

NATIONAL OUTLOOK

Three Significant Business Items

Evidence piling to establish that the current business recovery is spreading and becoming stronger continues to accumulate. Three recent items of this nature are especially noteworthy.

First, according to the Department of Commerce we are on the verge of an upturn in business investment in plant and equipment.

This is important because one of the outstanding characteristics of the recession has been the sharpness and size of the decline in this figure. The high of such investment was in the third quarter of last year when, on an annual basis, was just short of $36 billion. Since then there has been a decline quarter after quarter, and it was believed that it would be well into 1959 before an increase was shown. For the second quarter of this year the investment in plant and equipment was at an annual rate of $30.3 billion. It is now estimated that the third quarter will also reach $30.3 billion. The fourth quarter is expected to rise to $31 billion.

The basis of these projections is a survey of business plans by the Department of Commerce. Frequently the projections vary from the actual figure by a small percentage, but they are as reliable as it is possible to make them and it is quite possible that the fourth quarter will be higher than the figure cited.

The questionnaire used by the Department of Commerce does not ask business firms for reasons for changing plans. It is evident, however, that the projected increase for the fourth quarter reflects an improved feeling about business prospects. Other factors also may be involved such as increased labor costs and more severe competition, but none of these individually, nor collectively, can be as important as the business outlook.

Second, the rate of inventory liquidation is slowing down. The decline still continues, but not as rapidly as was true toward the end of last year and earlier this year.

Inventory liquidation has been another outstanding characteristic of this recession, as it is of almost all periods of business adjustment. Normally, too, the liquidation continues somewhat beyond the upturn of business.

Figures on inventories are collected by the Department of Commerce. In some industries the statistics are not as good as one might like, but they are the best that can be obtained and generally are regarded as the most authoritative in existence. The high for manufacturing and trade, both wholesale and retail, was August and September of last year. The total was the same for both months, $91.3 billion. Then a decline started which at an annual rate was $8 to 9 billion.

The latest figure is for July. It shows a decline of $500 million, which would be at an annual rate of $6 billion.

The principal factors leading to changes in inventories are the outlook for business, adequacy of supplies, and anticipated price variations of appreciable magnitude. With unlimited capacity over the wide part of our production industries, and with many prices showing no inclination to rise, the decline in the rate of inventory liquidation is encouraging.

Third, in the opinion of the Federal Reserve Board the recovery is of sufficient strength to warrant keeping a tight rein on credit expansion. This was indicated by approving an increase in the discount rate at two more Federal Reserve banks and through open market operations holding the free reserves of member commercial banks at a relatively low level. The discount rate is the charge made by Reserve banks on loans to member commercial banks. Free reserves is the term used to designate the amount of reserves held by member banks above that legally required, less borrowing from the Reserve banks.

Economists of the Federal Reserve system have been convinced for some time that the low of the recession was last April. The figures more and more bear out that contention, and the Reserve Board has been following a policy in line with that conclusion.

With a reversal in the trend of investment in plant and equipment; with a slowing down in the rate of inventory liquidation; and, with the Federal Reserve making it clear that it believes we are on the upgrade, it would be difficult to maintain that the current upturn is a false dawn.

The Brooklyn Bridge has more cables on one side than the other. Faulty cables were supplied, so additional cables were strung to make both sides of the bridge of equal strength.

Almost half of all the eggs sold in the United States are produced in five states—California, Minnesota, Iowa, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey.

Tax Economics Bulletin states that in the last 20 years of no more than $4.5 million of highway user tax funds has been diverted the non-road purpose. And the trend of this diversion has been upward in late years.

City Hostess Club Plans Oct. Program

Sixty members of the City Hostess Club were in attendance at the September luncheon and general meeting which was held in the Guild Room of the Greenview Inn. Autumn was the theme used by Faye Anderson in the decorations and the tables were beautifully decorated with floral arrangements using large yellow chrysanthemums, brown cattails and red maple leaves.

Mrs. Margaret Peterson, director of the City Hostesses, extended a welcome to the guests and introduced the City Hostesses Faye Anderson, Ruth Noble, Lorene Mullen and Patricia Davis. Newcomers attending for the first time and introduced were Pat Cooper, Barbara, Rosemary, Loretta, Neil Davis, Vera Lupton, Carol Lydell, May Orton, Edna Pentz, Ellen Phillips, Helen Rheinboldt, Virginia Stewart, Celeste Stocking, Lavonne Wickman, Marie Wadsworth and Lorene Wadsworth. Mrs. Bennett Marcus was introduced as the newcomer from the greatest distance. She originally came from Rome, Italy, and is making her home in Anaheim where her husband Dr. Bennett Marcus is establishing his practice in obstetrics and gynecology.

Following a delightful three-course luncheon, Mrs. Margaret Peterson introduced Mrs. Juanita Wetbrook, a teacher of dress design and supervisor of the home-making department in the adult education division of the Downey school, who spoke on "Coloring and color analysis." She described the five figure types and fabrics for each type. "Good grooming is an art" she said. "When you dress properly you are creating an art form just as if you are painting a picture. You must think about line, area, value, texture, and color." She explained the 14 points of good grooming. She followed her talk with personal color analysis for Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Paul Greenwood, Mrs. J. Tom Allen, Mrs. Wilbur White, and Mrs. Wm. C. Green, pointing out their best colors by use of swatches of colored material in various hues.

The next general meeting will be on October 14th and will be a luncheon and program at the Irvine Coast Country Club. Sections meeting will be the bowling group each Thursday morning and the card section the fourth Wednesday of each month. Any newcomers to the area interested in any of the activities of the group may telephone KE 5-5614 for information.

Type, Age of Kenny Patients Almost Completely Changed

Minneapolis, Minn.—Type and age of patients receiving Kenny treatment and rehabilitation under the research program of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation changed completely during the past 12 months, according to Dr. Paul M. Ellwood, M.D., medical director.

"Overwhelming majority of cases now are strokes, cerebral palsy, poliomyelitis and paralysis from spinal cord injuries," Dr. Ellwood said. "It is gratifying to see how rapidly the Kenny staff of medical people, social workers, psychologists, and social workers and others have been able to turn in attention from polio patients to victims of other crippling illnesses. Denmark has been a pioneer in this respect."

Handling of stroke cases is one of the major medical problems facing the nation today, Dr. Ellwood pointed out. It is estimated that there are two million stroke patients, with paralysis on at least one side of the body, in the United States, he declared. The Kenny foundation is "pioneering in the treatment of these victims of the stroke," Dr. Ellwood said.

"While confining major attention to the treatment of stroke patients, the Kenny foundation remains devoted and equipped for treatment of polio cases of some type and rehabilitation of those who still remain disabled from having been victims of the dread crippling in the past," Dr. Ellwood said.

As treatment changes in age of patients, Dr. Ellwood pointed out, the Kenny foundation is constantly with the entire medical community in new developing ways and more attention to the disabilities and diseases of old age and a few years ago were regarded as incurable.

Reporting that the number of strokes over 45 in the U.S. has increased 300 per cent since 1900, Dr. Ellwood said, "The Kenny foundation is now being able to treat a great many of these old-age cases, and it is gratifying to see that this is a trend of the future. It is gratifying to see that this is a trend of the future. It is gratifying to see that this is a trend of the future."

GIVE THE UNITED WAY LAW IN ACTION

DEEP ROOTS Most of us respect the law, yet represent a parking ticket. Most of us admit we have too many laws, but ask for more.

Law grows out of our customs, needs, reason—in short, human nature.

The law recognizes two kinds of wrongdoing.

1. "Public" wrongs or crimes are offenses against society.

2. Civil law covers the law of contracts and of "private" wrongs ("torts") which violate personal rights.

To put down crime we have police, district attorneys, and courts.

And then to protect the innocent our law sets up safeguards: The right to a fair jury trial, the writ of habeas corpus, proof under rules of evidence, the right to a speedy and public trial, to bail, to freedom from cruel and unusual punishment, and to the aid of counsel.

California has no customary "common law crimes," but our lawmakers must spell out each crime.

As for civil law, the old English common law (custom) gives us much common sense. "New" law is often ancient principles applied to new things in new situations: A train engineer coming to a crossing should "exercise due diligence"; the foreman of a blasting crew should behave in a "reasonably cautious" manner; one should carry out a contract with no performance date within a "reasonable time," etc.

Our new law again still carries traces of the difference between law and equity. You can sue under a contract, say (1) at law for damages, or (2) in equity for a court order to stop someone from doing something he shouldn't or to do something he should.

Note: California lawyers offer this column to you may know about our laws.

Kenny Foundation Sponsoring Probe of Neuromuscular Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—Medical research into the cause and possible cure of a number of neuromuscular diseases and disorders including polio, continues as one of the prime objectives of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation, according to Marvin L. Kline, national executive director.

Now in its 15th year, the Sister Kenny foundation recently set up an auxiliary organization, the American Rehabilitation foundation, headed by Dr. Frank H. Krusen, of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn.

Among the efforts of the American Rehabilitation foundation is a project to develop educational seminars for physicians and other health workers that offer training for such persons so that they may provide better care for the handicapped.

The committee also plans to publish and distribute widely a series of abstracts of important papers on the rehabilitation of chronically ill and disabled persons, according to Kline.

Dr. Paul M. Ellwood, Jr., national assistant medical director of the Kenny foundation, is serving as executive secretary of the new ARF. The ARF is a committee of medical experts in the rehabilitation of the disabled from leading medical centers across the nation.

The Kenny foundation has made grants for medical research to universities and individual doctors throughout the country. Such grants, Kline pointed out, are made possible by public support of the annual Kenny fund appeal, such as the one now under way. The projects include a study of employable convulsive persons, cleft palate rehabilitation, medical problems of the chronically crippled and basic studies of muscle function in health and disease.

Among the nationwide Kenny-sponsored projects are: physical therapy, University of Pennsylvania hospital, Philadelphia, Pa.; rehabilitation of children with congenital heart disease, Children's Hospital, Los Angeles, Calif.; study of brain reaction in epilepsy, Montreal Neurological Institute, Montreal, Canada; child rehabilitation, University of Colorado, Denver, Colo.; central nervous system disturbances, Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md.; muscle-testing techniques in neurological diseases, Biophysics laboratory, Bethesda, Md.; microchemical techniques, Washington University school of medicine, St. Louis, Mo.; surgery for Parkinson's disease, University of Washington, Seattle, Wash.; brain function investigation, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis., and the study of cerebral sclerosis, University of Oregon, Portland, Ore.

TWO LITTLE PATIENTS who received Kenny treatment and rehabilitation for neuromuscular disabilities at a Kenny facility look on as Al Capp, one of the nation's most widely-read cartoonists, draws a sketch of "LI" Abner." His well-known comic strip character, Capp is serving for the second consecutive year as national volunteer campaign chairman for the annual fund appeal of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation.

The atom
for S. P.

One of the most important jobs we have at Southern Pacific is keeping our fleet of 2,000 diesel locomotives operating at peak efficiency. Recently we equipped two locomotives for standing tests with "hot" or radioactive piston rings. Geiger tubes count the particles of metal worn off the rings. As a result, we're now getting information in 6 to 8 hours that ordinary tests could give us only after 1 to 2 years. These tests, conducted jointly with Standard Oil Company of California, tell us the effects of different fuels, lubricants and improved engine parts on engine operation and wear.

Here is another example of how S. P. makes use of the latest developments in science to provide better, more dependable transportation—a complete, modern service that we'd like to have you try.

The 8-state Golden Empire served by Southern Pacific is one of the fastest-growing and most productive areas in the U. S. It is our job to match this vitality with dynamic, resourceful transportation service.
