted admiration from those best qualified to judge of its capabilities. We are within sight of the day which will once more restore the drama to its rightful position as one of the great redemption forces of the age.

Art at Point Loma follows faithfully upon the lines of the science of the soul which it is our mission to revive. Under this science it becomes the true expression of the soul ideals, and both art and decoration are no longer adventitious or capricious additions to our environment, but they become integral parts of that to which they belong. They become in themselves the expression of the law of evolution, and the demonstration of the reality of that law. As in the case with music, the art at Point Loma is a principle which pervades all the life and activity.

Whatever has in any way a right to exist must contain within itself the possibility of existing beautifully. The power of beautiful expression is not an affair of the intellect, nor of custom, nor convention, nor can it be learned intellectually nor from books. It comes from the arousing of the inner powers of the soul which are in sympathy with whatever is high and pure.

It would be impossible to find conditions more ideal for the production of a worthy and permanent literature. Theosophy, even under its initial and most adverse conditions, has already supplied the world with a literature which has profoundly modified the thought and enriched the language of the day. How much greater will be the influence of this new literature which is being prepared and given to the world under conditions so well qualified to call forth from the writers the best work of which their natures are capable.

In a review of some of the more important features of the life at Point Loma, it must be carefully kept in mind that the object in thus establishing ideal conditions is the uplifting and the betterment of the world. Point Loma is to be, and is already, a center from which streams of brotherly love radiate into the world. The institution at the Point has no other reason for its existence than to benefit humanity at large, to show that the life which is inspired by hope is necessarily the life which is rich in achievement, and that man indeed does possess to the fullest extent a dominion over nature, vast and unimaginable.

The remedial activities of the world, noble as many of them are in intention, proceed from a false basis. Recognizing that the large masses of humanity are environed by conditions the reverse of the ideal, they imagine that individual character is the result of that environment. They make of man the slave instead of the master. Such material efforts have their due place in any well-considered scheme, and it is a subsidiary place. Man is essentially a creator and he can be considered in no other way if the postulate of human divinity be once admitted. Only by the assertion of his divinity can he become master of his conditions, only by the force thus generated can he lay hold of his own nature, and of all nature around him, and compel it into an expression of his own ideals, and force it into the service of his necessities.

The value of the Point Loma institution lies in the fact that it has proved the truth of its theories by its success. It has accomplished the mission which brought it into being. It has rescued theosophy from the domain of an intellectualism which might easily have become more selfish, because more subtle, than the current thought of the world. It has demonstrated that the theosophic life is the life of practical common sense, and that in the light of its philosophy the shadows pass away and man can enter into his own birthright of joy.

To ask, "Will the system change present conditions?" is but to elicit the assurance that it has already changed them. The inertia of custom and convention has been already broken, and the unrest of the world at which so many look with distrust and with apprehension, is but the movement of the ship with the incoming tide of purer and better thought. Ideals have been thrown out into the world, and because they are spirited ideals they have entered into the minds of men and have

Some Fruit Out of This State

To California's shipments of oranges, lemons and grapefruit, which now reach 30,000 carloads annually, Pacific Coast growers are adding thousands of cars of fruits and vegetables, a large part of which come from lands lately reclaimed from the desert by irrigation. Cantaloupes and table grapes that rival the finest hothouse products are the most rapidly developing additions to California's output. Last season's cantaloupe shipments amounted to 600 cars, and this season it is expected that 1000 cars will be shipped.

This year's shipments of deciduous fruits, which begin with cherries in May and end with grapes in November, are expected to show a decrease of about 1000 cars as compared with last year's output of 8000 carloads. The reason for this is the constantly increasing output of California canned goods, the growers preferring to sell to the canners, and the decrease of fresh fruit is more than made up by larger shipments of other fruits and vegetables. Celery growers alone of Smeltzer sent 2700 carloads to market this season.

Among all those servants placed at the disposal of mankind by nature, none are more useful than are the forests. The rivers and streams are controlled and regulated by them; climate and rainfall are equalized; wood, lumber and fuel supplied; floods, avalanches and soil erosion prevented; the winds moderated; and the devastation of fertile tracts of country checked. Indeed, the past experience of the human race has positively demonstrated that were it not for the forests the most fertile and prosperous countries would soon be transformed into desert wastes, unfit for human habitation.

The fifteenth national irrigation congress bids fair to be the most instructive session yet held. This will be the case particularly for the general agriculturalist, and it is hoped and thought that the interest of the farming community generally in the coming session will be more lively than usual, and that agriculturalists will turn out to the congress in increased numbers. There will be every facility for making easy attendance at the irrigation congress this year, and cheap railroad rates to and from California and low excursion rates for pleasurable and interesting side trips have been arranged for. The city of Sacramento itself from present appearances will entertain most hospitably.

The forest question involves the two great questions of wood and water. Wood is a prime necessity. Our population is rapidly increasing, while our wood supply is more rapidly diminishing. We are consuming wood three or four times as fast as our forests are producing it. Unless radical changes are soon made in American methods of forestry, a wood famine will assuredly ensue. Forest cover on mountains and hilltops is indispensable in holding back rain water, and maintaining equable stream-flow. Denuded hillsides mean an alternation of destructive floods and droughts.

The experiment in the recent army maneuvers, of stationing militia troops in coast defenses, has proved so successful that the war department has decided to make permanent arrangements for this use of the state soldiers. Twin companies are to be organized in the militia to supplant the regulars and will be assigned to state batteries and the points which they will be expected to defend in the event of war. This policy having been adopted, the war department will now take steps to make it effective. The aid of the governors of the various states is necessary in order to get the matter properly before the members of the national guard and have them thoroughly interested in the project. Consequently the assistant secretary of war will shortly send letters to all the governors asking them to communicate the facts to the state organizations and ask their co-operation. It is the intention to make the state troops feel that they are at liberty to visit the coast batteries at any time of the year for the purpose of studying or otherwise becoming familiar with guns and general equipment. The war games for this year were planned with the idea of determining whether or not the state organizations could be used for coast artillery work. The success of the maneuvers has proved that the state soldiers possess all the qualifications necessary to make admirable men behind the guns in the coast forts.

Friends of the forest should exert themselves and assist in securing the needed legislation. The people must be aroused and informed, and must make their will known to their representatives. United, earnest effort will secure this legislation. The American Forestry association is striving, as never before, to bring the Appalachian question home to every citizen of the United States, for it is indeed a national question.

For years Americans and others have been sending to the United States from foreign countries postal cards and post cards (private mailing cards) with messages written upon the front as well as upon the back of the cards, although in this country this advantage has been denied the users of government postal cards. Some months ago the United States postal laws and regulations were amended so as to give that privilege to buyers of post cards, but such a concession was not made applicable to postal cards. In order to revoke this inconsistency and to prevent further confusion and annoyance to the public the postmaster-general has promulgated an order, effective August 1, 1907, providing that the face side of a postal card may be divided by a vertical line placed one-third of the distance from the left end of the card, the space to be used for a message, etc., the portion to the right to be used for the address only. A very thin sheet of paper may be attached if it adheres to the card, and such a postal may bear both writing and printing. Advertisements, illustrations or writing may appear upon the back of the card and upon the left third of the front. Postals bearing particles of glass, metal, tinsel or other such substances are declared to be unmailable, except when enclosed in envelopes with proper postage or if treated in such a manner as will prevent the materials from being rubbed off or injuring the hands of the persons handling the mails.

The "man in the country" who is at all interested in irrigation, reclamation, or forestry, and at the same time has any interest in California, should see to it that he gets his credentials to the National Irrigation congress at Sacramento in September. This is going to be a splendid opportunity to see the great interior valleys of California, as well as take in the irrigation congress and forestry and irrigated land products exhibits. The Northern Electric company, which is building a system of electric roads throughout Northern California, plans to open its lines between Sacramento and Marysville early in September, and this will afford delegates to the irrigation congress a side trip of more than passing interest and pleasure.

Forest destruction has reduced fertile lands to deserts. The desolation of the Karst, a high plateau north of Trieste, and now one of the most parched and barren districts in Europe, was caused by the cutting of its woods to build the Navies of Venice. In Wisconsin a veritable desert has been produced by forest destruction. A celebrated French traveler, Largeau, after a careful study of the desert of Sahara, believes that desert to have been, at one time, well wooded and watered, and to have been reduced to its present condition solely by the folly and improvidence of man.

He expresses the opinion that even now much of it could be restored to fertility.

The forestry exhibit connected with this year's national irrigation congress at Sacramento and the interest taken by forestry people, not only in the United States, but in our insular territory, promises gratifying results. This feature is to be given more than usual attention this year for the California meeting. The United States director of forestry of the Philippines George P. Ahern of Manila, is enthusiastic and is making every effort to arrange his affairs so that he may be in attendance at the congress.

A bill (S. 4935) appropriating three million dollars to establish the Appalachian-White Mountain reserves, passed the United States senate at the last session of congress without dissent. It was unanimously recommended by the house committee on agriculture. It was approved in advance and urged for passage by the president; but it failed to come to a vote in the house. A similar bill should be passed at the coming session of congress.

The department of agriculture has killed the pie trust. After the canning season of this year, the makers of the fillings wherewith "home-made" pies are manufactured in factories, will not be permitted to use benzoate of soda or benzoic acid. Until the end of the season they will be permitted to use not to exceed one-tenth of one per cent, if they have been accustomed to preserving their products in that way. Every package containing food products which have been preserved with benzoate of soda or benzoic acid must be plainly marked. While the department of agriculture was considering the subject the makers of pie fillings, catsups and things like that asserted that to forbid the use of preservatives would kill their business. Notwithstanding that declaration, the food and drug inspection board forbid its use. Secretaries Wilson, Cortelyou and Straus approved the finding and recommendations of the board.

It is to be hoped for the sake of the general public that Judge Landis will not make the fine on the Standard Oil company too heavy. Kerosene costs enough as it is, and it will be certain to go up enough to cover the amount of the fine.

There is something lacking about that defaulting paying teller Runyan up in New York. None of the papers have scheduled him as a constant church goer and a prominent member of the Y. M. C. A.

Carrie Nation assured a police court judge last week that she could never go to hell. Well, at any rate, that is some consolation for the people who are unfortunate enough to have that place for a final home.

King Edward is just starting on his second visit to Ireland and with an increasingly hard prospect ahead, for in addition to sitting on the Nationalists, he will have to snub Dick Croker and appear genial all at the same time.

A Unique Plan

The board of control which has in hand the arrangements for the coming session of the national irrigation congress at Sacramento in September has a unique plan for taking care of visitors on arrival, and all who come will be assured of accommodations with the least possible trouble to themselves. The idea is to have a pavilion of some sort adjacent to the depot where all incoming delegates will arrive which will be used as a hotel office, as it were. All rooms at the disposal of the committee will be of record there, and delegates and visitors will be assigned to them from that point, and sent with their baggage under personal charge of bellboys and porters so that they will have no difficulty in getting located. This is only one of the many novel ideas that have been hit upon to make the stay of delegates to the approaching irrigation congress both profitable and pleasant.

The United States artillery corps did some remarkable mortar gun shooting at San Francisco on Monday. The Tenth company carried off the honors of the day with eleven straight hits of a floating target four miles at sea. Eleven hits at a moving target with 1000-pound projectiles is a record seldom equaled in the world.

SCENE IN SAN BERNARDINO FOREST RESERVE

COUNTRY'S FOREST SERVICE

What It Is, and How It Deals with Forest Problems—Large Undertaking.

OFFICE OF ORGANIZATION.

This office has charge of the executive force of the national forests. For administrative purposes the national forests are grouped into six districts, which correspond to the inspection districts.

The permanent field force on the national forests now contains the grades of chief inspector, inspector, forest supervisor, deputy forest supervisor, forest assistant, planting assistant, lumberman, forest ranger, and forest guard.

Examinations for these positions are held as required in each state and territory in which national forests are situated. Applicants for the positions of ranger or supervisor must be legal residents, between the ages of 21 and 40.

Appointments to the position of forest supervisor are made by the promotion of competent forest rangers or forest assistants, when they can be found in the state or territory in which the vacancies exist. The qualifications for the position of supervisor include all those required of rangers, with superior technical, business, and administrative ability.

Supervisors have full charge of their forests, plan and direct all work, have entire disposition of rangers and other assistants, and are responsible for the efficiency of the local service. They keep the records and accounts and conduct the correspondence and general office business of their forests, and make reports to the forester on all matters under their jurisdiction. Each supervisor is required to keep, at his own expense, one or more horses for his transportation in the forest, and is allowed actual and necessary traveling expenses when away from his headquarters.

The position of forest assistant or planting assistant requires technical qualifications of high order. Forest assistants or planting assistants may be assigned to any part of the United States, and must be competent to handle technical lines of work, such as the preparation of working and planting plans, the investigation of the silvics and uses of commercial trees, the study of wood preservation, and other investigations requiring a trained forester. They are required to own and keep horses when necessary.

Lumbermen, technical men, and others temporarily assigned to forests are directly under the instructions of the supervisor and report to him on all forest matters.

To be eligible as ranger of any grade the applicant must be, first of all, thoroughly sound and able-bodied, capable of enduring hardships and of performing severe labor under trying conditions. No one may expect to pass the examination who is not already able to take care of himself and his horses in regions remote from settlements and supplies. He must be able to build trails and cabins, shoot, ride, pack, and deal tactfully with all classes of people. He must know something of land surveying, estimating and scaling timber, logging, land laws, mining, and the live-stock business.

The examination of applicants is along the practical lines indicated above, and they are required to show that they can do these things by actually doing them. Where boats, saddle horses, or pack horses are necessary in the performance of their duty, rangers are required to own and maintain them.

In addition to the permanent classified force upon the forests, forest guards receiving from $60 to $75 per month are employed to fill vacancies for which the eligible list is inadequate or to supply additional men for patrol and protective work for not over six months at a time.

OFFICE OF ENGINEERING.

Many roads, trails, telephone lines, cabins, bridges, fences, fire lines, and other improvements of a permanent character are necessary in order to give the national forests better protection and to facilitate forest work. For making these improvements congress at its last session granted the forest service a fund of $500,000, which will be used during the next year entirely for this purpose.

The office of engineering has charge of these improvements and also has general supervision of all engineering work, or work of a permanent nature, constructed by individuals or corporations on the different national forests. Under this head are the large power plants being erected in the western country, among them some with a development of more than 50,000 horsepower. Canals, pipe lines, flumes, reservoirs, dams, etc., are among the other classes of work that will be taken care of by the office. This

SUMMER BUSINESS IS GOOD

R. G. Dun & Co's. Monthly Review of Trade Conditions for June in Southern California.

The advent of summer weather during the past month has hastened the ripening of the fruit crop and the apricot and peach harvest is in full swing. The hay crop is rapidly being baled and grain is beginning to come to local warehouses. Ranchers report good grain yield, and claim barley will start off at $1.15 per 100 pounds. Orchardists are being paid highest prices ever known in history of fruit industry of this section. Canneries are paying $30 to $35 a ton for plums, for peaches $30, fully twice the price in normal years. Apricots have brought as high as $110 a ton in places, as against $60 highest paid last year. The result is that the canning pack of deciduous fruit will be normal; but few peaches or apricots will go to the dryers. Opening prices for 1907 pack have been announced by Central California canneries. As expected there is a big increase over those of last year. The California Fruit Canners have declined as yet to name prices, desiring to wait until the general market and crop conditions can be fairly estimated. The orange market ruled strong during past month. The feature of market was the high price paid for few remaining navels. The amount of crop seems to be exceeding estimate and shipments heavier than usual at this season of year. Prices for Valencia rule a little below expectations, but are as high as last year at this time. The new orange crop has set remarkably well, and dropping has been slight. Hot weather put great activity into the lemon market. The call is heavy and prices soaring.

In the cured fruit market interest centers in new crop peaches and prunes. A considerable export demand for the former has developed, and quotations are based upon 11 to 12c to the growers. The output will probably be same as last year. Most of crop has passed from growers to packers at 4 to 4 1/2c bag basis, and quotations have settled to 5c f.o.b. basis. The output of apricots for Southern California will not exceed 20 carloads. Growers are being offered around 20c.

Raisins continue to advance, being held at 6c in the sweat box. The honey season will be a profitable one; output not up to normal, but much in excess of last year. The bean market is firm at hardened rates. Limas advanced to $5.25. Coming crop looks well. Failures for month 19; liabilities $800,000, assets $1,000,000. Same month last year, 17; liabilities $72,000, assets $35,000.

Imperial County

On Friday afternoon last the board of supervisors of San Diego county met in special session to consider the petition presented by the people of Imperial valley asking that the necessary action be taken to permit them to form a county of their own. At the session the supervisors accepted a bond in the amount of $5000 signed by W. F. Holt, H. H. Benton and W. P. Mansfield guaranteeing that San Diego county will not be put to the expense of holding the election.

The population of the new county to be known as Imperial is fixed at 6940 people, five times the number of qualified electors necessary.

The status of the new county was also fixed as of the forty-third class. Another meeting was held on Monday at which time the supervisory districts were fixed, election precincts defined and officers named to conduct the election on county division.

Lots of Money

Uncle Sam has more money than he knows what to do with. It is a literal embarrassment of riches. He has $85,000,000 in his strong box over and above all expenses and current appropriations. There is so much money locked up that Secretary Cortelyou has adopted the extreme expedient of paying the year's expense on the Panama canal out of the surplus and will issue no bonds. It is, perhaps, scarcely fair to make this generation pay the cost of work intended for the benefit of posterity, but in fine, Cortelyou sees no other way out of the woods. The money is there and must be got rid of, at whatever cost. No other nation in the history of the world has been confronted with a problem of this sort and magnitude.

But these vast accumulations in government hands are small compared with the semi-annual dividends earned by the railroads and industrials. In New York, on the first of this month, the dividends and interest paid amounted to $182,000,000. In San Francisco the distribution amounted to some $7,000,000, and in other financial centers all over the country similar large payments were made.

The fact is that the country was never so prosperous. We can find no better barometer of trade than railroad earnings, and the fact is significant that on July 1 the transportation corporations paid out $36,750,000 in dividends, as compared with $32,105,071 on the same date last year.

Growers Hard Hit

A body blow has been given the walnut growers of California when in a decision handed down by Judge Wellborn of the United States court they were forbidden to use the process of walnut cleaning patented by the Anderson-Bargrover company. The decision, moreover, allows this firm damages in the sum of $23,000 from the Fullerton Walnut Growers' association for infringement of patent rights.

The suit was instituted several years ago by the Anderson-Bargrover company. It was claimed the Fullerton association had been using the patented process for years. In March, 1905, Judge Wellborn decided that the Fullerton growers were guilty of an infringement of patent and referred the matter to Lynn Helm, as master in chancery, to determine damages. Mr. Helm reported in March, 1907, that the Fullerton association should pay the Anderson-Bargrover company $23,000. Judge Wellborn took the matter under advisement and has handed down his decision sustaining Mr. Helm. The case will be appealed.

How National Forests Serve Public

"The Use of the National Forests," a publication just printed by the department of agriculture, is a brief, clear manual for public information as to the forest policy of the national government.

It is too true, as the short preface to the public says, that "many people do not know what national forests are. Others may have heard much about them, but have no idea of their true purpose and use." It is the object of this publication to explain just what the national forests mean, what they are for, and how to use them.

In the first place, it is explained how the forests are created and how their boundaries are drawn. Next, their direct use and value are shown from the point of view of the homeseeker, the prospector and miner, the user of timber, the user of the range, the user of water, and other users of forest resources. Third, it is shown how the forests are intended for use, for the production of usable products, and for the establishment of and maintenance of homes; how on all of them the timber is protected from fire, the water-flow is kept steady, the forage of the range is increased and guarded from abuse; and how, in addition, they serve as great public playgrounds and as breeding places and refuges for game. Finally, the management of the national forests is described.

Here it is that the great usefulness of the forests is brought out most clearly and strikingly; for the forests are managed by the people in their own interests, and every means is used to meet the desires and wants of all forest users half way by dealing with them in the main directly on the ground and in all cases with the utmost practical dispatch and freedom from red tape.

In a word, the special interest of this manual lies in its showing that the forest policy of the government, both in principle and practice, is for the benefit of the ordinary man, for the benefit of every citizen equally. There is still a tendency to think of the national forests as "preserves" close to use, and to leave the public lands exposed to unregulated individual exploitation. Where these misapprehensions still prevail "The Use of the National Forests" will go far to correct them.

The book is written by Frederick E. Olmstead, whose intimate knowledge of conditions in the West and the policy under which the national forests are managed especially fits him to deal with the subject.

Bug Men Steal Thunder

Sacramento, July 13.—S. A. Pease, horticultural commissioner of San Bernardino county, who has taken an interest in the eradication of the Florida white fly at Marysville, in an interview today, declared that the entomologists of the State University are plagiarists, that they steal the thunder of big entomologists and issue bulletins regarding things they know nothing about. He said:

"Ever since the state commissioner discovered the white fly peril in Marysville and started to eradicate it the university men have been busy issuing bulletins, and now they are bringing here Prof. Clark, the well-known Alabama expert, after the state commission has practically driven the fly from the state. And as for downright theft of thunder the first bulletin issued from the university on this subject is a masterpiece. The bulletin contains the exact words of Gossard's expert opinions regarding the methods of eradicating the fly in Louisiana, and Gossard gets no credit. No, the little entomologists always steal the thunder of big entomologists."

Letters remaining unclaimed at the expiration of fifteen days from date will be sent to the dead letter office. J. W. DUCKWORTH, P. M.

The indiscriminate cutting and destruction of our forests, by reason of its effect upon the soil, climate and topography, is the direct cause of disastrous results which are of financial interest to every citizen and to every community. The person who lives many hundred miles away from a forest and whose property has been destroyed by the floodwaters of some river, does not always realize that it was primarily the destruction of the forest covering at the headwaters of that river which was the direct cause of the floods.

Newport Bay Deal

The terms of a contract entered into by the Irvine company and George E. Hart, owner of Corona del Mar on Newport Bay, have been made public by the filing of the agreement in the county recorder's office. By the agreement the Irvine company will part with 706.08 acres along the edge of Newport Bay and the ocean for $106,000. This agreement was signed on June 29, 1904. Hart agreed to build two piers, lay off streets and develop water and endeavor to sell lots. He agreed to pay $10,000 in cash and give three notes of $31,970 each.

Lightning Legible Shorthand

Cuts the time and cost of becoming a Stenographer in half.

As the automobile and the lightning express have taken the place of the stage coach and ox cart; as the reaper has displaced the old fashioned reaper hook and scythe; as the modern steamer has crowded out the sail boat; as the typewriter has knocked out the goose quill pen and pokeberry ink; as the telegraph, telephone, and wireless telegraphy have superseded old methods of communication, so the Lightning Legible Shorthand is destined to take the place of the other systems. The reason is plain. It cuts the time and cost of becoming a stenographer more legibly and rapidly so that one becomes a much better stenographer.

This system of shorthand was gotten up by Prof. Glass of the San Bernardino Business College, where he teaches any young person with a common school education who will do systematic work to write legibly 150 words of new matter to the minute in 3 to 4 months or make no charge for the course.

This school also enjoys the distinction of being the only school in California making a specialty of coaching for the U. S. Civil Service and assisting young people to secure Civil Service positions. These examinations are held in San Bernardino, thus giving Civil Service students the double advantage of making their preparation and passing the examination at the same place.

Defects are Explained

Washington, July 13.—Regarding a series of special articles in a service publication which have to some extent been reproduced in the daily press criticizing adversely the battleships of the navy, Rear-Admiral Brownson today said:

"That there are defects in the Oregon, the Kentucky, and the Kearsage is well known; in fact, these defects were discovered before the completion of these ships, but the wonder is that there are so few defects, considering that they were the first heavy battleships built in this country. Compared to the battleships of other nations, designed and built at the same time, the Oregon class was conspicuously superior; in fact, that class was referred to by the British technical papers at the time as the 'peerless battleship,' and the interior arrangements and other points were of special excellence. It is true that their armor was badly placed, but that arose from an addition to the ships of a great amount of material, stores and machinery not included in the original design. It is also true that they lacked balanced turrets, but when they were built there were no such turrets in any navy."

"Their eight-inch ammunition tubes were also not sufficiently protected. As to the criticism directed at the larger size of the ports in the turrets, these had been corrected in later designs by bringing the trunnions of the guns nearer to the front of the turrets, so that the battleships of later design are free from this defect. As to the gun platforms, those in ships of the Oregon class had no superior, and even at this late date they should give a good account of themselves in action. In fact, taking everything into consideration, it is only surprising that we built as good ships at that time."

Unless something unforeseen occurs this year's walnut crop in Southern California will be fully as large, if not larger than last season. The chief menace to the growing crop is the hot weather and a disease called "black," which has more or less affected the walnuts during the last few years.

SUMMER BUSINESS IS GOOD

R. G. Dun & Co's. Monthly Review of Trade Conditions for June in Southern California.

The advent of summer weather during the past month has hastened the ripening of the fruit crop and the apricot and peach harvest is in full swing. The hay crop is rapidly being baled and grain is beginning to come to local warehouses. Ranchers report good grain yield, and claim barley will start off at $1.15 per 100 pounds. Orchardists are being paid highest prices ever known in history of fruit industry of this section. Canneries are paying $30 to $35 a ton for plums, for peaches $30, fully twice the price in normal years. Apricots have brought as high as $110 a ton in places, as against $60 highest paid last year. The result is that the canning pack of deciduous fruit will be normal; but few peaches or apricots will go to the dryers. Opening prices for 1907 pack have been announced by Central California canneries. As expected there is a big increase over those of last year. The California Fruit Canners have declined as yet to name prices, desiring to wait until the general market and crop conditions can be fairly estimated. The orange market ruled strong during past month. The feature of market was the high price paid for few remaining navels. The amount of crop seems to be exceeding estimate and shipments heavier than usual at this season of year. Prices for Valencia's rule a little below expectations, but are as high as last year at this time. The new orange crop has set remarkably well, and dropping has been slight. Hot weather put great activity into the lemon market. The call is heavy and prices soaring.

In the cured fruit market interest centers in new crop peaches and prunes. A considerable export demand for the former has developed, and quotations are based upon 11 to 12c to the growers. The output will probably be same as last year. Most of crop has passed from growers to packers at 4 to 4 1/2c bag basis, and quotations have settled to 5c f.o.b bag basis. The output of apricots for Southern California will not exceed 20 carloads. Growers are being offered around 20c.

Raisins continue to advance, being held at 6c in the sweat box. The honey season will be a profitable one; output not up to normal, but much in excess of last year. The bean market is firm at hardened rates. Limas advanced to $5.25. Coming crop looks well. Failures for month 19; liabilities $800,000, assets $1,000,000. Same month last year, 17; liabilities $72,000, assets $35,000.

Imperial County

On Friday afternoon last the board of supervisors of San Diego county met in special session to consider the petition presented by the people of Imperial valley asking that the necessary action be taken to permit them to form a county of their own. At the session the supervisors accepted a bond in the amount of $50,000 signed by W. F. Holt, H. H. Benton and W. P. Mansfield guaranteeing that San Diego county will not be put to the expense of holding the election.

The population of the new county to be known as Imperial is fixed at 6940 people, five times the number of qualified electors necessary.

The status of the new county was also fixed as of the forty-third class. Another meeting was held on Monday at which time the supervisory districts were fixed, election precincts defined and officers named to conduct the election on county division.

Lots of Money

Uncle Sam has more money than he knows what to do with. It is a literal embarrassment of riches. He has $85,000,000 in his strong box over and above all expenses and current appropriations. There is so much money locked up that Secretary Cortelyou has adopted the extreme expedient of paying the year's expense on the Panama canal out of the surplus and will issue no bonds. It is, perhaps, scarcely fair to make this generation pay the cost of work intended for the benefit of posterity, but in fine, Cortelyou sees no other way out of the woods. The money is there and must be got rid of, at whatever cost. No other nation in the history of the world has been confronted with a problem of this sort and magnitude.

But these vast accumulations in government hands are small compared with the semi-annual dividends earned by the railroads and industrials. In New York, on the first of this month, the dividends and interest paid amounted to $182,000,000. In San Francisco the distribution amounted to some $7,000,000, and in other financial centers all over the country similar large payments were made.

The fact is that the country was never so prosperous. We can find no better barometer of trade than railroad earnings, and the fact is significant that on July 1 the transportation corporations paid out $38,750,000 in dividends, as compared with $32,105,071 on the same date last year.

Growers Hard Hit

A body blow has been given the walnut growers of California when in a decision handed down by Judge Wellburn of the United States court they were forbidden to use the process of walnut cleaning patented by the Anderson-Bargrover company. The decision, moreover, allows this firm damages in the sum of $23,000 from the Fullerton Walnut Growers' association for infringement of patent rights.

The suit was instituted several years ago by the Anderson-Bargrover company. It was claimed the Fullerton association had been using the patented process for years. In March, 1905, Judge Wellborn decided that the Fullerton growers were guilty of an infringement of patent and referred the matter to Lynn Helm, as master in chancery, to determine damages. Mr. Helm reported in March, 1907, that the Fullerton association should pay the Anderson-Bargrover company $23,000. Judge Wellborn took the matter under advisement and has handed down his decision sustaining Mr. Helm. The case will be appealed.
