Letters from Chicago bring word that the attendance at the circus fair now being held in Battery D Armory is growing larger daily and dispatches say that the projectors are greatly pleased at the interest exhibited. We quote yesterday and today the crowd attending has been very large. The display in many ways is unique. In the building are five long rows of fruit trees laden with ripe fruit while at each side of them are rows of tables loaded up to their utmost capacity with fruit.

An examination of the trees shows that there are among them orange trees bearing fruit in every stage of development. On the same tree are large, ripe, luscious fruit, fruit just changing its dark green hue for a golden orange, fruit of diminutive size, hardly distinguishable from the unburied bud, and blossoms which clothe the tree in bloom.

A striking feature of the fair is a pyramid of fruit which rises to a height of thirty feet. It is constructed after the style of the Washington monument and is surrounded by waving plumes of pampas grass and bits of ribbon palm. The Santa Ana valley producers occupy about a fourth of the whole space. Los Angeles, San Gabriel, Anaheim, Orange, Alhambra, Santa Ana, Riverside and other fruit growing centers are well represented. Native wines are displayed in bottles and cases, ostrich eggs, cactus, pampas plants and hundreds of other rare growths of the Golden state are everywhere. A pretty feature of the Anaheim exhibit is a display of pressed seed-moss work by Mrs. L. F. Lewis. The Anaheim display is in charge of Dr. R. McElroy, while Dr. J. A. Crane, Mr. C. F. Mansur and Mr. Carey R. Smith look after the Santa Ana exhibit. Mr. J. H. Frederick of Orange ably manages the display.

That place, he is assisted by Mr. J. Purcell Boring.

A runaway occurred on Monday last nearly resulting in a fatal accident. A team of horses, on Los Angeles street, became frightened by a bicycle and in turn reared a heavy truck team, both ran wildly, one turning down Center street was checked without damage. The truck was dragged from Los Angeles street and collided with a buggy containing Mr. and Mrs. Sifton of Orange, both of whom were thrown violently to the ground. Mrs. Sifton received a serious shock. Her shoulder was dislocated, but in the act of carrying her into a neighboring house she slipped into a place again. Although a lady of 70 years of age her condition is favorable to recovery.

The dust from the streets is now becoming almost unbearable and it is only a short time since the dust gains. Let our storekeepers come forward and subscribe liberally for street sprinkling and let us have the sprinkling cart out at once. If enough money cannot be raised in this way, the Town Trustees could very justly donate a small sum monthly for this purpose, which would add greatly to the comfort and convenience of all.

The public school of Orange was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night between eleven and twelve o'clock. Estimated value of building, furniture and library, $5000. Insured in the Firemen's and Insurance company for $5000. Origin of the fire is unknown, but supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

This season's rainfall has been distributed most aptly for the heavy grain crop an unusually large acreage has been sown and is now looking splendidly. At this time would do more damage than good by causing judgment of the heavy growth of wheat and barley.

New trees have been set out along the south side of Center street, in place of the dry ones, and the weeds are being cleared from the sidewalk. A row of peppers has also been set out along the east side of Los Angeles street.

Strawberries in Chicago are selling at $3.50 per quart. In Anaheim they have been delivered at our door all winter long at from 10 to 15 cents per pound.

Geo. C. Fabens, claim agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad company was in town Thursday

Investigating the cases of Mrs. J. Becker and F. M. Springer who were injured on Sunday when the train from Los Angeles was thrown from the track about one mile west of Norwalk by a broken rail. The passenger and smoking cars were capsized into a ditch and nearly all passengers more or less seriously injured. Conductor Curtis was severely shaken. With in two hours repairs were under way and early the following morning the track was in order, permitting trains to run on schedule time. The track has been in bad condition since the wash-outs of the winter and spring of 1884.

High school and grammar school trustees met at the office of Attorney Spencer on Monday evening and decided to call a bond election on Monday, April 24, for the purpose of voting upon the issue of $100,000 of school bonds for both districts. Of the amount $70,000 is for the purchase of a site and erection of a new high school building and $30,000 is for the grammar school district. There were present representing the Anaheim high school district, Trustees Storm, Spencer, Winters, Sparks and Henry. Representing the grammar school district were Trustees Clabaugh, Chambers and Schwenker. County School Superintendent Mitchell was present and participated in the discussion. Plans adopted at the meeting include taking over the present high school building by the grammar district at a valuation of $25,000. The high school district contemplates the purchase of eleven acres of the Bittner property at the corner of Center and Citron streets at $20,000. A $75,000 building will be erected thereon. The official call for the high school bond election, together with the notice for change of site from the present to the new location, will be found in another column.

SOCIETY CLUBS

Betrothed Couple Entertained At Party Thursday

Twenty-two friends of Miss Marie Bennett and her fiancé, Mr. Theodore Thornton of Los Angeles, gathered at the bachelor apartments of Mr. Marion Shafer at 110 South Olive street Friday evening to extend congratulations and best wishes upon their marriage which will take place about the first of April.

The ever popular game of bridge took up the evening hours, with the two guests of honor receiving high honors, Miss Bennett a large box of white linen stationery and Mr. Thornton a stationery knife.

Sings of Erin were predominant. Tally cards, table favors, covers and napkins were in the St. Patrick motif. The delicious frozen pudding topped with whipped cream, which was served with coffee and wafers, also carried out the green and white colors. The guest of honor made the picture complete, in a Nile green marl taffeta gown.

Besides the host of the evening and the honored guests other members of the happy party included Mr. and Mrs. Muriel Lenz, the Misses Ruth Shaver, Elsie Guy, Priscilla Adams, Leona Lehmer, Charlotte Hagood, Grace Black, Alma Ruth Shaw, Dorothy Cromer, Dorothy Harmon, Evelyn Hilgenfeld, and Charlotte Smith, and the Messrs. Melvin Hilgenfeld, Allen Sipple, Everett Granero,

John J. Dwyer, Mrs. Frisbie Wed Friday

Among the weddings of the past week was that of Mrs. Lera Mae Frisbie of Santa Ana to J. J. Dwyer, orange grower of Anaheim, according to reports received from Las Vegas, New Mexico. The couple were married in that city Friday night, with Reverend Charles B. Dalton of the Methodist church officiating, and are at present on a wedding trip.

Mrs. Dwyer has been secretary to Mr. Dwyer in his Santa Ana office for several years. Mr. Dwyer is well known throughout the county, having an orange grove in West Anaheim, and is the Federal Conciliator for this district. He is also a member of the Anaheim Rotary club and a trustee in the Elk's lodge.

D. A. R. Plans Entertainment

The Daughters of the American Revolution are entertaining as special guests members of the A. B. Paul Women's Relief Corps at the regular meeting at the Pioneer House tomorrow, Friday, afternoon.

Special program has been arranged by the committee and hostesses for the day. Serving on the hostess committee are Mrs. J. F. Ritchie, Mrs. J. B. Bastly and Mrs. Leo J. Sheridan.

Elwyn Rice, Paul Winsor, and Charles Bush.

B. & P. W. Members Attend Dinner At Fullerton

In observance of National Business and Professional Women's week members of Anaheim club accepted the invitation of Fullerton club members Thursday evening at their regular meeting in the Marigold Cafe, to join them Tuesday evening at 6:30 dinner and an evening of entertainment, with Miss Anna Whitaker of Los Angeles Times as the speaker. Reservations were made for 14 members.

Miss Mabel Dixon, the club president, presided over the meeting which included discussion of several important matters. Mrs. Cooper, wife of Mayor Cooper of Reno, was introduced to the members and extended to them an invitation to the Western Regional Conference to be held at Tahoe Tavern June 21, 22, 23.

Committee chairmen were appointed to arrange for the annual reciprocity dinner to be held at the Elks club on March 26th. The chairmen were advised to select their own committee. Miss Robble Anderson was appointed hostess; Mrs. Mabel Hawthorne, decorations; and Miss Florence Davis and Mrs. Vincenta Carleton, tickets.

Opening her home to members of the Eastern Star Mrs. Maude Saenger was assisted with the duties by Mrs. Ethel Van Meter, Mrs. Edna Bruns and Mrs. Margaret Hasty Tuesday afternoon at the 151 Social Club of the O. E. S. gathered for the afternoon.

As chairman of the nominating committee Mrs. Pearson announced that blank ballots would be distributed to each member of the club, to be filled in and returned prior to the next meeting of the club. At that time officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Miss Florence Davis and Mrs. Myrtle Henry received the thanks of the club for the table decorations Thursday night. A lovely gardenia corsage was presented to Mrs. Cooper, while bouquets of white and green sweetpeas and shamrock place favors carried the St. Patrick motif. Miss Marian Scott and Miss Ann Rheingans were appointed to serve in this capacity for the next regular meeting.

The business of the evening completed Mrs. Dixon turned the evening over to Miss Ruth Williams, program chairman, who presented the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Hunziker, two very talented sisters, who played as the first number "Fraser" by Leher and "Trees" by Miss Mary Hunziker played the violin while her sister, Elizabeth, accompanied her at the piano.

Mr. Thomas Kuchel, local attorney, was the guest speaker of the evening and introduced as his topic a discussion on the evils of Communism in United States. Mr. Kuchel is a forceful speaker, and covered his subject in a most convincing manner. He held of the early days of the Russian Revolution in 1917, when he planned to conquer the world and remap it in an imperialistic dream of world control. Communism of today is but an outgrowth of the early dreams, except that today it is considered a dream of the proletariat. He told of the foothold the movement has gained in this country, when it started working through the I. W. W. party in 1924, and of the impending danger if steps are not taken to combat the evil. The speaker also brought out the fact that the three major points of the preamble of the Communist party are "Non belief in God," "A red flag," and "One Capital" and that one across the sea. Mr. Kuchel emphasized the importance of supporting the Constitution of the United States by each and every American.

New Luncheon Club Is Formed

As a group of friends met at the home of Mrs. Capitola Kelsey last Friday noon, a new luncheon club was formed, which will be Friday luncheon club with "509" as the afternoon diversion. The ladies have chosen to call their new club the "Odds and Ends Club".

Mrs. Kelsey served a truly delightful luncheon, carrying out the Easter motif both in the floral decorations, of which the lavender stock was the basic flower, and the dainty dishes, one of which was a fruit salad in the form of an Easter bunny. At the conclusion of the card game it was learned that Mrs. Van Booven held high score and Mrs. Huick the consolation number. Others present, besides the hostesses, were Mrs. Mattie Woods, Mrs. Clara Burns, Mrs. Opal Mullen, Mrs. Clara Niemann and Mrs. Mary Hatfield who will be hostess to the club this Friday noon.

Mrs. M. Saenger Hostess To Eastern Star

Opening her home to members of the Eastern Star Mrs. Maude Saenger was assisted with the duties by Mrs. Ethel Van Meter, Mrs. Edna Bruns and Mrs. Margaret Hasty Tuesday afternoon at the 151 Social Club of the O. E. S. gathered for the afternoon.

In commemoration of the date all decorations and table favors were in the cheery green and white St. Patrick colors. Following the dessert course a short business meeting was held after which the ladies filled in the afternoon playing bridge and knitting. Mrs. E. McCracken received the door prize.

The special object of this new club is to enable all members of the Eastern Star, whether affiliated with Chispa Chapter or not, to become acquainted, and all members of the order are heartily welcomed to attend any of the meetings.

The club has been set for the third Tuesday of each month. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. H. H. Bruns on South Los Angeles Street, with Mrs. Ruth Gregg, Mrs. Ethel Bruce, Mrs. Ethel Cross and Mrs. Edna Osborne as hostesses.

Plans Set For Annual Flower Show

Mrs. R. N. Ashley, Mrs. H. A. Johnston, and Mrs. F. W. Elliott general chairmen for the First Annual Spring Flower Show of the Home and Garden Section of the Anaheim Elks club, have about completed arrangements for the program and exhibition. The exhibition will be held in the K. P. hall on Monday, April 13th, and the doors will be open to the public from 1:00 to 9:00 P. M.

Mrs. Ashley stated that donations of flats, buds, cuttings, etc., which can be sold by the club will be gratefully accepted. Exhibits are open to the public and everyone is invited to enter the competitions. However, the plants and flowers must be amateur grown and arranged, and accompanied by their own containers and properly marked. Exhibits will be accepted up to 10 A. M. and will be judged by a selected judging committee at 10:30.

Aside from the floral exhibit there will be other attractions, including a tea room, candy booth, table of literature and garden market, as well as a splendid program arranged for the afternoon and evening. Mrs. Elizabeth Krinard of Riverside will be the guest speaker on the afternoon program, and the Dramatic section will present the evening program.

Two Showers Held For Bride-To-Be

Miss Marie Mennett has been a most popular bride-elect with many parties and showers in her honor, two showers being given early this week. Dr. Bernice Harker and Miss Mabel Junker gave a towel shower at Dr. Harker's home on East Center street Tuesday evening honoring Miss Mennett, serving a seven-course dinner. As Miss Mennett was presented with the towels, all of which were different and very pretty, she was required to hang them on a line, regular clothes pins and all. They did make a very pretty display. Also she was required to read an original composition by Mrs. S. Summers.

Theater evening hours were spent in playing informal games appropriate to the occasion. Mrs. R. M. Waltz complied with the requests of the guests and sang several lovely songs. Awards for spoon, trivet and their respective Miss Cora Fulton and Miss Alice Williamson.

Guests present included the Misses: Elsie Auer, Alice Williamson, Joyce Williamson, Mary Margaret Yonge, Cora Fulton, Madeline Conover, Adelyn Anderson, Myrtle Wallace, Ethel Bauman, Evelyn Bauman, Elizabeth Bowles, Iola Brown, Mabel Hanson, Viola Johnson, Elsie Muser, Melvina Robert, Elsie Shaver, Ruth Shaver, Alma Ruth Shaw, Cornelia Schettler, Emma Schettler, Bessie Renner, Marie West, Elsie Guy, Maxine Noah, Leola Felton and Grace Black; Mrs. Philma Stockwell, Mrs. S. Summers, Mrs. Ralph M. Waltz, and Mrs. A. I. Hart.

The Monday evening contract group surprised Miss Bennett when they gathered at the home of Miss Leona Lehmer for their regular Monday evening meeting by presenting her with a shower of dainty handkerchiefs. Present besides Miss Bennett and the hostesses were Miss Grace Black, Miss Charlotte Hagood, Miss Dorothy Cromer, Miss Myrtle Wallace, Miss Priscilla Adams and Miss Charlotte Smith.

Vet Auxiliaries At Legion Unit Meet Monday

The American Legion Auxiliary was hostess unit to the other patriotic organizations of Anaheim at the Auxiliary rooms of the Legion club rooms Monday evening. Mrs. Yuarda Akerman, president of the Auxiliary, welcomed members of the Daughters of American Revolution, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and A. B. Paul Women's Relief Corps, and introduced the respective presidents.

Mrs. Mamie Brummagin, president of the A. B. Paul W. R. C. presented the members of her organization, and Mrs. Ida Hughes explained the program and work of the group. The Women's Relief Corps is similar to the Legion Auxiliary in the fact that it was organized after the Civil War as an Auxiliary for the veterans of that war.

Mrs. Lillian Martens of the V. F. W. Auxiliary introduced the members of that organization, and Mrs. George Walter explained the program and the work connected with it. Mrs. Josephine Fuller, poppy chairman of the Legion Auxiliary, presented the posters which were made by pupils of the Fremont school for the annual poppy poster contest. The posters will be judged and prizes awarded at a later date.

Mrs. Akerman announced the 21st district conference to be held in Highlands on April 3rd, and Mrs. Florence Smith received the attendance prize, which was a handkerchief that the Auxiliary had purchased from the Veterans at Sawtelle hospital.

Tuesday Mrs. Akerman, Mrs. Eva Drennon, Mrs. Edna Elliott and Mrs. Fuller made the regular monthly visit to the Sawtelle hospital, distributing magazines and special St. Patrick favors to the veterans in ward No. 9, which is sponsored by the local Auxiliary. At the present time there are 41 veterans in this ward.

SMITH WALK OUT There will be quite a dent in the Deal vote if all the Smith family takes a walk with Al—Indianapolis Star.

G. R. and Y. M. C. A. Advisory Boards Meet Monday

The Advisory Boards of the Girls Reserve and of the Y.M.C.A. met at the Y.M.C.A. Building on South Philadelphia street Monday evening to discuss plans for further improvement of the building. Mrs. D. F. Lehmer, president of the Girls Reserve Board, Mr. Paul Demaree, president of the Y.M.C.A. Board, and Mrs. Walter Ross, general chairman of the renovation committee, had extended invitations to each of the service clubs to have a representative present to confer with them on donations for the building improvements. Mrs. Ross responded for the Senior Elks Club, Mr. J. Price represented the Kiwanis Club, Miss Sally Newkirk and Miss Betty Crane, the Junior Elks; Mr. Samuel Hilgenfeld the Lions Club; Mr. M. E. Gauer the Rotary Club; Mrs. Charles Pearson the Business & Professional Women's club, and Mrs. R. W. Marvin the High School P. T. A., making a total of about 25 present.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rundstrom were in charge of the building of the fireplace, which has recently been completed. Also a new gas range has been installed in the kitchen.

In the consideration of plans for further renovation, the service clubs were asked to donate toward the funds and to supply whatever they could in the way of equipment. As the committees are desirous of making the club rooms as modern and comfortable as possible much is needed in the way of furniture, game tables, leather covered chairs and davenport, rugs, a large fire screen, games of various kinds, books, and a kitchen sink. Mrs. Ross will be glad to receive whatever donations can be given in either cash or furnishings.

At the close of the meeting Monday evening members of the Board served doughnuts and coffee to those present.

Miss Olive Potter Entertains Las Amigas Club

Mrs. C. E. Chamberlain, program chairman of Las Amigas Study club introduced Miss Olive Potter who presented a program most appropriate to the March festival holiday at the regular meeting of the club Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Marten was hostess to the club, with Mrs. Dorothy Dickinson and Mrs. Doris Tucker as co-hostesses. Mrs. Chamberlain presented as the first number on the program Mrs. J. P. Taggart who sang "A Little Bit 'O Heaven" and "Daddy Boy." Mrs. Marie Dutton played the piano accompaniment.

In a review of the history of Irish poets, Miss Potter traced the development of the folk lore from the time of the Celts and Druids, and stated that the Irish Renaissance began with the writings of W. B. Yeats in 1890. She mentioned the significance of the fairies of Ireland and the well known characters of the Irish world, concluding her harrowing with recitations of poems of some of the more popular writers, including Kathleen Tynan, Oliver St. John Gogarty, James Stephens and Richard Rowley.

Mrs. R. J. Dugdale, the club president, presided at the business meeting. Announcements of three important meetings were made, that of the southern district board at San Bernardino on April 1, and that of the Western Federation in Los Angeles on May 19 to 21; and the state convention at Sacramento on May 13, 14, 15.

The late afternoon tea was served in the dining room, where the hostess had spread her table with a green linen cloth and arranged a bouquet of white spring blossoms as centerpiece. Tall green candles in silver bases completed the very pretty St. Patrick effect. Mrs. Dutton presided at the tea urns.

Mrs. Haines To Entertain Circle

Mrs. J. H. Haines of 757 North Pauline, will be hostess to the Dorcas Circle of the Wesley Methodist church this afternoon at two o'clock.

Mrs. Anna Turner, circle president, will preside at the meeting while Mrs. Herbert Johnson will have charge of the study period. A continuation of the Mission

W. R. C. Meet Features St. Patrick's Day

A. B. Paul Women's Relief Corps No. 134 held the regular meeting at the I. O. O. F. Hall Tuesday afternoon with president, Mamie Brummagin in the chair. The date being March 17th, decorations were of the traditional Irish green and white. Special announcement was made regarding the meeting of the social club this month, which will be held on Wednesday, March 25th instead of the regular day. Federation No. 1 will meet at Bellflower on Tuesday, the 24th, and many of the officers and members of this Corps will be in attendance there. Mrs. Maude English will be hostess to the Social club, at 244 No. Lemon street, and a pot-luck luncheon will be served at noon.

Reports of the committees showed an expenditure of $19.50 valuation for child welfare, $39.95 for relief, with 43 calls being made and 21 bouquets presented, since the last regular meeting.

At the close of the meeting the refreshment committee served cake, decorated in St. Patrick colors, coffee and tea.

History Repeats

That history may repeat itself is a phrase which has been used on numerous occasions and doubtless the President got pleasure in employing it at the Jackson Day Dinner in Washington the other night. There ought to be something personally pleasant, at least, in his comparing President Jackson of other days with President Roosevelt of the present period, in spite of the fact that Mr. Jackson was a rugged individualist and Mr. Roosevelt is the leader of the New Deal which has sought to outlaw rugged individualism.

Other phrases, however, have been in the political limelight during the past few months. For instance, there was the one enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt himself about giving business a "breathing spell." In view of later remarks criticizing certain groups of "big businesses" for seeking to "gang up" for the defeat of the present administration, many persons are beginning to wonder whether this breathing spell, after all, was to be much more than a gasp.

Certainly the insinuation that some sections of business are seeking to "gang up" on the New Deal is being used in an effort to incite suspicion that something is going on under the surface in business circles, and under the cloak of business enterprise, that is "dark and sinister, and that at a time when many employees of labor are facing in their respective communities the problem of assisting constructive plans to provide for the unemployment in some sound and permanent way.

If business, therefore, has been given a breathing spell it was evidently too brief to permit business to chart a course very far into the future.

There are now more bureaus of the government checking regulating or supervising corporations and many individuals in the United States than ever before. If President Jackson ever erred because of lack of ability to obtain the facts the same excuse cannot be offered now. There is a gigantic government force filling every nook and corner in Washington and overflowing to the suburbs compiling statistics, and there ought to be ample data to bring to the bar of justice quickly and quietly anyone guilty of illegal activities or to name out those who are guilty of unethical practices in business or politics.

Instead we get a broad accusation against business, and certain business leaders, regardless of how many of these may be seeking to conduct their operations on sound principles.

The more insinuations becloud the air the longer the business man is inclined to defer improvements not absolutely necessary, and to expand as he otherwise might do. He realizes that he is apt to be tarred in the broad sweep of the brush where there are no specific charges and proofs against specific individuals, a political custom which brings all business under suspicion.

When government agents get through examining the books of any corporation the administration should be able to pick out the "malefactors of wealth" without making broad, undefined accusations, which throw a general scare into business at the very time it is seeking to embrace recovery.

After all, big corporations are not owned by plutocrats but by thousands of small investors all over the country, either directly or through the medium of stock exchanges, and they have an interest. This multiple ownership of securities is especially applicable to the utilities who seem now to be the principal target of New Deal attack.

But of course "history repeats itself" and if the charges of "ganging up" on the New Deal are not substantiated by something more specific than has come out of Washington to date, the public will soon begin to smell a strong odor of politics. It has been that way before and perhaps will be again. For history does repeat itself.

New Tax Proposals

The Nation has not yet had sufficient time, as this is being written, thoroughly to digest the meaning and the probable results of President Roosevelt's tax proposals, if these are finally enacted into law. The first comments indicate that the recommendations will be strongly opposed by most of the Republicans in the House and Senate and that there is a serious division of opinion among the Democratic leaders.

If proposals, if enacted into law, would tax the undistributed earnings of corporations. The estimates of the amount of revenue which would be raised by the taxation are matters of opinion only. A great many believe, however, that the revenue yield would be disappointing, owing to the fact that so much of the surplus accounted for in corporation reports is a matter of bookkeeping.

Although Democratic leaders like Senator Robinson of Arkansas endorsed the principles of the new proposals, according to the newspapers and many Republican leaders condemned it, the criticism was not all partisan, by any means. For example, Congressman Huddleston of Alabama, Democrat, is quoted as saying:

"I can't see the logic of this proposal. It means undistributed profits will be distributed and most of the tax paid by the average individual. If United States Steel had not had a big surplus it would have gone out of existence."

Senator Clark, Democrat, of Missouri said:

"My first reaction is to question the propriety of this. Treasury experts may be able to convince me it is all right. But corporations must be able to maintain substantial reserves, or many will go to the poorhouse during any depression."

Most of the criticism was based on the question of sound business management, which it is claimed would be made difficult by the new tax plan. It was pointed out that corporations in times of prosperity do not distribute their earnings, but save up their money for a rainy day. Like individuals following the same practice, they fare better in hard times than those who have squandered all their earnings; so that the new proposed tax might be called another attack on thrift, or more discouragement to the old-fashioned practice of saving money in the belief that it may be necessary for existence in the future. In summing up this argument, Representative Walcott, Republican, of Michigan is quoted as saying:

"This bill strikes at the foundations of American business. What would have happened to American labor during the depression if corporation surpluses had been wiped out?"

"General Motors had a reserve and used part of it for employment. This nation owes a deep debt of gratitude to the business acumen with which the automobile industry pulled the country out of the depression."

"This surplus belongs to the stockholders. Every concern must build up a reasonable reserve."

In the well-known article on the one point must not be forgotten. Some weeks ago the President announced that business was to have a "breathing spell." The currently proposed tax plans indicate that the breathing spell is now over.

LAST OF THE PAGAS

Adapted by CHARLES REED JONES from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer newsreels

Mala watched now as Buckley took a shark's fin from his ink-bottle, and took a pen from behind his ear. The Captain held out the pen to him. Mala, ready to do anything to please Buckley, took it. Buckley, holding the pen in Mala's fist, guided it to make a cross, Mala's signature, on the bottom of the printed contract-form. The trusting tale, of course, did not know the significance of his simple act; but, by the mere making of the cross, he had contracted to work at the phosphate mines on the island of Patua for the next five years.

The contract signed, Buckley was anxious to get rid of his guest to make way for his next victim. Before they left he offered them another drink of rum. "Inu i to eta no?" The Captain offered the glass.

"Maruru!" Mala replied. They drained their glasses, and Robbins led them to the door. They stumbled down the narrow passage, bumping into other couples as they passed. Now, Mala, delighted to the point of frenzy by his gifts and dizzy with the rum and kava he had drunk, seized Lileo in his strong arms and carried her back to the deck.

Mala and Lileo had left a scene of rowdy revelry a short time before they returned to a drunken detachment. They watched the dancers. Lileo's body swayed slowly to the music. Suddenly, the little creature ran from Mala's side to join the dance. He had never seen her dance the up-and-down, and he watched her with fascinated eyes. Quickly, he joined her, and the other Types stepped aside to make room for the bronze giant and his newly captured vahine.

A smiling dawn broke over the peaceful ship. The mad din of the night's faarecra had ceased. The Types sat and their vanities lay in huddled groups, sleeping heavily. Their drunken stupor. Captain Buckley, however, was wide awake and unsupervised the completion of the task he had so perfectly begun. One by one, the sleeping Types were carried to the side of the schooner. Careful to avoid awakening them, the sailors eased the vahines and their tines into the waiting arms of other seamen who now manned the canoes. Most of the Types slept, and the sailors were too sluggish in mind and body to know or to care what was going on about them.

Taro, roused from his sleep, assumed command of the pahi. Staggering about the stern of the wahine, he scanned drunken officers, the sailors about him. He watched the rail for Lileo.

Captain Buckley scanned the deck to see that none but his six picked men remained. Huddled together in deep sleep, he saw Lileo and Mala. Her head rested on his bronzed shoulder, and her left hand lay across his powerful chest. Buckley picked her up carefully and carried her to the rail. As he passed her down to the waiting men below, Taro spied her. He brushed the sailors aside and took her in his arms.

Mumbling thickly to himself, he saw as he carried her to the ship below that his feet in the stern. For Lileo was Mala's woman no longer; now, she would be his, the fourth wife of Chief Taro of the Types.

Buckley stood on the deck and roared with ribald laughter, as he waved to the departing Types. Their canoes, cut loose, favored, fortunately, by an incoming tide, began to drift slowly towards the shore.

"So long, suckers!" Buckley called. "Taro, of course, did not understand. 'Ja na i to Atua!' he replied. 'Farewell, and God keep you!'"

As the pahi bobbed up and down with the gentle roll of the sea, Lileo awakened. Strong arms held her close, and she looked up, smiling happily, remembering she had gone to sleep in the arms of Mala. A muffled cry escaped her as she saw the leering eyes of Taro looking down at her.

"Mala! Mala!" she screamed shilly; and she struggled bravely to free herself from the embrace of the chief.

CHAPTER III

With a quick twist of her supple body, she wrenched herself free and tried to fling herself over the side of the canoe. Taro caught her parau and pulled her back to him.

"Mala! Mala!" he mocked her for help. "Mala has gone! Lileo is Taro's vahine! Lileo will never see Mala again!"

When Mala woke, his head ached painfully. He shook his head and tried to clear his addled brain. It was dark about him, and he did not know where he was. He thought of Lileo, and he called her name. Again and again, he called. There was no answer.

As his mind cleared, he looked about him in the dark. He saw a pale shaft of light somewhere in the distance. He climbed to his feet and started forward to investigate. He stumbled over something in the darkness, but he did not stop. Below the light was a ladder, leading to the open hatch above. Mala clambered up it to the deck.

Captain Buckley and Robbins stood at the rail, their backs to Mala. Mala looked to his friends, the Types, and he could not understand why he was alone with those people. Then, with a start, he realized that the ship was at sea. Panic seized him.

"Lileo!" he called frantically.

"What's eatin' him?" Buckley asked the Mate.

"He's callin' for his girl-friend, Robbins told him.

"Tell him to get below," Buckley ordered.

Robbins tried to explain the situation to Mala. Then, as Mala began to associate his predicament in some vague way with the presents he and Lileo had received from Buckley the night before, he offered to return them.

"He says he is an honorable man," Robbins translated to the Captain. "He is willing to work for his presents, but, first, he must go back to get his woman. He promises to come to Patua, if he can bring the girl with him. I feel sorry for the poor devil, Captain. 'Glow the gab, Robbins!' Buckley retorted impatiently. 'It's bad enough to have him whinin' about, without you, too.' Mala sensed the import of the reply. He sprang into action. He darted across the deck to the ship's dinghy, propped up against a hatch. Lending all his great strength to his task, he started to drag the small boat to the side. "Get away from that boat!"

Two sailors lunged at Mala. He turned to meet them. He caught one around the waist, lifted him high above his head, and hurled him furiously across the deck. Fighting with a mad fury, he grappled with another sailor, and they fell heavily to the deck. Over and over, they rolled in frenzied combat. In a flash, Mala was on his feet again, racing for the dinghy. The other man lay still. Buckley drew his pistol and cocked it.

"You'd better not, Captain!" Robbins warned him.

But, the warning was unneeded. For, as Mala wrestled with a third seaman, his first victim crashed down upon his head with a be-laying pain and unconsciousness.

Three days later, Mala was sweltering under the broiling sun of the phosphate mines. Exposed to the glaring rays of the relentless sun, but shielded from view and from the welcome breath of the cool trade-winds, Mala and his fellow-sweated at their tasks.

Sun-madness, tropical fever, and malaria decimated the Polynesian workers almost monthly; each month, Captain Buckley, or some other, black blighter, would a tress relay to replace those who gave their lives to civilized industry.

When a day's work was done, Mala was near exhaustion. His whole body ached, and he lagged away between the trees staves to begin the long march to the sleeping quarters. Their crude meal of coarse bread and kokuapi was eaten out to them before the snack, and their tin cups were used with uncooled water. Most of the men vomited, and Mala was sick and tired, his spirit broken, and no appetite for it. He drank weepily of the sickish, warm water.

He cast his head and breast, and went under the shelter to lie down on his padded mat.

For five grueling months, Mala suffered the strength-sapping, heart-breaking toil in the quarries, went beat at side and were carried away to die. New men fresh from the near-by island, took their places. And the overseers droned out their never-changing cry, "work, work," and Mala labored on, but, the five months had brought a marked change in the once nappy Type warrior. The graceful curves of his sinewy body gave way to bulging, knobby muscles. His fine, black hair, matted and unkempt, was the dirty white of the powdered phosphate. He looked much older, like the veterans of the quarries about him. Weariness was written in every line of his face, yet defiance still smoldered in his eyes.

Commandant Brannon visited the quarries on his weekly tour of inspection. The men lined up at the order of an overseer. But, Brannon had other interests. He had come to inspect a rich, new land, thirty feet below the surface. "I'll take a look," he told Reiley. "You and Hastings keep an eye on the men." He patting the pistol in his holster significantly.

The LETTER BOX

In the Colliers weekly of Feb. 8th I see an attempt on the part of the writer to laud the man from Kansas to the grand stand of political observation, saying, "Behold the man and his wonderful accomplishments who has come forth, not from the meek and lowly but from the fireside of an oil magnet who educated him into the law and who never served in that capacity."

He, according to this noted writer is supposed to be our next president and to point out the faults and shortcomings of his opponents to be.

He is supposed to pass hastily by Mr. Hoover, Fletcher, Calvin Coolidge, Talmadge, Knox, and a few more of the celebrities, with scarcely a word of comment, but did condescend to express himself regarding Huey Long, who he thought had the right to share with those who worked and earned said wealth, but failed to say what was to become of those who was not allowed the opportunity to work, neither was there any provisions made for the distribution of wealth controlled by people who did not work and earn said wealth.

He failed to state Huey Long had come up from Zero with only a fertile brain and went a long way in the heart of his countrymen. He knew the value of money or wealth behind. He failed however to say Huey Long actually did more for his state, to enlighten the school children and be a real benefactor to his fellow man, than to merely borrow enough money from the government to balance the budget.

Huey Long opened schools to the children instead of allowing them to close their doors for lack of money to pay the teachers. That reminds me of the man who played his grocery bill with a note, and said Thank God that bill is paid.

Again this noted writer is quoting this man, surrounded by grasshoppers as saying if he could be shown where Dr. Townsend's plan would balance the budget, he would be on the platform working with the Doctor.

But he goes on to have him say taxing youth to comfort age, doesn't solve the problem. I wonder how long they are going to be balancing the budget on the backs of the youth of today.

But by borrowing money they are taxing the unborn generations. Does this writer of much prominence think such a man could, in any way, receive the presidency of the United States before money to balance the National budget. Does he think these billions of borrowed money is going to be paid back by the old folks of today?

Such logic is most certainly fantastic and cockeyed. Does this Spencerian artist have in mind any national plan that is superior to the Townsend plan? If so he failed in having his idea say just what course of procedure would be adopted other than borrowing the money to balance the United States deficit. Perhaps from Russia.

"He'll be all right now," Frayley announced. "A few bruises—that's all!"

He turned his attention to Mala. He shook his head gravely. "Behold the man," he muttered to himself. "Here, Reiley! We'd better get him back to the office right away!"

But, Dr. Frayley's first fears of internal injuries proved groundless. Bruised and battered by the crushing weight of the coral, Mala recovered quickly, however, under the physician's expert care. His pain eased after a day of intense agony, he rested comfortably on the soft mattress, prepared for him in the doctor's office.

"Yes; he'll be all right," Frayley assured Brannon.

"Isn't he the man who gave them so much trouble on the ship?"

The doctor nodded. "The same old story," he said, "fighting to get back to his woman."

Well, I owe him something for my life, you know," Brannon replied. "He'll have his woman. I guess you'd better tell him, Doctor. I'm afraid it wouldn't do for me to get sentimental before a man like this."

With the news that Lileo was to join him, Mala looked forward with new hope to his life on Patua. And each evening, he sped eagerly down the dusty road to the office to ask the white chief for some news of Lileo.

"Patience, Mala!" Brannon would say. "She will soon be here."

But, when Captain Buckley's schooner dropped anchor at Patua, Taro refused to release Lileo. But, Lileo had heard the news that the popas has come to take her to Mala, and she was not to be denied. When the ship weighed anchor at midnight, Lileo lay

---WHAT OTHERS THINK---

John T. Holden, publisher of The Journal, North Sacramento, Calif., a local editor, says: "Ask the average citizen who lives in rented rooms, owns no taxable property and has an income not up to the tax brackets—ask him how it feels to be a tax payer, and he will say he doesn't know because he doesn't pay any taxes."

"Oh, no! He isn't a tax payer—not much! Lessee: "If he smokes a pack of coffin nails a day, he pays $18 a year. If he drives a car he pays a license plus 40 cents out of every 10-gallons of gas, or about $25 a year. Of his yearly light, gas and phone bills, $10 more goes in taxes. A fifth of every dollar he pays in rent of his bedroom is tax money; with most men $120 a year or more. His year's sales, theatre and other taxes total $50 or more."

"So! Our 'tax exempt' citizen is paying more than $200 a year—about $4 a week—in taxes."

Because most of us feel we are not paying too much tax, we let our government go from year to year spending sprees. In 1934 State Treasurer Gus Johnson warned the authorities they would bankrupt the state of California if they didn't halt unnecessary waste. The California state, local and national debts, actual and authorized, of June 30 of that year totalled nearly $3,500,000,000, or 57% of the assessed value of all the land buildings and other property subject to tax in the state.

"And yet some folks wonder why The Journal has hammered so much on the one nail head of the reckless foolishness of spending two dollars for every one he takes in for our national income!"

Editor, Anaheim Gazette:

We have been told by historians that Nero fiddled while Rome burned. Perhaps some of the millions of petitions asking that the McGroarty Bill be allowed to come upon the floor of congress for discussion, were ignored with foolish and ineffectual excuses of investigation. Investigation of what? Why, to endeavor to learn the amount of the pennies and times which the old people have contributed in this crusade for just and justice, and to determine the salary of Dr. Townsend and Mr. Clements. Are there any more mad monkeys of this world who do with the soundness or unsoundness of the bill? Mr. Clements has been accused of remarking that some congressmen had made monkey of themselves. If this be true, he certainly said a whole mouthful, for what could be more foolish than to squander $50,000 and then be no nearer finding any monkey of themselves, they were before. Now all honest and sincere objectors, and there are many, will surely see the ways and the wherefores of these maneuvers, and thereby be led to do some hard thinking.

When the ship docked at Patua, Lileo watched her shades and moved over the side. An old woman, sitting before a fare near the shore, directed her to the phosphate quarries, and she set out to find Mala. But their reunion was night my wife would have to borrow money to bury me."

Mala looked pitifully. Brannon was adamant. Mala returned to his fare, determined to make one last desperate effort for his vahine under the cover of darkness. The night favored him. Thunder boomed. The wind howled. Buckley's schooner groaned and tossed at its mooring against the jetty.

Mala fought his way down the jetty and onto the deck. "Lileo! Lileo!" The pounding of the ship against the wharf and the roar of the storm answered him.

Then, through the noise and lay of the storm, he faintly heard

"Lileo! Lileo!"

Mala's strong arms held her fast. They clung together, triumphant in the glory of youth, forever free to live and love.

Activities of the Church

Special Sermons Planned at Christian Church
Beginning with next Sunday and carrying on through until Easter, a special series of sermons has been announced by Rev. M. C. Schollenberger, Minister of the Anaheim Church (Christian). Calling the series "The Perpetual Foundations of the Christian Life" the following subjects will be dealt with in turn, "Faith," "Repentance," "Confession," and "Baptism." This last subject will be brought on Easter Sunday morning and the Sermon for that service will be entitled "Arise!"

The Church at Broadway and Helena is in the midst of a special "Forward with the Kingdom" movement. "It is," so Rev. Schollenberger says, "a special effort to raise the whole spirit of the Church; not just another strenuous effort to increase attendance at Sunday School or at the Church service. In this 'Forward with the Kingdom' movement we hope to develop a greater spirit of friendship and fellowship. To that end we are having a special 'open house' and 'social' the last Sunday night of the month, March 29th, in which, after a brief service in the auditorium where we will witness a special Radio Play by the Young People, 'Blest be the Tie that Binds,' we will go downstairs to our Social Hall for a 'Mixer' and refreshments. We are inviting all who desire to come. We also hope to have an opportunity for our own folk to get better acquainted with each other."

"Today, the Church must concern itself first of all with developing the right spirit, not with just paying expenses or paying off a building debt. If the spirit is right, other things will be taken care of." So we are setting out in our "Forward with the Kingdom" movement to really do the things that the Church of Christ is supposed to do."

Evening services, beginning each night at 7:30 have been given special thought that they might be as rich and attractive as possible. This coming Sunday night, March 22, an illustrated sermon on the subject, "The Growing Flame" will be brought. Two Christian Endeavor Societies meet each Sunday night at 6:30, one for the Young People and the other for those of intermediate age.

Rev. A. Stokesberry, pastor of the Free Methodist Church, who has for some time been seriously ill is much improved according to the report of his physician. Rev. Stokesberry is still confined to his home but is able to meet his many friends who call.

Orange Church Choir At Abbey Sunday
The chorus of the Orange Church of Christ will present a program of sacred hymns at Melrose Abbey during the regular Musical Memory Hour Sunday afternoon, March 22nd.

The program will be under the direction of Dwight D. Webster and Noah E. Condra who will be assisted by James H. Sewell as reader and soloist. Quartets consisting of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Dukes, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Germany, Mrs. Letta Raggan, Mrs. Nellie Litchford, William King and James H. Sewell are to be presented in a group of well known hymns. The program will be without an accompaniment. Mr. Wesley Morgan will render a group of organ numbers.

Bert D. Webster is pastor who will make a brief offering during the service.

The general public is invited to all Musical Memory Hour programs which are held in the chapel of Melrose Abbey every Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

Legion Council Asks Congress Act On Bill

The County Council of the American Legion wired the representatives in Congress from this district to assist in bringing a bill out of committee which would place 200 more beds in Sawtelle which are surely needed, according to the report made to the council by District Commander Ben Lieberman at the meeting last Friday night.

The bill has been pending in Congress for several months according to Lieberman.

Announcement was made that Garden Grove post of the Legion is presenting a Navy night program at and post's next meeting on the night of March 25.

The next meeting of the County Council will be held in Anaheim, April 10 at which time Ray Smith, Anaheim, will submit a report on the Legion's National Defense program.

It was also announced last night that Ray Murphy, national commander of the Legion will be in San Bernardino on the night of April 3. Plans have been completed for a Commanders' dinner to be held in Myatts' cafe, there, at 7 o'clock. The regular meeting of San Bernardino post, will be held at 8 o'clock with Commander Murphy's address to be broadcast.

CIVIL SERVICE SCHEME STILL ALIVE

A few weeks ago all employees of the county and numerous other public servants received a circular letter from the state federation of civil service organizations asking them to join with the move to get all public jobs under civil service. At the time, those who received the letter tossed it aside when they found they were asked to put up 15 percent of a month's salary to help promote the cause.

But that did not end it—by any means. The past week or ten days the promoters have had emissaries in the county stirring up the public employees to join the move to put this scheme over the fall election by voting in a constitutional amendment. They have succeeded in selling a good many employees on the idea of perpetuating themselves in office for life.

If the amendment goes through the public will find that it no longer has control over many of its officials. Only a few will be left up for election. The others will be under a civil service commission, with no responsibility to the public at all. Even school janitors, street sweepers and office help of all kinds will have jobs, as well as most public officials other than councilmen, boards of supervisors and state assemblymen and senators.

Those who have looked at the situation in the plain light of day, uncolored by personal selfishness view it with alarm. They see the building up of a new tax-eating, public lobbying group which will rival the state teachers' association. They propose a rapid increase in the cost of government. Those who do not want to see local and county affairs administered by a civil service commission instead of a group of officials elected by popular vote will do well to be aroused to this latest drive for removing government still further from the people.

ADKINSON THIRST FORWARD

While the announcement of Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools, that he would be a candidate for congress on the democratic ticket, was not entirely unexpected, it is stated around the county seat that his plan to run was made formal somewhat sooner than he would have liked. The pressure was put on by some county seat democrats, including Frank Harwood, now postmaster at Santa Ana, and one of the "ins" of the controlling democratic faction.

A few weeks ago it was noted in this column that the democrats were eagerly looking for a good candidate to go against Sam Collins. They wanted one who would attract support from all factions, get the nomination and then beat the incumbent. They have had Adkinson in mind for a long time as good timber for some office. He finally decided he could not afford to go for the state assembly or senate, it is said, so was pressed to take on the congressional race.

A good deal of speculation already is rife about the situation. Some wonder whether Adkinson will get the support of the epic faction. Then there is the Townsend plan question. Then again, they wonder whether Collins will again attempt to get himself nominated on the democratic—and all other tickets—as well as by the republicans.

Developments probably will be slow to come. It is quite a while until the August primary.

SINGLETONS
Maybe it's better to assess a few dollars as taxes against a piece of ground and collect, than to assess several times as much and have it go delinquent. Anyway, the county officials are trying the idea a try in connection with a number of oil lots at Huntington Beach recently sold for taxes. As oil lots they were assessed at $20 each, or $640 per acre—several times what they were worth. As agricultural land they will be assessed at not more than $200 an acre—still more than they can stand, it is believed. The tax rate on them is about $2.75 per $100.

Picnic Called For Nebraskans

All whoever lived in Nebraska are called to meet under the auspices of the Nebraska Association of Southern California for the great picnic reunion, all day, Saturday, March 23rd, in Sycamore Grove Park, Los Angeles. Go as early as possible and spend the day with friends. Through the county registers and headquarters all can and the old neighbors even with thousands present.

There will be a brief program, with fine speakers and music opening about two o'clock. Calvin H. Taylor, the President, will preside.

Many will be tourists and visitors from the old home state. Coffee will be served free to all who buy souvenir badges. Further information will be had of the President or of C. H. Parsons, Secretary, the Federation of State Societies, office in Seaboard National Bank, 6th and Spring, Phone MU 911, where all the State Registers are located.

Day Planned For Missourians

To all those who once lived in Missouri and want once more to get in touch with the old home town, then make arrangements to attend Missouri's mammoth picnic reunion to be held all day Sunday, March 23rd at Bixby Park, Long Beach. It will be a day when former Missourians will have the chance to elbow the old neighbors—find the latest arrivals.

From ten A. M. until night fall there will be entertainment provided by Missourians in the form of an old fiddler's contest. South Missouri barn dance, hill billies from the Ozarks singing and dancing with a little touch of Missouri oratory.

The little starlets from the studio of Miss Marjorie Lake, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., will present the "Missouri Passing Show of 1936." This will be a big feature and will include a burlesque solo by Miss Lake herself. President James A. Lang will be in charge of the events of the day. Original souvenirs, county registers, hot coffee and lunches will be available.

HISTORY OF ANAHEIM

Officially Recorded in Minutes of Anaheim Water Company, Which Are Copyrighted, 1932, by Anaheim Gazette, and Printed in Weekly Installments.

Anaheim, May 20, 1882.
The Board of Directors met in regular session. President, all except Zeyn.

The minutes of the meeting held on May 6th and of the special meeting held on May 17th were read and approved. The minutes of the stockholders meetings held on May 6th, 13th, and 15th, were also read, and no errors therein. Mr. Barr reported that while inspecting the ditch on May 19th he judged that about 300 inches of water was flowing into the Anaheim ditch and about 1000 inches in the Orange ditch.

Warrants were ordered drawn in payment of the following bills: H. Knappke, Bill No. 21, $7.20; R. McJoroe, Bill No. 22, $36.30; D. K. Williams, Bill No. 23, $ 7.75; H. Knappke, Bill No. 24, $11.70; B. J. Dreyfus, Bill No. 25, $15.00; F. J. Schmidt, Bill No. 26, $50.00; total, $129.55.

It was moved by Mr. Hartung and seconded by Mr. Barr that a note be issued to B. Dreyfus for $3,000 to be dated May 18, 1882, and to bear 10% per annum interest; Mr. Dreyfus having on the 18th instant furnished $3,000 to the company. The motion was carried unanimously.

The proposition of Mr. F. C. Hazen to act as Janitor at head of ditch for $30 per month was postponed for the present.

The petition of Mr. L. Parker to take up 3 shares and locate them on his alfalfa lot was granted.

The application of D. Morton to transfer one of his shares to A. Holdridge was referred to Mr. Korn.

The application of S. A. Sheffield to take up the shares formerly owned by J. Huntington was granted, with the understanding that the action must be ratified by the stockholders in general meeting.

The committee appointed on April 22nd to investigate the President and Secretary, made the following report:

Anaheim, May 4th, 1882.
To the Directors of the Anaheim Water Company:
Sirs:

In accordance with your request we have fully inquired into the matter we were appointed to investigate (the charge that Messrs. Dreyfus and Melrose had, after being authorized by the Water Company to purchase land for the Company's purposes, purchased several tracts and then decided the poor land to the Company, retaining the good land as their own property)—we have to report that the whole matter arises from a misapprehension of facts; that the books and papers submitted to us, and the facts which we have been able to gather, show that the land which the gentlemen named were authorized to purchase for the Company was purchased, with the exception of a track marked on the map as the McKee tract; and this tract was not secured for the reason that it was owned by Prudencio Yorba and could not be had at a reasonable price, and the deeds of purchase are in possession of the Company; and that the subsequent purchases of land by Messrs. Dreyfus and Melrose, made two months after the authorization referred to, was a purely personal matter, with not the slightest connection with the Company.

(Signed) R. J. Norham, D. J. Sorenson, H. Werder, H. Wehmer.

Mr. Hartung moved that the report be received, placed on file and the committee discharged. Seconded by Mr. Korn and adopted.

The Secretary stated that, at the suggestion of President Dreyfus he had notified the Secretary of the S. A. V. I. Co., and Director Spurgeon, on May 11, 1882, that the Company was taking to much water from the river, and that they should instruct their Janitor to allow sufficient water to flow down the river into our ditch to give us all the courts had decided we were entitled to. The Secretary of the S. A. V. I. Co. had, under date of May 13, 1882, acknowledged the receipt of the letter and promised to lay the same before the Directors.

The receipts of the meeting.

Parent Teacher Associations Asked Participate In Public Schools Week

Participation by the 210,000 members of the parent-teacher associations of California in the seventeenth annual observance of Public Schools Week, April 27, was urged by Mrs. C. H. Turner, president of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers.

"In an appeal issued to the membership of the congress as well as to the general public, Mrs. Turner said:

"Realizing the necessity for a better understanding of public school needs and problems on the part of our own membership and the public generally, the California Congress of Parents and Teachers urges all local units to cooperate to the fullest extent in plans now being made in their respective local communities for the observance of Public Schools Week, beginning April 27.

"We believe that the constitutional guarantees for education should be continued in order that all children may be given equal educational advantages.

The Kitchen Chautauqua
a diversion for every housewife
... a treat to limited budgets

IF YOURS is the sort of budget that allows T-bone steaks and mushrooms and eight-course dinner parties, you're lucky. But if you have to watch the dollars and the pennies and can't afford such dietetic morsels as T-bones, you can have just as much fun—or more—in the kitchen and serve every bit as tasty and as nutritious meals as the finest royal chef in any palace.

It's all a matter of planning and of budgeting, of converting the left-overs into appetite teasers—and there's all sorts of romance lurking in your cupboard shelves and bins in doing so.

Our "Kitchen Chautauqua" will give you timely hints on meal-planning and buying, on the simple quirks and fashions that simplify cookery, on the 1936 variations of the old and fascinating art of cookery. Reserve every one of the dates—you can't afford to miss a single program.

"Paul's words to the Corinthians, 'The fashion of this world passeth away,' constitute the Golden Text in the Lesson-Structure on 'Matter on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass."

A Scriptural selection in the Lesson-Sermon includes these verses from Mark: "And a certain woman, which had an issue of blood twelve years, and had suffered many things of many physicians, and had spent all that she had, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse, when she had heard of Jesus, came in the press behind, and touched his garment. For she said, If I may touch but his clothes, I shall be whole. And straightway the fountain of her blood was dried up; and she felt in her body that she was healed of that plague."

One of the passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Consciousness constrains a better body when faith in matter has been conquered. Correct material belief by spiritual understanding, and Spirit will form you anew."

Annual Meeting of Edison Company To Be Held Santa Ana Friday

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Southern California Edison Company Ltd., to be held tomorrow, this year will be again brought to the stockholders by wired radio, using the company's privately-owned telephone system as a transmission network, according to the announcement today of R. E. Bacon, manager for the company in this territory.

Twelve broadcast-linked meetings will be held simultaneously, bringing to stockholders gathered at convenient geographic locations the entire proceedings of the annual meeting at Los Angeles where Harry J. Bauer, president of the company, will present his annual report. The great interest manifested by stockholders last year, as shown by their attendance at a similar meeting, together with the interest being taken by the stockholders in company affairs, prompted the management to again arrange this unique means of bringing to the stockholders the annual meeting.

This Edison plan of stockholders' meetings, it was pointed out, enables the saving of time and effort that might be required in attending a meeting distant from home. The meeting of stockholders in this area will be held at Santa Ana City Hall, council chambers, third floor, beginning at 11:45 o'clock Friday morning. Following the Edison company's custom inaugurated last year, the addresses and other business of the general meeting in Los Angeles will be heard at each of twelve receiving points through the audio system of radio broadcast receivers, by means of phonograph pickup facilities. The program at Los Angeles, originating in the auditorium of the Edison Building at Fifth Street and Broadway Avenue, will be carried over Edison communication system lines to each of the receiving points where the meetings of stockholders are being held.

The program for the Friday meeting will include not only the report of Mr. Bauer as president but addresses by W. C. Mullendore, executive vice-president, and Fred B. Lewis, vice-president and general manager. The talks by these officials will include a discussion of taxes, the Boulder Dam power supply in relation to the company, and other subjects bearing upon the future prospects of the company. During the meeting Mr. Bauer also will introduce the members of the Edison company board of directors.

Aged Woman Is Victim of Fraud

Deputy Sheriff James Musick and G. F. McKelvey picked up Gene Proctor at Belevedere Gardens last Friday on complaint issued by Mrs. Lucy Michelini of Anaheim in which she asserted that Proctor, said to be an ex-convict had mulcted her out of $4,000.

The money was said to have been obtained under promises of investment in good stocks and bonds.

Proctor, according to the county officers was hiding in a closet in his home in Belevedere Gardens when caught.

Ramona Pageant Scheduled For Presentation

Embodiment of a romance that goes back to the days of early California history when the invading white settlers began questioning the supremacy of the Indians and driving the Indians from their lands, the 13th annual presentation of the famed Ramona Pageant will be enacted in the Ramona Bowl near Hemet, in all its natural scenic beauty and authentic characterization on the afternoon of April 18-19, April 25-26 and May 2 and 3 with performances at 2:45 p.m.

The Ramona Pageant tells the story of two Indian lovers, Ramona and Alessandro, and their many thrilling and tragic adventures in search of a home where they may find peace and happiness. Woven into the story are delightful episodes of Spanish and Indian life, fiestas, Indian ceremonies and dances, playhours of the children, and a vein of rich comedy. Interspersed throughout the entire action of the play are song and ensemble numbers made doubly effective by a musical background provided by Jose Arias and his orchestra of Spanish Troubadours.

Interest attaches to the announcement from Lloyd D. Mitchell, General Manager of the Pageant Association, that Victor Jory and Jean Inness have again been selected to portray the leading characters, Alessandro and Ramona, heading a cast of 250 players including an additional fifty Indians from the nearby reservations.

SOCIETY EDITOR OF GAZETTE Paul Davidson Warns of Indigestion GATHERS FRUIT AT SUPERIOR

Here is a letter from Paul Davidson in which he explains when fruit is not for human beings and sundry that his ice box is defrosted and his fruit (and other articles) are not altogether edible . . . that is for human beings . . . but to the story.

Anaheim, March 17, (Not April 1)

Dear Smitty:
Your society editor, Charlotte Smith, was in our store inspecting our new 1936 Crosley which we told her was the world's most beautiful electric refrigerator (and I really think I convinced her it is). She noted the great array of contents, which included fruit, vegetables, meat, etc. . . .

She was so impressed with the fruit that she walked out of the store with one delicious looking peach (but don't let her fool you) and as well as a wonderful imitation lemon (I hope she didn't get indigestion . . . paper mache is noted as tough on the digestive organs) and the peach is made out of plaster and even if the maker was an artist that could make the fuzz look natural . . . the darned thing won't digest . . .

Tell her we also have some very good looking beef steak, chicken, grape fruit, tomatoes (not over-ripe) lettuce, strawberries, lemons, oranges, eggs (guaranteed never to get too old) some clean and . . . some not so clean . . . cucumbers, bell peppers, milk, etc. . . . But they're all of the indigestible type . . . but after all we are not in the grocery business so our customers merely buy the new 1936 Shelvador Crosley . . . It will

OH, OH, AND THE TRUTH WILL OUT Young Attorney Advises on Potato Planting HERE'S ONE ON THOMAS J. McFADDEN

Placentia, California, February 27, 1936.

Editor Gazette:
That little boy o' mine climbed upon the daddy's knee a few days ago and said:

"How big is Tom McFadden Pa? That people call him great? Is he like old Goliath tall? His spear a hundred weight?"

Ah, no, my son, about as tall as I or uncle James; 'Tis not his stature makes him great. But the greatness of his name!"

Of course, my son, he is doing very well in his profession these days and stands at the head of his class at the bar in Orange County, or any other county, and it requires about three days to reach him for a five minute conference about politics law, finance, religion or divorce.

But this was not always thus, my boy. Why I remember when it was different. In order to complete his education he tried to borrow a few dollars from a certain neighbor farmer, whom we shall call Jones, who was well-to-do, but the motion was denied. The lad turned away in disappointment and sadness but more than ever determined to make the grade.

After midnight hours at hard study and self denial, his college days were ended. He graduated with safe grades and high honors. He set a sign in a window which read simply:

THOMAS J. McFADDEN
Attorney at Law

He always did believe in signs. After waiting a time without patience without a client, his former friend Jones, drove his two-horse wagon up in front hitched his team to a post and stepped into his office with the idea in mind of having a bit of fun.

"Howdy Tom:
"Good morning Mr. Jones:
"Well, Tom, I see you're a lawyer now and are offering to broadcast legal advice to farmers.

"Yes, Mr. Jones.
"Well, Tom, I'm sorter needin' a bit of information an' maybe you can give it.
"I'll be glad if I can help you, Mr. Jones.
"I wouldn't lend you that $500 you needed because I didn't believe you were any good and maybe never would pay it back, but maybe I was mistaken and I want you to be friends:
"Oh, that's all right, Mr. Jones, as you please be by gone.
"Well, Tom, to make a short story long, will you tell me whether I should plant potatoes in the light o' the moon or in the dark o' the moon? Answer me that once!
"My advise, Mr. Jones, is to plant 'em in the ground and not in the moon at all. You can cultivate 'em better and will raise more potatoes.
"Haw, Haw! Tom, you're a darn sight smarter'n I thought and I'll take your advice. Much obliged and goodbye.
"But, Mr. Jones, my fee is $25 if you please.
"Very well, you mean $25.00? I'll not pay you a dad-burned cent. You're just one o' them college upstarts and are carrying this joke too far.
"Very well, Mr. Jones my two police dogs are guarding your team and will not want you to come near until you pay this account! A doctor will charge you $50.00, the hospital another $50.00 and your potato crop will suffer to the tune of a third $50.00 not to mention a pair of new trousers, and all these law books are on my side of this equation—and, believe it or not, my boy, Mr. Jones paid the bill.
And now, dozens and scores of Tom's friends are holding daily secret sessions without his knowledge, signing petitions to ask him to permit them to send him to Sacramento as our member of the State Senate from this district.
And I know it's a fact, my boy, because I happen to be one of them signers. And also I happen to be Farmer Jones.
Yours for a good cause,
ADAM LYRE.
