

CITY EMPLOYEE WAS KILLED SAT. IN ATTEMPT TO CROSS HIGHWAY

Otto Matz, of Street Dept.
Struck By Car Driven
By Man From Orange

Automobile accidents again struck at Anaheim last Saturday when Otto Matz, 55, an employee of the city was killed as he attempted to cross Manchester avenue after he stopped his car to ascertain just where he was and to obtain some cigarettes.

Matz had left his house-keeper in the car while he went on the errand. While he was gone she fell asleep.

Awakening sometime later, and missing her car, she called the sheriff's station and reported him as missing, only to learn that deputy sheriff's had taken charge of the body some time earlier.

She reported they were driving home from Los Angeles when the car was stopped at the side of the road and Matz told her he was going across the road for a package of cigarettes. She went back to sleep.

In the meantime he procured the cigarettes and was starting back across the road to the car when he was struck by the Mansur machine. Mansur was not held.

Matz was a native of Wisconsin, had lived in California for a number of years. The body was taken to the Hartzler Funeral home at Norwalk, where it will be held, pending an inquest after the body is turned over to the Hilgenfeldt Funeral home, at Anaheim for funeral services.

The deceased is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Gus Suring of Suring, Wis., and Mrs. Caroline Johnson of Anaheim; three brothers, Albert and Emil Matz, both of Maple Creek, Wis., and Herman Matz of New London, Wis.

Matz had been an employee of the city for the past 15 years. He was struck by a car driven by Vernon Mansur, Orange. Mansur was not held.

Attack Attempt Foiled by Girl

A tall thin dark man, believed to have been a Mexican crawled through the window at the home of Pedro Calvo, 2125 Roma Drive last Thursday night, where it is said he attempted to attack an eleven year old girl, Nellie Calvo, who was alone with her brothers and sisters.

Seeing the man in the window and gagged the girl. She squirmed around and managed to release the gag, and when she started screaming, attacking the boys the man fled in getaway.

The girl stated she had never seen the man before, and a very few clues were left upon which the police were able to work.

Anaheim Lad Loses Leg, Motor Crash

Olen Neal, 523 East Vermont street was seriously injured last Sunday morning when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at Center street and Placentia avenue.

He was taken to the Anaheim Sanitarium, where his right leg was amputated, just above the ankle. His condition is now reported as satisfactory.

NUMEROUS PROJECTS DISCUSSED AT MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL HERE

A discussion of various projects that are planned by the city, providing the government will approve, took up much of the city council members in the meeting held last Tuesday night.

Among other projects planned is the levelling, and draining of the new park site as well as construction. Also storm drain construction.

Another project is the placing of school crossing guards which is really a county project, in that all of the cities of the county are planning the same project.

Improvement of the city garage and shop taking in a storage shed and paint room was also discussed.

In addition to these there were a number of smaller projects listed for consideration, such as placing additional fire hydrants, etc., that it is believed with government aid

Anaheim Winner At Lights Tournament

Anaheim won first prize in the organization division at the Tournament of Lights held at Newport Beach. The prize was a beautiful cup.

The float represented a large waterwheel with lights and attracted considerable attention.

It was made by the Chamber of Commerce with a committee composed of Fred Robbins, T. Cushman, A. Ingram and Chas. Pearson. These gentlemen are to be complimented on the idea they presented and the way in which it was presented.

(Ed. Note: Our attention was called to the fact that last week we had been misinformed regarding the results of the awards and we are glad to correct the above. The committee of the Chamber of Commerce worked hard to enter a float that would bring Anaheim the glory.

The cup for first prize is now in the possession of the Chamber of Commerce.)

The event was held at the park, and Superintendent Rudy Boyen and his assistant, Earl Fuller, acting as hosts. Following the supper the boys adjourned to the ball park, where novelty stunts were participated in with winners rewarded. Those who placed first and second respectively are:

Medley race, boys under 15, Noel Sweeney and Glen Johnson; medley race, boys over 15, Robert Adams and Robert Morris; sack race, under 15, Noel Sweeney and Ham Okamoto; sack race, over 15, Tom Cleary and Urban Kluthe; three-legged race, under 15, Bud Fisher, Bill Allshouse, Noel Sweeney and Harley Vincent; three-legged race, over 15, Urban Kluthe.

Tom Cleary, Jimmy Jay and Clarence Woodrum; potato race, under 15, Ham Okamoto and Noel Sweeney; wheelbarrow race under 15, Joe Nakamichi, Melvin Crespin, Robert Plummer and Harley Vincent; wheelbarrow race over 15, Tom Cleary Urban Kluthe, Robert Morris and Dan Murphy.

LIONS CLUB HERE TO ENTERTAIN COUNCIL

The meeting of the Anaheim Lions Club last Friday was given over pretty much to making plans for the meeting of the County Council to be held here on September 16.

The group will be entertained at the park, and invitations were given to the visitors come to Anaheim about 4:30 to permit the sports to be completed before the "supper hours."

The meeting last Friday was addressed by Dean T. Smith, public relations man of the telephone company who was introduced by Fred Snyder. Smith outlined the progress of the telephone, stating there were some 500,000 phones in use in Southern California.

An invitation to visit the Lions Club at Corona was issued by Warren Ashleigh, formerly park superintendent here.

Seek Driver of Hit-Run Auto

Members of the California Highway Patrol are seeking the driver of a hit-and-run automobile which on August 27, caused a car driven by Alfred E. Pellegrini, 48, 875 South Citron street, Anaheim, to run off the road, seriously injuring Pellegrini.

Any witnesses to the crime were asked to communicate with the state police.

Buena Park C. C. Planning Parade

The Chamber of Commerce at Buena Park met last Tuesday evening at which time plans were furthered for the coming industrial parade and booster celebration to be held on September 27 and 28.

Mrs. H. E. Buell is general chairman for the event.

Beware!

Some people talk about changing the constitution to fit the economic conditions. That would wipe out the high court. You would then have a dictator like some of the birds in Europe.

A delegation was present at the council meeting for the purpose of protesting against the raising of a fee for auctions. This matter, however, is to come up at the meeting next Tuesday night. The protest was against the raising of a fee from $50 to $500 for auction sales.

Other routine business occupied the members during the meeting.

100 BOYS ENJOY BEAN FEED AND JAMBOREE HELD IN PARK FRIDAY

Rudy Boyen and Earl Fuller
Act As Hosts to Boys Who

Ed Backs Proves Prowess As Fisherman

Ed Backs Fishing Did Go
He Hooked A Rainbow Trout, so
Well, he got it.

The story is going the rounds this week that Ed Backs gave some Anaheim fishermen the low down on how to CATCH fish.

"It seems that a party of four (guys withbeld because of age) went up back of Bishop over the holiday with the avowed purpose of collecting their share of the fished higgies.

Arriving at their destination, said to be a country in which few have spooned... that is cast a spoon... imagine their chagrin to find the Backs family enjoying a vacation too.

Ed told the late comers that he had practiced a little and during said practice that he had "beached a whopper!"

He produced the whopper which proved to be a rainbow trout some 15 inches long. In describing the momentous event Mr. Backs stated:

"I was merely practicing with the pole and a line, I don't remember whether I had a hook on or not. I know I didn't have any worm on so if there was a hook then it must've been bare. Anyway I snagged something... you know back east when one goes fishing there is a perceptible bite somewhat like a well I never caught one but they tell me that it's something like pulling the whistle cord on a steamboat, you know tug tug tug... well this was different. This was more like hooking a rubber boot full of water that was floating down the creek. Well I thought I'd better save the pole so I just heaved the thing and beached the big fella back up in the brush about 50 feet. By the way you fellows didn't bring up any worms did you? I'd like to try my hand with bait... maybe I could catch some more good ones if I had something on the hook besides that feather."

And so it goes.

The completion of the railroad from Los Angeles to Pasadena was celebrated on Wednesday by an excursion to the "Crown of the Valley." Pasadena is an especially favored spot for many reasons. Its people are thoroughly in love with their home. In their estimation there is no other place on the world like it, and their overweening pride of locality evokes a corresponding enthusiasm among visitors. It numbers among its citizens many men of wealth who are continually devising ways and means of increasing the attractiveness of the village. Although in the main a law-abiding people, it is well known that they have a convenient local cemetery for the interment (after death by violence) of any malcontent who speaks disparagingly of Pasadena, who seeks to discourage investors. Pasadena is a live and growing town, with a big future before it. And yet it has not one natural advantage over other places in Southern California which languish and wilt from utter stagnation. The triumph of Pasadena is a triumph of brains allied to public spirit. The same happy combination will accomplish equally good results in many other places.

Items about grape prices — A large winery at Healdsburg is offering as low as $7 per ton for wine grapes at common quality; Chinese are paying $45 per ton net for main grapes at Davisville. Wineries at San Jose are paying as high as $24 a ton for fine qualities of grapes. McPherson Bros. have been paying as high as $18 per ton for Muscat grapes at Downey delivered on board the cars for transportation to Orange where they are being made into raisins. The same firm are paying $18 a ton for Muscat in Anaheim, delivered at the vineyard.

A Scotch colony from Glasgow, Scotland, numbering eighty-two will arrive at Lancaster about the 25th to settle in the valley. Three sleeping cars have been engaged to accommodate them as the Lancaster hotel, although costing $5,000, is inadequate.

Bulletined in the postoffice is a list of the officers from which letters will be immediately delivered by affixing a ten-cent special delivery stamp. It comprises all the offices at which there is free delivery and the offices at all towns which have a population of over 4,000.

We acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to the silver wedding of Mr. L. M. Holt, of the Riverside Press and Horticulturist, and Mrs. Libbie Graves Holt, on October 7th. May the twenty-five successful years bring to the worthy couple twice as much joy as they have experienced during the past quarter of a century.

A steam yacht is being built at San Pedro by Capt. Banning which is destined to ply between the mainland and Catalina Island during the summer. It is to have fifty passengers, with a full complement, the fare to and from the island will be $1. Under such cheap facilities Catalina will become a popular resort.

About a dozen watermelons, each weighing over 75 pounds, were brought to Helman's store on Monday by A. McDermott, on whose farm they were raised. They were from seed of a melon that weighed over 80 pounds.

The Odd Fellows lodge of Anaheim were honored on Tuesday by a visit from Grand Master Cook, Grand Secretary Lyon and Grand Marshal Northrup. On the adjournment of the lodge a banquet was given at the Anaheim hotel, and good cheer prevailed until a late hour.

The Union Oil company has purchased the Emory ranch near Buena Park and will begin sinking wells on the park side of the property. This land lies in line with the Murphy gusher and the company believes it lies in the same basin and that it will be stronger on this side of the ridge. The first well will be put down at once, the foundations for the rig being already upon the ground. Preparations are being made for considerable activity in developing the new property during the next few months, and it is thought it will be a great producing field, equal to the Olinda wells. Should it be known that they have a well in Orange, the well will become a center of activities in the Western part of the county.

Manager Lawrence of the Alamo sugar factory was in town on Monday. He reports the factory running to its full capacity. The season has progressed six weeks and 5,000,000 pounds of sugar has been made. Twenty-eight thousand tons of beets have been sliced, and the season's run will total 95,000 tons. About 30,000,000 pounds of sugar will be made.

Capt. Williams is decorating his auto for participation in the auto parade at the Orange street fair next week. With him will be four other old soldiers, all dressed in the military garb of war times. Above them will be an arched sign bearing the inscription "Boys of '61." With the captain will be Comrades Markle, Gates, Llewellyn and Kroeger. The Captain has been in Los Angeles for uniforms and muskets.

Fred Pressel has received a card from his son Carl, who is visiting in Hoboken, stating he met John Hartung in New York previous to the latter's sailing for Europe. The two Anaheimers had an enjoyable time viewing the sights of the metropolis.

Miss Winifred Melrose entertained the Four-Fours' whist club at her home on Thursday evening last week when a most pleasant evening was spent. Mrs. B. V. Beebe won first lady's souvenir, a beautiful hand painted vase, and Miss Lily Zeig and Charles Clark respectively. Miss Leah Marsh and Fred Signor were consoled by receiving the two boobies. Mrs. O. A. Mullinix will be the next hostess.

Mrs. Fred Marsh delightfully entertained the Alfur whist club on Wednesday evening at her home on Melrose street. The ladies' and men's prizes were won by Miss Lily Zeig and Charles Clark respectively. Miss Leah Marsh and Fred Signor were consoled by receiving the two boobies. Mrs. O. A. Mullinix will be the next hostess.

Miss Audrey Wallder, aged fourteen and her sister Hazel, aged 11, gave their father a surprise party in honor of his birthday on Friday evening. A delicious dinner and a birthday cake made by the girls was served at 7 o'clock. Those invited were Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hatfield, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hatfield, Mr. and Mrs. English, Mr. and Mrs. Parrett and family.

Harry Pearson is in receipt of news from F. V. Barron who left two months ago for a visit east, to the effect that he has been quite seriously ill in Iowa, but is recovering. He will arrive here shortly.

Miss Georgina Bailey, who arrived with her mother some weeks ago, has been visiting in the business part of town. We hope he will divert land buyers down here by the hundreds.

Louis Danz is an optimistic cuss. Here a prowl enters Louis' store and all he has to say is, "Well, I guess there's some honor among thieves, this bird didn't take the checks, for which I thank him."

Louis has always said that "money is a disgusting subject" and now I guess he knows it is.

Aint that too bad . . . Just as K. B. is all primed to take on a war correspondent John D. decides not to take advantage of the concession in Ethiopia.

Guess I'll have to run a classified ad about my old pal Ray Smith . . . Has anyone seen him lately? Or is he on a vacation too?

Roger Sherman reported in the other day. Looked like he was ready for service in Ethiopia . . . sun hat an all . . . but guess he was just Sherlocking around a little. Anyway he had a good time on his vacation . . . I know, he admits it.

Wonder what ever happened to the argument between Chief Nyboe (there you are Slim I didn't forget your title this time) and Rudy Valle . . . oh, I beg your pardon . . . Rudy Boyen? You know Rudy Boyen has a wonderful tenor voice . . . ever hear him sing? And I sometimes get him all hawled up with Rudy of the Valley. If you don't believe that our Rudy can compete with the voice of the radio . . . just ask him who teaches all the birds in the park how to sing "Sing Mir den lieb" or something (Hope my German gets over).

Air Race Victim From Fullerton

Cecil Allen, racing pilot who was killed in Los Angeles last week when his plane failed him shortly after his takeoff in the Bendix race was well known in Fullerton.

He was raised in Fullerton having attended school there until 1921.

Haven't picked on the cops lately, they tell me, but . . . how the heck can I . . . they haven't done anything.

Well . . . guess I'll have to get busy and write something now.

By the way Bill Wallop is going to send us an apology . . . I hope.

And, by the way (for the second time) Are there three other men who can't sing who would like to join me in running for Congress? Collins seems to have fallen down on the job as a music master . . . I just wasn't in on the finish. I just thought that I'd like to join the warblers too. Are you with me? That stuff might've been music to their ears . . . but wait'll they get home . . . most of them . . . they're liable to hear a bass solo that'll sound like the rumbling of a volcano.

Fourth, fifth, and sixth . . . by the way . . . Has anyone seen Ray Smith?

Don't know when I ever encountered such differences of opinion. The Boss called me for being late this noon. Well, he was looking at the clock in front of me and saying, "You're truly was going by the timepiece across the street. A couple blocks 'this' way was another time, while a few blocks 'that' way was still another time. Now, I ask you what is a poor fellow to do? Who's to say who's right. Seems like these jewelers would get together—so the boss n' I can—No wonder visitors think we have all kinds of time here.

Bank Starts New Auto Credit Plan

Announcement of a new credit plan for financing the purchase of new and used automobiles on a low-cost basis was made today by L. M. Giannini, President of Bank of America.

The most novel innovation of the plan is the provision for the issuance of a letter of credit to the prospective automobile purchaser, entitling him to shop for his car as a cash buyer.

"The principles of automobile financing are now sufficiently well established to permit conservative banks to make this service a part of their regular credit facilities," said Giannini.

"The public is entitled to the best possible service and most liberal terms of credit in financing automobile purchases. We are therefore making our Automobile Letter of Credit Plan available to customers and non-customers at all the 425 branches of our bank. The procedure of this new type of financing is simple. A prospective purchaser of a new car or used car applies at any of our branches for the Automobile Letter of Credit. Knowing the approximate value of the car he plans to trade in, or the amount of the down payment he wishes to make, it is merely a matter of arithmetic to determine the balance necessary to obtain the car he desires.

"An Automobile Letter of Credit is issued for the amount necessary to complete the purchase. This Letter of Credit is in the hands of the purchaser when he selects his car, and permits him to deal as a cash buyer.

"The bank pays the dealer cash for the net balance due him, and the buyer then repays the bank in monthly installments, on a cost basis computed on extremely favorable terms. As he makes the purchase with the status of a cash buyer, he need make his credit information available only to the bank."

YEAR BOOK IS AVAILABLE ON AGRICULTURE

The Yearbook of Agriculture for 1935, which has just recently been issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, may now be obtained upon request from Congressman Sam L. Collins.

Mr. Collins states that he has a limited allotment of this publication which he will distribute without charge so long as his supply lasts. Requests may be directed to him either at Washington, D. C. or at Santa Ana.

The 1935 Yearbook contains not only a complete summary of the past year's agricultural activities, but many instructive articles by officials of the various divisions of the Department covering new experiments and developments in their particular fields of activity.

RECORD POULTRY SHOW PLANNED FOR COUNTY FAIR AT POMONA

Two thousand or more birds of many different breeds and varieties will be entered as exhibits at the Los Angeles County fair in Pomona next month, according to John T. Ashcroft, superintendent of the poultry department.

Pointing out there is no way to tell as yet what the total will run, he was enthusiastic, however, as to prospects for an excellent showing this year in view of the interest being shown among poultrymen.

Many are expecting to show more than they ever have before. The three-bird pen has struck a warm spot with most of the exhibitors. Heretofore the five-bird pen has been prevalent.

BE WISE-ALKALIZE!

The poultry show at the fair this year will extend over a period of eight days, Sept. 22 to 29. Rabbits and pigeons are to be exhibited during the first nine days of the fair.

Housing of poultry, pigeons and rabbits will be in the tent paralleling the agricultural building, the same location as last year.

Entries for the coming show at the fair do not close until September 9, which means that the next few weeks will see hundreds of poultry entries coming in. Mr. Ashcroft stated.

Water fowl as well as the well known Rhode Island Reds, the Barred Rocks and White Rocks and Dark Cornish will make up a considerable portion of the show. Some of the rarer birds will also be there for the general public to view. Prospects are also bright for a number of Banfams.

Bellflower, San Fernando, Pasadena, Bell and San Bernardino county area are only a few of the places in the Southland from which poultry exhibits will be assembled at the fair.

FIRE PREVENTION

A "CROOKED" FIRE

Nobody likes a "crooked deal"—be sure you haven't one like this in your attic.

Records show that more than $22,000,000.00 in fire losses resulted from faulty chimneys in one year. One of the defects responsible for this alarming loss was chimneys built out of line.

Notice the illustration. The weight of the flue develops a strain, which in time will cause the mortar to become loose. Sometimes the mortar has not been properly mixed and the bricks are poorly laid.

Just under the ridge of the roof you will observe the results of such workmanship. Note the cracks and openings between the bricks where sparks have fallen out. The illustration shows the costly result of such a flue. First from this cause are often "total losses," as they rapidly gain headway before being discovered. After discovery, they are hard to fight.

Do not hazard your life, the lives of others, and valuable property by tolerating such dangers.

CONTRACTORS PREPARING TO START WORK ON HIGH SCHOOL PLANT HERE

The assembling of tools and necessary equipment for starting of the work on the new high school plant here is in progress and work will be actually started within a very short time, according to a report emanating from the office of the PWA in Santa Ana.

The contracts have been let and all obstacles removed, hence no further delay is expected. William C. Crowell of Pasadena, lowest of the four bidders on the general contract, was awarded that project at a cost of $302,888. R. E. Jones Electrical company of South Pasadena was awarded the electrical contract for $34,105. The heating and ventilation work went to J. B. Welsh of Alhambra, who bid $24,442. Earl C. Stice, Los Angeles, was awarded the contract for plumbing fixtures at a cost of $8,948.50.

The auditorium chairs, for 1600, will be installed by the Royal Metal company of Los Angeles at a price totalling $15,308.81. The School Supply company of Los Angeles won the contract for curtains and stage equipment. They bid $3795.

The program as outlined does not include a gymnasium, for which local school officials hoped they would have enough money. The contracts for the main building alone and equipment total $385,483.31. The bonds voted a year ago were for $275,000 and $110,000 was received as an outright grant from PWA.

The building will be 316 feet five inches in length extending along Citron street, 173 feet six inches deep on Ohio street and 182 feet six inches in Citron street. It will be set back from Center about 75 feet. The school property extends 359 feet 11 inches on Center street, 255 feet four inches back on Ohio and Citron to the sidewalk separating the present auxiliary buildings.

On Ohio, the west end of the building, will be located the auditorium, the only unit of the structure which has not had the foundation work completed under an SERA project. This wing will be built in its entirety under the PWA project and will be 95 by 173 1/2 feet in size. The main floor will seat 1200 and the balcony will seat 400.

The basement of the auditorium will contain orchestra and dressing rooms with rooms for the band and make-up rooms. On the balcony floor will be a small classroom and an oral expression room with a fully equipped stage. Besides the main floor auditorium, lobby, box office, restrooms and arcade will be one classroom on this floor.

The east wing, 50 feet eight inches by 163 feet and six inches

Hobbyists Endorse Minerology And Geology Classes In School

Endorsement of last year's hobby schools and a strong call for adult classes in geology and minerology again this year were voiced by the West Coast Mineral society at its regular September meeting, in Fullerton Tuesday evening. P. H. Krick of Anaheim, corresponding secretary and one of the vice-presidents of the study and hobbyist group, reported a favorable interview with Principal Louis E. Plummer of the Fullerton Union High school. Plummer promised classes to begin September 23, if there is enough call for them, according to Krick, who urged these natural resources branches of adult education as a benefit to any community. A large part of North Orange county could be served through the Fullerton district, Krick said, and much of California, Arizona and Nevada would supply study material. "Knowledge is gained by adding a little at a time to the little we already have," remarked the former teacher, "and the more practice we get in this adding process, the better becomes our ability to add."

F. B. Wallis of Artesia and J. S. Thompson of La Habra, president and secretary, had the pleasant task of signing a goodly number of the new membership cards for charter members already qualified and new ones added at Tuesday's meeting. B. J. Merrill of Fullerton reported as acting treasurer in the absence of George T. Oswell of Fullerton, who is visiting and gathering pipestone and other unusual specimens in Minnesota and South Dakota. Merrill was appointed program chairman for the October meeting.

Charles Knowlton of Fullerton demonstrated the "lapping" and polishing of rocks, and explained the nature of carbundum, different kinds of clay and other mixtures found efficient aids to the cutting work of polishing wheels. He used a machine built recently by himself, which he considers an improvement over the usual type of bench machine. Substantial growth in tungsten and silver operations in the Mohave and Calico mountains was reported by A. C. Terrill of Fullerton, who made a 320-mile inspection trip over Labor Day. A report by Terrill as chairman of the publicity committee also brought a vote of thanks to the newspapers for valuable aid toward informing the general public concerning the study of hobbyist group's aims and activities. Terrill will conduct a one-day field trip for all members able to take part, some time in September. Other trips will follow, President Wallis announced.

Door prizes were won by C. W. Lillibridge of Anaheim, A. E. Meyers of Buena Park and J. Arthur Miller of Fullerton.

REACHING UP IN THE AIR

One statistician has figured out a plan something like this: He plans to give you $160 dividend a month. He argues you are now earning $200 a month and spending it. By getting the $160 you save the $200 plus a discount of 25 per cent which is $50, making a total of $410 a month. This is not a crossword puzzle, but the author thinks it will get you out of the hairy.

NEWSY NOTES

With vacation season about to come to a close a good many are "reporting in" from happy times spent at the many beaches, resorts, and travels about the country.

Among those are the Misses Kathryn and Mary Jane Van Booven who report a splendid trip to Van Couver, B. C. They traveled by water, sailing northward on the German freighter, Tacoma, and returning on the H. F. Alexander. Their entire vacation consumed about a month, and they both tell some mighty interesting events of their trip.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jones of Coronado Road are home again from their vacation. The "main event" of their trip was fishing in the inviting streams of the Sierra Nevada range.

Mrs. George Dean and daughter, Miss Laura, of East Sycamore have recently returned from a two months visit in Texas. They report a wonderful time, visiting with friends and relatives in Haskell, the former home of Mrs. Dean, and El Paso. On their return trip they stopped at the Grand Caribbea Caves and the Grand Canyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bushman, of West Broadway, are at home to their many friends, having recently returned from their vacation trip. They close the northern country, enjoying the interesting Crater Lake, Klamath Falls, San Francisco, Santa Cruz Big Trees, and Yosemite scenic grandeur.

Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Patterson and family of North Claudia took advantage of the holiday week-end by driving to the Crater Lake district. Driving the coast road, they spent an evening with Dr. Guy Kay at Redding. Dr. Kay is well known locally, having formerly lived in Placencia.

HELP SOMEONE HELP-FUL LEGISLATION

In a recent issue of our e. e. Editor and Publisher, Marlen Pew devoted his entire "Shop Talk at Thirty" to the testimony of Emile Gausvart before the house committee on patents at Washington in regard to the low estate to which the Fourth Estate has fallen in this country ("Ex Mirror" Ed. this day).

"The upshot of this vindictive excursion to Washington," says Mr. Pew in conclusion, "was that Representative Moritz of Pennsylvania introduced a bill in the house which would compel all newspapers to publish the names and addresses of all persons writing editorials or editorial paragraphs." He then quotes the following editorial which appeared in the Washington News immediately after the bill was introduced. It follows:

(Headline by Jones)

Representative Moritz (Dem. Pa.) has introduced a bill to provide that "all editorials or paragraphs of editorials" in newspapers must be signed "by the particular writer under his or her own name."

What the Pennsylvania statesman proposes, (comma by proof-reader) if we read him aright, is that we editorial writers shall come at last into our heritage. (Quotation from Barlett.) We in-

THE LAST WORD

The Congress created the Supreme court and gave the court original jurisdiction over all cases. Consequently the supreme court can nullify any act of congress. There must be an end of litigation. However, the president can veto any measure passed by congress, but the congress can re-pass the measure over the president's head by a two-third vote of both the house and senate.

MEANING OF CALIFORNIA COUNTY NAMES FROM THE STATE RECORDS

The story of how California counties derived their names is an interesting part of the history of the Golden State. Believing that the thousands of tourists who annually motor over the state's great highway system would like to know how the counties they visit came by their names, Director of Public Works Earl Lee Kelly, at the request of Governor Frank P. Merriam has prepared from state records a series of brief stories of the origin and meaning of the names of the counties of California including a few salient facts about each county. Following are the first articles of the series. Editor.

Butte County—Created February 18, 1850. This is one of the original twenty-seven counties of the State, and derived its name from that wonderful topographical formation, now known as the Marysville or Sutter Buttes, which lie in Sutter county and which were named by Michel La Framboise of the Hudson Bay Company, who visited the northern part of California as a voyager and trader in the year 1829. The word "butte" is purely a French word, and signifies "a small hill or mound of earth detached from any mountain range."

It was back in 1820 when the first real exploration of Butte was undertaken, and here and throughout Sacramento Valley trappers of the Hudson Bay Company and others worked from 1825 to 1840. The next ten years witnessed first settlements of white men, which increased rapidly after the discovery of gold on the Feather River. At the Cape claim near Oroville 142 pounds of gold were taken out in one day and the largest nugget ever found in America and the second largest in the world was discovered near Mariposa, east of Oroville. Butte is a land of diversified agriculture and Northern California's chief orange producer. Rice production now is one of the county's most important industries. Irrigation is undertaken on an extensive scale, the Department of Commerce announcing in its 1830 irrigation census that Butte had 48,219 acres under irrigation. Northern California's first orange tree was planted at Bidwell Bar in 1856 and it still produces regular crops an dis used for propagating root stock. Population, 34,083. Area, 1696 square miles.

Calaveras County—Created February 18, 1850. One of the original twenty-seven counties of California. The meaning of "Calaveras" is "skulls." The county derived its name from Calaveras Creek, which was so named by Captain Moraga of the Mexican army, who headed the first expedition of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers and into the Sierra Nevada mountains, from the fact that he found a large number of skulls lying along the banks of the creek.

According to the diary of Captain Moraga, the history of this abundance of skulls is that the Indian tribes living on the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers made a desperate war against the tribes of the Sierra, who annually came down to fish for salmon in these streams. This was considered in the light of a trespass, inasmuch as the Sierra tribes refused to allow the valley tribes to go into the mountains to hunt deer and gather acorns. In the battle fought near this creek, the tribes of the valley were victorious, and more than three thousand Indians were killed. Hence the name of the creek, from which the county subsequently derived its name.

Calaveras, one of the Mother Lode counties, is famous for its beautiful scenery, possessing many spots of historic interest, and offers many opportunities in mining, lumber business, stock raising, horticulture and viticulture. Several fine state highways lead into Calaveras and to its Big Tree Grove, Moaning Cave at Vallecito, Mercer Cave near Murphy, Angels Camp and San Andreas, immortalized by Bret Harte and Mark Twain, and the ghost towns of early mining days. At San Andreas stood, until 1924, the Metropolitan Hotel where the

Wool Growers Plan Meet September 16

A meeting of sheepmen is called for 10 o'clock P. M., Monday, September 16 at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona. This meeting said R. W. Hull of Orange, President of the Southern California Wool Growers Association, is for the purpose of enabling sheepmen to get acquainted with each other and to outline a program for the Association.

A short business session will be held, followed by discussions given by R. F. Miller, in charge of the sheep programs at the University Farm at Davis, and H. Hickmouthe of Idaho, who will be the sheep judge at the Fair. It is planned to have Mr. Richmond judge several classes of sheep and give reasons for his placings. This Wool Growers' meeting will be particularly instructive for sheepmen in determining the best type of animal to use for breeding, according to W. M. Cory, Assistant Farm Adviser at Mr. Hickmouthe, is an outstanding sheep judge.

"Jumping frog" episode made famous by Mark Twain. At Carson Hill was found the celebrated $45,000 nugget for which Stanislaus National Park is a paradise for campers and tourists. The county has a small but prosperous agricultural region especially adapted to olives. Population, 6,008. Area: 1027 square miles.

Next: Colusa, Contra Costa and Del Norte Counties. Editor.

PATHFINDER

(Continued from page 1) man set fire to it and it burned to beat the band. The local fire company with its 12-man power suction fire pump and apparatus came to put out the blaze. But before the big pump could function properly half of the straw burned to let the flame run its course. And then all the boys had to do was to cover up the ashes and go home.

CHINESE WORK VINEYARDS HERE

A few years after the two and three hundred Chinamen came here and were engaged in the vineyards. A large two story wooden building located on the southwest corner of Los Angeles and Chartres streets was used as their headquarters, besides numerous small buildings scattered around in the block.

Sin See Wo was the mandarin, assisted by his brother, Man Wo. Their word was law among the Chinamen. The men would be employed in groups, and Sin See Wo acted as their agent in securing employment for them. The Chinese were inveterate gamblers of wine and engage in gambling chance going on. In the end the Chinamen lost most of their money. The smoking of opium was a common practice. Tong often broke out in Los Angeles and San Francisco and sometimes the echo would be heard here. One morning a Chinaman was found dead, his head having been split open with a hatchet. But nobody knew how it happened. After the Chinese exclusion act went into force the Chinamen gradually disappeared, many of them going back to China. When Sin See Wo died his funeral was the occasion of much pomp and ceremony upon the part of the Celestials.

ADVOCATES ORIENTAL EXCLUSION

Dennis Kearney of San Francisco stumped the state and made forceful speeches, using the slogan, "The Chinese Must Go!" In those early days the Celestials did most of the farm work. Kearney said they were encroaching upon the white man's preserves. He made a fiery speech here in the Kroeg's Hall on West Center street. He advocated the Chinese Exclusion Act, which later became the law.

There were many who disagreed with Kearney, and the meeting here was uproarious, and an over meeting on the sidewalk was addressed by several speakers, including Theodore Lyneil, an able attorney. After the Exclusion Act began to work many of the Chinamen went back to their native land. And then the bars were let down to the Mexicans, Japs, and Filipinos who were needed in great part to do menial labor.

ANNA KARENINA

Chapter One

ANNA KARENINA

Vronsky and Stiva quickened their pace as the whistle sounded the approach of the St. Petersburg train.

"Quite a coincidence that we should be meeting your mother and I my sister at the same time," said Stiva.

"Not so much of a coincidence as my stumbling across you last night at the Gypsy Cafe," Vronsky laughed. "If I hadn't spent the rest of the night sobering you up you'd never have gotten here this morning."

Stiva nodded gloomily. "Well, my sister Anna will fix things at home for me," he said at length. "She'll have to be a miracle worker in doing it," answered Vronsky. "After all, Stiva, you tell me that Dolly knows the other woman—and found the letters. And you still expect your sister to make her believe you are a model husband."

"You don't know Anna or you wouldn't be so doubtful," sighed Stiva. "She's the wife of Alexander, the St. Petersburg official. And Dolly not only loves her, but respects her good judgment."

They entered the depot as the train changed its way alongside the platform. Vronsky moved slowly along the line of carriage windows until he saw his mother smiling and signaling him. Then he stopped short in surprise.

On the top step stood an exquisitely beautiful young woman, her bearing, dress and manner poised and elegant. Vronsky stared openly in admiration.

Countess Vronsky greeted her son with the proud affection of a mother for her only child—and that child a handsome man, the brilliant toast of his regiment and social world. The beautiful unknown stood nearby, smiling upon the two of them. Vronsky's feet lit with pleasure as he realized his mother was heading straight for her. "This is Madame Karenina," the Countess said. "Her husband put her in my charge when he left St. Petersburg, and a more delightful traveling companion I've never met."

So this was Stiva's sister! He

"You don't know me, of course, Madame Karenina," he began. "But I do," smiled Anna. "Your mother and I have been talking about you all the way from St. Petersburg. She talked about her son and I talked about mine."

"Madame Karenina has a little boy," the Countess explained. "It's the first time she ever left him—and she hates leaving him, don't you, my dear?"

Anna smiled wistfully. "He's my only child."

She felt Vronsky's burning, eager gaze upon her and she blushed nervously. "I must find Stiva," she murmured.

"Anna!" She wheeled about at Stiva's call and rushed blindly in the direction of his voice, colliding with an old railroad worker who was shuffling down the platform. "Forgive me, your Excellency," the man whispered humbly. "My fault," smiled Anna graciously; and the next moment she was in Stiva's arms, greeting him happily. Immediately she felt at ease. She knew she could command her pose if she avoided Vronsky's eyes. With this in mind she watched the old workman as he tested the rails and couplings. Tap, tap, tap went his hammer. Now the couplings. Now the rails. The rhythm of his work forced itself into Anna's consciousness. It played the obligato to the brief exchange of pleasantries between the Countess, Vronsky, Stiva and herself.

As she withdrew her hand sharply, a scream of terror rent the air.

The train puffed and chugged its way out of the depot. Out of nowhere broke a madman of confusion, horror and chaos. Anna looked about wildly as people rushed from all sides to the end of the platform. There, on the rails, in the wake of the train which had just passed, lay the crushed figure of the workman who so few minutes before had murmured his apology and basked in the kindness of her smile.

Vronsky moved toward her, taking her hand in his to reassure her. She raised her tear-filled eyes to his and he bent over her hand and kissed it. She thrilled to the touch of his lips. For a brief moment she lost all sense of the accident, the station, the very people about her. She came to herself with a start, her first glance falling upon men carrying the crushed body from the rails. Anna shivered.

"It is an omen," she whispered, "an evil omen," and seizing Stiva's arm, she nodded briefly in farewell to Vronsky and his mother and hurried away from the station.

Once at home with Stiva and his family, Anna forgot the tragedy—but the memory of Vronsky she could not banish. It persisted throughout the long hours in which she pleaded with Dolly. It hovered over the days in which she devoted herself to Stiva's cause. It colored the happiness of her success—for eventually Dolly did forgive Anna.

In her heart, Dolly pitied Anna more than herself. Despite his faults, she loved her husband; and Anna could never love Karenina. For Anna, So young and so beautiful—and yet tied for life to an elderly, pompous, egotistical, stupidly cold and formal husband.

What Dolly did not know was that Anna's gaiety arose from the fact she knew she would soon see Vronsky again. Surely he would be at the Korsunsky's ball which all of them were to attend!

And then, just before they left for the Korsunsky's ball, Kitty, Dolly's debutante sister, drew Anna aside and in a burst of confidence, confessed her own love for Vronsky.

Anna's joyous anticipation crumbled. If Kitty loved Vronsky she must do nothing to hurt her. Throughout the ball, she avoided Vronsky, taking her place among the chaperones lined against her wall of the brilliant salon.

But Vronsky will get it otherwise. And Kitty, taking refuge in the attention of Levin, who loved her, felt her heart break as she watched Vronsky's endless pursuit of Anna throughout the evening.

It was not until the supper dance that Anna at last consented to dance with him.

"I knew it at the railroad station," Vronsky whispered to her as he held her in his arms. "Nothing but the love of Levin, who loved her, felt her heart break as she watched Vronsky's endless pursuit of Anna throughout the evening."

an ecstasy of joy she gave herself up to the delight of dancing in Vronsky's arms.

At the conclusion of the dance, she smilingly announced her plan to return home on the morning train. She saw Kitty's face light, and her heart ached with the full realization of the hurt the evening had dealt Kitty, and with her own pain in renouncing Vronsky.

As the St. Petersburg train carried her through the morning's snow storm, Anna brooded upon the bleak countryside, her heart filled with a restless sadness. At the first station stop she strode out onto the platform. The cold cleared her head and after a short brisk walk, she turned to enter her car.

A man in military gray stood before her, blocking her path. "May I help you at all?" he asked.

She looked up into the ardent gaze of Vronsky. In spite of herself, her face shone with joy. "I didn't know you were going to St. Petersburg today," she said. "Why this sudden change of plan?"

"Why?" Vronsky's voice grew soft. "To be where you are. You know that." She brushed past him but he seized her hand. "I give me," he pleaded. "I had said it."

"You shouldn't have said it," she answered. You must forget you said it."

"I'll never forget anything of you," he murmured and drew close to her.

"Stop!" She wrenched herself away. "Please," she begged. She rushed into her compartment, her face a mixture of bewilderment, terror and delight, and locked the door behind her.

And there she remained throughout the journey, her heart pounding with the joy of his words, her mind helpless in its effort to concentrate on the memory of her home, her husband and her child.

Sergei, her son, was ecstatic at her return. Anna doubled her attempts to carry out her social obligations that were hers as the wife of the great government official. But the memory of Vronsky pined through the mindless formalities of her duties and only with Sergei could she find some measure of peace. She sought the child out continually until Karenin accused her of spoiling the boy and of interfering with the routine of his studies and play-time.

Vronsky continued his pursuit of her. For years, Anna had gone everywhere alone, except for those few times when her husband found leisure from his work. Now that Vronsky was in St. Petersburg, and unattached, he bestowed his attention on her continually. Soon they were seen everywhere together.

And so winter passed, and spring bloomed and summer waned. But it was not until the Countess Lidia's garden party that society openly declared them a scandal.

A PROJECT AS BIG AS THE PANAMA CANAL

RIGHT IN YOUR OWN BACK YARD

THERE is no Panama Canal in Southern California but there is an equally great—if not as well known—achievement rivaling it in bigness of conception, cost of execution and contribution to industrial development.

In order to supply Central and Southern California with low-cost electrical power, the citizens who compose the Edison Company completed several almost unbelievable engineering feats. An army of thousands of men marched into the mountains and harnessed the waters of the High Sierras. At times as many as 8,000 men were employed. In one instance they worked years, blasting a tunnel through more than 13 miles of virgin granite.

Instead of locks, they built huge dams; and erected 5 hydro-electric power plants—to serve the millions living in this territory. The result of the combined effort of thousands of California workers and investors is economical power—flowing constantly, day and night—to light a single lamp or turn the wheels of the largest factory.
