CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A Number of Floats for the Carnival of Products

Directors of the chamber of commerce met on Monday evening; present, Wickett, Enfield, Thomas, Schumacher and Mullinix.

Mr. Thomas, reporting for the committee on street paving, said he had had an interview with City Attorney Menrose relative to the proper manner of laying before the city trustees a proposition asking the municipality to stand half the cost of such work. He quoted the city attorney as saying he was undecided whether such procedure could be followed, although he had not had time carefully to look the matter up, and would do so at a later date. The matter went over. The directors are strongly in favor of street paving and will strive to bring this improvement about if there is any possibility of doing so.

Mr. Enfield reported upon the work of procuring floats for the Santa Ana carnival of products. It had been the intention of the chamber first to have three floats in today's parade, a manufacturer's float, a lemon float and a potato float. Mr. Enfield said this plan would have to be changed for the reason that there are no lemons or potatoes to be had. He was of opinion that a handsome manufacturer's float could be arranged, containing an exhibit of canned goods and other manufactured articles. He said that the Folding Crate company would have an exhibit of its manufactures, C. O. Rust would probably make a float displaying wines, and that the Union brewing company had under consideration an exhibit of light beers.

Enfield was thereupon, on motion of Thomas, seconded by Schumacher, delegated authority to go ahead and arrange the manufacturers' float.

Dr. Wickett brought up the matter of a float in the floral parade, and suggested that the services of Mrs. Gates be secured to decorate the same. He also suggested that a tally-ho be secured and that members of the city trustees be invited to join the directors of the chamber of commerce in attending the festivities.

The chamber decided to take up for discussion at its next meeting the amendments to the constitution to be submitted to voters at the general election next month.

Secretary Enfield was delegated authority to invite Attorney Callor to be present and lead off in the discussion. All voters interested are invited to be present and participate in the discussion.

Hall & Walls will in a few days open their wholesale liquor establishment in the Strodthoff block to the inspection of the purchasing public. They will carry a carefully selected stock of imported and domestic goods and will cater to high-class trade. The premises are being artistically fitted up with new shelving and counters, and the proprietors aim to have it in every way an up-to-date establishment.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES

Mr. Neff has arranged for the following farmers' institutes to be held the latter part of the month: Covina Oct. 23d, and 24th, Ontario Oct. 28th and 29th, Arlington Oct. 30th and 31st.

Prof. Ramsey of Whittier will speak on Diseases of Citrus Trees, Dr. Twombly on Soils and Care of Citrus Orchards, and Use of Commercial Fertilizers, Ernest Brautson on Planting Eucalyptus for lumber. Prof. Woglom of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is expected to be present and talk of Fumigation Investigations. Mrs. Basley of Hollywood will speak on Raising Young Chickens and Dr. Louise Harvey Clarke of Riverside on Sanitary Housekeeping. Mr. Neff will talk on Green Manure Crops. He is at present at Bakersfield, arranging for an institute at that point early next month.

H. W. HILL'S PROPERTY SOLD

Two riding horses, 6 years old, a saddle, bridle and whip belonging to H. W. Hill, who came here some weeks ago to start a restaurant and left owing bills to local business men, were sold at auction by Constable Litten on Monday morning. The property brought $234.50 under the hammer. Judgment and costs amounted to $265.28.

A. Nagel bought the first horse for $95, and Henry Hildebrand took the second at $90. Lennie Reynolds bid in the saddle at $27, Pete Nicolas secured the bridle for $21, and Tony Macias paid $1.50 for the whip.

A party claiming to represent Hill's attorney appeared and questioned the proceedings, after the first horse had been sold, but Judge Howard announced no snap judgment had been taken, that the defendant had had a plenty of time in which to attend to matters at issue, and ordering the sale to proceed.

The amount secured was prorated among creditors.

COMING HOME

Gerald Sandilands writes from Saranac Lake, N. Y., where he and his family have been spending the summer, that they leave there this week for home and expect to arrive in Anaheim on the 20th. He adds he and his family have been greatly refreshed by their vacation in that delightful spot in the Adirondacks. Immediately upon his return Mr. Sandilands will begin preparations for the coming orange season's business. He has been connected with this business, and has been well known throughout this section for the past fifteen years, and it has ever been his chief aim to see that growers with whom he deals receive satisfactory prices and a square deal. He continues:

"It is also a fact, which proves a good deal, that the growers who think the most of us are those whose fruit is sold through us regularly every year. The organization I am affiliated with is stronger than ever and has proved in the past all I have always claimed for them."

CONCERNING PRIMARY PUPILS

None Will Be Admitted In School After Tomorrow

School board met on Wednesday evening of last week and among other things decided not to admit beginners in the primary grade after tomorrow, Oct. 16th. Primary pupils who are not in school by that time will not be admitted during this school year; which means none will be permitted to enter until next September. New pupils who have already attended school and are up with their grades will be admitted as heretofore, but beginners will be required to abide by the new ruling.

The board was compelled to adopt this course on account of the disadvantages incumbent upon admitting beginners into classes where pupils are already well advanced in their studies. These latter are interfered with and classes are retarded by beginners who cannot keep up with pupils who started at the beginning of the school year.

Following is the official order issued by the school board:

"No more pupils will be admitted in the beginners' class (B 1st) this school year after October 16. If you wish your children to enter school during this school year, send them in by that date. There will be no beginners' class next January."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The high school will have its first debate of the year with Throop Polytechnic in Anaheim, on or before November 25. Preliminaries will be held in the high school on Monday afternoon at 2:45, and the team will be selected from the following boys entering: Jos. Burns, Leland Lewis, Robert McAnuly, George Chambers, Raymond Nebelung and Syril Tipton. All who are interested will be made welcome at the preliminaries. Throop will select one of the following questions for debate: 1. Resolved, that the Hawaiian Islands should be admitted to statehood. 2. Resolved, that free trade should be established between United States and Philippine Islands.

The first basket ball game of the season was played at high school grounds on Friday afternoon between teams from the first and third and second and fourth classes, and resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 12 to 10.

The high school debating league met Wednesday last and elected the following officers to serve during the present term: Raymond Nebelung president, Elton Goble vice president, Richard Ables secretary and treasurer.

DEATH OF A CHILD

Florence Cordes, aged 15, breathed her last at her home on Hedwig street at 1 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Death was caused by tuberculosis, of which she had been a sufferer for some months past. The remains were shipped Tuesday morning to Milwaukee, Wis., to be interred beside the bodies of her parents, who succumbed to the same fell destroyer, her father in this city a year ago last June and her mother in Milwaukee, three years ago.

Harold Cordes, brother of deceased, accompanied the remains.

Two younger brothers survive. Deceased was a sweet-faced child who up to the present year gave no sign of ill health. But the ravages of disease came upon her quickly, and none knew better than she what must be the final outcome of her malady. Knowing she could not live, she bore up bravely in the orphaned home until called to her final rest.

O. Lagman yesterday began the erection of a $2600 residence for Peter Weisel on Emily street, near Char-tress.

FOUND BURGLAR IN HOUSE

Had Flashlight and Dirk, with Which He Threatened Murder

As O. Lagman of this city was about to enter his residence at Long Beach on Saturday evening about 10 o'clock, he saw through the front glassdoor a burglar operating within. The burglar had a flashlight, which first attracted Mr. Lagman's attention.

Mr. Lagman entered the house, when he saw the man crouching, with a fourteen-inch dagger in hand, ready to strike. He stepped back to evade the contemplated thrust, and called to a passer-by, who came to his assistance.

The burglar was later found locked in the bathroom. With the dirk he cut his way out of the window and ran out of the yard.

Neighbors joined in the chase, and the burglar was captured in an adjoining yard. A neighbor fired a pistol in the air, when the burglar exclaimed he was shot and, on command, threw up his hands. A telephone message was sent to the chief of police, who soon arrived and took the man to jail.

He proved to be Frank Jameson, son of respectable parents, who live a block and a half from Mr. Lagman. His father was overcome at his son's misdeed.

Mrs. Jameson pleaded with Mr. Lagman not to prosecute her boy and he considerably complied with her request, although Jameson declared he would have killed him had he attempted to seize him while in the act of burglarizing his house.

On Monday Jameson was sentenced to sixty days in jail for petty larceny. A number of stolen articles were recovered. The house had been ransacked by the burglar.

The Travel section of the Ebell met with Mrs. F. C. Spencer on Saturday afternoon. Following was the program: Rollicall answered with interesting facts concerning Venice. Review of previous lecture by means of topics: Temple of Theseus, Mrs. Reh-woldt; Devastation of Athens by the Turks, Miss Zeyn; Academy of Science, Mrs. Dutton; Olympian Games, Mrs. Dyer; Lesson Taught Us by Athens, Mrs. Storm. The section was then taken upon a delightful literary trip through Venice under the leadership of Stoddard as read by Mrs. Storm and Mrs. Rose. A general discussion of the lecture followed, after which the critic's report was given by Miss Reh-woldt. The section will meet Saturday, Oct. 24, at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. Pearson on Walnut street. Rollicall to be answered with facts concerning Constantinople, the next lecture to be studied.

Mrs. McCoy and Miss Margaret Inda entertained a party of friends at the former's home Thursday evening. Games were played and refreshments served. A jolly time was had by all.

BANKERS IN SESSION

County Association Meets at First National Tuesday Evening

Members of Orange County Bankers' Association met in the directors room at the First National bank on Tuesday evening. An interesting business session was participated in, and many important questions discussed. Among the topics discussed were a number relating exclusively to the banking business; how to increase the commercial activity of our financial institutions and safeguard the interests of depositors.

Those present at the meeting and the banks represented were as follows: First National bank, Santa Ana—A. J. Crookshank, C. S. Crookshank; Commercial bank, Santa Ana—G. J. Mosbough, E. P. Stafford; Farmers & Merchants, Santa Ana—H. F. Rutherford, W. A. Huff; Farmers & Merchants, Fullerton—F. H. Daly, C. W. Crandell; First National bank, Fullerton—E. E. Balcom; First National bank, Anaheim—John Hartung, O. Storm; German American bank, Anaheim—C. A. Boege, Adolph Thomas; Orange County Savings bank—E. B. Burns; Huntington Beach—R. E. Graves.

After the business meeting the bankers were guests of Mr. Hartung at an elaborate banquet at his home on Center street. Two hours were spent at the festal board, and when the financiers departed at midnight they declared that never in the history of the association had such a pleasant meeting been held.

CLAMS IN DANGER

Local authorities are trying in every way to protect the clam beds in Anaheim Bay and in the Bay City lagoon. A law in Orange county reads to the effect that "no person is allowed to carry away at one time more than twenty-five pounds of clams or cockles." To evade the law clam diggers, in groups, each man bearing twenty-five pounds, ship their cockles weekly from Naples, which is in Los Angeles county. Unless the next legislature passes a law declaring a closed season for clams and cockles, Anaheim Bay cockle beds, famous for so many years throughout this section of the country, will soon be barren of the succulent bivalves.

A bill that has for its object the abolishment of the bank commission and other banking reforms, will be submitted to the legislative committee on banking by a sub-committee of the California banking association. The bill is in the form of a draft and will be widely distributed. And if it meets with the approval of the solons it will be presented to the state legislature next year. The amendments to the present banking laws are based on the New York law.

CENSUS OF STANDING TIMBER

NEEDED FOR INVENTORY OF NATION'S NATURAL RESOURCES

Will Be Made Basis for Computing How Long Timber in Places Will Last—Consumption of Wood is Already Known with Some Accuracy

(Correspondence of the Gazette)
Washington, Sept. 29.—The National Conservation Commission has caused the first comprehensive attempt at a census of the standing timber in the United States ever undertaken. The forest service has for several years been eager to take such a census, and the bureau of the census has expressed its willingness to co-operate, but funds have never been available. The conservation commission, however, needs the information to help complete its inventory of the country's natural resources, which it will include in its report to the president, and since that report is to be submitted on the first of next year, it needs the information at once. In consequence the work of the census has been started with a rush and is now under full headway.

It may be a slight exaggeration to speak of a census of timber, for of course it is impossible to count the individual trees in the forests; even the most ambitious plans of the forest service and the bureau of the census did not contemplate that. But a trained man can with great accuracy "cruise" a tract of forest and estimate the number of board feet it contains. Large portions of the forests of the country, including practically all the national forests, have been estimated at various times but these figures have never been brought together and no organized effort has ever been made to gather them into one total, nor to supply the deficiencies where hitherto no estimates have been made.

As a result, the guesses as to the amount of standing timber in the United States range all the way from 322,652 million to 2000 billion board feet—a difference of more than a trillion feet in the estimates of the best qualified authorities in the country.

In the opinion of the forest service, the most carefully prepared estimates yet made are those by Henry Gannett, published by the twelfth census in 1900. These placed the total stumpage at 1390 billion board feet. Mr. Gannett, it so happens, has been chosen by the president to compile all the information gathered for the commission, and with his previous acquaintance with the subject of forestry, he is at work now enlarging the knowledge of forest areas at present available.

The importance of this census lies largely in the fact that it will give an accurate basis for computing how long our timber supplies will last. Through the co-operation of the forest service and the census bureau the country's annual consumption of wood is known with tolerable accuracy, although even here there are some discrepancies, because a large amount of wood is used for posts, fuel, and domestic purposes, for which no satisfactory data have yet been collected. But the consensus of opinion among those equipped to judge is that the present annual consumption is about 100 billion board feet, or something more than that. One leading authority has placed it as high as 150 billion board feet.

Assuming a stumpage of 1400 billion feet, an annual use of 100 billion feet, and neglecting growth in the calculation, the exhaustion of our timber supply is indicated in 14 years. Assuming the same use and stand, with an annual growth of 40 billion feet, we have a supply for 23 years. Assuming an annual use of 150 billion feet, the first supposition becomes 9 years, and the second 13 years. Assuming a stand of 2000 billion feet, a use of 100 billion feet, and neglecting growth, we have 20 years' supply. Assuming the same conditions, with an annual growth of 40 billion feet, we have 33 years' supply. With an annual use of 150 billion feet, these estimates become, respectively, 13 and 18 years.

It is apparent from these computations why the national conservation commission considers the census of timber so essential to the preparation of its inventory.

The chief difference between the methods now being employed by the conservation commission and those the bureau of the census would use are, that while the bureau would send out enumerators to make personal visits to all parts of the country, the commission is aiming at the same results through a tremendous lot of correspondence. For instance, 3100 letters have gone out to county clerks asking for statements of forest areas in their counties. Seven thousand lumbermen and timberland owners have been asked to supply similar information. In all nearly 150,000 letters have been sent. These letters also ask for a wide variety of information beside the area and capacity of forests. They touch upon all phases not only of the lumbering and milling industries but of all others which are even indirectly dependent upon the use of wood. The purpose of the commission is not merely to learn how much wood is growing now but how long it may be expected to last and how the supply may be prolonged by economy.

All government departments and bureaus which have any information about forests, as well as many corporations, such as land grant railroads which hold big forest tracts in some states and have cruised them carefully, have turned it over to Mr. Gannett.

The forest service naturally has the largest fund of information, and it is gathering more constantly, either independently or with the help of the census bureau. The department of war, the interior, and commerce and labor can turn over the amounts of timber standing on military, light-house, and other reservations. The bureau of corporations of the department of commerce and labor has sent out an extensive schedule of inquiries to its special agents which, it is hoped, will add to the present information concerning the manufacture of wood. All the states of the union are co-operating and will furnish statistics concerning state forest lands.

YOUNG GOES TO JAIL

The supreme court of California has handed down a decision in the case of Joe Young, charged with selling liquor illegally, upholding the constitutionality of the county prohibition law and remanding him to the custody of the sheriff.

Young was arrested November 14th, 1907, for selling liquor in violation of the ordinance. He was tried before Justice Pfeffer at Orange and convicted on March 3, 1908. He was sentenced to 60 days in jail and to pay a fine of $290. He secured temporary freedom on habeas corpus from the supreme court. Arguments were made April 6, 1908, and briefs were made May 11th.

Young made his appeal on the ground that the ordinance under which he was held was invalid. His contention was held by the court to be unsound.

Young's attorney will petition Gov. Gillett to grant a pardon, but this will be fought by citizens of Orange and elsewhere throughout the county.

GRANTED A DIVORCE

Garments of another woman found in the apartments of the man she had just married, caused Alva Allen Clouthier to leave Frank Clouthier within two hours after their marriage ceremony performed in Los Angeles on March 1, 1908. This was the story told in the superior court by Mrs. Clouthier, and at the end of the hearing a decree was granted by Judge West annulling the marriage and permitting Mrs. Clouthier to assume her maiden name, Alva Allen. The woman said on the witness stand that she was induced to marry Clouthier, who is now believed to be in Stanton, Mich., believing him to be a moral man. On arriving at his apartments a few hours after the wedding ring was placed on the bride's finger, Mrs. Clouthier discovered clothing, feminine belongings and the odor of perfume. She taxed Clouthier with unseemly conduct, he confessed to having lived with a woman there, and immediately Mrs. Clouthier left him.

SWEET POTATO BLIGHT

O. H. Schumacher of Placencia has found scale on his sweet potatoes. He says it is known around as the black potato scale. He states that the potatoes are spotted and that the disease is similar to walnut blight and causes many potatoes to split. He has found diseased potatoes all through his twenty-acre patch and says it showed up much worse on the early crop than on the potatoes now coming in. Mr. Schumacher also reports that other growers are now complaining of the potato blight. He will send samples to the state experiment station at Whittier.

PUBLIC HEALTH OF NATION

MOVEMENT AFFECTING THE EFFECTIVENESS OF HUMAN LIFE

Economic Value to the Country of a Raising of the Public Health—Relation of the People's Health to the General Field of Conservation

(Correspondence of the Gazette)

Washington, Oct. 9.—Prof. Irving Fisher, the eminent political economist of Yale University, who in one of his papers before the recent International Tuberculosis congress in Washington declared that consumption costs the people of the United States more than a billion dollars a year, is preparing an exhaustive report for the National Conservation Commission, which will contain not only these figures but similar data on the economic loss to the country from all other preventable diseases.

Prof. Fisher is a member of the national conservation commission and for many years has been carrying on studies along these lines. The commission received letters from physicians all over the country urging it to consider the bearing of the public health on the economic efficiency of the nation in its efforts to ascertain the resources of the country.

The commission from the beginning has contemplated reports on the economic aspects of several phases of the conservation movement which affect the duration and effectiveness of human life, but Prof. Fisher has undertaken to prepare a comprehensive statement of the whole subject of the relations of public health to the general field of conservation, and especially as to the waste from preventable diseases and unnecessary deaths.

Dr. Fisher is professor of political economy at Yale university and is chairman of the "committee of one hundred" of the American association for the advancement of science, which has for a long time been carrying on propaganda for the increase of national health through the elimination of preventable diseases. This committee of one hundred is composed of physicians and men engaged in active sociological work in every part of the country, and the results of their investigations and experience are all available to Dr. Fisher, so that his report ought to be the most thorough-going and complete summary of the situation ever made.

At the tuberculosis congress Prof. Fisher declared that 138,000 persons die of consumption every year. The cost of medical attendance and the loss of earnings before death average at least $2400, he said, while if to this is added the money that might have been earned with health, the total loss in each case is about $8,000. He pointed out also, that the disease usually attacks young men and women just at the time when they are beginning to earn money and cuts off their earning power for about three years on an average, before they die.

This subject of the economic value to the country of a general raising of the average health came up in the governors' conference at the White House in May. Dr. George M. Kober in his speech on the conservation of life and health by improved water supply at the conference presented figures which showed that the decrease in the "vital assets" of the country through typhoid fever in a single year is more than $350,000,000. Typhoid fever is spread by polluted water largely so that the death rate from this disease can be directly reduced by the purification of city drinking water. Dr. Kober quotes statistics to show that the increased value of the water to the city of Albany, where the typhoid fever rate was reduced from 104 in 100,000 to 26 by an efficient filtration plant, amounts to $475,000 a year of which $350,000 may be considered a real increase in the vital assets of the city. Census bureau figures show that the average annual death rate from typhoid in cities with contaminated water supplies was reduced from 69.4 per 100,000 to 19.3 by the substitution of pure supplies.

Dr. Kober cites estimates showing that the average length of human life in the sixteenth century was between 18 and 20 years, and that at the close of the eighteenth century it was a little more than 30, while today it is between 38 and 40. Indeed the span of life since 1880 has been lengthened about six years.

EUCALYPTUS IN CALIFORNIA

IMPORTANCE OF ITS CULTURE FROM COMMERCIAL VIEW

Need of Reliable Information Relative to Possibilities—Growth of These Trees—Use for Hardwood Timber
Where Great Strength is Required

The importance of Eucalyptus culture in California from a commercial standpoint has reached a stage which can no longer be overlooked. The growing scarcity of hardwood fuel and lumber, ties, and other forms of timber makes certain an increasing demand and price for any material which can supply this want. The almost incredible rapidity of growth of certain species of these trees, their thrift and hardiness under conditions unfavorable to most cultivated plants, and the general appreciation of their value as wood and timber, which is rapidly coming about have created within comparatively recent times a great interest in Eucalyptus culture, amounting almost to a "boom." Many groves are being planted on a greater or less scale, railroad companies are investigating the possibilities of eucalyptus as a supply of ties, poles and timber, lumber companies are taking up the matter and several stock-selling corporations have been formed for planting and selling eucalyptus groves.

Under the conditions there is a decided need of some comprehensive and reliable information as to the possibilities and methods of growing these trees, the commercial qualities of the different species, their adaptation to conditions in the various parts of the state, and the quality and amount of the product which can reasonably be expected from them. The present bulletin by Mr. Ingham represents a very complete and practical study of the subject, based on careful observation over all the cultivated portions of the state south of Shasta county, and the facts presented may be taken as reliable and conservative.

The preparation of this bulletin has been undertaken by Mr. Ingham as a part of the work of the University Forestry station at Santa Monica, of which he is in charge. For a number of years this station has been growing and distributing eucalyptus seedlings of various species, and many of these have been planted in various parts of the state. On the station grounds some seventy different species may be seen growing in mature form. At present it is possible to obtain all the ordinary species of nurserymen at moderate prices, so that the necessity no longer exists of an extensive distribution by the state, except by the sending out of seed, or possibly a limited number of trees of uncommon and promising species. The greatest field of usefulness for the station at present, as regards eucalyptus culture, is along the line indicated by this bulletin, the investigation of the commercial and economic side of the question. Following the present study, which is necessarily, in large part of a general or preliminary nature, we hope to continue with an investigation of the commercial uses and possibilities of eucalyptus timber, for the various purposes indicated in this bulletin. Mr. Ingham shows the possibility of producing this wood in California in almost unlimited amount. If statements appearing almost daily in the public press are to be believed a hardwood famine is imminent in this country. If, therefore, it be true that species of eucalyptus are equal to our native hardwoods as lumber, great possibilities are open in this direction.—Ralph E. Smith.

Eucalyptus, a genus of trees of the family Myrtaceae, was introduced into California from Australia and the adjacent islands, and several species were planted in the district of San Francisco Bay previous to 1860. There are to be found growing in the central parts of the state, both on the coast and in the interior, groves of considerable area which are forty to fifty years old.

Since the introduction of the first species of eucalyptus, the seeds of other species have been imported each year by seedsmen, nurserymen, and in many cases ranch owners, until at the present time there are growing in the state nearly one hundred species. The University of California has seventy named species growing on the forestry station grounds at Santa Monica, Cal.; there are specimen trees of nearly every species over ten years of age, and bearing seed at the present time, while there are young trees of all the promising lumber eucalypts.

From this large collection there can be selected species that will grow on nearly any soil in a frostless region, while there are a few that can endure temperature as low as 18 deg. F. without injury. There are a few eucalypts that can stand extremes of temperature from 30 deg. F. to 120 deg. F., and at different altitudes; but with these trees it is as with any other, there is one certain local adaptation to the greatest development; it may be a situation near the coast in a foggy atmosphere, the river bottom lands, the island valleys or in swamps. Care should be taken in selecting a species for any certain locality, that the conditions there are the ones which will bring the species in question to the highest point of development.

The eucalypts were first set out as a curiosity, on account of their rapidity of growth and as ornamental trees around gardens and buildings with a possibility of their supplying the owners fuel and fence posts. In these respects they have fulfilled the original planter's expectations, and more, for in a few localities the sawmills are now saving the largest logs into valuable hardwood lumber.

Eucalyptus planting has now passed the experimental stage and may be considered without question as a commercial proposition. The value of the crop and the possibilities of its growing in California have been sufficiently demonstrated to make judicious plantings even on a large scale perfectly safe, with an assurance of sure and reasonably large profits. It is important, however, for the planter to consider, in the light of the information, the nature of the product which he will produce, or in other words, the market which he will attempt to supply with his eucalyptus trees.

Eucalypts may be used either for fuel or for hardwood lumber. For the former purpose the prevailing prices of wood in most of our cities and large towns during the past few years have been such as to make the fuel proposition appear extremely attractive. Many glowing prospectuses are being offered to the public on this basis. It should be remembered, however, that the production and use of natural oil is rapidly increasing; that gas and electricity for heating purposes are cheap in the cities, and that all three are coming more and more into use every day in the place of wood. In fact, wood as fuel is rapidly becoming a luxury, and there is in mind of the writer no reason for expecting any increase in its use as fuel by the general public. He, therefore, believes it unprofitable and unwise to enter upon eucalyptus planting with the sole idea of raising wood for fuel. The profits to be derived from eucalyptus in the future will be found in hardwood lumber for wagons, farm and other implements railroad, coach and house furnishings, furniture, etc.; ties, telephone poles and bridge timbers will also prove profitable. For any of the above named products of eucalyptus at least ten years' growth will be required, and of course the older the trees the greater the profits in proportion.

The wood of the different species of eucalyptus varies from a wood as soft as that of our pines, to very hard, close-grained and variously colored kinds, equal to our native oaks and hickories. Among the large number of species may be found some that can be substituted for nearly all our present commercial woods, although the eucalyptus wood is harder to work.

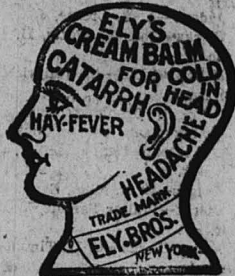

The Hardwood Planing mill of San Jose, Cal., has sawed up many thousands of feet of eucalyptus lumber during the past winter, the bulk of which is from Eucalyptus globulus logs over thirty years old. This company is filling orders for felloes for large wagon wheels, poles, singletrees, doubletrees and reaches, haypress blocks and insulator pins. The eucalyptus lumber is being used in every place where great strength is required, and the finished product is valued at the same price as oak lumber. Other mills are also sawing this wood to some extent in a local way, and its value for all hardwood purposes is becoming more and more appreciated. Eucalyptus rostrata, the Red Gum, is now finding considerable use for interior finish and furniture and both this species and the Blue Gum, Eucalyptus globulus, are becoming established as commercial hardwoods. There is no doubt of their greatly increased use if supplies were available.

Eucalyptus timber is more costly to cut and mill than any of our native hardwoods; in planing, the lumber of many of the species has a tendency to chip on account of the irregular grain, while that of all of the species under the most careful handling season-draws more or less on the ends. This fault can be overcome by having the logs sawed a foot or two longer than the finished product needs to be, so that the season-cracked ends can be removed. Very little trouble is experienced in seasoning the lumber if the trees are cut down during the winter months and sawed while green, and the lumber then piled in high tiers to obtain weight, in some place protected from the wind and sun.

Eucalyptus has been used in the last few years quite extensively for pilings, which paid well until competition lowered the price; at present a pile fifty feet long and ten inches in diameter at the small end is worth between $10 and $12. Under ordinary conditions it requires from eighteen to twenty-four years to grow a pile. The prospect for the use of certain species of eucalyptus for railroad ties and telephone poles is also good.

CARNIVAL OF PRODUCTS

Today and for the remainder of the week the Carnival of Products at Santa Ana will hold the center of the stage in Orange county, if not indeed in all of Southern California. The annual display of products of the soil at Santa Ana has come to be one of the features of Southern California enterprise along with the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena and Carnival of Flowers at Santa Barbara. It is yearly attracting more attention, and the carnival which opens today and continues for three days bids fair to outdo any of its predecessors.

It is to be doubted if any county in the state—indeed, if any similar area on earth—can show such a wide range of products of the soil as are here exhibited in the smallest of all counties in this portion of the state. No less an authority than Prof. Wickson of the state university, undoubtedly the foremost living expert upon agriculture and its kindred subjects, has made this declaration. It is unnecessary here to recapitulate these widely differing products of the soil, but they may be seen in all their profusion in the parade at Santa Ana today.

We trust the northern end of the county may be adequately represented in today's festivities, as well as in those to follow. Santa Ana has been to great expense in arranging the carnival, and should have the right hand of fellowship from her sister cities.

Senator Leavitt of Alameda county, who holds a valuable concession from the Emeryville racetrack, is in Southern California lining up legislators against the proposed anti-racetrack bill. Leavitt is one of the conspicuous railroad machine men, and is backed in his efforts to stay the enactment of the proposed law by every machine politician in the state. His colleague, Senator Lukens, another push senator, was defeated by the clean men of the party in the primaries, and Leavitt will probably get his walking papers two years hence. He never will be missed! Of the nine legislative nominees in Alameda county to be voted for this year, all are anti-railroad. Leavitt is the last rose of summer, left blooming alone. He will get his, plenty, at the election two years hence.

Richard Barry, the newspaper correspondent, who accompanied the Atlantic battleship fleet around the horn, is out in a statement to the effect that the fleet was unprepared for hostilities when leaving Hampton Roads, and was not in effective fighting condition until reaching Magdalena Bay. He adds that had the Japs attacked the fleet before it reached the latter point, the fleet would have been captured or destroyed. Richard wears it. If sixteen American battleships just off the docks and on their maiden cruise can be captured or destroyed by the obsolete tubs in the Mikado's navy, it is time for us to haul down the stars and stripes and ask for the protection of Venezuela.

George R. Wright, the department store organizer and promoter of New York, has taken the job of organizing a white republican party in the south for Taft. Wright, who has been sent out by John Hays Hammond, president of the league of republican clubs, states his work is endorsed by Roosevelt, Taft and Hitchcock. He is shunning the negroes and is working entirely among the whites. He says his work is not for this campaign alone, but for the future, and there is no reason why a strong white republican party should not be built up in the south. Wright has charge of the work throughout the south and is organizing clubs in all the large southern cities.

When it is seen that a New York paper has proposed, agitated, promoted, ratified and signed a Chinese-American alliance, who can say that the power of the press is declining.

Gus Hansen was a visitor in town on Tuesday from his ranch at Buena Park.

POSITION OF ORANGE REPUBLICANS

When the Orange county republican convention assembled in May it resolved unanimously to instruct its delegates to the Thirty-ninth district convention not to support Miguel Estudillo for senator. There was not one dissenting voice, and the delegates thereupon selected were solemnly bound not to support him.

Why did the convention so instruct its delegates? Was it child's play, was the convention in jesting mood, was it lacking in earnestness? Not a bit of it. Republicans of Orange county in convention assembled were never more serious, and the resolutions adopted meant every word from beginning to end. Why was this so? Because Estudillo's record as a legislator was before them, and they wanted no more of it. What was that record?

He supported Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 1, which seeks to free railroads from local taxation, and doubles the taxes of the poor.

He refused to support the reciprocal-demurrage bill, the most important railroad bill before the legislature.

He voted for the change of venue bill, which was so notoriously in the interest of Ruef and Schmitz, that it was defeated in spite of the efforts of the push to carry it.

He voted for the state-capital removal bill which, if enacted into law, will saddle a debt of untold millions of dollars upon the state.

He voted for the salary-grab bills, increasing pay of state officials and legislators hundreds of thousands of dollars.

He voted for the seawall bills, which seek to fasten millions of dollars in bonds upon the people of the state.

His record proved him to be a railroad legislator, not a representative of the people, and Orange county wanted none of him.

When despite the solemn instructions to its delegates, a majority of them permitted this railroader to snatch away the nomination by a secret ballot, the party again came together in July and denounced their action and repudiated their work.

Republicans of Orange county have not so soon forgotten. Estudillo may go up and down the district, brazenly proclaiming "I will be elected," but the voters say nothing in reply. They regard his words as an insult added to the injury of his nomination, and will make answer at the polls.

THE DOMINANT ISSUE

Senator Dolliver in his Los Angeles speech on Monday evening, referred as follows to the dominant issue in the campaign:

"When anybody asks me what the paramount issue in American politics today is, I say it is not the tariff, it is not the question of banking and currency, it is not a question of war or peace, or territories or diplomacy, but the supreme question for the American people today is to preserve and to perpetuate in the national life those ideals of public integrity and private honesty which have made the administration of Theodore Roosevelt famous and memorable in the history of this country. (Applause.)"

Senator Dolliver hits the nail squarely upon the head. The dominant issue is not the tariff, as we have had ding-donged into our ears, but, Shall the people rule, or shall the country be turned over to the public-service corporations.

Over fifteen thousand American soldiers and officers are today anticipating their reception in Yokohama, Tokio and other Japanese cities. They expect it to be the time of their lives. Visions of rickshaws, tea houses and geisha girls fill their dreams. The Americans in Manila and the Philippines have done much to entertain them, as have the people of New Zealand, Australia and the Hawaiian Islands. If those fifteen thousand sailors do not return from the Orient refined and polished and full of grace, and savoir faire it will not be from lack of hospitable entertainment. Japan, it is said, is preparing to outdo herself and all other nations in her welcome to the fleet. Dispatches from Tokio and Yokohama say that all political differences have been set aside in the desire to do the fleet honor and that the anti-Asiatic character of the fleet's reception in Australian waters will not bear fruit in any antagonism.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES

Arguments were made by opposing counsel Monday in the United States circuit court, in the case of Timothy Carroll of Anaheim against the Los Alamitos sugar company and J. Ross Clark. The suit is to recover damages for alleged infringement of a patent load-dumping apparatus and plaintiff seeks an injunction against the sugar concern to prevent the use of its dumping plant. A complete working model of the device invented by Carroll was on exhibition in the courtroom. A number of beet sugar companies pay a small royalty to the inventor, but the Los Alamitos factory constructed an apparatus of its own, which it claimed is not an infringement of the Carroll patent.

YOUNG AMERICAN

Little Bob, who for some months had invariably ended his prayers with "Please send me a baby brother," announced to his mother that he was tired of praying for what he did not get, and that he did not believe God had any more little boys to send.

Not long afterward, he was carried into his mother's room very early in the morning to see twin boys, who had arrived during the night. Bob looked at the two babies critically, and then remarked: "It's a good thing I stopped praying."

UNCLE SAM FIGHTING FIRES

WHAT HE IS DOING TO SAVE
FORESTS FROM DESTRUCTION

Recent Fires Caused Damage to Extent of One Million Dollars Daily Could Have Been Prevented By Armed Men Patrolling the Woods

Nothing could better call the attention of thinking people to the necessity for the preservation of our natural resources than the great forest fires which have been so widely distributed throughout the country, and have played such havoc this summer. It is doubtful if the losses for the year 1908 will ever be fully recorded, but a conservative estimate by Dr. W. J. McGee, erosion expert, United States department of agriculture, places the aggregate loss in all parts of the country during these months of conflagration at $1,000,000 a day.

In nearly every instance, probably in every instance, these devastating fires might have been prevented if the various states had provided an adequate number of men to patrol the woods and arrest all such fires in their incipency, and if lumbermen and other users of the forest were careful to dispose of brush after logging so as to prevent the spread of fires.

Uncle Sam has had a lot of work to do on his national forests in the fire fighting line this year, but his work has shown good results. Exclusive of the salaries of forest officials, the work of putting down fires on the national forests for the year has cost the government $30,000. This means protecting approximately 168,000,000 acres. The value of the timber destroyed will not be known until the fire reports are made at the end of the year, though it is estimated that it will be larger than last year. But it will be insignificant when compared with the appalling fire losses outside of the national forests on unprotected areas, or with the destruction which would have come to the timber in the national forests had they not been protected.

These results have come through the increased efficiency of fire patrol and methods of fighting fire and also through the co-operation of settlers and users of forests who understand that the forests are their property and that a loss from fire is a personal one. By posting fire notices and giving advice the government has secured co-operation from the outside, and which may be said to be as important an agency in reducing the loss from forest fires as is the perfection of machinery for fighting these fires.

After timber is cut, the regulations require brush to be compactly piled at a safe distance from living trees. Sometimes this brush is burned under direction of a forest official; but even if it is allowed to stand, no fire that starts finds fuel by which it can spread.

The national forests are constantly patrolled by a picked force of rangers and guards. The present summer force of such rangers and guards whose main duty is fire patrol, is 135 men; the average area that each is required to protect is 121,560 acres. It is fully understood that this area is altogether too large, and just as soon as funds are available to permit of the employment of a larger force of men the area will be reduced.

In order to provide rapid means of travel between the various parts of the national forests and to facilitate massing of large forces of men to fight fire, as well as to furnish vantage points from which the fires may be fought successfully, 160 miles of road and 3300 miles of trail were built during the last fiscal year. In several cases fire breaks from 16 to 100 feet in width have been constructed, from which all timber and inflammable material is removed, to furnish obstacles to the spread of fire, or straight lines of defense in fighting the fire once started. Several miles of such fire-breaks now exist on the national forests in Southern California, where it is especially important that the forest cover on the watersheds of important irrigation streams be protected.

Telephone lines have been constructed connecting ranger stations with the headquarters of the forest, in order that fires may be reported and promptly extinguished. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, 3500 miles of telephone line were constructed in the national forests.

Just as rapidly as possible, each national forest is supplied with axes, axes and other tools, which are distributed over the forests and cabins and tool boxes are provided.

MORE EXPLANATIONS DUE FROM MR. ESTUDILLO

Admits Dodging a Vote on Reciprocal Demurrage—Voted for Iniquitous Senate Amendment No. 1, Exempting Railroads from Local Tax

Miguel Estudillo goes up and down the highways of Orange county explaining his course in the last legislature—always on the defensive; Miguel explains that he dodged a vote upon the reciprocal demurrage bill because, think of it, he was closeted with the governor in an effort to keep down taxes in California. The manner in which this precious legislator "kept down taxes" was to support and actively assist in passing the iniquitous Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 1, which relieves railroads and other public service corporations from paying their just burdens of local taxation. If Orange county votes $600,000 for good roads, and Estudillo's pet amendment carries at the polls next month, none of the railroads in this county, nor the telegraph or telephone companies, nor the other public-service corporations, will pay one dollar to ill-geldate that indebtedness; but the poor farmer, the laborer, living in a house upon which there may rest a mortgage, the man in business—these will be taxed to make up the deficit. Let Miguel explain his vote upon this bill.

Of course, he may say, "My vote did not enact this amendment into law; it merely gives the people an opportunity for voting upon it and adopting it if they so desire." Exactly so. But a more courageous legislator would have said to the railroad lobbyists behind this amendment, "No, sir, gentlemen, my vote shall never be cast in favor of this iniquitous measure, exempting powerful corporations from their just burdens of taxation and piling up taxes upon the back of the poor man." Miguel did not say this, oh no, not he! He voted as Jere Burke desired him to vote, and he forgot all about the interests of his constituents at home.

We charge this man with voting upon this amendment, as upon others, with the railroad and against the people. Let him deny it if he dare.

The reciprocal-demurrage bill merely imposes upon railway corporations the obligation of furnishing adequate transportation facilities for shippers, and placing an inhibition upon favoritism to one shipper as against another. It is easy to see who is getting favors in this line in Orange county. Had the law been operative a year ago, the peatland celery growers would not now be suing the railroads for large sums on account of loss of crops because of their inability to procure cars when their crops were ready to ship. We charge Miguel with voting on the side of the railroads and against the people on this amendment, and challenge him to deny it.

Miguel says, naively, "I did not vote to change the state capital from Sacramento to Berkeley; I merely voted to give the people a chance to vote upon the question." Precisely so. But, again, a courageous legislator would have lifted his hand in protest to Jere Burke, and said, "No, No, None of that, none of that." Miguel did not do this. He knew there was no demand on the part of the people for a change of the state capital. He knew the only reason for this amendment was an attempt on the part of the railroad to WHIP A SOVEREIGN COUNTY OF THE STATE, for refusing to bend its knee to the odious dictation of the railroad. Miguel knew this, yet he lacked the moral courage to say to the railroad, "not another step that way." We charge him with voting on the side of the railroad and against the people on this bill, and we dare him to deny it.

The first blow in the fight to be made on the Harriman lines in the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress recently in session in San Francisco was delivered by the California Traffic association, when the body introduced a resolution condemning the control of all Pacific steamship lines by transcontinental railroads and asserting that steamship service on the Pacific ocean now is insufficient and not such as the traffic justifies.

The resolution calls upon the government to establish a federal line of ships to ply between all Pacific coast ports, the Panama canal and the western coast of South America. The Hawaiian delegation at the same time introduced resolutions deprecating "the disappearance of the American flag from the Pacific ocean," and urged the government to create a ship subsidy for the development of shipping interests in the Pacific. The Hawaiian resolution says that the Japanese have captured the trans-Pacific trade and that the American government must meet its obligations to sustain itself in the competition which has driven the ships bearing the "stars and stripes" out of business.

Following is the text of the resolution which was introduced by C. J. Bradley, secretary of the California Traffic association:

"Whereas, the steamship service between the Pacific coast and Panama during the past twenty years has been so complicated under the control of the trans-continental railroads that there has been no effort whatever put forth to foster and build up the sea service;

"Whereas, this explains completely why shipping via this route has not been improved to San Francisco and other Pacific coast merchants, both importers and exporters have looked forward with some anxiety to such times as these restrictions can be removed and the great interests built up, enlarged and protected, so that the open sea route will be in competition and act as a regulator of rates both by land and sea;

"Whereas, Hon. J. L. Bristow, special Panama railroad commissioner, in his report to the secretary of war, dated January 20, 1908, shows the necessity of better service by water between the Atlantic and Pacific trade, and as a result of his investigation on this coast recommended the establishment of a government owned line;

"Resolved, that unless the Pacific Mail Steamship company gives assurance that it will at once improve its service between San Francisco, Central American ports and Panama we recommend and urge the United States government to establish its own line between all improved Pacific coast ports and Panama, calling at Central American ports, thereby giving us a government owned line via Panama from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboard.

Editor Chester H. Rowell of Fresno should be indicted for cruelty to animals. He is unfeeling enough to have given the world an impressionist rendering of the speech made by Tom Dozier, the Shasta song thrush, at the recent state convention—a speech which the more humane reporters for the press had judiciously suppressed. It is a cruel kindness that Mr. Rowell does Chairman Dozier in his report of the speech which, as Mr. Rowell heard and recalls it, was about like this:

"Gentlemen of the grand old glorious republican party in the grand old glorious state of California when Harry Melvin receives the grand and glorious nomination of this great convention which I predict will lead to his triumphant election at the hands of the grand and glorious republican party the party of Abraham Lincoln and William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt and which is going to grand and glorious victory this fall under the leadership of that grand and glorious that peerless that magnificent statesman William Howard Taft (tumultuous applause) all California will rejoice with you and me from Mount Shasta's rocky throat will roar paeans of joy down the granite ribs of the Sierras will echo thunders of gladness the soft breezes of the southland will whisper "it is he" across the broad valley will sweep the gale of joyance over the mountains and down to the coast will slip the breeze of brightness till every sun kissed ripple and every seething surge will answer back to mountain and plain the glad chorus of rejoicing that the great and glorious the magnificent jurist Harry A. Melvin of this banner republican county of the great republican state of California has received the suffrages of the peerless the victorious republican party."

Now let the welkin ring and the ears of the groundlings split. The schoolboys in Bullychoop and Cottonwood will be speaking that piece next year. Nothing like it in the way of competitive incoherence and rude magnificence has been heard in California since the famous speech of George Knight at the Santa Cruz convention, nominating James N. Gillett for governor, when he said:

"Our beautiful city, like the heart of man, the muscular action of which no man has yet understood, but when faintness come and dizziness we find that something organic is the trouble. Quake and fire and flame attacked the very heart of California, the queen of the earth, and she fainted and staggered and under the care, under the caution and under the zeal and under the patriotism of Mayor Schmitz she is fast returning to her normal state."

"Yes, gentlemen," said still another orator, "If I had the wings of an eagle I'd spread them forth and soar the broad heavens until stretched athwart they held beneath their thrall the majestic waters of the rolling deep."

"Oh, come off," broke in an old campaigner from the back benches; "you'd be shot for a hen hawk before you'd flew a mile."

That is what Rowell did for Dozier.

Senator H. S. G. McCartney of Los Angeles, who as a railroad collar wearer, seems to stand sponsor for Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 1, has written the Orange Post a letter in support of that measure, in which, after admitting that public utility corporations would be relieved from paying for any public improvements as far as their operative property is concerned, asks: "Is it better, for the sake of 'soaking' the corporations in case of extraordinary needs, or is it wise to let them go on year after year paying about one-half their due share of taxation?"

If there is any disposition to "soak" the corporations, proceeds the Post, it must be on the part of the proponents of this measure; we are neither for nor against corporations as such—we are in favor of a square deal for everybody. These public improvements are not "occasional;" they come along constantly with forty year bonds to pay for them, which we want the corporations help liquidate. Then, too, there can be no such a thing as corporations "paying about one-half their due share of taxation" if the assessors do their sworn duty; but in any case one wrong cannot be fairly righted by perpetrating another wrong. Then again, the senator says the taxes under subdivision D of Section 14 are not in lieu of other taxes but in addition thereto. That would be "soaking" the corporations and would, in theory and spirit, be double taxation; but these would be mostly small, home corporations, which would thus have to either suffer a wrong or disincorporate to escape punishment for being corporations. Finally the senator applies the method to Orange county and thinks he shows a saving of 31.46 per cent to the individual taxpayers over their present taxes; but, as already pointed out, the comparison does not include anything for public improvements in every voting precinct in the county, nor for city taxes in the five incorporated cities. Why, in the little city of Orange, the state and county tax rate, upon which the senator bases his comparison, is $1.30; while that for the city, special, school, bonds, etc., which cannot be included in the comparison, is $2.16! According to County Assessor Hopkins, the city of Los Angeles would lose millions by the change. The San Bernardino Index sounds a note of warning against the amendment, although said amendment proposes to compensate that county for the loss; the same is true of the Redlands Citigraph in the same county, for these papers see that the cities will suffer most. On all sides mutterings are heard, and we believe the measure will fail; but it will require positive action to beat it, and nothing should be neglected that will help to insure its defeat.

Mr. Hearst says he has invested a great deal of capital in this campaign. Still we should say he is getting his money's worth.

WILL DEVELOP WATER

Stockholders in the Santa Ana valley irrigation company, who gathered at the annual meeting, indorsed the plan of Engineer H. Clay Kellogg for developing water in the Santa Ana river. Under that plan ultimately $350,000 will be spent by the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company and the Anaheim Union Water company for pumping plants, for which power is to be generated in the companies ditches, acquiring riparian lands, subterranean galleries and other water-bearing properties. This, it is estimated, would increase the flow in the ditches 10,000 inches during the summer months, which in itself is many times the present flow. The cost will be scattered over several years and will not be over an average of $10 per acre and it will give each acre an increase of from $100 to $400 over present valuation.

The Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company has been handicapped in doing development work because it is capitalized for only $100,000, which limits its borrowing capacity, even though its property is worth millions. By resolution the stockholders instructed the directors to prepare an amendment raising the capital stock from $100,000 to $1,000,000.

FINED FOR CRUELTY

Frank Baynes, a Belgian rancher at Los Alamitos, was fined $50 by Justice of the Peace McAllep at Los Alamitos for breaking his own horse's neck. Baynes paid $200 for a horse, and hitched him in the lead of a four-horse team hauling sugar beets. The new horse balked. Baynes was angry. He used all the known methods for stirring the horse, but was unsuccessful. He then threw a chain around the horse's neck, hitched a three-horse team to the chain and swore he would make it move. The balky horse braced himself and literally allowed his neck to be broken, rather than give an inch. Baynes was arrested by Constable C. E. Jackson on complaint of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

OPPOSES SEA WALL BONDS

THE SHIP OWNERS ASSOCIATION URGE THEIR DEFEAT

San Francisco Does Not Need Additional Water Frontage—Increased Tolls Will Fall Upon the Farmer and Drive Away Shipping

Among the important amendments to be voted upon at the approaching election are those carrying millions of dollars for the San Francisco seawall, which seems to be an ever-increasing source of expense to taxpayers of the state. Reference to this seawall grab has already been made in these columns, and it is a pleasure to be able to add today the testimony of San Francisco people in opposition to these bonds. The following letter, received from the ship owners' association of the Pacific coast, bearing upon the subject, will be read with interest:

Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast.

San Francisco, Oct. 7, 1908.

Editor Gazette.—At the coming election you will be asked to vote for or against what will be designated on the ballot as the "India Basin Act."

This act, if passed, will saddle the state with an indebtedness of $1,000,000 of 20 year bonds for the purchase of certain real estate south of Islais Creek in South San Francisco. We desire the taxpayers of the state of California to understand that this expense is unnecessary and will only benefit a few selfish land owners and politicians.

San Francisco does not need additional water frontage. What it does need is the improvement of the frontage it now has, which improved would accommodate the shipping for the next fifty years.

The harbor revenues cannot possibly take care of the interest and sinking fund of these bonds without increasing the state tolls, already too high, thus forcing upon the farmers, small merchants and wage earners throughout the state, the burden of extra taxation for something not needed.

Furthermore the additional increase in tolls will result in driving away the shipping to the northern ports.

We earnestly urge the defeat of the "India Basin Act." Respectfully, Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast.

H. L. Stoddard, Secretary.

Resolution adopted by the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific coast urging the defeat of the "India Basin Act."

Whereas, It is proposed at the coming November election to submit to the voters of the state the proposition of issuing $1,000,000 twenty year bonds for the purchase of Islais Creek Basin, and,

Whereas, The issuance of such bonds would impose an unreasonable burden on the shipping interests, and

Whereas, This association considers that it would be a great injustice to divert revenues derived from shipping for the purpose of buying real estate which was sold by the state in 1872, the title of which was vested in and should therefore be paid for by the state, and thus curtail improvements in dockage and wharfage facilities that are very necessary at the present time, and,

Whereas, This association considers that, if it is necessary to divert revenues obtained from shipping for the purchase of real estate, the sinking fund should not be formed out of the harbor revenues that are so urgently required for water front improvements, but that such money should be raised under the seventy-five year bond plan as suggested by the foreword of the executive committee of the federated harbor improvement associations, and,

Whereas, If the wharf facilities and piers commencing at Van Ness avenue and continuing south to Central Basin in the Mission, which constitutes the present water front of San Francisco, and over a small part of which the business of today is now being done, are completed as proposed in the report of the engineers of the federated harbor improvement associations, this association is confident sufficient dockage to accommodate its increased commerce for fifty years or more will be had;

Resolved, That this association strongly urges and advocates the adoption of Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 29, which provides for the issuance of bonds for the term of seventy-five years, with sinking fund commencing on the nineteenth year after the date of issue, which will enable the state to acquire Islais Creek basin without retarding contemplated improvements on San Francisco's present water front and which will spread the burden of cost over such a period of time that no hardship will be inflicted upon any one class or generation;

Resolved, That the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific coast earnestly urge the defeat of the "India Basin Act," which is to be voted upon at the November election;

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to all commercial organizations and the press of the state of California, respectfully urging upon the voters the views of this association.

The San Francisco chamber of commerce has issued a statement opposing another grab for the seawall. The following resolutions speak for themselves:

"Resolution adopted by the board of trustees September 15, 1908.

"Resolved, That the chamber of commerce of San Francisco, advocates the adoption of an amendment to the constitution of the state of California authorizing the issuance of harbor improvement bonds to run for a term of seventy-five years; that pending the adoption of said constitutional amendment we oppose the issuance of any twenty-year bonds, including the $2,000,000 twenty year bonds for seawall extension and docks, and the $1,000,000 twenty year bonds for the purchase of Islais creek lands, to be submitted to the voters of the state of California at the coming election; it is further

"Resolved, That a copy of the above resolution and also any communications or explanations thereof be sent to all commercial organizations and the press of the state of California, respectfully urging upon the voters the views of this chamber.

"Attest: The Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco.

"James McNab, Vice Pres.

"C. W. Burks, secretary. Vote against these bonds.

CONVICT PATINO TELLS STORY

On Way to State Prison Relates Manner of Robbing Sam Lee

Charles Patino, the convict who robbed Sam Lee last December, was this week lodged in state prison at San Quentin, to serve ten years, the supreme court having dismissed his appeal. On his way north Patino conversed freely with Constable Jackson of Santa Ana, who landed him in prison. He made a clean breast of his guilt, but blames Humphrey and May Stewart, the girl accomplice, for enticing him to assist in the crime. Patino went into detail as to the methods of Humphrey and the Stewart woman, and said they were as great a pair of criminals as can possibly be imagined, and that they had been concerned in many jobs to his knowledge. Patino and Humphrey came to this city the Saturday before the robbery of Sam Lee and examined the premises and the following day they took the girl with them, and while she took the Chinaman into the rear of the building ostensibly to get her a drink of water, he and Humphrey robbed the till, taking the box containing the money. Patino said he drove the buggy up to the curb and Humphrey took the box and threw it into the back of the vehicle and then got in and both drove away. The box did not contain as much money as the Chinaman claimed. He said the total amount was less than $100, whereas the Chinaman swore he was robbed of $120. Patino said he and Humphrey took the money out of the box and threw the box in some weeds at the roadside south of town. That night the three smoked opium in a Chinese den at Santa Ana.

May Stewart is said to be one of the most accomplished criminals in her particular line in the country.

WEALTH OF THE COUNTY

The books of the county assessor of Orange county show that the county produced during the past year 2700 carloads of celery valued roughly at half a million dollars; 2,800,000 dozens of eggs valued at $700,000 and 2304 carloads of oranges valued at $1,000,000; more than 5,000,000 pounds of walnuts valued at $750,000; ten thousand acres produced potatoes valued at $750,000.

The barley produced during the year in this county is valued at $207,925, the beans at $313,600, the alfalfa and barley hay at $460,000, cabbage at $160,000, peaches at $105,000, butter at $174,200, poultry $108,200, apricots at $96,512, grapes at $90,000, lemons at $62,800, olives at $45,000, plums at $20,200, sweet potatoes at $45,000, strawberries at $30,000, tomatoes at $80,000.

The milk brought $68,402, honey $12,000, chili peppers $50,000, peanuts $36,000, green peas $28,000, green beans $33,600, wood $16,000, wool $31,562, and raspberries $1000.

The loquats produced had a value of $4410, loganberries $3000, blackberries $7995, apples $5565, figs $500, beeswax $500, and comb honey $600.

Besides these sources of wealth the crude oil brought $1,180,517, the cows are worth $168,000, horses $200,000, the sheep $74,000, the lambs $3500, the colts $40,000, the swine $9200, the calves $13,500 and the beef $30,000.

These figures, although drawn mostly in round numbers, are sufficiently accurate to show the county's vast wealth and to prove beyond all possibility of refutation that Orange county is the wealthiest county of its size in this if in not any state in the union.
