

PETITION CLAIMS SCHOOL DISTRICT CHANGE ILLEGAL

Anaheim Union High School
Asks Writ of Review, and
Action be Voided

Charging four counts of illegal procedure in changing the boundary lines to include the Centralia school district, the Anaheim union high school district Tuesday afternoon filed a petition in superior court asking that the act of the board of supervisors on December 5, 1933, be voided, and requesting a writ of review.

The action, filed by Attorneys Roger Dutton and P. C. Drumm, came as a surprise, nine months after the supervisors had eliminated the district.

The union high school claimed irreparable damage to the district by action of the board of supervisors in expending the boundaries of the Buena Park, Cypress and Magnolia school districts to take in all of the old Centralia district. The greater share of the assessed valuation of the Centralia district by the change, comes under the Fullerton district.

The petition contends that County Superintendent of Schools Ray Addison had not filed a recommendation with the board of supervisors prior to action by that body. This law, requiring, according to the high school district.

The petition also claims that the law requires notice be given to the boards of trustees of affected districts ten days before such a change, which was not done.

Notice that such a change is contemplated also must be filed in three public places at least 10 days before passage of the resolution, which the petition claims was not done.

The law also requires, according to the petition, that original petitions for change in school boundaries must be signed by two-thirds of the heads of school families in the district. Again, this was not done, according to the plaintiff.

Orange County's Next Tax Bill Expected To Be $111,088 Lower Than for Last Year

Orange County's tax bill for 1934-35 will be $111,088 lower than for last year, it was revealed this week when the tentative budget was completed and ordered printed by County Auditor W. T. Lambert. The total to be raised by taxation in the county under this budget is $1,173,658 as compared to $1,284,746 last year.

The sums required under the new budget can be raised on a tax rate of $1.04 outside cities and 92 cents inside cities. The outside rate would be the same as last year while the inside rate would be two cents higher.

A total of $68,878 is set up for the four road districts, in the budget, and on this basis a road tax of 12 cents would raise the required funds. Last year the rate was 14 cents, Lambert

Operating expenses for the plant will amount to $185,000 for the 1934-35 season.

Kiwanis Club to Sponsor Benefit Show for Clinic

Board Discusses Date, Tickets and Other Details at Meeting Wednesday

Members of the Anaheim Kiwanis club executive board discussed dates, ticket sales and other arrangements for a motion picture show to be given in the near future at the Fox Theater for the purpose of raising funds to aid the dental clinic started last year in the elementary schools.

Decision to sponsor the benefit show was made by the club Tuesday when Harry C. Arthur sr., manager of both local theaters, offered to furnish the theater and the program free for such a benefit. The club took up the challenge enthusiastically, instructing its executives to thresh out details. The board met Wednesday night at the summer home of P. A. Backs at Long Beach, where dinner and a beach party were enjoyed, and plans discussed.

Miss E. Kate Roe, representing the elementary school board, and Miss Adelaide Price, school nurse, in talks before the club at the luncheon-meeting Tuesday told of the history of the dental clinic and of the necessity of keeping it going by donations from philanthropic organizations. Several Parent-Teacher associations have contributed to the fund, although not nearly enough to assure continuance of free dental service to children who otherwise could not afford the work. Work for the clinic, according to Miss Roe, began 15 years ago and last spring culminated in purchase of $750 in equipment and materials and the hiring of a dentist and an assistant two half days a week.

Miss Price stressed the necessity of preventive measures in the school system, and related difficulties in inducing some parents to keep their children at home, despite contagious diseases.

Sales Tax Revenue Reaches New High

Sales tax collections in California for April, May and June amounted to $12,148,636, the state board of equalization announced.

Declares Church Needs Power, Not More Machinery

Rev. S. E. Schrader Claims
Many Lose Consciousness of God's Will

Citing Kings 6:5-7, Rev. S. E. Schrader of the Salem Evangelical church addressed the union church services in the city park Sunday evening, comparing the incident of the axe-head to the spiritual condition of many persons today.

"In the instance of the text, the prophet Elshah headed a school of prophets. They went to the banks of the River Jordan for the purpose of enlarging their institution. While at work there one of the men lost his axe-head. He called the prophet's attention to the incident, and the prophet restored it to him," Rev. Schrader said.

"What might the 'axe-head' represent in the church today? It might represent the consciousness of the presence of Jesus Christ in the life of the Christian. Many people have lost that. It might represent the consciousness of the dwelling of the Holy Spirit. Many people have lost that. It might represent the consciousness of God's will and word embodied in life. Many people have lost that. In short, the 'axe-head' might represent vital spiritual power. Many people have lost that."

In discussing out-spoken criticism of churches today, Rev. Schrader said: "Many people are depicting the apparent lack of spiritual power in the church as not realizing to the fullest possible extent the purpose of its existence. It is not that the church needs more machinery, but rather that it needs more power to run the machinery it already has. Perhaps we need better methods, but it is not by might nor power, but by my spirit, with the Lord's help. Therefore, many earnest souls are yearning, praying and working for a genuine revival that shall sweep through the entire Church of Christ on earth."

Auto Registrations Up, So Is Big Check

Because of increased automobile registrations, Orange county receives $425,758 more in auto license fees for the first six months of 1934 as contrasted with 1933, according to figures announced at the court house this week. Total allotment for the first six months of this year is $52,585.50, while for the same period last year the annual state check was for $55,662.81. The check's total is based upon records of the state division of highways which show 45,453 motor vehicles in the county. The county gets half of the receipts, the state the balance. Money must be spent for road building and repairs.

W. C. MAUERHAN URGING CHANGES IN WATER LAWS

Changes in the county's ordinance against wasting water were urged upon the board of supervisors Tuesday by W. C. Mauerman, director of the Orange County Water district and a member of the Farm Bureau water committee. Mauerman pointed out to the board that the ordinance should be revised before fall in order to enjoy its full protection. Recent trials, he said, had shown ways in which it could be perfected, with these proposed changes now being taken up with the district attorney's office.

Grammar School Budget for 1934-35 Is Set at $138,135

Two New Teachers Named and
Two Custodians Appointed
By Trustees

Anaheim elementary school budget for the year 1934-35 was placed at $138,135 when the board of trustees Tuesday night met at the Fremont school and accepted the budget recommended by the annual report of Superintendent of Schools M. A. Gauer.

In breaking down revenue sources, Superintendent Gauer points out that the elementary school district will raise $56,359.60 by taxes, while the state will contribute $81,275.40. To carry over till revenue is obtained from this year's taxes, the elementary school system has a surplus left over from last year of $23,236.33.

Expenditures are anticipated as follows: Teachers' salaries $100,350; operating expenses, $15,585; maintenance, $325; library, $2680; auxiliary agencies, including transportation and nurse, $1565; capital outlay, $4650; and administration expenses, $6120.

The school board made two changes in the school faculties, and appointed two new custodians. Earl Royer, a student and part-time teacher at Los Verne College and a student of the University of Southern California, takes the place of Adolph Bunge as social science instructor at Fremont. Mrs. Marion Scott, a widow, and Mrs. W. Bravely will succeed Miss Pauline Hinds as first grade teacher at Lincoln, Carleton Star and Harley Vincent were appointed custodians at Broadway and George Washington schools, respectively. Painting and repairing of schools will be done by day labor and paid from the general school fund, the trustees decided.

3 Local Students Get High Grades For Spring Work

Three Anaheim students, Florence E. Ryman, Grace V. Houch and Lois M. Ritchey, are included among 231 University of Southern California undergraduates who made no grade less than "B" during the spring semester of the past school year. It is revealed by Theodor Clark, U. S. C. registrar.

A perfect academic record of all "A" grades was achieved by 12 Trojan students according to the scholarship report. Seniors placed the largest number of students on the honor roll with juniors, sophomores, and freshmen following in the order named. Preparations are now being made on the U. S. C. campus for the opening of the fall semester on September 18. Scholastic aptitude tests required of all entering freshmen are being given each Saturday morning at 8:45 o'clock. Applications are now being received by the Trojan employment bureau for part time work assured to approximately 400 men and women students under the Federal Emergency Relief administration. Work on the campus by U. S. C. students will begin September 1st, and 50 per cent of the positions will be available to new students.

Fate of $3,000 Experimental Plant to Reclaim Sewage Water Up To State SERRA

Fate of a $3,000 experimental plant to test the feasibility of reclaiming sewage waters in Orange county now rests with the State SERRA officials.

This became evident upon announcement that the county SERRA board has approved the project, upon application by the board of supervisors, and the Orange County Farm Bureau board of directors, meeting last week, also gave its support.

The plan as submitted by the board of supervisors calls for establishment of a portable plant, materials to be paid for by the various participating cities, who have agreed to buy the materials which cost in the neighborhood of $700. Balance of the cost, all of it labor, will

MERRIAM TO TELL INSIDE STORY OF BAY CITY STRIKE

Mass Meeting to be Held On Friday Evening at Birch
Park, Santa Ana

"The Inside Story of the Red Activities during the strike in the San Francisco Area" will be discussed by Frank T. Merriam at the mass meeting to be held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at Birch park, Santa Ana.

Residents of the county are invited to hear the Governor discuss the recent crisis in the Bay region, outlining the reasons which led to defiance of popular government by certain leaders of the labor movement, and the necessity of calling out the national guards, in which four Orange county companies served.

Agricultural and political leaders of this county point out the direct responsibility of the governor of the state to the agricultural interests of California. This was brought to the fore when strikers threatened to tie up movement of crops in areas adjacent to San Francisco, as a part in the general strike which met dismal failure a few days after it paralyzed transportation facilities in the northern metropolis.

Governor Merriam's prompt acceptance of the challenge of strikers, according to local agricultural leaders, and his warning that the crops of farmers must be moved if such action required the entire resources of the state, gives local growers an idea of support they might expect should valuable perishable crops be threatened by fomenters of labor unrest.

Precautions in Orange county against labor troubles are threefold. Governor Merriam, since the strike situation in San Francisco, has revised the set-up to enable all state and county officials to mobilize within 24 hours to meet emergency agricultural labor disputes. The other two measures are purely local, with representatives of the district attorney's office and county officials operating, and the farmers themselves putting "No Trespassing" signs, thus giving them a firm legal position against pickets, strike fomenters and other agitators.

Previous to the mass meeting at Birch park, Governor Merriam and newspaper publishers of Orange county will be guests of Justus Cramer and W. O. Hart at the home of the latter, the James cafe, 216 West Fourth street, Santa Ana.

Edwards and Smith Absolved of Blame

State Senator Nelson T. Edwards and Chairman William Smith of the board of supervisors today stand absolved of contempt of court charges as a result of their appearance Tuesday before Superior Judge J. O. Moncur in connection with a mortgage foreclosure case.

Edwards and Smith, on behalf of the Orange First National bank, started foreclosure proceedings against Bess J. Carter. This suit was followed by one in which the Orange County Valencian Groves sued the bank and Bess Carter, in which the plaintiff charged the bank went ahead with the suit despite a temporary restraining order.

Testimony developed that the restraining order notice was delivered at the Orange bank after Edwards had left to attend the sale, and during a period when Smith was busy. As soon as he could get to the document, and not knowing before then what it was, the time for the sale had passed, and it was too late to halt proceedings. The bankers were absolved of guilt in the affair and the case proceeded on original action of the bank and attorneys, who showed that the temporary restraining order had been dissolved.

State Fair Scrip Books Being Sold by 4-H Club Folk

Future Farmers Aid Put Over
Gigantic Exhibit, Which Opens Sept. 1st

Throughout the state, Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club members have been appointed by the state fair board to act as its representative this year in the sale of half-price admission tickets to the California state fair, and valuable cash prizes will be paid to club treasurers for the efforts of individual members.

Under this plan, residents in every part of the state will have an opportunity to save 50 per cent on their state fair tickets, and the junior farmers can raise funds to carry on their cooperative projects.

Hundreds of complaints were made to the state fair board last year because scrip books could not be purchased at points distant from Sacramento, and out-of-town visitors had to pay full admissions upon arrival at the fair. Through the cooperation of the Future Farmers and 4-H Clubs, which between them cover practically every county in California, scrip books will be brought to everyone's door.

These books contain five dollars worth of tickets, which are sold for two dollars and fifty cents if purchased not later than Saturday, September 1, the opening day of the fair. Tickets are transferable and may be used for admission to the grounds, grandstand, horse show or parking area.

As a result of abolishing the pass system last year and substituting scrip books, gate receipts were increased sixty per cent, and thousands of visitors gained the benefit of a 25 cent admission charge.

Pastor to Stand Trial on Tuesday

Rev. Grover E. Halston of the Garden Grove First Methodist church, will appear before Justice of the Peace K. E. Morrison of Santa Ana on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock to stand trial on charges of allowing his son to drive an automobile without a driving license. The pastor pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing Monday.

The trial of his son, 13-year-old Barclay Halston, was certified to the juvenile court. He was charged with driving without an operator's license. Charges against the father and son grew out of the accidental death July 31 of Ernest Umphenour, 14, of Garden Grove. The Umphenour lad, who was the proud possessor of a new automobile, was killed while riding a bicycle along the highway near the intersection of Stanford and Huntington avenues. The Halston machine struck the boy, with death following immediately. At the inquest the death was declared accidental.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, ill-tasting candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is that your liver is clogged. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a flat, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your hair falls and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes three good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, acting when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills in the red label. Beware of substitutes. Exact drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

BANK'S FRIENDS LAY PLANS FOR AUDITOR RACE

Local friends of Lloyd H. Banks, candidate for county auditor, are laying plans this week for organization meetings throughout the county during the next two weeks.

Banks, who has been city auditor for the city of Santa Ana for the past nine years and on the committee of auditing and budgeting of public administration of the University of Southern California for five years, is considered to be exceptionally well qualified for the position and if elected will put into effect a budget control system which will conserve tax funds.

Mr. Banks promises, if elected to keep on hand at all times complete information of all county expenditures and will furnish such information to any taxpayer at any time.

It is believed that the systems which would be installed by him would eliminate duplication of effort and thereby result in economy.

"Invest your Vote in Banks and Save Money for the Tax payers," has been adopted by friends as an appropriate slogan for Banks' campaign and is attracting much interest.

Time To Meet the Gambler's Challenge

When a newspaper of the known calmness of judgment and conservative views so characteristic of the Orange Daily News, declares that the gambling situation in Orange County is a real threat to public welfare, there is every reason to become honestly aroused. The Orange Daily News, notably unexcitable, has shown that it is so aroused, in its following editorial of last Saturday:

CRUSH THE GAMBLERS

The gambling issue in Orange county is not the property of any individual. The people of Orange county must look it squarely in the face.

It will not do to say that it is a political issue trumped up for the purpose of securing votes. It will not do to say that it is an innocent form of catch-penny entertainment. That is gambler's talk.

The facts are otherwise as every frank person who knows the facts will declare. Gamblers have been conducting games under the guise of so-called tango or chip games, at which people can lose large sums of money. Gamblers have been making big profits and will fight to continue to make big profits.

Gamblers have been conducting games in defiance of law, have been breaking the law, and have been trying to convince the people that the games are innocent penny ante amusements.

Gamblers have been receiving aid and comfort from sources that the people of Orange county have a right to expect to be on the side of law and order.

Gamblers have been exploiting children, have been robbing people who are as foolish as to think that there is a chance to win money on fixed machines. Gamblers have been conducting big games behind the screen of chip games and tango.

The progress of the gambling power in Orange county has been steady during past months. It began subtly with penny games, advanced to higher stakes as the confidence of the operators increased, and now has the brass to challenge law and decency in the county.

It is time to meet that challenge. It is time for the forces of decency in Orange county to stand up and be counted. It is time for the churches and the civic organizations of the county, that have the moral and financial welfare of the people in mind to wheel into action.

Are we in Orange county dumb or asleep or only indifferent to the cynical challenge of cheap gamblers?

For, after all, what are gamblers but exploiters of human weakness, forerunners of panderers, bootleggers, prostitutes?

Orange county is too fine a community to endure this tribe, to permit it to break down law and debauch citizenship.

The Daily News is not given to witch-hunting. It does not cry "wolf" at the sight of a tatty bear. The Daily News sees in the development of gambling in Orange county a situation which calls for the earnest consideration of all people who treasure the fair name and the higher interest of the community and who are unwilling to submit to the domination of sinister forces.

The gamblers are foreigners in our community life. They are hostile to our ideals and purposes. Gambling is not for Orange county. Let us crush the infamous thing.

The above editorial is commended to the attention of the people of Orange County by

AUGUST 16, 1884

An alarm of fire about half-past 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon called for the citizens to witness the destruction of the dwelling on Aguste street owned by Mrs. Julia Luedke and occupied by John Hanna. The fire did its work so rapidly that the spectators could only watch the blazing fire and stand ready to prevent flames from doing harm to adjacent buildings. Three chairs, a sofa, and a table comprised all the furniture saved and they even were scorched.

About the hour indicated Mrs. Hanna was preparing supper upon a coal oil stove of the Fairy Queen pattern. Noting that the flame puffed up in a fitful way she turned the wick down and attempted to blow it out. But the flame shot up higher and she picked up the stove and attempted to carry it out of doors. The flame scorched her cheek and she either left the stove fall or the bottom dropped out and in an instant the flames had communicated with the cloth covered ceiling. As before stated the fire did its work too rapidly to admit of any of the furniture being saved. It is as strange as it is fortunate that Mrs. Hanna was not severely burned by the ignition of her clothing.

The house was not insured. The furniture, piano and family wearing apparel were insured in the Manufacturers of Boston, of which company Richard Melrose is local agent for $1000. The general agents in San Francisco was apprised of the fire by telegraph on Monday morning and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day Mr. Melrose received telegraphic instructions to adjust the loss at once.

Had the usual afternoon breeze been prevailing during the fire it is likely that the adjoining house of Mrs. Frohling would have been badly scorched. But it was uninjured and Mrs. Frohling requests us to convey to the firemen and citizens generally her thanks for their services in assisting to preserve her property.

Work on the Los Angeles and San Gabriel valley railroad is progressing rapidly. A large force of men are now at work on the north bank of the Arroyo Seco near the Sycamore Grove resort, while the work about the Raymond hotel hill is going forward in a lively manner. There will be a trestle across the canyon and north of and near Sycamore Grove, about thirty feet high and nearly seven hundred feet long. The bridge across the upper Arroyo Seco will be a trestle about thirty feet high. At least 200 men are at work on the line, and from appearances they will make short work on the grading for the first twenty miles. The pickers to Oak Grove, next spring, can go by excursion trains to their favorite resort, and avoid much trouble from teams. The fruit belt will be pierced through by this new line and made to contribute liberally to the prosperity of the town, which is soon to be an important feeder to the business of the city of Los Angeles.

A meeting of the Republicans of Anaheim is called for next Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Town Hall on Los Angeles street for the purpose of organizing a Republican club. H. T. Payne of Los Angeles will be present and address the club. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance as the meeting gives promise of being a spirited one.

This office is indebted to A. J. Lawton for a supply of delicious plums and figs, the first named fruit being especially fine.

The receipt of a box of nectarines from Lionel Browning is also acknowledged with thanks, and a hundred or more smell from F. J. J. Schmidt was duly appreciated. Who wouldn't be an editor.

N. H. Mitchell of Anaheim announces in the Los Angeles papers that he will be a candidate for sheriff, subject to action by the Republican County convention. Col. W. E. Morford of Los Angeles is an aspirant for the same office. His announcement is published today. He is a pushing, energetic man and will make a candidate who will strengthen the ticket.

A fire bug has been quite actively engaged of late in the quiet community of Westminster. Not long since the attempt to fire the dwelling house of William Harper was followed by the destruction of a large quantity of hay, fired as it is supposed by phosphorus. On Thursday a third attack was made against Mr. Harper by burning a stack containing about twenty tons of hay. As yet the rascal has evaded detection but the feeling is so strong regarding the thrice repeated outrage that the suspicion as now directed may lead to the capture of the culprit.

Col. E. E. Edwards visited the Gazette on Thursday. The Colonel is authority for the statement that Pomona has an attack of county division, with an ambition for the county seat. This is as natural to new settlements as the chicken-pox is to children and quite as harmless.

S. L. Chilson while sojourning at the beach was bitten or stung on the foot by some kind of insect or animal of unknown genus, causing severe illness attended by great pain. He was removed to his home and has not yet found relief from great suffering.

It is but justice to the street sprinkling contractors to commend the efficiency with which the work is done. So far as dust is concerned the streets are in excellent condition, but attention and repair in many localities are necessary to the sidewalks in town.

The state school fund has been apportioned. Los Angeles county with 14,082 children gets $21,686.28. The only counties which get an amount in excess of this are San Francisco and Alameda. The latter has 18,297 children and gets $28,177.38.

It is understood that the Democratic County convention will be held about September 10th. The Republican Central committee have decided not to call their convention until after the Democracy have held theirs.

A petition has been circulated in Los Angeles asking the Board of Supervisors to refund the money collected for licenses. Such a petition in Anaheim would receive the signature of every taxpayer.

A numerously signed petition was forwarded from Anaheim on last Saturday to Governor Stoneman asking him to offer a reward for the arrest of the murderers of P. W. Bras.

Capt. A. S. Ferguson arrived from San Francisco Wednesday and will remain here for a time to look after his business affairs.

Business streets down town are almost impassable with the thoroughfares being torn up for paving and the sidewalks occupied by a force of men setting poles in the walks and stringing wires. Excavations are being made in all directions and the steam roller is at work. It is expected the first block to be paved, that on Center street from Los Angeles to Claudina, will be completed some time next week.

A federal forest planter is in the Santa Ana mountains selecting sites for eucalyptus planting during the coming winter. He is accompanied by Forest Ranger Stephenson of San Juan Capistrano. They selected an area near the Trabuca canyon as suitable for the growing of eucalyptus.

A quarter of an inch of rain fell at San Juan Capistrano Sunday. The rain was general among the foothills in that end of the county. Back in the mountains the rain was heavier. Trabuca canyon had quite a shower. The rain was the edge of a desert thunder storm and was accompanied by heat and murkiness.

Work upon the erection of a large new packing house will begin this week on Santa Ana street, east of Claudina. It will be occupied by the walnut association, which will sublease to the orange association now in course of formation.

Assemblyman Melrose has received from the Secretary of State a number of copies of the Direct Primary Law, which he desires to place in the hands of such electors as wish to study its provisions. The pamphlet contains, in addition to the law, forms for making of nominations thereunder and are analysis of its practical operation. Call and get one.

Supervisor Linebarger was in town Tuesday. He says all the county roads in this section are being graded and oiled. The road between this city and the oil wells will be equal to a paved street, says Mr. Linebarger. Good.

Mrs. Hattie Mitchell was in town from Pasadena on Thursday and signed up for paving. Her signature is that of the last property owner in the four central business blocks to contract for improved thoroughfares, and extending in four directions owners are signing for paving. The paved area will extend to Sycamore street on the north, Orange on the east, Santa Ana on the south and Palm on the west.

The Methodist church is being enlarged to a seating capacity of 500. The folding crate company has a force of mechanics engaged upon the structure, which will be remodeled and rebuilt.

Prof. Ed Crowther has taken charge of the band as instructor and is already at work upon a plan to increase it from fourteen pieces to one of forty pieces. Prof. Crowther is one of the leading musicians of Southern California having studied at the Boston Conservatory of Music as well as in Europe. He tells us his ambition is to make the band the equal of the best musical organizations in the state. Those wishing to join may send in their name to him or Frank Tausch. Success to the new leader and the boys.

Joseph Helmsen was surprised to receive a letter this week inquiring how much he would take for a quit-claim deed to 640 acres in Imperial county. Mr. Helmsen a number of years ago in company of several others, purchased 320 acres of school land from the state in the Imperial valley, and subsequently acquired the interest of another of the syndicate. On representation later that the land was valueless he ceased further payments, and the subject passed out of his mind. In recent years the property has acquired considerable value, and Mr. Helmsen is making careful investigations before disposing of it.

A well signed petition has been presented to the Trustees asking them to call an election for the purpose of voting upon the question of issuing $60,000 bonds for sewer purposes. A number of leading business men are in favor of the proposition. The board decided to take no action until next meeting. It is estimated the work can be completed and a sewer farm purchased for between $50,000 and $60,000. The sewer proposition has the indorsement of the Merchants association and the Chamber of Commerce. The sum of $50,000 is being expended on street paving in the central portion of the city and many buildings are going up.

John Hanna holds the record of being the champion loser of watches in this section, having lost a dozen valuable time pieces since he began his record. Two weeks ago he lost an open-faced gold watch which he thinks was stolen from his residence at Miraflores. Fifteen years ago a $50 gold watch was stolen from his pocket while in a jam on the elevated railroad in New York. In San Francisco some years before his pockets were picked on Montgomery street. He never recovered one of the watches, and is now in the market for the purchase of another.

Carl Leonhardt of Los Angeles has repaired the City's cement tank at the water-works after six weeks labor and an expenditure of $1500. He constructed a new cement coating upon the interior and the tank is now impervious to leakage. Water was out of the tank six weeks and was turned in a few hours before the fire in J. Kruger's barn last week.

Mrs. Fred Rimpau and little child are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Rimpau. They contemplate leaving shortly for their home in Fairbanks, Arizona.

Bill Hill hauled in his threshing outfit on Saturday evening having completed a season of a month's run.

Charley Boege and family spent Sunday at Long Beach visiting relatives.

Mrs. Wm. Lawrence is here from Maricopa visiting her mother, Mrs. Robison.

Peter Weisel and E. Phillips were in Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Pedro and other points of interest on the coast on Monday. They returned on the Owl Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Backs and Mrs. Jos Bennesscheidt leave today for a visit to the Seattle fair and other points of interest north.

Governor Merriam Praises Work of National Guards

Sends Letter to Adj.-General Seth Howard Commending Patrol During Strike

Members of company K, California national guards (Anaheim's Own), were interested this week in a letter sent by Governor Frank P. Merriam to Adjutant General Seth E. Howard, lauding him for the work of the national guards in keeping order and protecting property at San Francisco during the recent general strike. The letter follows: "Dear General Howard:

"It is with mingled feelings of pride and appreciation that I express to you and to the officers and men of the California National Guard my commensation of the splendid service rendered by the people of California by the National Guard of this state at San Francisco during the recent crisis arising from the maritime labor dispute and the general strike.

"Called upon to protect the lives of citizens, to guard state property, to maintain order and to secure obedience to the law, you have acquitted yourselves with credit to yourselves and with honor to the State.

"By your firm demeanor, your fine discipline, and your complete understanding of the rights and responsibilities of the people you not only frustrated and defeated the objects of those seeking and advocating violence, but you gave courage and calm to the great body of citizens whose peaceful lives and pursuits were assailed.

"Had you been less resolute in performing your duty, had you committed any act of oppression or abuse of your authority, you would have defeated the very purposes for which you were organized and to serve which you were called.

"From first to last in this emergency you have, as citizen-soldiers, upheld and protected the principles of liberty and law which the founders of the Republic, who were also citizen-soldiers, gave the American people as their greatest heritage.

"Cordially,
"(Signed) Frank P. Merriam,
"Governor of California."

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS: Three weeks after a cream colored roadster had been wrecked in the sea at the foot of a cliff, a girl calling herself Anne Cushing appears at the desert town Marston. She aroused suspicion. Barry and Anne eloped thirty miles away. Barry Duane, her nearest neighbor and his man Boone Petty procure a reliable woman for her and in Barry's car, loaded down with supplies, they start across the desert. In Marston her reticence has aroused suspicion. Barry and Anne become more than neighbors, and when Anne is lost in the hills and rescued by Barry, each realizes that something more than friendship exists between them.

They were married at Trail's End. It was the quietest of weddings with only Martha Larrabee and Boone Petty there, and the minister from the larger town beyond Marston. Wild flowers banded the fireplace and nodded from the old table. Martha was blinking the tears back and thinking that she had never seen the child look so lovely. Barry was a little nervous.

"It does seem queer, never a line from friends or folks, even when she's getting married. And the tears cut off her cool and things. It beats me—but nobody can tell me there's anything wrong about her, anyway. I've lived with her."

Barry was pacing slowly up and down the long veranda; Anne was dressing for their first dinner at home there.

Her one evening dress was there, a simple, shimmering dress in pale gold. Voices drifted up to her from below.

"You'd better go in to Marston tomorrow morning and see of there's any mail, Petty. I'm expecting a letter."

"Sure will. I was going to slip off anyway, first thing." Petty's voice sounded apologetic. "Got to own up to something, I guess. You gave me a letter to mail next week and it must've slipped down behind that old rug on the back seat and I never missed it when I picked up the other."

"Oh! . . . I see. There was a perceptible pause. "Well, it can't be helped. You'd better put an air mail stamp on it, and I'll have another note ready to explain the delay."

Anne adjusted a shoulder strap, patted her hair and surveyed the result in the mirror.

Fingers beat a light tattoo on the door. Barry came in. He said "When?" softly.

"In this what you dangle me with, Nancy, before I've been married three hours?"

"Nancy!" She looked startled. "You never called me that before."

"I don't know any better time to begin. It suits you better than Anne. You're sweet, Nancy."

The soft notes of the song were sounding through the house. Barry tucked her arm in his. "Come on, Mrs. Duane, and sit at the head of the table. Petty did not start for Marston until late afternoon. It seemed to be one of those days when one thing after another goes wrong, and he insisted on attending to them himself."

The evening meal was over before Petty came tramping up the veranda steps.

"Tire blew out on the way back" he explained. "Here's a telegram for you, Barry. It came in just before I left town."

Barry opened the telegram, and his face clouded with sudden anxiety.

"I'm sorry." He looked apologetic. "Anne . . . she's afraid we shall have to shorten the honeymoon a little. My mother wires me that she hasn't been well. 'I'm afraid we'll have to start for home in a day or so.'"

"Honey!" Her heart was ice. "But Barry!"

"I thought this was home!"

"It is, for half of every year, and I've lived here so much that this seems more like my home than the real one."

She went back East about an hour out of New York. Perhaps I ought to have told you before, but I was keeping it for a little surprise. Why Nancy, you love little things! Do you think I married you to let you be buried here in a lonely mountain valley from one year's end to the other?"

"But I love it here!" Her voice was edged with a sharp fear. "I—I know you were going to stay here and work out your plans for the Juniper! Aren't you going on with that Barry?"

"Of course, darling." He looked surprised at her vehemence. "But going East is really a part of it. It's the biggest part, for that is where I'm trying to raise the money. Why Nancy—aren't you glad?"

"Why—of course I'm glad. But you did surprise me. And I thought you were letting all your plans go."

"Isn't it silly that I never thought of you as having a family somewhere? I mean a near-related family, beside the whole you lot. Suppose they don't like me?"

"What a funny baby you are! Suppose the sun rises in the west? The immediate family isn't very big, just my mother and me!"

The pulse of her hands were wet. Barry was an only son . . . she had taken him away from his mother . . .

"I am sorry your mother isn't well," she said slowly. "Of course we'll go. Does she know that we are married?"

She saw a dark flush come under the tan. "Why no! I wrote as soon as it was settled, but my letter got mislaid. But of course I'd written to her about you before."

So that was it! Barry had written home about her, and his mother was trying to get him away from here before he became involved with some strange girl who ran a grubby little hotel-stricken ranch.

"It's too bad," she said quickly. "I mean about her. The letter. You must tell me about her. . . . Be a lamb and get my coat and we'll sit out here for a while and talk."

Barry would have scandal, or any kind of notoriety for his wife. She knew that. So, no doubt, would this mother who was urging him to come home. But perhaps nobody would know her. . . . Only an hour from New York!

A night letter lay on the neatly arranged tray which held Mrs. Schuyler Duane's morning mail. The tray was of hand and old, and a collector would have snatched it up and sold it over it.

She opened the night letter deliberately, with no doubt that it would contain, however reluctantly exactly what she wished. There were two air mail letters in the tray, but she merely gave them a glance.

The night letter was curiously worded. "Well, Mrs. Duane stiffened. She read it a second time, with thin, set lips. Then she reached slowly and stiffly for the air mail letters."

Barry was married! Without even telling her. Outraged dignity and thwarted hopes brushed aside the explanation in the second note. And his wife—his wife—was some appalling creature from a poverty-stricken ranch!

She went back to the first letter with a scornful impatience which was slowly changing to a chill shudder.

"When you meet her, you will be proud of your daughter-in-law."

"Proud of her?" The hand on the letter shook. "He is intended, and this—this woman has hurried him into a marriage before he could come to his senses. Barry Duane, who might have had his choice of a dozen, and retrieved everything that we have lost!"

An elderly man servant appeared at the door.

"Miss Pendleton, M'm."

"Show Miss Pendleton in, Matthews."

"It was very pleasant to see you again, Cleo. You are always thoughtful, my dear. When did you return?"

"Last night. Everybody got bored to death with everybody else. How have you been, and how is Barry?"

"Cleo was the only child of an enormously rich father, but even outside of this useful consideration, she liked Cleo. She was herself a woman of ability and strong will, and she respected the determination and cleverness under that soft exterior."

"I have a letter from Barry this morning," Mrs. Duane answered the last question.

"Is he still playing cowboy? Can't we do anything to cure him?"

Mrs. Duane smiled faintly.

"I am afraid he is past curing. . . . Barry was married last Monday."

"After all, the Duane were the Duanes. Barry's mother made the announcement smoothly."

"Married! Cleo married!" It was not often that Cleo Pendleton felt that she was being deceived.

"Dear Mrs. Duane, how hard for you!" Cleo's voice was sweetly impulsive. She laid her cool young fingers over the older woman's hand, and for an instant Mrs. Duane returned the pressure.

"My dear, I do not question my son's choice. But I must admit that I had other hopes for him."

"I'm sure it will be all right. Are they coming back here?"

"Next Week."

"Oh, how nice! But it's a pity we couldn't have had a chance to get acquainted before. Isn't it?" Cleo's hand was on the older woman's hand, and for an instant Mrs. Duane returned the pressure.

"My dear, I do not question my son's choice. But I must admit that I had other hopes for him."

luxurious suite the solo hotel of the Pendletons was behaving badly.

From her petted babyhood, Cleo had her own way. And now—Barry Duane was married. Barry Duane was the only man she had ever really wanted.

"I hate her!" she thought furiously. "I'll make him ashamed of his ranch girl. Sweet simplicity . . . what'll she look like in Granahilly? I'll make him wish he'd never seen her. I'll give Barry Duane six months, or less, to be sick of his bargain."

Every day of their honeymoon journey had been reminding Anne that instead of a struggling young ranch owner she had married a man of assured social position.

"Almost home, Nancy."

That was from Barry. Except for the dean tan he was scarcely recognizable as the same Barry Duane who had first seen, coaxless, dusty and cheerfully informal.

The train was slowing down.

"There's John on the platform. He doubles as gardener and chauffeur, but I do my own driving."

Barry nodded at one man, moved his hand in careless salute to another, raised his hat to a woman. Anne knew him several times and nodded. Everybody who counted knew everybody else in this pleasant old town.

The car swept away from the station and down a wide, well-kept road. They were passing a high stone wall, about midway of which a wide gateway indicated a drive. As they came abreast a car shot out of the opened gates, a swift roadster, and cut in ahead of them.

She half turned her head as she shot across their path, with an impudent little grin and a swift wave of one hand.

"Reckless little devil!" Barry half frowned and then laughed. "That's Cleo Pendleton. She's a nimp. Does pretty much as she pleases—her dad's the richest man around here, except one, and she's the only child. You'll like her."

"She's pretty." Anne reserved comment about liking Cleo Pendleton. It had seemed to Anne that wide baby eyes had swept her with a stare as cool and efficient as any she'd met.

The car was turning into a shaded drive which curved toward a wide, old house. It was not as pretentious as most but it was older and mellower.

COLORADOANS PICNIC SUNDAY

Coloradoans will hold their annual picnic all day Sunday, August 12, at Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles. Basket dinners will be served at noon.

A tall, spare woman with beautiful features and an emotionless face was waiting to greet them.

Barry said "Here we are, Mother!" with just a touch of nervousness. He bent and kissed her, and drew Anne forward with one arm.

"I don't need to tell you who this is, Mother, except that she is just as lovely as she looks, and I am a proud husband. Nancy darling, this is my mother, and yours."

Whatever surprise, Mrs. Duane may have felt as she looked at the "ranch girl" who was far too well trained to show it. What had such a girl been doing in a desolate place like this Marston—unless perhaps she had deliberately followed Barry there?

She had not intended to kiss her daughter-in-law, but she did. It was a chill salute, but it answered.

My son's wife of course is welcome. Barry, my dear, how brown you are."

Anne held the beautiful old hand a moment longer. "I hope we shall be friends," she said impulsively. "I do want Barry's mother to like me."

Mrs. Schuyler Duane smiled remotely and chilled again.

"We will take that for granted. I suppose you would like to rest after your journey?" Matthews will show you to your rooms."

Matthews showed them to a pleasant suite.

"Like it, Nancy?"

"Who could help, liking it? It's a beautiful old house."

ORANGE COUNTY TITLE COMPANY, By H. A. GARDNER, President, By GEO. A. PARKER, Secretary.

Kaufman's Record Unusually Efficient

Aside from the vigorous prosecution of all cases coming before the courts of Orange county, it is absolutely essential that all law enforcement agencies of this county receive the utmost intelligent and sympathetic cooperation, said a statement from the Kaufman for District Attorney headquarters, received today.

The only two former superior court judges of Orange county now actively engaged in the practice of law, have unqualifiedly endorsed Kaufman's candidacy and urged his election, as important to the continuance of efficient law enforcement in Orange county.

S. B. Kaufman, incumbent district attorney has been attorney for the Peace Officers association of Orange county for over four years, or since his early days as deputy district attorney. Chiefs of police, members of the staff of the sheriff's office, constables and justices of the peace have all received the limit of aid and assistance from Kaufman's office, the release of inmates.

"This close measure of cooperation and vigorous aid, from Kaufman and his staff is evidenced by the unusually high percentage of convictions secured by Kaufman's office, the release of inmates.

100,000 Hawkeyes Expected at Picnic

The tens of thousands of Iowans who have selected California as their home are invited to the annual summer picnic of ex-Iowans at Bixby park, Loma Beach, on Saturday, August 11. Judge Carl A. Stutsman, president of the Iowa state society, is making plans for more than 100,000 Hawkeyes to attend. Two hundred samples are expected to march in the "golden wedding" pageant.

Farm Price Level Best In 3 Years

Market prices indicate that the general level of farm prices is somewhat higher than in mid-June. George K. York, supervisor of the federal-state market news service, reported to State Director of Agriculture A. A. Brock. Prices of cotton, hogs, and some cattle are higher than a month ago, whereas grain prices are somewhat lower. York emphasized that farm prices in mid-June were at the highest level in three years. Prices received by farmers on June 15, he said, were 77 per cent of the pre-war level compared with 74 in May and 64 in June, 1933.

Hints For the Home

When you are sending clothes to the cleaner, search for the bad spots that might escape the attention of the cleaners, and outline them in white thread. The thread will call the cleaner's attention to the spots and it can be easily removed when the clothes are returned.

After washing white corduroy in warm soapy water until clean, let it soak in soapy water for half an hour. Then rinse it in clean water, changing the water at least three times and rinsing again in bluing water, cold. After that, don't wring or squeeze the corduroy, but hang it, dripping, to dry in the open air. Do not iron it.

A teaspoon of marshallow added to the ingredients of your candy will prevent it from drying out and hardening for several days.

Next time you make French dressing put the ingredients into a fruit jar and shake. It's much easier and quicker than stirring with a fork.

Velvet, held over a gallon of boiling water to which a half cup of ammonia has been added will be restored to its original, fresh appearance. The pile of the velvet should be held inwards.

AMONG YOUR FRIENDS

Judge and Mrs. J. S. Howard of 322 South Claudina street were pleasantly surprised Wednesday noon with the arrival of their former neighbor, Albert A. Howard of Lindsay, for a few hours' visit, while touring the Southland on vacation. The visitor is manager of the J. C. Penney store at Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hill returned Saturday from a two-week vacation, the first half of which was spent on the first in San Bernardino county, and the second half in San Diego and Coronado.

Mrs. Emma M. Polhemus of Southgate, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Weinmann of Sanger, Mrs. Mae Kaiser and Miss Mariel Hall of Santa Barbara were visiting friends in town on Friday. Mrs. Weinmann, formerly Miss M. Polhemus, is a daughter of Mrs. Polhemus. Mrs. Kaiser is a granddaughter and Miss Hall is a great granddaughter.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Rutledge of North Cleveland street were expected home late this week or early next week from a month's vacation at their ranch near Grangeville, Idaho. Postal cards received by Charles Smith, associate of Mr. Rutledge in the Rutledge-Smith Furniture company, stated that the local business man had done his working job to help thresh wheat on his dry land ranch. The crop ran between 25 and 40 bushels per acre.

THE FARMERS CORNER
by RALPH HAYWARD
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Board of California

The 2½ per cent state sales tax will NOT be collected on sales of farm fertilizers — reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

That positive declaration comes from Fred E. Stewart of the state board of equalization, spiking rumors that the board planned to remove fertilizers from the tax-exempt classification.

Saving California farmers more than $100,000 annually in sales tax payments, the board's ruling, or re-declaration of its original policy, is of primary importance to orchard and vegetable growers — both heavy users of fertilizers.

Stewart declared that the board had no thought of reversing its position, adding:

"It has been clearly established that fertilizers are essential to the efficient production of fruits and vegetables and inasmuch as these products are taxed under the sales levy when they go into consumption, it is the opinion of the board that a tax on fertilizers used in their production would be 'double taxation'."

"The ruling on fertilizers is in direct accord with the board's previous decision holding that feedstuffs are not taxable when they go into the production of farm commodities which will subsequently carry the 2½ per cent sales tax."

"In guarding against 'pyramiding' of the sales tax, the board is diligently seeking to maintain the tax relief recorded farm property, and real property generally, by adoption of the Riley-Stewart tax plan at the special election a year ago."

The importance of the ruling on fertilizers is evidenced by the fact that the California farming industry spends from $3,500,000 to $6,000,000 annually for fertilizers to produce paying crops. Perhaps the greatest benefits will accrue to the citrus industry, which will save many thousands of dollars by continuation of the ruling that fertilizers are not taxable.

The board of equalization, in reaching its original decision on the taxation of feedstuffs — which saved a basis for the later ruling on fertilizers — was guided by a general declaration of policy from state legislature, secured at the time the sales tax was adopted. California farmers, through their state-wide organizations, were successful in establishing their contention, both before the legislature and the board, that a tax on feedstuffs in most instances would be "double taxation," inasmuch as the farmer's product — produced by the feedstuffs — would be taxable when old on the market.

In maintaining its stand that fertilizers, when used in the production of commercial crops, are not taxable, the board of equalization has saved agriculture from an unjust burden at a time when the farming industry could ill afford any additional tax load.

Explains Reasons Why County Put On Drought Area

Primary Purposes to Aid Where Actual Distress, and Improve General Quality

By W. M. COLEY, Assistant Farm Advisor

When public attention was first drawn to the fact that Orange county had been designated as a drought relief area many wondered why, as there was little evidence of drought in the fruit and vegetable sections. This drought relief program concerns only cattle producers. "Emergency drought area" therefore has a meaning to cattlemen only.

The drought relief program has a two-fold function. It is first to supply relief where there is an actual water or feed shortage by the purchase of such stock. Secondly, producers in officially designated drought areas may sell low grade cattle to conserve available feed for those cattle that remain. By this means cattlemen may reduce their herds of the number that their feed supply will safely carry through and in so doing improve the general quality of their herd by culling out the poorer individuals. Cattle which are purchased, "accepted for use" are to be processed, canned, and distributed for relief purposes, and this will not interfere with the regular channels of trade.

At a recent committee meeting of cattlemen in the farm advisor's office, it was decided to proceed with the organization of a county drought relief committee. The personnel of this committee is to consist of five members, one cattlemen appointed by the California Cattlemen's association, one sheepman appointed by the California Wool Growers' association, one cattlemen and one dairymen appointed at large, and the fifth member to be appointed by the other four.

Application blanks for cattle appraisals are now in the farm advisor's office and as soon as the personnel of the committee has been approved and an appraisal committee chosen, action can be taken on the applications.

Declares Elephant Dangerous Animal

When aroused, an elephant is the most dangerous of all big game animals, Arthur Cane, internationally-known big game hunter employed by the British government to kill hersek animals in India, told members of the Anaheim Rotary club at the luncheon meeting Monday. The hunter, now a resident of Corona, declared that many large animals have "killer" when they attack every form of human and animal life. During these times the British government has found it necessary to send trained hunters in to the jungles to kill animals who endanger the lives of natives.
