Chavos To Appear Before City Council

'CONFLICT OF INTEREST' CHARGE TO BE WEIGHED

City Planning Commissioner James Chavos, under fire for statements made 11 days ago at a meeting of the City Planning Commission, has been called to meet in secret session with the City Council and the Planning Commission Tuesday morning at 8.

The Council decided, at its regular Tuesday evening meeting, to investigate the charges made by Chavos that "there has been a conflict of interest" between Lin-Brook Hardware, Lincoln Ave., and the City.

Chavos has been under heavy critical fire ever since he made the statement during a hearing on Lin-Brook Hardware's petition to secure more parking space Monday before last.

Councilman Jack Dutton opened the discussion concerning Chavos following the completion of regular Council business Tuesday evening.

"If these charges are true then we must do something about them," Dutton said. He added, "And if they are not, then Mr. Chavos has not only cast doubt on the City Council and the Planning Commission, but also the entire City government."

Original plan was to call Chavos before the Council only, but Mayor Rex Coon pointed out that since the recording tape, used to record the happenings of the Planning Commission meeting, was garbled, and only the written minutes were available, it would be in the best interest of fairness to Chavos to have the Commissioners also present.

The Council has the right to meet in secret session with Chavos and the Planning Commission under the category "personnel."

6-Story Calif. Federal Branch Opens in City

City Leaders, County Guests To Take Part In July 2 Ceremonies

Howard Edgerton, president of California Federal Savings, announced this week that Monday, July 2, had been set as the date for the grand opening of the firm's new six-story, 65,000-sq.-ft. office building on the northeast corner of Euclid and Crescent Aves., Anaheim.

Edgerton also disclosed that some 4,000 persons had been invited to a series of preview showings beginning tonight and continuing through next week. The opening celebration will continue Tuesday, July 10.

Some 250 club women have been invited to attend tonight's initial preview-fashion show on the top floor of the new landmark in the Broadway-Anaheim Shopping Center area. The Ed Harrell Agency of Santa Ana will provide the attractions.

Other receptions will be held Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings next week, together with Customer Preview Days which will be observed from Wednesday through Friday next week.

In announcing plans for the official "unlocking" ceremony at 5:30 p.m., Thursday, June 28, Edgerton said that he is invited to join him and the firm's officers in the event include Anaheim Mayor Rex Coon; Mayor Jordan and George E. Strachan, respectively president and manager of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce; Edward Carter, president of the Power-War; Donald Bucklin, president of Robinson's; and Rex Ben Biehn, president of Silverman's and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, who also is a director of California Federal.

Edgerton said a helicopter and three cranes, complete with a team of four horses, will add color to the official "unlocking" event. Civic leaders will arrive by helicopter on the runway just adjacent to California Federal's new edifice, where they will enter the state coach to be transported to the main entrance.

Instead of the traditional ribbon-cutting, dignitaries will gain entrance to the building by using an elaborate key to open an Old West shackle-type padlock, circa 1885, hanging from a chain across the front door. A simulated "strong box" will be taken from the stage coach into the new savings quarters, suggesting the first deposit being made there.

Officials also will open a community room, one of the building's outstanding features, that will accommodate up to 125 persons and will be made available to local groups immediately after the opening. It is located in the basement of the completely air conditioned structure.

The firm's new savings quarters will be located on the ground floor, under management of Donald L. Fylypa, an assistant vice president of California Federal.

These quarters will be opened to the general public simultaneously with the building on July 2, and will serve as the Orange County headquarters of the nation's largest federal savings association with assets in excess of $4 billion.

A new, enlarged loan department, headed by Leonard E. Rodgers with a staff of eight persons, will be located on the second floor.

In extending an invitation for the general public to visit his new office and tour the building, Fylypa said a most unusual view of the entire Anaheim area may be seen from the sixth floor.

The world's second largest time and temperature sign will revolve atop the new structure.

The bowing trophy also went to Sallyday and he received a gavel as outgoing president of the Arnold Air Society.

An 'Unpopular' Stand

The time has come to take an unpopular stand. Unpopular, that is, if some of the talk floating around City Hall, the reports printed by an area newspaper, and the several phone calls we have received are to be taken seriously.

Several weeks ago, a member of the Planning Commission, a life-long resident of Anaheim, Calvin Pebley, was turned back in his bid to build multiple family units, in the Red Knott Ave. area, in a spectacular, though somewhat theatrical show of strength by the Westridge Home Owners' Association.

Two weeks ago, the leaders of the Westridge group, Michael Zehra and John Simpson announced an amalgamation of six home-owners' groups and civic associations into the Anaheim Council of Home Owners' Organization.

It was through these two incidents that Zehra was catapulted into the headlines — and smears.

Chavos Charge

Eleven days ago, a City Planning Commissioner, James Chavos, made an unfortunate statement at the regular Monday morning meeting of the Planning Commission, a council of the City and Lin-Brook Hardware.

This remark, made in the heat of emotion, fostered by a six-year battle between him and his neighbors and Lin-Brook, has brought such a barrage of editorial and vocal shrapnel on Chavos that we spoke to him last Saturday, the man was a near nervous wreck.

If these smears and whispers against Zehra, the home owners' Council, and Chavos would have stuck to the facts things would not have been so bad. But there have been near libelous statements made in the papers and board, unfounded generalizations and insinuations whispered against all three.

The feeling generally is that the Home Owners' Council (ACHOO) is a pressure group, that Zehra is interested in the group for ulterior motives and that Chavos is some kind of scoundrel who is behind a plot to discredit both the City and the "free enterprise" system.

As far as ACHOO is concerned, it is certainly too early to tell what their political intentions are, although in a letter to the City Council, it was specifically pointed out that the group was not interested in politics as such.

Other Pressure Groups

At far as being a "pressure group," what organization in the City that is worthy of existence is not a pressure group of one sort or another? Under this broad generalization, is not the Chamber of Commerce, The Anaheim Residents' Association, The Downtown Merchants, even the various fraternal and service clubs — and you and I — pressure groups?

These people have in the past fought for what they felt concerned the area in which they live. They opposed Pebley in the far west section because they felt multiple housing did not fit in with the residential scheme of the neighborhood. The Lincoln Park Civic Association (with Mr. Chavos) fought Lin-Brook because they felt the proximity of the hardware store affected the value of their homes; the Sunkist Civic Association, in the eastern part of the city, fought the location of an airport there because they thought it was out of character with the area, a detriment to their children, and a danger to their property.

Other groups and individuals have appeared before the Council for the same or similar reasons.

Don't properly owners have a right to fight for the protection of the value of their property? And if they feel a closer cooperation between the various groups can better protect their interests, don't they have a right to form a council through which they can exchange experience, ideas, and information?

Council Pressure

There is the charge that it will be difficult for the Council to come to decisions with such a strong bloc against them and that ACHOO is not representative of the majority of the people they claim they represent.

In the first instance, the bringing forth of pressure is a thing every elective body must face. Pressure and lobbying is not a unique invention with ACHOO. Go to the State Capital in Sacramento and you will find the same old story repeated over and over. This is one of the reasons why public officials are made aware of the wants and desires of certain citizens.

How representative a group is, is for the official to decide and to act accordingly. If it is representative of a sizeable bloc of citizens in an area, then they have no recourse but to listen, or take the consequences, if not, they are free to ignore it. In this second instance, whether ACHOO is representative of all the homeowners in the City, the question is an invention. Nowhere does ACHOO claim to be representative of (Please Turn to Page Two)

Modernizing May Be Answer, Says Expert

Each succeeding year brings new needs, new ideas and new improvements in the home building industry.

But better utilization of space, better design and new building materials often times are neutralized by skyrocketing labor, construction and land costs.

Because of the ever-rising costs — which are transferred into the sales price — the average homeowner is reluctant to move from an established residence to one which offers him the "extra's" he would like to have.

"What was considered to be a few years ago," notes Guy Boschee, administrator of the American Home Modernizing Institute, Anaheim, "is now considered standard equipment."

"Two or more bathrooms, family rooms, breakfast bars and built-in units are just a few of the features almost taken for granted by the person searching for a new home."

"In order to purchase a new home with these features and not lose money on his present home," Boschee said, "a purchaser often must sacrifice construction standards, size of the new house or size of the parcel of land on which the house is built."

"In essence, each compromise constitutes an indirect loss of money."

"A family that moves from a home with two large bedrooms to a home with small bedrooms is a very often worse off than before they made the move."

"In other words," said Boschee, "a family that moves from an outdated home on a large lot to a home with 'all the trimmings' on to get used to the physical squeeze."

What then is the answer for a growing family that needs additional space? (Please Turn to Page Eight)

No Bread With One Oddball

By DORIS LEE

What we need in our house is an oddball or two. Oddballs not only add color to a family group, but also cement it with strength of character.

John Stuart Mills, the British essayist, said in 1830, "Eccentricity has always abounded when and where strength of character has abounded."

What a terrific combination for family life — entertainment plus solidarity.

I brought up the subject the other day as we sat in the kitchen waiting for me to get up and make dinner. Tony was putting the finishing touches on a coffee-cake pie. Linda and I were munching yeast cakes. Chuck was locked up in the bedroom closet with the telephone and Charlie was curled up on the breakfast nook seat, his eyes half-closed.

"What we need around here," I said, looking at yeast crumbs from my finger, "is an oddball or two."

"What's for?" asked Linda. "Aren't we happy as we are?"

"Yes, but with eccentricity goes strength of character. And that we need — strength of character. Some of the great men of history were oddballs — Ben Franklin with his kite, Mayor LaGuardia with his fire engines. Do you realize if I had strength of character I'd be speeding around getting dinner instead of sitting here eating yeast cakes?"

"That's certainly true," said Charlie, yawning.

"And if your father had it, he'd be out moving the lawn right now," I added.

"And Chuck wouldn't be out in the garage putting his car back together," said Linda.

"Sure," I said, "and you'd be..."

In my bedroom picking up all the hair rollers and pins you dropped all over the floor two hours ago.

"I'll do it after dinner," she said, popping the last piece of yeast cake into her mouth.

"Well, you'd better get it done before I go in there for my yoga exercise. There's hardly room to sit on the floor."

"I've been thinking," said Charlie from the depths of the breakfast room, "maybe we should get two Volkswagens instead of one convertible."

"Whatever for?" I asked. "So you can have your own car?" he said.

"But I hate Volkswagens," I cried, getting excited. "They make me feel like I'm driving backwards."

"Also, they wouldn't take up much room in the garage," he continued.

"What room? Chuck's already laid claim to it with his 1983 MG and his 1978 Model A Ford."

"Well, if he doesn't get them running pretty soon, he's going to have to get them out of there," he said, yawning again.

"Gee," Linda murmured, clutching her stomach, "that yeast cake didn't hit me right. I feel like I'm driving backwards."

"You may have eaten a moldy one," I said.

She covered a hand over her mouth. "Ugh! Why didn't you tell me?"

"I thought I had gotten rid of them all," I said. "I threw them in the sink and ran water over them. Cold water, of course. I was afraid hot water might make them rise and overflow the sink."

"Isn't there some other way to improve my diet?" she asked blearily.

"You could eat celery but it might kill your broom."

"There she is!" exclaimed Tony, holding up the coffee pie piled high with whipped cream. Looks like I'm the only one with strength of character around here. While you guys were talking I made myself useful."

"I wouldn't put it like that exactly," I said. "I didn't 'make myself useful' and 'mess balls'."

The broom closed opened and Chuck emerged mopping his brow. "Gad, it's hot in there," he said. "Say, may I borrow your car tonight?"

"I guess so. Want a piece of the pie before dinner? We might as well eat it now. It'll be some time before dinner's ready. Move over, Linda. Don't wake up your father. We'll let him sleep awhile."

"What kind of pie is it?" asked Chuck, getting down the pie plate.

"Coffee," said Tony.

"Coffee pie?" Chuck gave him a long look. "What are you, some kind of an oddball?"

"Yeah, I guess so," he said, reddening with pleasure.

Heilbron Is Grad Speaker

"The Changing Role of Education in California" was the theme of the commencement address delivered at Orange County State College by Louis H. Heilbron, Chairman of the Trustees of the California State Colleges, last Sunday.

Speaking to 365 seniors, the largest graduating class in the State College's three-year history, Heilbron placed major emphasis on the importance of a liberal arts education, the uniquely changing role of California education, and the part the candidates for Bachelor of Arts degrees will be expected to play in this educational system.

The chairman of the Board of Trustees proposed that the state colleges, as the principal institution for the training of teachers in California, are uniquely equipped to engage in continuing textbook research and analysis, thereby serving the people of California and the education profession to a necessary and major degree.

One of his chief concerns, the aforementioned area newspaper, with less than 20,000 paid circulation, has presumed to speak for 35,000 citizens in circulating a report concerning ACHOO, Zehra and Chavos.

We have received, since the Peleby decision, several phone calls suggesting we check Zehra's bookstores, Dearborn, Mich., concerning his past, intimating that we might find something interesting there. This vicious suggestion has been floating around the City for several weeks. A tactic of this sort is not only juvenile, it's nauseating.

In the first place, if those in the community responsible for starting against Zehra were so interested in the public welfare as they claimed, why didn't they check it out themselves and then come to the newspapers with some solid facts.

For those interested, we did make a surface check of Zehra and found nothing derogatory. The man has, in fact, an impressive list of references and background.

He was a charter member of the CIO and, at one time, owned five restaurants and presently, is operator of a public relations business, Ideas Unlimited.

One of the intimations leveled against him, presumably suggested from his earlier affiliation with the CIO, is that he may have some communist connections. The fact of the matter is, from what we can determine, he is a Republican and a church and active supporter of Richard Nixon.

Who's To Run The City? One member of the Planning Commission asked us a week or so ago, "What are we going to do about this guy? Are we going to let someone who has been in the City for only six months tell us how to run it?"

Well, six months or six hours. Zehra is a homeowner and has every right to be concerned with his property — and he certainly has not given any indication that he will ever run the City. Those who level this charge seem terribly concerned about "who's going to run the City" and many of them are connected, one way or another, with the City government.

Chavos' charges that there is a "conflict of interest" between the City and Linbrook was an ill-advised, to say the least. But viewed in the background, it certainly is excusable.

Chavos vs. Linbrook. Chavos, his wife, Stella, and members of the Lincoln Park City Association have been building Linbrook for about eight years — since 1964. Some 20 public hearings have been held during that time, concerning various rezoning and expansion plans for the hardware store.

These hearings have been bitter and strongly contested. Neither can think of the other without the taste of biting gall. It has passed from the realm of logic to pure emotion.

Mayor Ray Coons made a similar observation Tuesday. He attempted to strangle the matter out personally three weeks ago and was accused of interfering.

One of the owners of Linbrook told Mrs. Chavos "not to be silly" when she asked a question concerning future development on the property east of the store's present location.

So bitter have the feelings become that the face of the fact that west Lincoln Area must, eventually, go C-1, many of the residents would secretly like to see Linbrook completely end in an instant and the present site turned into a park.

French Art of Drying Flowers To Be Taught

The Anaheim Park and Recreation Department, constantly expanding their activities program, announces a new class, "Les Arts des Fleurs," will begin next Wednesday, for eight weeks.

Those familiar with this program say that the course is from early French art, now classed as a "lost art" in which flowers are preserved by certain drying processes and then arranged upon a suitable background (often fabric) and framed to form a picture. Depending upon selection and arrangement of flowers a traditional or modern mood may be created.

Included in the course will be flowers in miniature containers, accompanied by small pieces of driftwood, pebbles and tiny figurines. These miniatures often form charming ornaments for coffee tables, small shelves and the collections of hobbyists.

The classes will begin Wednesday from 8:30-10 a.m. at the Spencer House, 3500 W. Broadway. Fee for the series is $4.75. Pre-registration is required. Registration for the Park and Recreation Department at 600 N. Los Angeles St.

Opera Group Names Patron Committee, Schedules Reception for August 5

Plans for the Festival of Opera were discussed and a patron reception committee named at a recent meeting of Orange County opera enthusiasts. The group formulated a letter of invitation which will go out to leading Orange County citizens and to persons interested in opera, inviting them to become patrons of the Festival of Opera group.

A champagne reception has been planned for patrons to be held at the home of Mrs. Lewis F. Moulton in Laguna Beach on August 5. The reception will honor patrons and also the persons who will play leading parts in the three operas scheduled for the first Festival of Opera which is to be staged in Irvine Bowl in Laguna Beach.

Mrs. Moulton, honorary Festival of Opera chairman, announced the patron committee members as follows: Mesdames Lloyd Seidel, Bernhard Anderson, William C. Chadwell, Hill Chamberlin, Mary De Bus, Allan Kirk, Harry Lawrence, Sylvain Robert, T. K. Sun, Byron Swearingen and Howard Wilson. Mrs. Joan Irvine Burt was named chairman of the committee.

The first annual Festival of Opera will present three operas for the 1962 season: Carmen on August 24 and 25, La Traviata on August 31 and September 1, and Barber of Seville on September 7 and 8. Sylvain Robert is the general director and Eugene Ober the conductor for the operas.

Among the stars who will sing in the productions this year are William Olvis and Margaret Rogers, famous Metropolitan stars, and Kathryn Grayson, famed screen and stage soprano.

Informational brochures and opera tickets may be obtained now from the Festival of Opera, 650 Broadway, Laguna Beach, and all Mutual Ticket Agencies.

Post Office to Impose Ban on Odd-Size Mail January, 1963

The Anaheim Post Office issued a reminder this week that very small and odd-shaped letter-type mail will be banned starting January 1, 1963.

The action, which is a major preliminary step towards standardization of mail sizes — essential of the most efficient use of mechanization — was announced previously in the Federal Register, as well as in trade papers and other publications.

This move towards standardization will eliminate a major source of delay in mail processing — the extremely small and odd kinds of mail which cause trouble in modern canceling machines and other postal mechanization equipment.

The Department emphasized the move is being made with the full cooperation of envelope manufacturers and large mailers, who were commended for their excellent assistance.

Mail less than 3 inches high or 4 1/4 inches long will be banned. It must meet both the height and length minimum standards.

Also proscribed will be pieces that are not of the normal rectangular shape — for example, post cards in the shape of stiles and animals.

At the same time, while there will not be an outright ban, the department will ask mailers, starting January 1, to stop mailing pieces not sealed or secured at all four edges and pieces which are square or virtually square in shape. These types also cause difficulties with mechanical equipment.

Polio Clinic Set By St. Jude Guild

Mrs. Clifford Lokeman of the St. Jude Guild has announced the following dates for the Polio Clinic: June 28, July 26, Aug. 23, Sept. 27. The time is 6:15 p.m.

During May the members worked a total of 1963 hours. The Provisional members have been assigned their duties and the Junior members are being given duties which will greatly assist the Guild during the summer months. The Junior Guild has closed its membership at sixty-five with a waiting list. The members are from eight communities. Nine high schools are represented.

WHAT'S DOING

If you visit Disneyland this summer, you may have a hard time deciding what you enjoyed most. I've been pleased that a number of people have told me how much they liked the Bell System exhibit featuring the Circarama film "America the Beautiful". It's an amazing movie unlike any you've ever seen.

This 360-degree color movie—an exclusive Walt Disney process—takes you on a breath-taking tour of the United States. You can also see how communications link America together

...the newest telephone products and services... and an exhibit showing how phone calls and TV programs might be transmitted by satellite. Admission's free to "America the Beautiful." We're sure you'll enjoy it too.

You might be interested to know that the tax on your phone bill may be lower after July 1st, if Congress votes to drop the 10% Federal Excise Tax you now pay on local phone service.

This is the 20-year-old wartime "luxury tax" imposed on items like furs, jewelry, perfume—and telephones. Well, I'm sure no one considers his telephone a luxury any more than other necessities like gas and electricity.

And, repealing this tax would mean direct savings to you by lowering the cost of local phone service by the full amount of the tax.

Ever wonder how the Telephone Company keeps tabs on all the new homes going up in your town? How they are able to have cable up when you move in and want service? It's all a team effort of Construction and Engineering. Bob Dittmer, Telephone Engineer in Anaheim, is part of this vital team effort and he sees it all plans are made to have service there when you want it.

What will your life be like in the all-electric future?

Electrically produced ultrasonic waves will dry-clean your clothes instantly, right in your closet. You will make a cake or saw wood with cordless appliances...shop by two-way TV-telephone. These new ideas in modern living depend on electricity. And they are only the beginning of the wonderful things to come.

The electric industry, of course, continues to lead in the research to find new ways to use and produce electricity. And logically so. Electricity is our business.

WE HAVE ALREADY PRODUCED IT a number of new and different ways, involving the use of the fuel cells, nuclear energy, thermionic conversion and magnetohydrodynamics.

Whatever the source, electrical energy is limitless, and Southern California Edison will continue to bring you an abundant, dependable supply at the lowest possible rates.

Modernizing

A reliable home modernizing contractor can give the homeowner that extra bathroom, bedroom or family room. He can modernize the present home by making better use of the existing space. And, at the same time, he can add those extra found in the new homes.

Boschke believes that home modernization is the answer. A reliable home modernizing contractor can give the homeowner that extra bathroom, bedroom or family room. He can modernize the present home by making better use of the existing space. And, at the same time, he can add those extra found in the new homes.

"A family doesn't have to leave the neighborhood that it's grown to love. If I don't have to bid fare well to the school, the neighbors, the church and the other factors that make a house a home," Boschke said.

The Anaheim Home Modernizing Institute, located at 309 E. Katella Ave., Anaheim, is a research center and training institute for remodeling contractors.
