League of Municipalities Considers Plan for Liquor Control at Meeting Held at Elks Club Thursday Night

The delegates attending the meeting of the League of Municipalities endorsed a plan for the control of liquor which was called the "middle-of-the-road plan." The plan would give local control and yet keep the liquor business out of politics. Approximately 100 delegates attended the meeting at the Elks Club here last Thursday night.

The plan is tentatively agreed upon by the state league, to be perfected and submitted as a state constitutional amendment should it meet the approval of the majority of county leagues, is virtually the plan originally outlined by the executive board of the Orange County league and submitted by Mayor Charles H. Mann of Anaheim to the state league executive, Dick Graves.

Graves was the principal speaker of the evening. Following explanation of the plan, a roll call was taken from representatives present from the 12 cities in the county. Two cities, Huntington Beach and Laguna Beach, did not vote, probably because of small representation at the meeting. San Clemente was not represented. The other cities voted for the resolution of endorsement.

The plan in effect includes the following points: A larger measure of local control is desirable; revenue from retail liquor licenses should be used for local regulation and law enforcement and should not be considered as a source of state revenue; appointment rather than election of a state liquor control board members to hold long, staggered terms subject to approval of the senate, this commission to issue all liquor licenses to avoid weary tickets at every local election; Property should be protected adequate time for protest should

GAZETTE TO HOLD FIRST COOKING SCHOOL IN K. P. HALL APRIL 1, 2, 3

Free School To Have Many New Features in Art of Culinary Effort; Expert Economist as Well as Many Entertainment Features Planned For Three-Day Event. Everyone Invited.

Of great interest to the housewives of Anaheim and vicinity is the Anaheim Gazette announcement of its Happy Kitchen Cooking School, to be held April 1, 2 and 3, at the K. P. Hall, West Center street near Clementine. Under the personal direction of Pauline K. Edwards, the nationally known Home Economist, who has helped thousands of home-makers—brides, young mothers, and older housewives—the cooking school promises to be one of unusual benefit, as well as providing delightful entertainment through the sparkling and pertinent remarks of Miss Edwards.

"Cooking" has been my hobby as well as my vocation, for a number of years. I know of no art where creative ability and imagination bring greater dividends than in the realm of cooking. Every woman who has baked a perfect pie, with a light, flaky crust and delicious filling, or prepared a cake that is a joy to behold and a delight to eat, feels the same thrill of accomplishment as the artist when he views the inspired painting he has just finished.

"Housework too often is regarded mainly as dull routine, while the career of the woman in the business world is looked upon with envy. But the housewife has an independence, a chance to use her ingenuity, and express her individuality in her work, in a way that no girl in an office ever does.

"For instance," continued Miss Edwards "think what the clever housewife can do, with a minimum of expense, to make every room in the house a pleasant place to be. Let's consider the kitchen, and forget about the preparation of the meal for a moment. Perhaps we can't have a new stove, or some of those grand built-in cupboards, but what about a pair of gay salt and pepper shakers placed on the warming shelf of the old stove. They add a bit of brightness and cheeriness that is heartening. And the window curtains, they have a limp, careworn appearance, and a general air of discouragement? Or are they crisply clean, and starched to a charming perkiness, provoking the right sort of frame of mind for colorful flowers. It is amazing how fresh curtains, and the color of flowers and small items in the kitchen, will banish any drabness, and make our 'workshop' a place where we really like to be.

"Instead of reserving the gay little 'kitchen tools' for the kitchen-shower for the bride-to-be," says Miss Edwards, "why not have a display in our own kitchens. The older housewife enjoys working in cheerful surroundings just as much as the new bride. If the budget doesn't permit much of expensive equipment, perhaps it will stretch to cover some new potholders, which by the way should be laundered as regularly as tea towels, or some of the new small kitchenware with luscious bright red, yellow, or lettuce green handles—whose colors against the soft cream paper lining of a kitchen drawer, will give any woman a feeling of pride and satisfaction when she opens that drawer, and a new pleasure in her kitchen."

Miss Edwards bubbles with ideas, and practical suggestions for making the preparation of the family meals a congenial task, amid pleasant surroundings. She extends a warm invitation to all the home makers in Anaheim to attend the Happy Kitchen Classes, to be held at the K. P. Hall in Anaheim, and to bring along any questions about meal planning, balanced diets, budgeting, etc., for she will be delighted to give all the help possible.

Harry Arthur Is New Champ Of Something

By SMITTY
Yesir, and how . . . we have a new champ of something or other . . . you can name the . . . whatever it is . . .

Wednesday night just before he opened the theater . . . the telephone in the office rang and Harry was told there was a telegram for him. did he wish it read over the phone . . .

Harry's been expecting some messages and he settled back and stated that (o, yes, he had a very knowing twink in his eyes) he was in comfortable position to take it on the chin . . .

The young lady (or maybe it was a man) read the message and Harry turned to the office walls and said . . .

"Well I've reached the quarter century mark . . ." and when pressed for an explanation he said simply . . .

The message was from Morris-town, New Jersey . . . and all it said was that "Arthur Harry Doyle was the name of the 25th grandchild . . . that's all . . ."

As if that wasn't enough for any man to beam over . . . but then guess Harry is used to it by now.

County Townsendsites Hear Judge Summers In Address Sunday Eve

Some 500 members of the Townsend clubs of Orange County gathered at the Townsend Hall in Santa Ana last Sunday night at which time they heard an address by Judge M. C. Summers.

Judge Summers is well known as a writer and formerly was district attorney at St. Louis, Mo.

The meeting was called to order by C. W. Riggles who led the audience in the singing of America and in the Flag Salute. Rev. R. F. Russell of Santa Ana pronounced the benediction and then Hurd's orchestra composed of Earl Leita, Carl Durall, O. A. Sanders, Jim Carlson and Haywood Patterson entertained the crowd with a thirty minute concert.

Chairman Riggles then introduced State Manager Ted E. Felt who in turn presented Judge Summers as the speaker of the evening.

Judge Summers immediately launched into a speech which caused his audience to applaud him time and again. Almost at the first he invited any present who had "any hard nuts to crack" in connection with the Townsend Plan to state them and from over the audience in rapid fire order came question after question which he answered with unusual dispatch and good humor.

Holding a copy of "The Federal Reserve Banking Laws" in one hand and in the other hand a copy of the "Townsend Plan Book" Judge Summers dramatically said, "Outside of the Bible these two books are the most important in the world to this audience." He then explained the one book contained laws which regulated the money system of the nation and the Townsend book contained the plan to state them and from over the audience in rapid fire order came question after question which he answered with unusual dispatch and good humor.

MARCH 20, 1886

The delegation and exhibits for the Chicago Citrus Fair have arrived in that city. When the great trainload of fruit left Los Angeles the managers in Chicago were notified by telegram to be ready for the precious cargo. A dispatch was received from L. M. Holt on Saturday saying that the prospect was bright for a most successful fair. The whole city was ready to welcome the exhibit which will be the largest exhibition of citrus fruits ever made anywhere in the world. At New Orleans it here were but about eighty boxes of California oranges, when they gave the prize to Riverside. At Chicago all of Southern California will be represented and there will be more than two thousand boxes of oranges, besides many boxes of lemons and limes and three carloads of orange trees bearing the ripe fruit. Pasadena sent a carload of the finest citrus trees she has. It embraces all of the citrus fruits—peaches, lemons, limes. One is a full-bearing orange tree, fifteen feet in height, loaded with ripe fruit. There is also a fine selection of all the lovely flowering shrubs that grow in productive Pasadena. It goes over the C. S. A. & P. and A. T. & S. F. railroads, in charge of Mr. C. H. Richardson. C. Z. Culver will leave in a few days with a second shipment.

The Pomological society of Los Angeles county will hold its annual meeting in Los Angeles, commencing April 1st. A display of fruits, flowers, vegetables and other products will be made. Mrs. Kate Barker is the representative of the society in Anaheim and is thoroughly alive to the importance of a good display from this section. All articles for exhibition should be addressed to Thomas A. Gooney, Los Angeles, and left at the depot on or before March 20. The railroad company carries all articles free and each donor is entitled to admission to the exhibit.

Mr. Carl Pamperl is dividing the upper story of his brick building on Los Angeles street into five nice rooms, which he will occupy with his family as a dwelling. He is also having an elevated porch, 25 x 25 feet built to the rear, with a railing all around, which will be ornamented with growing flowers and shrubbery and provided with seats.

Wednesday's rain came "in streaks" after the manner of Jack Frost. At Santa Ana the rain had not been very heavy until 5 o'clock, while here in Anaheim it came down in torrents, the water running down the streets and standing in pools even on sidewalks.

At the close of her travelogue Miss Backs presented a veritable fashion show, displaying the beautiful kimono and other garments and trinkets she brought home with her. The Cost of Shoes

Will the New Deal policies, some of which have already been invalidated by the United States Supreme Court, result in a higher price for shoes, to the American public? When the buying of drouth cattle was first commenced, the packers were permitted to keep possession of the hides, then the government decided to take charge of those coming in. As a result more than two million hides are said to have been accumulated by Uncle Sam and stored in warehouses. The hides are said to be still in storage and deteriorating daily with the result, according to leather experts, that if the hides are not used before long the entire consignment will have been rendered valueless.

"This of course will cost the government a lot of money but Uncle Sam is used to writing off losses in these hectic days. But another important thought is that the waste may, through the enforced scarcity of leather for shoes, add many millions of dollars to the shoe costs of our consumers. The tendency of the price of shoes is to go up anywhere because of the increasing costs which the manufacturers have been forced to bear. Federally controlled scarcity of leather will only tend to increase this cost.

The price of leather has already increased but Uncle Sam continues to hold on to his two million hides that are becoming less useful every day. Of course it may be possible to bring prosperity to all the people through artificial scarcity, although the courts have held that this cannot be done through the processes of the AAA. But it is even now difficult to see how great benefit will come to anyone from the permanent retirement of two million hides "from circulation" at the cost of the taxpayers. If shoes go up in price because of the scarcity of leather then foot gear will cost the farmer as much more as the worker in the city.

Of course while the New Dealers are trying to increase the cost of leather in this country by impounding the hides in government warehouses, it is possible that Mr. Hull, our genial tariff manipulator, may find some scheme whereby he can lower the price by importing hides from South America and other alien lands. Then we will have the picture of Americans wearing shoes made from foreign grown hides while American hides are spoiling in American warehouses at the taxpayers' expense. It may be possible to extend this scheme a little further by importing the shoes from abroad rather than by merely bringing in the hides. Then the joy of our State Department tariff makers ought to be complete.

When the AAA was criticised the New Dealers used to say, "Well what have you got in place of it?" Since the Supreme Court decision the critic may now reply: "Well, what have you got in place of it?"

It used to be said that one-half of the world didn't know how the other half lived, but no doubt this isn't true in the day of so many thousands of New Deal investigators.

One thing which the AAA forgot to do before it was too late was to regulate the diameter and circumference of silos.

CHAPTER II

"Taro demands the valine!" the chief insisted.

"Lilleo is Mala's woman, Mala won her according to the law of our people."

"Taro is the arii, the chief!"

"Alta! No! Our warriors will demand the observance of the law. Even Taro must bow before the law of the Types."

"Taro is the arii!" the chief repeated.

But, as he spoke, to Mala, Taro knew that he must defer to the law. Already, they were formulating other plans, safer, surer plans, that would give him the right to claim Lilleo with the sanction of his people.

"Taro is the arii!" the chief repeated.

But, as he spoke, to Mala, Taro knew that he must defer to the law. Already, they were formulating other plans, safer, surer plans, that would give him the right to claim Lilleo with the sanction of his people.

to relax in the arms of a waiting sailor, Ateoa, one of the fairest of all the Tahitians, sped to the middle of the after-deck to take her place. The men gathered in an eager circle around her. Slowly, her slim body writhed in the tortuous undulations of the up-and-down, fast and faster, she moved, and the music of the ukuleles kept pace with her ever quickening motions. Now, she glided across the deck to one sailor, but, as his waiting arms reached out to catch her, she eluded him with a sudden graceful twist of her supple, young body; now, she evaded another.

"La ora no!" The Mate swagged up to Mala, as he and Lilleo stood watching the dancer.

"La ora na!" Mala replied politely.

"Drink," Robbins offered, and he handed Mala a bottle.

Mala tasted the strange liquid, and he liked it. He gave Lilleo the bottle. She sipped from it cautiously at first, and then, finding it pleasant, she drank deeply. Suddenly, her eyes filled with tears, and she snatched the bottle and returned it to Mala. Mala took a deep swallow from it.

"Maruru!" Mala said. "Thank you!"

"The Captain wants to see you," Robbins told him.

Shyly, the tane and his white followed the Mate into the Captain's cabin. They looked about in wonder, overawed by the splendor of their surroundings; for the simple furnishings of the cabin were, indeed, a revelation, contrasted with the crude appointments of even the most lavish island fare. Then, they marveled at the wonder of all wonders, the gaudy trinkets that the Captain held out to them.

Captain Buckley was sure of his ground, well aware of the effect that these cheap, gaudy baubles would have upon his naive guests. The Mate produced a small, glittering necklace and offered it to Lilleo. She clutched it eagerly, her joy eloquent in her sparkling eyes. Mala fondled a tawdry watch, then held it expectantly to his ear as Buckley had suggested. His brilliant eyes were twin-stars of wonder, as he listened to the even rhythm of its faint tick-tick.

"If you like them, take them," Buckley told them with a magnanimous wave of his hand.

"No marmalade," Robbins translated the Captain's offer.

Mala and Lilleo were incredulous. Robbins assured them that the white chief was not fooling, and they gathered their prizes to them joyously.

HISTORY OF ANAHEIM

Officially Recorded in Minutes of Anaheim Water Company, Which Are Copyrighted, 1932, by Anaheim Gazette, and Printed in Weekly Installments

Anaheim, May 15th, 1932.

Pursuant to adjournment, the stockholders in the Anaheim Water Company convened at the above place, to present Dreyfus in the chair. The president stated the object of the meeting, whereupon Mr. Melrose presented the following resolution, prefacing its introduction by the statement that he offered it because it seemed to him the best way to solve the question under consideration, and not because he believed the services performed by Mr. Smith were worthy of such claim. The resolution was then read:

Resolved, That we accept the proposition of Thos. H. Smith, Esq., in reference to his fees as attorney for this Company, with the following modifications: This Company will pay him $3,000 in cash, and give the Company's note for the payment of $7,250, to be paid when our cases are passed upon by the Supreme Court, with the understanding that if said Court affirms the decision of the lower Court in said cases, this Company will pay the said Thos. H. Smith $1,000 additional.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Scott, thoroughly discussed, and adopted by the following vote: B. Dreyfus, 368 votes; R. W. Scott, 120 votes; F. A. Korn, 77 votes; S. Holman, 5 votes; E. Barr, 36 votes; J. Meredith, 31 votes; J. Semann, 14 votes; R. Melrose, 1 vote; H. Wemeyer, 33 votes; C. Wilkins, 14 votes; C. Lorenz, 20 votes; T. Reiser, 166 votes; H. Werder, 24 votes; M. Haight, 87 votes; F. Hartung, 90 votes; H. Werder, 20 votes; L. Dawson, 1 vote.

Total number of votes cast in the affirmative, 1167. Number of votes in the negative, none. The President thereupon declared the resolution adopted, there being more than the requisite two-thirds of the stock issued voting in the affirmative. On motion duly made, seconded and carried Mr. Korn was appointed a committee of one to wait upon Mr. Smith and inform him of the action of the meeting.

The bill of J. Brasseau for $10,000.00 for services in the case of the Anaheim Water Company et al. vs. Amos Wright et al., from March 1st, 1930 to May 12, 1932, was ordered paid by the same vote as was cast for the previous resolution, and the Directors were authorized to make provision for the payment of the claims of Brasseau and Smith.

Mr. Haight offered the following resolutions: Be it resolved, (first) By the stockholders of the Anaheim Water Company in general meeting.

Once there was a barber who had his son lather the customers as he would do the shaving. One day the son was absent and the barber's pet monkey did the lathering. The barber was a little slow one day and a souped customer was waiting. So the monkey picked up a razor and was ready to go to work. "Hold on buddy," said the customer, "I would prefer your pal to do the shaving." The man maybe at one time lost at a horse race—he was taking no chances.

COUNTY MONEY GOES CHEAP, TRY AND GET IT

Ever hear of calling for bids on the use of money. Well, there is such a thing. County treasurer Stephenson pulled it.

In past years those banks which carried county money on deposit were expected to pay interest on it. For the most part it was a matter between the bankers and the treasurers. Then minimum rates were fixed by law. Of late years money has been a drug on the market, and finally the legislature fixed a minimum interest rate of 1 percent on long-time accounts and 1/2 percent on short time stuff.

In order to make a new start on March 1, Stephenson asked the banks for bids. Of course, those who bid at all put the figure at the legal minimum. Some of them don't want it at any price.

When the heavy tax payments come in, hundreds of thousands of dollars at a time, the Bank of America is the only one which will take it at all, and pay interest. There was a time a few years ago when Treasurer Trago was carrying the county cash in a big deposit box, and putting it on account only as was necessary to meet warrants. He was dodging the danger of the banks all closing.

The owners of the Santa Ana Register announced last week that a piece of ground had been purchased at Sixth and Sycamore on which they would put a building next year to house the publishing plant.

When J. F. Burke bought the paper in 1927 part of the deal was a ten-year lease on the building at Third and Sycamore, and the rental was $600 per month. When Burke sold to Hoiles and son last year the lease went with it.

The notion persists in the county seat that a consolidation of the two dailies is bound to come in time. Part of the basis for this idea is the understanding that the Hoiles really did not want the Register, but had to buy to protect money they had loaned Burke. The building announcement may put a new light on the situation.

The Register has not attracted so much attention since Burke left it. However, its tendency to political conservatism suits a good share of the county seat population. The prediction is that it will continue to swing to the right in a subdued sort of fashion.

"Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word. Thy hands have made me and fashioned me." These words of the Psalmist are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Lesson-Sermon presents these verses about Jesus, from Matthew: "And, behold there was a man which had his hand withered. And they asked him, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath days? that he might accuse him. And he said unto them, What man shall there be among you, that shall have one sheep, and if it fall into a pit on the sabbath day, will he not lay hold on it, and lift it out? How much then is a man better than a sheep? Wherefore it is lawful to do well on the sabbath days." Then said he to the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it forth; and it was restored whole, like as the other."

Among the correct passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the statements: "Sickness, sin, and death are not the fruits of Life. They are inharmonies which Truth destroys."

Honey Production In State Well Above Average In 1935

Honey production in California in 1935 was well above the average for the past five years, according to the annual report made public by H. M. Krebs, supervising apiculturist, State Department of Agriculture. Due to higher prices and an increased yield, the 1935 honey crop value almost quadrupled over 1934, the total value in 1935 being nearly $1,350,000.

Figures compiled by Krebs showed that about 22,115,000 pounds of honey represented the 1935 honey yield of that state, compared with 9,720,000 pounds in 1934, and 12,196,000 pounds in 1933. The 1934 total was considerably reduced on account of drought conditions.

A feature of the 1935 report are the figures showing the remarkable come back of the honey industry in Southern California, that district having been hard hit by the usually dry conditions. In 1934 San Diego County bees produced no honey, in fact it was necessary that honey be fed them to keep them alive. Last year, however, San Diego County bees colonies led the state in honey with a production of 4,200,000 pounds. A remarkable gain was also registered in Los Angeles County. In 1934 the honey yield of that county was $48,000. In 1935 the total was 2,944,000. In 1934 Riverside County bees produced about 600,000 pounds of honey. In 1935 the yield was 1,755,000 pounds.

In 1934 San Bernardino County's honey total was $37,000. In the year just closed the yield was 1,591,000 pounds. The Santa Barbara County honey yield increased to 400,000 pounds in 1935, from 8,000 pounds in 1934. The Orange County honey total in 1934 was 245,000. In 1935 it had advanced to 773,000 pounds. The total for Ventura County bees in 1934 was 345,000 pounds. In 1935 that figure had been increased to 920,000 pounds. Krebs pointed out, however, that in the case of Ventura and some other counties in the state, the total does not give the true production of honey due to the fact that many colonies from other counties are moved into Ventura, and other counties, from outside when the prospects of a fine honey flow are better in Ventura County than in the counties where they are owned.

The figures stated are for the production of the bees that are really kept in each county.

Other counties where the increase in honey production in 1935 was outstanding over 1934 included Alameda, Butte, Calusa, Contra Costa, Fresno, Imperial, Kern, Inyo, Kings, Monterey, Sacramento, San Luis Obispo, Shasta, Sutter, Tehama, Tulare, Yolo.

SHIFTING SCENES
Now that the big boss race in Sunkist west is over people are turning to the republican candidate for president. The balancing budget governor of Kansas has a big lead, but the other native sons are crowding in. There is plenty of good timber among the ranks and a dark horse might knock the persumption, or maybe they might name a fusion ticket and inherit a $5 billion debt.

County Townsendites Hear Judge Summers In Address Sunday Eve

there for money in the body economic." Said he, "the nation is suffering from pernicious anemia," then he continued, "but the Townsend Plan of money circulation will bring a new and needed economic health to the nation."

Answering a question propounded from the audience, "why the $200 per month?" Judge Summers explained it was not a guess at amount but rather was the result of long and scientific study. Here he pointed out that the Townsend Plan is primarily a recovery plan and that the $200 per month spending power of each Townsend annuitant would result in such business acceleration as would furnish reemployment to the now younger unemployed.

He brought his address to a close with a splendid oratorical description of the might of leadership with which the nation has been particularly blessed in the persons of Washington, Lincoln and Teddy Roosevelt and prophesied that the future would accord to Dr. Francis E. Townsend as being another man of destiny.

The meeting was closed with the audience in concert repeating the Townsend Pledge of Loyalty.

B. & P. W. Enjoy Travelogue By Miss Irma Tapp

The only regular meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club held in February was one of much interest last Thursday evening at the Mariposa Cafe, the first regular meeting being omitted because of the card party held on the 14th at the home of Mrs. Eva Boyd.

During the business hour Mrs. Mabel Dixon, president, called for a report on the work of the club. Carlotta on the card party, which proved to be both a financial and social success. A report was also given by Miss Charlotte Smith on the annual meeting of the Anaheim chapter of the American Red Cross. Mrs. Eva Boyd, chairman of Volunteer Production committee of Anaheim chapter of the Red Cross, urged the club members to help the Red Cross in their sewing project.

Further on the business program, a nominating committee was elected for the forthcoming election of officers. Mrs. Charles Pearson as chairman, and Miss Robbie Anderson and Miss Ann Rheingans were elected by unanimous ballot.

Miss Robbie Anderson was commended for her work on the decorating committee for the evening, and Mrs. Eva Boyd and Mrs. Myrtle Henry were appointed to serve for the next meeting. Announcement was made of the next board meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Pearson this evening, March 5th.

Mrs. Mabel S. Spizy, music chairman for the Southern District, with Mrs. Marie Graves playing piano accompaniment, lead the club members in chorus singing, in preparation for the glee club part in the program at the convention to be held in Coronado May 15, 16, 17. Special guests of the evening were Mrs. B. K. Wetlin and Miss Dorothy Shaw.

The business of the evening concluded, Miss Ruth Williams, program chairman, before presenting the speaker of the evening, introduced two girls from the dramatic class of the high school. Miss Virginia Lee Peters gave two comedy readings, dialogues, and monologues, and Miss Marcella Sutton two splendid piano selections.

Miss Irma L. Tapp, of the Fullerton Junior College gave a truly interesting and educational report on her recent tour through Denmark, Sweden and Norway in company with Miss Shaw, also of the Fullerton Junior College. By a coincidence they sailed from New York on the same boat which also took over 2000 teachers from United States to the Federated Teachers convention in England, which they attended on their return voyage.

There is comparatively little legislation in the Scandinavian countries, the Co-Operative clubs taking over most of that work. One of the important accomplishments of these clubs is the provision of large, modern, and sanitary apartment buildings for the poorer classes and the doing away with the "slum" districts. The speaker also stated that there are no "middlemen" in the various industries. The people own their own homes, although their business may keep them in the cities, they own at least a small country place, and cultivate small gardens. The people of these countries are EEEEEE-YOW and ain't this sumpin'... finally I got something on Joseph C. Elliott... ah... so that's it... can't even get along with the missus and then he expects to get along with me... Joe didn't want to speak to me at the meeting of the Legion the other night... but I had my way... (didn't either one of us speak). Now I ask you wasn't that a real compromise?

Somebody said that Fred Sidelton really believes that the post meeting is no place to discuss the "other side" of the pink query... well, anyway Fred stood on his hind feet and left off steam... but alas and alack... to what avail?

S'all right Fred... Tom McFadden had the same experience as you did... and he seems to be surviving it... only his was at the Rotary Club... and Fred the real joke... it's the first time I ever saw a lawyer so flabbergasted that he couldn't talk... but then so was Bill Webb at the Legion... Gee wasn't it a blessing that the ladies were there so to keep Bill in line... Uno.

Jim Bouldin showed up Tuesday in uniform... hah, wonder if he don't think we all know the BB games are on in Fullerton... yep... the Padres are strutting their stuff... but how come? Hasn't Fullerton got a chief of police... or does he need help?

Maybe someone told him there was a communist in town last Monday night and he thought he better show his authority... You know just in case.

Understand my old friend Roger Sherman (Older Sherman if you please) is now taking lessons in theology.

extremely courteous and most honest, and in traveling through Europe one finds that the Scandinavian people speak less English than in any other, of the more widely traveled countries. Denmark and Sweden are most picturesque with much color from the people of a jovial disposition who truly enjoy life. The scenic mountains and long summer twilight adding to the beauty of the country. Norway, on the other hand is in great contrast, as there is no color, everything appears to be drab and grey, although Norway is noted for the beautiful fjords.
