Savold Whips Woodcock; Wins Crown

BULLETIN

WHITE CITY STADIUM, London, June 6.—Lee Savold won the British and European versions of the world heavyweight title tonight with a badly cut eye.

A sellout crowd of 50,000 watched the American boxer from Englewood, N. J., finish off the British fighter with a devastating attack in the fourth.

Savold strong and rugged, followed a fighting plan which surprised the crowd.

Right from the start he stalked the British champion around the ring and took a lot of right hand punches in a bid to get in close and jab and hook with both hands.

Lee was pretty fit and tough and in the third round jabbed Bruce viciously in the face and caused blood to pour from the Briton's nose.

As they came up for the fourth Savold walked in close with his guard down, side-stepped a punch and landed two left jabs to Woodcock's face.

Woodcock's left eye was a gory mess with a deep cut over it.

Just at the bell Savold ripped in two more punches to the face, one of which landed smack on Bruce's cut and blood poured from the wound.

The boys walked to their corners and one of Woodcock's handlers threw a towel into the ring.

His manager Tom Hurst, shouted, "Pick that up," then called over Referee Andrew Smyth, who told the master of ceremonies to announce Woodcock would not appear for the fifth round.

Page Vincent's oratory on the "Wiley Weed" at last night's Toastmaster club meeting won him the Optimist Trophy. Other speakers at the weekly meeting held at the Mother Colony house were C. J. Stillson, "Laugh for Health," and Ed Wright, "What Can Be Done About It."

President Ken Heuler urged all Toastmasters to attend the area educational meeting in Santa Ana at the Community center, Thursday evening at 7:30.

Carl Miller presented the table topic, "How to Meet People." Evaluator was Louis Taylor; Marion Pickel was grammarian.

Next week's assignments: table topic, R. H. Allen; toastmaster, Don Dunkin; evaluator, R. J. Allen; speakers, Vic Huber, Don Butka and Louis Taylor.

George Guthrie, an executive of Bowen Oil Tube Company was the guest of R. H. Allen. An outline of unique programs planned in the future was discussed by President Heuler.

NEW YORK (AP)—Luke Easter cracked two singles, a double and triple to pace a 22-hit attack today as the Cleveland Indians humbled the New York Yankees, 16-2.

House Committee Votes Slash in Excise Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today stamped its final approval on a tax bill calling for a $1,100,000,000 slash in excise taxes on furs, jewelry, luggage, movie tickets and scores of other items.

At the same time, Senate Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) told reporters he doubts Congress can pass finally on a tax bill unless the members are willing to stay here until October.

"I am not one of those who wants to stay until October," Lucas added. He said he will consult Republican leaders tomorrow and try to work out a legislative schedule calling for adjournment by July 31.

Before the House committee approved its bill, it:

1. Reversed itself and decided to kill a $75,000,000 a year tax it previously had voted upon mutual savings banks and building and loan associations.

2. Reverse a previous decision to eliminate the 20 per cent tax on light bulbs and tubes. This would prevent a $26,000,000 revenue loss.

INGRID MAY WED IN LONDON—LONDON (AP)—A London solicitor said today Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini want to be married in London.

The solicitor, E. Gordon Lawrence, said he handles the Swedish-born film star's legal affairs in England and has been asked to find out if the couple can be married here.

MAUNA LOA ABATES

HONOLULU (AP)—Mauna Loa simmered down today after five days of its most violent fireworks display in modern times.

Rivers of lava still coiled down the massive 13,680 foot volcano's flaming flanks and probably would for weeks to come. But the worst appeared to be over.

Voting Brisk; Will Exceed Predictions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Voting stepped along at a brisk pace in California's primary election today.

A strenuous battle between Republican Earl Warren and Democrat James Roosevelt in Warren's third term bid and other hard fought contests drew the voters to the polls.

The turnout in populous Los Angeles county was 22 1/2 percent at 1:30 p. m.—higher than usual for a primary. San Francisco's registrar of voters, noting a 24 1/2 percent vote by noon, called it a heavy primary response.

San Diego showed 22 percent at 1:30 p. m., Sacramento 34 percent at 1 p. m., Napa, 30 percent at 1 p. m., Modesto, 20 percent at noon.

All indications pointed to a statewide vote exceeding the 52 percent estimate by Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan. A total of 4,925,000 persons registered for the primary election.

Kelly Named 20-30 Prexy

Dick Kelly was elected president of the Anaheim 20-30 Club last night at the Mother's Kitchen. Kelly replaces Wilton Collier in the executive chair.

Serving with Kelly will be Ralph Spencer, vice-president, Alvin Brown, second vice-president, and Phil Adams, sgt.-at-arms. Brown succeeds Rod Cookus. Adams takes over where Spencer left off. The first vice-president's chair was vacant up to last night's election.

Next week's meeting will be on Tuesday night, owing to a Monday evening ball game. The Tuesday session at Mother's Kitchen will serve as the Club's 20th birthday celebration. Regular members and past-actives are cordially invited to attend.

McCarthy Renews Attack Against State Department

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) said today the FBI three years ago listed 33 persons in the state department as communists or party agents and that they are "still holding high positions."

To back up his statements made in a senate speech, McCarthy produced what he said was a document prepared by a state department investigator for the benefit of the department's security division. This paper quoted FBI reports.

McCarthy said that as of May 15, 1947 "there were in the state department a total of 124 agents, communists, sympathizers, and suspects in the opinion of the FBI."

Plane Carrying Puerto Rican Migrant Workers

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Thirty-seven survivors of a twin-engine plane which crashed into the Atlantic were rescued by a Navy destroyer today, and a merchant ship reported it had sighted the bodies of five other persons in the area.

At noon, the merchant vessel Cape Ann radioed to Coast Guard headquarters in Miami that it had spotted the five bodies and was standing by to await the arrival of the destroyer USS Saufley, from which rescue operations were being directed.

This left 23 of the plane's occupants yet to be accounted for.

The plane's pilot, co-pilot and stewardess were saved.

Search planes reported there was "doubt" that any more survivors might be found.

Destroyer to Scene—Lt. Comdr. Hershell Sanders of St. Petersburg, just back from a flight over the rescue area, said that "not one of the 37 survivors was wearing a life jacket" when picked up from tossing life rafts.

The survivors were rescued by the destroyer USS Saufley about 275 miles east Northeast of Miami. They were among persons aboard the Westair company plane when it plunged into the sea.

The destroyer informed Coast Guard headquarters in Miami that the survivors were "in good condition."

The destroyer's message: "Recovered 37 survivors. Position 27 degrees 51 minutes north, 75 degrees 52 minutes West. All in rafts. Pilot believes remainder have life jackets. Continuing co-ordinate search with planes and picking up all empty rafts."

The plane's pilot said all the missing passengers had life jackets raised hopes that the loss of life would be small.

However, a B-17 radioed: "Doubt if there are any more survivors."

The plane said the 37 rescued included three crew members and 34 passengers. It said rescued crewmen included pilot Joseph Halsey of Seattle, Wash., and co-pilot William Holleran.

A returning Coast Guard PBV plane said Halsey expressed doubt that any more survivors would be found.

All the passengers were migratory workers from Puerto Rico, enroute to the United States. They were among more than 5000 migrant workers being flown to the United States to help in crop harvests.

The plane was enroute from San Juan Puerto Rico to Wilmington, N. C. when a motor failed. It made a futile attempt to reach Nassau.

Folks, it is worth the time and energy

You still have time to exercise your most valuable franchise—your right to vote.

The election booths will be open until 7:00 this evening. There will be a complete crew of election officials in your voting place until closing time. They are ready and willing to serve.

They will not tell you how to vote. It is your vote. You cast it the way you want to.

They will not turn down your vote because you do not think politically the way they do. You vote for the candidates you want to vote for.

In fact, it is a safe bet that each one of your election board officials will vote differently on the list of candidates and propositions.

Where else will you find a situation of this sort? Look the world over, and see what you come up with.

YES, YOU STILL HAVE TIME. You still have the right and opportunity to help say who will be the next governor, the next U. S.

Senator, the next Congressman, and you will help pass on all the other candidates who will institute or administer the laws under which all of us will live in the coming years.

Your vote will be a part of the great scheme of American government.

If you do not vote, then don't kick about the things he does. His actions are influenced by the percentage of electors who get out and cast ballots.

The larger the number of voters, the more public officials know the people mean business.

It is in your own interest to vote.

DO IT RIGHT NOW.

And, oh, yes, in your desire to get right at those candidates, do yourself a favor: don't overlook the three propositions on the ballot. They tell your elected officials how you want them to handle your government.

After checking up the receipts and paying the bills, managers of the fifth annual Valencia orange show and themselves with considerable surplus money on hand, which will be used in starting next year's exhibition. More than one hundred thousand people visited the show this year, which was one third more than the attendance at any previous exhibition. The gate receipts together with the money received from concessions, paid the $60,000 which it cost to stage the show and left a large balance for use in starting next year's show, or to apply on the permanent buildings which the managers are ambitious to erect.

WASHINGTON — Slow-spoken Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina, new chairman of the House Labor and Education committee, will wait for the right moment and then push his federal-aid-to-education bill—without aid to parochial schools.

Barden, a former schoolteacher, is a strong believer in aid-to-schools, but incurred the wrath of Cardinal Spellman last year when he took a strong stand for continued separation of church and state.

Since then, the late Congressman Lesau of Michigan was able to bottle the education bill inside his Labor and Education committee. But with Lesau's death, however, Barden probably will be able to report the bill out in the form he wants it. But whether he will be able to get it through the House is doubtful. Meanwhile, here are some of the school conditions existing in parts of the nation:

In a San Antonio skid row suburb, 3500 children are crowded into two school buildings. Three thousand do not go to school at all, or attend part-time classes. Some schools in Northern Virginia are so overcrowded, students are taught in two and three "shifts" per day. More than 400,000 children in Oklahoma are schooled in inadequate or unsanitary buildings, including firetraps. At Midwest City, Okla., about 550 children are being taught in a frame firetrap less than 100 yards from an Air Force jet plane runway. If a plane crashed, it is not pleasant to imagine what would happen to children in a building with no outside doors.

Two Connecticut Friends. Secretary of State Acheson and able Senator Brien McMahon, both from the state of Connecticut, have a peculiar relationship. Neither is too fond of the other, yet McMahon has been one of Acheson's staunchest defenders.

Acheson, who has a peculiar faculty for saying the wrong thing to Senators at the wrong time, was standing in the receiving line of a diplomatic reception, when the Connecticut Senator and his beautiful wife Rosemary approached. As he shook hands, the Secretary of State remarked to his wife:

"Alice, here is an ogre whom I would like to knock over the head, accompanied by the most beautiful woman in Washington."

Acheson smiled when he said it. Nevertheless, the remark was not particularly appreciated.

The personal friction between Acheson and McMahon probably dates back to the days when Acheson's father, the Episcopal Bishop of Connecticut, refused to perform the marriage ceremony for McMahon's close friend and law associate, Homer Cummings, first Attorney General under Roosevelt. Cummings had been divorced, and Bishop Acheson refused to sanction his second marriage.

More recently, observers have detected a note of resentment around the State Department at the manner in which McMahon has taken the initiative away from Acheson by expounding some A-1 ideas or breaking through the iron curtain of State Department policies. However, McMahon has continued to be one of the best friends of the State Department on Capitol Hill.

Note—McMahon is torn between two advisers—New York Times Correspondent Arthur Krock, who arranged for his historic Truman interview while dining with McMahon; and Columnist Marquis Childs. When the Senator from Connecticut goes liberal, Childs is not averse to claiming credit for it.

Missouri Politics. Insiders believe that President Truman's intervention in Missouri politics to pick the next U.S. Senator is going to boomerang as his intervention in Kansas City against Congressman Roger Slaughter.

Out of the clear political blue, Truman announced at a press conference some time ago that State Senator Emory Allison "would make a wonderful member of the U.S. Senate" and that he knew Allison very well.

Since then it has developed that Truman couldn't have known Allison very well, because his hand-picked candidate has been against most of the things Truman stood for. As a Missouri Senator, Allison opposed equal education for Negroes, favored throwing road construction back into politics, tried to steal the governorship from Forrest Donnell, now Senator, and favored heavy interest rates on small loans.

As a result of Truman's reaching into Missouri politics, more and more support is developing for young ex-Congressman Tom Hennings of St. Louis.

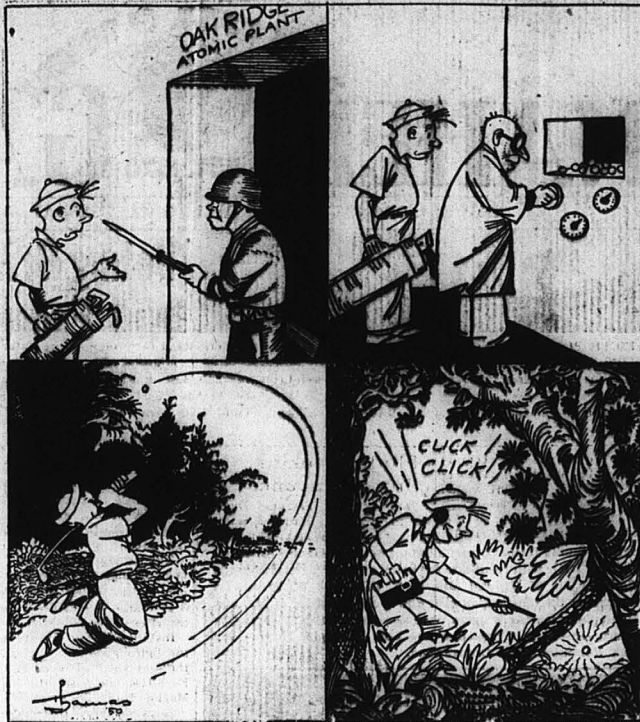

Note—Insiders say that it was Jim Pendergast, not Truman, who actually picked Allison for the Senate.

Merry-Go-Round

For the first time in history, labor will soon be represented on the Interstate Commerce Commission. Ray McCaughey of Chicago, former CIO executive and member of the now reorganized Maritime commission, will be transferred to the ICC. Senators are slowpokes in reading the much-sought State Department loyalty files. Of the 81 files, 72 of Maryland and McMahon of Connecticut have read about 80. Green of Rhode Island, 20; Lodge of Massachusetts, 15; and Hickenloper of Iowa, who was loudest for the files, has read only four.

ASK DAMAGES. Two damage claims aggregating $40,000 are the basis of a superior court suit on file against Ethan Wade Aldridge, whose car collided at Santa Ana Blvd. and N. Main st. Santa Ana, last March 22 with a car driven by Bedford E. Wood, who asks $30,000 for injuries. Wythema Edensizer, passenger in Wood's car, sued for $10,000.

Thought for a Day

By Chester Ferris

"A Thought for a Day" is written by Chester Ferris, of Anaheim. Mr. Ferris is a retired Congregational minister, who has served his church in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, and Hialeah. He has been a resident of California since 1905, and has written for a number of magazines and newspapers. "A Thought for a Day" will be a regular feature of the Gazette.

ARE WE FRIENDLY IN ANAHEIM?

Whether we find a community friendly or not, depends upon the spirit we bring with us. "What kind of people are there here?" a newcomer asks in Anaheim.

"What kind of folks did you have where you came from?" is replied.

"Oh, they were a hard bunch; we didn't like them."

"Well that is about what you will meet here!"

"If you would have friends, you must show yourself friendly," is an old adage coined from experience.

When you attend a church dinner with 100 men of different denominations you assume you are among friends. And so you are. But you could come and go and affirm "they are the coldest bunch I ever saw."

Well, you enter, and perhaps one or two greet you—a stranger. They do not know you and pass you by. Maybe the man seated next to you will give a greeting, perhaps not. They are not sure, not inhuman. Maybe shy, perhaps a bit indifferent. Their speaker expatiates enthusiastically on some phase of the gospel of love and he is roundly applauded.

But such a thing as a little bit of friendship for the stranger beside them is not grasped. What an opportunity to express the very rudiments of friendly interest, and it is passed by.

Fact is, some people are born friendly, some achieve friendliness, and others have friendliness thrust upon them. You are born affectionate, trustful, sympathetic, and in the early years that is fostered, so by nature you are friendly. Quickly you respond to the smiles and tears of others. Even more, interested in people, you find a way into their hearts. How fortunate you are! Therein lies happiness.

Or by temperament, reserved and self-contained, you are slow to show your feelings. Why? Because he caught a pleasant expression on your face. Or you are loitering on the street. An utter stranger stops to say: "I surely like your smile!" . . . No one so poor as he who is unfriendly. No one so rich as he who is possessed of the loving heart. And it can be achieved by appreciating people with the desire to help them, and by word and deed giving oneself to them.

Here you are in a service club. Glibly we repeat the motto, "we serve," or "we build," or recount the good deeds of the club to the community. But the visitor comes in. There are the elected handshakers who greet him.

He is invited to stand and is applauded. He is officially invited to come again. But does the man seated next to him give a friendly talk, or does the member across the table? That is a far better indication of friendly spirit than official recognition. It is strange that so excellent a lot of city leaders do not know how to enjoy making the stranger feel at home by an interested word.

On the other hand the visitor may make up for their lack by his own ready question and remark.

And a third group have friendliness thrust upon them. Such are the politician, the business man, workers in church or social agencies. "How many a grocer has lost good customers by a grumpy manner. A pleasant bearing sells more goods than the most famous weekly cash bonuses. Friendliness is the stock in trade of the politician. True it should be genuine. If he really likes folks it is a great asset.

perity and Florida's new millions in the concentrate boom fails to register with the packing house laborer and the Main Street merchants of citrus towns. They haven't seen it.

Retail business has been far from what it was last Spring. Take-home pay of citrus workers has been greatly reduced, and many packing plant communities have suffered acutely.

According to reports of the Florida State Employment Service many citrus payrolls in Polk and Highland counties are down from 50 to 75 per cent for the season.

Jobless Pay Used Up. Under this drastic reduction, the worst is yet to come. Unemployment compensation, based on payrolls, long since has been used, and there will be none this Summer as in the past to carry workers through the off-season.

An idea of the impact on the economy of the West Coast may be obtained from talking to any store owner, at Winter Garden, Tavares, Winter Haven, Frostproof, Lakeland, Bartow or any other town where citrus is a large economic factor. Payroll checks that should be fluttering in for Summer finery, used cars and other such luxuries are a rarity these days. The contrast is, most noticeable, of course, in the smaller places.

But with an estimated citrus employment of 30,000 persons for most of the year, at least, the change also can be felt in largest distribution centers.

At the beginning of March, the employment service reported 10,453 workers were employed in eastern Polk county, leaving out Lakeland and Bartow, and in Highlands county, an estimated third of those throughout the citrus belt.

Not The Whole Story. The total figure is around 20 per cent below that of last year, but it does not begin to tell the story.

If a person works a few hours a month he is counted as being employed with no differentiation as to time. While the number of persons working 20 per cent, the FSES Winter Haven office believes the total payroll is off more than 50 per cent.

J. C. Strickland, Florida Citrus Mutual's fresh fruit division manager, estimated that half the state's 350 'fresh fruit packing houses' had been closed since Christmas. Some planned to re-open briefly to handle a late Valencia crop.

Already, chambers of commerce in some towns are beginning to think about ways and means of shifting the emphasis of their economies away from citrus.

Muri E. Pace, general manager of the United Growers and Shippers Association, a fresh fruit organization, pointed out that much of the impact of the mushrooming concentrate industry and high fruit price, was falling indirectly on many allied interests.

He mentioned telegraph and telephone volume which was considerable business under normal fresh fruit marketing and now is gone. Since concentrate takes only one seventeenth of the freight space as fresh fruit, most of it is being hauled by truck, local railroad, icing and other payrolls are greatly reduced. The crate business is hard hit along with manufacturers (and vendors) in other packing house equipment.

"Community profits on fresh fruit shipments used to run above 25 cents a box," Pace said. "All that is gone to the extent that concentrate replaces fresh fruit." Many packing house owners are wondering what to do with their idle houses and machinery. The Winter Garden Citrus Growers Co-operative tried to solve its problem by building a concentrate plant which cost more than $750,000. Although its output has been sold three years ahead, its members are admittedly not happy about their situation.

Fertilizer men and other suppliers are becoming concerned as local customers decrease and grove properties are being turned into lower hands which bypass retail levels.

Plan Summer Recreation Program For All Age Groups

Summer recreational activities aplenty, sufficient to satisfy nearly every sporting demand, are scheduled to commence with the closing of school, according to a report from City Recreation Director Don Derr.

Juvenile Leagues, featuring baseball, swimming, basketball, track, rifle shooting and touch football, get underway June 19.

Sponsored by the local merchants, the activities are open to boys eight through 14 who live in the Anaheim Union High School district. Activities start daily at 10 a.m. in the City Park.

A typical day would include baseball in the morning and basketball and swimming in the afternoon.

Leagues will consist of two divisions, one for boys 12 and under and the other for those 13 through 14. Team uniforms will be issued during the second week of competition.

Trophies for winning teams and individuals who maintain high sportsmanship records will be given at the close of the summer activities.

Prospective participants should sign up with Derr as soon as school closes.

Thursday nights throughout the summer will be given over to roller skating. Place is City Park tennis courts. Music and supervision will be provided by the recreation department.

Instruction in various activities is also on the summer slate. Tennis class lessons for children under junior high age will commence June 26 at City Park under the direction of Mrs. Bob Williams. Sign-up time is June 19 at City Park Recreation Office.

Additional net classes for players up through high school age will be conducted on the high school courts by Colonist coach Bill Cook.

Homeowners Win in Yard Beauty Contest

Sixteen home owners share $130 worth of merchandise certificates following judging of the Yard Beautification contest last week. Contest was staged by the Anaheim chamber of commerce city beautification committee, John Ganahl, chairman.

Judges, Mrs. John Craddock and Mrs. S. K. Watters of the Anaheim Garden club, and Mrs. George Kohlenberger of the Garden section of the Anaheim Ebell club, noted some confusion over contest rules among contestants. Yards were judged on a basis of improvement between beginning and end of the contest. Some yards, judges said, were just as beautiful at the end of the contest as at the beginning, which meant they didn't qualify for prizes.

Order of finishing was: Northwest section—Arthur McCarthy, 218 N. Palm; E. M. Proud, 619 W. North; Carl Reinert, 619 N. Helena; Mrs. Arnt Thueson, 852 N. Janss.

Southeast section—Mrs. R. O. Quarton, 703 S. Philadelphia; Mrs. F. Navarro, 317 S. Bush; W. C. Kundig, 830 S. Los Angeles; L. O. Peterson, 118 S. Olive.

Northeast section—J. M. Casey, 313 E. Adele; Mrs. L. H. Brown, 125 N. Placentia; Christie Vail, 758 N. Claudina; Bradford Jones, 1850 E. Sycamore;

Southwest section—T. K. M. Smith, 711 S. Dickel; John E. Brownfield, 115 S. Ohio; Mrs. E. M. Clemmer, 119 W. South; A. Sisson, 119 S. Ohio.

In the group class there was only one entry. The combined winners were A. S. Koch, J. Goodell, J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Carlo and L. Bonas of 143, 147, 153, 159 and 163 Evelyn dr., respectively. Members of this group split 10 sacks of fertilizer donated by the Downey Fertilizer co., through the R. L. Randall co., 133 Philadelphia, Whittier.

For the individual prizes, merchandise certificates were awarded. Fifteen dollars went to first place winner, $10 to second, $5 to third and $2.50 to fourth.

Merchandise certificates were donated by the following firms: Pressel, Perry and Pressel, Martenet Hardware, Nadorff Hardware, Anaheim Feed and Fuel, Manchester Feed and Fuel, Anaheim Auto Glass; Neff's Paint and Glass, Schaeffler Paint Store, Lund and Sons, Lee Nursery, Gordon Nursery, Kirk's Nursery, Walter Taylor Lumber Company, Gibbs Lumber Company, and Patten Blinn Lumber Company.
