MAY ERECT BIG FRAME AUDITORIUM

Gilbert Thayer, Noted Psychologist, at Tent Tonight

The gripping drama, "The Man of Galilee," was presented last night by the Wright Players to a large and appreciative audience at the big tent at Claudina and Wilhelmina-sts.

This unusual drama is always presented by these exceptional actors and actresses with a tremendous appeal. At its conclusion last night, Rev. Leon Myers established a precedent by asking for confessions of faith. One young man stood up.

Tonight Dr. Gilbert Thayer, nationally known psychologist, will deliver the first of a series of four nightly lectures.

The "chautauqua habit" has become so popular in Anaheim that there has been some discussion of plans for erection of a large frame auditorium with seating capacity of the big tent, about 3000. It was pointed out today that a comfortable building with floor could be erected at no considerable expense and would soon pay for itself. This is the fifth week the big tent has been up and in that time thousands have attended the various services held there.

Preceding a collection for continuance of the law enforcement campaign in Orange-co, when subscription cards were passed and many signed, A. E. Steulke of Fullerton declared:

"To show you what we are up against in Orange-co when an attempt is made to enforce the law I want to recount an incident. When a jury was presented with the evidence in one of the raid cases, it returned a verdict of guilty. A second trial was granted. The defendant admitted he sold the liquor to the detectives. A chemist analyzed it and found it contained 40 per cent alcohol and enough poison to make it exceedingly dangerous to drink. This jury also returned a verdict of guilty. Despite these two verdicts of guilty an Orange-co judge declared the case faulty and ordered the judge in the first case to remit the fine. That's an example of what we are up against in Orange-co now.

Rev. Myers called attention to the fact that one of the last things done by U. S. Atty. Joe Burke, before retiring from office, was to transfer 13 federal liquor cases, growing out of the Orange-co raids, to Dist. Atty. A. P. Nelson.

"Among them was Al Pape, who will now probably go free," said Myers.

HOLD SEVEN FOR GASOLINE THEFT

Accused of tapping a Union Oil Co. pipe line between Brea and La Habra and of thus obtaining gasoline for their autos, seven La Habra youths have been cited by County Probation Officer R. R. Miller to appear tomorrow before Superior Judge F. C. Drumm.

All are juveniles, three being 18 years of age, two 17, one 16 and one 13.

Parents of the youths have been asked to appear at the same time.

The alleged disappearance of gasoline from the pipe line has been noticed by oil company officials for several weeks and the amount of gasoline that was lost through the "leak" is estimated as high as 200 gallons, Miller declared.

The officer added that the youths were caught "hot handed" when guards were stationed along the line to trap the offenders.

Theft of an auto tire from a Fullerton dealer and of accessories from a La Habra auto agent also are laid at the door of the youths.

KUCHEL SEEKS REAPPOINTMENT

Charles Kuchel has filed application with the city trustees asking reappointment as city recorder. Kuchel has made a record as a law-enforcement judge, and, it is said, for this policy was "fired" by the Stark administration after he had been in office but a short time, but was re-employed by the Metcalf administration. His application will be considered Friday night.

ROME—Former Premier Giolitti, 82 years old, today signed another 25-year lease on his apartment here.

Storm May Force Rum Ship Surrender

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12. With heavy seas raging off the coast, possibility that the British rum runner Stadacona, laying to 25 miles off the Golden Gate without fuel or water, might surrender to the coast guard cutter Shawnee, was seen late today.

After discharging a million dollar rum cargo, the Stadacona, bound north to Vancouver, B. C., ran out of fuel and water and for the past seven weeks has been buffeted about by the elements. Federal officials have warned against shore boats offering aid to the craft.

It was reported that a portion of the crew are ill as a result of hardships endured.

TUNNEL WILL BE ENDED SUNDAY

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 12.—A 65-foot shaft and then a 12-foot lateral tunnel. These are the requirements for the rescue of Floyd Collins, John R. Girard, surveyor, testified today at the military court of inquiry sitting to hear testimony regarding Sand Cave. Girard was one of those making the survey to determine the point at which to sink the "life or death" shaft.

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 2.—The "life or death' shaft being driven to the rocky prison of Floyd Collins, prisoner for 14 days in Sand Cave, had reached a depth of 52 feet shortly before 3 o'clock, according to the official communique issued by Director of Operations Carmichael.

Actual digging operations had been stopped to permit timbering of the shaft dug out during the day.

"Casey" Jones, one of the most persistent of the Collins rescue workers, was seriously injured this afternoon when his pick slipped and went thru his foot. He was removed to the Red Cross tent and given emergency treatment, by Dr. Wm. Hazlett of Chicago. It was the first serious injury to be suffered by a rescue worker.

In an effort to determine the possibility of striking a cavern that might prove a short cut to the rescue of Collins, the diamond drill again was brought into use this afternoon. It was sunk to the bottom of the shaft and began cutting out its core which will tell diggers what still lies between them and Collins, rocky prison.

The work of the drill will not interfere with regular digging operations, Carmichael said.

COLLINS' LAST MESSAGE

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 12.—Floyd Collins' last message to a human rang thru the dingy little police courtroom here today when Roy Hyde, Drakesboro, Kentucky miner, the last man to hear Collins' voice from the depths of Sand Cave, took the witness stand in the military court of inquiry.

Hyde told of his trips along the narrow, crowded way and of his attempts to timber the passage. He said the "squeeze" in the tunnel had been caused by removal of "key" or "wedge" rocks with failure to replace them with some other support.

"I found it would be impracticable from a point of safety for me to go on to the point where Collins was trapped," the witness testified. "I called to the man in the cave, but received only moans and an occasional "Oh, Oh" in response."

Hyde also went on record as being certain that a man was pinioned in the cave and, as a practical miner, agreed that a shaft was the only expedient method of rescuing him.

T. Bennett, another Drakesboro miner, corroborated Hyde's testimony and vouched for his ability as a miner.

John R. Girard, Bowling Green, who was active in the early days of the rescue attempts, also told of his visits to the cave. He quoted Collins as telling one rescuer nothing could be done for him.

"Send a doctor down here and let him put me to sleep, cut my leg off and get me out of here." Collins begged them, Girard said. This, he added, would have been impossible because of the narrow confines of Collins' prison.

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 12—Sand Cave will give its answer in the early dawn of next Sunday.

RESIGNATION OF EELLS IS DEMANDED

Fullerton Council "Cans" Noted Leader of Law Enforcement

Arthur L. Eells, Fullerton chief of police, one of the prime instigators of the county-wide law enforcement raid which brot more than 70 bootleggers to justice, today faced recall at the hands of Fullerton trustees.

The motion demanding his resignation was passed at a secret meeting of the board Tuesday night, and the communication to Mr. Eells gave no reason whatever for his discharge. The minutes of the meeting, however, said that it was because of his refusal to discharge Dorsey Ellis, recognized as one of the longest-employed and most efficient members of the police department. Eells himself laid the discharge to his activities in the recent dry law enforcement raid. Mayor H. H. Crooke, who signed the letter demanding Eells' resignation, when asked if it was because of Eells' activity in this raid, declined either to affirm or deny it. He said Eells was discharged for "the betterment of the service," but refused to say in what way he expected the service to be bettered.

The fight between Eells and the board has been of long duration, and he has a long time expected to be discharged, it is said. He was employed by the previous board which stood on a policy of law enforcement, and was bitterly fought by what was called the Business Men's ticket, who said that trade was being diverted from Fullerton because of strict enforcement of the law. This ticket which called for a less stringent enforcement of the law was headed by Bob Strain, W. J. Carmichael and H. H. Crooke. Carmichael and Crooke were elected, but O. M. Thompson, independent candidate, defeated Strain. Carmichael and Crooke immediately tried to bring about an "investigation" of the police department looking towards the discharge of Eells, but W. A. Moore and Roy Davis, hold-over members of the old law enforcement board, were able, by the help of Thompson, to block the movement.

Thompson stood firm for law enforcement until following the dry law enforcement raid, Stanley Chapman filed an injunction suit to prevent the payment of Fullerton's quota in the raid. Then Thompson began to fluctuate, and to cross himself in his votes, first to one side and then to the other. Just how much the "wet" recall threat against the Fullerton board dry law advocates had to do with this fluctuation is not known. This recall threat which was directed foremost at Eells grew louder each day, until Fullerton began to face what Anaheim has just gone thru — then Thompson "flopped." Davis and Moore, unable longer to stem the tide and unwilling to set the board into a useless uproar did not longer oppose the move, but in the interest of peace and harmony let it go on the minutes that Crooke acted "on behalf of the entire board." That was the "inside" story of the discharge as gathered today from authentic sources.

One of the members of the board said today that he greatly regretted to see Eells and Ellis go, that both of them had made good officers and had done their duty the best they knew. They might have made some mistakes, he said, but that was only human. The same member of the board said that the only charge against Eells that he had heard was made by the police committee, consisting of Thompson and Carmichael, which said that Eells had refused to discharge Ellis, and that he had heard no definite charges at all against Ellis. Thompson refused to discuss the matteer, but said that the police committee had not jumped at conclusions.

Eells' story of this phase of the matter was as follows:

"A short time ago I received a request from the board to let off two men, the desk sargeant and a motor officer. I asked member of the board at that time if there were any certain men that they desired that I let off. They replied no, that it was up to me. Ellis was desk sargeant. I let off Leo Martin, motor officer, and

Unusual Tribute Paid to Lincoln

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—An unusual tribute was paid the memory of Abraham Lincoln today when the senate formally observed his natal anniversary.

All business was suspended while Senator Smoot, Rep. of Utah, read a tribute to Lincoln's rise from obscurity to world fame. In previous years such a service has been accorded only to George Washington.

In the house, the Gettysburg address was read by Congressman Ellis F. Moore of Ohio.

$2,000 STORE ROBBERY AT LA HABRA

The White House Dry Goods Store at La Habra was entered early last night and burglarized of about $2,000 worth of goods, according to a report at the office of Leo Martin, La Habra city marshal. The burglary is thot to have occurred between 7 and 9 o'clock, and was discovered about 9:15 by Gus Scott, night watchman.

Entry had been made thru the skylight, by means of a rope which police found, and the back door opened from the inside. It is thot the burglars used a car or a truck, altho the ground was so dry and hard that no tracks could be found, it was said.

The loot included about 150 pair of pants, 12 women's coats, six or eight dozen suits of underwear, three or four overcoats, two or three blankets and other things.

EXPLAINS DARING JEWELRY ROBBERY

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—The solution of a daring New York $300,000 jewelry robbery came to light today when Herbert Wilson, notorious master criminal and San Quentin "lifer" took the witness stand in federal court as a witness against three of his former pals, Jack Elerick, Charles Stahl and Joe Bertsche. Wilson told of how Elerick reported being acquainted with a New York wealthy divorcee in 1921, who was then promenading under the cognomen of "Miss Palmer.' When Elerick spoke of a $300,000 pearl necklace owned by the woman, Wilson detailed how Bertsche and Stahl got it.

They did so by entering the "Palmer" home and committing the robbery.

HIGH WATER THREATENS ALBANY

Hudson River 12 Feet Above Normal and Steadily Rising

ALBANY, N.Y., Feb. 12—With the Hudson river 12 feet above normal and steadily rising, Albany and the upper Hudson valley were threatened with serious flood.

The water went over the docks shortly before noon and covered several streets with water from a few inches to a foot deep.

Business places along the river front cleared their cellars and carried the goods to upper stories.

The river is clear of ice from Albany to Cedar Hill, six miles south of the city, where there is a huge jam. Dynamite may be used to break up the jam.

FEAR BIG FLOOD

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., Feb. 12. Rising at the rate of one foot an hour, the Mohawk river was 14 feet above normal this afternoon. Serious flood conditions are feared as a result of the breaking up of the ice in the Schoharie creek, one of the Mohawk's largest tributaries.

Streets along the river front were inundated.

MILLS CLOSED BY FLOODS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Five mills in the Manayunk district in the Philadelphia section, are closing today on account of menacing flood conditions of the Schuylkill river, declared the mill operators. The water remained stationary after rising 2 1-2 feet in the streets of Manayung. Overflow of streams upstate caused the heavy onrush of water down the Schuylkill river, men said.

Freezing weather was predicted today.

EDISON PASSES BIRTHDAY QUIETLY

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 12.—"Going on 79."

Thus chuckled Thomas A. Edison, world famous inventor, today when seen at his beautiful home on the banks of the placid Caloosahatchee river here and congratulated on his 78th birthday which he observed quietly yesterday with his family and old friends.

He was in a reminiscent mood and scorned scientific subjects. When questioned as to what he considered the two greatest inventions of the last five years, the famous inventor passed up the subject with "There have been many, radio was just coming in five years ago, but it was invented before that."

THOUSANDS VISIT TOMB OF LINCOLN

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Feb. 12.—Thousands of visitors journeyed from every part of the nation today to Springfield, home of Abraham Lincoln, to pay tribute to the memory of the martyred president on the 116th anniversary of his birth. Among the visitors were 5000 members of the Order De Molay and representatives of many civic and social organizations.

Memorial services were held in the Sangamon-co court house, Dr. John H. Finley of New York, being the chief speaker.

The tomb of Lincoln, beneath the great monument that now is a nation's sanctuary, was the one spot to which all footsteps turned, the stone steps reverberating thruout the day to the tread of thousands of feet.

RECALLS VISIT TO LINCOLN

MARION, Ohio, Feb. 12.—Dr. Geo. T. Harding, 80, father of the late president, today recalled the only time he met Abraham Lincoln, said:

"It was in the White House in August of 1864," he said, "I called with another civil war comrade, E. M. Williams, who afterwards became editor of the Ohio Farmer. I said to Mr. Lincoln, 'Mr. President, we are Buckeyes and we came to shake your hand.' Lincoln stretched out both hands to us. 'Well,' he drawled, 'I am certainly glad to see such nice looking young men from the Buckeye state, which stood loyally by me. When you go back home tell them that you met the handsomest man you ever saw,' and Lincoln never cracked a smile."

"But," continued Dr. Harding, when you looked into Lincoln's face and realized the heart of the man he was not so homely. He was a great man."

Just 52 years after meeting Lincoln, Dr. Harding slept in the same room in which he talked to Lincoln when his son was president of the United States.

HONOR EMANCIPATOR

BOSTON, Feb. 12.—The spirit of Abraham Lincoln hovered today about three aged women—formerly slaves—at St. Monica's Home in Roxbury.

Nowhere was his memory on his birthday honored with greater adoration than in the humble, silent reverence of these women.

One of them, Fannie Banks, is believed by the Catholic Sisters at the Home to be 117.

"God and Lincoln were good to me," she said today. "Lincoln set me free so's I could work for myself and have shoes for my feet."

The other ex-slaves are Amanda Shepard, 87, and Louisa Green, 83.

ELECTRICAL STORM OVER BAY CITIES

Thunder and Lightning Accompany Heavy Rainfall

Up to 8 a.m. today the Anaheim district had received .11 of an inch from the new storm.

The total for the season now is 2.96 against 2.68 last year.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—Shortly before 12:30 p.m. today a veritable cloudburst of rain fell over San Francisco and the bay cities. The heavy rainfall was accompanied by thunder and lightning—a rarity.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 12.—The heaviest storm of winter today tightened its grip on No. Calif., halting railroad traffic on the west side of the Sacramento valley and flooding fields and highways in the vicinity of Willows, Colusa, Meridian and Hamilton City.

Train service on the west side of the valley was cancelled by the S. P. Co. following reports of numerous washouts. Repair crews rushed to Willows, where the storm wrought the greatest havoc, reported 1800 feet of track washed out. Due to the west side tie-up, northbound trains were routed thru Sacramento via Chico. Overland trains were diverted thru Marysville.

Track washouts were also reported in several sections of Tehama-co.

The storm took on new fury in far northern counties, reaching its height at Kennet, and spreading west. Snow was reported falling in mountainous districts.

A break in the Hamilton branch dam of Great Western Power Co., occurred last night, but resulted in do damage the water pouring into Lake Almanor.

The Sacramento river reached 26 feet at Colusa this morning and 25 feet at Red Bluff, two feet above flood stage.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—Rain started falling in Los Angeles and vicinity shortly before 5 a.m. today and, indications were that showers would continue all over So. Calif. until nightfall. Two hours after the rain began the weather bureau gauge registered precipitation of .03 of an inch, which brought the total for the season to 3:16.

YEAR'S WORST STORM IN NO. CALIF

SANTA BARBARA SOAKED

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 12.—Santa Barbara was being deluged under a heavy rainstorm which, beginning shortly after 10 o'clock last night, had drenched the entire section with three-quarters of an inch by this morning, bringing the total rainfall for the season to a record breaking five and half inches.

The downpour is expected to continue all day. To date this season there is more than twice as much rainfall as fell during the entire season last year.

RAIN 3 TIMES LAST YEAR

REDDING, Feb. 12.—Storm-ridden Shasta-co today prepared to survey the damage wrought by the severest rain downpour in years. With 32.12 inches of rain so far this season, the precipitation in this vicinity has reached a mark three times that of last year.

Storm conditions were much improved today, the rainfall abating and streams thruout the district falling back from danger heights.

At Castella one foot of fresh snow fell during the night, snapping all wire lines to the north. Hundreds of poles are down in the area around Castella.

After desperate work on the part of road gangs clearing away slides the east side highway from Red Bluff was opened to traffic today.

North of Redding the highway was passable but road conditions are extremely hazardous around Dunsmuir.

The west side highway from Red Bluff was blocked today by a bridge washout in Glenn-co.

The highway between Redding and Red Bluff was open today.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IMPROVE

SAN RAFAEL, Feb. 12.—Flood conditions in Marin-co were greatly improved today following the cessation late last night of the record breaking downpour that has wrought havoc generally thruout northwestern California. Water which entirely covered the streets of San Rafael, Larkspur, San Anselmo, Fairfax, Mill Valley Ross and dozens of other small communities had practically subsided.

Aside from the five people slightly injured, no additional storm casualties were reported. Property damage is considerable but no definite estimate can yet be made.

Limited steam transportation between San Rafael and Sausalito was started today by the Northwestern Pacific railroads to take care of thousands of commuters from Marin-co to San Francisco. Normal rail service is furnished by half hourly electric trains. The third rail of the electric system is entirely out of commission.

Mail service, which was entirely demoralized yesterday, was resumed this morning, steam mail trains coming as far as San Rafael from which point delivery to nearby towns is made by trucks.

Property damage was especially heavy in San Anselmo, Fairfax, Mill Valley and Ross. The foundations of hundreds of houses were loosened by flood waters and furniture and merchandise in cellars and first floors were considerably damaged.

Train service on the Northwestern Pacific between Sausalito and Eureka was still demoralized today. The Eureka Express which went off the track yesterday at Novato, was still blocking the main line. The railroad has scores of gangs of laborers at work thruout the flood area in an effort to restore normal rail service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—As the storm swept counties of northern California took stock today of the damage done by the torrential rains which turned many sections into lakes, blocked highways, wrecked trains and homes and injured at least five persons, the outlook was for additional rainfall.

The storm was moving southward today with much less violence. It reached Fresno in the heart of the San Joaquin valley at 6:30 last night and rain started to fall in Los Angeles and vicinity at 5 o'clock this morning. With the precipitation of last night Fresno reported the rainfall there is within one inch of the normal average.

Hundreds of persons who were forced to flee from their homes on low ground in Marin and Sonoma counties by the flood yesterday were still sheltered by neighbors on high ground.

Railroad service and traffic over many highways thruout the northern coastal counties was still at a standstill. Continued rain hampered the efforts of track crews and highway workers engaged in clearing the numerous landslides.

The flood waters of the Sacramento swollen by the heavy rain were given concern in many sections today. Stock men of Yolo, Colusa, Tehama, Butte and Glenn counties were removing their stock as rapidly as possible to high ground.

Several hundred tourists were reported storm bound in Redding, a landslide on the Pacific highway north of that point having blocked traffic last night.

High waters halted trains at Corning, Rumsey and Redding temporarily, and at Corning the Hotel Maywood was surrounded by water.

The flood stage was expected at Sacramento some time today.

Many thrilling rescues were being reported today as communication was restored to isolated sections. Eight persons near Point Ryes were taken from their homes after a day of terror by two small boats which succeeded in reaching them after two tugs had failed.

At Kentfield an invalid was taken on a stretcher thru a second story window to a boat and taken to safety.

Thirty families were rescued by a "swimming brigade" at Fairfax.

Several women were carried a mile thru water which reached a depth of two feet at some places when a train was wrecked at Novato.

All of the injured were reported on the way to recovery today. To the heroism of Cort Bruce, 11, was attributed the rescue of Mrs. Bruce and two smaller children when the Bruce home toppled down the hillside near Larkspur and burned.

Property damage in the Marin-co section was estimated today at around $100,000. Damage in other counties was said to be nominal altho it is believed some stock and hundreds of chickens were drowned.

5.65 Inches of Rain at Santa Rosa in 38 Hours

SANTA ROSA, Feb. 12—Damage from the record storm of the season in Sonoma-co. today was estimated at $250,000.

Rainfall for the 38 hours of the storm was officially reported at 5.66 inches, a record for 20 years. The total for the season was 28.09 inches, about thirteen inches in excess of all the rain last season, and eight inches above the normal average for this time of the year.

Damage was far exceeded by the good done by the rain agriculturists said. Damage was represented chiefly by washed out bridges, $100,000 loss in Petaluma where business houses were flooded and the cost of removing a score or more of landslides on county and state highways.

The Russian river was reported still rising today. The road between Camp Meeker and Monte Rio in western Sonoma, was reported under five feet of water at Grants, 12 miles north of here, the state highway was under four feet of water. The river overflowed its banks in the vicinity of Healdsburg. Northwestern Pacific Railroad officials here said that while traffic was still tied up they hoped to rush repairs and get trains thru to Sausalito by nightfall. The Monte Rio train of the Guerneville branch came thru today altho water touched the firebox at several points. The So. Pac Calistoga branch blocked yesterday by high water at St. Helena, was expected to be in operation again today. Yesterday passengers were taken to Calistoga by motor trucks when the train stalled at St. Helena. It will be several days before county roads blocked by landslide can be cleared.

SCOTCH LABORITE CRITICIZES WALES

LONDON, Feb. 12—The Scotch Laborite representative Kirkwood raised an uproar in the house of commons this evening when he criticized the appropriation asked for the trip of the Prince of Wales to South America and Africa.

"I protest against this humbug," he declared. "The prince ought to see his own country first."

Kirkwood said he doubted whether the royal family was very dear to the laboring people.

"I don't envy the prince," he said. "It's not jealousy makes me say so. To be perfectly candid, I'm sorry for him—trotting all over the world, making a clown of himself."

This provoked an uproar among the Tories, who tried to stop Kirkwood. The speaker ruled him in order.

Continuing his suggestion that H.R.H. visit Scotland, Kirkwood said:

"We'll show him slums, the like of which he's never seen. I'll guarantee him security. We will take him into workshops and mines and let him see the actual conditions. There he may see the awful conditions under which the people who are supposed to be the backbone of this empire work."

MRS. BLACKFORD DEAD

Mrs. Emma Blackford, 56, widow of the late Louis Blackford, and mother of Mrs. Pete Schumacher of Fullerton, died this morning at Walnut Park. The body is at the McAulay funeral parlors where arrangements are to be announced later.

FOSTER MOTHER SOBS FOR CAMP

HANFORD, Feb. 12.—"I loved him and he was killed."

White haired and wan, suffering from an attack of influenza, Mrs. Jennie Laura Brown, foster mother of Lee Camp, wealthy young rancher whose death on her ranch is under investigation, spoke for publication today for the first time.

She lay in her bed in the "house of silence" on the "ranch of regrets" and repeatedly sobbed her love for the boy she had raised from a child.

In an adjoining room lay W. Stanton Brown, her husband, a victim of paralysis.

"We did all we could for Lee," he said. "His death was a terrible shock to us. Any inference that his death was other than accidental is preposterous."

There were indications today that the investigation being conducted by Dist. Atty. Wm. R. McCay will move rapidly to a climax soon. Back from questioning "Uncle 'Johnnie'" Tipton in San Francisco, McCay expected today to recheck the stories of other witnesses in the light of what he learned from Tipton. Another autopsy was scheduled to be performed at Fresno today on the body of Camp which was exhumed from its resting place near Hanford.

Insistence is growing that the district attorney place the evidence he has gathered before the grand jury.

BRITISH TO REVERT TO GOLD STANDARD

LONDON, Feb. 12. — Great Britain will revert to the gold standard at the earliest possible moment, Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, told the house of commons today.

Agitation in England regarding the gold standard has been second only to that over international debts. The Right Hon. Montague Collet Norman, governor of the Bank of England, returned recently from the United States where he was said to have conferred with treasury department officials and New York financiers on the ability of England returning to a gold standard.

British opponents declared that the gold standard would make Great Britain subservient to the United States because of America having control of the world's supply of gold.

TOWN OBJECTS TO ALFORD'S PARDON

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—The little town of Ontario, near here was alive and seething today when news of the pardoning of Fred E. Alford, one time city manager, who was convicted two years ago of embezzling $30,000 from that city, became known. A committee of citizens requested the San Bernardino-co central committee to investigate the action of the state prison pardons board. Altho the wife and family of the ex-convict are living in Los Angeles, Alford is said to be in Oakland.

NEWS OFFICE FIRE

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Work in the Chicago office of International News Service and the Chicago Evening American was temporarily halted shortly before noon today by an explosion in the chemical department on the fourth floor of the Hearst-bldg.

Windows were blown out by the force of the blast, but, so far as known, no one was injured seriously.

All occupants of the building were ordered out because of fear of further explosions while firemen fought the fire that followed the first blast.

DEMAND INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. — An immediate investigation by the federal trade commission into the recent arbitrary and unwarranted increases in the price of gasoline was demanded today in a resolution introduced in the house by Sen. Trammell of Florida.

RESIGNATION OF EELLS DEMANDED

Jake Diest, patrolman, and transferred Ellis to Diest's place.

"About a week later Thompson and Carmichael came to see me and demanded that I let Ellis go and take Martin back. I asked why they should single out Ellis, seeing that he had been so long on the police department. They refused to give me any reason. I told them that I would not fire a man without a reason, that I would let my own job go before I'd do it. They left me.

"Today I received a letter asking me to resign. I will not resign. I have done nothing to resign for. They may fire me if they wish. That's up to them. I'm not ashamed to be fired. I have nothing to be ashamed of. The only thing that I know that they have against me is my activity in that dry law enforcement raid."

Ellis today had received no notice of dismissal. He, too, said that he was not going to resign, that he had done nothing to resign for. Ellis is known to be a firm advocate of dry law enforcement.

It was predicted today that Judge French, whom bootleggers regarded as extremely "hard-boiled" and in the same class with Marshal Eells, would be one of the next in line. Members of the board, however, denied that any action against Judge French had been discussed. Thompson said that French was expected to retire soon because of ill health.

J. G. Suepelt, Fullerton park superintendent, was let out at the secret meeting of Fullerton trustees Tuesday night. The reason given for asking Suepelt's resignation was that the city has not money at present to pay for park work. Suepelt has been with the city several years and no fault was found with his work.

WHOLESALE JAIL BREAK AVERTED

CANON CITY, Colo., Feb. 12.—The condition of Guard George Bickman of the Colorado state penitentiary was reported serious today following injuries received during a daring attempt by two convicts to escape from the prison last night.

The prisoners, both serving terms for robbery and burglary, attacked the guard with a table leg when the latter entered the hospital ward of which the convicts were inmates. A trust who entered the ward as the guard was attacked was nearly suffocated by a gag.

A wholesale jail break was averted when an unidentified prisoner pulled an emergency cord which summoned additional guards to the scene of the attempted escape.

TUNNEL WILL BE CUT THRU SUNDAY

Sixty hours from this morning at 9 o'clock, the shaft thru which Floyd Collins, imprisoned cave explorer, will be brought out "dead or alive" will reach the level where side drifting actually to locate his body will begin. Then it will be a matter only of hours.

This was the information conveyed today in an official communique issued over the name of H. T. Carmichael, general supervisor of operations at the pit.

The Communique reads:

"At 9 a. m. the shaft had reached 45 feet. Engineers calculated that Collins is not deeper than 70 feet. Our normal average progress is 10 feet every 24 hours.

"These figures show, that, barring surprises, we should reach the 70-foot level in 60 hours from 9 a. m. Thursday.

"We have Collins' position laterally from the shaft, we believe. When we reach the proper level, we shall drift horizontally for him. If we find we have miscalculated his direction, we shall drift in all directions until we get him.

"We now are working in limestone formation, a region where fissures or caves may reasonably be expected. If any of these are to be found, or if they will be of value if they are, none can say."

"We have not yet reached the limestone ledge under which we expect to find Collins.

"The morale of the forces is excellent. The weather is improving.

L. G. Barry, field representative of the Sand Cave Red Cross and assistants have their part of the operation fully in hand.—H. T. CARMICHAEL."

RIDICULE KANSAS CLAIM

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 12.—Ridicule today met the slightest mention here of the self-identified "Floyd Collins" at Haddam, Kan.

"Foolish," commented Lieutenant Governor H. H. Denhart briefly.

Members of the Collins family said the marks of identification forwarded in telegrams from the mayor of Haddam failed to tally with Floyd, who, they are convinced, lies at the end of the crawlway in Sand Cave.

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 12.—An official bulletin of progress in the "life or death" shaft to Floyd Collins, issued at 9 o'clock this morning, placed the depth of the shaft at 49 feet.

"Material being encountered at the depth," the bulletin said, "is the same type of clay, sand and miscellaneous rock." The shaft bottom, it is said, showed no change. The thirteenth section of timber, three feet to the section, was completed at 5 a. m., and digging was resumed. The timbering starts ten feet down.

SAND CAVE, Ky., Feb. 12.—Floyd Collins lost his bearing and doubled back into treacherous ground instead of getting into the safe hillside according to geologists who today explained the topography of the country surrounding Sand Cave. Caves are usually capped by a limestone which must be pierced before the lower passages, formed by the water washing out the limestone, can be exposed. It is in trying to find openings thru sandstone, muck and mud that the explorer risks his life. Once within the limestone structure with solid roofs overhead the danger is past.

This region is noted for its wonderful caves, including the world famous Mammoth Cave and Onyx Caves and Crystal Cave discovered by Collins in 1918.

Many of these caverns extend for miles beneath the surface and are wonderfully beautiful in the stalachtites (roof icicles) and stalagmites (floor icicles) and in their deposits of onyx and gypsum. It was for one of these caverns that the imprisoned man was searching when he was trapped in the dangerous crawl way.

The so-called "Sand Cave" in reality is not a cave at all, but merely a narrow passageway thru fallen rock which is was believed might lead to an underground cavern similar to those already discovered. But the cavern which was supposed to be somewhere near the opening found under the cliff that circles the hillside has never been discovered unless it was found by Collins on his expedition.

The topography of Sand Cave, which has become world famous in a week's time, is characteristic of the cave region. A low hill covered with light second growth timber faces on the northeast an arrow valley ending in a sink. The upper end of this valley contains a great fall of rocks, the result of an ancient "cave in" and the accumulation from exposed ledges.

These caves are the home of many animals in which scientists are much interested. Among them are the famous blind fish, blind crickets, curious spiders, peculiar lizards and remarkable forms of insect life, many of which never see the light of day from one generation to another.

Kentucky caves have yielded extremely interesting archaeological material of this kind. Skeletons of prehistoric animals and of ancient man, recently have been unearthed in a number of these places and outside such caves the trash heaps or "kitchen middens" of the early inhabitants of these ancient dwelling places give the details of a former civilization.

The famous "lost rivers" and underground stream also abound in this region.

What might be termed "cave mania" is developed by those who once begin to delve in the dark openings on the hillsides.

Often the result is the discovery of beauty and grandeur never before seen by human eyes and often as in the case of Floyd Collins, the result is the tragic imprisonment of the daring explorer somewhere beneath thousands of tons of rocks.

COURTHOUSE DOINGS

Alleging Samuel R. Depoyster deserted her three months after marriage at Talbert in August, 1922, Mrs. Georgia Depoyster seeks divorce.

His car was damaged $265 and the loss of the machine following an accident east of Buena Park brought his total damages to $425, T. T. Turner claims. Charles C. and Catherine Borzi are defendants. The collision occurred last Dec. 28.

Suit to quiet title to two lots near Buena Park was started today by the Western Savings bank of Long Beach against D. L. Case. The lots are in the old Rancho Los Coyotes.

150 GERMANS DIE IN MINE BLAST

DORTMUND, Germany, Feb. 12. Fifty-two bodies had been removed from the collieries here, nine miners had been brought out alive and nearly a hundred more were believed buried alive in the huge Dortmund coal mines today following an explosion.

Dortmund's mines furnish fuel for an important industrial region of Prussia, the Dortmund Union alone employing 10,000 workers in the manufacture of structural steel.

DEATHS IN MINE DISASTER INCREASE

DORTMUND, Germany, Feb. 12. The total dead in an explosion in the huge coal mines here was put definitely at 138 this evening as rescue crews tried to reach men believed still entombed.

The bodies of 52 of the miners have been brought to the surface. Two rescuers, whose progress is being hampered by poisonous gas explosions, have penetrated to a point 300 metres beneath the surface.

ASK ACCOUNTING OF $3000 STOCKS

Intimating that he has a suspicion of fraud in the handling of funds, Boyd R. Beatty today had brought suit in the superior court at Santa Ana against John O. Henderson and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. O. Thompson asking an accounting of $3000 in stocks and securities Beatty alleges he gave Henderson to invest.

Beatty's suit declares he has information which leads him to believe that part of the money has been used to improve a house near Villa Park owned by the Thomsons.

For several months, Beatty declares, he kept Mrs. Jessie B. Doane, sister-in-law of Henderson, until her death on Feb. 1.

During that time Henderson came to visit his invalid relative and gained the confidence of Mr. Beatty, and a transaction whereby Henderson was to take the $3000 in securities, the property of Mrs. Doane, who is also an aunt of Beatty, and invest the money, purportedly for the purpose of paying Beatty for the care of the invalid woman.

Prior to and since the woman's death Beatty has received only a trivial sum for her upkeep, he alleged, adding that the purpose of investing her money has not been carried out.

Beatty's suit asks that the money be accounted for in order that the estate may be liquidated properly, and also that he may be paid for services he performed before his aunt's demise.

REALTY BUSINESS FINE

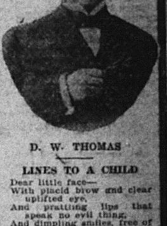

The realty business in Fullerton and vicinity is coming fine, according to Hugh Miller of the Miller Realty Co. Most have been made in Lansdowne on the Fullerton-Buena Park-rd.

LINES TO A CHILD

Dear little face—
With placid brow and clear uplifted eye,
And prattling lips that speak no evil thing,
And dimpling smiles, free of fair-seeming lies,
Unschooled to ape the dreary world's pretense;
Sweet imager of cloudless innocence,
The tenderest flower of Nature's fashioning;
A stray rose amidst the wilderness,
Amidst the desert a clear, welling spring—
So is thy undissembling loveliness.
Dear little face.

Dear little hand—
How sweet it is to feel against my own,
The touch of this soft palm which never yet
The taint of soul-destroying gold hath known,
Here nature's seal of truthfulness is pressed,
Even as her loving touch the lily,
Blessed with stainless purity, ever as she set
The golden flame upon the daffodil,
And heaven's clear blue upon the violet
May her best gifts be for thy clasping still,
Dear little hand.

Dear little heart—
That never harbored any ill intent,
That knew no bitterness, nor doubt, nor care;
But only young life's nestling wonderment
And strange new joys, amidst the incomplete,
Unpledged emotions and affections sweet,
Veiled by the unlived years, thy field but there
The sowing for the harvest hath begun;
When thou shalt reap and bind, may no despair
Rise from that ground between thee and the sun.

FLORIDA BACKING ANTI-CAL. DRIVE

Back from a trip to Atlantic City, N. J., and return via the Carolinas, Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans, H. W. Lewis, manager-partner of the J. C. Penney Co., today charged that the propaganda against California was coming from large concerns backing companies which had bought up huge tracts of land in Florida.

Fortunes in real estate are being made overnight in the southeastern peninsula state, Lewis was told, and Florida is enjoying wonderful prosperity.

An encouraging thing for California is the revival of productive mining in New Mexico and Arizona. Arizona appears in for a long period of mining prosperity. The cattle ranges look dry, but the mining industry will offset that.

A Nebraska man told Lewis that Nebraskans going to California and dying here would lose 25 per cent of their estate in inheritance taxes. "Regardless of where a man lives or where his property is," he is subject to this tax, Lewis was informed.

If this is true, Lewis believes that California had better get its law into line with those of other states.

Lewis observed that the best California oranges were being sold at 65 to 75 cents per dozen in New York City. He noticed Florida grapefruit put up in paper cartons in dozen lots that sold as low as 40 cents in the national metropolis. More Florida fruit of all kinds was displayed than California fruit, owing to the season.

The Anaheimer was much interested in the russet oranges of Florida with which he hadn't been familiar.

Lewis went to Atlantic City to attend the 1925 convention of the J. C. Penney Co. After the gathering the visitors went to the buying department of the big concern in New York.

The local Penney manager spent a week with relatives in Binghamton, N. Y. Returning, he stopped at Philadelphia and Washington, D. C.

The iron and steel centers of the East and South, in fact the metal industry centers generally, appeared to be in good shape.

The New England textile industries are operating on half time.

Many of the latter have moved to North and South Carolina. Al-

BLAST ICE JAM

COLBROOK, N. H., Feb. 12.—By dynamiting the ice jams in Mohawk river, volunteer workers saved 500 homes in the north end of this town today when the river overflowed its banks flooding the whole valley.

For hours the roar of the exploding dynamite shook the countryside until the river became free. Fifteen persons were marooned in their homes but they were taken out by rescuers in boats.

One ice jam remained in the river two miles above the town. Dynamiters were at work on this jam.

NOW THEY'RE ONE

Tasmezo Yamomato and Megaska Heyashegyma, Japanese, were married by Judge Kuchel. The couple had been living together since May, 1923, under the false impression that they were married. They obtained a marriage license at that time, but did not have the ceremony performed, thinking that a marriage license was all that was necessary.

most every little town has a mill. The tendency is for the entire industry to move southward.

The Southern Power Co., which controls most of the water power sites in the Carolinas, has had a lot to do with bringing industries southward. Labor is cheap, but isn't exploited. The factory concerns have erected good houses for help and are looking after their social needs.

The South generally speaking is in the best condition it has ever been. It is destined thru cheap power and labor to acquire most of the cotton textile industry.

At New Orleans there was not much surplus labor. The finding of oil about Baton Rouge has furnished Louisiana with an additional source of prosperity.

Few people realize the extent of rice growing in this state. Rice production really is taking the place of sugar cane raising, because American growers cannot compete with Cuban, where labor is paid 25 to 60 cents per day compared with $1.75 to $2.25 to the American negro.

Great stretches of level land are planted to rice, the land being plowed in process of irrigation, while the product is harvested much like grain.

Central Texas is prosperous, and Lewis doesn't know how to account for it. He is inclined to think it is due to higher prices for staple cotton.

MITCHELL DENIES INSUBORDINATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Brig. Gen. Wm. Mitchell, assistant chief of the army air service, denied this afternoon before the house investigating committee that he had been guilty of insubordination during the army-navy bombing tests off the Virginia capes in 1921.

The charge that Mitchell failed to obey orders was made by Capt. Alfred Johnson of the navy bureau of aeronautics. Johnson had declared that Mitchell, leading the army bombing planes, had taken off before he was scheduled to leave, in violation of written orders, for the attack on the ex-German battleship Ostfriesland.

"If we didn't co-operate with the navy, it was because we sunk the ship," Mitchell asserted. "We tried to carry out not only the spirit but the letter of the written instructions."

Gen. Hugh Drum, whose defence of the methods of the army air service invoked the wrath of Brig. Gen. Mitchell and led to the present row over military aeronautics, was scheduled to another attack today.

Wm. J. Schaufler of Washington, who commanded an aerial observation group during the world war described as "absolute rot" Gen. Drum's statement that he could successfully defend the national capital with twelve anti-aircraft guns.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The charge that the navy department refused to accept a new type of airplane, which, it was said by another nation, would place the United States at its mercy was made by Lieut. Col. Harold Hartney, former army flyer, who commanded the first pursuit squadron of the A.E.F. during the world war.

SMEDLEY SPEAKS

Fullerton Rotary yesterday was addressed by Ralph Smedley, Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. secretary, on Lincoln and Washington.

Preparations are being made by the club to send delegates, at least eight, to the Rotary convention at Fresno Feb. 18-19. Rev. Walter Thornton, pastor of the First Christian church of Fullerton, is on the convention program.

FULLERTON C. OF C. ISSUES PAMPHLET

Fullerton C. of C. has issued another pamphlet in which it declares the site on the Bastanchury ranch to be the "most logical and desirable" of any offered.

More than 100 cities with a combined population of 850,000 people lie to the east of an imaginary line from San Pedro across the center of Los Angeles, while to its west lie 22 cities exclusive of Los Angeles with 150,000 people. Fullerton lies to the east in a territory which includes Long Beach, Santa Ana, Riverside, Pomona, San Bernardino and San Diego as well as Anaheim, Orange, Whittier, El Centro, etc.

Besides the 850,000 people 90 per cent of the rural population of So. Cal. is in the section to the east.

The center of population of the Southland will inevitably move to the east and south. Hence the site should be east of Los Angeles.

Transportation routes of the majority of the population outside Los Angeles to be considered would be undesirable if the site were in or near Los Angeles.

The arguments in favor of climate, cost of water, etc., again are detailed at length.

ORANGE CO. COWS PRODUCING MORE

There were 779 cows tested this past month by the Swociation. They produced on the average of 892 pounds of milk and 37.8 pounds of butterfat.

J. E. McGregor's herd averaged 47 pounds of butterfat which was the highest production of any herd in herds 25 to 40 cows.

The R. T. Dairy averaged 42.4 pounds, which was highest of any herd over 40 cows.

Raitt's Dairy of Santa Ana had the highest producing cow for the month. She produced 2,499 pounds of milk, containing 103.5 pounds of butterfat. This is an average of 80 pounds of milk and 3.3 pounds of butterfat a day. Quite a good family cow. Every cow in the herd with a production like this is the ambition of every dairyman. Two other cows need honorable mention, however,—one owned by L. C. Lea, which produced 85.4 pounds of butterfat, and one owned by E. F. Hazard, producing 82.2 pounds.

An increase in the average production of butterfat is noted this month. With 779 cows tested, the average production of milk was 892 pounds and 37.8 pounds of butterfat. This is an increase of 48 pounds of milk and 1.3 pounds of butterfat over that of last month, and an increase of 23 pounds of milk and 2.7 pounds of butterfat over that of January last year. This is a splendid showing as computed on the basis of $1.00 per pound for butterfat, this increase in average production would mean a return of $2.-103.20 in excess of that received January of last year on the same butterfat price basis. This may not mean that the dairyman has been able to secure a larger profit over that of last year, because other economic factors may enter in that cut this figure down but it does show that where a herd has reached the average production of the association, a large return has been secured. In other words, the average cow in January of last year produced 35.1 pounds of butterfat, whereas she produced 37.8 pounds this year, which meant an increase of $2.70 in the value of her production.

With conditions comparable to those of last year, this increase in average production can be accredited to better herd management, better feeding, and elimination of low producers.

One point that is often overlooked is the care of the dry cows. These are so often turned out in dry pastures and made to rustle for themselves, with the result that they freshen in very poor condition, which is a serious mistake. While dry cows do not need the same feed, care, and attention as those milking, they should be handled so that they are in good flesh when freshening. A small amount of grazing is usually necessary, but only low protein grains should be fed at this time. No better ration can be provided than silage and alfalfa hay, with two to four pounds of concentrates, depending on the condition of the cow. High protein grains are apt to cause considerable udder trouble. Carbonaceous feeds are needed to put on the required flesh.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF OIL INDUSTRY

By Elwood J. Munger

A new record was hung up for the oil industry of Southern California a few days ago when the General Petroleum Corporation successfully landed and cemented the longest string of 6¾ casing that has ever been put in an oil well. The feat was accomplished at Rosecrans on the Amstoy well recently drilled to a depth of 6666 feet. The 6¾ casing was set at 6606 feet, and the 200 sacks of cement was mixed and poured into place by the Perkins Oil Well Cementing Company in exactly 55 minutes. The combined weight of the record string of casing exceed 80 tons, but it was floated into position and landed as easily as if it had weighed 80 pounds. The Amstoy well got a rather nice showing of oil and gas from 6606 to bottom, and if it makes a commercial producer another world record will be set. To date the deepest commercial production is 6500.

Interest in the development of the extreme northwest area of the Rosecrans-Athens field has been taken on new proportions with the announcement of the Chanslor-Canfield Midway's intentions to drill a test well on the Billhorn property located west of Western Avenue and a mile and a quarter west of the present production area of the Rosecrans field.

The showing made by the Union Oil Company's Gordon No. 1 at 6150 feet was but a temporary one and the golden hope of a southerly extension of the Rosecrans area were short lived. The showings continued only a few feet and disappeared. Now at 6355 the drilling is in brown shale streaked with gray sand, the outlook not so encouraging. If it begins to look as though production is obtained on the property it will be deep. The Gordon will probably fix the south line of the field.

The Associated Oil Company continues to get the good production at Dominguez. Holly-DeFrancis No. 5, completed at 4251 feet came in a 1690 barrel well producing 29 gravity oil. The completion of No. 6 scheduled for next week will give the Associated a total of six well producing. The six wells will give the lease an output of 10,000 barrels.

Interest in the deep sand development of the Dominguez field hinges on the outcome of the Shell Company's deep test well Hellman No. 1. The Hellman was drilled to 6075 feet. It is the intention to make a production test of the zone from 5532 to 6075 feet. The well has shown some justifications and there is hope of the well making a showing that will justify further drilling in the way of deep sand development.

Things move fast in the Culver City-Baldwin Hills oil field. Ocean Howard set a new record for Southern California by drilling and gotting a well ready for production in a week. Howard drilled his Macdonald No. 1 to a depth of 1856 feet, set a string of 11 inch at 1770 feet, and cemented in seven days elapsed time. The well will be on production before the end of the week.

The Baldwin Hills-Culver City field now has its fifth producer, the Standard Oil Company making the contribution in the completion of Los Angeles Investment No. 1-3 at 2560 feet. The new well is a considerably larger producer than has heretofore been completed in the new field, and is attracting more attention. The new L. A. Investment well is making 500 barrels. The average of former completions has been 150-200 barrels.

Long Beach perked up last week and gave the Los Angeles Basin a real oil well. The Shell Company's Alamitos No. 23 completed at 4822 feet came in doing 1200 barrels. This is the biggest well the field has had since the opening of the year and seems to reveal the fact that the old field still has a little oil left in it. Long Beach production continues to hold steadily at 124,000 barrels.

The Union Oil Company is about to make a showdown test of the possibilities of deep sand production for the old Brea field. The test will be made on Graham-Loftus No. 55, a well drilled to 5523 feet, has 300 feet of pretty good looking oil sand and appears that it will make an oil well. Drilling of deep test wells in the Brea-Richfield district to date has met with a lot of grief, the grief being water trouble. However, if the Unions' Graham-Loftus 55 makes good it will be the signal for the starting of a lot of new development in the oil field.

Bandini is still struggling to get on the oil map of the Los Angeles basin. The Wilshire Oil Company is making a great effort to find a little production and has to date drilled three wells in the quest. The third well is now at a depth of 5300 and has no showings or indications.

Hermosa is being given a chance to make a bid for a position on the oil map of Southern California, and it seems that it is going to make a showing at least. Drilling at 3800 feet has shown some oil and gas. A recent production test revealed some water which is believed prevented the well from making the showing it would have made. Efforts are being made to effect a complete shut off and in a few days the oil fraternity may be able to welcome Hermosa Beach into petroleum circles.

Out on the desert in San Bernardino County, a lot of wildcat drilling is going on that will shortly decide whether or not there is any oil on the desert side of Yermo the Western Pacific Oil Company is down 3150 feet and to date has not had any important showings. At Hesperia the Hesperia Oil Gas Company has 3000 feet of hole and is going ahead. Near Victorville the Victor Valley Landowners believe they have something at 1170 feet and preparing to test it out.

DAILY GREETING TO OUR READERS

Hear, O Israel; the Lord our God is one Lord.—Deuteronomy 6:4.

I have a pledge from Christ, have His note of hand, which is my support, my refuge, and haven; and though the world should rage, to this security I cling. How reads it? "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." If Christ be with me, all the powers of earth to me are nothing more than a spider's web. —Saint Chrysostom.

BOYS COMMIT CRIMES, MORE THAN MEN

It is boys and young men of tender years who commit eighty per cent of the crimes which darken the social life of this country. This ratio is startling. Four-fifths of all crime committed in this country is by boys and young men under twenty-five years old. Could there be any stronger plea than this for moral training?

The moral pitfalls of this age are many. There is greater need than ever before to bolster young men and young women in their moral natures. If the morals of the young are not conserved, the race will go to decay. It will never do to leave the young to work out their own moral salvation without aid. They need the counsel of their elders. They need the moral safeguarding which is vital to them in adolescent years. The prevalence of vice and crime among the young cannot be forestalled and overcome by mere chance. The demoralizing perils which beset the youth of today must be fought and must be guarded against systematically.

That many boys and young men are going to ruin is evidenced by the startling ratio of crimes committed by males under twenty-five years old. Four crimes out of every five committed by youths! This is proof positive of lamentable lack of moral ballast among boys and young men, in great numbers.

Teach the children to love and protect trees. Teach them of the beauty and the value of trees. Stir them to enthusiasm for the planting and protection of trees.

MISSIONS OF MERCY BY AIRPLANES

The diphtheria epidemic in Nome, Alaska, has developed a situation which commands the sympathy of the civilized world. Shut off from easy communication with the outside world by the rigorous Alaskan winter, Nome's appeal for anti-toxin reached the hearts of men everywhere. Then came the gallant rush of driver and dogs to carry the first supply. Other dog teams are to be sent in. Furthermore, airplanes are to be used in conveying medical supplies to the stricken city.

The world flight by American army aviators demonstrated that airplanes can successfully brave the rigors of Arctic climate. This relief flight will afford additional demonstration. French aviators have negotiated long distances across the Desert of Sahara. Thus the inhospitable cold and the inhospitable desert are shown to be capable of mastery by man in his wonder machines—the airplanes. Developments of air transportation add another to the long list of means of mercy, even for the most isolated spots on the face of the earth. Airplanes in future will figure prominently in relief expeditions and in rescue of the imperiled on land and sea.

There is ample time yet for California to have an abundant fall of rain. A great deal of precipitation normally comes to this state after the first of February.

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE

By Dr. Frank McCoy
Author of "THE FAST WAY TO HEALTH"

GOOD PROTEID FOOD (Continued)

SALISBURY STEAK is made by grinding beef meat through a meat grinder, using only the red, lean part of round steak, from which all gristle and fat have been removed. This may seem similar to Hamburger steak, but it is really more palatable and more easily digestible, and has, in addition, an entirely different flavor than when the fat is left in. There is usually about a quarter of a pound of waste to each half pound of lean meat, so that it is advisable to purchase three quarters of a pound of steak for each person to be served.

After the meat has been put through the grinder, this finely ground meat is pressed flat into some kind of a pan like a cake tin. No grease should be added or rubbed on the pan, but the pan should be entirely dry. The ground meat in the pan may be up to one inch in thickness, and it should be placed in a hot oven and the fire then turned down. The meat will cook through quite well in about five minutes, and will be cooked sufficiently in two or three minutes if rare meat is desired.

After cooking, it may be cut into small pieces for serving, or cooked in different patty shapes similar to the way Hamburger is usually prepared. A tasty addition may be made by grinding spinach or parsley up with meat, which imparts a slightly different flavor. This is an excellent way to prepare round steak, which is probably the most wholesome cut of beef it is possible to obtain, and which has the added advantage of being the cheapest in price.

TODAY'S VIEWS

"Japan More Interested in Industrialization Than Emigration"

Japan is not so interested in emigration as in industrialization, Hirosi Saito, Japanese consul general, insisted in a recent address in New York. Discussing relations between Japan and the United States, Saito expressed belief that majority opinion in both countries had a desire for peace in the Pacific despite efforts of jingoes on both sides. Japan, he said, felt peace jointly maintained was essential to her national existence and prosperity. He said he hoped for some "gesture of good will" from the United States to amend the ills following upon the "deplorable immigration law incident of last year."

Japanese statesmanship, he continued, in alleviating the pressing density of the home population which grew 600,000 annually, would find the country's ultimate salvation in "her industrialization," not by any means in emigration." Because Japan lacked coal, iron and oil and other major raw materials are scarce, the only compensation for which appeared in development of hydro-electric power, he said she depended heavily upon foreign trade.

America played the greatest part in this foreign trade in comparison with other countries, according to the consul general. Its imports of 35 per cent of Japan's silk output constituted 44 per cent of Japan's total exports.

Reciprocally, he said, Japan bought here $65,000,000 of raw cotton every year, which supplied 32 per cent of the material required by Japan's most active branch, its textile industry, and an additional $125,000,000 in machinery and other products.

Third in Foreign Trade

Japan is third in the foreign trade of the United States, its commerce with this country amounting to "more than one-third of your total Pacific and being little less than your entire South American trade," he said.

Though Japan was consequently less interested in emigration and was not desirous of sending emigrants to countries where they were not acceptable," Saito said, nevertheless Japanese exclusion had come as a tremendous psychological shock," and was considered an "uncalled for blow to Japanese honor."

"We are a proud race," said Saito. "In the old days our Samurai, when he borrowed money, wrote in his promissory note: 'If I fail to return this money, please laugh at me before all people.' And this sentence was accepted by his creditors as the best of securities."

"Drastic legislation" here, he said, had caused Japanese to feel that they had been laughed at before all the peoples of the world," and by their hitherto best friends, whose ideals had long been generally admired.

POEMS THAT LIVE

MEETING AT NIGHT

The gray sea and the long black land,
And the yellow halfmoon large and low;
And the startled little waves that leap
In the fiery ringlets from their sleep,
As I gain the cove with pushing prow
And quench its speed in the slushy sand.

Then a mile of warm, sea-scented beach;
Three fields to cross till a farm appears;
A tap at the pane, the quick, sharp scratch
And blue spurt of a lighted match,
And a voice less loud, through its joys and fears,
Than the two hearts beating each to each!

—Robert Browning.

COMMENTS of the PRESS

What Editors Are Saying

SHOULD BE FOR DISARMAMENT—San Bernardino Sun

Recently, in an editorial calling attention to the tremendous world loss in the late war in lives, money and destroyed property, a San Francisco paper expressed wonder why the nations do not turn from war to peace more than they appear to be doing. Then it gives the reason without realizing that it does so, when it says, "But among the things removed by the war was the fantastic optimism which argued that the weakness of a nation in naval and military strength would engender imitation and other nations would withhold their hands." This probably refers to Belgium, but Germany's invasion of Belgium was not hostile to a weak nation, but what she considered a necessary step in her clash with a powerful nation.

Then it goes on to say: "It is fair for us to assume in our dealings with foreign nations, that no other nation wants another war any more than we do. Nations are slowest to attack when war any more than we do. Nations are slowest to attack when their chances of winning are obviously the least. In up-to-the-minute preparedness is our only assurance against payment in the future, of another bill of costs still heavier than above." It is fair to assume that, if other nations do not want war any more than we do, and that if we would not attack them, then they would not attack us. This should supply a splendid foundation for an agreement to abolish armaments that could be considered large enough for offense.

The trouble with us is that we assume a self-righteousness we do not possess and which other nations do not credit us with. If we are to have up-to-the-minute preparedness for war because we fear the war preparation of other nations would lead them to attack us, then we are bound to look upon like preparedness by other nations as purely defensive, and that they mistrust us as much as we do them and are equally justified in arming themselves for defense against us. It is rank self-righteousness for us to assume that it is safe for the world for us to be heavily armed, but not safe for other nations to be like armed. We may deceive ourselves, but we cannot deceive them. An armed nation is an armed nation. Our righteousness ought rather to take the form of an invitation to the other nations to hold with us to a real honest-to-goodness disarmament conference, and then go into the conference ready to make it one.

GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

TO SEEKERS AFTER TRUTH

"Know the truth, and it shall set you free," is, after all, an idle saying. How is one to know the truth?

The search after truth is like the search after perpetual motion or the attempt to square the circle.

Samuel Butler held that all we should aim at is the most convenient way of looking at a thing—the way that most sensible people are likely to find to give them the least trouble for some time to come.

* * *

It is not true that the sun used to go round the earth until Copernicus' time, but it is true that until Copernicus' times it was most convenient to us to hold this.

* * *

If truth is not trouble saving in the long run it is not truth, Samuel Butler contended. He held that truth is only that which is most largely and permanently trouble saving.

* * *

The ultimate triumph, therefore, of truth rests on a very tangible basis—much more so that when it is made to depend upon the will of an unseen and unknowable agency.

LITTLE DANCERS ECLIPSE OTHER AMATEUR SHOWS

"IT was the very nicest performance given in the California!" "Weren't they darling". "Look at that baby dance on her little toes!" These and countless other exclamations of delight concerned the program at the California theatre last evening when the dancing classes of Miss Georgia Moore, consisting of half a hundred children from many babyhood to graceful school girls wearing specially made catumes, were presented in "Follies of 1928."

It would be hard to enumerate the charm and ability of the individual dancers, but to say it was a performance doing credit to proud mothers is not putting it too strongly. Of the four baby stars, the small Miss Mary Ellen Nickson, in the clown dance, was literally on her toes every moment. The old fashioned dance by the Misses Naomi Wheeler and Glenmar Wardlaw, carried the audience back to the days of the minuet. Master Glen Wright, jr., in his top hat dance, was just too dear for words, doffing his hat and whirling his cane with all the eclat of a modern dandy. The others were quite as fine. Miss Marie Goodrich, the jester, injected acrobatic stunts into her jolly little duties of page, exhibiting several clever stunts.

The ensemble dancing and singing was enhanced by the special lighting system provided by Frank McCowan, stage manager, and particularly beautified the "Celestine" dance presented by the Misses Lois Coats, Anita Desch, Lucille Goodrich and Velma James.

"The Story Book Ball," sung by Miss Lucille Hatfield, was cleverly portrayed by each described character passing in review, Glen Wright, jr., Sarah Collins, Glenmar Wardlaw, Nell LaVecke, Naomi Wheeler, Tommy Hoag, Mary Ellen Nickson, Dorothy Schaeh and Elisabeth Rayer, delineating the characters. Not a little of the success of the affair is due to Mr. George Turner, the regular organist, whose interpretative accompaniment sustained the dance rhythm throughout.

Mrs. Thelma Sanches sweetly sang "Sweet Sixteen" and was loudly applauded.

Truly the performance was the finest children's program staged by Miss Moore and the California management are feeling justly proud this morning. The program will be repeated this evening, to the great pleasure of those who could not see it last night.

Wisconsin Picnic

All Wisconsin folks are urged to rally at Sycamore Grove Park, Saturday, Feb. 14, for the big winter picnic reunion. All the usual picnic features will be carried out and the badgers will meet many old friends. Tourists are specially invited.

These daguerreotypes and photographs of Abraham Lincoln were taken at various stages of his career. Photography was in its infancy then, but the great strength of Lincoln's character is shown by all of the photos, despite the crudeness of some of them.

MANY SPEAK IN LINCOLN'S HONOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Although there was no official holiday and the government, including congress, functioned as usual, Washington found time today to observe Lincoln's birthday anniversary.

The capital's recollection of Lincoln centers about his occupancy of the White House in the days before and during the civil war, for it was here that he rose to his greatness as he carried out the tasks which gave him his place in history.

In a silent, old house in Georgetown, Robert Todd Lincoln, only living son of the president, observed his father's birthday quietly and alone, declining all invitations to public functions and formal anniversary ceremonies. His 82 years bear heavily upon him.

Ceremonies were held at the Willard Hotel where the tall, gaunt ex-congressman from Illinois stopped before he took the oath of the presidency for the first time; and at the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park, where the great Lincoln statue looks out calmly and gravely to the shining dome of the capitol a mile and a half away.

Addresses in eulogy of Lincoln were delivered by Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior Works, former Governor Lowden of Illinois, Judge Elbert H. Gary, John Kirby and John Wesley Hill of New York. The speeches were broadcast thru Radio Station W. R. C.

During the day there was a steady stream of visitors at the little frame house in Tenth st. where Lincoln died after he was wounded in Ford's Theatre just across the street. The house is now a museum, containing objects associated with Lincoln's life in Washington. The theatre has lately been used as an army recruiting station but is now closed.

Creamy Eggs—Take one egg for each individual to be served, one pint hot milk, salt and pepper to taste, one tablespoon butter. Beat the eggs slightly, add butter and seasonings. Pour the milk over the eggs and cook in double boiler. As it thickens scrape it away slowly from the sides of the pan with a spoon. Continue in this way until only a small amount of the liquid remains. Serve on buttered toast. Do not cook the egg directly over the flame for the intense heat may cause the egg to curdle.

Creams of Celery Soup — One cup celery, one cup water, one pint of milk, heated, one-half cup cream, heated, one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of flour, salt and white pepper to taste. A little onion juice may be added if liked or an onion may be cooked in the water with the celery. Cook the celery in the water until tender. Strain and add to the hot milk and cream. Make a white sauce by melting the butter, adding flour, and gradually the celery, milk and cream mixture. Season and serve.

WHITMAN'S CLASSIC TRIBUTE TO ABRAHAM LINCOLN

One of the grandest of all poems of Walt Whitman, America's great poet, is his "O, Captain! My Captain!" a tribute to Lincoln:

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done,
The ship has weathered every rock, the prize we sought is won,
The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting,
While follow eyes the steadkeel, the vessel grim and daring;
But O heart! heart! heart!
O the bleeding drops of red,
Where on the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells;
Rise up—for you the flag is flung—for you the bugle thrills,
For you bouquets and ribboned wreaths—for you the shores acrowding,
For you they call, the swaying mass, their eager faces turning;
Here, Captain! dear father!
This arm beneath your head!
It is some dream that on the deck
You've fallen cold and dead.

My Captain does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will,
My father does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will.
The ship is anchored safe and sound, its voyage closed and done,
From fearful trip the victor ship comes in with object won;
Exult, O shores, and ring, O bells!
But I, with mournful tread,
Walk the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

The following year "The Cross" was published with words by Edwin Markham, and since then a long list of compositions have come from her pen.

Her "Undine," created in collaboration with Edwin Markham, in 1915, was warmly received by musical critics, and this was followed by "Stars," in 1921, and "In and Old Garden" (song cycle). FRIENDS MEET TO CELEBRATE NATAL DAY

MRS. ANNIE McKIM, 616 East Chartres-st., was given a real surprise yesterday as a company of her friends dropped in at her home to celebrate her birthday. Valentines featured the party, great red hearts being distributed with instructions to write some original and appropriate poetry on them. As the rhymes pertained to the fate, Mrs. McKim was asked to read them, all of which were unsigned, and the amusement and laughter caused one to think much talent had been heretofore hidden under a bushel.

Mrs. McKim was presented with many packages, which she opened and permitted all the guests to enjoy.

Not the least of the pleasure of the afternoon was the three months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Squires and his apparent enjoyment of the whole affair. Music, also, had a place in the entertainment features and the afternoon went along so merrily that the hour of departure came only too soon.

The delicious luncheon was served in two courses, and contained two big birthday cakes lighted with pink candles and adorned with red flowers.

Participating in the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kidd, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Squires and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and the Mesdames Lizzie Henning, Mary Wrigley, Cox, L. M. Thompson, Noble Summerville, John McKim and May Remick.

CALIF. HAS ITS OWN SAND CAVE

ST. HELENA, Feb. 12. — The body of John Watson, 31, was removed this afternoon from the Spring Mountain tunnel in which he was entombed late last night.

Two experienced miners dug thru the 30-foot tunnel to a cave-like room 14 by 14 feet in the mountain, where the lifeless form was found.

Watson, a former sailor, with Raymond White and Clifford Clarke, all from Vallejo, had been engaged in digging out the tunnel and cave room and late last night Watson and Clarke were working in an effort to complete their task preparatory to returning to Vallejo today.

The inner room and tunnel caved in and Watson was caught beneath the fall. Clarke, nearer the entrance, was able to dig his way out and awaken White, who was asleep in a cabin nearby.

Aid was summoned from here and all day in the rain the rescuers dug in the hope that life might still be left in the young man's body.

Watson's relatives live in Spokane, Wash. He celebrated his 21st birthday last Friday.

The body was brought to a local undertaking room to await an inquest.

Clarke was cut about the head and severely bruised but his injuries are not serious.

Flood conditions in this district continued serious this afternoon. The new St. Helena highway opened north a year ago, has slid out in many places and it will require weeks and many thousands of dollars to make it passable.

The upper St. Helena water dam threatens to go out. It is located on Spring Mountain, three miles west of here. Workmen are strengthening its banks.

ST. HELENA, Calif., Feb. 12.—In an isolated spot on Spring mountain, three miles from here a counterpart of the Cave City, Ky., search for Floyd Collins was being enacted today as a hurriedly assembled band of workers started to dig out an unidentified man entombed in a tunnel on a government claim.

Another man was seriously injured and due to the isolated point of the tunnel could not be aided, the fact that a storm has washed out all roads, it has been impossible to secure a physician for the injured man or to bring him to a hospital here.

The man in the tunnel is believed to be named Watson. He is from Vallejo, Solano county. A man named Goldsby owns the claim. He is also a former Mare Island marine. The injured man's companion is believed to be either White or Clark.

According to information brot down here from the mountain, Watson and a companion were digging in the tunnel late last night when its rain-softened walls fell. Goldsby, asleep in a cabin nearby rushed out aid, but it was not until this morning that a party went out from here headed by Deputy Blake. They were forced to pick their way over a foot-path because of the grade being washed out.

Mexican Beef Stew—Cut into small pieces enough suet to fill a teacup, put into kettle and render. Into this put a three-pound piece of beef and keep turning until nicely browned, then cover with boiling water. Add three medium sized onions, salt, pepper to taste. When partly done add 1 can tomatoes. When meat is tender, remove and strain liquid, put meat and liquid back into kettle and add required amount of potatoes which have been pared and halved. Cook until done, let brown. Place meat on platter, arrange potatoes around, garnish with parsley. It may be necessary to add a little water occasionally while cooking meat.

RELIGION IN ENGLAND STUNTED

LONDON, Feb 9.—England is faced with a recrudescence of paganism, in the opinion of the Right Rev. Guy F. Warman, Bishop of Chelmsford and noted writer and publicist on religious questions.

In an address to a recent clerical congress here, the bishop averred that the country, in addition to being faced with an era of paganism, was also faced to some extent with the failure of its Church.

"The World War," he told his auidence, "has changed the whole situation in England. Although it is possible to exaggerate the extent of this change, we know that there has settled on the community a profound discontent with things as they are at present and a restless, inchoate longing to put them right.

"The great mass of the people of England," he continued, "have either considered and found no use for religion or they have accepted the opinion of others that it is useless. The reason for this is to be seen partly in the failure and incapacity of the Church and partly in the materialistic methods in the life of the world.

"Marriage is a problem—or is postponed. Money is scarce. Unemployment seems to have become permanent. The struggle for existence is fiercer than ever, and the result is immorality, immersion in pleasures and callous materialism.

"The pagan gods are fighting for their own again, and they seem to be fighting with the odds in their favor."

Recent official recruiting statistics show that of every hundred men who try to enter the British army 82 are now being reguiarly rejected as physically unfit, or double the percentage of those rejected before the Word War.

ASK CONFIRMATION OF CHAS. B. WARREN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—President Coolidge today called on the administration forces of the senate to wage a finish fight for confirmation of Chas. B. Warren of Detroit as attorney general.

This was the message carried to the senate by Senator Cummins, Rep. of Iowa, after an hour's conference with the president at the White House. The president was reported to have ignored all attacks on Warren's connection with sugar interests and to have demanded the right to name his own choice for cabinet posts. He was said to be willing to assume all responsibility for Warren's fitness and to be vigorously opposed to withdrawal of the appointment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The difficulties confronting administration forces in the senate where efforts to seek confirmation of Charles Beecher Warren as attorney general were outlined to President Coolidge today by Senator Cummins, Rep. of Iowa, chairman of the judiciary committee. Atty. Gen. Stone also took part in the conference.

THEY'VE ALWAYS PESTERED HUMANS

Speaking of fleas, a German savant, rumors run, has just discovered a flea with a birth certificate of 3,000 years ago! Dr. Damps, of the University of Grenoble, has also recently come across a flea fossil which wasn't born yesterday. It was in a piece of amber in the Baltic Sea. And everyone must remember the little flea which was preserved through long ages in the bottom of an Egytian tomb.

"And to the Egyptians had even more than their golden chariots and fabulous temples," says Louis Forrest in Le Matin. "So they scratched a little, too! There is always some flea in the ointment."

The anatomical construction of these ancient little beasts found by Dr. Damps seems to be the same as those that hop about in the Paris metros and other crowded places, only they had no eyes, it appears. And thus, this scientist concludes that the illustrious ancestors began by making life miserable for the cave-dwellers. They date from the tertiary period when the first traces of humans were found.

GROWERS INSPECT DRAINAGE DISTRICT

A delegation of growers from Riverside and Orange-cos will inspect the drainage system of the Newhope drainage district, which will soon be completed by the construction contractors. According to R. L. Loucks, engineer in charge, the last length of tile will be laid in a few days.

Prof. W. W. Weir, drainage engineer from the College of Agriculture, with the county agricultural agent, will conduct an educational tour to point out some of the important features of construction. The growers will assemble at Blankenbeckler's corner, West Fifth and Buaro-rd, at 9:30 a.m., Saturday.

Representatives from the other ten drainage districts in the county will be on hand to witness the completion of construction.

A crop map of the Newhope district, which has recently been completed, will be shown to the growers. This map was made at the request of the directors of the Newhope district for the purpose of watching the development of orchard crops in the district following drainage reclamation. A similar map will be completed five years from date to draw a comparison.

WHERE ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S FIRST LOVE LIES BURIED

Out of me unworthy and unknown
The vibrations of deathless music;
"With malice toward none, with charity for all."
Out of me, forgiveness of millions toward millions,
And the beneficent face of a nation
Shining with justice and truth.
I am Ann Rutledge who sleep beneath these weeds,
Beloved of Abraham Lincoln,
Wedded to him not through union,
But through separation.
Bloom forever, O Republic,
From the dust of my busom!
January 7, 1813—August 25, 1835.

This is the inscription upon the monument set up over the grave of the first love of Abraham Lincoln, in a little cemetery in Illinois. The lines appear under the title of Ann Rutledge, in Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology."

America Militaristic Says Trotsky

"It is not only in Europe that we have been able to observe ever-growing manifestations of militarism. More remarkable, perhaps, than the growth of European militarism is the development of similar tendencies in the United States of America; for there military preparations have reached an extent far beyond the wildest dreams not only of the disorganized and Balkansized Europe of today, but even of Europe as it was before the war." So declared Leon Trotsky, Communist leader, in a recent address.

"I am not going to bore you with figures to show the economic power of the United States. This is too well known to require repetition. But there are, nevertheless, two sets of figures that are worth mentioning again:

Motive Power Estimated

"Every one knows that the number of available mechanical motive power units (automobiles, locomotives, steamships, tractors, etc.), is a very important military factor. Now the total number of such units in the entire world is, roughly estimated, equivalent to 500,000,000 horsepower. Translated into terms of manpower (one horsepower being equivalent to ten manpower), this means 5,000,000,000 manpower—a force probably five times as great as that represented by the working population of the globe.

"And the United States, whose population makes up only one-sixteenth of humanity, possesses half of the total horsepower of the world, or an equivalent of 2,500,000,000 manpower!

The proportion is equally striking in the realm of finance. The total amount of gold in the world amounts to about 18,000,000,000 gold rubles, or $9,000,000,000. And of that amount $4,500,000,000—or one-half—rests in the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of the United States!

"Thus, America has half of the mechanical power which forms the foundation of the capitalist temple, and half the monetary resources which crown it like a golden cupola. And everything in between is also divided between the United States and the rest of the world in the same striking ratio.

Change Follows War

"I believe I have given enough of an outline of the technical and economic basis of American militarism—which was born later than its European relative, but has outgrown the latter to a tremendous degree. It is only recently that the United States became a militaristic country: a radical change took place there after the World war.

"When, about the end of the war, the United States joined the allies, the combination succeeded in pounding Germany to pieces. England, however, whose main obstacle to world domination was the United States, was not entirely satisfied with the outcome of the struggle. What England wanted was a defeated and weakened but not a crushed Germany—a vanquished enemy, but one that could still remain a menace to one of the victors, France. But America wanted a France powerful enough to rival England in military strength.

"America attained her aim. But despite this fact—or perhaps because of it—we can see today a pandemonium of militarism broke loose in North America.

"The American navy has grown to be almost equal to that of Great Britain. In the fields of aviation and war chemistry the United States occupies first place today.

"At the same time America capital is still able, thanks to its geographic situation and historic development, to use the mask of pacifism. Even its aggressive intervention in European affairs is giving food for the pacifist illusion in Europe."

POULTRY, DAIRY PRODUCTION GROWS

W. P. Jensen, president of the Mutual Creamery Co., whose plants produce and serve 11 western states with Maid o' Clover butter and other dairy products, has been elected president of the Pacific States Butter, Egg, Cheese and Poultry Ass'n, according to information from Portland, where the association recently closed its annual convention.

The membership is composed of the large co-operative egg associations and all the principal butter, egg, cheese and poltry dealers west of the Rocky Mountains. It is said that the annual business of the association amounts to approximately $400,000,000.

Officers of the association state that the great territory covered by their activities is developing faster in dairy and poultry production than any other part of the United States, and that the association at the present time is particularly engaged in finding and developing new markets for their great production. The inter-mountain region which had no surplus production five years ago, is now producing a surplus above its own requirements of over 2000 carloads of butter, eggs and cheese yearly, with an estimated value of $120,000,000.

According to the report from Portland this is one of the most successful meetings the association has ever held, being well attended by its own members and by many prominent dealers from New York. It has been decided to hold the 1926 convention of the association in Los Angeles.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAYS NEWS

OWEN R. LOVEJOY

As general secretary of the national child labor committee Owen R. Lovejoy, a native of Michigan, is playing an important part in the campaign now being waged to obtain ratification by states of the proposed constitutional amendment on child labor.

Ratification of 36 states is necessary. The amendment comes before 35 state legislatures this year. California is the most recent state to ratify the proposed amendment and Lovejoy played a leading part in the efforts of the workers for the measure in that state.

Lovejoy was born in Jamestown, Mich., in 1866. He received his A. B. and LL. D. from Albion College, Michigan. From 1904-07 he was assistant secretary of the National Child Labor committee and since that time he has been general secretary of the organization.

During all these years he has been the guiding spirit and his work has been eternal investigation and legislation. His reports upon conditions under which children live and work have been powerful instruments in moving sluggish legislatures in behalf of the children.

NAZIMOVA AT BEST IN "REDEEMING SIN"

"The Inimitable Nazimova at her best." Such is the testimony of reviewers who have seen "The Redeeming Sin," Vitagraph production, which comes to the United theatre Sunday for a two-days' engagement. This celebrated emotional artiste is cast as a Paris Apache and gives one of the best performances of her career. Although this remarkable actress has numberless successes to her credit her magnificent work in this production outshines them all.

Lou Tellegen has the leading male role, the Apache leader, and he also is said to outdo himself. Others in the well-balanced cast are Carlton D. Miller, Otis Harlan, Rosita Marstini, Rose Tapley, Eric Mayne and Violet Virginia.

What about the BOOZE PARTIES at Washington, D.C.?
Why are 10,000 children in the public schools using dope?
Why are the penal institutions filled to overflowing with our boys and girls?
Why are there 1,000,000 insane in the United States?
Why are there 29,000 school children in New York City with heart trouble?
How about a prison sentence with loss of citizenship for reckless auto drivers?
What are 90 per cent of our high school girls doing?
Why is 75 per cent of the crime in the United States committed between the ages of 16 and 23?

MARION HOLLINS PLAYS FINE GAME

DEL MONTE, Feb. 12— Miss Marion Hollins of New York, today played masterful golf to turn in a card of 83 in the qualifying round of the annual Pebble Beach championship for women. Miss Hollins was out in 41 and played the difficult last nine in 42.

Mrs. H. G. Hutchings of Victoria was the second player in with a card of 93.

Slickers, leather coats, umbrellas and overshoes got a heavy play as the qualifying round started in a steady drizzle.

The slow course and heavy wind gave the long hitters a tremendous advantage. Miss Hollins and Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, hit a long ball and seem afraid neither of the elements nor of the slow course.

California's strongest representative, Miss Mary K. Browne, of Los Angeles, is suffering from a slight cold.

Mrs. C. Clay Cary of Seattle, and Miss Margaret Cameron, of Los Angeles and Pasadena, were the first two away, driving from the first tee promptly at ten.

A surprising feature was the unexpectedly strong showing of Miss Margaret Cameron of Pasadena, who turned in an 88.

Mrs. C. C. Cary of Seattle was in with 104 and a possible place in the championship. Mrs. Fred Jackson with a card of 58-48—106 was among the doubtful ones. Mrs. W. C. Van Antwerp of San Francisco had an even 100.

Miss Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, had a wonderful chance to win the qualifying round when she rounded the turn in 39. Coming home she slipped on three holes, but still scored a 45, making a total of 84 and second place to Miss Marion Hollins.

Mrs. Florence Rodman of Detroit was out in 52 but came home in 48, having a total of 100. Miss Ann Webster of Los Angeles was clear off her long game and was heavily penalized time after time, taking a total of 110. Miss Alice Hanchett of San Francisco turned in 102. Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles, returned a score of 92. Mrs. Joe Mayo of Pebble Beach had a score of 104.

SPORTING EVENTS

KANSAS CITY—Wayne "Big" Munn, collegiate bred connoisseur of things gridiron and grapple, today continued to hold forth as the world's heavyweight wrestling champion. The glossy-haired former Neb. Univ. star last night bounced Stanislaus Zbyszko to defeat in slightly more than 23 minutes.

NEW YORK — Psavo Nurmi need not be expected to knock over a few records every time he apears, according to the ruling today by Secretary Rubsor of the A. A. U. His statement commended the Finn and cautioned managers of meets in which he was still to appear against his physician refused to allow him to continue the match was awarded to Yokel.

SAYS HE'LL SLAP TASTE FROM MOUTH

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo may be able, as he says he is, to slap the taste from the mouth of M. Jacques Chapeldelaine, who appears more briefly under the nom de sock, Jack Delaney, but those with more than a passing interest in the fighters' second meeting tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden seemed not so sure of it today.

Slattery's speed, his clever defense and his ability to slip around save him the edge in their previous meeting and when this match was made, these things were remembered by those who looked for Slattery to repeat in six rounds. The immature years of the boy from Buffalo preclude a longer match. The sharp-shooters today were inclined to give more than a glance to Mr. Delaney.

VALENTINE PARTY AT UNITED THEATRE

Kiddies will have their day at the United theatre Saturday. Manager Anderson has arranged one of the nicest parties of the season. Three of the cleverest little youngsters in So. Calif. are coming to show all a real good time. These little entertainers are the Roberts children, and they are well known all over the south for their clever entertainment. All will receive real pretty Valentines.

RICHEST U. S. INDIAN CALLED TO CAPITAL

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—Chief Jackson Barnett, 74-year-old Creek Indian and reputed to be the rich Indian of America's few remaining "red men," has been summoned to appear before the House Indian Affairs Committee at Washington.

Chief Barnett is said to possess oil lands worth $2,000,000. He lives in an elegant home at Santa Monica, with the bride he married five years ago (formerly Mrs. T. J. Lowe a widow) in defiance of the wishes of those controlling the aged Indian's affairs.

DENVER, Feb. 12.—A replica of an ancient Biblical city will be built in the Park of the Red Rocks, in the foothills of the Rockies, 20 miles west of Denver, it has been announced, here by a photoplay production company.

Construction work on the city will get under way within 30 days, it was announced; and the city of Biblical times will be used for the production of Biblical pictures.

The Park of the Red Rocks is one of Colorado's scenic wonders. It consists of about 1,000 acres and includes huge boulders and sand of a reddish hue.

Premier Can't Smoke in Home

The late Chief Justice Fuller of the U. S. supreme court once remarked that he had jurisdiction over all the United States except the Fuller home and the Fuller family.

Premier Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain, is in the same boat. Forbidden by Mrs. Baldwin to smoke in the house, he has to go outside when he takes a puff.

Mrs. Baldwin has made innumerable attempts to make him give up smoking.

He is seen leaving his study for a meditative session with his pipe in the garden.

BAR HEROIN FROM PATENT MEDICINE

GENEVA, Feb. 12.—America has withdrawn from the international opium conference but its influence was distinctly felt today when the conference acted on a suggestion made by the American delegation prior to its withdrawal.

The delegates by a vote of 26 to 6, adopted a motion by the Belgium delegation that heroin be declared illegal for patent medicines and only to be used on doctors' prescriptions. The proposal was made originally by Congressman Porter, chairman of the American delegation.

France opposed adoption of the Belgian motion. France uses heroin in patent medicines.

ASK WHEN ITALY WILL REFUND DEBT

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Anglo-Italian debt came up in the house of commons and the Laborite members asked Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill if Italy would pay its debt while Premier Mussolini was in power.

"We are responsible only for our own government," Churchill replied. He said that during the Paris conference the Italian representative told how Italy desired "early conversation regarding the debt to Great Britain."

Churchill denied negotiations had begun with France and Belgium for security from attack.

SHORTAGE OF BEDS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Shortage of hospital beds for disabled American war veterans in the Los Angeles district was admitted today by the United States veterans bureau in a letter received by Rep. Swing, Rep. of Cal., who had protested against the situation.

The bureau declared it was bending all its energies at the present time toward improving conditions so that deserving cases could receive hospitalization.

CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 12.—The diamond drill was started in the shaft at 4:40 and Carl Michael announced that within three hours he would know the result of the test. He has great hopes of locating a "royal road to rescue," he said.

JAZZ BAND AT CALIF. SUNDAY

In addition to the big photoplay feature, "Born Rich," with Bert Lytell and Claire Windsor, that is coming to the California theatre for Sunday only, the management has booked "Gilbert's Symphonic Syncopators," a jazz orchestra that is different.

This assembly of nine young chaps are all master musicians and have an offering that for pep, speed and class cannot be surpassed.

Mr. Gilbert, the leader, is a musician of great note and has conducted orchestras in some of the largest theatres in California and was also a member of several large orchestras in New York.

SPECIAL KIDDIES MATINEE SATURDAY

Next Saturday is the starting of the special children's matinees that will be given at the California theatre every Saturday following. Valuables Claimed By Authoress Wieland

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 12.—A tin box, buried six years ago in a lonely spot in Topanga Canyon and containing burning love letters and securities worth $100,000, was claimed by, Mrs. May Otis Wieland, of Los Angeles. Tonight there will be a banquet. Tomorrow various glass plants will be visited and on Saturday the visitors will have a look at the motion picture, studios in Hollywood and elsewhere.

KNOCKOUT "VODE" SHOW AT CALIF.

There is another knockout vaudeville show booked for the California for Friday only. Five classy acts, all of big time stuff, and lovers of good vaudeville will enjoy this show.

Something new and novel is offered in "Richardson's Posing Dogs," an act of almost superhuman intelligence. It has taken Mr. Richardson many years to have these dogs present their specialty.

Al Patterson, "Entertainer," presents a very versatile offering of songs, talk and music in a manner that will please.

The McLeods, a family of four, offer "A Family Affair in Black and White," a pot pourri of chatter, song and dance. It is one of the most infectious bits of entertainment of the season, every member of the family being an artist worthy of being featured alone and their combined efforts cannot but have a most pleasant effect.

Frank Evans, "The Song Salesman," gives the trials and tribulations of a house-to-house solicitor. The act is chuck full of laughs and humor with a number of surprising comedy situations that you will surely enjoy.

"The Venetian Four," in a "Night in Venice," is easily the feature act of this all star bill and has a very pretty and artistic offering in their Musical Melange. These songsters of sunny Italy are master musicians and their offering is enhanced by accompaniment on the harp.

A highly entertaining little feature, starring popular Shirley Mason, the William Fox star, will be shown Friday only at the California. The attraction will be "The Great Diamond Mystery," which as the title indicates, involves a crime, two crimes, in fact, one being the theft of a great diamond, and the other the murder of a diamond broker.

In this picture, Shirley Mason, playing the role of Ruth Winton, author of a murder mystery story, is enabled to solve an actual mystery by putting into a test the theory that a murderer always returns to the scene of his crime. The fact that her ability to prove her theory is the only way in this world to save her sweetheart from the electric chair and herself from dishonor adds a tremendous interest to the picture.

Bobby Vernon in a Christie comedy, "High Gear," and Kinograms complete the bill.
