50 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

MARCH 27, 1880

The following item is taken from the London Telegraph:—There is another of the American states which, as a producer of oranges will soon distance all other competitors upon the Western Continent. California taking its name from the Spanish is said to be unrivaled in the deep black alluvial soil of its valleys, and in the suitability of its climate for the production of fruit of all kinds. If travelers to the United States, in Southern California, will, sooner or later, be the center of the richest orange growing district in the United States. The number of oranges which are said to hang upon a single branch of the trees in and about Los Angeles surpasses belief and the quality, moreover, is finer than that of any fruit of the kind grown in other parts of the North American Continent.

The buds on some of the early-bearing vines have commenced swelling, and should the coming week or two be warm, the buds will be well enough advanced to be in danger from frost, should that dreaded April visitation appear this year. If the cool weather should continue a week or two, it would suit the people of this balliwick very well.

We were shown the other day by Mr. F. A. Gates a small can of sugar which had granulated from syrup made from the Minnesota Early Amber cane. This sample he sent to the San Francisco refinery for the purpose of learning what they can pay for it in large quantities. We will publish their reply when it is received. Farmers here are very hopeful of this industry, and cane will be planted quite extensively this season.

The Hydraulic Hole Borer, for which the inventor, Joseph Bennerseheidt, of Anaheim, obtained a patent over a year ago, is now used extensively in the northern part of the state, in building wharves, boring wells, etc. While this is complimentary to the skill of the inventor, it is rank injustice to utilize his patent without offering compensation, and we learn that he is about to take legal steps to assert his rights. Offers to purchase the patent have been lately received by Mr. Bennerseheidt from New York and New Jersey.

Mr. Jotham Bixby, of Los Anitos, with whom we had a conversation on Monday is inclined to the opinion that wool will reach thirty cents a pound this year. The wool will be exceedingly clean and free from burrs, and will reach the market in a better condition than it has ever done heretofore. Mr. Bixby does not remember any time, when the prospect for sheep men looked so bright. Eight hundred acres of the Corriton are seeded to wheat, mostly Australian and the prospect for a full crop is excellent.

Mr. H. J. McDermott has bought the large blacksmith shop on Lemon street which he has occupied for some years, paying Mr. Jordan $2500 therefor. Mr. McDermott will now carry on business on a larger scale than heretofore, and as he is a superior workman and excellent business man he will not fail to command success.

Mr. Tim Carroll has bought nine acres of Mr. Guinn's land near the depot, and will at once begin to improve it. Mr. Carroll has done an immense business in grapes this year and he has found the transplanting, of which he is the patentee, a great help to him in his business.

The marriage of Mr. George Shaffer and Miss Mary McKinnis was solemnized on Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride. The best wishes of the whole community are with the young couple and that their married life may be one of continued sunshine is our sincere wish.

The Directors of the Santiago Gold and Silver Mining company visited their mine in Santiago canyon one day last week in a body and thoroughly inspected the ore, tunnels, etc., and discussed the prospects. The photographer, Mr. A. L. Pellegrin, took several views of the locality.

Orpheus Lodge I. O. O. F. will give a ball at Kroeger's hall on the evening of Monday, April 26th, in celebration of the 61st anniversary of Old Fellowship. The arrangements for the supper will be perfected during the coming week, and a formal announcement of the affair will be made next Saturday.

The following table of distances by rail is worth preserving: San Francisco to Los Angeles, 482.2 miles; Los Angeles to Colton, 67.5 to Yuma, 248.7; Yuma from San Francisco, 730.9. The above are on what is termed the Yuma division. On the Southern Pacific Railroad of Arizona the distances are: Yuma to Gila Bend, 119.2; to Casa Grande, 182.3; to Tucson, 247.5; thus, making the latter place 978.4 miles from San Francisco, and distant from Los Angeles, 596.2 miles.

About nine o'clock on Monday evening a brilliant meteorite was observed going oceanward about fifty or a hundred miles from Los Angeles. A small meteor was seen from Anaheim about 8:45 o'clock the same night. It came from a northerly direction and descending towards the earth exploded a short distance from Dr. Ferguson's sanatorium, throwing out a multitude of sparks.

Mr. P. H. Look and Captain Ferguson have been sojourning in this vicinity for a few days past, gobbling up all the salable mutton and wool. Mr. W. M. Bailey, formerly of Anaheim is here on a similar mission.

Ten carloads of sheep were shipped by J. A. White in the early part of the week. Messrs. Look & Ferguson have bought 6000 head of sheep which will probably be forwarded to San Francisco shortly.

Mrs. Flora Brown has received a large case of spring hats and other millinery goods, which will be ready for the inspection of ladies in a day or two.

The rainfall of Wednesday amounted to .44 and that of Wednesday night to .06 making the total for the season 10.65 inches. We gave the total last week as 10.35 inches when it should have been 10.15.

The town authorities have during the past two weeks built several foot bridges over impassable ditches.

25 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

MARCH 30, 1905

A large and enthusiastic mass meeting of citizens of this city and vicinity assembled at the city hall on Monday evening for the purpose of discussing the offering of a free site for the pathological station. J. F. Ahlborn presided and J. B. Neff was called upon to offer suggestion as to what is necessary in order to secure the station for this city. A lot 160x200 feet, or thereabouts would be acceptable. He suggested that options upon several places be procured. A discussion was participated in by Messrs. Melrose, Collins, Baum, Grim, Miller, Adams and others, all of whom expressed approval of the plan to secure the station for this city. About $750 will have to be raised.

An election will be held in school districts throughout the county next Friday, April 7th, the last legislature having changed the date from June to April. In the Anaheim district Trustee Lewis' term expires and Trustee Clabaugh having been appointed to the vacancy caused by Mr. Maxwell's resignation will also retire. Mr. Lewis has announced his purpose not to stand again for the office. The names of Mr. Clabaugh and P. H. Krick are mentioned for the two vacancies. At Loara district Mr. Webster will probably succeed himself.

San Juan Capistrano will entertain the largest number of persons in the history of the old Mission, Thursday, June 8. Knights of Columbus will be in Southern California from all sections of the United States in the time mentioned and it is planned to entertain them with a barbecue and bull's head breakfast, after the manner made famous by Col. Richard Egan, generally known as the King of Capistrano. John D. Mott and C. O. Desmond went to the Mission Monday to survey the situation preparatory to arranging details for the proposed feast, among the features of which will be an address by Bishop Conaty. In addition to Col. Egan, C. P. Lummis, J. C. Cline and W. R. Rowland will assist in making the occasion one long to be remembered.

The Anaheim Beet Growers association on Monday sold at auction its beet dumps and scales at Loara. Wm. Mauerhan and Eli Sparks bought the dump and the L. A. Evans bought the scales. The dump brought $93 and the scales $70. A block and tackle was sold to W. P. Earnest for $1.50. The money derived from the scale has been placed on deposit in the First National where stockholders of the beet association may call and receive their pro rata, about 20 cents per share being realized. There are 144 stockholders.

A. W. Danforth, some days ago, found water trickling into his well-pit which is 59 feet deep. The following day the water rose three inches, and at latest reports was still rising. A few years ago water stood at a depth of 20 feet in Mr. Danforth's well, its present depth showing to what extent it has lowered. Mr. Danforth believes water will yet rise to its former level, with a succession of wet years, and in this belief he is joined by a number of pump men of the neighborhood.

Ben Dresser, an old time Anaheim boy, has been in town a day or two from Portland. Ben conducts one of the largest retail grocery stores in the northern town and has done well since leaving here ten years ago. The old hankering after Southern California exists with him, however, and it would not surprise his friends to see him locate here and go into business. Tuesday he hired a rig and tried to find his former home in Placentia, and had difficulty in locating it, owing to the many improvements in that section.

Annual meeting of the Ladies Aid society of the Presbyterian church was held Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Arthur Lewis. Officers were elected as follows: Mrs. J. B. Rae, president; Mrs. W. H. Spake, first vice president; Miss Elsie Albert, second vice president; Mrs. T. S. Grimshaw, secretary; Mrs. A. E. Miller, treasurer. It was decided to give a picnic in Santiago canyon in the near future.

Chas. Wille, who for many years conducted a cooperage business here, died Monday last week at the home of his son-in-law, Chas. Albrecht, in Stalor, aged 63 years. Interment occurred in Roseale cemetery Los Angeles. Deceased lived here for thirty years and was a highly respected citizen. Five years ago he removed to Los Angeles where he lived until failing health induced him to change his residence to Stalor. He leaves a widow and daughter.

Miss Anne Everhardy returned this week from Leavenworth, Kansas, ill of typhoid fever. She went to the St. Louis fair last fall and remained to visit relatives in Leavenworth. An epidemic of typhoid fever has prevailed in that city. Miss Everhardy was ill upon the train but succeeded in reaching home. A trained nurse from Los Angeles is waiting upon her. Yesterday her condition was serious.

Madame Modjeska and Count Bozenta, who have been living at their mountain home at Arden during the winter, depart next week for New York, where Modjeska will be given a monster benefit testimonial tendered by Paderevski, Sembrich, and other friends of the noted couple.

Don David Yorba was a visitor in town from his home up the river the fore part of the week. Don David says the river is full of water and predicts the most favorable season the county has had in years.

A large crowd of art lovers assembled at Back's hall yesterday and the day before to view the art exhibit on display. Among scenes familiar to all were water color sketches by Miss Ingraham of Laguna, and one of the old Bremmerman place with its strings of bright colored chili peppers drying in the sun.

J. R. Webb, of Wall Lake, Iowa, brother of Painter Webb of this city, has bought a tract of land here and will make this place his home. He has spent two seasons here and thinks this valley is all right. Mr. Webb's family is in the east and he will shortly go there and arrange for their removal here.

Ed. Kraemer has been laid up with inflammatory rheumatism. His knee had to be lanced several times by Dr. Johnston and at the latest accounts Ed was in a fair way to recovery.

Labor Shortage In Orchards

Restriction of Mexican Immigration Opposed by Horticulturists

California agriculture would face a serious situation if plans to restrict Mexican immigration into this country are adopted.

Alexander Leggo, chairman of the Federal Farm Board, appeared before the house immigration committee in Washington recently, protesting against a bill setting quotas on American countries, according to reports received here.

The bill restricts Mexican immigration to 50,000 a year, which Leggo decried would create a labor shortage, forcing many California fruit and truck growers out of this line of agriculture.

American labor is not suited for the type of work involved in fruit growing and working on the knees as required in weeding and thinning crops in many districts, Leggo said. Excessive heat in the southern portion of the state is a further handicap on American labor, he explained, and added:

"The Farm Board is naturally interested in this problem, and in much of the California territory we feel that if growers cannot obtain labor which will enable them to continue raising the vegetables and small crops the land will probably be devoted to cereals, of which the country now produces a great excess, and on which we are putting forth our best efforts to try to curtail export."

As to how to deal with the situation, Leggo has no suggestions to offer, except that he believes it to be sufficiently serious to justify very careful study and investigation of the whole subject before a program of action in restricting immigration is worked out.

The other side of the picture was presented before the committee by cotton interests of the southeastern United States.

Overproduction of cotton in the southwestern United States, due to cheap Mexican labor, is ruining growers in the southeast, it was said.

An analogy was drawn between Negro slavery in the old days and the situation today. Many small planters who could not afford to buy slaves were ruined and if Mexican peon labor is not restricted the same situation will arise again, advocates of restriction asserted. Thousands of American laborers in South Carolina are doing cotton growing states of this region could be employed if overproduction in the south-western region, due to cheap Mexican labor, could be checked these proponents declared.

Infant Mortality Shows Low Rate

State Retains Reputation as Paradise for Babies

California maintained its position as a paradise for babies in 1929 by showing the usual low infant mortality rate which consistently characterizes this state.

There were 12 deaths in Anaheim during the year, a rate of 72.3 per 1000 of total births, with 5,129 deaths reported for the entire state.

The infant death rate for the state as a whole rose slightly in 1929 to 82.1 compared with 82.4 in 1928, according to the state department of public health, which supplied the data.

Probing into the cause of the increase in mortality, the department stated that the rise is due to the reduced total number of births that occurred last year, because the rate is based on the ratio of deaths to births of infants.

Indian babies led all other races in a high rate of mortality, registering 104.1 per 1000. Close behind was the rate of Mexican infant deaths, at 135.1. White babies were lowest on the scale, with a rate of but 46.3.

Diseases of early infancy caused a large percentage of total deaths among babies, the survey showed.

"Congenital conditions which cannot be changed are responsible for a large proportion of infant deaths, but it is believed that fully half the infant deaths, that occur are preventable," the department reported.

"As a meter of public health progress, contributed to from various channels, the infant mortality rate serves as a reliable index of general public health conditions. Family customs and characteristically peculiar to different races undoubtedly play important parts in production of high infant mortality rates."

"Lack of knowledge concerning the best methods of infant care also constitute a prime factor in production of this high rate."

Those counties on the honor list with low infant death rates were as follows: Glenn, Sacramento, El Dorado, Marin, Plumas, Santa Cruz, Siskiyou, Colusa, Sierra, Inyo, San Mateo, Placer, Stanislaus, Nevada, Bolinas, Los Angeles, Monterey, and Butte.

Regulating Mattresses

State government performs a number of services for the private citizen, including careful regulation of materials in mattresses upon which we sleep.

The state department of agriculture has reported that several hundred mattresses containing material from old pillows and feather bed covers seized during the past month. Ten persons charged with sale of these products were brought into court.

Inaccurate description of coverings and materials of upholstered furniture has also been cause during the month for action by the department. Those implicated have been warned that materials must be accurately designed.

Kansas woman lost a lot of diamonds through having them in a chamois bag and pinned to a petticoat she sent to the laundry. If she had kept up with modern styles she would not have had a petticoat to pin them to.

Adult Education Becomes Popular

Large Registration in Orange County's Night Schools

No longer are the public schools of California limited to the education of little Mary and Johnny. Today they extend to educate Mother and Father, Aunt Sarah and Uncle Ned.

Growing by leaps and bounds, adult education in this state has reached a point where the grownups attending evening schools outnumber the boys and girls enrolled in high schools.

Every county in California is showing the result of this increased interest in education by adults. In Orange county, a total enrollment of 1,537 is reported in its evening high school classes, including 725 men and 812 women.

"The department of education, under direction of its superintendent, is dedicated to education in terms of purpose, rather than in terms of age," explains Mrs. Ethel R. Allen, chief of the division of Adult Education.

"This makes it entirely consistent for an evening school to find among its students grown-ups of every conceivable educational experience, from those lacking all formal education to the university graduate."

Every two years the state legislature is asked to enact laws making it possible further to expand this phase of education.

"In many instances adults are prepared and kind to pay for their education, and it is desirable that they should do so," continued Mrs. Allen. "In any case, adults should be willing to pay for their books. For this reason the school law was changed to make this possible."

"It is probable that still further legislation will have to be enacted until all high schools become independent units of the school system."

"It has been observed that the ordinary school days of the week, Saturday and Sunday are not applicable to adult classes, since Saturday is often one of the best days for adults to go to school."

The present method of financing adult classes by use of bonded funds also needs to be modified in the future."

"Health" cannot be Bought as Commodity

"Health" cannot be sold in bottle, box, or bag, as food or drug preparations for animals, says Dr. H. E. Moser, veterinarian of the Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration. "Any preparation found in the interstate commerce with the word 'health' used in the name or on the label in such a way as to indicate that the preparation has curative properties for ailments of animals is in violation of the Federal food and drug act."

In December the courts rendered a judgment in favor of the department in a case against a medicine called "Liquid hot health." In which the department alleged that the article was mislabeled. The preparation was labeled "Liquid hot health" in which the department claimed that oats treated with it would cure sick hogs and stimulate the growth of their hair, skin, and hoofs. The Food, Drug and Insecticide Administration proved to the satisfaction of the court that the preparation contained ingredients capable of producing the effects claimed.

Other preparations using the word "health" in the name are being investigated by the administration. Many so-called tonics, regulators, and conditioners carry claims to the effect that they are "health-restoring." A drug preparation which has value as a remedial agent for a certain disease is not entitled to bear on the label the word "health" in such a way as to imply that the preparation is good for any and all diseases.

Words other than "health" and "health-giving" and "health-giving" on which the administration takes exception, when they are used in names to imply far-reaching curative powers, are: "vital," "life," "vigor," and "vitality," in any form or spelling.

To put reliance in preparations which are claimed to have curative and health-giving properties but which do not have them, is not only a direct waste of money, but the purchaser may be inviting serious loss by the substitution of such preparations for scientific medical treatment, proper feeding, proper housing, proper ventilation, and proper sanitation, says Doctor Moser.

Aeration of Milk Reduces Off Flavor

Proper aeration of warm milk reduces the off flavors and odors in milk to a considerable extent, according to the investigation of Prof. H. D. Moses of the University of California College of Agriculture.

Consulting Dr. C. L. Routhouse, head of the Dairy Industry Division of the College, Professor Moses has been referred to several authorities who hold that proper aeration effects a reduction of the off flavors and odors.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in tests of milk from cows fed alfalfa and green corn, found that where 12.1 per cent of oxygen was added the milk as off-flavor before aeration, only 3 per cent so rated it after aeration. Similar results were obtained in the study of milk from cows that had been fed alfalfa and cabbage an hour before feeding.

While the work is to be continued, Professor Moses is inclined to believe that the aeration may prove valuable in treating market milk.

Olympia Races

Crews for the University of Southern California will soon be "working out" on a lagoon in Long Beach. Officials of the college have approved a water way that is being conditioned for rowing practice.

This city will probably be among those who will witness the 1932 Olympic races to be held on their waterway.

Read Goes to San Francisco

California's early history with its exciting scenes of the gold rush, covered wagons, pony express and sturdy pioneers, will be presented in drama, songs and music through a series of radio programs over Station KFTC, KJL and KJL starting at 8 p. m. Wednesday, March 20.

This announcement was made here by Irvin Engler, Sacramento newspaper man engaged to write the series of historic sketches by Standard Oil Company, sponsors of the broadcast. The series will be entitled "The Historic Forty-Niners," and will be given every Wednesday night from 8 to 8:30 o'clock. The programs will originate in Station KFTC.

Engler, who is now doing research work on the programs, says they will all be based on historic facts, and events will be presented in historic order. Made will be that of the early period of California history, and famous characters who moved through the great drama will be represented by characters before the microphone.

Road Camps

More than 135,000 was spent by California during January for foodstuffs to supply the various road-camps where highway construction work is being carried on.

Approximately $14,000 of the sum went to buy cured and fresh meats.

Growers Attention!

The undersigned associations, members of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, are hereby giving notice of a closing date for the acceptance of new members.

In accordance with past custom of these associations, growers cannot be accepted for membership between April 1st and October 31st for the marketing of the current season's crop of Valencia.

New owners of groves, however, are eligible for membership at any time. This rule will be observed as in the past.

Members of the California Fruit Growers Exchange enjoy the distinction of having their co-operative plan used as a model by the FEDERAL FARM BOARD in establishing co-operative organizations in other lines of agriculture.

Distribution of increasingly greater percentages of fruit acreage and production each year have aided Orange County SUNKIST groves in yielding record returns. Returns in a short crop year can be still further increased under the SUNKIST plan by having greater control and thus securing the most efficient distribution. Only through the best co-operative efforts can the maximum returns come to the growers during any season.

Join today with twelve thousand other citrus growers, for co-operative protection and receive greater average returns for your fruit by marketing the SUNKIST way.

Placentia and Yorba Schools Will Merge

Yorba Children Henceforth to Attend Placentia Schools

Following presentation to the board of supervisors, Tuesday, by R. P. Mitchell, of a petition for the merger of the Yorba elementary school district with the Placentia union elementary school district, the board took action leading to official approval of the merger. The date of the hearing was set for 11 a. m., April 15, and the notice was ordered advertised locally for the required two-week period. The petition was signed by the members of the board of trustees of the Placentia district, following a conference of the two boards with Superintendent Mitchell last week.

The additional amount of the Yorba district's valuation of $1,077,260 will give the Placentia district third place in valuation in the county, being exceeded only by Santa Ana and Huntington Beach. The combined total for the district will be $14,685,225.

According to the terms of the agreement, each district will be held responsible for bonds issued before the merger. The bonded indebtedness of the Yorba district in July, 1929, was $18,000, maturing in 1948. This money was expended for the modest three-room building constructed in 1921. Outstanding bonds for the Placentia-Richfield district total $27,000 and are due in 1934 and 1937.

Current expenses, which amount to about $220 per year for the Yorba school, will be taken over by the union district. There now are 72 pupils attending the Yorba school, with 16 in the district already attending the Placentia school. There are at present three teachers for the eight grades.

While nearly 100 per cent of the nation signed the petition to merge with Placentia, a chance will be given for protests to be entered after the legal notice has been printed by the board of supervisors.

New Leaders On the Farm

Educated Men Taking Place of Soap Box Orators

The man with a strong voice and a reverence has been directing agricultural policies of the United States for too long.

His place is gradually being taken by a new type of leader, developed in the high schools and colleges of the country offering courses in vocational agriculture.

Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, is an enthusiastic proponent of scientific instruction for prospective farmers.

California is among the foremost states in this branch of education, and Kersey is determined to continue and enlarge facilities for this sort of instruction.

"We have been told through the press and on the public platform that one of the chief difficulties with agriculture in recent years is an absence of trained leadership," Kersey said.

"Too many leaders are men who have failed to make a success of their individual efforts in farming or its allied activities."

"The farmer who through his own industry, efficiency and production and careful use of credit has been able not only to make a living but frequently to build a reasonable fortune, is seldom chosen as a leader."

"It may be that he is too engrossed in his own business to give much attention to discussion of relief measures or to the organization of cooperative agencies to handle his produce."

Hope for the future is seen by Kersey in the young men of today who are gaining knowledge in schools of the underlying forces on which agriculture is built.

"It is impossible for one to observe activities of students in vocational agriculture without a very definite feeling that from this group will come a type of agricultural leadership different from

Logan Jackson Is Out For Sheriff

Resident of Orange for 27 Years Seeks County Position

Logan Jackson, candidate for sheriff, a resident of Orange for 27 years and a native Californian, this week announced his candidacy for sheriff of Orange county. His announcement, making the fourth entrant for the office of sheriff, follows.

"Having been solicited by many people from different parts of Orange county to become a candidate for the office of sheriff, I have, after due consideration, consented."

"Serving the fourth district for eight years as constable, I am familiar with the duties of an officer, and feel qualified to fulfill the duties of sheriff of this county."

"I do not use liquor and am in sympathy with the rigid enforcement of all laws, and if elected sheriff of this county will have as my duties—none paid by the tax payers of Orange county—to enforce the laws—only those who do not use liquor and are in sympathy with law enforcement."

"The tax payers are entitled to prompt and effective service from their servants, at all times and at the smallest cost consistent with the efficient management of the sheriff's office. The application of the most modern prison methods will, after due consideration, be applied in the handling of the prisoners and the management of the county jail."

Advanced Ideas On School Houses

Country Turns to California for Information upon Buildings

The United States is turning to California for advanced ideas on school-house planning.

Returned from the National Education Association superintendent department convention at Atlantic City, Walter E. Morgan, chief of the division of research and statistics in the state department of education, said that much attention was paid at the convention to California's ideas in this matter. An organization to study the subject was formed at the convention, to be known as the Council on School Building Problems. William John Cooper, federal commissioner of education, and former state superintendent of public instruction here, will head the council.

The country is to be divided into nine districts, according to Morgan, with California, Nevada, and Arizona comprising the far western group.

"Under Andrew P. Hill, Jr., chief of our state bureau of schoolhouse planning, California has an enviable position in this field," declared Morgan.

"Most of the states represented at the convention have only begun on the project, which we have furthered for many years. Intense interest was shown in our methods by those present and the council was the outcome of this inquiry."

"Purpose of the council is to bring together information which will result in improvement in buildings of rural school districts. Thousands of money throughout the United States is undoubtedly being thrown away in many cases through inefficient planning."

"California has the situation well in hand and our plans will be drawn upon extensively by the council. School architects are to be called in for conference and explanation of these plans."

The first meeting of the far western group will be called soon in Los Angeles, Morgan said. Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction of California, has been named temporary chairman.

that which has taken precedence in the past," the state superintendent said.

"A new vision of the dignity and rewards of the profession is instilled in these young men who go back to their farms from schools. No longer is the drudgery and routine instruction given in schools of agriculture. We are now training executives, rather than mere farmers."

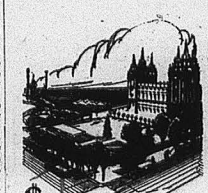

Early History

Ben H. Read, recently appointed by the California Newspaper Publishers' Association as head of its new bureau of service and exploitation, has been named acting manager of the association's San Francisco office, succeeding Walter A. Yarwood, resigned.

Announcement to this effect was made here by John B. Long, general manager of the association, who was in Sacramento on business connected with the state.

Long also announced expansion of the San Francisco office into larger quarters, at 358 Hohlbrook building, 55 Sutter street.

Read, who was formerly business manager of the Beverly Hills Citizen, was executive secretary of the C. N. P. A. until it became a statewide organization.

ON THE LOOKOUT in and about Anaheim with Lowell E. Jessen

Anaheim and vicinity this week was "Singing in the Rain."

The popular song took on a figurative and literal meaning here. And the chorus of residents who know the value of rainfall to this district indicated a strumming of purse strings as a result of Jupiter Pluvius' generosity.

Women and children on the streets uncomplainingly hustled to shelter as lightning flashed, and thunder rent the heavens. Merchants whose business temporarily slackened during the down-pour smilingly looked out their windows or hustled to the roof to make emergency repairs in cases of leaks.

And though human nature generally responds to sunshine and storms with a corresponding bright or dark mood, the people of this district looked forward to better crops and increased business and prosperity as a consequence to the down-pour.

So we've been "Singing in the Rain" and hope to do so for several more days, with good reason.

Springtime is the most joyful time of the year. Witness the cheerfulness of nature and how folks respond to beauty.

More than one cure-worn business man of Anaheim this week took a short ride along the wide boulevards, noted the freshness of ripening oranges on green trees and then was struck by the beauty of grass-covered foothills in the foreground, topped by the snow-capped Sierra Madre, which leaned out of the clouds with impressive dignity.

No artist could do credit to this beauty. The brightness of green, the clearness of the snow, the warmth of the sun and the cleanliness of rain-washed farms combine to give us one of nature's rarest gifts.

Individuals, of course, respond to this beauty in different measure. To some, the naivety and freshness about them touches a noticeably responsive chord; others take nature as a matter of course, like much for breakfast or tea, away from them and they would miss it more than they now realize.

But the children seem to be the ones who respond most to spring. They adore the meadow lark's call, the mocking-bird's full-throated song as it dodes, break and the blossoms on the trees.

After all, the youngsters themselves are in the springtime of life. Their happy hours at school and play match the beauty of nature about them.

Coming back to mundane things, however, let us consider the indications of business. Since the stock market crash in October the nation has had a decided tightening up in its buying power. It was the natural result that the paper losses following paper gains in the nation-wide gambling on the exchange.

Money now is plentiful. That is, the

At a joint meeting of the American Legion and the Woman's Auxiliary at the Knish of Physics hall on Tuesday evening, ten new members were initiated by the men while the women carried forty new members.

The Auxiliary now has 158 members and expect to have at least 215 by the time the present drive is completed. Among the members are six gold medal mothers.

The Long Beach drill team was present and put on the initiatory work and the Local Glee club furnished some delightful music.

Local officers were new uniforms for the first time and the work was very beautifully completed. Mrs. R. W. Marvin is president, Miss Josephine Fuller, past-president, Margaret Boyen, 1st vice president, Helen Betts, 2nd vice president, Alice Steiner, treasurer, and Edna Elliot, secretary.

Four hundred guests and members were present and the evening concluded with a social dance, the music being furnished by Liwellyn's orchestra.

New Carrier on Duty

City mail carrier No. 9 is now on the job. This additional route was made necessary by the construction of some of the old routes and the extension of free delivery territory.

The new carrier is Carlton Bartholmes, who was sent here from Wilma, California. His route is situated in the north end of the city and he has taken from the overcrowded lists of other routes. Many families hitherto outside the free delivery system have been added by the extension of territory, and there has been a general re-arrangement of many of the routes.

We can understand why a fool and his money are soon parted, but where he gets it is what gets us.

Lenders are finding it difficult to make as much as formerly on their ready cash, and therefore the interest rate in certain classifications has dropped considerably—witness call money in New York, and bankers' acceptance for as low as three and one-fourth per cent in Los Angeles. This eventually means the credit channels of the nation will get back to normal after the hectic stampede last fall—and that undoubtedly means that money in Anaheim will be more plentiful as the summer wears on.

Twenty-Thirty Club To Elect Officers

E. Stahler for sergeant-at-arms. Jack Gledhill was elected president at the first meeting and will preside over the election Monday night.

Among visitors at the last gathering was David Westcott of Santa Ana, past governor of the organization, and Frank Humphrey, also of Santa Ana. Roy Mendoza furnished musical entertainment.

RICHARD ARLEN WITH MARY BRIAN IN "BURNING UP" AT FOX THEATRE

Entertainment is the chief ingredient of "Burning Up," Richard Arlen's first starring picture. The picture is a Fox Theatre program, Saturday and Sunday, March 22 and 23. The action is fast and full of exciting moments; the climaxes are carefully built; the inventory is human and likeable. Arlen and Brian are in one of the sweetest screen sweethearts ever seen.

Arlen is a young automobile racing driver, ambitious to succeed in a big way. Unwittingly, he becomes involved in a crooked promotion scheme. San Hardy and Tully Marshall help to make a great deal of money by financing a race between Arlen and Francis McDonald, his rival. Arlen, however, has fallen in love with Mary Brian, whose father, Charles Seaton, has been marked for a victim by the promoters.

Arlen discovers their plot and, in a thrilling climax, he defeats the purpose, beats McDonald in a thrilling automobile race, and wins the girl.

Arlen and Brian were seen together in "The Man I Love" and with Gary Cooper in "The Virginian." They are two of the most popular younger players on the screen today. They have been won unanimous applause in many roles, and they are both wholehearted, youthful, clean-cut Americans, whose appeal is to everybody, of all ages.

A. Edward Sutherland, maker of "Fast Company" and "Phantom of the Opera" and directed "Burning Up." Many unusual shots and scenes were made on a fast track. The picture is a real story centers on the enthralling love story of the boy and girl, Richard Arlen and Mary Brian.

Dried Skim Milk For Chickens

Dried skim milk is a very valuable feed for chicks and since it is now being produced in Southern California from surplus milk, it can be had at a very reasonable price considering its high feeding value.

Experiment Station reports indicate that chicks develop best where a portion of the protein is derived from milk products and in chick mash 10 per cent of the mash should consist of dried skim milk. This proportion should be carried up to the fifth or sixth week.

Dried skim milk is also the standard remedy for Coccidiosis and is fed as 40 per cent of the mash during outbreaks.

CABLING OUR DELEGATES

When President Hoover appointed the American delegation to the London conference, his selections were generally acclaimed. It was everywhere conceded that it was one of the strongest groups it was possible to choose. This delegation has been in London face to face with the facts and the difficulties of the situation, and nothing has developed to create lack of confidence in them.

Nevertheless some of our home grown guardians of peace and other things evidently believe that those who are on the ground in contact with the facts need some prodding and advising from people who are many hundreds of miles away. Consequently a group of forward looking persons in New York, all of them incidentally boosters of forms of internationalism American people have decisively rejected, spent several months in the planning of a meeting of about four hundred "representative Americans" four hundred words reminding the delegates of what President Hoover has said relative to the purposes of the conference, and urging, in effect, that the President's idea of naval parity be attained without American naval construction. It is not surprising that when the eighteen ounce cablegram reached

The American delegates, they were not well pleased. John Hay, American Secretary of State, declined without American naval building, in case Great Britain declines to do any ship-sinking was not explained to the delegates. The lack of any party is due to the fact that while the United States sunk a high speed ship, the British sank a high speed ship. At the conference to ensure naval parity Great Britain proceeded feverishly to build cruisers with the effect that naval parity was upset. Our government has held off in naval building, but Great Britain will not turn back. She will turn back at ship sinking; otherwise to attain parity the United States will have to do some cruiser building. The blame for this is not on the United States, but on Great Britain for having upset naval parity.

Great Britain's navy building, it is true, is not directed against the United States, but against France. Nevertheless this disturbs a ratio agreed on at the Washington conference, and to this principle of equality the American government is committed. Just why the 1200 persons who signed the "appeal" to the American delegates did not ship their advice to the British and French delegates instead is puzzling.

This much is certain, and has been certain from the beginning of the naval conference. If there is no agreement at London a powerful element in the United States will blame the disagreement on the British. The New York Times has already broadcast that it is the determination of the American government to dominate the world through superior armament that keeps the world under the shadow of war. The fact that there is no agreement at London is a reflection of the fact that there is in the least with any domestic internationalists who profess to believe that any American measure looking to adequate national defense is a gesture of defiance to the whole world and evidence of American imperialism. The American people are getting ready to go forth to seek when he may devour.

A good many people doubtless signed this five thousand dollar "appeal" without giving it much consideration. Petition signing is one of the favorite American indoor sports played upon by pretentious organizations and leaders professing to represent "the people of the United States." Doubtless the American delegation at London realizes that most of the people of the United States have confidence in their patriotism and intelligence, and are willing to have these negotiations carried on the light of information rather than of distant speculation.

THE CURE FOR HAITI

Talk of withdrawal of United States troops from Haiti is absurd. Such action would result almost at once in a reign of blood, terror, rebellion and oppression after the manner recorded in the island's turbulent history. The government would be instantly taken over by a small group of mulatto politicians, who are the ruling class and whose predecessors for a hundred years held the country under the doom of plunder and pillage, of such a saturnalia of criminal excesses and murder as the world has not known outside of Russia.

Haiti has a population of 2,500,000 people; of these more than 95 per cent are absolutely illiterate, for the most part grovelling in abject poverty. These blacks could have no more liberty under their five per cent of yellow Fulers than could a toad under the hypnotizing gaze of the snake about to swallow it. Without American assistance, direction, control and protection to these "black peasants" Haiti would at once resume her revolutions, butcheries, assassinations and indecipherable intrigues.

butcheries, assassinations and indescribable tyrannies. The government has been able to do everything less than marvelous. The government's colossal debt steadily has been reduced and a cash surplus accumulated for the first time in the history of the country; banditry has been suppressed and crime maintained throughout the republic has been reduced. This government has been able to assure that a nation may possess a network of good roads, which has opened up what would for generations have remained inaccessible areas. We practically have banished the loathsome diseases which so long have afflicted the people. We have made our cities free of laws and made over cities dedicated to degradation and filth. We have made phenomenal progress in the development of agricultural and industrial schools. We have minimized collective murder and the human sacrifice required by the rites of purple voodooism.

The President's commission of inquiry may learn all this, but they should not be permitted to be content with information gathered at Port-au-Prince. They should be sent among the black peasantry to live a bit after the departure of the United States Marines.

The Boston Transcript recently in an interesting editorial pointed out that a new party movement in the United States seems to develop about every sixteen years and that one is therefore about due. Figuring from 1928, the Transcript points out that sixteen years before that date we had the Progressive or Bull Moose movement which played havoc with Republican affairs for a few years. That was in 1912, and sixteen years before that was the Greenback Party movement which played havoc with the Democratic Party. Sixteen years before that was Bryan, in 1880, came the Greenback Party "which reached its high water mark with 308,000 votes for James B. Weaver."

HIGH TAXES

While Anaheim has been steadily reducing its tax rate during recent years, three reductions in the past five years having been made, giving it the lowest rate with one exception of any municipality in the state, other cities have been increasing the levy. This applies not only to California but to the entire United States.

One of the most significant trends in the times is the steady increase in taxes, in spite of all of the efforts throughout the country to lighten the tax burden. The burden of taxation. According to the figures prepared by the National Industrial Conference Board, the total amount of taxes collected by the federal, state and local governments in 1928 was $1,340,000,000, a sharp time ago the total amount of taxes collected by the federal, state and local governments in 1925 was $1,000,000,000. For the fiscal year ended in 1925 the total amount to $1,249,000,000 as against $890,000,000 in 1922.

According to this report, taxes have been increasing steadily since 1923. When they amounted to $1,000,000,000 in 1923, they had increased to $1,340,000,000 in 1928. The increase in taxes is a significant fact in that this increase has been in spite of the fact that the federal government has decreased its expenditures, and despite the efforts to create public sentiment for a curtailment of expenditures. The total amount of taxes collected in 1927 were more than those collected in 1925 but state and local governments collected less than in 1925. The state governments collected $340,000,000 in 1928 the state governments collected $340,000,000 in 1925. The local governments in the United States collected $1,340,000,000 in 1928 as against $890,000,000 in 1925.

But as the Industrial Conference pointed out, the bill would not reduce the story of our government expenses, and of the burdens assumed by the people through taxation. While in the long run, increases in taxes and public expenditures go hand in hand, municipalities and states in recent years have been resorting more and more to loans. These loans have a tendency to create a vicious circle, in which the need for tax collection and of course finally have to be paid off with money collected from the taxpayers. The figures show that a total of $12,173,000,000 was expended by the federal, state and local government in the fiscal year 1927 while the receipts from taxation were only a little more than $10,000,000,000, making a difference of $2,173,000,000, which was spent than collected in taxes. The bill will have to be paid sooner or later, and course, the greater

The situation is one which should be carefully studied by the taxpayers of the local taxes which show the big burden if increase. In the fiscal year 1927, the latest for which the National Industrial Conference Board shows that the local governments incurred 53 per cent of all governmental expenditures and collected but 48.2 per cent of all the taxes while the state governments' share of the public expense was 33.6 per cent of the total taxes collected and the state governments incurred 34.4 per cent of total expenses and collected 26.5 per cent of all the taxes.

QUARANTINE RUSSIA

The soviet leaders in Russia are good showmen. Their chief desire at present is to attract attention to their country, and to attract religion is part of the bait, holy, we believe, and will purposes purely political. It will have no effect on true religion anywhere and deserves only to be ignored. The uproar their actions are sure to greatly aid the faking of communists everywhere. That is their prime objective. The flur in Los Angeles caused by their activity last week was balm to their soul. What they desired, both here and in Russia, was to be laughed at. If refusal to attend their ceremony would be the worst punishment possible to give them. It the rest of the world would pat a wall around Russia and refuse to be interested in anything that went on there, they would be forced to have a thoroughly effective quarantine in the treatment of their people.

LEMON TARIFF

Orange county citrus associations and lemon houses are backing up the California Fruit Exchange in its appeal for a higher tariff on lemons. The southern section of Orange county ships approximately 1000 cars of lemons each year, it was stated.

Last year the Orange County Fruit Exchange in the southern half of the county accounted for 324 cars of lemons and more than 200 other cars were be-

PARITY IN SHIPS AND

Actual parity with Great Britain our navy must have, not a hypothetical parity or a potential parity, but an absolute defacto equality.

The Washington conference left us with a hypothetical parity in battle fleets, but an actual disparity. It has been a sore point with our navy ever since that the British were left with their Rodney while we scrapped our nearest biggest and best.

If there is any battleship fleet cutting done at the London conference it will naturally be done at the older end. That will still leave the British with their Rodney and us with nothing to match it. If, to get an actual parity in battleship fleets it is necessary for us to build a first-class battleship, 'et us build it!

Forty millions is quite a sum of money. But if the principles of the case demand the building of a battleship the amount of the cost is not an issue; the expenditure is warranted.

Of course, some enthusiasts have a notion this London conference is going to abolish navies. It will do nothing of the sort. While the world is what it is, navies are going to be needed for some time yet. What we hope for from the London conference is a reduction of navies to the lowest practical terms.

But, whatever the cut, we are determined to have a navy equal to the biggest one left. If, when the cut has been made, it is still necessary for the United States to build something to attain an actual naval parity with Great Britain, we shall just have to build it, that's all. We know that we shall have to build some cruisers. And, unless the British scrap their beat battleship it looks as though we may have to build one to believed to have been shipped from private houses and through associations not affiliated with the exchange.

A bill which would provide an increase of $\frac{1}{2}$ cent a pound on Sicilian lemons, which are threatening the California trade on the Atlantic seaboard is proposed in the Senate. Opposition to the tariff has developed, it is reported. About 3500 carloads of lemons are imported each year, it is said. A tariff of 2 cents a pound now exists.

Coast Survey For Unemployed

Department of Industrial Relations Gives Attention to Subject

If California is to remain prosperous, it must immediately set about to solve its unemployment problem. The same thing holds true for Oregon and Washington.

Such is the opinion of Will J. French, director of the state department of industrial relations, who has announced that an unemployment survey of the entire Pacific coast is soon to be launched, with a view to caring for the annual winter glut of transient labor.

This study, he believes, will not only alleviate the present situation, but also point the way toward solution of the annually recurring social problem of homeless men who crowd the coast in winter.

French has just returned from an unemployment conference by the Social Science Research Council in New York. The Pacific coast's labor question is unique, he says, and must be studied apart from the rest of the United States.

"We have such matters as Mexican and Filipino immigration to consider," said French. "Other problems peculiar to the west include the extensive advertising of California in eastern publications without word of advice to those who seek the promised land without means, the migratory nature of labor on the coast, and need for extension of industries and foreign trade."

French pointed to three palliatives now being applied successfully in California, and which will be adopted in Oregon and Washington. These are:

1. Speeding up state public work, particularly contracts for highway and state building construction.
2. Campaigns for industrialization of California cities to take up the slack of winter idleness and for foreign trade to keep the wheels of industry moving.
3. Solution of the immigration problem. Within the next two months, French promised, his office will issue a comprehensive fact-finding report, requested by Governor Young, on Mexican and Filipino immigration, its economic and social effects upon labor.

High Schools In State Prison

Education of Convicts Before Board Now Up for Consideration

"It is not beyond the realm of possibility that convicts in San Quentin prison may earn college degrees while serving their terms."

Such is the belief of Verner Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, who has just announced a plan to inaugurate high school and college courses in state prisons which will give credits equal to those issued by any state school.

California's greatest challenge in the field of adult education, according to Kersey, is in its prisons. Under the remarkable leadership of Earl M. Stetson, San Quentin's "convict college" has grown until it now stands as the largest in the United States.

Now that Stetson has resigned to become director of education for all federal penitentiaries, Kersey says that his work will not stop, that a successor will be named at once, and that the prison is to enter upon what will probably be its greatest era of education.

Although education is elective at San Quentin, nearly 2,000 students are enrolled, of which 500 are taking University of California extension courses, more than 100 are in correspondence classes, about 50 attend "night school" and the rest attend day courses given by the house talent teacher-students.

Crime, which Kersey defines as "social sickness," can best be cured, he claims, "by recreational programs which promote physical and mental activities of directed expression."

For the physical well-being of those at San Quentin, in consideration of crowded cell conditions and lack of extensive industrial facilities.

"For mental reclamation, not so much has been done," said Kersey. The program of promoting constructive mental development, applied learning activities on determined levels, discovery, development and conservation of latent talent and recision of social, civic, economic and industrial attitudes, the stimulation of the beginnings of culture, are yet problems of the future."

Kersey thinks that every prisoner-

Storage of Water Important Topic

Millions of Dollars to Be Invested in Conservation of Streams

A vision of thousands of acres of parched land in California, with the announcement by the federal-state water commission and the legislative water committee of the four major projects upon which they will immediately start work.

"First," they said, "we must consider storage of water within the Sacramento basin." That means construction of the $70,000,000 dam at Kennett, in Shasta county. A similar reservoir at Iron canyon, proposed as an alternative, would do only half the work, authorities agree.

Next was proposed the Salt Water Barrier across Carquinez straits, estimated at $10,000,000 and around which a battle raged in the 1923 legislature.

Another project was the San Joaquin river pumping plant, a $14,000,000 series of dams to transfer surplus water from the Sacramento to the San Joaquin river. Last was the important Santa Ana river flood control project.

No time is to be lost in launching studies on these projects. Three steps have been agreed upon by the two fact-finding commissions. First they will listen to arguments for and against each proposal, beginning April 5.

Some time in May, after these hearings are concluded, Dr. Elwood Mead, federal commissioner of reclamation, will meet with the two bodies to discuss the entire program of water conservation in California. Dr. Mead will bring along his own engineers, and will be prepared to spend from 10 days to two weeks in the state.

Finally, the two groups will meet in executive session to study means of utilizing and conserving the state's water supply.

Whether the Salt Water barrier, designed to prevent the encroachment of ocean water upon the industrial and agricultural areas of Suisun bay and lower Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, is to follow or precede the other main projects, will be determined at these meetings.

Highway System Best In Country

Magnificent Paved Roads Everywhere Throughout State

Every Californian is proud of the great highway system in this state, stretching from the Oregon line to the Mexican border.

Most citizens know that the three cent tax on each gallon of gasoline is responsible for these long stretches of smooth road, with the tax divided three ways—one cent for new state highway construction, one cent for maintenance of state highways, and one cent to the counties for maintenance of their own roads, outside the state system.

But this one cent going to the counties cannot be used for new road construction and in many cases, it is not sufficient for all necessary maintenance work.

Last year Orange county had to levy a general tax amounting to $557,305 for road and bridge maintenance and new road construction.

State Controller Ray L. Riley, who gave these figures, said that the total tax levied for this purpose in all counties of the state amounted to $2,817,335 for the year, about two thirds of what the counties received from the state gasoline tax.

"It cannot be expected that every road in the state will be dedicated as part of the state highway system," said Riley.

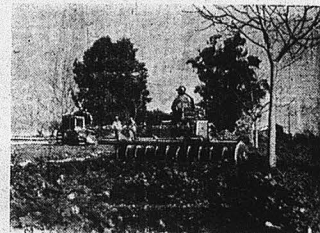

student should have a goal, and that rewards in the form of credits, diplomas, certificates of completion and possibly degrees, would do much to promote the cause.

"But educational accomplishment," he adds, "gained within a prison should have no stigma attached to its record."

YOUR MONEY Is Being Saved All Along the Line

TO PRODUCE the best and most serviceable tractor that can be built—to manufacture this tractor as economically as possible and to pass all savings on to the buyer—to eliminate all waste in getting the tractor into the hands of the user at the lowest cost—to keep this tractor working profitably for its owner—these are the aims which are conscientiously kept in mind by every person who has anything to do with the manufacture and sale of "Caterpillar" Tractors.

When you buy a "Caterpillar" you first get the advantage of unequalled experience and success in manufacturing tractors of the track-laying type. Next you benefit from the big savings made possible by enormous volume of production. These dearly-won economies are further protected by the precautions taken to eliminate even the smallest items of waste—from the time the "Caterpillar" leaves the factory until it is put to work on your place.

In addition to cutting production costs, the "Caterpillar" Tractor Company also reduces the distributor's margin to the irreducible minimum. The Shepherd Tractor & Equipment Company sells more tractors than any other distributor in the world—yet our margin of profit is approximately 50% less than the average mark-up of ordinary tractor distributors. We make our profit not on the individual sale, but by selling a large number of "Caterpillar" Tractors.

We also help you hold down the cost of keeping your "Caterpillar" working. It is a well-known fact that "Caterpillar" Tractors are very economical to operate and seldom require repairs. But if you ever do need to replace a part you can now buy "Caterpillar" parts 40% cheaper than you could four years ago. For your benefit we maintain five well-equipped, ably-staffed plants where "Caterpillar" service of a superior kind is always available at short notice. When you own a "Caterpillar" in this territory you are never more than an hour away from Shepherd Service.

"So the counties have many miles of well traveled roads which they must maintain. But the state aids them by dividing the gasoline tax money and giving one third of the total to be spent on such maintenance."

"This state money cannot be used for new road construction and many counties have had to levy taxes, equal to, or more than, the amount received from the state, for additional road construction. In many cases the tax is also used for road maintenance where the state appropriation does not provide enough for this purpose."

Some discussion has been heard at the capitol now and again on raising the gasoline tax to four cents. The plan has evidently been put forward by those hoping for larger appropriations for the counties.

Little hope is seen by political observers here for this idea. The automobile associations are on record against an increase in the gasoline tax. They said the limit had been reached as far as their support was concerned when the three cent law was adopted.
