TO TELL OF CHILDREN'S HOMES

Rev. G. W. Kohlmeier will add to the delight of the New Year's Eve services when he will address the congregation and show pictures of the different children's homes, among them being the "Anaheim Home," in Kolkheim, Germany, in which local interests center. From 5 to 10 o'clock, Rev. Leuchner, pastor of the German Baptist church, will hold services. Following the address the pictures will be distributed among the congregation gratis. These homes are maintained for the care of needy children, both physically and financially. They are un denominational, many of the children coming from Vienna, where the Catholic religion predominates. The talk of Rev. Kohlmeier will be very interesting and entertaining.

UTO CLUB BUSY FOLLOWING STORM

That the Auto Club of So. Calif. is rendering a very valuable service to the motoring public, especially in the vicinity of the Santa Ana river and surrounding territory, is abundantly evidenced by the number of both personally and telephonically requested road information, made by the local office during the recent rains, which, according to the V. Alta, represented an average of 125 calls.

The Automobile Club of So. Calif., Mr. Allen, was able to make instant answers to all inquiries, through the fact that it has branch offices in the principal cities of Southern California, each of which scouted its territory immediately after the rains commenced, obtaining accurate information as to road conditions and immediately communicating such to the state office in Los Angeles where the reports from branch offices were consolidated.

Each individual office furnished each individual office, enabling all offices to make intelligent replies to all queries regarding road conditions anywhere in the state of California, and also on the continental highways.

The Touring-Information Bureau of the club, continued Mr. Allen, not only collects and distributes accurate road information during the rainy season, but is constantly on the alert, keeping informed as to the conditions of the highways at all times.

MISSION PLAY WILL OPEN SEASON SAT.

The Mission Play by John Steven McGroarty will open its eleventh season at the San Gabriel playhouse Saturday afternoon, Dec. 31, at 2:15 with Frederick Warde portraying the stellar role of Father Junipero Serra, the revered Franciscan padre and Paula Power taking the feminine lead of Josefa Yorda.

Rehearsals are now being held at the San Gabriel playhouse under the supervision of Mr. McGroarty who has just returned from a trip to Spain where he made a study of the archives covering the picturesque period of the early days of California. Many delightful new touches have been added this year to the wonderful play depicting the birth of civilization in the Golden state.

Exclusive Club Members Ex-Convicts

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 29.—Pittsburg has the most unique club in the country. Its membership is made up exclusively of ex-convicts. The institution is known as the Paroling of the Ways Home and is in charge of Robert H. McBride. Its sole motive is to give the man who has finished his "bit" in the state penitentiary here a helping hand as soon as he gets out, find him a job and turn him toward a better life.

In the seven years since the Paroling of the Ways Home was established, McBride has taken care of over 22,000 ex-convicts, and last year 1,230 were fed, sheltered and given a new start.

FRANKLIN TRAVELS IN DEATH VALLEY

Traversing the length of Death Valley, 100 miles of which is below sea level; enjoying the numerous benefits of a desert sandstorm, and bucking six miles of sand dunes were among the many novel and extremely interesting experiences of a Franklin party that recently returned from this notorious valley. Here's the story of their experiences as related by the Bob White Auto Club, Orange county dealers for the Franklin.

The out trip was made via Salinas, Palmdale, Victorville and Barstow, thence across to Death Valley by way of Garlie and Cave Springs. Cave Springs, at an elevation of 6,200 feet, was rather chilly, so the party hustled down the thirteen miles to Saratoga Springs, which is 250 feet above sea level at the south end of Death Valley, in record time.

Saratoga is one of the most interesting of the desert oases. Here the water bubbles up so hot you can't put your hand in it, and flows into a pool whose constant temperature is around 85 degrees.

From Saratoga the Camel proceeded down the valley and the party camped at Confidence mill the first night. The old mill was operated by the Mormons nearly 40 years ago, but very little of it remains.

It might be of interest to know that while in the valley the Franklin party was experiencing a violent windstorm, the same which swept all Southern California. Having great scope here, it carried quantities of sand and dust and the party had said as a staple food morning, noon and night.

Continuing on up the valley the next day the Camel passed Nettie's Well, named after the ill-fated party that christened Death Valley, and near Tule Spring (salt) passed the grave of a borax teamster who died while piloting the mules. A heap of bones, all that remains of his unfortunate team; decorated the grave, another cross on the desert's death list. Off to the left, like a gigantic guard-405 feet, reared its head above the dust clouds.

Half way between Tule Spring and Furnace Creek ranch the Franklin reached the lowest elevation on the trip, 274 feet below sea level, but only a few miles distant the valley drops 337 feet below the waves.

From Furnace Creek ranch the Franklin Camel bumped along to Stovepipe wells, where L. F. Noble, government geologist, C. J. Carr, Franklin dealer at Green Park, and R. L. Larson, advertising manager for Ralph Hamling, spent the second night in the valley—in the well-known Denim it prudent to escape sand, and discovering the wells were bone dry, with no chance for water for four or five feet, the party spent the night in comparative comfort, comparative because of the monotonous.

The Automobile Club of Southern California has assigned the valley from Saratoga to Furnace Creek ranch, a most commendable undertaking and a guide for the more adventurous motorists who may reach the valley in comparative ease by way of Shoshone, Ryan and Furnace Creek ranch. But the upper end of the valley boasts only a few ancient state signs.

A six mile stretch of shifting sand dunes from Stovepipe westward was conquered by the Franklin Camel in two hours.

Some old prospectors met later on the journey inquired which way the Franklin came, naturally supposing the party took the cut-off, which is bad enough to provide thrills for such hardy explorers as Doug Rhoades and Ollie Lewis, road-scouts for the Auto Club. Learning that the Franklin came straight through on what was the old Mormon route, the prospectors immediately crowded around to see just what the car was like.

According to them, the last party through (before the Franklin) made it in 1922: two prospectors on foot. And the grave of one of them, who perished on the trip, is but a stone's throw from Stovepipe. As near as can be determined the Camel is the first automobile to ever attempt the feat.

From here the Camel made the stiff climb to Emigrant Spring over rocks, then down Wildrose Canyon to Panamint Valley, from which the party saw the peak of Whitney, 14,501 feet high, the top of the United States even as Death Valley is the bottom.

Ballarat, an "almost deserted" mining town, was visited, and the return via Tros, and Sandburg and Mohave was without particular incident. One of the outstanding features of this 140 mile trip was the performance of the tires, three of which came with the car and have run 10,000 miles.

CANADIAN FILMS TO SHOW IN EUROPE

OTTAWA, Dec. 30.—The Canadian government has made arrangements with one of the largest European distributors of moving pictures in Paris by which France, Belgium and Switzerland will be given an opportunity to see many thousand feet of "talking Canada" films.

These films were made under the auspices of government agents at the film plant in Ottawa. They picture all phases of industry and agriculture throughout Canada. Special attention has been devoted to illustrating farming development in the western provinces. Here millions of acres of rich land await the settler in a country where it is not extraordinary for a single crop of wheat to yield 60 bushels per acre.

USED IN DAYLIGHT
But, inventors have lost out a screen that reproduces motion pictures in daylight or a brilliantly lighted room as clearly as in a darkened hall.

Successful marriages do not get into the court records and therefore not into the daily news. The number of divorces as compared with the number of successful marriages is not a large part as the number of persons who become involved in litigation of one kind or another is small compared with the whole population. There are enough divorces to fasten upon the public, but not enough to prove or to indicate that marriage, as an institution is a failure.

California does not agree to give its winter tourists rainchecks, nor does it guarantee rainless day all winter. Tourists for the most part are very gracious about the comparatively few rainy days experienced here. They know that these downpours are worth millions to California. They also know that after each rain the air is exhilarating and all nature is a glow. This compensates them for an occasional day indoors.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION IMPROVE LIVING

The scientist and the inventor, when they turn away from devising ways and means of killing men in warfare, put joy and brightness into living, by their discoveries and inventions. And when wars are abolished and when armaments are reduced and the masses are relieved of the burdens thereof, it will be possible for the ordinary person to be in possession of many of the labor-saving pleasure-giving devices of the scientist and inventor.

Science and invention have transformed the world. The last century has witnessed greater advancement in scientific discoveries and inventions than all the centuries before it. Science and invention have thrown around the world telegraphs and cables, and the radio, making communication with distant lands a matter of minutes, whereas formerly it required months, if not years, by slow and sometimes perilous traveling to communicate with faraway lands. Rapid transit is another marvel. A mile-a-minute, once the wonder of the world, is slow and commonplace now, when three miles a minute is made by airship and two miles a minute by automobile.

It is bewildering to try to catalogue, or even in outline, that science and invention have done for mankind within the last century. Electric lighting, evolution of electric energy in industrial and transportation enterprises; perfecting of printing press; and an almost limitless number of labor-saving machines and devices, making for the comfort, the progress, the enlightenment and the edification of the sons of men. Hats off and a salute for science and invention! They have served and are serving the human race with infinite usefulness.

MANY BUGS PROVE HIGHLY INJURIOUS

W. E. ALLEN

California Biological Feature Service

Several times in the last few months I have noticed the statement in various publications that "bugs" are not mentioned in British polite society. Just why so many writers should be interested in this fact is hard to say. Perhaps they are amused by the idea that the ubiquitous bed bug (the only animal meant by the British word) can be disposed of by such an attitude of exclusiveness. To the ordinary American the word means any very small object which moves quickly. To the scientific student of insects it means in its strictest sense a group of insects which have mouth parts equipped for piercing and sucking and which have peculiar wings, the inner halves of which are thick and leathery while the outer halves are thin and papery or gauzy.

Amongst the many thousands of different kinds of bugs known to scientists there are many which are known to be highly injurious to man and few which are known to be beneficial. A most injurious group of bugs is characterized by very small individuals which make up in numbers what they lack in size. They are well known to plant lovers everywhere as plant lice or aphids. There are almost as many kinds of them as there are kinds of flowering plants. They are aided by ants which guard and protect them and carry them at opportune times to the juiciest parts of young tender shoots of the plant. One entomologist estimated that there were 12,000,000 plant lice living at one time on a young cherry tree. Another expert estimated that if nothing happened to kill off any of the young produced by a single mother in the spring and if each successive generation thru the summer brood all of its offspring to the reproductive stage there would be over nine trillion descendants of the one mother ready to continue propagation at the beginning of the next spring. In the face of such possibilities it is no wonder that things sometimes look discouraging to the gardener and agriculturist. Fortunately for the peace of mind of man the plant lice have many enemies and only a small percentage are able to mature and bear offspring. Many bugs have a decidedly bad odor, taste, too, for that matter. It is always amusing to the other fellow when he sees some one carelessly eating blackberries or other fruit without washing or examination get hold of a bug and then spend some time in spitting and spluttering and wondering what made the fruit taste so badly. It is equally disgusting when he himself turns over a leaf and stirs up a squash bug with its peculiar acrid, sickening odor. Undoubtedly the odiferous bugs are largely responsible for the distasteful attitude which polite society holds for the name.

Most bugs live out of water, but a few kinds spend most of their lives in it. They all have means for attaching a layer of air to their bodies when they come to the surface and by using this layer they are able to stay under water a long time if they can hold to some solid object or keep swimming enough to keep the air from floating them up again. Water bugs are predatory and the largest one (which is often called the "electric light bug" because it is found under street lamps when flying from one pond to another) kills many tadpoles and young fish which it pounces upon from ambush in a most ferocious manner.

Bugs may not be nice and few of them are in any sense beautiful but they play a very important part in the affairs of man which is good reason in itself why they should receive a good deal of attention from

"NUISANCE TAXES"

REOPENED JAN. 1ST

Certain so-called nuisance and luxury taxes are repealed, effective Jan. 1, by the revenue act of 1921, the public is reminded by John I. Carter, collector of internal revenue for the sixth district.

He says:

"Patrons of soda-water fountains, ice cream parlors and 'similar places of business' no longer are required to pay the tax of 1 cent for each 10 cents or fraction thereof on soda, sundries, or similar articles of food or drink."

The small boy may rejoice in the fact that an ice-cream cone doesn't cost an extra penny. The tax imposed by the revenue act of 1921 is on "beverages and the constituent parts thereof" and is paid by the manufacturer.

The tax on the transportation of freight and passengers is repealed, effective January 1, 1922, also the tax paid by the purchaser on amounts paid for men's and women's wearing apparel (shoes, hats, caps, neckwear, shirts, hose, etc.) in excess of a specified price.

Taxes imposed under section 904 which under the revenue act of 1913 included the taxes on wearing apparel are now confined to a 5 per cent tax on the following articles: carpets, on the amount in excess of $4.50 a square yard, rugs, on the amount in excess of $5 a square yard, trunks on the amount in excess of $35 each; valises, traveling bags, suit cases, hat boxes used by travelers and fitted toilet cases, on the amount in excess of $25 each; purses, pocketbooks, shopping and hand bags on the amount in excess of $5 each; portable lighting fixtures, including lamps of all kinds, on the amount in excess of $10 each; fans, on the amount in excess of $1 each. These taxes are included in the manufacturers' excise taxes, and are payable by the manufacturer, producer or importer, and not by the purchaser, as required by the revenue act of 1913.

The manufacturer may reimburse himself, by agreement with the purchaser by quoting the selling price and tax in separate and exact amounts, or by stating to the purchaser in advance of the sale, what portion of the quoted price represents the price charged for the article, and what portion represents the tax.

The taxes on sporting goods, (tennis rackets, fishing rods, baseball and football uniforms, fishing rods, etc.) are repealed, also the taxes on chewing gum, portable electric fans, thermos containers, articles made of fur, and toilet articles and musical instruments.

The tax on sales of jewelry, real or imitation is 5 per cent, and is payable by the vendor. The tax on the sale of works of art, paintings, statuary, are porcelain and bronzes is reduced from 10 to 5 per cent. This tax, payable by the vendor, applies except in the original sale by the artist, or to an educational institution or public art museum, or a sale by a recognized dealer in such articles to another such dealer for resale.

When payable by the manufacturer or vendor, taxes must be in the hands of the collector of internal revenue on or before the last day of the month following the month in which the sale was made.

TEXAS WILL ADOPT COOP. MARKETING

Many prominent men of the United States are unanimous in saying that the greatest contribution of the State of California to the Union is co-operative marketing plan. This is at least true insofar as the Farmers are concerned, and as California is the greatest agricultural state in the Union, it is reasonable to assume that this will probably hold good over all other contributions. Among the last of the states of the Union to adopt co-operative marketing on a large scale, is Texas, who sometime ago organized the Cotton Growers' Association, called the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Association, which is a member of the American Cotton Growers' Exchange. This association which has been organized about a year, has wholly earned the enviable reputation of having as much cotton to sell as any five cotton firms in the Union. In addition to this the announcement now comes that the Texas Farm Bureau Federation organization, a 2,400,000 baled wheat pool. Keep it up, Texas, it has made California the greatest agricultural state in the Union.

Following are forms for making returns and regulations relating to taxes, which may be had on application to offices of collectors of internal revenue; manufacturers' excise tax form 728 revised, regulations 47, revised; tax on works of art, and jewelry, form 728 A, revised, regulations 48 revised; tax on beverages, Form 726, revised, regulations 52, revised.

To get the maximum of speed in taking photographs of news events and developing the negatives, progressive photographers of Atlantic City, N. J., have constructed on a Dodge Brothers chassis a special body in the form of a giant grafex camera," reports Chas. H. Mann, local Dodge distributor.

The interior of the body is ingeniously arranged so that a man can climb up a ladder-like arrangement bringing him to a height of ten feet from the ground and giving him a commanding view of any events which may be taking place. The body is also used as a dark room in which negatives may be developed and finished, guaranteeing speedy service, which would otherwise be impossible.

The "grafex wagon" or photocar, as it is variously called, is the very latest thing in mobile newspaper photography. It is significant that for the speed and reliability—which are so vital in this game—Dodge Brothers chassis was chosen to furnish the power.

GILL BATTERY

HAS NO SEPARATORS

Do You Realize Separators Cause 95% of All
Battery Trouble?

PROVEN BY TESTS

—When you see the gruelling strain that the Gill Battery can undergo and come through in perfect condition, you will recognize the worth of this super-battery and its exclusive features. Note the tests made before the San Bernardino County Automobile Trade Association as published in the Daily Sun of that city, July 11, 1921:

—A test was made with a Gill Battery in a Dodge car. This battery was the first Dodge type produced in the factory and has been in constant operation for nine months, never having been taken out of the car for recharging or for other attention. It turned the motor over for 15 minutes and 42 seconds until completely discharged. With one minute rest it operated for one minute and 15 seconds. Idle one minute, it operated for one minute and one second. Another minute rest and it functioned for 51 seconds.

—At the conclusion of the discharges the electrolyte of the battery was only warm.

—A Gill Battery operating in a Chevrolet Baby Grand a few weeks ago made its 355th completed discharge in a period of demonstration of two weeks or an average of more than 25 complete discharges a day—without taking the battery out for a recharge on the line.

—In all tests to date, it has not been found necessary to recharge any battery except by using the generator on the car set at the usual charging rate.

—Can anything be more convincing? We urge you to see the Gill Battery for yourself. Submit it to your own test. We are confident that you will insist upon the Gill for your next battery.
