ARE TRAITORS IN CAMP?

A Plain Statement from Six of the Delegates to the Senatorial Convention--
If There Are Traitors, Brand Them

The following statement signed by six of the thirteen delegates to the senatorial district convention is self-explanatory. The rumor is persistent that two of the remaining seven delegates will support Estudillo or some other Southern Pacific man. We do not credit this rumor, but if we have collar-men on the delegation, their identity might just as well be established here and now as at any future time. The signed statement is as follows:

June 18, 1908.

To the Press of Orange County.

As the suspicion seems to be gaining ground that two or more of the delegates-elect to the republican state senatorial convention have bargained with the Southern Pacific Co.'s political manager to disobey the instructions of the county convention, and vote for M. Estudillo of Riverside, we, the undersigned six delegates out of the total of 13, desire to say that we regard the instructions of the county convention as binding, and that we shall not vote for either M. Estudillo or John Meharg. We desire further to state that this statement has been presented to all of the Orange county delegates-elect to the state senatorial convention with the request that they sign it.

H. H. HALE,
WM. F. LUTZ,
GEO. L. WRIGHT,
A. H. STUTSMAN,
RUSH M. BLODGETT,
JACOB WALTON.

Other members of the delegation are J. H. Whitaker of Buena Park, George Bird of Olinda, J. W. Morrison and Kellar Watson of Orange, Ralph Fuller of El Modena, Johnny Foster and Jack Landell of Capistrano.

Fuller is understood to be favorable to standing by the instructions, but owing to serious illness has not yet had an opportunity of signing the above statement.

A caucus of delegates was called at Santa Ana some days ago, and only six were present.

J. W. Morrison, chairman of the Orange county central committee, was in Santa Ana the day of the caucus, but did not deem it of sufficient importance to attend. When asked later why he had not attended, he replied he had other business to attend to. In conversation with others some days subsequently, Morrison said he had not heard that any caucus of delegates had been called, although he presumed they would get together "the night before they went to Riverside."

Morrison is openly charged with being favorable to the Herrin machine. He holds a job as deputy fish commissioner, and gets $100 per month and expenses as salary. His principal duty is to stock the Trabuca creek with trout. He says positively he will not vote for Estudillo, but will probably line up against an anti-machine man. He is on record as being opposed to voting for a member of the Lincoln-Roosevelt league.

Other members of the delegation who are said to be prepared to sidestep instructions are Harry Whitaker, postmaster of Buena Park, and George Bird, a carpenter employed on the Hall oil lease at Olinda. Friends of both declare there is no foundation for the charge. The nomination of both was suggested by the Walker push. Whether the accusations against these men are true or false, will be determined this week or next, when each will be given an opportunity to say just where he stands and what he intends to do.

The opinion gains ground here that Estudillo will be dropped by the railroad, and another collar-man substituted, with a view to getting votes enough from this county to nominate him.

Birthday Party

Earle Thomas Jackson celebrated his fifth birthday by giving an ice cream party to his friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Jackson of Buena Park, on Thursday afternoon. Those present were Lorene, Frank and Ray Leverau, Olive, Cristena, David and Martin Gustafson, and Florence Trapp. The table was beautifully decorated with white lillies, jasmine and purple and yellow pansies presented by Mrs. Leverau.

Library Contract Awarded

The library board on Thursday last awarded contract for erection of the Carnegie library to Kuechel & Rowley of Orange for $9589.

The board at a previous meeting received the following bids:

G. E. Preble, Santa Ana, $14,000; Alpetter, Hall & Alpetter, Los Angeles, $13,774; J. F. Atkinson, Los Angeles, $11,777; Bert Neubauer, Anaheim, $10,750; Kuechel & Rowley, Orange, $10,498.

After consultation with Mr. Austin a few alterations were made and the three lowest bidders given the privilege of figuring on the alterations if they so desired.

J. F. Atkinson bid, on alterations, $1550; Bert Neubauer, $1735; Kuechel & Rowley, $1832. Thereby making their bids: $10,227, $9015 and $8663 respectively.

Kuechel & Rowley being the lowest they were awarded the contract by a resolution adopted by the library board June 18th. All the alterations were not accepted, thereby making the bid of Kuechel & Rowley $9589. The contract will be ready for the signatures today.

Hiked to Los

A party of young pedestrians composed of Max Horwitz, Jos. Gibson, Carl Pressel, Jake Edwards, Ernest Clabaugh, Ned Merritt, Bert Newman and Albert Kage walked to Los Angeles on Sunday, covering the 30 miles in 7 1/2 hours. They left the postoffice at 5:07 and arrived in the Angele burg at 12:40, going by way of Cypress, thence by the road along the electric railway and Watts. After enjoying a plunge in the swimming baths the boys returned home by rail.

The boys arrived at Cypress at 6:48, covering the 7 1/2 miles in an hour and 41 minutes. Artesia was reached at 7:33, Watts 10:15, the city limits of Los Angeles at 11:12 and the Examiner office 12:40. They interviewed the sport ing editor.

Joe Gibson was pace-maker and kept up a Weston clip all the way.

A report prevailed yesterday that three of the boys failed to finish, but the hikers refused to say whom they were.

Brookhurst

Mr. and Mrs. Burr, of Pasadena, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Timmons several days ago.

Frank Irish and wife of Artesia and W. Randall and wife of Norwalk were guests of Frank Miller and wife Sunday.

Miss Laura Allgeyer went to E. Monte to spend a week with relatives. George Hatfield and wife and son, Norton, were among the visitors to Los Angeles Saturday.

Howard Randall of Norwalk is spending the week with his aunt, Mrs. Miller.

Fine Cherries

From our old-time friend E. K. Collins, we received on Saturday evening through the courtesy of J. D. Banker, a box of Santa Clara cherries, the largest and most luscious we ever ate. Mr. Collins is shipping cherries east from the upper counties, and some weeks ago forwarded the first cherries of the season from Vacaville. These brought fancy prices. But while engaged in rolling in wealth because of the finest crop of cherries the upper counties have ever produced, E. K. is not too busy to forget his friends in the southern citrus belt, and several boxes of cherries have gladdened the hearts of more than a score of friends. For the very acceptable remembrance, many thanks, old friend. The cherries are (or, more properly, they were) the largest and loveliest we ever saw, and E. K. remains at the top of the list of good fellows as of yore. Agalo, many thanks!

Fixtures have arrived for O. A. Mullinix's new drugstore, which include an elaborate soda water fountain, new showcases and other articles of artistic pattern. The stock will be moved next week, and the opening day will occur the Saturday after the Fourth. Ice cream and other light refreshments will be served free to all visitors, and a welcome extended to the new establishment. The Doc informs us he will have the finest drugstore in Orange county.

Born, to the wife of G. L. Dietrich, Tuesday, June 23d, a daughter.

Republicans Ratify

Republicans of Orange county ratified the nomination of Taft and Sherman at Santa Ana on Saturday. Members of the party to the number of 1000 gathered from all sections of the county and an old-time brand of enthusiasm and red fire was turned loose. The meeting was called at 8:15 o'clock by Chairman of the County Central Committee Morrison, who stepped forward to address the assemblage as soon as the band ceased playing.

Miss Lulu Hall then sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

L. L. Shaw of Santa Ana was selected as chairman of the meeting. He responded with a brief address, during the course of which a large portrait of Taft was displayed on the stage and received with great enthusiasm.

Clyde Bishop made the principal address of the evening, and brief addresses were made by W. M. Brown of Orange, Judge E. T. Langley, District Attorney Davis, Richard Melrose and Judge Z. B. West.

New Dentist

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Dr. John H. Boege, who has established dental offices in the new Mullinix building on Center street, and is now ready to wait upon patients. His offices are equipped with the latest dental instruments and are handsomely appointed and well furnished. Dr. Boege is a graduate of the University of Southern California and has practiced his profession in Los Angeles and Santa Ana during the two years following his graduation. He has latterly been associated with Dr. Hervey of Santa Ana, and has earned for himself a reputation second to no dentist in the county. He is a native here, having been born and raised in this county. We bespeak for him a liberal share of the public patronage.

Children's Day Exercises

A congregation which filled the Presbyterian church to overflowing gathered at that edifice on Sunday evening to attend the children's day exercises, which were capably rendered by members of the Sunday school. The program was as follows:

Hymn 89—Hymns that Help..... School Address of Welcome..... Robert McAfee Sabbath School secretary's report..... Mrs. Grisham Home Department Report..... Miss Aubert Cradle Roll..... Miss Wallop Recitation, Twelve Daises..... Primary Dept. Song..... Primary Dept. Selection..... Mrs. Jones' Class Recitation, Helpers All..... Arnold Encari Song, Lullaby..... Miss Richardson Remarks..... Rev. Mr. Merrill Recitation, Great Men..... Mr. McLaughlin's class Hymn 140, Hymns that Help..... School Recitation, Summer..... Miss Dutton's class Recitation..... Miss Mills Rose Drill..... Mrs. Comstock's class Duet..... Mrs. Cornelle, Miss Wallop Selection..... Rev. Mr. Merrill Benediction..... Rev. Mr. Merrill

Anaheim Band Benefit Concert

The Anaheim City Band will give a benefit concert at the opera house on next Wednesday evening, July 1st. Among those who are assisting in the program are Mrs. Sumner, Mrs. Charlotte Adams Cornelle, Mr. H. A. Dickel, Miss Adams, Miss Edith Wallop, Miss Grace Adams. The accompanists will be Mrs. J. Welborn Wallop, Miss Ella Rea and Miss Rose Weinberger. Among the patronesses are prominent women of Anaheim society.

H. M. Adams of this city, and V. V. Tubbs and H. R. Smith of Santa Ana, returned on Sunday evening from a week's auto trip to Bakersfield and the country round about. They visited the Santa Margarita ranch and other points of interest and came home by the coast route, stopping at Santa Barbara, Ventura and other towns. A great country, says Hen.

Walter Johnson pitched for the Senators at Boston on Tuesday. Boston tied the score in the eighth, and won in the eleventh, 3 to 2. Johnson pitched in the first part of the game, holding the bean-eaters down to a few scattering hits.

Judge Shanley spent Saturday at Redondo plunking with the Pennsylvanians at their annual outing. He met a number of old-time friends from the Keystone state.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Michaels, Anaheim, will meet with Mrs. Wm. J. West Anaheim, Thursday, July 1st. An all day meeting. S. M. Dearing, Secretary.

J. H. Clabaugh yesterday received instructions from headquarters that the Santa Fe will shortly extend the time limit on 25 ride commutation tickets between this city and Los Angeles, from 60 days to 90 days.

WHAT'S DOING IN POLITICS

Again the Talk of Traitors in the Orange Defecation—A Still, Small Voice that State Delegates Will Be Appointed in This County—Has Herrin Arrived?

Again comes the rumor that there are traitors among the Orange county delegates to the senatorial convention which meets at Riverside July 11th. From one end of the county to the other comes a demand that these traitors (if such there be) be smoked out. This time the story comes in a roundabout way from Los Angeles via Riverside. The author of the yarn is said to be no less a person than Walter Parker, the Los Angeles railroad boss, who, to quote George Knight, has a fight on in his own home precincts which is keeping him guessing. Parker is said some days ago to have given out the statement that the Orange county delegates were "fixed"—not necessarily the whole delegation, but enough to turn the scale Estudillo's way. Personally we think Parker is executing one of his tall bluffs. The story as it comes to us runs about as follows:

Friends of P. T. Evans' of Riverside have for some weeks been engaged in an effort to secure the senatorial nomination for him. Some of Evans' adherents have been in Orange county interviewing delegates in his behalf.

One of the Santa Ana delegates told him that if he would come to the convention with a strong petition for the nomination of some good, clean Riverside man, he could get the votes of the Orange county delegation. This delegate made this statement upon the presumption that in view of the unanimous and positive instructions given them in the county convention, none of his colleagues could be bought by the Estudillo machinists.

The Riverside man went home and tried to get a prominent citizen and politician of the Orange City to head a petition for Evans. The man declined. He made the statement that Walter Parker had told him positively that at least two of the Orange county delegates had been captured and tied hand and foot for Estudillo, and that he would therefore have nothing more to do with the fight.

Commenting upon this delectable state of political affairs, the Santa Ana Register speaks editorially as follows:

"Walter Parker, the Southern Pacific Company's political manager in Southern California, claims that at least two of the Orange county delegates to the State Senatorial convention will disobey the positive instructions given them by the county convention and vote for Miguel Estudillo of Riverside, thus insuring his nomination.

"That would mean the election of a Democrat to represent this Republican district in the State Senate.

"The suggestion of one of these delegates that all of them be called upon to publicly declare themselves on this subject must be recognized by every one of them as reasonable and right. In the public mind this suggestion will certainly assume the nature of a demand, and every man who doesn't show his hand must rest under a dark cloud of suspicion.

"What are you going to do about it, gentlemen? You owe it to yourselves individually, to each other, to your friends, to your party, to state just where you stand in this matter. Not so much for individual vindication—for in most instances that is unnecessary—but in order to narrow the suspicion down to the right parties, or eliminate it altogether if there are no 'right parties.'"

A still, small voice emanates from Santa Ana to the effect that the republican county central committee has in contemplation a plan to appoint delegates to the state and congressional convention, instead of selecting them by county convention. Any one with half an eye can see the purport of this plan. The object is two-fold:

- (1) To turn the delegation over to Herrin, who is hard pressed wherever the primary law prevails, and where voters are permitted honestly to express their choice at the ballot-box; and
- (2) To defeat Congressman Smith for renomination.

These two deals are intimately associated one with the other in the railroad program. Herrin will need votes in the August convention, and he desires to nominate his man Wright from San Diego for Congress. If Orange county can be stolen, Smith may be beaten, for Riverside and San Bernardino are ready to obey the crack of Herrin's whip. With Orange county in the railroad corral, Herrin would be in control of the Eighth Congressional district. With Orange county dominated by clean men of the party, the railroad will be whipped.

Clean members of the party are alert to this threatened danger, and if any attempt is made by the county central committee to do Herrin's bidding, that will be the signal for an immediate demand to have the primary law apply in Orange county. Our people will not stand for the raw, dirty work contemplated by the railroad push.

"The best abused and most popular man in the United States today!"

So Lodge rightly declared of Roosevelt, and at the declaration the national republican convention a few days ago flung conventions aside and for nearly an hour the great assemblage cheered and shouted in approval. The Massachusetts senator voiced a truth known to all. The enthusiasm of the convention, great as it was, was yet but a feeble echo of the applause of eighty millions of people.

By whom has Roosevelt been abused? By every seeker after special privilege, every monopolist and every hired mercenary of money; by every wealthy malefactor seeking immunity from the general law; by every stock swindler, every corruptionist and every bribe-giver—their friends, defenders, camp-followers and hired journalistic touts.

Why has Roosevelt been abused? asks the Los Angeles Express. Because he stood, without once yielding ground, for the people and against monopolies and trusts; for equal rights and against special privileges; because he has unyieldingly called to strict account criminals possessed of wealth at once enormous and ill-gotten, and compelled law-breaking corporations to obey the laws they were wont to break at their own scornful pleasure; because he has taught the people that the corruptionists are despicable and that the camp followers and hired journalistic touts of monopoly, the servants of illicit money, are proper objects of national scorn and contempt.

He is the most popular man in the United States today, because he has stood, never flinching, for the right of the people to rule themselves and against the usurpation by corporations of the powers of government. They have not been able to frighten him, brow-beat him or buy him. He has fought for the public welfare against great odds and the people of this nation are not ungrateful.

The nomination of William Howard Taft by the republican convention was a foregone and fit conclusion. No better man could have been chosen. His pre-eminent aptitude for the office of chief executive is so convincing that there was scarcely more than a nominal contest for the nomination. Mr. Taft's candidacy means a harmonious and united party, working to a single end. It is safe to promise him the vote of California by an impressive majority.

The country is not asked to take an untried man. Secretary Taft has been placed in more varied and more difficult places of responsibility than any other living American. A catalogue of the important functions that he has fulfilled in the service of the people would fill a page. He is proved to be a man of almost infinite variety and everywhere success has attended his work. In a word, he gets results.

On the bench he was an able and enlightened judge; in the Philippines he proved to be a great administrator; in Cuba and on the isthmus his diplomatic talents made things smooth for Uncle Sam. Always ready at the call of duty, his work in a dozen widely differing fields has showed in every instance the highest efficiency.

With all this to his credit the strong and well balanced personality of the man endears him to the nation. He is a man who does things and does them in a pleasant way. Endowed with the calm, judicial temperament, he sees life as a whole in all its parts, ready to make allowances for the weak and equally well prepared to put a bridle on the powerful, should they seek to misuse their strength.

Taft is an American of the Americans. He represents the best type of our citizenship. His life has been pure and honorable and the tale of his accomplishment is long and illustrious. We venture to hazard the assertion that the nomination of Taft for president will produce so powerful an effect on business and industry that the prosperity of the country will follow as its earliest result. With good crops in promise and the political safety of the country assured by this nomination the future should not be doubtful.

Oppose the Amendment

At a meeting of the Los Angeles realty board some days ago, G. M. Giffen addressed the body on a proposition known as "senate constitutional amendment No. 1," which provides for the payment to the state instead of the cities and counties of taxes by certain stipulated corporations such as railroads, street car and sleeping car companies, express and telegraph companies. Giffen explained the proposed reform measure as a concerted scheme on the part of the corporate few to vilify, rob and browbeat the masses. He urged that the realty board put forth effort to defeat it. No vote has yet been taken, however, and it is therefore impossible to know what action the board will take.

The proposed amendment provides for the "reform of taxation in California," drafted in accordance with the recommendations of the state commission on revenue and taxation, composed of Governor Gillett, Senators J. B. Curtin and M. L. Ward, Assemblymen H. S. G. McCartney, E. F. Treadwell and Carl C. Plehn. The amendment was adopted by the legislature March 9, 1907, and is to be voted on by the people next fall.

It is explained that the amendment provides that corporations shall pay a percentage on their gross earnings to the state and be exempt from city and county taxes. There would be a commission comprising four persons, to be elected by the people, to sit in judgment over the corporations, to assess and levy the taxes according to instructions. These taxes would range from 3 to 4 per cent of the franchise.

Giffen pointed out that such an amendment would work an injustice on the people and in opposition to the interests and advancement of real estate. It would allow the "favored" to work with greater ease than heretofore.

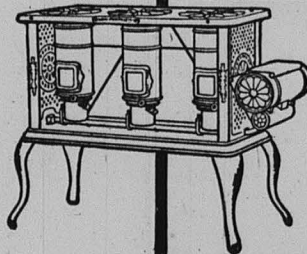

If Governor Gillett undertakes to "punish" President Benjamin Ide Wheeler or professors in the State University generally who have taken a keen interest in the principles of the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League, he will have his hands full.

President Wheeler as well as nearly a hundred of the professors and instructors in the University of California have recognized the League as an organized means toward political freedom and civic decency, and have courageously declared themselves in sympathy with its objects.

Any attempt to strangle the free expression of personal opinion and untrammelled citizenship in the educational institutions of this state will be vigorously resented by the people of the State generally.

OUR NATURAL RESOURCES

A Story by Gifford Pinchot, Forester of the U. S. Department of Agriculture—A Great Problem Before Us.

The conservation of our natural resources is a subject which has received little attention in the past; but the facts in the case are so simple, the principles so elementary, and our duty so clear, that they might be fitly presented in a story like one of the old fairy tales that we all loved when we were boys and girls. Such a story would run like this: Once upon a time there was a young nation which left its home and moved on to a new continent. As soon as the people who formed the first settlements began to examine the value and condition of this new continent, they found it marvelously rich in every possible resource. The forests were so vast that, in the early days, they were not a blessing, but a hindrance. The soil was so rich and there was so much of it that they were able at first only to cultivate the edges of their great property. It was quite plain to these people in the early times that, however much land they might cover, however much they might waste, there was always going to be plenty left. As time went on they discovered greater and greater resources. They found wonderfully rich deposits of metallic ore; great oil and gas fields and vast stretches of the richest bituminous and anthracite coal lands; noble rivers flowing through broad expanses of meadow; rich alluvial prairies; great plains covered with countless herds of buffalo and antelope; mountains filled with minerals; and everywhere opportunities richer than any nation had ever found elsewhere before.

They entered into this vast possession and began to use it. They did not need to think much about how they used their coal or oil or timber or water—they would last—and they began to encroach on the supply with freedom and in confidence that there would always be plenty. The only word with which they described what they had, when they talked about it, was the word "inexhaustible."

Let us see for a moment what the course of development of this young nation was. First of all they feeded men and women to settle on the land and bring up children and have a stake in the country. That was absolutely necessary before they could develop the great nation which some of them saw ahead. As the population spread there arose a need that great systems of transportation should be built to knit the country together and provide for the interchange of its products. These railroads called for iron, coal and timber in great quantities. Then began an unprecedented demand upon the forests. They could not build these transcontinental railroad lines without millions upon millions of railroad ties cut from the forests of the country; and they could not mine the iron and coal except as the forests gave them the means of timbering their mines, transporting the ore, and disposing of the finished product. The whole civilization which they built up was conditioned on iron, coal and timber. As they developed their continent, richer than any other from the East coast to the West, new resources became revealed to them, new interests took possession of them, and they used the old resources in new ways.

In the East, the rivers meant to them only means of transportation; in the West they began to see that the rivers meant first of all crops; that they must put the rivers on the land by irrigation before they could grow wheat, alfalfa, fruits, sugar beets and other crops that make the West rich. They found that to feed the vast population which had grown up in the East they must have the vast ranges of the West to grow meat. They found that the resources of soil and water which produced the wheat, the cotton and the meat—of iron and coal, and of timber, together made up the working capital of a great nation, and that the nation could not grow unless it had all of these things. In taking possession of them our nation used them with greater effectiveness, greater energy and enterprise, than any other nation had ever shown before. Nothing like our growth, nothing like our wealth, nothing like the average happiness of our people can be found elsewhere; and the fundamental reason for this is, on the one side, the vast natural resources which we had at hand, and on the other side the character, ability and power of our people.

Now what have we done with these resources which have made us great, and what is the present condition in which this marvelously vigorous nation of ours finds itself? The keynote of our times is "development." Every man from New York to San Francisco looks to the development of the natural resources to produce the advantages and the opportunities he wants for his neighbors and his friends. Anyone who questions the wisdom of any of the methods we are using in bringing that development to pass, because he believes we are making mistakes that will be expensive later on, is in danger of being considered an enemy to prosperity. He is in danger of having it thought of him that he does not take pride in our great achievements, that he is not a very good American. But in reality it is no sign that a man lacks pride in the United States and the wonderful things our people have done in developing this great country because he wants to see that development go on indefinitely. On the contrary, real patriotism and pride in our country make it the first of all duties to see that our nation shall continue to prosper. In sober truth, we have brought ourselves into a condition in which the very serious diminution of some of our most necessary resources is upon us.

This nation has, on the continent of North America, three and a half million square miles. What shall we do with it? How can we make ourselves and our children happiest, most vigorous and efficient, and our civilization the highest and most influential, as we use that splendid heritage? Ought not the nation to undertake to answer that question in the spirit of wisdom, prudence and foresight? There is reason to think we are on the verge of saying to ourselves: "Let us do the best we can with our natural resources; let us find out what we have, how they can best be used, how they can best be conserved. Above all, let us have clearly in mind the great and fundamental fact that this nation will not end in the year 1950, or a hundred years after that, or five hundred years after that; that we are just beginning a national history the end of which we can not see, since we are still young." In truth we are at a critical point in that history. As President Roosevelt has said, we are at the turning of the ways. We may pass on along the line we have been following, exhaust our natural resources, continue to let the future take care of itself; or we may do the simple, obvious, common-sense thing in the interest of the nation, just as each of us does in his own personal affairs.

On the way in which we decide to handle this great possession which has been given us, on the turning which we take now, hangs the welfare of those who are to come after us. Whatever success we may have in any other line of national endeavor, whether we regulate trusts properly, whether we control our great public service corporations as we should, whether capital and labor adjust their relations in the best manner or not—whatever we may do with all these and other such questions, behind and below them all is this fundamental problem, are we going to protect our springs of prosperity, our sources of well being, our raw material of industry and commerce, and employer of capital and labor combined; or are we going to dissipate them? According as we accept or ignore our responsibility as trustees of the nation's welfare, our children and our children's children for uncounted generations will call us blessed, or will lay their suffering at our doors. We shall decide whether lives, on the average, are to be lived in a flourishing country, full of all that helps to make men comfortable, happy, strong and effective, or whether their lives are to be lived in a country like the miserable outworn regions of the earth which other nations before us have possessed without foresight and turned into hopeless deserts. We are no more exempt from the operation of natural law than are the people of any other part of the world. When the facts are squarely before us, when the magnitude of the interests at stake is clearly before our people it will surely be decided right.

ON THE TEXAS FEVER TICK

Eradication of the Pest will save Stockmen of South and West Millions of Dollars Annually.

The Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture is resuming active operations for the eradication of the cattle ticks which prevail in the southern part of the country and transmit the contagion of Texas fever of cattle. Its men are being sent into the field and preparations are being made to push the work of extermination vigorously during the warm weather, when the ticks are most active.

Since this work was begun, two years ago, an area of about 55,000 square miles, or almost the size of the State of Georgia, has been freed from the ticks. As a result the quarantine on southern cattle has been either modified or entirely removed from this area. Last year work was done to a greater or less extent in the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Texas and California, and it is proposed this year to continue in the same States with the addition of a small portion of Mississippi. Most of the work has been and will continue to be done in sections contiguous to the quarantine line, the object being to push the line farther south from year to year; but encouragement is given to local work in any part of the quarantined district in the assurance that when any considerable area is rendered tick free it will be released from quarantine.

The work is being done by cooperation between the Federal Government and the State and local authorities. Congress has appropriated $250,000 for the year beginning July 1, and it is expected that the States and counties where the work is carried on will duplicate this sum. The committee on appropriations of the House of Representatives expressed itself very strongly to the effect that the States should bear a reasonable share of the cost and that the Federal work should be mainly confined to States where cooperation is received.

Various methods for exterminating the ticks are used, including transferring the cattle from pasture to pasture at suitable intervals, and dipping, spraying, and hand dressing the cattle with oil and oil emulsion. In sections where there are large herds and large ranches dipping on a large scale is practiced, either alone or in connection with pasture rotation, while in other sections, where the cattle on some farms frequently consist only of a cow or an ox team, hand dressing with oil is found to be the only practicable method.

The damage caused by the ticks and the benefits to follow from their eradication are not generally appreciated. It is estimated that the Texas-fever tick is responsible for about $40,000,000 of loss annually to the people of the infected country, and that it also lowers the assets of the South by an additional $23,250,000, making the enormous aggregate of $63,250,000. To wipe out this heavy loss is the object of the work now under way, and the results already accomplished leave no doubt that success is possible, though a number of years will be required for the completion of the undertaking. Much depends upon the cattle owners, who can either hasten or retard progress according as they co-operate or refuse to assist in the work.

Literature giving full information as to the ticks, the disease which they transmit, and methods for their eradication has been issued by the Department of Agriculture, and will be supplied free of charge on application to the Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Washington, D. C.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

This eminent scholar and gentleman, who is at the head of the Forestry Bureau, is expected shortly to visit Southern California, and will probably pass through Anaheim in an automobile ride with a committee of the Tri-Counties Re-forestation committee. The committee will hold its quarterly meeting at Santa Ana early next month. It is designed by local members of the committee to meet the Riverside and San Bernardino delegates, escorting Mr. Pinchot, at Richfield and drive to the Yorba reservoir, he having expressed a desire to see the structure. The route will be thence through Placentia, Fullerton and this city to Santa Ana, where lunch will be served and an afternoon meeting held. The party will probably arrive in Anaheim at 11 o'clock in the morning, and while Mr. Pinchot's time will be limited, it has been suggested that, in view of the importance of his work, our citizens be given an opportunity of meeting him, as in part showing their appreciation of his labors.

To long-time residents of Southern California nothing need be said of the importance of forestry. For years the GAZETTE has maintained a department devoted to forestry, the publisher leaning to the opinion that this question is the most important now before our people. To those who are not aware of the intents and purposes of the government's forestry bureau, it need but be said that these intents and purposes have only one thing in view—the increase of the rainfall, as well as the conservation of flood moisture. This great problem is solved by reforestation. In the San Bernardino mountains millions of pine trees have been and are now ready to plant. The government is doing this great work for every man who irrigates an acre of land, whether it be by gravity from canals or by means of "pumping plants. The question is one of absorbing interest, as it transcends every other in importance in the arid west. We hope all our readers are keeping in touch with the articles appearing weekly in our columns. They are from Mr. Pinchot's bureau, which has the cordial approval of President Roosevelt. We hope our readers, whether they be irrigators or not, are keeping posted upon these things. They are the most important now before the people of this city, county, state and nation.

Mr. Pinchot should be shown by our people that they hold him and his work in high regard. The chamber of commerce could probably arrange the details of the reception to him, which must be necessarily brief, but which, we have no doubt, will not be looked upon with disapproval by the distinguished visitor within our gates.

There have been few republican national conventions at which the causes for friction have been so few and so trivial as this year at Chicago. Secretary Taft lifted the contest to a dignified and friendly plane when he rendered his decision to make no effort to invade the "favorite son" states. Each aspirant has had a fair chance, and the Taft majority in the convention can be truly said to represent the wishes of the great mass of republican voters all over the United States.

Taft and Sherman. Peaceful Bill and Sunny Jim. Twill do.

APPOINTING DELEGATES

Word comes from reliable authority that it is the purpose of machine members of the county central committee to prevail upon the committee to appoint delegates to the state and congressional district conventions. This means nothing more nor less than that a bunch of local statesmen who could not be selected as delegates by a regularly elected convention, and who are in receptive mood as to attending these conventions as delegates, may have an opportunity again to lick Herrin's hand and to have him again pat them upon their shaggy backs. Incidentally they also conspire to the defeat of Congressman Smith for renomination, for no other reason than that Herrin has picked out Lawyer Wright of San Diego to take Smith's place.

These tall-grass statesmen are reckoning apart from the rank and file of the party, who, while they offer no objection to this sort of prostitution before Herrin, protest that this unholy thing be not done in the name of the party and the people. Clean republicans of Orange county, who condemned the appointment of 393 Herrin delegates to the May convention, will rise up in arms at the very thought of perpetrating this infamy upon them. It must not be done.

The argument speciously advanced by advocates of this rape of the party is that "there will be very little to do" by county conventions following the August primaries. They assume a very sober face—these sanctified patriots—when condescending to inform you of the harmlessness of appointing state delegates, when they know in their hearts the while that they are doing the bidding of their master, who, mayhap, has promised to reward them, at some time in the future, with favors which the party, and not he, has the power of bestowing.

Let us have no appointed delegates from Orange county to the state convention. Moreover, if we have any Herrin henchmen upon the county central committee (as we undoubtedly have) let them be spotted, their gum-shoes removed and hob-nailed boots placed upon them. In a word, let them be tagged. If their precincts persist in choosing them as members of the committee—if there are no clean men in these precincts willing to accept membership upon the committee—let us at least brand them so that all men may know who they are.

There will be abundant work for a county convention to do, apart from the selection of state and congressional delegates. Good ringing resolutions for Taft and Sherman ought in themselves to prove sufficient incentive for every elected delegate to repair to the county seat, to hear them and to participate in their composition. A good republican speech or two will go to fill in the afternoon very well. But whether the work of the convention be much or little, let us meet like clean men, elect our delegates and select clean men for the task. Let us have no binding of Orange county to the tail of Herrin's political kite.

A feature of the convention might be the request for receipts from delegates to the Sacramento convention, showing they paid their railroad fares, as the county convention instructed them to do. How many of these delegates paid their fares, and how many disobeyed the command of the party that they accept no favors of this kind from the railroad? Let us see where we stand. Let the county convention be regularly called.

The merry widow hat is here, but the sheath gown hasn't got as far as Whittier.

WITHIN THE PARTY

Although the Lincoln-Roosevelt republican league has earned the sympathy of men of all parties who do their own thinking, it is neither an independent movement nor a non-partisan movement. It is a movement within the republican party of the state of California, inaugurated by men who are themselves life-long republicans to hold the party in this state loyal to the ideals and principles which have always been advocated by the great leaders of the party in the nation and are openly advocated by leaders of the party in the nation today. In the minds of the honest voters within the party two questions naturally arise: First, is the machinery of the republican party in this state being employed by the men in control of it against the interests of the people of the state? Second, is this use or misuse of the party organization in line with the principles and professions of the great national republican party which has brought to the ranks of that party a vast majority of the best men of the nation? If not, the Lincoln-Roosevelt republican league has a right to an existence within the republican party in this state, and more than that, has a mission before it involving the greatest loyalty to the republican party and the greatest service to the people of the state.

Congressional Convention

The Republican Congressional committee for the Eighth district met at the Van Nuys hotel in Los Angeles on Saturday, and authorized the issuing of a call for the district convention, to be held at Santa Barbara Thursday, August 20, at 2 o'clock p. m.

Congressman Smith was present, as was also Senator Wright of San Diego, whom rumor now and then mentions as a possible rival of the Bakersfield man for renomination.

The committee found itself face to face with a peculiar situation in the district, inasmuch as some of the counties have already selected delegates, others have held conventions and have named no congressional convention delegates, while still others are yet to hold conventions. The committee therefore passed a resolution providing that delegates already named or hereafter to be selected by conventions shall be seated, and otherwise, county committees shall have the power to direct in what manner delegates shall be selected.

The basis of representation shall be one delegate for each 200 votes cast for Smith for Congress in 1906.

Clio Lloyd, chairman of the committee, extended an invitation on the part of Santa Barbara as the place for holding the convention, which was accepted, and the date fixed about 10 days in advance of the State convention, which will probably be held the first week in September.

Frank H. Hitchcock is unquestionably the man to manage the coming campaign. The work that he has accomplished has been remarkable. In all sections of the country, and especially in the south, his pre-convention campaign has been conducted with no breath of scandal and absolutely no charge of corruption, even by his opponents before the national committee. Not only will he conduct a successful campaign that will be as "clean as a whistle" and will reflect no discredit to the candidate or to the party, but he will command the confidence and respect of every member of the national committee.

Twenty-four paper manufacturers forming the paper trust plead guilty in New York on Monday to combining in restraint of trade, and were let off with a nominal fine of $2000 each. Suit against them was brought by the American Newspaper-Men's Association, who have suffered because of the exorbitantly high price of paper in recent years. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine.

"The fight for San Pedro harbor," says Senator Flint, "is won." For the people, or for the railroad, Frank?

By the way, what about the glorious Fourth? Anything doing?

Government, county and private veterinarians are investigating the cause of death of six head of cattle belonging to J. E. Levengood, following their dipping for Texas fever tick, week before last. The dip was the arsenic preparation recommended by the government. The cattle were dipped on Friday, June 12, some of them going through the vat twice the same day, and then were driven from the Joplin ranch in Bell canyon, to the Davis ranch, in Santiago canyon. On the way over one of the animals died and others died after reaching the latter ranch. Federal Inspector Coleman, State Veterinarian Keene, County Veterinarian McFarlane, Dr. R. A. Lord and Dr. Closson of Santa Ana, and other veterinarians have inspected the cattle, but have not yet arrived at a conclusion.

Twenty-one years ago, Burdette Chandler and C. R. Brown, the former a resident of Los Angeles and the latter a resident of Anaheim, purchased from the Southern Pacific company a tract of land in the neighborhood of Santiago canyon containing twenty acres. Later Brown dropped out of sight and his whereabouts is now not known, and during several years Chandler has borne the expense of keeping the title to the property clear, his disbursements amounting to twenty-five dollars. Chandler is tired of this sort of thing and as he cannot communicate with Brown, has asked the court to determine and adjudge his interest in the land to the end that he may know just what he is doing.

M. Fuestenfeld traded his 20-acre ranch at West Anaheim to John Elbinger of Los Angeles, for an apartment house in that city; consideration, $12,000. Hans Vossbeck negotiated the deal.

A disciple of Isaac Walton returned from San Diego county reports San Mateo creek, on the Santa Marguerita ranch, as being alive with trout, some being 18 inches long. Richard O'Neill, owner of the ranch, has for years prohibited fishing on his domain, and the fish have increased in number until there are now said to be thousands in the creek. Despite O'Neill's orders, sportsmen are said to have enjoyed rare sport in landing trout from the crystal waters. Foragers who contemplate fishing expeditions to San Mateo creek should beware of O'Neill's dogs as well as the speed limit.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Miller, Mr. Miller's mother and young son departed over the Santa Fe on Tuesday for a three months visit with relatives and friends in Cleveland and other points east.

George Schneider, charged with embezzling the sum of three hundred dollars from the funds of the Court Orange Belt, I.O.O.F., Fullerton, on Monday pleaded guilty and was placed in care of Sheriff Lacy as probation officer for the period of five years. Judge West gave the man some fatherly advice and District Attorney Davis seemed to think the ends of justice would be well served by not sending Schneider to the penitentiary and he was therefore placed in charge of Sheriff Lacy with instructions to report at stated intervals as to his conduct and the manner in which he spends his money. Schneider's wife was in court with him and stood by him bravely to the end. Schneider is a Fullerton printer and friends have come to his assistance, he having heretofore borne a good reputation.

The Turner singing section picnicked in Santiago canyon on Sunday and had an enjoyable outing. In the party were 32, including a number of ladies. Songs were sung at the county park, and later the members climbed the tallest peak in the range and awoke the echoes with their melody. A beautiful basket lunch was served at noon, and later in the afternoon coffee and cakes were passed around. The party returned in the evening at 7. The canyon is truly a lovely spot, and the outing was one long to be remembered.

Fred Weisel piloted John and Robert Steinko and their families on an auto trip to Pomona and Lordsburg on Sunday.

Roman Wisser returned on Monday evening from a fortnight's sojourn at San Juan springs.

E. A. Byrne left on Tuesday evening for a two months' visit to Chicago New York and other points east.

Mr. and Mrs. Worth Welch of Los Angeles were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Spake.

Factories Near Farms

How Protection of Infant Industries Has Resulted in Benefit to Agriculture—Beet Sugar Menaced by Free Importations From Cuba and Philippines

THE "POOR FARMER" AND THE "INFANT INDUSTRY."

Two propositions are advanced by the opponents of protection as reasons for their objections to that policy. One is its alleged "injury to the farmers of the country," the other that "protection should not be allowed upon any basis, except for a brief time in the interests of infant industries."

The influence of protection in planting factories next to the farm is one of the most beneficent that has attended the policy during all its history. The rapid advancement of manufacturing industries throughout the middle west has come to be recognized as the greatest boon to that agricultural section. The diversification of industries has an admittedly helpful tendency in upholding the prices of bread-stuffs and provisions, which find readier and better markets by reason of the development of manufacturing in close proximity to the field of agricultural endeavor. It has long ceased to be a subject of reproach, even among the most virulent free trade advocates, that "protection is only for the benefit of the few manufacturing plants in New England." The great middle west is developing manufacturing plants so rapidly that the center of production in manufacturing is transferred next to the farms.

Regarding the effect of continued protection upon the agricultural sections, testimony is furnished by Secretary Wilson, of the Agricultural Department, that in the year 1907, closing a period of ten years of protection under the Dingley law, the American farmers had their greatest prosperity. In his last annual report, covering the year 1907, Secretary Wilson said:

"Wealth production on farms in 1907, as expressed in value, transcended the high record of 1906, which was itself much above the highest amount before reached. In arriving at the total farm products of the year are estimated in value for every detail presented by the census and at that point in production at which they acquire commercial value.

The grand total for 1907 is $7,412,000,000. This is $657,000,000 above the value of 1906, $1,103,000,000 above the value of 1905, and $2,695,000,000 above the census amount for 1899.

The value of the farm products for 1907 was 10 per cent greater than 1906, 17 per cent over 1905, 20 per cent over 1904, 25 per cent over 1903, and 57 per cent over 1899.

A simple series of index numbers shows the progressive movement of wealth production by the farmers. The value of the products of 1899 being taken at 100, the value for 1903 stands at 125, for 1904 at 131, for 1905 at 134, for 1906 at 143, and for 1907 at 157.

During the last nine years wealth estimated as above explained was created on the farms to the fabulous amount of $53,000,000,000."

That is the answer, made by the highest authority in this country, to the question as to the effect upon the progress of the great agricultural industry, and whether the policy of protection is a help or a hindrance to agriculture in the United States.

BEET SUGAR

The beet-sugar industry in the United States has not had the advantages of adequate and continuous protection, even during the life of the Dingley tariff. The industry is constantly menaced by such acts of Congress as opened to Cuban sugar freer access to the markets of the United States and the threats of increased importations of free sugar from the Philippines. In the face of these untoward circumstances, remarkable progress has been made in the industry even in the past few years. In 1899 there was invested in the beet-sugar industry in this country $20,141,710. Employment was given to 1,970 workmen who received annual wages aggregating $1,092,207, and the value of the product was $7,323,857. In 1904 the aggregate capital invested in the industry had nearly trebled, going up to $55,923,489. The number of workmen had increased to 3,903, and the aggregate annual payments to $2,476,702. The value of the aggregate products for that year was $24,393,794, and for the year 1907 over $40,000,000.

The adoption of Cuban reciprocity, which treaty reduced the duty upon sugar coming into the United States 20 per cent below the rate fixed in the Dingley tariff law, caused the construction of beet-sugar factories in the United States to halt and the capital invested in those already built to tremble with fear of further disaster to that industry by the agitation of free trade with the Philippine Islands.

That the enactment of Cuban reciprocity has been most disastrous to the United States is proven by a review of our exports and imports from Cuba for the past eight years, which covers a period prior and four years subsequent to the enactment of that treaty. As an illustration, our exports to Cuba, for four years prior to December 27, 1903—which was the date of putting Cuban reciprocity into effect—averaged in round numbers $25,000,000 per year, and for the four years succeeding the adoption of that law our exports averaged $40,000,000 per year, while during the same period our imports from Cuba amounted to about $40,000,000 annually, and for the succeeding four years more than $80,000,000 annually, and the 20 per cent reduction of duty given to Cuba cost the United States government in the past four years more than $40,000,000. So that in order to secure a market in Cuba in the past four years for an increase of $60,000,000 in our exports we were compelled to take more than $183,000,000 increase of Cuban imports and make her a present of $40,000,000 in cash.

My republican friends, I caution you to be careful in any steps you may take toward a reduction of our present tariff schedules.

It is a matter of interesting speculation among those who have watched the struggle of the beet-sugar industry in this country what it would have accomplished if, instead of those harmful conditions, the industry had been accorded adequate and continuous protection.—From speech of Hon. Joseph W. Fordney, House of Representatives, May 21, 1908.

AFTER THE BIRD BUTCHERS

New York, June 22.—That whole regions of the Florida everglades have within the last three years been robbed of every vestige of bird life to supply the world's millinery market with plumage of the heron that formerly bred there in countless numbers was reported here today. From several ornithologists, who have just completed a survey of this section, reports have been sent to the headquarters of the National Association of Audubon Societies declaring that where America was most rich in tropical races of birds it is totally barren today. At this rate of devastation, it is asserted, the plume hunters will leave this country entirely stripped of all its birds of plumage within five years.

To halt the world-wide activities of the professional plume hunters, whose forces have reached and despoiled America's rarest resorts, England is already taking firm steps. From end to end the British Empire has been ravaged as Florida has by the market feather seekers. A bill similar to the "model law," which the Audubon workers have succeeded in leading almost every state in this country to adopt, is today being pressed by Lord Avebury in the House of Lords for the prohibition of the importation of the plumage, skin or body of all wild birds except ostriches, elder ducks and birds used as articles of diet. Acting upon the startling reports from Florida, the Audubon officials declared that laws against the sale of the trophies of this butchery, irrespective of where they were taken, would be urged throughout this country. Although the English bill is even more sweeping than the Audubon "model law" here, it is believed that with proper enforcement the latter may serve to stay the encroachment of the international commercial bird slaughter. Eventually it is the purpose of the association to perfect an organization to check this scouring of the globe for the adornment of the nations at the expense of their bird life.

The aesthetic reasons for checking this universal butchery of all birds who bear the fatal charm of beauty are secondary," said William Dutcher, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies at its headquarters, 141 Broadway. "The primary reasons are strictly economic. These birds, entirely aside from their wonderful delights as objects of beauty, form the basis of our nation's health as well as prosperity. What the street cleaning department is to the metropolis the sea birds are to the whole

HAPPY HOME FOR BOYS

An Educational Institution Conducted by Sisters of St. Dominic, of Which Anaheim is Justly Proud—Tender Treatment

At request of the Sisters of St. Dominic, who conduct a school for boys on Palm street in this city, the Editor prepared the following brief descriptive article of the school for publication in a special edition of The Tidings, published in Los Angeles. The article was printed in that paper on June 19th:

An educational institution in which the citizens of Orange county take conscious pride is the boys' home conducted by the Dominican Sisters on Palm street in the City of Anaheim. Here twenty-one sisters of this order are rearing upward of two hundred boys, many of them orphans and half orphans, and are inculcating into their minds the elementary principles of good citizenship.

The buildings and grounds occupy a slightly tract of twenty-six acres, the grounds being highly ornamented with palm and evergreen trees, lawns, shrubs and flowers. Winding walks meander through the grounds and are bordered with flower beds maintained in a high state of cultivation. The main building is a commodious three-story and basement brick structure. Numerous frame buildings nearby are devoted to the uses of class rooms, dining rooms, dormitories and a chapel.

The boys rise at 6:30 in the morning and an hour later are breakfasted. The morning and afternoon hours are devoted to study. The course is identical with that taught in the public schools up to the eighth grade, and principles of Christian doctrine are daily instilled into their youthful minds. At noon they have dinner and at 6 o'clock supper is served. The dining rooms are nicely arranged and the tables well set. Neat china and silver are at each place. The tables spread with snowy table cloths and the viands wholesome and well prepared. They are fed plenty of fruits, berries and vegetables, of which the rich fields of the valley afford abundant supply. They are given meat once a day, with occasional variation of fish and fowl. Milk and butter are brought daily from a nearby dairy. They are comfortably housed, properly clothed and well provided for. Attention is paid to their diet and little sickness exists among them. During the nineteen years of the existence of this institution in which time hundreds of boys have been taught, only one death has occurred.

Probably the most interesting features of the boys' maintenance are the dormitories with their well ventilated and spacious apartments and neat beds arrayed in spotless linen. In the dormitories devoted to the younger children are scores of trundle beds placed side by side in long rows.

In each dormitory two sisters remain with the children over night. How often these good sisters are called during the night to attend to the numerous wants of their youthful charges the world will never know. Only those who have raised children and who know the never-ending tribulations which attend the younger minds, can be aware of the multitudinous duties devolving upon these faithful women who are giving their lives to the education and uplifting of these children.

Nearby is the infirmary with numerous beds placed in a well ventilated and airy apartment. Indeed, there is little use for this part of the home and when I visited it no child had been an inmate for many weeks.

In a new chapel recently erected the boys attend services, which are presided over by Rev. Father Byrne, whom the boys dearly love and who lives in a pretty little cottage on the grounds. The chapel is reached by two flights of stairs, and as in the case of the other buildings, is roomy and well ventilated.

The boys are obedient and well-mannered and speak politely to the visitor. They have a happy and well-conducted home and should never forget the beneficence of the state as well as the self-abnegation of these noble women who are making their education possible and fitting them for the manifold duties of citizenship to come in their after life. The boys are aged from 2 to 14 years. After reaching the latter age many go to attend other schools and colleges and others are taught useful trades.

Recognizing the importance of religious instructions, Rev. Father Stoeters, who was in charge of the parish here, but who is now at Santa Ana, invited the Dominican Sisters from San Francisco to open an academy in the parish, which institution was opened in 1889 and dedicated by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Mora. After a few years' existence it was considered advisable to have a home for boys instead of an academy, and the change was accordingly made. In the beginning six sisters composed the faculty and there were thirty-one boys in attendance.

In July, 1894, the first addition was built for the boys' home. In 1897 a second addition was constructed, and in 1900 other notable additions to the building were made. The chapel was erected in 1905. In this year the teaching of sloyd was taken up. In recent years other additions have been made to the buildings, including a playhouse, gymnasium and other features which go to their development in mind and body.

The only regret expressed by the sisters is that the buildings are inadequate to accommodate the constantly increasing number of children who desire to be admitted to the home. The buildings and grounds are kept in sanitary condition and there is about the home an air of culture and refinement which is pleasing to the eye of the observer.

These noble daughters of St. Dominic are faithfully giving their lives to the teaching and development of their youthful charges. This they are doing as tenderly and as lovingly as the proudest mother and are thereby storing up for themselves treasures imperishable on high.

IN SEARCH OF NEW BUGS

George Compere, the famous bug-hunter for California, and West Australia, who recently returned to this state from a world-circling tour in search of parasites for scalepest, is off for Siam and the Isles of the Orient to again take up his search. Mr. Compere is probably the most famous bug hunter on earth, and his present mission bids fair to be the most important he has ever undertaken. He goes first to New Jersey, there to collect and forward to the state insectary certain species of native lady birds that may be of value in attacking plant lice here. Thence he will go to Northern Germany and then to the Balkan States, his quest in Europe being confined primarily to parasites of the codlin moth and of the aerial form of the woolly aphid. Finishing his search there, he will spend a few days in citrus districts of Italy, making a more minute search for the enemies of the black scale. At Naples he will procure a large number of citrus nursery stock for shipment to Hong Kong to be used for infection by the scale insects of Asia.

He will spend two or three weeks in Northern Egypt where species of lady birds are known to prey upon the many scale pests there abounding. His next stopping-place will be Colombo, Ceylon, where he will confer with a noted resident entomologist and with him try to locate parasites for citrus pests known to exist in the island. Compere will next go to the Mysore provinces in India and there carry out a campaign in detail as arranged in connection

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by the agreeable, aromatic Ely's Cream Balm. It is received through the nostrils and cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. Druggists sell the 50c. size. Test it and you are sure to continue the treatment till relieved.

Announcement.

To accommodate those who are partial to the use of atomizers in applying liquids into the nasal passages for catarrhal troubles, the proprietors prepare Cream Balm in liquid form, which will be known as Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Price including the spraying tube is 75 cents. Druggists or by mail. The liquid form embodies the medicinal properties of the solid preparation with the establishment of a sub-station at Hong Kong. This will bring him to the latter point where he will build a small breeding-house in which will be placed the trees sent from Italy and gathered in Southern India for this purpose. These trees will be planted in boxes so they can be dispatched to California with their parasitized scales without difficulty.

From Hong Kong, where he will establish headquarters, he will make an entomological exploration of China, Japan, Korea and India in every district that promises results. His shipments of parasites will be by every boat and in large quantities, to be tried out through the insectary at Sacramento where preparations are being made on a large scale for handling these seedlings. He will collect all beneficial insects on a given pest instead of giving preference to one species supposed to be the real thing, and which has proved of no value whatever so often in the past.

Mr. Compere has been directed to make an innovation upon his former work. He will collect a lot of pear stock from the interior of China which some people believe to be immune to pear blight. This will be forwarded to the state commission and distributed to university and the department of agriculture, where the test can be made to determine if such immunity to blight exists, and if the quantity may be transmitted from stock to scion. Compere will also try out a new process of retarding the development of his parasites from the time he takes them from their native places to the substation at Hong Kong. He has originated a portable refrigerator to be carried like a hand-bag, and expects it to be of some assistance. He will have insects on ice in India, where the thermometer ranges out over the end of the tube on frequent occasions.

The department of agriculture of the Hawaiian Islands has given Prof. Koebele a long vacation on full pay in partial recognition of his services in the past as a searcher for parasitic insects. Koebele has no superior in this line, and, his health failing, it is pleasant to know his government appreciates the work he has done and is now giving him the chance to recuperate his shattered health. He was known to scores of the pioneers of Los Angeles both personally and professionally, having lived there, and soon after leaving becoming the agent of the most remarkable achievement in economic entomology the world has ever experienced. It is true that none of his later work has approached that of the introduction of the Vedalia into the orchards of Southern California, but his work in the Sandwich Islands has been satisfactory.

The demand of the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League for open primaries at which the preference of Republican voters may be freely expressed both as to measures and candidates, is essentially fair. No

Minutes of Water Board

ANAHEIM, CAL., June 20, '08.
Regular meeting of the board of directors of the A. U. W. Co. was held on the above date with all members present except director McLaughlin. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

A communication from J. Dyckman et al offered the sum of $155 as a contribution toward the construction of a pipe line from the southwest corner of the A. B. Annin place to the northeast corner of the Walgrove tract. The petition was filed.

On motion of director Sherwood seconded by director Drake the secretary was instructed to sign on behalf of the company the assessment statements heretofore presented to the board.

A deed of right of way from R. S. Gregory and J. E. Walker was referred to the attorney for inspection, a new deed to be secured if this is found not satisfactory.

A petition from J. E. Walker et al asking that a pipe line be put in along the boundary line between said Gregory and said Walker, they agreeing to pay 65 per cent of the total cost, was placed on file.

A communication from F. and W. Thum company referring further to the matter of waste water from his ranch and also enquiring about the advisability of putting in a cement ditch was referred to the ditch committee to report at next meeting. The secretary was instructed to notify said Thum company of the action of the board.

The secretary was instructed to call attention of the superintendent to some needed repairs on the ditch southwest of the Tuffee reservoir.

An indemnity bond of $10,000 was presented by the First National bank, treasurer. The sureties were R. McIlrose and Frank Shanley. The bond was accepted.

Applications on file for transfer of stock were granted.

In view of the fact that sidewalk construction in the city of Anaheim had made it impossible for Mr. Olmstead to get water on his land during recent runs permission was given him to rent additional stock on run 3, provided the same be done before the water reaches his land.

The meeting adjourned to July 7, '08, at 2 p. m.—P. H. KRICK, Sec'y.

Beaumont Sales are Numerous

Over 100 investors have been taken to Beaumont during the past week on home-seekers' excursions, resulting in sales of acreage and lots totaling $4800. Most of the buyers are preparing to move to Beaumont so as to plant orchards in advance of the fall rains. The cultivation of blackberries, raspberries and currants promise to have a decided impetus from now on. Blackberries in Beaumont have been known to yield at the rate of $500 an acre. The potato yield at Beaumont will reach $15,000. Over $10,000 worth of onions will be harvested. In anticipation of the shipment of the apple, pear and prune crop many buyers are now in Beaumont contracting for these products. There are over 200 acres of orchards in this valley that have produced continuously for 20 years without irrigation.

The extraordinary last Sunday issue of the Los Angeles Herald containing the result of the prize contest was delivered by automobile at Fullerton and Anaheim before 6 am Monday morning, giving the Herald readers the news of Miss Ida winning the grand prize. John G. Wirpsching did the deed. Good for Anaheim.

Mexican Wild Turkeys

The Mexican line steamer Curacao arrived at San Pedro some days ago with a shipment of 150 giant turtles from Magdalena bay to San Francisco commission houses. The unwieldy marine animals presented a grotesque spectacle crawling about in the immense pen constructed for their accommodation well up in the bows.

The pier head line was crowded with curious idlers watching this, the largest shipment of turtles ever entered at this port.

Next in interest was six crates of Mexican wild turkeys, in charge of W. E. Van Slyck of the State Fish and Game association of California.

The birds will be turned loose in the San Bernardino mountains as soon as the customs officials in Los Angeles have inspected them.

The birds, of which there are three varieties, were caught by Indians in Sinaloa, Mex., 150 miles inland from Mazatlan, and were obtained by the state commissioners in the hope that they will flourish in the San Bernardino range, where the feed and climatic conditions are very nearly identical with that on the Sinaloa ranges.

The varieties in this, the first shipment ever brought into this country, are classified by the local, or Indian, names as follows: Cornelianas, a handsome white plumaged bird almost as large as the American bronze back; the "Pisons," or black tufted turkey, very wild and gamey, and the "Chuckalacky," a white flecked with drab bird of a smaller variety and the king of fast flyers among Mexican game owl.

Farmer Awarded Damages

A verdict of $2000 damages was brought in by the jury that tried the beardless barley case in the Superior court the other day.

W. H. Chromicle sued the Southwest Warehouse company for $4050, which amount he asserted he had lost because seed barley he bought from the company turned out to be beardless, instead of bearded, the kind commonly planted in this county. A number of other men ranching on the Irvine holdings bought grain from the Southwest people, and all thought it was bearded barley, but the warehouse company says it warranted it for nothing but seed barley. Scores of witnesses were examined during the ten days of trial. Orange county ranchers testified that barley means bearded barley among them. The company had witnesses from as far away as Tehachapi, who said beardless barley makes a good crop on good soil. The defense claimed that Chromicle's land was not good.

The jury concluded that because the seed was beardless, Chromicle lost eight sacks to the acre. Had it been bearded, the crop would have been about ten sacks. Chromicle harvested two.

This is the first suit against the company. It involved the planting of 250 acres. The second suit involves five or six times that amount, and will be tried on October 26. Judge Densmore of Riverside heard the case.

Mrs. Amberg sustained the loss of a beautiful fern on Tuesday evening which was taken from its place on the front lawn at the residence on Claudina street. This suggests the disappearance of many ferns and flowers a year ago, and the subsequent arrest of an unbalanced Russian girl who confessed the thefts. The question arises, has the girl returned to her old tricks?

Killed in Auto Wreck

S. O. Minter, aged 35, head machinist in Fuller's garage, at Fullerton, was instantly killed at 5 o'clock on Friday evening, two miles north of that town, by the overturning of an automobile to which he was giving a trial trip after repairing.

While going down a slight incline, the machine left the middle of the road, a quick turn was made and the auto climbed a bank at least three feet high. The machine overturned and one of the spokes entered the upper part of Minter's neck on the left side, coming out on the opposite side of the head, just below the ear. Four ribs were also broken.

Three La Habra school boys, 100 yards ahead, heard the machine coming at a terrific rate, and looked back in time to see the accident. They lifted the machine off the man.

A month ago Minter had a fainting spell while in a barber chair and recently complained of heart attack. It is believed he had another attack while driving the auto, and lost control of the machine.

Coroner Smith held an inquest and the verdict of the jury was that death was caused by accident. Deceased leaves a wife, who was out riding when the accident occurred. When she returned at 6:30 p. m., the body had been brought to a local undertaker's.

Mrs. Minter attempted to take her life on Monday evening by taking chloroform, but neighbors saved her by hastily calling a physician and working with her. She is in a delicate condition, and penniless. Charitable people of Fullerton will provide for her.

Los Alamitos

WEDDING OF POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE

At high noon on Sunday, June 21, 1908, at the Los Alamitos Congregational church Earl A. Gardner and Ida Fern Shutt were joined in holy bonds of matrimony. Both are residents of Los Alamitos, the bride being a member of the church. Rev. A. L. Seward officiated.

A very pleasant social occasion was this church wedding. The audience room was beautifully decorated in green with pink and white.

A bridal arch with a bell suspended from the center stood in front of the altar, while festoons of green hung from all the windows. One hundred or more invited guests assembled to witness the ceremony.

Mrs. F. K. Edwards played the wedding march from Lohengrin the bridal party proceeded down the separate aisles, the bride and her attendants being led by Marie Edwards as flower girl. Next came Miss Etta Pinais of Los Angeles as bridesmaid, dressed in white, carrying pink carnations; with her Little Lucile Radford, the bride's niece, carrying the ring in an Easter lily. Then followed the bride, dressed in white organdie, carrying white carnations, and leaning on the arm of her father.

While down the other aisle came the groom attended by James E. Dalton as best man, meeting the bride at the altar.

After the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to the door of the church where congratulations were received from their many friends.

At the residence of the bride's father, J. D. Shutt, an elaborate wedding dinner was served to the relatives and most intimate friends. Mr. Gardner is one of the many employees of the beet sugar factory here; a young man of promise, and highly esteemed by all who know him.

The bride has been a resident of this community for a number of years. As crystallized sweetness is a far famed product of Los Alamitos, Miss Shutt is a highly refined specimen, with good home-making accomplishments as well. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. At the church a lovely dinner set of china was presented them from the factory "boys." And a bamboo desk from the "Sunday School" of which Miss Shutt has been secretary for some years.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will be at home to their friends, after July 6 at their home in Los Alamitos.

Measuring Water

Men under H. Clay Kellogg, engineer for the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company and the Anaheim Union Water company, have begun making daily measurements of the flow of the Santa Ana river all the way from Souly's Point, where the water is taken out of the river, to San Bernardino. The measurements were taken and records made last year and similar records and measurements will be made this year. The companies by these measurements, keep in touch with the river's flow at different points.

Musical

The Apollo club met at the home of Mrs. Otto Storm on Friday afternoon, June 19. Many good selections of Chopin the composer studied during the month were well rendered. Mrs. Cornelle gave an interesting selection from an unpublished manuscript she was fortunate enough to secure. Mrs. Sumner charmed with a German song, while Mrs. Rehewoldt and daughter played the Funeral March in duet. It was decided to take up chorus work by the club as a whole, with Mrs. Cornelle as directress. Mrs. Dietrich and Miss Rehewoldt were voted in as new members. Eleven members were present and all reported an enjoyable and instructive afternoon.

The program was as follows:
Life of Chopin.....Miss Rehewoldt
Current Events.....Miss Rimpau
Polonaise op 26, No. 1.....Miss M. Rimpau
Lithmanian Song.....Mrs. Sumner
Nocturne No. 5.....Mrs. Falkenstein
Vocal—Echoes—Allen.....Miss Kennedy
Scherzo from unfinished P I
Prelude No. 7.....Mrs. Cornelle
Polonaise—Amazora.....Mrs. Vossbeck
Mazurka op 39, No. 3.....Mrs. Wallop
Mazurka op 50, No. 2.....Mrs. Grim
Intermezzo—Cavalleria Rusticana.....Miss G. Asher
Duet—Chopin's Funeral March.....Mrs. Rehewoldt and Miss Rehewoldt
Next meeting will be held at Mrs. Sumner's on July 17th.
