

"CAN'T STRIKE AGAINST GOVERNMENT"

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"You cannot strike against the government," are the words used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt late last week discussing with newspapermen the WPA strikes which followed the new WPA wage scales. It was one of the few drills the president had made a direct quotation. Strikes, however, continued, with bloody results in some localities.

NEUTRALITY PLEA ACTION IMPROBABLE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In spite of a message to Congress by Secretary of State Cordell Hull asking for a resolution of neutrality, it is not expected to be taken by Congress during the present session. The appeal apparently did nothing to change the previously expressed opinion, by vote, of the senate foreign relations committee to shelve neutrality until next year. Senator Hiram Johnson of California charged that the administration program would embroil the United States in foreign wars.

License Service Definitely Lost

Lack of funds was given as the reason for the discontinuation of the driver's license renewal office here in a letter received by the Anaheim city council Tuesday evening from Paul Mason, chief of the division of driver's licenses. The letter was in answer to a protest filed by the council when it was announced the service would be discontinued here. Mason said that the recent legislature reduced funds available to the department of motor vehicles so drastically that elimination of three-fourths of the license renewal offices became necessary. He assured the council that the office will be reopened here when and if funds are available.

Rancher Outlines "Cost Plus" Plan of Citrus Selling

Only Solution to Problems of Growers, Speaker
Tells Merchants

The citrus industry is in a deplorable condition and must adopt the same marketing policy of virtually all other industries—cost of production plus a reasonable profit. Such was the declaration of Sidney Yates, West Anaheim citrus grower, before members of the Anaheim Merchants association this morning at the Marigold cafe.

Yates is president of the Orange County Taxpayers association and is one of the leaders in a widespread campaign to adopt the "cost plus" policy by the citrus industry. Adoption of the plan would eliminate 90 per cent of the problems of the citrus grower, he declared.

Production Costs Told

The speaker traced the costs of producing citrus from the original investment through the expenditures for taxes, picking, hauling and packing the fruit and the cost of shipping the citrus to the eastern markets. In spite of this expense, he said, the grower has no voice in the returns the fruit will bring after it is placed upon the markets.

During the past two or three years the grower has not received the cost of production, and as a result Orange county and the entire citrus belt is in a deplorable condition, Yates declared.

Stabilization of price through the cost of production plus a reasonable profit plan is imperative, he said, and is easily accomplished through the establishing of a minimum price per box. The program sought to do this, the speaker declared, but failed in its purpose.

Obtained Through AAA

Such stabilization may be obtained through the AAA, Yates said, if 70 per cent of the citrus growers would sign a petition to place the citrus industry under an AAA code. Efforts to obtain the quota of signatures is now being made by the Anaheim Citrus Growers association, he declared.

Louis H. Hoskins, president of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, outlined plans for the dedication of La Palma park on August 5. He also reported on activities of the Merchants association's Christmas decorations committee, of which he is chairman, revealing that a contract will be let soon for construction of brackets to be placed upon light standards and in which single Christmas trees will be installed.

Guest Preacher at Park Service

Rev. George J. Busdiecker, pastor of St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran church of Santa Ana, will be the guest preacher at the union church services in Anaheim park amphitheater Sunday evening at 5:45 o'clock. Rev. C. H. S. Hunziker, pastor of Grace Lutheran church, will be in charge of the service.

The choir of the Grace Lutheran church will offer two selections during the service. It will sing "F. Melius Christensen's 'Beautiful Savior'" and "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light." A short concert of sacred music will be played by the Four Square Gospel church orchestra at the start of the service.

Convention Reports Given to Rotarians

Reports of the recent convention of the Rotary International held at Cleveland, Ohio, were made at a meeting of the Anaheim club at the Elks clubhouse by President P. J. Weisel and Ronald Anderson, delegates to the convention. John L. Boove was program chairman.

Reports of the two men touched on different phases of the convention, but both stressed the theme of international goodwill. President Weisel made his report in writing, while Brandon gave his orally.

Ancient Watch In Possession of Anaheim Man

A watch made in 1602 at London, England, by Joshua Wilson, the prized possession of Bob Nanney, Anaheim shoe repairman. The watch has been in his possession about a year and was given to him by his father-in-law, Joseph Neville, whose family had owned the timepiece since it was first purchased.

The ancient watch has a chain drive movement and is wound by a key. The works are enclosed in a heavy, double, silver case, and the face has both Roman and Arabic numerals.

The timepiece was in constant use until about ten years ago, when it was dropped and damaged slightly. An expert watch repairman has said it could be repaired, but Nanney prefers to leave it just as it is as a keepsake.

Republicans Hear Speech by Kuchel

Assemblyman One of Three
Speakers on Program
Thursday Night

More than 150 persons gathered at the Anaheim Elks clubhouse last Thursday evening for the meeting of the Orange County Republican assembly and to hear speeches by Assemblyman Thomas H. Kuchel, M. B. Wellington of Santa Ana, and W. D. Campbell of Los Angeles. Gordon X. Richmond of Orange presided during the meeting.

Wellington sounded a note of optimism for the republican party, declaring that numerous democrats of the state are turning to the republican party to solve the political difficulties of the state. He denounced the present state administration.

Assembly Explained

Workings of the California Republican assembly were explained by Campbell, who is vice president of that organization. The group, he said, includes republicans of all ages and finds a place for all workers in the party. Assemblyman Kuchel, as featured speaker of the evening, told of some of his experiences in the recent legislature, which he called "the most futile" in the history of the state.

Coercion and abuse were heaped upon recalcitrant legislators by supporters of Governor Culbert L. Olson's program, he said. The 36 republicans in the assembly who staunchly opposed the governor's policies were joined by enough democrats to block the chief executive's program, he pointed out.

Budget Fight Told

Two of Olson's principal efforts were to obtain production-for-use and socialized medicine, the speaker said. Neither of his piggyback bills had been given publicity during the governor's campaign for election, Kuchel pointed out.

The budget battle was outlined by the speaker, during which he disclosed that the assembly had been locked up for a period of 40 hours in an attempt to "starve us into submission."

The assemblyman complimented the governor on his announced decision to veto the "bookie bill," which Kuchel described as the only detrimental piece of legislation passed by the legislature as the result of the steadfast stand of the republicans.

Juveniles Tricked on Traffic Charges

Two juveniles were cited last week by Anaheim police officers on charges of driving automobiles without driver's licenses and were cited to juvenile court by City Judge Frank Tausch. One was a girl resident of Anaheim, the other a boy resident of Artesia.

Twenty dollars were collected in fines on speeding charges during the past week. Daniel Morton, Santa Ana, paid $10; Floyd Pre-witt, Route 2, Anaheim, paid $5, and Max Hernandez, 1117 Parry street, Anaheim, also paid $5.

Tampering With Car Sends Man to Jail

Tampering with an automobile without the owner's consent brought a 90-day jail sentence to John G. Moreno, 28 1/2 W. Chestnut street, this morning. He was sentenced by City Judge Frank Tausch after pleading guilty to the charge.

Chamber's Board Discusses Plans for Park Event

Dedication Program Will be Held in Baseball Stadium
on Saturday, August 5

Development of plans for the dedication program of La Palma park on Saturday afternoon, August 5, occupied the attention of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday noon at the Elwick cafe.

The exercise will open with a broad concert at the flag pole which is being donated to the city by the Spanish-American War Veterans, which will last 30 minutes. At the conclusion of the concert, the pole will be presented to the city by the veterans organization and upon it will be raised the American flag which is to be donated by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Program in Stadium

The audience will then move to the grandstand at the stadium where the platform portion of the program will be held. It was decided. The entire program will last only an hour and will be followed by a model boat regatta at the casting pool and a baseball game in the stadium.

President Louis H. Hoskins appointed Harry C. Arthur, sr., G. Ted Masterson and A. C. Rutledge as Anaheim's voting delegates to the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county for the coming year. They were instructed to vote in favor of the Anaheim chamber's proposed change in the method of selecting representatives on the Associated's executive board. Anaheim advocates appointment by individual chambers rather than by general election of the entire organization.

Withheld Action

A second resolution to come before the next meeting of the Associated, dealing with repairing of Coyote creek, was discussed briefly. The delegates were not instructed on how to vote. The directors approved a motion that the Anaheim chamber recommended to the city council that the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce be given the concession of La Palma park during the period which the Philadelphia Athletics are in training there next spring.

Thursday evening, August 3, has been designated as "Anaheim Night" at the Pilgrimage Play in Hollywood. Secretary John A. Morgan announced. Tickets at half-price are on sale at Heying's Pharmacy, he said.

Conclave Report Given Kiwanians

Anaheim Kiwanians will celebrate the tenth anniversary of the opening of their lodge at Idyllwild with an open house and party this week end. Kiwanians and their friends are invited to attend, according to Walter Williams, in charge of arrangements.

John Strickland, president of the Fullerton Kiwanis club and delegate to the Kiwanis International convention at Boston, reported on the conclave at the meeting of the Anaheim club Tuesday noon. The programs were varied and interesting, and featured addresses by William Green, president of the A.F.L., Roy Moore and Sherman Rogers.

The speaker also told of the interesting places he visited during his trip to Boston and return.

Head of Nursery Speaks to Board

A talk on the importance of selection of root stock and bud wood in growing citrus nursery trees was given this noon at the Anaheim Realty Board meeting by Maynard Beard, head of the nursery department at the Murphy ranch near Whittier. Beard, son-in-law of Joe Wagner, Anaheim realtor, also operates the La Habra Valley nursery with his brother, Forrest Beard, and Edson Parsons.

The speaker also told of work being done at the Riverside experiment station in elimination of scaly bark. Their tests give evidence of a new disease in the stock, Beard said. Development of the three lemon strains, Blanchard, Wheatley and Ross, was also outlined by the speaker.

Excursion to New Union Station Will Be Held Wednesday

Anaheim residents who wish to visit the new union railway station in Los Angeles will be given a special opportunity to do so next Wednesday evening, according to an announcement made today by William Fennell, Santa Fe agent in Anaheim.

The time between the arrival of the train and its departure may be utilized in any manner the excursionists see fit.

The excursion train was obtained through the efforts of the Associated Service clubs of Orange. Round-trip fares from Anaheim are 65 cents for adults and 33 cents for children under 12 years of age. Children under five, accompanied by parents, may ride without charge.

Section Two of Sewer Complete

Reconstruction Project Ends
Tuesday Evening with
New Line Built

Reconstruction of section two of the joint outfall sewer was completed Tuesday evening, according to City Engineer E. P. Haggood, who is also engineer for section two. Work on section one will probably be completed by the end of August, Haggood said.

Victimized Clay Pipe

The new line in section two, which was constructed of vitrified clay pipe with penchler, actually was a pipe of concrete, approximately four miles of 27-inch pipe and 1.7 miles of 30-inch pipe, Haggood said.

Actual cost of the project will be about $100,000, Haggood reported. The project was completed within the next two or three weeks, the engineer declared.

Reconstruction of the pipeline was made necessary by the flood waters of March, 1938. Portions of the line had previously shown evidence of deterioration and the executive committee had been working on plans for its repair or replacement for some time. The damage done by the flood was so extensive that it became advisable to replace the entire line as one project.

Edwards to Head County Farmers

Filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Harry W. Pierce of Anaheim, S. B. Edwards, agriculturist and civic leader of Orange, was Friday evening elected president of the Associated Farmers of Orange county. Announcement of the election was made by George Graham, secretary, of the organization's office here.

Owner of two ranches and manager of other groves, Edwards is well versed in the problems of the farmer. Variety of his interests is shown in the fact that he has been president of the Orange Chamber of Commerce, Orange Elks club and the realty board of that city.

Prado Dam Fund of $3,708,000 is Finally Approved

Sheppard Releases Figures for County's Flood Control Works

Considerably revised statistics on allocation of flood control money to orange county projects, as carried in the appropriation bill recently passed by congress and signed by the president, have received in the county from Congressman Harry Sheppard, who announced that an allocation of $3,708,000 for construction of Prado dam has been finally approved.

Allocations of $1,383,000 for Brea dam and $2,325,000 for Fullerton dam have not actually been approved yet, because they came under the 1936 flood control act and require approval of the president, the congressman said.

However, he added, this procedure is routine and he has been advised that it will be completed within a short time.

Sheppard's figures differ somewhat from earlier press dispatches from Washington, which announced the Prado dam construction sum of $3,504,000, with $750,000 for reimbursement of Orange county for money expended on rights-of-way and land purchases, also relocation of the state highway and Santa Fe railway. Sheppard's message contained no reference to any allocation for reimbursement, but the figure he cited for Prado construction was $2,044,000 higher than the earlier figure announced.

His revised allocation of $1,383,000 for Brea dam was nearly a million dollars above the figure previously announced, $406,000. Local officials said this might indicate plans of army engineers to rush that structure to completion within a shorter period than first planned.

Other dispatches were also received in the county yesterday from Washington, that were at variance with Sheppard's figures on Prado dam allocations. These sources said that the chief of army engineers had allocated $2,600,000 for construction of Prado dam and $804,000 for purchases of lands and rights-of-way and for relocation of highway and railroad, which would be in the nature of reimbursement to Orange county. Officials in Orange county were left puzzled by the conflict of reports, but expressed an inclination to accept that of Congressman Sheppard.

Interest is High in Boat Regatta

One of the most interesting features of the dedication of La Palma park on August 5 will be the model boat regatta in the casting pool, according to members of the committee arranging the event. Several entries have been made and 10 boats are under construction at the YMCA for participation in the races.

The regatta is open to anyone, it was said. Races will be held in three classes, which include home-made boats over 21 inches long; home-made boats over 21 inches long, and manufactured boats of all sizes. The committee will handicap the boats at its own discretion and will appoint the judges.

Merchandise awards will be given for first and second place winners in each evening and ribbons will be given the first four place-winners in each event. In addition to the merchandise orders, a cup will be given to the sweepstakes winner.

Free instruction on boat building is being given at the YMCA. Entries in the regatta may be made at the Fearn Radio shop or with Roy Brawley at the YMCA. Members of the committee are E. E. Fearn, B. Wilbur, Brawley and Frank Ralsche.

Stephenson will speak on "Orange County's Past, Present and Future." The subject is opportune because this year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Orange county.

Several matters of important business will be voted upon during the business meeting, according to President W. H. Crofoot.

Plans for Prado Dam not Changed

Orange County Supervisors
Assure Riverside that Project Unaltered

Fears of the Riverside county board of supervisors that Orange county planned to use the basin behind Prado dam for storage purposes were quelled Tuesday when the Orange county supervisors passed a resolution declaring that the original intention of using Prado dam for flood control only had not been changed. The resolution was forwarded to the Riverside supervisors.

The resolution was passed upon request of the board of supervisors of Riverside county. The latter group had heard that a written statement of facts, telling whether Orange county had changed its plans regarding Prado dam, be filed with the Riverside board within 10 days. That action was taken last Monday and Orange county supervisors were informed on Tuesday.

Riverside Alarmed

"Riverside county supervisors had heard that their resolution said that Orange county expected to use the dam for water storage as well as flood control, and the information had caused alarm in that county. Riverside supervisors wished to take no action until they had obtained the truth of the situation from the Orange county board."

Riverside county's consent to the construction of Prado dam by Orange county on Riverside county soil was gained by Orange county November 18, 1935, on the representations that the dam was intended for regulation of flood flow only and would not be used for water storage, beyond the necessities of flood control, the resolution set forth.

Rites Conducted for Crash Victim Here Last Night

Mrs. Lola Lee Reynolds, 39, Killed in Auto Mishap
Sunday Evening

Funeral services for Mrs. Lola Lee Reynolds, 39, of 532 Chestnut street, were conducted from Hilgenfeld funeral home last evening, after which he remains were forwarded to Winsboro, Texas, for burial. Mrs. Reynolds died Sunday evening at Anaheim sanitarium from injuries suffered in an automobile accident shortly before the Hilgenfeld funeral home.

Failure of Charles W. Reynolds, husband of the victim, to make a boulevard stop when entering Ball road from Brookhurst road, was found by the coroner's jury to have been the cause of the fatal accident. The inquest was conducted Tuesday afternoon at the Hilgenfeld funeral home.

Two-Car Collision

Driver of the second car involved was Carl John Remland of Route 2, box 353-C, Anaheim, testimony showed. He was driving east on Ball road and Reynolds was driving north on Brookhurst.

According to the testimony, Mrs. Reynolds was thrown from the automobile in which she was riding with her husband. She suffered multiple skull fractures and brain lacerations which caused her death. The accident occurred at 6:40 o'clock Sunday evening.

Testimony was given during the inquest by State Highway Patrolman Ben Craig, who with Patrolman Lloyd Groover, investigated the crash. Remland and Reynolds, drivers of the cars, and Paul John Remland, son of C. J. Remland, who was a passenger in his father's car.

Failed to Stop

Reynolds testified he had been driving about 25 miles an hour while approaching the intersection and that he remembered shifting gears and choking the car, because of the accident. He was driving smoothly. Remland and his son both testified that Reynolds did not make the stop, and that Remland was driving about 25 miles an hour shortly before he entered the intersection. Officer Craig testified the Remland car skidded about 33 feet and stopped almost at the point of impact.

Mrs. Reynolds had been a resident of Anaheim for the past eight months and was employed as a saleslady at the J. C. Penney company here. In addition to her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. V. Her death brought to 30 the total of persons killed in highway accidents in the county this year.

Creamery Plant Vault is Looted

Safecrackers, working with sledge and punch, forced the doors to the vault and smaller money safe which sit at the Excelsior Creamery plant on 101 highway, north of Anaheim, Sunday night, obtaining more than $200 in cash, sheriff's office reports show. Investigation of the burglary was made by fingerprint experts from the sheriff's office who expressed the belief the job was done by experts. Knobs were knocked off cleanly and the dials punched out. No fingerprints were reported.

The burglary was discovered by employees at the creamery early Monday morning.

Green Grape Causes Death of Youngster

He complained of feeling ill and was rushed to the office of a physician where he succumbed.

On Saturday, July 25, unless Providence, a convulsion of nature, the elements or some unforeseen contingency interferes and changes the program the Anaheim sugar factory will begin slicing beets and the fourth campaign of its existence will be launched. While adverse legislation and business conditions have struck a heavy blow at the California beet sugar industry and few of the plants have to have electric power, the beet crop is probably the best ever grown. While the acreage is not as large as last year the output of sugar will be greater than ever before.

By WARREN BAYLEY

FORT McHENRY NATIONAL PARK, MARYLAND—For the benefit of visitors to this national park, located on the Patapsco river bordering the busy waterfront of Baltimore, the National park service has compiled a complete account of its bombardment by the British in the War of 1812. Because of the importance of that battle in the outcome of the war, I believe you will enjoy reading something of that encounter.

After capturing and burning the city of Washington, the British fleet of more than 50 ships sailed into Patapsco during the evening of September 11, 1814. A combination of attack against Baltimore by land and water was planned. Early in the afternoon of September 12, the Baltimore brigade met the enemy on the North Point road. Here the British general, Sir Robert Ross, was killed and his veteran army, composed largely of Wellington's invincibles, and of more than twice the strength of the American force, was held at bay for nearly two hours. Having well performed its mission of delaying the enemy, the Baltimore brigade fell back for the more immediate defense of the city. The British then advanced to within one mile of the American earthworks, there to wait for their fleet to force its way past Fort McHenry.

While the land attack of the British was being checked, Major George W. Armistead, in command of Fort McHenry, with a force of 1,000 men, was awaiting the attack of the British fleet. On the morning of September 13, the enemy fleet moved up the Patapsco in an attempt to push its way past Fort McHenry. In addition to innumerable round shot and rockets, the British hurled more than 1,500 bombs weighing over 250 pounds each into the fort, but failed to create the havoc they had expected. The bombardment lasted continuously for more than 25 hours. The critical point of the struggle came at about one o'clock on the morning of September 14 when the British tried to land 1,250 marines, carrying scaling ladders, in the rear of the fort. This movement was discovered, however, and the converging cross-fire from the fort and shore batteries forced them to abandon the attempt. It was during the bombardment of the Fort McHenry that Francis Scott Key was inspired to write the Star-Spangled Banner. He had been captured by the British. Key was detained by the British on board the small American vessel while the attack was launched. From this point he could watch the lurid spectacle of the British fleet throwing a continuous stream of shot, bombs and rockets into Fort McHenry. At the first faint light of dawn he saw that our flag was still there, which meant that the attack had failed. In the exultation of the moment he wrote the song which has become our national anthem.

Fullerton Council Inquiry is Closed

There is no need for a criminal investigation of the Fullerton city council as the result of the city hall site controversy, according to District Attorney George F. Holden.

Holden, who had been familiar with the facts in the case, made a further examination of them, but now has dropped the matter, he said late last week.

At the time the request for an investigation was reported, the district attorney declined to comment. "I do not consider it proper to discuss matters that are under investigation of this office," he explained. "But I have now concluded the investigation and can say that nothing has been disclosed to indicate that there was any violation of law by the council, or any intention to violate the law."

Story of "Esther" Recalls Memories to Anaheim Man

The following re-printed United Press story was of special interest to H. D. McBride of Anaheim, who lived for many years at Durango, Colo., and is well acquainted with the Mesa Verde national park. The United Press story, dated from Durango, follows:

"Esther, the perfect lady," who undoubtedly was enjoying wide popularity in Rio Perdidas de las Animas near here (Durango) during the lifetime of Christ, again has become a center of attraction.

"In 2000 years, however, her admirers have changed from bronze swimmers to bespectacled scientists.

"Esther's mummified form was unearthed from the ancient ruins in the valley of the 'River of Lost Souls.' Scientists reported that ear-rings in numerous pieces of wood found near the site indicate the 20-year-old maiden lived during the lifetime of Christ.

"Men of science believe the mummy to be the best preserved of any excavated in the southwest. Eastern scientists, attracted by the rare find, requested that Esther be shipped there for study.

"In a few months she will be returned to her native land—in a display case—to occupy a place among the antiques housed in the museum building at Mesa Verde national park.

"Esther has a complete set of 32 teeth; a smooth leathery skin; nails on every finger and toe, and a remnant of a loin cloth around her slender hips.

"Beads strung on a 10-foot length of hair cord hung around her neck. Numerous other feminine ornaments were found in the grave.

"Esther is one of 26 skeletons unearthed in the Fall Creek ruins, seven miles east of Durango."

Jail Term Ordered for Drunken Driver

John W. Sanders of Orange was given a 30-day sentence in Orange county jail Tuesday after pleading guilty before Justice of the Peace Charles Kuchel to a charge of driving while drunk. Sanders also pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and was given a 10-day suspended sentence by Judge Kuchel on that charge.

Bicycles Creating Traffic Problems

Increasing use of bicycles is creating a serious traffic problem, according to the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Many parents instruct their children to ride on the left hand side of the highway, which is exactly where they don't belong. Others forbid them to ride in the street, telling them that they must use the sidewalk, and that is prohibited by ordinance in most cities, for obvious reasons.

The California vehicle code, division, sec. 452, reads: "Every person riding a bicycle . . . upon a highway is subject to the provisions of this division applicable to the driver of a vehicle, except those which by their very nature can have no application." This makes it clear that bicycle riders must follow the same rules as drivers of automobiles.

Some families provide one bicycle for transporting more than one child. Riding double on a single-seated bicycle is a violation of the law, and in addition these parents encourage an act that may rob them of their most priceless possessions, the lives of their children.

Before buying a bicycle it should be carefully considered whether the child is old enough to handle it in traffic. Full and accurate instructions as to state laws and local ordinances should be given.

School Row Ends at Los Alamitos

Withdrawal of an injunction suit against the Los Alamitos school board of Los Alamitos was announced late last week. The dismissal of the action was brought about by the change in board personnel as the result of the recent election.

The old board had attempted to discharge Principal Floyd Lindsley and rehire Janitor R. G. Meyers and four women teachers. Two property owners in the district brought the injunction suit to prevent the actions. The new board has re-instated Lindsley, but no announcement has been made relative to the other employees involved.

Power of County's Station Increased

Authorization to increase the power of Orange county police radio station, KGHX, from 400 watts to 500 watts was given last week by the federal communications commission. As a result, it has been made possible to equip 10 additional police cars with two-way radio.

Besides permitting the addition of more cars, the new power also eliminates "spots" in the south part of the county where communications between stations and cars has been difficult upon occasion. The "spots" are Dana Point and near Doheny Park.

New Law is Curb to Young Drivers

Additional restrictions upon youthful drivers are imposed by changes in the driver's license law enacted by the legislature and effective in September, reports the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The department of motor vehicles is given wide authority to impose such restrictions as "instruction permits," which are issued to persons first learning to drive. The law is also tightened with respect to licenses issued to minors between 14 and 16 years of age.

A practical effect of the new law is to establish 16 years as a minimum age for issuance of a driver's license. Minors between 14 and 16 will be licensed only if it can be shown that a real necessity exists for a minor in that age group to drive.

Urges Greater Care in Selecting Jurors

Included in the report of the committee, headed by former Judge Lester W. Roth of Los Angeles, are recommendations that prospective jurors be given physical examinations, intelligence tests and receive a pay of $5 a day for their services. The report will be submitted to the State Bar convention at Del Monte, September 6.

Patents Declared World Trade Aid

Export trade of the United States is vitally dependent upon a strong patent system which will stimulate research and lead to the perfection of products that can compete in the world market, according to Lawrence Langer, executive secretary of the National Advisory Council of the Committee on Patents of the House of Representatives.

"The American patent system is the best in the world," said Langer. "It has greatly stimulated foreign trade. Our products have been ahead of those of any other country in the world."

"Today we are entering an era of tremendous international competition and we can maintain our supremacy only by a policy of increased research stimulated by our present strong patent system."

Langer explained that other countries are using means of subsidizing research which cannot be applied without sacrifice of principles basic to a system of free enterprise. To compete with these countries in the world market, he said, the United States must offer the greatest incentive through the patent system to individuals to develop and produce new and better products.

Langer called attention to numerous inventors like Steinmetz, Pupin and Backlund, who came to America from other countries and found opportunities to develop inventions which have made them famous throughout the world. He said that the patent system has made available to the average American family goods and services which are available only to the wealthy in other countries.

"Patents have paid for the research on which America's industrial supremacy is based," he said.

"The American patent system is complex, but so is the nervous system of a man compared to that of lower animals. To do the job it does, it must be complex."

Langer warned against compulsory licensing which, he said, was a major factor in preventing foreign patent systems from offering incentive equal to that of the American system.

Government Sales Are Tax Exempt Under Provisions of New Measure

Merchants and businessmen of southern California are reminded by William G. Bonelli, fourth district member of the state board of equalization, that sales of tangible property to the United States government are now exempt from the sales tax.

"We realize this statement may be somewhat confusing," Bonelli said, "for in March businessmen were advised that the sales tax would be collected on sales to the government, effective April 1, 1939."

"This order by the board was based on court decisions that the tax could be collected from the federal government. There was no alternative but to order the tax collected."

"Subsequently, it was realized that collection of the tax would place California industry under a severe handicap in bidding on government orders and contracts in competition with firms from states in which no sales tax is collected and that millions of dollars worth of business would therefore be lost to California.

"Assembly Bill No. 676 was therefore introduced into the legislature, passed by that body and approved by the governor, adding to the Retail Sales Tax act, section 5.1, exempting sales to the government from the tax."

"However, corporate agencies or instrumentalities of the government, such as federal land banks, reserve banks, national banks, federal credit, insurance, loan corporations and similar institutions, are not included in the exemption. If the businessman is doubtful where exemption applies, he should consult with the board."

THE NEUTRALITY FIGHT

From this remote point of vantage, it appears that our senior United States Senator, Hiram Johnson, spoke for the great mass of his countrymen several days ago, when he organized a bloc of 34 senators to oppose granting the President additional power under the federal neutrality law. It was that bloc's power which aided the shelving of that issue for this session.

It is conceded, of course, that all official Washington desires this country to avoid war. The question remains, however, how that course may best be followed.

The President, apparently, believes that it would be followed most effectively, if he were given the right to determine—in any international conflict abroad—who is the aggressor nation; and, having made that determination, that he be given the right to authorize sales of war materials to the defending nation.

With this, Senator Johnson and his 33 colleagues take exception. They argue that the best policy is a "hands off" policy. They feel that, to paraphrase Washington, we should "steer clear of entangling alliances," and that this country should take no part in foreign conflicts or in sales to warring nations.

The wisdom of this latter course appeals to us. It is sometimes extremely difficult to determine, as a matter of fact, who the aggressor is. But even if this could nicely be determined, the United States' sanction of sales to the other side of international conflict would, in the very nature of things, provoke animosity and hatred in the alleged aggressor nation.

In this connection, the Gazette here reprints a statement, appearing in the Congressional Record, dealing with the neutrality issue . . . now apparently shelved for the present session of Congress . . . made by the chairman of the National Council of the Steuben Society of America:

The Steuben Society of America, founded in 1919, respectfully submits to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate, now examining into the advisability of amending the neutrality law, the following:

First, defined in advance that we are living under and wish to preserve a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, as defined by Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, we oppose every endeavor to abridge the right of the people to deliberate and determine for themselves what their course of action shall be in any given instance, especially when it concerns itself with the question of peace or war.

While foreign governments may decide for themselves that it is to the interest of their people to empower a single individual to manage their foreign affairs, our own people have so often and vehemently declared themselves against transplanting such a system to our shores, logically cannot agree to place such power in the hands of one individual, though he be the President. We, therefore, deem it inadvisable to give the President the power to determine in any given event who among contending nations shall be termed the "aggressor." Having done so, such decision would inevitably draw us into a war against the alleged aggressor.

Right here may we suggest that we heed the warning not to be misled by the "tyranny of words." China may soon become the victim of Japan's undeclared war and be compelled to sign a so-called peace treaty. Would that be classed among the sacred treaties and would China, chafing under its degrading terms, attempt to burst its shackles, wage war on Japan, be classed by the President as the "aggressor," a disturber of world peace?

Then, again, suppose the "subject" people in Asia or Africa, of imperialistic countries of Europe, Great Britain, and France, may some day rise in rebellion against their oppressors. Would they be classed as "aggressors," disturbing the peace of the world, and would it then become our duty to assist their rulers in preventing them from gaining their liberty?

If we as a people are of a mind to stand by Great Britain and France under all circumstances, to assist them in holding what they have garnered against those who are asking for restitution, let us say so in many words, but let us get away from the hypocrisy of stating that we are at their beck and call because they are fighting for the principles of democracy against autocracy. It is a case of power politics, and nothing else.

Should these countries now intervene to check Italy, we should clearly understand before we act what is going on there is a struggle for the domination between those foreign powers for the control of the Mediterranean and adjacent waters.

Principles of democracy have nothing to do with it.

At the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese War, Theodore Roosevelt said, "All officials of the Government—civil, military, and naval—are directed to abstain from either action or speech which can cause irritation to either combatant. It is always unfortunate to bring Old World antipathies and jealousies into our life, or by speech or conduct to excite anger and resentment toward our Nation in friendly foreign lands; but in a government employee whose official position makes him in a sense the representative of the people, the mischief of such actions is greatly increased."

The President, being the representative of the people, especially in foreign eyes, might well take note of these words uttered by his illustrious namesake.

If amended, the Neutrality Act should contain a provision taking from the President the power to impose economic sanctions or commit any other act "short of war" against foreign nations with which we are at peace. Our tariff legislation was never intended to give him that power. The American people have not given expression to a belief that they have a world mission to perform, which is to maintain law and order in all parts of the globe.

The President should bear in mind and recognize the fact that he is but the agent of a free people who wish to remain at peace with all the world.

The road to peace lies not as has been suggested in an agreement to disarm but rather in arriving at some adjustment of the economic inequalities causing universal unrest among the nations. The Haves must surrender to the Have-nots a portion of their holdings to enable the latter to afford a decent living to their peoples. If it is true that "new instruments of public power have been forged that might some day provide shackles for the liberties of the people if they come into improper hands," our Representatives in Congress should make certain that those powers be not now further extended to permit the creation of a situation in the conduct of our foreign relations which might force us into war.

If "we have a rendezvous with destiny," it is to prove to the world that our system of government is superior to that of any other. Empty phrases about the blessings of democracy prove nothing. With millions out of employment, millions on the dole, industry at a standstill, agriculture in a precarious condition, and as the President himself advertises to the world (which includes the totalitarian states) that one-third of our people are ill-housed and ill-fed, with a crime bill which goes into the billions of dollars, corruption in the ranks of even the judiciary, we are not in a

High-Lighting Politics

by John Randall Pace

WASHINGTON—The smoothest political trade engineered in Washington in years gave former Governor McNutt of Indiana the appointment by President Roosevelt to head up the New Deal's social agencies. The smooth part of it lay in the fact that no one has been able to discover who out-traded who.

Even in the ranks of New Dealers the differences of opinion as to the meaning of the appointment are as wide as among republicans. Did the president drive McNutt out of the presidential race by making him the first to hear a frank statement that Mr. Roosevelt was going to seek a third term? Was McNutt promised the vice-presidential nomination with Mr. Roosevelt if he would pull out of the big derby? Did Mr. Roosevelt make McNutt a stronger candidate and, indirectly, give his blessing after Harry Hopkins, Secretary Wallace, and Arthur General Murphy failed to catch on with the public as possible nominees? All of these are questions that have Washington guessing and the truth may never be known to the public. Snubbing up as an aftermath came the question, did Mr. Roosevelt throw a fast curve around McNutt's neck when, after announcing the appointment, he referred to the high commissioner of the Philippines as just one of ten or a dozen "charming young men" whose friends are mentioning them for the presidency.

As the third term drive for President Roosevelt moves ahead, there are increasing signs of an organized effort to make the movement appear a groundswell from the people. Meanwhile, the Republican National committee and democratic leaders are assembling ammunition. Most explosive of this preparatory collection is the resolution adopted in 1929 when the respected Calvin Coolidge might seek a third term. At the political expedient time this identical resolution will be presented to the senate. In the senate still are a number of New Dealers who voted against a third term at that time, including the Senator Barkley of Kentucky, and Senator Norris of Nebraska.

Most recent of the historical documents to come to light were part of the campaign to stop Theodore Roosevelt's third term ambitions in 1912. When they learned his Bull Moose and started on his party-smashing ride to the White House, it was fiery old "Marse Henry" Waterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who declared that if Roosevelt were elected he would never quit the mansion until he was taken out feet first. What Colonel Waterson meant was that if the two-term tradition were once broken, there would be no check upon ambition, and a strong man would find it easy to perpetuate himself.

One of the most politically striking surveys of public opinion that has struck Washington recently was that of the Institute of Public Opinion conducted by Dr. George Gallup in measuring "liberal," "conservative" and "radical" leanings among voters. Dr. Gallup asked those who were personally queried to classify themselves. The terrific shift in sentiment in recent years significantly portrayed in the finding that 52 per cent of all voters classified themselves as conservative, only 46 per cent liberal, and two per cent radical. Among republicans, 73 per cent voted conservative. Even among democrats had drifted back to the conservative banner. Coming after the 1938 elections, the widely circulated poll, which is read so avidly in Washington, indicated that the word "liberal" is losing caste, radicalism is an out-cast, and American voters are returning to the banner of conservatism. The 73 per cent figure among republicans is being held up as a definite danger signal to republican candidates who might try to toy with New Dealism.

The MARCH OF TIME

Prepared by the Editors of TIME The Weekly Newsmagazine

MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY—

WASHINGTON—When congress set WPA four years ago, friends of union labor saw to it that union hourly wage scales, as prevailing in different sections of the U. S., were provided for skilled workmen. Thus, if union carpenters were getting $1.75 an hour in private employment, carpenters working for WPA got $1.75 an hour. Meanwhile, the market for their labor was only natural. But WPA's prevailing-wage provision had other effects. Testifying to congress prior to this year's revision of WPA, Administrator Harrington explained:

(1) Workers on the same project, earning at different hourly rates, worked different hours. Confusion was inescapable when 53-hour carpenters, for example, had to be teamed with 121-hour common laborers.

(2) Skilled workers, having earned their federal money in a few hours, could secretly work and earn elsewhere during the month (at any wage levels they chose). This aroused jealousy, criticism.

Administrator Harrington asked congress for a "security wage" up to $88, based on regional costs and he said, "It is my recommendation that persons employed on projects of the WPA be required to work 130 hours per month and that the earnings of such persons be on a monthly basis . . . that substantially the present national average labor cost (to WPA) be maintained."

Obviously that meant more hours of work for the same pay—pay-per-hour far below "prevailing" (union) rates for skilled labor. But congress passed Administrator Harrington's law just about the way he wanted it. President Roosevelt signed it without commenting on the 130-hour provision. Last week, first week of the new law's operation, union labor started president, administrator, congress and taxpayers by a nationwide performance daring and unprecedented: a strike against a law of the land.

In New York City, in Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, WPA workers who belonged to unions mostly in the building and allied trades, mostly A. F. of L.—walked out of their jobs. In some places they quit spontaneously, in most they were called off by their union officials. Twenty thousand, 50,000, 75,000, daily the number of strikers rose throughout the nation. Administrator Harrington responded quickly to the insurrection. "I find it difficult to call them strikes," said he. "A strike is called for the purpose of opening up negotiations. Here there is nothing to negotiate. Any executive official is bound by the law. The 130-hour law exists and I can't change it."

He told WPA supervisors everywhere to cut off the rolls any

WPA "striker" who did not return to the WPA job in five days.

The issue focused sharply in New York City, where 30,000 of the 39,000 skilled workers on WPA rolls were union men. Thomas A. Murray, president of the Building & Construction Trades council (A. F. of L.), officially authorized the walkout and declared:

"The new WPA bill, jammed through by congress at the last minute, is one of the most vicious pieces of legislation ever palmed off on the people of this nation. . . . This fight will be fought to a finish."

In Manhattan, District WPA Administrator Brehon Burke Somers, red-taped with equal heat, said: "You can't strike against relief. It's fantastic!" Columnist Arthur ("Bugs") Baer cracked: "Mutiny on the bounty."

In Washington, the C. I. O., which embraces fewer unions than occupations assisted by WPA, rushed to the support of A. F. of L. with a blast warning congress to amend the new law. The Workers Alliance, whose membership is largely dependent on WPA, jumped for joy on the sidelines. Violence grew. In Minneapolis a policeman was killed in a row between pickets and non-striking WPA men. As skilled unionists walked out, WPA projects came to a halt and unskilled workers were idle willy-nilly.

Brunt of the battle fell, of course, upon A. F. of L.'s President William Green, who failed to act when the bill was before congress. He now called a meeting in Washington of all his union presidents to put on belated heat. Cried he: "A vital principle is at stake. The wage standards of organized labor, built up through years of sacrifice, suffering and collective bargaining, are threatened . . . strikes and strikes."

Senator Murray of Montana, Representatives Bradley of Pennsylvania and Sabath of Illinois, servants equally of organized labor and of the New Deal, dutifully drafted amendments to Colonel Harrington's law as dictated by labor. Cutest question of the week was whether the president would throw his weight for or against what the New York Times termed "the aristocrats of relief."

WASHINGTON—What to do about Indiana's white-haired Paul McNutt, first and boldest democratic candidate for Franklin Roosevelt's job, was a question which Mr. Roosevelt answered by inviting McNutt to become, after resigning as high commissioner to the Philippines, director of the new, consolidated Federal Security agency. In that post, at Washington, McNutt could be kept under surveillance and control, throttled if necessary. Or he could be built up as his apparent (if that seemed more desirable) able, ambitious executive that he is, he could be counted on in either case to do a good job for aged pensioners, youthful school-leavers, CCC, youth health, employment service and the office of education. On condition that his friends be allowed to keep on booming him, radiant McNutt accepted.

RETURN VISIT—

NEW YORK—A Gallup poll revealed that 51% of those voting (less in New England and the west, more in the south and mid-Atlantic) think President and Mrs. Roosevelt should return the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

John Steinbeck's lurid novel of the Dust Bowlers, "The Grapes of Wrath," drips from the presses in a succession of editions which amply attest the credulity of the reading public, or at least that segment of it which spends the cocktail hour daily sipping 50-cent drinks and nibbling hors d'oeuvres while dilating on "the terrible plight of the nation."

Steinbeck's book doubtless packs a tremendous wallop for "parlor politics" and cocktail room reformers, who want life in the raw—at least in their literature.

For in spite, it is raw, indeed! It is a triumph of sensationalism over fact, with unparalleled filth and profanity to provide necessary shocks for those whose sated appetites demand that type of sustenance.

But as a story of the California migrant problem, the book is about as true to life—and facts—as the average Wild West thriller is in its portrayal of life in the Old West. Unreality and palpable fiction stalk the pages. California farmers are club-wielding vigilantes, who treat their horses better than their men. Shop keepers and shop clerks, bankers and their tellers, Legionnaires and newspaper publishers are all in a vicious conspiracy to deny starving men food and to turn the "Okies" (that's the book's term, not ours) into slaves to be placed in serfdom on farms of "the great land owners."

Tractors are tanks of economic warfare, crushing out the lifeblood of the unemployed migrant. And California is on the verge of a revolution—to be staged, apparently, by its relief roll recipients.

If California's "great land owners" (that's Steinbeck's term for farmers) could separate causes from results, says the book, they might save themselves from bloody revolution. If they knew that Marx and Lenin were results, rather than causes, they would know how to cope with the migrant problem. But not knowing much about Marx and Lenin or the new ideology, they're doomed (says Steinbeck).

A few days ago, Ruth Comfort

Mitchell, California novelist and wife of former Senator Sanborn Young of Los Gatos, announced that she is writing a novel showing the "farmer's side" of the migrant problem—and answering Steinbeck's book.

Any farmer who has wasted so much time as to read "Grapes of Wrath" will wish her well in that endeavor. For Steinbeck's book requires an answer. And the answer—if it is written by one in command of the facts, as Ruth Comfort Mitchell undoubtedly will be—can do a great deal toward righting a rank injustice.

The plight of many of the hundreds of thousands of nomads from other states now wandering over California is heartrending. But California farmers—and California taxpayers generally—simply cannot, financially or physically, provide for the destitute of the nation. California has tried—and has nearly bankrupted its citizenry. California's fault, in fact, is that it has been too generous, rather than too selfish, and has been rewarded for its generosity by new hordes of indigents and new demands for bigger relief payments.

The label that California farmers "invited" the migrants to California by advertising for workers in middle-west states has been exploded too many times to require answer here. The migrants came here because other states shunted them here; because California generosity, with the first caravans of poor, invited others; because relief payments were bigger here, climate better, genuine advocates more active, and because radical labor leaders wanted grist for their mills. Desperate as their condition is here, it was worse where they came from. And only the national government, and their home states can solve the problem. California's resources simply won't stand the strain—and Steinbeck's attempt to blame "the great land owners" of California for a problem that California had no part in creating is either the result of gross ignorance or a deliberate attempt to fan the fires of class hatred. The "great land owners" he refers to are mostly 20 and 40-acre farmers, who are fighting desperately to pay their own bills and support their own families. For most of the farms in California are owned by farmers in that category!

Throughout Steinbeck's novel runs the familiar propaganda of the communists—"When property accumulates in too few hands, it is taken away. When a majority of the people are hungry and cold, they will take by force what they need."

But California, Steinbeck, isn't in too few hands. It is in the hands of Californians—and Californians intend it shall remain there. And California, even to give reality to a best-seller, can't take over the job of feeding all the hungry of America. That job belongs to the nation. And it can't be solved by emotional fiction.

Metropolitan Water District Now Completing Last Part of Aqueduct

Working in a deep trench carved into the western flank of towering Mt. San Jacinto, construction crews of The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California are completing a 400-foot section of the Casa Loma siphon, last link on the gigantic Colorado river aqueduct.

This comparatively tiny segment of the world's largest water supply system is the last aqueduct section to be completed. When it is finished within the next few weeks the main aqueduct will be ready for service all the way from the Colorado river to the Caliente reservoir on the coastal plain, a distance of 242 miles.

Completion of the Casa Loma siphon had been deferred, water district officials pointed out, in order to give access to the west portal of the San Jacinto tunnel, while construction work on that, the most difficult of all aqueduct links, was being finished. So vital was the need for the siphon that the tunnel completed the concrete lining on this 13-mile bore. All other of the 108 miles of aqueduct, as well as the canals, conduits, siphons and pumping plants have been completed and made ready for service, it was pointed out.

During the past six months section after section of the huge water carrier has been given its final test and placed in operation. Four of the giant aqueduct pumping stations, which lift this man-made river a total height of 1817 feet across mountain barriers, have been tested and found to have a high degree of pumping efficiency. Today, district officials reported, aqueduct water had been brought as far west as Hayfield reservoir, 126 miles westward from Lake Havasu on the Colorado river. As soon as the Casa Loma siphon is finished, it was pointed out, the 13-mile pumping station will begin taking water from the reservoir. Here it will be lifted by pumps for the last time, and will begin flowing through tunnels and covered conduits the remainder of the distance across the state to the Caliente reservoir at the end of the main aqueduct.

Construction work on the Metropolitan aqueduct was started in December, 1922. Since that time more than 35,000 men have been employed on the huge job which is financed by proceeds of a $220,000,000 bond issue voted by the residents of the 13 cities comprising the Metropolitan Water district. These district cities are Anaheim, Beverly Hills, Burbank, Compton, Fullerton, Glendale, Long Beach, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Marino, Santa Ana, Santa Monica, and Torrance.

Softball Leagues Engaged in Play

Three Conferences Formed to Include Boys of Various Ages

Three nightball leagues operating under the city's playground program are well into their schedule of games, according to a resume of activities to date made yesterday by Vic Reudy, Los Angeles city league, church league and juvenile league, each alignment having six teams.

In addition to nightball teams, Reudy is handling a group of young baseball players, averaging about 15 years of age, each afternoon at La Palma park stadium and a second baseball team, comprised of high school and junior college boys, which plays at La Palma stadium on Saturday afternoons.

City league and church league teams play at city park on evenings when the field is not in use by the National nightball league. The former conference enters its final round of play next week and includes teams sponsored by Anton's Market, Wood's Recreation, Wiser's Sports store, the National Guard, Knights of Columbus and Towne Toggery. The church league, which has completed one round, includes Zion Lutheran, Grace Lutheran, Bethel Baptist, all tied for first place; Church of Christ, White Temple and Salem Evangelical, all tied for fourth.

The juvenile league has finished two rounds of play with complete service leading by one game over Cone brothers. Other teams, in order of standing, are Boney, Dodge, Oyster, Leaf cafe, Hoffman's and Center Service. Members of the team are about 13 years of age and the teams are sponsored more for recreational purposes than for advertising purposes, Reudy said. Games are played each morning at city park. Next Saturday afternoon, Reudy's older boys' team plays the Arthur L. Peterson Post, American Legion, team of Long Beach, runners-up during the recent American Legion post play-off. This team will also represent Anaheim against a similar Fullerton team during the baseball game which will be a feature of the La Palma park dedication on August 5.

Jerome Will Head Executive Group

William C. Jerome of Santa Ana, former Orange county supervisor and auditor, was elected chairman of the Southern California Executive Council Saturday at a meeting of the council in Los Angeles. Arrangements were made to hold weekly discussions of economic problems confronting the state. The "Plan and Eggs" pension proposal, which will come to a vote of the people at a special election next November 7, came to the fore in debate at the meeting Saturday, and it was indicated that the Executive Council will bend its immediate effort toward defeat of the plan.

Man is Seriously Hurt in Accident

Serious injuries were suffered last Thursday by Francisco Gonzales, 42, of Route 1, Anaheim, when automobiles driven by himself and Bascom D. Lake, 34, of 22 N. Philadelphia street, Anaheim, collided at the intersection of Katella and Brookhurst roads.

Gonzales suffered possible skull fracture, broken ribs, and deep lacerations about the head and face. He was taken to Orange county hospital, as were his two sons, Louis, 13, and Victor, 11, neither of whom was hurt seriously.

Festival of Arts
Programs Varied

Noted Entertainers Will Be Seen and Heard During
Ten-Day Event

It is not the Seven Dwarfs whose voices will sound and resound through the Laguna hills during the ten-day Festival of Arts, opening at Laguna Beach July 28 and continuing through August 6. Familiar though the voices seem, it is the Vigilantes, male octette, who made the vocal recordings for "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" in the Disney Studios. Featured in such motion pictures as "Girl of the Golden West" and "Big Broadcast," they are popular entertainers at many California play spots.

The Vigilantes are among the guest-artists whose musical talents precede each evening's presentation of the Pageant of the Masters. The Belcher Ballet, Wallace Magill, baritone of radio fame, John Ferguson, nightly singer of "The Lord's Prayer" which accompanies the showing of Leonardo's "Last Supper," Roderick Krohn, violinist, Alice Caldwell, pianist, and the Gilbert and Sullivan quartette are scheduled to add to the general festivity of the ten-day art fair. The evening performances, highlighting the Pageant of the Masters, comes as a climax after a day of interesting art activity on the festival grounds.

Elimination Plan for Small-Sized
Citrus Fruit is Nearing Adoption

Elimination of a large percentage of small sizes from the valencia market was a step nearer today since the California Fruit Growers Exchange board of directors yesterday voted a referendum of all Sunkist packing houses. The directors representing the 25 district exchanges endorsed the proposed agreement between packing houses and district exchange. Its main points are:

1. "They authorize Exchange to determine from week to week the merchantable quantity of sizes 24s, 24s grading below Sunkist and 392s of all merchantable grades that may be shipped."

2. At a minimum price of 40 cents per packed box equivalent, F. O. B. packing house, associations unable to fill their C & A agreement allotment will be able to sell the unshipped allotment to the Exchange and receive credit therefor. The minimum price established is based on domestic valencia price to date and will be increased proportionately as the season price for valencias increases.

3. The fruit purchased by the Exchange under this plan must be of merchantable quality as prescribed by the California state standards as to quality, and shall not be smaller than the commercial size 392. No packing house is to sell sizes smaller than 392s.

4. The cost of operation of the plan to be underwritten by monthly assessments based on shipments during the preceding month with final adjustment to be based on the value of shipments for each shipment.

5. "This agreement shall be effective when signed by associations who handled during the 1937-38 season through Exchange 95 per cent of Exchange southern California valencia orange tonnage, and in no event shall become effective later than August 6, 1939, and its operation shall continue in effect until terminated by Exchange, but not later than November 11, 1939."

The agreement was suggested by President C. C. Teague several weeks ago, discussed at last week's meeting of the board of directors, and approved in its final form by the special general advisory committee last Friday. It affects only the southern California valencias district, but directors R. H. Shoemaker from Tulare county and H. G. Meiser from the northern California citrus area also expressed approval of the plan. The plan is designed to increase total returns to the producers by eliminating a surplus of undesirable sizes, according to T. H. Powell, Sunkist sales manager.

"An excess of this fruit on the market not only brings low returns but depresses the entire price structure," declared Powell. "However the proposed change in marketing procedure recognizes the fact that certain growers have such a preponderance of this class of fruit that they cannot afford to dispose of it without some return."

Under the proposed plan there would be no scarcity of the less desirable grades and sizes; its major purpose is to effectively reduce the great surplus of small sizes. Consumers will receive all the fruit their retail markets can absorb at a fair price.

Community Sings
to Start Tonight

This evening marks the first of a series of six Community Sings which will be held on Thursday evenings at the city park amphitheater. The events are sponsored by the Anaheim Recreation Commission.

Director of the singing will be Whitford L. Hall of Santa Ana with Miss Katherine Steward of Anaheim at the piano. There will be no soloists during the events, the programs being given for the participation of everyone.

Started last year as a small part of the recreational program, the Community Sings met with such wide response the commission decided to continue them this year. Mrs. R. W. Marvin declared.

Couple are Held to Answer to Charges

Glen Harrison and Pearl Hamlin must stand trial in superior court on a high misdemeanor charge of contributing to the delinquency of minor children. The children involved are those of Mrs. Hamlin. The man and woman were held to answer at conclusion of a preliminary examination conducted before Justice of the Peace Charles Kuehl Monday morning. Bail for Mrs. Hamlin was set at $1000 while Mrs. Hamlin was released on her own recognizance.

TO FACE TRIAL
Cecil Davenport, 24, of Long Beach, charged with intent to commit a felony morals offense against a young Newport mother Saturday night, will appear before Justice D. J. Dodge of Newport township on July 26 for preliminary hearing.

Supervisors Pass
Assessment Rolls

In spite of Supervisor N. E. West's objections to increases in assessments on Laguna Beach property, the county board of supervisors closed its work as a board of equalization Monday afternoon by approving the assessment roll prepared by County Assessor James Sleeper. Only four minor changes were made during the session.

West and Sleeper engaged in verbal combat during the final meeting of the board, with the supervisor having no success in gaining his points. He moved that present assessments for Laguna Beach be set aside in favor of last year's assessments, but the motion died for lack of a second.

Anaheim Sign Man
Has MOD Contract

Subsequent to the publication of The Gazette's special edition last week honoring the first anniversary of Cal-Juices, Inc., which was highly lauded by officials of Cal-Juices and the Mutual Orange Distributors, it was disclosed that another Anaheim firm is held in particular esteem by the MOD.

It was pointed out that all signs for the Mutual Orange Distributors, including the various menu boards, packing houses, are painted by Fred Robins of Anaheim. Excellence of Robins' work won for him the MOD contract several years ago and his signs are now on virtually all MOD packing houses in California and Arizona, it was said.

One-third of all the deaths among North American Indians in 1915 were due to tuberculosis.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH
"Truth" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist. The Golden Text is from John: "Holy Father, keep through thine own name those whom thou hast given me, that they may be one as we are... Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth."

Among the Bible citations are these verses from Matthew: "And he entered into a ship, and passed over, and came into his own city. And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed; and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy: Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth. And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then said he to the sick of the palsy), Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose, and departed to his house."

A passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "Truth is God's remedy for error of every kind, and Truth destroys only what is untrue. Hence the fact that, to-day, as yesterday, Christ casts out evils and heals the sick."
